

United States of America

Congressional Record

PROCEEDINGS AND DEBATES OF THE 107th CONGRESS, SECOND SESSION

SENATE—Thursday, June 27, 2002

The Senate met at 9:31 a.m. and was called to order by the President pro tempore [Mr. BYRD].

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The prayer to Almighty God, the supreme Judge of the world, will be led by the Senate Chaplain, the Rev. Dr. Lloyd J. Ogilvie. Dr. Ogilvie, please.

PRAYER

The Chaplain, Dr. Lloyd John Ogilvie, offered the following prayer:

Almighty God, Creator, Sustainer and Providential source of all our blessings. We praise you for the freedom of religion in America guaranteed by the Bill of Rights and the Constitution. There is no separation between God and State. With gratitude we declare our motto "In God we trust." Though that trust may be expressed in different religions, we do proclaim You as ultimate Sovereign of our Nation. Our Founders declared their trust in You and in each stage of our development You have guided us through peril and prosperity, peace and war. Thank You for Your faithfulness to respond to our confession of trust in You.

It is with reverence that in a moment we will repeat the words of commitment to trust You which are part of our Pledge of Allegiance to our flag: "One Nation under God, indivisible."

Help us to savor these words this morning. May we never lose a profound sense of awe and wonder over the privilege You have given us to live in this religiously free land. Renew our sense of accountability to You, and never take for granted the freedom we enjoy or the accountability we have to You. As we declare our convictions in the Pledge, we affirm that patriotism is an essential expression of our trust in You.

Specifically for today and its pressing agenda and challenges we affirm we are one Senate united under You to lead a nation that is free to say confidently, "In God We Trust."

God our Sovereign, we continue the work of this busy week with the words and music of the Fourth of July celebration sounding in our souls. We pray together today, remembering the first prayer of dependence prayed for the delegates to the Continental Congress in 1774 that eventually led to the Declaration of Independence in 1776.

Now before the fireworks begin, work in us the fire of that same dependence on You that has been the secret of truly great leaders throughout our history. We pray for the women and men of this Senate. Enlarge their hearts until they are big enough to contain the gift of Your Spirit; expand their minds until they are capable of thinking Your thoughts; deepen their mutual trust so that they can work harmoniously for what is best for this Nation. You know all the legislation to be debated and voted on before recess. Grant the Senators an unprecedented dependence on You, an unreserved desire to seek Your will, and an unlimited supply of Your supernatural strength.

With renewed dependence on You and renewed interdependence on one another as fellow patriots, help us to be willing, in the spirit of our Founders, to stake our reliance on You and pledge our lives, fortunes, and sacred honor for the next stage of Your strategy for America: God bless America! Amen.

PLEDGE OF ALLEGIANCE

The PRESIDENT pro tempore [Mr. BYRD] led the Pledge of Allegiance, as follows:

I pledge allegiance to the Flag of the United States of America, and to the Republic for which it stands, one nation under God, indivisible, with liberty and justice for all.

RECOGNITION OF THE MAJORITY LEADER

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The majority leader is recognized.

THANKING THE CHAPLAIN

Mr. DASCHLE. Mr. President, I know I speak for all of our colleagues in thanking Chaplain Ogilvie for his wonderful prayer this morning. He spoke for all of us. We are one nation under God, and we reaffirm that today as Americans—not as Republicans or as Democrats—and we do so proudly.

SCHEDULE

Mr. DASCHLE. Mr. President, there will be a vote on cloture at 10:30 this morning. The time between now and then will be divided equally between the Republican leader or his designee, who will have the first half of the time, and the Democratic leader or his designee for the second half. Senators should be aware that within the next 50 minutes, we will have a cloture vote, and we will proceed in an effort to try to complete work on the Defense bill today.

I yield the floor.

RESERVATION OF LEADER TIME

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. Under the previous order, the leadership time is reserved.

MORNING BUSINESS

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. Under the previous order, there will now be a period for the transaction of morning business not to extend beyond the hour of 10:30 a.m., with Senators permitted to speak therein for up to 10 minutes each. The first half of the time shall be under the control of the Republican leader or his designee; the second half of the time shall be under the control of the majority leader or his designee.

Who seeks recognition?

Mr. NICKLES. Mr. President, I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The clerk will call the roll.

The legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. WELLSTONE. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. REED). Without objection, it is so ordered.

The Senator from Minnesota should be aware that the time is presently controlled by the Republican leader.

The Senator from Texas.

Mrs. HUTCHISON. Mr. President, I ask the Senator from Minnesota how long he is intending to speak?

Mr. WELLSTONE. I say to my colleague from Texas, probably about 3 minutes. I want to talk about disaster assistance in Minnesota.

Mrs. HUTCHISON. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the Senator from Minnesota be allowed to speak for approximately 3 to 4 minutes, after which I ask unanimous consent to be recognized.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

FLOODS IN MINNESOTA

Mr. WELLSTONE. Mr. President, as any number of my colleagues may have noted, if they have been watching CNN, northwest Minnesota in the last 3 weeks has been deluged by heavy rainfall causing disasters in 13 northwestern Minnesota counties. We have had massive flooding.

Earlier this week, the President rightly declared these counties disaster areas, which will bring much needed FEMA assistance to individuals and businesses. More help is needed, and the Minnesota Farm Service Agency has estimated that we have 2 million acres in northwest Minnesota that are affected by the flooding, and the losses are expected to be about 70 percent. Most of the producers have carried crop insurance, but the crop insurance cannot come close to compensating for these losses. What I am worried about is FEMA can help us with public infrastructure and SBA can help some of our small businesses, but we need disaster relief for our farmers. Without disaster relief, there is no future for them at all.

The President and the administration are saying that there will not be any more disaster relief money and that whatever assistance goes to these farmers has to come from the farm bill. In other words, money has to be taken from other farmers, taken from corn growers, wheat growers, soybean growers. The President and the administration are saying that our farmers cannot expect any relief until the year 2008, no matter what. That is not going to work for northwestern Minnesota.

The farm bill which we passed is not a disaster assistance bill. It is a bill to stabilize farm income. It is a bill about the rural economies, but it is not about disaster relief. Disaster relief is all about "there but the grace of God go I"—fire in Arizona, drought in South Dakota, flooding in northwest Minnesota.

When the Congress decides to help areas affected by hurricanes and fires, we do not tell people to pull their emergency assistance out of somebody else's highway fund.

Sometimes the Federal Government needs to be there for people, and this is one of those cases. I will be visiting northwest Minnesota again this week on Saturday afternoon. It is very important that the administration provide this much needed assistance. I do not think as a Senator, in the almost 12 years I have been in the Senate, I have ever voted against disaster relief for any part of the country, because, again, I think this goes to the essence of who we are as a community. Nobody asked for the flooding. Nobody asked for 2 million acres of farmland, 70 percent of it, to be destroyed. Nobody asks for hurricanes or tornados. Nobody asked for the drought. It is "there but for the grace of God go I." We come together as a community and we provide the help for people. That is what disaster relief is about.

I come to the floor to call on the administration to change their mind and to make a commitment to providing this assistance. We had it in the farm bill in the Senate. It was taken out in conference committee for 2001. Now we are talking about even more damage for 2002.

There is no more important issue for the State of Minnesota than to get the help for these farmers. Otherwise, they will not be there. It will be all over. I appeal to the White House: Please change your mind on this matter. We need the help in Minnesota. There will be other States that will need the assistance, as well.

I yield the floor.

ORDER OF BUSINESS

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Under the previous order, the Senator from Texas is recognized.

Mr. WARNER. Mr. President, the Senator from Texas has an important measure, which I have reviewed. Given the current status of the bill, it is questionable whether it can be brought up on the bill. The Senator is anxious to speak about it. I suggest the Senator send the amendment to the desk and leave it there, making it part of the RECORD as a colloquy.

Mrs. HUTCHISON. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent the amendment be brought up, and I will speak on it, after which I will withdraw the amendment.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senate is not currently on the bill. The Senate is in a period of morning business.

Mr. WARNER. At some point it may be reviewed in committee or by the Senate, but it is important to be part of the RECORD.

Mrs. HUTCHISON. When does morning business end?

Mr. REID. After the cloture vote.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Morning business is scheduled to end at 10:30.

Mrs. HUTCHISON. I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mrs. HUTCHISON. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mrs. HUTCHISON. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent it be in order for me to call up amendment No. 3928 to the Defense authorization bill.

Mr. REID. Reserving the right to object, I have no objection for calling the bill up as long as the amendment will be withdrawn subsequently.

Mrs. HUTCHISON. That is correct.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

NATIONAL DEFENSE AUTHORIZATION ACT FOR FISCAL YEAR 2003—Resumed

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will report the bill by title.

The legislative clerk read as follows:

A bill (S. 2514) to authorize appropriations for fiscal year 2003 for military activities of the Department of Defense, for military construction, and for defense activities of the Department of Energy, to prescribe personnel strengths for such fiscal year for the Armed Forces, and for other purposes.

AMENDMENT NO. 3928

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. MILLER). The clerk will report the amendment.

The legislative clerk read as follows:

The Senator from Texas [Mrs. HUTCHISON], for herself, Mr. BINGAMAN, Mr. LOTT, Mr. STEVENS, Mr. INOUE, Mr. BUNNING, Mrs. FEINSTEIN, Mr. CRAIG, Ms. COLLINS, Mr. SHELBY, Mr. SMITH of New Hampshire, Mr. BOND, Mr. DOMENICI, Mr. BAYH, Mr. NELSON of Nebraska, Mr. BURNS, and Ms. SNOWE, proposes amendment No. 3928.

Mrs. HUTCHISON. I ask unanimous consent reading of the amendment be dispensed.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The amendment is as follows:

(Purpose: To specify additional selection criteria for the 2005 round of defense base closures and realignments under the Defense Base Closure and Realignment Act of 1990)

At the end of subtitle B of title XXVIII, add the following:

SEC. 2814. ADDITIONAL SELECTION CRITERIA FOR 2005 ROUND OF DEFENSE BASE CLOSURE AND REALIGNMENT.

(a) ADDITIONAL SELECTION CRITERIA.—Section 2913 of the Defense Base Closure and Realignment Act of 1990 (part A of title XXIX of Public Law 101-510; 10 U.S.C. 2687 note) is amended—

(1) by redesignating subsections (d), (e), and (f) as subsections (e), (f), and (g), respectively; and

(2) by inserting after subsection (c) the following new subsection (d):

“(d) ADDITIONAL CONSIDERATIONS.—The selection criteria for military installations shall also address the following:

“(1) Force structure and mission requirements through 2020, as specified by the document entitled ‘Joint Vision 2020’ issued by the Joint Chiefs of Staff, including—

“(A) mobilization requirements; and

“(B) requirements for utilization of facilities by the Department of Defense and by other departments and agencies of the United States, including—

“(i) joint use by two or more Armed Forces; and “(ii) use by one or more reserve components.

“(2) The availability and condition of facilities, land, and associated airspace, including—

“(A) proximity to mobilization points, including points of embarkation for air or rail transportation and ports; and “(B) current, planned, and programmed military construction.

“(3) Considerations regarding ranges and airspace, including—

“(A) uniqueness; and

“(B) existing or potential physical, electromagnetic, or other encroachment.

“(4) Force protection.

“(5) Costs and effects of relocating critical infrastructure, including—

“(A) military construction costs at receiving military installations and facilities;

“(B) environmental costs, including costs of compliance with Federal and State environmental laws;

“(C) termination costs and other liabilities associated with existing contracts or agreements involving outsourcing or privatization of services, housing, or facilities used by the Department;

“(D) effects on co-located entities of the Department;

“(E) effects on co-located Federal agencies;

“(F) costs of transfers and relocations of civilian personnel, and other workforce considerations.

“(6) Homeland security requirements.

“(7) State or local support for a continued presence by the Department, including—

“(A) current or potential public or private partnerships in support of Department activities; and

“(B) the capacity of States and localities to respond positively to economic effects and other effects.

“(8) Applicable lessons from previous rounds of defense base closure and realignment, including disparities between anticipated savings and actual savings.

“(9) Anticipated savings and other benefits, including—

“(A) enhancement of capabilities through improved use of remaining infrastructure; and “(B) the capacity to relocate units and other assets.

“(10) Any other considerations that the Secretary of Defense determines appropriate.”.

(b) WEIGHTING OF CRITERIA FOR TRANSPARENCY PURPOSES.—Subsection (a) of such section 2913 is amended—

(1) by redesignating paragraph (2) as paragraph (3); and

(2) by inserting after paragraph (1) the following new paragraph (2):

“(2) WEIGHTING OF CRITERIA.—At the same time the Secretary publishes the proposed criteria under paragraph (1), the Secretary shall publish in the Federal Register the formula proposed to be used by the Secretary in assigning weight to the various proposed criteria in making recommendations for the closure or realignment of military installations inside the United States under this part in 2005.”.

Mrs. HUTCHISON. Mr. President, I rise today to speak in support of an amendment that 16 of my colleagues on both sides of the aisle have cosponsored. The amendment is very straightforward. It is to improve the minimum criteria for the 2005 BRAC Commission, that the military and the department must follow when evaluating the Nation's military infrastructure. The amendment would also make the process more transparent.

I want to be clear that by offering this amendment, I do not intend to revisit the debate we had last year. While this Chamber remains sharply divided over the merits of another round of base closures, we can certainly agree a round of closures riddled with mistakes could be more costly than no closures at all.

In fiscal year 2002, the National Defense Authorization Act unleashed a powerful bureaucratic process when it authorized another round of closures in 2005. The Pentagon has often said that there are 20 to 25 percent excess military structures and that nine members of the commission may well recommend the closure of as many as 100 military installations in this Nation.

Those are not decisions to be taken lightly. We have seen from the Vieques fiasco that once a national asset like a training range is closed, it cannot be replaced.

We have also seen past commissions commit costly blunders. In 1995, the commission recommended the closure of Reese Air Force Base in Lubbock, TX. The Air Force said it had surplus undergraduate training capacity. Only a few years later, the Air Force reported it was nearly 2,000 pilots short of its authorized end strength. At great expense to the taxpayer, the Air Force responded by standing up Moody Air Force Base.

In 1995, Fort Buchanan, Puerto Rico was realigned, and all of its housing was conveyed to the community. Two years later, U.S. Army South was relocated there from Panama. The Secretary was forced to come back to Congress to seek permission to rescind the housing conveyance.

In 1995, Fort Greeley, AK, was realigned, its tenants relocated, and the housing area was relinquished. Five years later, the decision was made to utilize Greeley as the critical test bed for our emerging national missile defense system.

As we can see, even in peacetime, correctly forecasting requirements, even just a few years into the future, is nearly impossible.

The authorization bill already directs the commissioners to consider a handful of very broad criteria when evaluating our military infrastructure. But in an era where the meaning of commonly understood words is a matter of debate, specificity is everything.

The amendment goes one step further. The Commissioners are authorized to consider additional criteria, many not included in last year's authorization bill. One of these is force protection. The threat posed by terrorists to our forces has been demonstrated too vividly to leave this out. Look at Khobar Towers, look at the USS Cole. We must have force protection wherever our troops are in the field, and it should be an additional criterion for any enduring installation.

Lessons learned from previous rounds of closures include the disparities between anticipated and actual savings is another suggested criterion—who could oppose this commonsense suggestion?

Of course, there are bases overseas as well as those in America that are affected by the base-closing commission, so the criteria in this amendment are in no way exhaustive or restrictive. The Commission may consider any other criteria it considers appropriate. But it is an attempt to enumerate a minimum number of criteria that would have to be addressed by the Commission when they are making their very important decisions potentially closing as many as 100 military installations.

In addition to sharpening focus, this amendment would also increase transparency. It requires the formula to be used in assigning weight to the various criteria to be published in the Federal Register. By permitting greater insight into the workings of the Commission, we can reduce some of the anxiety communities will experience as we near 2005. Greater transparency will also help us limit the number of potential and very costly mistakes.

We will place a tremendous amount of trust in the nine members of the Commission. Their decisions will impact hundreds of communities across our Nation. It is entirely reasonable to demand a degree of transparency into the process.

In a recent letter, the general counsel of the Department of Defense wrote to express the Department's opposition to this amendment. The counsel justifies the Department's opposition by arguing that the proposed criteria “are redundant to existing provisions,” and “the proposed requirement to weight the selection criteria is unnecessary.”

As an example of this alleged redundancy, the counsel points out that our amendment requires that the selection process address “force structure and mission requirements through 2020,” and that the current law also requires the Secretary of Defense to develop a force structure plan based on, among other factors, an assessment of the probable threats to national security through 2025.

This is true. However, the general counsel fails to mention that the current law requires the Secretary of Defense to submit the plan in support of the Department's fiscal year 2005 budget. That budget will not be submitted to Congress until February or March of 2004, months after the December 31, 2003 deadline for publishing the proposed criteria for base closing in the Federal Register. Without our amendment, the criteria will be established before the Secretary has reported his assessment of our long-term threat, the necessary force structure, and hence the most appropriate infrastructure needs of the military.

Members of this administration have said on previous occasions that doing a BRAC before our future force structure has been determined is like getting the cart before the horse.

The general counsel also contended in the letter that the amendment's requirements that the criteria be weighted is unnecessary because the current law:

... requires the Secretary of Defense to ensure that military value is the primary consideration. . . .

True. Our legislation would not change this. The real question is, Exactly how will the Department measure military value? Clearly, there are many factors that comprise this measurement. The current law contains at least five components of military value. Is it unreasonable to ask which of these is the more important? They can't all be of equal value. At some point the Commission will rank them, giving each criterion a different relative weight. All we are seeking is insight into the process. Without knowledge of how the Commission weights the criteria, we will once again be left, as we have seen in past BRACs, with a secretive process in which the nine members of the Commission go into a room with a list of bases and then reappear with a final list of closures. There is no public insight into the Commission's rationale at this point.

Our legislation would require that the relative weighting be published, and thus provide the public with a greater understanding of the process.

I think the general counsel's response shows a level of misunderstanding of the concern that people have about base closings. This has been a secretive process in the past, one in which there has been no necessity to reveal the rationale and the Commission has not.

I do not doubt the Department will eventually start looking at these criteria more carefully. I certainly hope, before we go into this 2005 round, which will probably be the last round of base closures, that the Department will report on what our 20-year strategy is going to be, what our necessary force strength will be, and what our training infrastructure requirements will be.

Today we don't know that. We could not know that today for 2020. The Department has not put that forward. Clearly the Department has been focusing on the war on terrorism, as they should. But to go into the next round of base closings, we must determine what our threats are going to be for 20 years and assess just how much it is going to cost to close a base or how much it would cost if we need to reopen it.

It is clear that did not happen in all cases during the 1995 round. Costs continue to be much more than were estimated by the Commission.

The environmental cleanup is still costing us hundreds of millions of dollars in the Military Construction Subcommittee, where I am the ranking member, and we are paying costs that were never envisioned by the 1995 base-closing commission.

I am going to withdraw my amendment because I do think the Department of Defense has other concerns that are clearly taking priority at this time, and I understand that. But I am going to keep this amendment alive for the future because I believe the Department needs to come forth with weighted criteria, with a clear 20-year strategy before they set the criteria for base closings.

We need to know what the war on terrorism is going to entail over the next 20 years. How are we going to protect our troops wherever they may be? How are we going to make sure we have the training capability that we thought we had at Vieques, but then all of a sudden people protested and we withdrew? So now we do not have a good live-firing training range for the Navy to substitute.

How could we possibly go forward in 2005 without this information?

I urge the Department of Defense to work with me to come up with clear, weighted criteria prior to the 2005 round of base closings.

I withdraw the amendment and yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The amendment is withdrawn.

The time is controlled by the majority leader or his designee.

Mr. WARNER. Mr. President, I just wished 2 minutes for comment.

Mr. REID. I have a problem. We have a lot of time after the cloture vote. Senator STABENOW has about 30 minutes of material to jam into 20 minutes, so I think we should start with that.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Michigan is recognized.

PRESCRIPTION DRUG PRICES

Ms. STABENOW. Mr. President, I rise this morning to speak about an incredibly important subject that affects every senior, every family, every worker, every business owner in our country. This is something we have been talking about for a long time but we are now poised to act. I want to commend our Senate majority leader, Senator DASCHLE, for understanding the critical nature of prescription drug prices for our seniors, for our families, for our businesses in the country, and for scheduling this debate in July, an important time in the midst of so many issues that we know are pressing. He understands—and I appreciate that our leadership understands—the critical nature of our seniors having to struggle to get their prescription drugs every day and the gigantic rising costs for our business community. The fact is that workers have to negotiate pay freezes in order to have the health care they need.

This is an issue that affects everybody. We have the opportunity to act in the Senate. There are those who will be acting in the House of Representatives on a plan that, with all due respect, I believe and many colleague believe, just isn't good enough. We have the opportunity to do the right thing to make a real difference to provide for a Medicare prescription drug plan that will pay for the majority of the bill for the average senior, and also lower prices for everyone.

I want to share with colleagues today results from a study that was done by Families U.S.A. and released on Monday that tracks the rising prices of prescription drugs. It continues to be astounding. They have indicated that over the 5-year period—from January 1997 to January of this year—the prices of the prescription drugs most frequently used by older Americans rose, on average, 27.6 percent—way above the rate of inflation.

No wonder our seniors are having to choose between food and paying the electric bill and getting their medicine. No wonder our small business community is seeing premiums rise by 30 or 40 percent. The Big Three automakers in my State are struggling with the huge price increases for health insurance.

We are seeing an explosion of prices for prescription drugs which is absolutely not sustainable, and it is absolutely not justified.

Let me read from two of the many examples that were given by Families U.S.A. Premarin, an estrogen replacement drug, rose 17.5 percent—nearly seven times the rate of inflation. Lipitor, which we hear so much about, a cholesterol-lowering drug, rose 13.5 percent—more than five times the rate of inflation.

That is astounding when we look at the fact that the taxpayers of America underwrite basic research; we provide tax incentives, tax credits, and tax deductions so the drug companies can write off the cost of research. We give them patents so they do not have competition for up to 20 years in order to recover their costs. Then we see the highest prices in the world being paid by our seniors—being paid by everyone in the United States. This explosion in prices makes no sense.

I am so pleased, as we come to this debate in the Senate, that out of the debate we will include not only a Medicare prescription drug benefit, which is authored by the Presiding Officer, as well as Senator GRAHAM of Florida, Senator KENNEDY, and many of us who join together to provide real coverage and real help for seniors, but we also intend to tackle the pricing issue.

One of the things I found astounding in this study is the fact that up to 10 top generic drugs—in other words, unadvertised brands that are equivalent to the advertised brands, but they just don't cost as much—of the 10 generic drugs, 9 did not increase in price at all last year. Nine out of ten of the generic drugs looked at did not increase at all. On the other hand, by contrast, only 3 of the 40 brand-named drugs did not increase last year.

I have talked about the fact that in our plan we provide incentives and encourage the use of unadvertised brands. We will be offering important amendments to close loopholes which allow brand-name companies to stop the generic companies from going on the market to compete with lower prices.

These are very important issues.

We have two goals in the Senate: To provide a real Medicare prescription drug benefit, and at the same time to lower prices for everyone.

We want to open the border to Canada so we can get prescription drugs at lower prices. We want to provide other opportunities, such as tackling exorbitant costs of advertising that cause these prescription drugs to rise so quickly.

What does this mean for real people? We know there is a real difference between the House and the Senate. The House plan will cover about 15 to 20 percent of the average bill for an average senior. We are looking at covering 70 to 80 percent—a huge difference.

What does that mean to the average senior?

I have set up a Prescription Drug People's Lobby in Michigan where we ask people to come to my Web site. They can log onto my Web site by logging onto Senator DEBBIE STABENOW, and they can find out what we are doing to lower prices and to provide Medicare prescription drug coverage. I have asked people to share their stories and their struggles. I want to share two of those today.

Shawn Somerville from Ypsilanti, MI, is a granddaughter who is expressing great concern for her grandmother. She said:

Just this last Christmas, my grandmother was hospitalized because she stopped taking her prescription so she could afford Christmas presents for all of us grandkids. She later died from an undiagnosed ulcer. It was very sad to me that these drugs are so expensive.

Do they need to be?

Do they need to be? No, Shawn. They do not need to be.

We don't need another grandma choosing not taking her medicine this Christmas so she can buy Christmas presents for her grandchildren. This is the United States of America. We can do better. It is shameful that we have not done better. We intend in the Senate to come forward with a plan that will do better.

I have been getting e-mail from the Prescription Drug People's Lobby from around the country. I will share one more before turning to my colleague from Minnesota, who has been such a leader on this issue.

This is from Lydell Howard from Inglewood, CA. She wrote:

My grandfather, Esco Howard, a 75-year-old retired LTV Steel worker recently experienced what we thought to be impossible. He and his spouse in March 2002 were sent a letter to advise them that they would no longer be covered by a medical plan as provided by LTV Steel, as of March 31, 2002. This was due to the financial constraints of the company.

This is happening all across our country.

We (the family and grandparents included) were devastated. What would they do? How could they then survive?

What would they do?

Since March 31, my grandparents have been faced with exorbitant medical prescription costs. Their finances absorbed by the cost of medical and prescription costs, now average nearly $900 per month for prescription costs alone, with an income of about $1,300 per month.

Nine hundred dollars a month. That is hard to fathom—somebody retired coming up with $900 a month.

This way of living is terrorizing seniors, disabled persons, and their families. This movement to expand Medicare to include a description plan is the answer. But it also must be affordable to all people of concern.

Lydell Howard, I couldn't agree more. That is what this is all about—providing real medical help, and real Medicare help for prescriptions for your grandparents, and making sure prescriptions are affordable to everyone.

I will say, as I have said so many times before, that we know this is an uphill battle. There are six drug company lobbyists for every Member of the Senate. People have to be involved and have their voices heard in order for us to be successful.

I will conclude by once again encouraging people to join us by going to fairdrugprices.org, and sign a petition calling on Congress to act—get involved and share your stories with us.

I now yield to my colleague from Minnesota, who has been such a champion and a voice for people on this issue and so many others. I know he is standing up every day on behalf of our seniors and our families to lower prescription drug prices.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Minnesota.

Mr. WELLSTONE. Mr. President, I would like to not rush through this. We only have 10 minutes. I will use 5 minutes and then yield 5 minutes to my colleague from Florida, who has been such a leader on this issue, along with the Presiding Officer. Listen, I could go through this for hours. I don't know how to do this in 5 minutes, but let me try.

I thank the Senator from Michigan. I think people get a whole lot more faith in politics and then people in politics when they not only campaign and say they are going to do something but, once in the Senate, they make this their passion and their goal. I say to the Senator from Michigan, you have done that. Every single day you have been focused on prescription drug coverage for people. I thank you for that.

The House has a plan, and I simply have to point out to the Senate that I do not see it as a great step forward. I see it as a great leap sideways. I think people will come to see it the same way. People in Minnesota will.

There are a number of problems. Part of it is ideological. When we passed Medicare in 1965, it was an enormous step forward. I will tell you, for my mom and dad, who are no longer alive, it made all the difference in the world. It meant there would be coverage for them.

This was a Government program that, really, I put in the same category as Social Security. It was an enormous step forward, not just for senior citizens but made our country better. It made us a better country.

What we want to do on the Senate side is extend prescription drugs as a part of Medicare. On the House side, basically what they are saying is, there is no guarantee of any benefit. But what they do say is, seniors will be entitled to some sort of coverage through drug-only insurance plans or through Medicare HMOs. By the way, a number of these private health insurance plans, I say to my colleagues from Ohio and Michigan, are telling me they are not going to provide the coverage for them because it will not work for them. The only people it will work for are people who will not need it, and they will not have a large enough pool, so it will not be profitable.

But on the House side, apparently Republicans have said they do not want to extend this on to Medicare, in which case, really, they are interested in going down the road of privatizing Medicare. We are not.

The second point is a real important one. If you are going to have prescription drug coverage that works for people, you have to keep the copays or deductibles sufficiently low and premiums sufficiently low so they can afford it. And it has to provide real catastrophic coverage. That is what people worry about the most.

On the House side, you have this peculiar feature of between $2,000 and $3,700 there is no coverage. While people continue to pay premiums, they do not get any coverage. I think probably close to half of the senior citizens in this country actually are paying more than the $2,000 in expenses for prescription drugs; and they do not get any coverage whatsoever in the House plan. It does not make a whole lot of sense.

This is truly one of those examples where the Devil is in the details.

I guarantee you, when senior citizens—and it is not just about senior citizens; it is their children and their families; we are all in this together—see there isn't any coverage, people are going to say: What is this about? This does not meet our needs.

The third issue which is important to me is that the House plan says we want to make sure that low-income seniors—the profile is not very high; it is not true the majority of senior citizens are “greedy geezers” playing all the swank golf courses around the country—probably a full 75 percent have incomes below $30,000 or $35,000 a year.

For low-income seniors, the House says, of course we would not have people paying, that it would be coverage they could afford, it would be free coverage, except then they have an assets test so that if you have a savings account of more than $2,000, or you have a car that is worth $4,500, or you have a burial plot worth more than $1,500, you would not necessarily be eligible for any help whatsoever. That strikes me as being stingy. To tell you the truth, it defies common sense. We ought not to be having this kind of stringent assets test when it comes to whether people can afford prescription drugs.

My final point—and I could spend a lot of time on this—I am a cosponsor of the Senate bill. I think it is extremely important. I thank both my colleagues. I would love to see us have some cost containment. I think we should do it. I could talk about three options, but with only 30 seconds, I am only going to talk about one, because I have been working on it for several years. And so have Senator STABENOW, Senator DORGAN, and Senator JEFFORDS.

I do believe at the very minimum we ought to allow our citizens to reimport these prescription drugs from Canada, according to all of the FDA safety guidelines. There is no reason in the world why our pharmacists, our wholesalers, and our families cannot reimport drugs, where they can get a 30-, 40-, or 50-percent discount. There is no reason whatsoever. I grant you, the pharmaceutical industry will not like this.

But what we also have to do is make sure there is a way we can reduce the costs. I think that would be a helpful addition to what I think is a very important piece of legislation.

I say to my colleagues, I think the House bill is a nonstarter. I think it is a great leap backwards. I think we have a much stronger bill. I look forward to the debate.

I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Florida.

Mr. GRAHAM. Mr. President, first, I commend my two colleagues for their eloquent statements. I commend the Presiding Officer for his great leadership on this effort to pass a prescription drug benefit this year.

The most fundamental reform for our Nation's Medicare Program is its transformation from a program that has focused, since 1965, on dealing with people's needs after they were sick enough to go to the doctor or the hospital and to create a modern commitment to good health.

Access to medications is an absolutely central part of that commitment to good health. Access to medications not only helps people live longer, happier, healthier lives, but it also will help Medicare save money.

These truths are particularly important to the most vulnerable of our elderly, those who are too well off to qualify for Medicaid, the program for poor Americans, but are too poor to afford their medically necessary prescription drugs.

There are approximately 10 million older Americans living on an annual income of $13,000 or less per year. Of that 10 million, 5.5 million have no prescription drug coverage because they do not qualify for Medicaid.

These Americans face the tough choices of deciding whether they can afford their prescription drugs. One example of this is Mrs. Olga Butler of a beautiful community in central Florida, Avon Park.

Mrs. Butler receives a monthly Social Security check of $672, which makes her barely over the income limit for Medicaid coverage. This means that the 67-year-old Olga has to pay for her own medications, sometimes having to make the choice among food, rent, and her prescriptions.

Olga is on Lipitor and clonidine for her hypertension and high cholesterol. She pays $95 per month for Lipitor and $22 per month for clonidine. These prescription drugs not only improve the quality of Olga's life, but they are helpful in warding off a possible stroke or heart attack, for which she is at great risk.

In addition to the personal devastation of having a stroke or a heart attack, these would cause significant additional costs to the Medicare Program.

An average hospitalization for a typical stroke patient costs Medicare $7,127.59. Physicians' time, tests, and consultations will add, on average, another $1,600 cost to Medicare. This is an avoidable event.

If Olga can continue to take her medications, chances are she will not have a stroke, she will not have a heart attack, and, if she is fortunate, she will not need further hospitalizations, nursing facility care, and rehabilitation services. This, of course, is expensive, but it is also avoidable.

You might ask, why are you discussing this issue of the poor, but above Medicaid eligibility, elderly? Don't both competing prescription drug plans that have been offered for Medicare offer similar benefits to Olga Butler? The answer is, not quite.

Under the House Republican plan, which I understand may be debated today and where I know there are considerable misgivings among Members on both sides of the aisle, maybe one of the reasons for those misgivings is the fact that, before Olga can receive any help with her drug costs, she must pass an assets test. An assets test?

For the first time in the history of Medicare—for the first time since 1965—we are about to impose an assets test in order for a low-income Medicare beneficiary to be eligible for prescription drug assistance.

What does this mean to Olga Butler? It means she must deplete her life's savings to less than $4,000, sell off her furniture and personal property that is worth more than $2,000, get rid of her burial fund if it exceeds $1,500, and sell her car, if it has a value of more than $4,500—all of these in order to qualify for low income assistance under the inadequate Republican proposal.

I ask unanimous consent for an additional 5 minutes to complete my remarks.

Mr. REID. Objection.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Objection is heard.

Mr. GRAHAM. Mr. President, I look forward to an opportunity to continue to outline the circumstances under which Olga would be disadvantaged if the plan being considered in the House today were to improvidently be adopted.

CONCLUSION OF MORNING BUSINESS

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Morning business is closed.

NATIONAL DEFENSE AUTHORIZATION ACT FOR FISCAL YEAR 2003

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Under the previous order, the Senate will now continue consideration of S. 2514 which the clerk will report.

The legislative clerk read as follows:

A bill (S. 2514) to authorize appropriations for fiscal year 2003 for the military activities of the Department of Defense, for military construction, and for defense activities of the Department of Energy, to prescribe personnel strengths for such fiscal year for the Armed Forces, and for other purposes.

Mr. WARNER. Parliamentary inquiry: My understanding is the Senate now, by previous order, proceeds to the cloture vote; am I correct?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator is correct.

CLOTURE MOTION

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Under the previous order, the clerk will report the motion to invoke cloture.

The legislative clerk read as follows:

CLOTURE MOTION

We, the undersigned Senators, in accordance with the provisions of rule XXII, of the Standing Rules of the Senate, hereby move to bring to a close the debate on S. 2514, the Defense authorization bill:

Harry Reid, Jon Corzine, Richard Durbin, Tom Harkin, Carl Levin, Mary Landrieu, Tom Carper, Ben Nelson, Ron Wyden, Daniel Akaka, Debbie Stabenow, Evan Bayh, Maria Cantwell, Herb Kohl, John Edwards, Jeff Bingaman, and Joseph Lieberman.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. By unanimous consent, the mandatory quorum call under the rule is waived.

The question is, Is it the sense of the Senate that debate on S. 2514, a bill to authorize appropriations for fiscal year 2003 for military activities of the Department of Defense, for military construction, and for defense activities of the Department of Energy, prescribe personnel strengths for such fiscal year for the Armed Forces, and for other purposes, shall be brought to a close?

The yeas and nays are required under the rule.

The clerk will call the roll.

The legislative clerk called the roll.

Mr. REID. I announce that the Senator from New York (Mr. SCHUMER) is necessarily absent.

Mr. NICKLES. I announce that the Senator from North Carolina (Mr. HELMS) is necessarily absent.

The yeas and nays resulted—yeas 98, nays 0, as follows:

[Rollcall Vote No. 164 Leg.]

YEAS—98

Akaka	Dorgan	Lugar
Allard	Durbin	McCain
Allen	Edwards	McConnell
Baucus	Ensign	Mikulski
Bayh	Enzi	Miller
Bennett	Feingold	Murkowski
Biden	Feinstein	Murray
Bingaman	Fitzgerald	Nelson (FL)
Bond	Frist	Nelson (NE)
Boxer	Graham	Nickles
Breaux	Gramm	Reed
Brownback	Grassley	Reid
Bunning	Gregg	Roberts
Burns	Hagel	Rockefeller
Byrd	Harkin	Santorum
Campbell	Hatch	Sarbanes
Cantwell	Hollings	Sessions
Carnahan	Hutchinson	Shelby
Carper	Hutchison	Smith (NH)
Chafee	Inhofe	Smith (OR)
Cleland	Inouye	Snowe
Clinton	Jeffords	Specter
Cochran	Johnson	Stabenow
Collins	Kennedy	Stevens
Conrad	Kerry	Thomas
Corzine	Kohl	Thompson
Craig	Kyl	Thurmond
Crapo	Landrieu	Torricelli
Daschle	Leahy	Voinovich
Dayton	Levin	Warner
DeWine	Lieberman	Wellstone
Dodd	Lincoln	Wyden
Domenici	Lott

NOT VOTING—2

Helms Schumer

The PRESIDING OFFICER. On this vote, the yeas are 98, the nays are 0. Three-fifths of the Senators duly chosen and sworn having voted in the affirmative, the motion is agreed to.

The Senator from Nevada is recognized.

Mr. REID. Mr. President, it is my understanding we are now postcloture on the Defense authorization bill and amendments that are germane can now be offered; is that correct?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator is correct.

The Senator from Georgia is recognized.

AMENDMENT NO. 4033

Mr. CLELAND. I thank the Chair. I call up amendment No. 4033.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will report.

The legislative clerk read as follows:

The Senator from Georgia [Mr. CLELAND], for himself and Mr. MCCAIN, proposes an amendment numbered 4033.

Mr. CLELAND. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the reading of the amendment be dispensed with.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The amendment is as follows:

(Purpose: To increase active duty end strengths)

On page 91, strike lines 1 through 4, and insert the following:

- (1) The Army, 485,000.
- (2) The Navy, 379,200.
- (3) The Marine Corps, 175,000.
- (4) The Air Force, 362,500.

Mr. CLELAND. Mr. President, I thank my colleague and friend, my Vietnam brother, Senator MCCAIN, for joining me in offering an amendment that I think is critical to the future of our military forces and particularly critical to the future outcome of the war against catastrophic terrorism. That phrase "catastrophic terrorism," I borrow from Senator Sam Nunn, who once occupied this seat in this august body and whose opinion in terms of military and defense matters I respect tremendously.

Today I introduce, along with Senator MCCAIN, an amendment to the Defense authorization bill that begins to address the concerns expressed by the uniformed leadership of the Armed Forces and reinforced by visits to our soldiers, sailors, airmen, marines, and their families around the world.

President Franklin Roosevelt once said to the members of his generation—which includes my mother and father. My father served at Pearl Harbor after the attack, so I grew up with the notion that this Nation should respond wholeheartedly to an attack on itself—"To some generations, much is given. From some generations much is required. This generation has a rendezvous with destiny." I think this generation has our own rendezvous with destiny and that destiny is to win the war against catastrophic terrorism, to defend our homeland and to hang together as Americans while we are doing it.

Regarding our efforts militarily, I support the President and our military commanders 100 percent. However, I also firmly believe we must increase the numbers of our active duty military personnel if we are to be able to fight the war on catastrophic terrorism successfully. Our military is currently winning the battle. But we will lose the war if we continue to ignore the fact that our forces are critically over-deployed and being asked to do too much with too little.

There is a Latin phrase which tells us, "If you wish for peace, prepare for war." The United States is increasing its resources to prepare to fight this war. This Defense authorization bill represents the largest defense authorization bill in American history—$394 billion. Additionally, we are dramatically increasing our intelligence capabilities, especially human intelligence. We are boosting the CIA with more money and people, while the FBI is creating a super squad aimed at fighting terrorism around the globe. In the past 2 weeks, the President requested Congress create a Cabinet office of Homeland Security.

We are very fortunate to have a superb military force that is highly-skilled, highly-trained and highly-motivated.

The problem is that they are also over-committed. Our forces are over-deployed and they won't be able to do it much longer. We are out of balance, with our commitments far outpacing our troop levels, and the situation is only getting worse. As can be seen on this chart, as the size of our force structure has continually declined since Vietnam, the number of contingency deployments has continued to grow with no end in sight. As a matter of fact, we all read in the papers almost daily where our military forces have been expanded in terms of commitments—to Yemen, Pakistan, the Philippines, the Republic of Georgia, and so on.

Since the end of Operation Desert Storm in 1991, the armed forces have downsized by more than half a million personnel. I do not think the American people really understand we won Desert Storm in 1991 with half a million more people on active duty, trained and ready to fight, than we have now. We do not have those half a million people, and our commitments have continued to increase. Today, a Desert-Storm size deployment to Iraq would require 86 percent of the Army's deployable end strength around the world, including all stateside deployable personnel, all overseas-deployed personnel, and most forward-stationed personnel.

Contrast that drop in personnel with the dramatic rise in the number of deployments for the same time frame. The Army alone is deployed in over 100 countries, with over 10,000 troops in Bosnia, Croatia and Hungary.

Even more dramatic is the fact that deployments have increased 300 percent since 1989, and the fall of the Soviet Union. The tempo of those deployments has increased from one every four years to one every 14 weeks.

That was prior to September 11. In the war on terrorism, we now face a far broader challenge and for a longer, unspecified duration. The Department of Defense has ordered new deployments in the last several months to Afghanistan, Yemen, the Philippines, Georgia, and Pakistan. To make this possible, we have activated more than 80,000 guard and reserve troops and instituted stop-loss for certain active and reserve component specialties. "Stop-loss" means you are not getting out of the military; we have a war on. That is what "stop-loss" means.

This is not a way to fight a war when our strategic national interests are at stake. The President has rightly told the country to be prepared for a long war. That is highly appropriate. However, the Department of Defense requested only a modest increase, a little over 2,000 personnel, in Marine Corps personnel this year. In the face of mounting evidence that our people and their families are hurting from the strain of this new war, there are no current plans by Department of Defense to increase end-strength for American soldiers, sailors or airmen. The Department of Defense may not have plans to increase our end-strength authorization, but I do, along with Senator McCain and others.

As the chairman of the Personnel Subcommittee of the Senate Armed Services Committee, I propose to authorize an increase of 5,000 personnel for the Army, 3,500 for the Navy, 3,500 for the Air Force and 2,400 additional Marines as part of the fiscal year 2003 budget. This represents an increased authorization of 12,000 personnel beyond the administration's request. This initial increase begins to address the needs of the armed forces, the needs they themselves feel are crucial.

During the past year, most of the senior uniformed leadership in Washington and around the globe have related manpower concerns and the strain it has created on their service either in testimony or in the media. It is time to respond to their concerns.

Recently, two-regional combatant commanders testified that their forces were stretched thin and inadequate to carry out their assigned missions if operations in the war on catastrophic terror continued at their current pace. I see no sign the war is abating. I see every sign it is escalating. In addition, the Joint Chiefs of Staff have apparently cited manpower needs as one criteria leading to a recommended delay in any possible military action against Iraq; a conclusion also reached during a Pentagon computer-simulated exercise this past Spring.

This authorization process is inevitably about setting priorities, and this amendment addresses the crucial need of our most important resource and highest priority, the men and women who serve in our armed forces.

In addition to this needed increase in authorized end-strength for the next fiscal year, I had hoped to offer a sense of the Senate resolution that would demonstrate the commitment of this body to the continuing need to address authorized end-strength levels as we fight this war on terror and simultaneously meet this Nation's military commitments around the globe. However, this resolution was ruled non-germaine and cloture prevents its offering. This does not negate the fact that there is a need for almost 26,000 additional personnel over a 5-year period to meet the shortages expressed by our senior uniformed leadership, soldiers, and families. My plan would bring our current commitments and authorized troop levels into greater balance.

If fully implemented, over the course of a 5-year period, the Army would grow by over 1 percent annually resulting in an army end-strength of an additional 25,000 extra soldiers.

The Air Force would require an increase of 2,500 airmen in fiscal year 2004 and 2,000 in fiscal year 2005.

The Navy would have a requirement for 1,000 additional sailors in fiscal year 2004.

This responsible and incremental increase in authorization acknowledges that the activation of the reserve components and stop-loss are only temporary fixes to a larger problem. In addition, this plan begins the dialogue on the long term personnel needs that this new war on terror requires. Though this multi-year plan will not be included in this bill, I will continue to pursue this issue within this body. It is imperative that we continue to recognize that this is a long term problem that must be addressed with long term plans in order to meet the commitment our young service men and women deserve.

Just a personal note: I have been on the short end of a no-cost, guns and butter policy before. It was called Vietnam. I don't want to hide the costs of the war on catastrophic terrorism. I don't want to see this happen again. In Vietnam, we had the men but not the mission. The draft easily provided us with the personnel we needed but never answered the question of how to properly use the troops we were putting in harm's way. American soldiers paid the price. In the war on terrorism, we have the mission, but we do not have the people. American servicemen and women will pay the price again if we do not act.

Right now, our military is on a collision course with the reality of families they do not see, training they are not receiving and divisions borrowing from each other to meet requirements and survive. We can prevent tomorrow's losses, but we have to act today. We must be on the strategic offensive against catastrophic terrorism with enough people and resources to make the terrorist lose. I support the Defense Department's internal look at reallocating spaces to the warfighting units. This however, should be complimentary to a plan to provide the most critical weapon in our arsenal—American service men and women. I respectfully request that my distinguished colleagues join me in supporting our men and women in uniform by providing them what they need to fight and win this war on terrorism and meet our commitments abroad at the same time.

I yield the floor.

Mr. REID. I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The assistant legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. MCCAIN. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. MCCAIN. Mr. President, I rise in support of the amendment by my friend, Senator CLELAND of Georgia. The reality is there are some 80,000 reservists who are now being extended on active duty—some of those reservists voluntarily, some involuntarily—because of the dramatically increased commitments of manpower as a result of the war on terror precipitated by the events on September 11.

Some of our most valued members of the military are our reservists. They have filled incredibly important and vital missions in defense of this country not only since September 11 but in every previous conflict in which we have been engaged in the last century.

Right now, many of these men and women who are being involuntarily extended believe they have performed the function of a reservist, and that is to be called up in time of an emergency. Their lives have been disrupted; they are having to tell their families they do not know when they will be able to return to their homes, their families, and their jobs. Remember, these reservists, the overwhelming majority of them, have jobs and homes in their communities in which they live. Many of them are very far away from home on ships at sea and overseas in many places.

The reality is, as patriotic as these men and women are, they are not going to remain in the reserves if they are forced to remain involuntarily for an extended period of time.

The Pentagon has been very reluctant to increase the end strength of the military, which means that men and women who would be in active-duty forces would then take up these duties presently being performed by reservists. The reason is pretty obvious.

What it does is it increases costs rather dramatically. When you look at the personnel costs associated with enlarging the size of the military, they have a very significant budgetary impact.

The Cleland amendment tries to increase end strength because we know we are in a protracted war, we are in a war that will not end soon, and it will require an increased number of personnel in the military. Senator CLELAND's amendment is rather simple. It increases the allowed end strength—in other words, to the layperson, this is the allowed number of men and women in the military. It gives significant flexibility to the Secretary of Defense and the administration.

But we need to send a signal to all of the military that we are willing to increase the size and strength of the military to whatever degree is necessary to successfully prosecute the war on terror. Part of that, obviously, reservists being extended involuntarily, is that we do not have enough men and women in the military. We are willing to provide the weapons systems, the increased procurement—some of it far less necessary than the increased number of personnel in the active-duty armed services.

Senator CLELAND, who keeps in very close touch with the men and women in the military, including those very large numbers who are based in the State of Georgia, and I have come to the conclusion that we need very badly to increase end strength, maintain the viability of the reserves, but also to successfully prosecute the war on terror.

I thank Senator CLELAND for his amendment. It is a worthy amendment. It provides a great deal of flexibility to the Defense Department. We need to send a signal, especially to the reservists who are being extended involuntarily for an indefinite period of time, that we intend to increase the size of our military so they will not have to.

Here is a reality: They are not going to keep these men and women in the reserves if they believe they are going to be involuntarily extended. Senator CLELAND has information about how many times reservists have been called up, particularly in recent conflicts, including that in the Persian Gulf.

At least those conflicts were of relatively short duration. But these men and women who held jobs in their own communities and were members of the Reserves did serve their country at considerable sacrifice.

I thank Senator CLELAND for his amendment. I strongly support it, and I hope my colleagues will support it as well.

I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Virginia is recognized.

Mr. WARNER. Mr. President, I share the views as expressed by our distinguished colleague from Arizona and, indeed, the distinguished colleague from Georgia, about the problems facing the men and women in the Armed Forces today, particularly the Reserves, the Guard, and others. They have very loyally and patriotically accepted the call to leave their families, their jobs, and go on an active duty status.

Further, both Senators are quite accurate as to the current stress that is being put on the active force, now augmented by the call-ups of the Guard and Reserve—nevertheless, the total force as we refer to it today—the stress that is being put on them and their families by the deployments worldwide. I take absolutely no exception to their observations.

I at this point want to seek some clarity as to the interpretation of the amendment before I ask the Chair to call up a second-degree amendment to see if, in fact, that may not be necessary.

I say to my distinguished colleagues—either Senator may answer—is this amendment paid for by offsets from other provisions in the bill?

Mr. CLELAND. I thank the Senator from Virginia for his support. This amendment is discretionary. There is no money to pay for it, so it is therefore discretionary on the services. If they meet this increased end strength, they have to take it out of their own hides. So it is discretionary upon the services.

Mr. WARNER. My next question would be: title X governs this process of the end strengths and has done so for many years. The practice of the committees of the armed services—certainly the Senate committee—is simply to establish new end strengths and then they are incorporated into the continuing language of title X, which is in permanent law and does not need to be revised annually. Does this amendment in any way revise the provisions of title X?

Mr. CLELAND. The distinguished Senator is correct. This does not revise title X.

Mr. WARNER. If I understood the Senator, it does not in any way seek to revise the language in permanent law of title X?

Mr. CLELAND. That is correct.

Mr. WARNER. I say to my distinguished colleagues, it has been the practice of the conference committee on the authorization side each year, in reconciling the differences between the House and the Senate—if the Senator from Georgia first would recite his understanding as to what is in the House bill now? And, should this measure be adopted on the floor today, what would be the differences that the House and the Senate would have to reconcile?

Mr. CLELAND. I say to my distinguished colleague from Virginia, my understanding from staff is that the House has raised the floor—the floor, not the ceiling. It has raised the floor. And we do not. We just establish a new ceiling that is discretionary.

Mr. WARNER. Mr. President, if I understand it, the Senator quite accurately pointed out there is a floor in the House bill. We do not have a floor, it is your understanding, in the Senate bill; is that correct?

Mr. CLELAND. The Senator is correct.

Mr. WARNER. So that issue would, then, be before the conference?

Mr. CLELAND. That is correct.

Mr. WARNER. Let's assume for purposes of this debate that the approximate cost of the amendment, I say to the Senator from Georgia, would be about $500 million; is that correct?

Mr. CLELAND. The Senator from Virginia is correct.

Mr. WARNER. Would it not be incumbent upon the Senate conferees to find within this bill that will be passed shortly the $500 million in order to accept the provisions reconciled, as you say, by the House and the Senate?

Mr. CLELAND. I say to my distinguished friend from Virginia, as far as I know, it is discretionary upon the conference committee because it is based on a discretionary item, independent of the budget. It is not an obligation, to my understanding, of the conference committee to come up with the money.

Mr. WARNER. I say, Mr. President, that my recollection—having had the privilege of serving as a conferee for, I think, all the 24 years I have been here—is that it has been the practice that on this type of legislation, although it is discretionary—that is, in the manpower area—it has been incumbent upon the Senate to find within our bill the $500 million for purposes of reconciliation in the conference. That has been our practice.

Mr. MCCAIN addressed the Chair.

Mr. WARNER. If I could finish, I will then be glad to yield. If that be the case, I should like to alert colleagues that we would have to look at all the programs, the full scope and full range of all programs in our bill to generate that $500 million. The consequences would be that in some areas there would have to be reductions in those measures which Senators thus far have believed were secure as a part of this bill. Would I not be correct?

Mr. CLELAND. No, that is not my understanding. I say to my distinguished colleague from Virginia, my understanding is that this addresses the floor, not the ceiling. It has not been the intent and is not the intent of this amendment to take away from any other part of the Defense authorization bill. It is the intent of this amendment to authorize the services, if they so desire, to go to a new level of troop authorization if they can find the money. It is discretionary upon them and discretionary to the conference committee.

Mr. WARNER. The Senator from Arizona wished to address the issue.

Mr. MCCAIN. I wish to respond to the Senator from Virginia. We have other items in this bill—which is authorizing how many billions of dollars?

Mr. WARNER. About $379 billion.

Mr. MCCAIN. About $379 billion, which, in the view of most objective observers, would probably not have the priority of the men and women in the military. I know of no higher priority. That is the reason why the Senator from Georgia and I made a tough decision here, saying: Look, we will leave it up to the conference to find the money. I could give the Senator a list of projects that are authorized in this bill, which I think, according to most objective observers, many of which could be described as porkbarrel projects, which have a far lower priority than that of the men and women in the military.

We are facing an urgent problem. We are facing a serious problem. We think it deserves the attention of the Senate and, following passage, of the conference. It is not unusual to put in a provision on the floor that is not funded. That is why we do have conferences. Certain tradeoffs are made. There will be tradeoffs made between the conferees from the Senate and the House.

I understand the difficulty that is entailed, but I also understand better the difficulty that right now the men and women in the military are having in carrying out their functions, their duties, and their missions.

I hope the Senator will understand that we believe this issue is transcendent to a $500 million out of a $379 billion piece of legislation.

I thank my friend from Virginia. I understand it places a very tough burden on both the Senator from Virginia and the Senator from Michigan, who will be in charge of carrying this bill through the conference. I thank my colleague.

Mr. LEVIN. Will the Senator from Virginia yield?

Mr. WARNER. Yes.

Mr. LEVIN. The Senator from Georgia and the Senator from Arizona have identified a very critical unmet need. In fact, the Army has already indicated it is going to try within its own funds to increase its end strength. So by the time we actually get to conference, we may find that they have already achieved what this amendment urges them to do and authorizes them to do.

That is the point, No. 1.

No. 2, it seems very clear from the answers of the Senator from Georgia that this is a discretionary matter—that it does not raise the floor; it raises the ceiling, unlike the House, which does raise the floor. The amendment of the Senator from Georgia raises the ceiling but leaves the floor where it is. Therefore, the discretion remains.

Given those clear responses I think this amendment is something we should support because I think the responses leave the discretion with the Department of Defense, unlike the House bill. That makes this a conferenceable item.

Mr. WARNER. If I could ask my chairman, and, indeed, the sponsors, I am sympathetic to what our two colleagues are trying to do. What I am endeavoring to do is make clear the responsibility of the conferees once we get there. That is my basic concern because I have an obligation, as, indeed, my chairman does, in the conference to try to protect the integrity of the Senate bill, which has hundreds of different items from throughout this Chamber on both sides of the aisle.

What is the chairman's view? Are we or are we not obligated? I believe, with the traditions of the past, that the Senate conferees would be obligated to find the 1-2 billion dollars. What is the chairman's view on that?

Mr. LEVIN. That we should also try to maintain the Senate position on this, which is that the ceiling would be raised and the floor would not be raised. That remains. It leaves it as a discretionary matter, as the Senator from Georgia clearly said, with the Department of Defense.

We would do our best, as we always have, to find the funding for that higher level. We may leave it up to the military to find it within their own funds with the direction from us in report language—the conference managers' language directing the military to find it within their own funds.

There are a lot of possibilities.

But the point the Senator from Georgia made, and the Senator from Arizona as cosponsor made, it seems to me, is that it is unassailable that we have overused our reservists. We have to find a way to correct that. This is an effort to push us in that direction. It leaves it as a conferenceable issue because the floor in the House is raised to where the ceiling is, but in the Senate bill, with the amendment of the Senator from Georgia, if adopted, the floor remains the same. It is the ceiling which is raised.

It gives us some important added impetus to add end strength—as it should.

I think we all agree that we have to find a way to do this in order to reduce the overuse of reservists.

Mr. WARNER. Mr. President, I have another question for the chairman and the sponsors. Again, I am sympathetic to what we are trying to do. But at the same time, I find within the existing framework of the law—that is title X—I would like to read that:

Section (c) item (1) increase the end strength authorized pursuant to subsection (a)(1)(B) for a fiscal year for any of the armed forces by a number equal to not more than 2 percent of that end strength.

The existing law gives the Secretary of Defense the right to go to not only the end strength submitted by our two colleagues—that is roughly 1 percent over the current table in our bill—but could go to even another percent of 2 percent.

It is not clear to this Senator exactly what the pending amendment does that the Secretary does not already have the authority to do. Everything that the pending amendment, one way or another, urges be done, he has the right. I say this respectfully to the distinguished Senator from Michigan, our chairman.

Yesterday, on missile defense, let's say it was a top priority of the Senate to focus this, as the Senator from Arizona said, to cure the problems associated. Fine. I have no objection to that. But I do not like to see the Senate adopt an amendment which does nothing to change the authority of the Secretary of Defense under the existing law.

The question is, What does this amendment do that existing law does not permit the Secretary of Defense to do?

Mr. LEVIN. I would say there are two answers to that.

First, since this would be a new level—a new ceiling—the Secretary of Defense would have authority to go 2 percent above this additional level. The ceiling would be higher. So the Secretary would have that same discretionary 2 percent, but it would be above a higher ceiling.

That is the first answer.

The second answer, it seems to me, is that the Senator from Georgia and the Senator from Arizona have identified in their amendment a problem which we all understand exists, and they have focused this issue into an amendment.

That amendment, if adopted, it seems to me, gives additional momentum. We have to seek new ways to try to meet that end strength—to try to fund it. We have to look to additional ways to try to fund it because the tradition which the Senator from Virginia pointed out is that we have traditionally funded the authorized end strength. That means we have one of two options, or three. Either we have to tell the Department of Defense that they have to find the funds to do this within their own funds or we have to find the funds to do it at our own conference, or the third option is that we would begin a new tradition, which is that we don't fund the authorized level. That would be the least desirable of all three.

But, nonetheless, it would be a new tradition.

Let me just sort of summarize that. We can either direct inside of our conference report that the Department of Defense fund the authorized end strength with the amendment of the Senator from Georgia, or we can find the funds ourselves to do that in conference, or we can just simply not follow the tradition, which I happen to think is a good tradition, but, nonetheless, is an option.

Mr. WARNER. If I understood my chairman, one of the options is to direct the Department to fund the levels in this amendment.

Mr. LEVIN. Within their own funds.

Mr. WARNER. I understand that. But clearly the Secretary of Defense may not exercise the discretion which our colleague from Georgia leaves in place to go to that end strength. So we can't direct them to do something unless the Secretary of Defense takes a prior action; that is, exercise the discretion to go to this new end strength level. Am I not correct?

Mr. LEVIN. I think our conference could actually direct the Secretary of Defense to do it out of their own funds. I think that is an option.

Mr. WARNER. But still under the amendment of the Senator from Georgia maintains the discretion to go to new levels or not.

Mr. LEVIN. That is right. I am talking about what the conference report does. The Senator's amendment leaves that discretion there. But because of the tradition, we fund that authorized level, which the Senator from Virginia has pointed out, and we may decide to look to a different approach which would be to direct the Secretary of Defense to meet that level out of his own funds. It is a different approach, but it is an important amendment.

Mr. WARNER. Mr. President, that is an entirely different step with the conference taking that action. Then we would be taking the discretion away from the Secretary that he now has with regard to these end strengths. I would not favor that because of the following reasons: We reposed by law, in the Constitution, the Commander in Chief who in turn selects his Secretary of Defense. I think they must be given the maximum latitude possible as the executive branch. They are the managers.

I am always concerned when the Congress tries to mandate that they should do A, B, or C when it is their collective judgment that A, B, or C not be done.

I hope in the conference we don't reach that. But let me just point out the following.

Mr. LEVIN. If the Senator will yield on that point, we do mandate end strength. It is called the floor.

Mr. WARNER. With discretion.

Mr. LEVIN. No, not on the floor.

Mr. WARNER. I understand. But when we put in our end strength, the Secretary still has the discretion. To the credit of our Secretary, he has, if I understand—and I pose this to the Senator from Georgia as a question—already exercised his discretion with regard to the Marine Corps, and has gone to that level with the Marine Corps and found the funding to achieve it in this bill.

Am I not correct?

Mr. CLELAND. As the Senator pointed out, it was in the President's budget request—that the only increase in personnel asked for was about 2,300 personnel in the Marine Corps. That is in the President's budget. That is a request of us which we accede to in this Defense authorization bill.

My amendment says, in effect, that basically this is inadequate. Other services need additional strength, and this authorizes the services to go to a higher end strength if they can find the money.

Mr. WARNER. Fine. But am I not correct that the Secretary has already taken the action to meet the purport of the amendment by the Senator from Georgia as regards the Marine Corps?

Mr. CLELAND. It seems to me the President of the United States, in his budget, authorized 2,300 additional personnel and gave the money for that, and we have included that in the Defense authorization bill. What this amendment says is that in the collective judgment of those of us who are involved in this personnel debate, that is not adequate enough to meet the needs of our commitments, especially in this new war we are fighting.

You can see here the tremendous imbalance we have presently. These lines shown on the chart have to begin coming together. We have to begin matching our personnel with our commitments or else we will continue to strain our personnel to the limit. That is why we have the authorization for the Army, the Navy, and the Air Force, as well as the Marine Corps, to go to a higher level.

Mr. WARNER. Mr. President, that was essentially a reiteration of your basic argument for the amendment.

My question was very narrow, very focused, and required, really, a yes or no answer.

Has not the President already, with the Secretary of Defense preparation of the budget, reached the figures for the Marine Corps with an increase and paid for it?

Mr. CLELAND. The Senator is correct.

Mr. WARNER. That is all I wanted to establish. So that shows the Secretary of Defense is proceeding in an orderly manner, at least with one service, to achieve the goals the Senator from Georgia has been reciting.

Mr. CLELAND. The Senator is correct.

Mr. WARNER. Fine. And it is my thought that in due course the Secretary of Defense will address each of the other services. So long as it is my understanding from this important colloquy that in no way does your amendment alter title X, alter that discretion, then, Mr. President, I shall not bring up my second-degree amendment to it. The purposes of that amendment have been achieved during the course of this colloquy.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. CORZINE). The Senator from Michigan.

Mr. LEVIN. Mr. President, I hope we can now adopt this amendment.

I thank the Senator from Georgia for his persistence on this issue. He has identified a critically important unmet need for this country. We have reservists who have been away from their jobs for a much longer period of time than anyone intended. We have to address that issue.

The Army has told us they are going to do their best to address this issue. The Navy has listed the increase in end strength as their No. 1 unfunded priority.

So I think the need is there. The focus upon this unmet need by the Senators from Georgia and Arizona will help us to, hopefully, advance this to the point where we can actually find the funds for the increase in end strength. One way or the other, we have to address this issue.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Virginia.

Mr. WARNER. Mr. President, the concerns of the Senator from Virginia, and perhaps others, have been satisfied. We are prepared to accept the amendment on a voice vote.

Mr. CLELAND. Mr. President, I thank the distinguished Senator from Virginia for his colloquy which has clarified this issue. It has helped gain support for the amendment. I thank the distinguished chairman, Senator LEVIN, for his help. And I thank especially my colleague, Senator MCCAIN, for pushing this issue forward.

I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there further debate on the amendment?

If not the question is on agreeing to amendment No. 4033.

The amendment (No. 4033) was agreed to.

Mr. WARNER. I move to reconsider the vote.

Mr. LEVIN. I move to lay that motion on the table.

The motion to lay on the table was agreed to.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Louisiana.

AMENDMENT NO. 3975

Ms. LANDRIEU. Mr. President, I would like to call up amendment No. 2514, which I understand has already been recommended for inclusion in the managers' package and has been cleared on both sides.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Would the Senator restate the amendment number, please.

Ms. LANDRIEU. Mr. President, I will send that amendment up in just a moment. But I understand this amendment has been accepted on both sides and may be included in the managers' package. I want to take a minute to explain this amendment in a little more detail, if I may.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. LEVIN). Without objection, it is so ordered.

Ms. LANDRIEU. Thank you, Mr. President.

The underlying amendment we have been considering in regard to this particular subject has to do with our shipbuilding program and the importance of our Navy to the strength of our forces.

Let me first, though, thank Senator CLELAND and Senator MCCAIN for their very excellent work in calling to our attention another shortage, if you will, which is our end strength, our shortage of personnel, of people we can actually send to the front lines, wherever those front lines might be. More and more, it is clear to us some of those front lines might be here on our own home soil, but also we need men and women to support our soldiers and sailors and airmen who have to be deployed miles and miles away from our homeland.

So I thank them for their good work. I am proud to be able to support that amendment as well.

But I bring to the Senate this particular amendment on shipbuilding because it points to yet another unfortunate shortfall of our overall defense structure. Now is a time when we really have to focus and make tough decisions about how we are going to allocate these resources, again trying to meet the President in his total budget request, which this Senate has done, this Congress has done, and is in the process of doing under the leadership of Senator LEVIN and Senator WARNER.

But within that total amount we are allocating for defense, there is some real debate about how that money should be allocated and spent, and that is what this broad debate is about.

One of the issues I want to spend a few minutes speaking about is shipbuilding. I would like to begin by reading into the RECORD just a short clip from the American Shipbuilding Association entitled "The Defense Shipbuilding Industrial Base—An Industry At Risk," which was written in May of 2001.

This report says:

In 1987, the United States had a naval fleet of 594 ships. Today, the fleet numbers 316 and is dropping. The annual numbers of naval ships procured is at the lowest level since 1932; the size of the Navy's fleet is the smallest since the year before we entered World War I; and while the fleet has been cut almost in half, the number of overseas deployments has increased 300 percent.

As you can see from the chart, this is one of our mighty aircraft carriers and is one of the Navy's pride and joy. We just do not have enough aircraft carriers and other different elements of our fleet.

This report goes on to say:

Our Commanders-in-Chief are on record that they cannot meet the Nation's military and foreign policy strategy with a fleet of less than 360 ships, yet Navy budgets [we are considering today] are providing for a fleet of fewer than 200 ships.

This is unacceptable. It cannot stand. We need to change these trend lines.

Continuing:

This disconnect between national requirements and budgets increases the risk of instability in many regions of the world, jeopardizes the lives of Americans, jeopardizes our economic prosperity, and threatens our peace and national security.

The historically low rate of naval ship production over the past eight years has also severely weakened the very industry upon which the Navy depends today and tomorrow for its ships. If decisive action is not taken now to reverse the decline in naval ship production, the Nation [could potentially] lose the industrial capability to restore the fleet to the level the Nation requires to maintain global peace and stability.

It is the role of our military leaders to define the forces they require to meet their military missions.

Let me tell you why this is important as related to the Navy, let's say, and the production of airplanes for our Air Force.

There is a difference, not that we don't need both; we need a robust Air Force as well as a robust Navy. But the way that we prepare and build and invest is different. Because of the magnitude of ships, because we don't order them by the thousands, we order them by tens and twenties, not thousands, the same sort of procedures cannot be effectively applied. We need to understand those differences.

This report goes on to say:

For example, a fighter pilot or commercial passenger is in an airplane for only a limited number of hours, whereas a ship is a self-sustained city at sea that serves as home to sailors for months on end. The production time of an airplane is measured months, the production time of a ship is measured in years. With respect to government orders, the airplanes of the same design are bought in quantities of hundreds whereas ships are procured in quantities of tens or even less, and each ship of a class is highly customized. The same holds true in commercial transactions, where only one or two ships of the same design will be bought by an individual customer and each customer demands customized designs. Airlines buy quantities of aircraft that are in production for commercial market in competition with other models being produced. Another major difference is that there are a limited number of countries with airplane manufacturers versus the number of countries with shipbuilders. Therefore, there are many more international competitors for ship orders than for planes.

Given these differences, it is not surprising that a Department of Defense acquisition policy tailored for planes will not work for ships.

Therefore, I have offered this amendment which will help to move us in a direction to increase our production level and turn around the disturbing trend line.

The next chart I have illustrates the trend line. We have been on a shipbuilding program. We were well on our way in 1997 to 1998, 1999 and 2000, moving up. No one has worked harder than Senator KENNEDY, who is the chair of this subcommittee and has added to the President's budget some significant shipbuilding, and the Presiding Officer, as chairman of the Armed Services Committee, has done an outstanding job trying to change this trend line.

This amendment, which has been accepted, will make this trend line go in a more positive direction. As you know, there is a great need.

There is an old quote about the military that says: When it comes to debating matters of war, it is the amateurs who talk about strategies and the experts who talk about logistics. This is because so much of the planning that goes into war is centered on two simple questions: How are we going to get the troops to the fight; and how are we going to supply them once they get there?

The answer to both of these questions is a strong and robust Navy. The conflict in Afghanistan today clearly demonstrates this.

Again, not to say that the Air Force and the Army don't have to meet spectacular and important missions, but we cannot be the strong and vital force we need to be to fight this war on terrorism, to support our allies around the world, and to project power around the world without a robust Navy. This amendment will help us to move in that direction.

In an environment where we cannot afford basing rights for our troops, the ships of our Navy become floating sovereign bases a world away from American soil. Our campaign in Afghanistan proves this point. Currently, 30 percent of our Navy is deployed in support of Operation Enduring Freedom, and a majority of our fighter sorties, 85 percent flown over Afghanistan, were sea-based. So if we don't have the ships to serve, not only as supply lines but as places where our troops can be secured while they carry out the missions and the battle, we will be seriously crippled in our efforts.

All of the Marines and many special operations troops that have served in Afghanistan were based on ships. There is no doubt if we did not have a sizable Navy, we would not be able to execute as well as we are in our Afghanistan campaign.

Furthermore, there is no doubt that even with a 318-ship Navy, it has been stretched very thin. Even though we are in a time of war and even though we are about to approve the largest increase in defense spending in the last two decades, we are simply not procuring naval ships at a rate that will sustain a strong Navy in the future. If the size of our Navy fleet continues to decline, I fear we will not be able to carry out the missions before us.

Essentially, this amendment states that it is a national policy of the United States to maintain a strong and robust Navy, with the appropriate number of ships to protect our interests both at home and abroad. Congress has done this before in asserting our policy regarding missile defense, which we have just successfully debated and on which we have come to consensus.

This amendment would require the Secretary of Defense to lay out the budgetary plans necessary to maintain a strong Navy. The underlying amendment requires DOD to submit an annual ship construction plan as part of the DOD budget. Each year the Secretary of Defense must provide a plan for the construction of combatant and support ships that support the national security strategy or, if we have no such strategy, will support what is called for in the QDR, the Quadrennial Defense Review.

If the national security strategy or the QDR, if it calls for 318 ships, or if it would call for 375 ships with 12 carrier groups and 12 amphibious ready groups, as Admiral Clark, Chief of Naval Operations, has testified to as recently as February, whatever number is decided on, the Secretary must provide in detail budget plans for the construction of these ships.

Of course, it looks out over 30 consecutive years. It is not something we are trying to do next year. This amendment will require the details of such plan to be included. It is consistent with and strengthens the underlying bill, on which the Presiding Officer has worked so hard and effectively. The plan must describe the necessary ship force, how many carriers, submarines, destroyers, transport ships, et cetera.

It also requires that the estimated levels of funding necessary to carry out the plan and a discussion of the procurement strategies on which the estimated funding levels are based.

Finally, it requires a certification from the Secretary of Defense. The Secretary must certify that both the current budget and the future year's defense programs submitted to Congress provide for funding ship construction for the Navy at a level that is sufficient for the procurement of ships provided for in the plan.

I am pleased this amendment was accepted. Shipbuilding is important to our overall defense plan. The industry itself is important to so many of our States, our industrial complex from California to Maine to Louisiana. As a Senator from Louisiana, I am particularly proud of what our companies and our businesses, both large and small, contribute to the shipbuilding strength and capability of America.

From a defense perspective, as well as an industrial base perspective, as well as from economic strength, this amendment is very important as we structure a Department of Defense that can fight the new wars, that can take us to new places in ways that we can be confident we can fight and stand strong for American values and democracy for ourselves, for our interests, and to help our allies around the world.

We fight every day to get good, solid land bases to operate. We are going to build or are in the process of building some of the finest airplanes ever created. Those are important to our Army and our Air Force. But our Navy cannot be shortchanged. If it is, it will be to our peril and to democracies everywhere.

We are fighting battles where we have no land bases from which to launch and supplies cannot be moved across land. They have to be based on the sea. We cannot do that without a strong Navy.

For Louisiana, this is important, but it is much bigger than our State. It is important to the Nation.

So I thank the Senate for their acknowledgement of the importance of this amendment. I also thank the subcommittee, led by Senator KENNEDY, who, through his hard work, has added three ships to the underlying budget. We added a submarine, a DDG-51, and a LPD-17.

I also thank Senator REED for his work on shipbuilding. He has done an outstanding job. Again, we have added to the President's request. I was proud to support that in the underlying bill. This amendment takes us a step even further to make sure our Navy is strong, robust, and can support the great work and great mission of our armed services and our defense.

(Mrs. CLINTON assumed the chair.)

Mr. LEVIN. Will the Senator yield for a quick comment?

Ms. LANDRIEU. Yes.

Mr. LEVIN. I congratulate the Senator on her amendment, which we have accepted. It takes an important step in assuring that we are going to have the kind of Navy that we need, for which our Quadrennial Defense Review provides. Her amendment is going to help us get to the point we must reach that not only identifies the need, but the roadmap. Her amendment makes an important contribution.

As chairman of the Emerging Threats Subcommittee, she has become a true expert. She was way ahead of her time in identifying the threats that have befallen us. As chair of that subcommittee, she has become an expert on the Navy. Her contribution to the committee is immense, and I thank her for that.

Ms. LANDRIEU. I thank the chairman. I wish to acknowledge the work of the Senator from Virginia as well, who, of course, led the Navy as Secretary of the Navy for many years and now serves in such a distinguished capacity. Truly, his voice has been one, over the last several decades, that has helped to keep our Navy strong. He was instrumental in helping us make some real progress in this area of the underlying bill.

I thank the Senator from Virginia for his support of this amendment because without his support we would not have been able to adopt it. I thank him for the work he does on shipbuilding for our Nation.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Virginia is recognized.

Mr. WARNER. Madam President, I thank our colleague, a valued member of the committee.

We can clear two amendments; am I correct?

Mr. LEVIN. I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. WARNER. Madam President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. WARNER. Madam President, we will continue to clear amendments. The Senator from Virginia was on the floor with the distinguished majority whip last night clearing a package of amendments. The amendment I am going to offer was in that package. Simply because of clerical oversight—and staff had worked 15 hours yesterday—it was dropped.

AMENDMENT NO. 4169

Mr. WARNER. Madam President, I send this amendment to the desk and ask for its immediate consideration.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, the amendment is in order.

The clerk will report.

The legislative clerk read as follows:

The Senator from Virginia [Mr. WARNER] proposes an amendment numbered 4169.

Mr. WARNER. Madam President, I ask unanimous consent that further reading of the amendment be dispensed with.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The amendment is as follows:

(Purpose: To temporarily authorize higher partial basic allowance for housing for certain members assigned to privatized housing)

On page 130, between lines 6 and 7, insert the following:

SEC. 604. TEMPORARY AUTHORITY FOR HIGHER RATES OF PARTIAL BASIC ALLOWANCE FOR HOUSING FOR CERTAIN MEMBERS ASSIGNED TO HOUSING UNDER ALTERNATIVE AUTHORITY FOR ACQUISITION AND IMPROVEMENT OF MILITARY HOUSING.

(a) AUTHORITY.—The Secretary of Defense may prescribe and, under section 403(n) of title 37, United States Code, pay for members of the Armed Forces (without dependents) in privatized housing higher rates of partial basic allowance for housing than those that are authorized under paragraph (2) of such section 403(n).

(b) MEMBERS IN PRIVATIZED HOUSING.—For the purposes of this section, a member of the Armed Forces (without dependents) is a member of the Armed Forces (without dependents) in privatized housing while the member is assigned to housing that is acquired or constructed under the authority of subchapter IV of chapter 169 of title 10, United States Code.

(c) TREATMENT OF HOUSING AS GOVERNMENT QUARTERS.—For purposes of section 403 of title 37, United States Code, a member of the Armed Forces (without dependents) in privatized housing shall be treated as residing in quarters of the United States or a housing facility under the jurisdiction of the Secretary of a military department while a higher rate of partial allowance for housing is paid for the member under this section.

(d) PAYMENT TO PRIVATE SOURCE.—The partial basic allowance for housing paid for a member at a higher rate under this section may be paid directly to the private sector source of the housing to whom the member is obligated to pay rent or other charge for residing in such housing if the private sector source credits the amount so paid against the amount owed by the member for the rent or other charge.

(e) TERMINATION OF AUTHORITY.—Rates prescribed under subsection (a) may not be paid under the authority of this section in connection with contracts that are entered into after December 31, 2007, for the construction or acquisition of housing under the authority of subchapter IV of chapter 169 of title 10, United States Code.

Mr. WARNER. Madam President, this is an amendment requested by the Department of Defense relating to certain basic allowances for housing in order to facilitate efforts to construct barracks for the most junior enlisted personnel. I understand it has been cleared on the other side.

Mr. LEVIN. The amendment has been cleared.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, the amendment is agreed to.

The amendment (No. 4169) was agreed to.

Mr. WARNER. Madam President, I move to reconsider the vote.

Mr. LEVIN. I move to lay that motion on the table.

The motion to lay on the table was agreed to.

AMENDMENT NO. 4170

Mr. WARNER. Madam President, I send to the desk an amendment.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will report the amendment.

The legislative clerk read as follows:

The Senator from Virginia [Mr. WARNER] proposes an amendment numbered 4170.

Mr. WARNER. Madam President, I ask unanimous consent that further reading of the amendment be dispensed with.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The amendment is as follows:

(Purpose: To set aside $20,000,000 for the disposal of obsolete vessels of the National Defense Reserve Fleet)

At the end of subtitle A of title III, add the following:

SEC. 305. DISPOSAL FOR OBSOLETE VESSELS OF THE NATIONAL DEFENSE RESERVE FLEET.

Of the amount authorized to be appropriated by section 301(a)(2) for operation and maintenance for the Navy, $20,000,000 may be available, without fiscal year limitation if so provided in appropriations Acts, for expenses related to the disposal of obsolete vessels in the Maritime Administration National Defense Reserve Fleet.

Mr. WARNER. Madam President, this amendment relates to the MARAD obsolete vessels, which are currently in the James River and are becoming a very serious hazard to the environment. I spoke earlier this morning with the chairman of the Commerce Committee, Senator HOLLINGS. He agrees that this amendment is in the interest of all parties and expresses his support for it.

The amendment would simply transfer a certain sum of money—the same sum having been designated in the House bill—for the purpose of enabling MARAD to proceed to correct this potential environmental problem and, hopefully, removing these vessels at the earliest possible date.

Madam President, this amendment would make additional funding available in fiscal year 2003 for the disposal of obsolete vessels in the National Defense Reserve Fleet, also known as the “Ghost Fleet.” Because of their interest in this issue, I have worked with Senators HOLLINGS and MCCAIN to develop this amendment and believe that I have their support. Both Senators, however, have made it clear that the funding language for disposal of obsolete National Defense Reserve Fleet vessels included in section 3501 of H.R. 4546 is preferred to the funding language included in this amendment. I appreciate your concerns and will ensure that these concerns are considered in conference.

Since 1994, the Maritime Administration or MARAD has been compelled to rely exclusively on the domestic scrapping market because of environmental concerns related to overseas ship sales and scrapping. Until October 2000, however, MARAD was statutorily prohibited from paying for scrapping services, which effectively precluded the use of the domestic market. After the prohibition was removed, MARAD disposal efforts were further hampered by inadequate funding.

The amendment provides that $20 million be made available for MARAD disposal of obsolete vessels, an $8.9 million increase to the budget request. The additional funding will address a funding shortfall and hopefully help to avoid an environmental nightmare.

There are 135 obsolete vessels in the fleet slated for scrapping, 29 of those vessels are considered a high risk to the environment, and 23 of those high risk vessels are located in the James River near Ft. Eustis, Virginia. Such vessels contain large amounts of oil contamination and other hazardous substances, such as asbestos and polychlorinated biphenyls (PCBs). These vessels pose a risk to the environment because their advance age and poor condition could result in the release of hazardous substances near sensitive environmental habitats.

A growing number of regulators, marine inspectors, environmentalists, and workers who oversee the “Ghost Fleet” suggest that an environmental disaster is likely—if not imminent. In 1999, the fleet barely survived the 40 mph winds and rough water caused by Tropical Storm Floyd. Although none of the vessels leaked, 30 vessels broke away from their moorings resulting in a two week recovery effort and a $3 million investment in a new mooring system. Given the current condition of the fleet, disaster may occur with or without another severe storm. For example, the Mormac Wave is a 40-year old retired cargo carrier with peeling lead paint and thick, jet black oil that has leaked from holding tanks to form a 3-foot-deep lagoon in the rusted hull of the vessel. Although workers who maintain the Wave and other deteriorated vessels endeavor to keep the nightmare from becoming a reality, they are fighting a losing battle.

As a result, it is vital that Congress ensure that MARAD have adequate resources to address this problem. It is my hope that the additional funding authorized by this amendment will help to accelerate the scrapping of vessels that are in the worst condition, most of which are located on the James River.

Mr. LEVIN. Madam President, the amendment is cleared on this side.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, the amendment is agreed to.

The amendment (No. 4170) was agreed to.

Mr. WARNER. I move to reconsider the vote.

Mr. LEVIN. I move to lay that motion on the table.

The motion to lay on the table was agreed to.

Mr. WARNER. Madam President, I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Louisiana is recognized.

AMENDMENT NO. 3975

Ms. LANDRIEU. Madam President, at this time I call up amendment No. 3975.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will report the amendment.

The legislative clerk read as follows:

The Senator from Louisiana [Ms. LANDRIEU] proposes an amendment numbered 3975.

Ms. LANDRIEU. Madam President, I ask unanimous consent that further reading of the amendment be dispensed with.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The amendment is as follows:

(Purpose: To provide for military charters between military installations and local school districts, to provide credit enhancement initiatives to promote military charter school facility acquisition, construction, and renovation, and for other purposes)

At the end of division A, add the following new title:

TITLE XIII—MILITARY CHARTER SCHOOLSSubtitle A—Stable Transitions in Education for Armed Services' Dependent Youth*SEC. 1301. SHORT TITLE.

This subtitle may be cited as the “Stable Transitions in Education for Armed Services’ Dependent Youth Act”.

SEC. 1302. FINDINGS.

Congress finds that—

(1) States are establishing new and higher academic standards for students in kindergarten through grade 12;

(2) no Federal funding streams are specifically designed to help States and school districts with the costs of providing military or mobile students who are struggling academically, with the extended learning time and accelerated curricula that the students need to meet high academic standards;

(3) forty-eight States now require State accountability tests to determine student grade-level performance and progress;

(4) nineteen States currently rate the performance of all schools or identify low-performing schools through State accountability tests;

(5) sixteen States now have the power to close, take over, or overhaul chronically failing schools on the basis of those tests;

(6) fourteen States provide high-performing schools with monetary rewards on the basis of those tests;

(7) nineteen States currently require students to pass State accountability tests to graduate from secondary school;

(8) six States currently link student promotion to results on State accountability tests;

(9) thirty-seven States have a process in place that allows charters to be a useful tool to bridge the gap created by frequent school changes;

(10) excessive percentages of students are not meeting their State standards and are failing to perform at high levels on State accountability tests; and

(11) among mobile students, a common thread is that school transcripts are not easily transferred and credits are not accepted between public school districts in the United States.

SEC. 1303. PURPOSE.

The purpose of this subtitle is to provide Federal support through a new demonstration program to States and local educational agencies, to enable the States and local educational agencies to develop models for high quality military charter schools that are specifically designed to help mobile military dependent students attending public school make a smooth transition from one school district to another, even across State lines, and achieve a symbiotic relationship between military installations and these school districts.

SEC. 1304. DEFINITIONS.

In this subtitle:

(1) ELEMENTARY SCHOOL; SECONDARY SCHOOL; LOCAL EDUCATIONAL AGENCY; STATE EDUCATIONAL AGENCY.—The terms “elementary school”, “secondary school”, “local educational agency”, and “State educational agency” have the meanings given such terms in section 9101 of the Elementary and Secondary Education Act of 1965 (20 U.S.C. 7801).

(2) MILITARY INSTALLATION.—The term “military installation” has the meaning given such term in section 2687(e)(1) of title 10, United States Code.

(3) MILITARY DEPENDENT STUDENT.—The term “military dependent student” means an elementary school or secondary school student who has a parent who is a member of the Armed Forces, including a member of a reserve component of the Armed Forces, without regard to whether the member is on active duty or full-time National Guard duty (as defined in section 101(d) of title 10, United States Code.

(4) SECRETARY.—The term “Secretary” means the Secretary of Defense.

(5) STUDENT.—The term “student” means an elementary school or secondary school student.

SEC. 1305. GRANTS TO STATES.

(a) GRANTS AUTHORIZED.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—From amounts appropriated under section 1310, the Secretary, in consultation with the Secretary of Education, shall establish a demonstration program through which the Secretary shall make grants to State educational agencies, on a competitive basis, to enable the State educational agencies to assist local educational agencies in establishing and maintaining high quality military charter schools.

(2) DISTRIBUTION RULE.—In awarding grants under this subtitle the Secretary shall ensure that such grants serve not more than 10 States and not more than 35 local educational agencies with differing demographics.

(3) SPECIAL LOCAL RULE.—

(A) NONPARTICIPATING STATE.—If a State chooses not to participate in the demonstration program assisted under this subtitle or does not have an application approved under subsection (c), then the Secretary may award a grant directly to a local educational agency in the State to assist the local educational agency in carrying out high quality military charter schools.

(B) LOCAL EDUCATIONAL AGENCY APPLICATION.—To be eligible to receive a grant under this paragraph, a local educational agency shall submit an application to the Secretary at such time, in such manner, and containing such information as the Secretary may require.

(C) REGULATIONS.—The Secretary shall promulgate such regulations as the Secretary determines necessary to carry out this paragraph.

(b) ELIGIBILITY AND SELECTION.—

(1) ELIGIBILITY.—For a State educational agency to be eligible to receive a grant under subsection (a), the State served by the State educational agency shall—

(A) have in effect all standards and assessments required under section 1111 of the Elementary and Secondary Education Act of 1965 (20 U.S.C. 6311);

(B) compile and annually distribute to parents a public school report card that, at a minimum, includes information on student and school performance for each of the assessments required under section 1111 of the Elementary and Secondary Education Act of 1965;

(C) require each military charter school assisted under this subtitle to be an independent public school;

(D) require each military charter school assisted under this subtitle to operate under an initial 5-year charter granted by a State charter authority, with specified check points and renewal, as required by State law; and

(E) require each military charter school assisted under this subtitle to participate in the State’s testing program.

(2) SELECTION.—In selecting State educational agencies to receive grants under this section, the Secretary shall make the selections in a manner consistent with the purpose of this subtitle.

(c) APPLICATION.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—To be eligible to receive a grant under this section, a State educational agency shall submit an application to the Secretary at such time, in such manner, and containing such information as the Secretary may require.

(2) CONTENTS.—Such application shall include—

(A) information describing specific measurable goals and objectives to be achieved in the State through the military charter schools carried out under this subtitle, which may include specific measurable annual educational goals and objectives relating to—

(i) increased student academic achievement;

(ii) decreased student dropout rates;

(iii) governance, parental involvement plans, and disciplinary policies;

(iv) a military charter school admissions policy that requires a minimum of 60 percent military dependent elementary school or secondary school students, and a maximum of 80 percent of military dependent students, except where such percentages are impossible to maintain because of the demographics of the area around the military installation;

(v) liability and other insurance coverage, business and accounting practices, and the procedures and methods employed by the chartering authority in monitoring the school; and

(vi) such other factors as the State educational agency may choose to measure; and

(B) information on criteria, established or adopted by the State, that—

(i) the State will use to select local educational agencies for participation in the military charter schools carried out under this subtitle; and

(ii) at a minimum, will assure that grants provided under this subtitle are provided to—

(I) the local educational agencies in the State that are sympathetic to, and take actions to ease the transition burden upon, such local educational agencies’ military dependent students;

(II) the local educational agencies in the State that have the highest percentage of military dependent students impacting the local school system or not meeting basic or minimum required standards for State assessments required under section 1111 of the Elementary and Secondary Education Act of 1965; and

(III) an assortment of local educational agencies serving urban, suburban, and rural areas, and impacted by a local military installation.

SEC. 1306. GRANTS TO LOCAL EDUCATIONAL AGENCIES.

(a) IN GENERAL.—

(1) FIRST YEAR.—Except as provided in paragraph (3), for the first year that a State educational agency receives a grant under this subtitle, the State educational agency shall use the funds made available through the grant to make grants to eligible local educational agencies in the State to pay for the Federal share of the cost of planning for or carrying out the military charter school programs.

(2) SUCCEEDING YEARS.—Except as provided in paragraph (3), for the second and third year that a State educational agency receives a grant under this subtitle, the State educational agency shall use the funds made available through the grant to make grants to eligible local educational agencies in the State to pay for the Federal share of the cost of carrying out the military charter school programs.

(3) TECHNICAL ASSISTANCE AND PLANNING ASSISTANCE.—The State educational agency may use not more than 5 percent of the grant funds received under this subtitle for a fiscal year—

(A) to provide to the local educational agencies technical assistance that is aligned with the curriculum of the local educational agencies for the programs;

(B) to enable the local educational agencies to obtain such technical assistance from entities other than the State educational agency that have demonstrated success in using the curriculum; and

(C) to assist the local educational agencies in evaluating activities carried out under this subtitle.

(b) APPLICATION.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—To be eligible to receive a grant under this section, a local educational agency shall submit an application to the State educational agency at such time, in such manner, and containing such information as the Secretary or the State educational agency may require.

(2) CONTENTS.—Each such application shall include, to the greatest extent practicable—

(A) information that—

(i) demonstrates that the local educational agency will carry out a military charter school program funded under this section—

(I) that provides intensive high quality programs that are aligned with challenging State content and student performance standards, and that is focused on reinforcing and boosting the core academic skills and knowledge of students who are struggling academically, as determined by the State;

(II) that focuses on accelerated learning, rather than remediation, so that students served through the program will master the high level skills and knowledge needed to meet the highest State standards or to perform at high levels on all State assessments required under section 1111 of the Elementary and Secondary Education Act of 1965;

(III) that is based on, and incorporates best practices developed from, research-based charter school methods and practices;

(IV) that has a proposed curriculum that is directly aligned with State content and student performance standards;

(V) for which only teachers who are certified and licensed, and are otherwise fully qualified teachers, provide academic instruction to students enrolled in the program;

(VI) that offers to staff in the program professional development and technical assistance that are aligned with the approved curriculum for the program; and

(VII) that incorporates a parental involvement component that seeks to involve parents in the program's topics and students' daily activities; and

(ii) may include—

(I) the proposed curriculum for the military charter school program;

(II) the local educational agency's plan for recruiting highly qualified and highly effective teachers to participate in the program; and

(III) a schedule for the program that indicates that the program is of sufficient duration and intensity to achieve the State's goals and objectives described in section 1305(c)(2)(A);

(B) an outline indicating how the local educational agency will utilize applicable Federal, State, local, or public funds, other than funds made available through the grant, to support the program;

(C) an explanation of how the local educational agency will ensure that the instruction provided through the program will be provided by qualified teachers;

(D) an explanation of the types of intensive training or professional development, aligned with the curriculum of the program, that will be provided for staff of the program;

(E) an explanation of the facilities to be used for the program;

(F) an explanation regarding the duration of the periods of time that students and teachers in the program will have contact for instructional purposes (such as the hours per day and days per week of that contact, and the total length of the program);

(G) an explanation of the proposed student-to-teacher ratio for the program, analyzed by grade level;

(H) an explanation of the grade levels that will be served by the program;

(I) an explanation of the approximate cost per student for the program;

(J) an explanation of the salary costs for teachers in the program;

(K) a description of a method for evaluating the effectiveness of the program at the local level;

(L) information describing specific measurable goals and objectives, for each academic subject in which the program will provide instruction, that are consistent with, or more rigorous than, the adequate yearly progress goals established by the State under section 1111 of the Elementary and Secondary Education Act of 1965;

(M) a description of how the local educational agency will involve parents and the community in the program in order to raise academic achievement;

(N) a description of how the local educational agency will acquire any needed technical assistance that is aligned with the curriculum of the local educational agency for the program, from the State educational agency or other entities with demonstrated success in using the curriculum; and

(O) a statement of a clearly defined goal for providing counseling and other transition burden relief for military dependent children.

(c) PRIORITY.—In making grants under this section, the State educational agency shall give priority to local educational agencies that demonstrate a high level of need for the military charter school programs.

(d) FEDERAL SHARE.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—The Federal share of the cost described in subsection (a) is 50 percent.

(2) NON-FEDERAL SHARE.—The non-Federal share of the cost may be provided in cash or in kind, fairly evaluated, including plant, equipment, or services.

SEC. 1307. SUPPLEMENT NOT SUPPLANT.

Funds appropriated pursuant to the authority of this subtitle shall be used to supplement and not supplant other Federal, State, local, or private funds expended to support military charter school programs.

SEC. 1308. REPORTS.

(a) STATE REPORTS.—Each State educational agency that receives a grant under this subtitle shall annually prepare and submit to the Secretary a report. The report shall describe—

(1) the method the State educational agency used to make grants to eligible local educational agencies and to provide assistance to schools under this subtitle;

(2) the specific measurable goals and objectives described in section 1305(c)(2)(A) for the State as a whole and the extent to which the State met each of the goals and objectives in the year preceding the submission of the report;

(3) the specific measurable goals and objectives described in section 1306(b)(2)(L) for each of the local educational agencies receiving a grant under this subtitle in the State and the extent to which each of the agencies met each of the goals and objectives in that preceding year;

(4) the steps that the State educational agency will take to ensure that any such local educational agency that did not meet the goals and objectives in that year will meet the goals and objectives in the year following the submission of the report, or the plan that the State educational agency has for revoking the grant awarded to such an agency and redistributing the grant funds to existing or new military charter school programs;

(5) how eligible local educational agencies and schools used funds provided by the State educational agency under this subtitle;

(6) the degree to which progress has been made toward meeting the goals and objectives described in section 1305(c)(2)(A); and

(7) best practices for the Secretary to share with interested parties.

(b) REPORT TO CONGRESS.—The Secretary shall annually prepare and submit to Congress a report. The report shall describe—

(1) the methods the State educational agencies used to make grants to eligible local educational agencies and to provide assistance to schools under this subtitle;

(2) how eligible local educational agencies and schools used funds provided under this subtitle; and

(3) the degree to which progress has been made toward meeting the goals and objectives described in sections 1305(c)(2)(A) and 1306(b)(2)(L).

(c) GOVERNMENT ACCOUNTING OFFICE REPORT TO CONGRESS.—The Comptroller General of the United States shall conduct a study regarding the demonstration program carried out under this subtitle and the impact of the program on student achievement. The Comptroller General shall prepare and submit to Congress a report containing the results of the study.

SEC. 1309. ADMINISTRATION.

(a) FEDERAL.—The Secretary shall develop program guidelines for and oversee the demonstration program carried out under this subtitle.

(b) LOCAL.—The commander of each military installation served by a military charter school assisted under this subtitle shall establish a nonprofit corporation or an oversight group to provide the applicable local educational agency with oversight and guidance regarding the day-to-day operations of the military charter school.

SEC. 1310. AUTHORIZATION OF APPROPRIATIONS.

There are authorized to be appropriated to carry out this subtitle—

(1) $5,000,000 for fiscal year 2003;

(2) $7,000,000 for fiscal year 2004;

(3) $9,000,000 for fiscal year 2005;

(4) $11,000,000 for fiscal year 2007; and

(5) $13,000,000 for fiscal year 2008.

SEC. 1311. TERMINATION.

The authority provided by this subtitle terminates 5 years after the date of enactment of this Act.

Subtitle B—Credit Enhancement Initiatives To Promote Military Charter School Facility Acquisition, Construction, and Renovation

SEC. 1321. CREDIT ENHANCEMENT INITIATIVES TO PROMOTE MILITARY CHARTER SCHOOL FACILITY ACQUISITION, CONSTRUCTION, AND RENOVATION.

Title V of the Elementary and Secondary Education Act of 1965 (20 U.S.C. 7201 et seq.)

is amended by adding at the end the following:

"PART E—CREDIT ENHANCEMENT INITIATIVES TO PROMOTE MILITARY CHARTER SCHOOL FACILITY ACQUISITION, CONSTRUCTION, AND RENOVATION.

"SEC. 5701. PURPOSE.

"The purpose of this part is to provide grants to eligible entities to permit the eligible entities to establish or improve innovative credit enhancement initiatives that assist military charter schools to address the cost of acquiring, constructing, and renovating facilities.

"SEC. 5702. GRANTS TO ELIGIBLE ENTITIES.

"(a) GRANTS FOR INITIATIVES.—

"(1) IN GENERAL.—The Secretary shall use 100 percent of the amount available to carry out this part to award grants to eligible entities that have applications approved under this part, to enable the eligible entities to carry out innovative initiatives for assisting military charter schools to address the cost of acquiring, constructing, and renovating facilities by enhancing the availability of loans or bond financing.

"(2) NUMBER OF GRANTS.—The Secretary shall award not less than 4 grants under this part in each fiscal year.

"(b) GRANTEE SELECTION.—

"(1) DETERMINATION.—The Secretary shall evaluate each application submitted, and shall determine which applications are of sufficient quality to merit approval and which are not.

"(2) MINIMUM GRANTS.—The Secretary shall award at least—

"(A) 1 grant to an eligible entity described in section 5710(1)(A);

"(B) 1 grant to an eligible entity described in section 5710(1)(B); and

"(C) 1 grant to an eligible entity described in section 5710(1)(C), if applications are submitted that permit the Secretary to award the grants without approving an application that is not of sufficient quality to merit approval.

"(c) GRANT CHARACTERISTICS.—Grants under this part shall be in sufficient amounts, and for initiatives of sufficient scope and quality, so as to effectively enhance credit for the financing of military charter school acquisition, construction, or renovation.

"(d) SPECIAL RULE.—In the event the Secretary determines that the funds available to carry out this part are insufficient to permit the Secretary to award not less than 4 grants in accordance with subsections (a) through (c)—

"(1) subsections (a)(2) and (b)(2) shall not apply; and

"(2) the Secretary may determine the appropriate number of grants to be awarded in accordance with subsections (a)(1), (b)(1), and (c).

"SEC. 5703. APPLICATIONS.

"(a) IN GENERAL.—To receive a grant under this part, an eligible entity shall submit to the Secretary an application in such form as the Secretary may reasonably require.

"(b) CONTENTS.—An application submitted under subsection (a) shall contain—

"(1) a statement identifying the activities proposed to be undertaken with funds received under this part, including how the eligible entity will determine which military charter schools will receive assistance, and how much and what types of assistance the military charter schools will receive;

"(2) a description of the involvement of military charter schools in the application's development and the design of the proposed activities;

"(3) a description of the eligible entity's expertise in capital market financing;

"(4) a description of how the proposed activities will—

"(A) leverage private sector financing capital, to obtain the maximum amount of private sector financing capital, relative to the amount of government funding used, to assist military charter schools; and

"(B) otherwise enhance credit available to military charter schools;

"(5) a description of how the eligible entity possesses sufficient expertise in education to evaluate the likelihood of success of a military charter school program for which facilities financing is sought;

"(6) in the case of an application submitted by a State governmental entity, a description of the actions that the entity has taken, or will take, to ensure that military charter schools within the State receive the funding the schools need to have adequate facilities;

"(7) an assurance that the eligible entity will give priority to funding initiatives that assist military charter schools in which students have demonstrated academic excellence or improvement during the 2 consecutive academic years preceding submission of the application; and

"(8) such other information as the Secretary may reasonably require.

"SEC. 5704. MILITARY CHARTER SCHOOL OBJECTIVES.

"An eligible entity receiving a grant under this part shall use the funds received through the grant, and deposited in the reserve account established under section 5705(a), to assist 1 or more military charter schools to access private sector capital to accomplish 1 or more of the following objectives:

"(1) The acquisition (by purchase, lease, donation, or otherwise) of an interest (including an interest held by a third party for the benefit of a military charter school) in improved or unimproved real property that is necessary to commence or continue the operation of a military charter school.

"(2) The construction of new facilities, or the renovation, repair, or alteration of existing facilities, necessary to commence or continue the operation of a military charter school.

"(3) The payment of startup costs, including the costs of training teachers and purchasing materials and equipment, including instructional materials and computers, for a military charter school.

"SEC. 5705. RESERVE ACCOUNT.

"(a) IN GENERAL.—For the purpose of assisting military charter schools to accomplish the objectives described in section 5704, an eligible entity receiving a grant under this part shall deposit the funds received through the grant (other than funds used for administrative costs in accordance with section 5706) in a reserve account established and maintained by the eligible entity for that purpose. The eligible entity shall make the deposit in accordance with State and local law and may make the deposit directly or indirectly, and alone or in collaboration with others.

"(b) USE OF FUNDS.—Amounts deposited in such account shall be used by the eligible entity for 1 or more of the following purposes:

"(1) Guaranteeing, insuring, and reinsuring bonds, notes, evidences of debt, loans, and interests therein, the proceeds of which are used for an objective described in section 5704.

"(2) Guaranteeing and insuring leases of personal and real property for such an objective.

"(3) Facilitating financing for such an objective by identifying potential lending sources, encouraging private lending, and carrying out other similar activities that directly promote lending to, or for the benefit of, military charter schools.

"(4) Facilitating the issuance of bonds by military charter schools, or by other public entities for the benefit of military charter schools, for such an objective, by providing technical, administrative, and other appropriate assistance (including the recruitment of bond counsel, underwriters, and potential investors and the consolidation of multiple military charter school projects within a single bond issue).

"(c) INVESTMENT.—Funds received under this part and deposited in the reserve account shall be invested in obligations issued or guaranteed by the United States or a State, or in other similarly low-risk securities.

"(d) REINVESTMENT OF EARNINGS.—Any earnings on funds received under this part shall be deposited in the reserve account established under subsection (a) and used in accordance with subsection (b).

"SEC. 5706. LIMITATION ON ADMINISTRATIVE COSTS.

"An eligible entity that receives a grant under this part may use not more than 0.25 percent of the funds received through the grant for the administrative costs of carrying out the eligible entity's responsibilities under this part.

"SEC. 5707. AUDITS AND REPORTS.

"(a) FINANCIAL RECORD MAINTENANCE AND AUDIT.—The financial records of each eligible entity receiving a grant under this part shall be maintained in accordance with generally accepted accounting principles and shall be subject to an annual audit by an independent public accountant.

"(b) REPORTS.—

"(1) ELIGIBLE ENTITY ANNUAL REPORTS.—Each eligible entity receiving a grant under this part annually shall submit to the Secretary a report of the eligible entity's operations and activities under this part.

"(2) CONTENTS.—Each such annual report shall include—

"(A) a copy of the eligible entity's most recent financial statements, and any accompanying opinion on such statements, prepared by the independent public accountant auditing the financial records of the eligible entity;

"(B) a copy of any report made on an audit of the financial records of the eligible entity that was conducted under subsection (a) during the reporting period;

"(C) an evaluation by the eligible entity of the effectiveness of the entity's use of the Federal funds provided under this part in leveraging private funds;

"(D) a listing and description of the military charter schools served by the eligible entity with such Federal funds during the reporting period;

"(E) a description of the activities carried out by the eligible entity to assist military charter schools in meeting the objectives set forth in section 5704; and

"(F) a description of the characteristics of lenders and other financial institutions participating in the activities undertaken by the eligible entity under this part during the reporting period.

"(3) SECRETARIAL REPORT.—The Secretary shall review the reports submitted under paragraph (1) and shall provide a comprehensive annual report to Congress on the activities conducted under this part.

“SEC. 5708. NO FULL FAITH AND CREDIT FOR GRANTEE OBLIGATIONS.

“No financial obligation of an eligible entity entered into pursuant to this part (such as an obligation under a guarantee, bond, note, evidence of debt, or loan) shall be an obligation of, or guaranteed in any respect by, the United States. The full faith and credit of the United States is not pledged to the payment of funds that may be required to be paid under any obligation made by an eligible entity pursuant to any provision of this part.

“SEC. 5709 RECOVERY OF FUNDS.

“(a) IN GENERAL.—The Secretary, in accordance with chapter 37 of title 31, United States Code, shall collect—

“(1) all of the funds in a reserve account established by an eligible entity under section 5705(a), if the Secretary determines, not earlier than 2 years after the date on which the entity first received funds under this part, that the entity has failed to make substantial progress in carrying out the purposes described in section 5705(b); or

“(2) all or a portion of the funds in a reserve account established by an eligible entity under section 5705(a), if the Secretary determines that the eligible entity has permanently ceased to use all or a portion of the funds in such account to accomplish any purpose described in section 5705(b).

“(b) EXERCISE OF AUTHORITY.—The Secretary shall not exercise the authority provided in subsection (a) to collect from any eligible entity any funds that are being properly used to achieve 1 or more of the purposes described in section 5705(b).

“(c) PROCEDURES.—The provisions of sections 451, 452, and 458 of the General Education Provisions Act (20 U.S.C. 1234, 1234a, 1234g) shall apply to the recovery of funds under subsection (a).

“(d) CONSTRUCTION.—This section shall not be construed to impair or affect the authority of the Secretary to recover funds under part D of the General Education Provisions Act (20 U.S.C. 1234 et seq.).

“SEC. 5710. DEFINITIONS.

“In this part:

“(1) ELIGIBLE ENTITY.—The term ‘eligible entity’ means—

“(A) a public entity, such as a military installation as defined in section 2687(e)(1) of title 10, United States Code;

“(B) a private nonprofit entity; or

“(C) a consortium of entities described in subparagraphs (A) and (B).

“(2) MILITARY CHARTER SCHOOL.—The term ‘military charter school’ has the meaning given such term by regulations promulgated by the Secretary of Defense.

“SEC. 5711. AUTHORIZATION OF APPROPRIATIONS.

“There are authorized to be appropriated to carry out this part $10,000,000 for fiscal year 2003 and each succeeding fiscal year.”

SEC. 1322. INCOME EXCLUSION FOR INTEREST PAID ON LOANS BY MILITARY CHARTER SCHOOLS.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Part III of subchapter B of chapter 1 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 (relating to items specifically excluded from gross income) is amended by inserting after section 139 the following new section:

“SEC. 139A. INTEREST ON MILITARY CHARTER SCHOOL LOANS.

“(a) EXCLUSION.—Gross income does not include interest on any military charter school loan.

“(b) MILITARY CHARTER SCHOOL LOAN.—For purposes of this section:

“(1) IN GENERAL.—The term ‘military charter school loan’ means any indebtedness incurred by a military charter school.

“(2) MILITARY CHARTER SCHOOL.—The term ‘military charter school’ means an institution defined as a military charter school by the Secretary of Defense.”

(b) CONFORMING AMENDMENT.—The table of sections for such part III is amended by inserting after the item relating to section 139 the following:

“Sec. 139A. Interest on military charter school loans.”

(c) EFFECTIVE DATE.—The amendments made by this section shall apply to taxable years beginning after the date of enactment of this Act, with respect to indebtedness incurred after the date of enactment of this Act.

Ms. LANDRIEU. Madam President, there have been many very good amendments brought to the floor that have been accepted, which have strengthened the underlying bill. I want to speak for a moment about this amendment in the hopes that, if we cannot adopt it today, at least we will begin a very serious discussion of this issue. It is an issue that the occupant of the chair has worked on very hard on in her career, and many Members on both sides of the aisle feel strongly about—that is, education and the quality of education in our country.

This particular amendment is in relation to the quality of education afforded to the hundreds of thousands of dependents of our men and women in the military. I will begin by expressing an overall thought that we are becoming wiser and wiser in Congress on this issue of education, recognizing that it truly is an issue of economic development.

It truly is an issue of strengthening our Nation. We cannot have an economically strong and militarily secure nation moving in a progressive way without an excellent school system. No matter where a child is born—rural or urban, on the east coast or west coast—if we do not do a better job as a nation of giving our children a quality education, the future of our Nation will not be as bright, and it could put us in jeopardy.

I also make the argument that for our military, the same holds true. It is not just about providing our military with the most extraordinary weapons. It is not just about training our military men and women to the highest levels. It is not just providing them the basics in terms of fair compensation and health care. We have an obligation to make sure, when our men and women sign up to be in our military and they have made these sacrifices, that we provide them, between the Department of Defense and the Department of Education, a quality education for their children.

When we send our soldiers into battle, we want them focused on the battle and mission at hand. We do not want them worried, as they naturally would be, about spouses and dependents at home, about their happiness, about their comfort, about their security. It makes our military stronger when we provide good, quality-of-life issues for their families at home. One of the ways we can do that is by improving the schools for military dependents.

There are over 800,000 children who are military dependents out of an overall force strength of 1.4 million adults connected to the military. Many of them are school-age children. Because of the specific demands of our military, which are very unlike the civilian sector because of the way it is structured, many move every 2 years. Some military move from the east coast to the west coast, moving families with them. It is very difficult providing an excellent education generally, and yet the military has even more challenges.

What is the solution? I offer this amendment—and hopefully we will begin discussing it—to strengthen our military schools in the United States in a creative way. This amendment will set up the possibility of a pilot program to help create military charter schools around the Nation in partnership with local public school systems to provide an opportunity not only for our military dependents, but this framework will also help communities that have a large military presence. The benefit overall is that the community gets a better school, a school that has the opportunity to provide an excellent education.

The second benefit is that our military children have that opportunity, as well as the children whose families might not have any connection to the military. It gives them an introduction into what military life can be like.

This is a partnership. It is a pilot program that will help establish charter schools, and that is basically what this amendment attempts to do.

Also with this amendment, which is an important consideration for military children as they move from community to community, there is created for the first time what we call an academic passport. It helps to stabilize and standardize the curriculum without micromanaging, without dictating what the curriculum should be. It tries to set up a new approach or a new framework for our local elementary and secondary education districts for use throughout the country to set up a standardized curriculum so that if children have to move from community to community, they can keep up as one school might require 3 years of a foreign language or 2 years of algebra or 1 year of algebra, or a whole different curriculum. That is part of this amendment. It is something about which military families feel very strongly. I hope that with this new pilot program to help create charter schools with a new academic passport, we can begin to focus some of our resources—again, not all within the Department of Defense; some of this is within the jurisdiction of the Department of Education—to create something exciting and wonderful for these 800,000 children.

Madam President, 600,000 of these children are in public schools today, at great stress sometimes to those public districts; 100,000 of these children are either in private schools or are home schooled; and only 32,000 of the 800,000 are in Department of Defense schools. As shown on this map, these schools are concentrated in a few States. There are only 32,000 children, as I said, of 800,000 dependents. Some of them are overseas; approximately 73,000 are overseas; 32,000 of our military children are in schools in New York, Kentucky, Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia, and Alabama.

As my colleagues can see, dependent children of military personnel are in public schools throughout the country. Sometimes they are good public schools; sometimes they are not so good. We are working hard to make every public school excellent, but I think we have a special obligation to our military families to make sure that those children are getting an excellent education.

I would like to tell you why with a chart that shows the percentage and status of degrees among the general population and our military population.

If you look at the general population, nonofficers in our military, 91.5 percent have only a high school degree or GED—91 percent. In our general population, it is about 80 percent—20 percent have college degrees or above; 75 to 80 percent have only high school. This is a very upwardly mobile group of Americans. These are men and women with great discipline, great patriotism, great commitment to the Nation. Obviously, they are serving their country, but they are committed to their families and their communities.

As one can see, the officers exceed the general population at large. Almost 40 percent have advanced degrees; 50 percent or more have bachelor degrees. This is a very upwardly mobile population. If we can provide excellent schools and opportunities for this 91 percent, I think we will be doing a very good job in helping to strengthen our military but also helping our country be a better place. It is truly something on which we should focus more.

In conclusion, let me show a picture of a school of which I am very proud. It might be one of the first military charters, if not the first, in the Nation. This is a school we are building and will actually be cutting the ribbon for this week in Belle Chasse, LA. This is a state-of-the-art, brandnew public school in Plaquemines Parish.

There is a very important naval reserve base there. It is 90,000 square feet, 37 classrooms, a gymnasium, cafeteria, a media center, a youth center, administrative offices, and although one cannot tell exactly from this picture, wonderful classrooms and a very high-tech communication and computer system. Six hundred of the children from this military base will be able to attend a state-of-the-art school that was built in a public-private partnership. I am very hopeful this model, based on this amendment—which, again, I am offering only for consideration and will ask to be withdrawn in a moment so we can consider it at a future time—will be something we can share with the rest of the Nation and help build opportunities for our military dependents to go to excellent schools and to help the local school districts to give nonmilitary children an opportunity to attend world-class, first-class centers of education.

I think we can work all day long on pay raises, on building more ships, and on building a stronger Air Force, but truly I think focusing on educational opportunities, both for the adults in our military but particularly for their children, will help us build morale, help us improve retention, will help us strengthen our military in the intermediate and the long term, and it is something that, with a little creativity and a little bit of thinking outside of the box, I am convinced we could finance the construction of these schools by reordering some of the streams of revenue and end up coming out with some excellent facilities around this Nation to serve both our military and our nonmilitary families and do a great job for our Defense Department and a great job for our country. That is what this amendment does.

AMENDMENT NO. 3975 WITHDRAWN

Ms. LANDRIEU. I ask unanimous consent that amendment No. 3975 be withdrawn until a further time.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The amendment is withdrawn.

Ms. LANDRIEU. I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Ms. COLLINS. Madam President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Ms. COLLINS. Madam President, I rise today to speak on one of the most important pieces of legislation that we will consider this year; that is, the National Defense Authorization Act for Fiscal Year 2003. This important bill authorizes funding to strengthen our military, to address the challenges of today, and to anticipate the threats of tomorrow.

We are a nation at war. This bill recognizes the critical role that our Armed Forces play in the war against terrorism and in securing our homeland. It will help ensure that our troops are better paid, better housed, and better equipped than ever before. I had the privilege of visiting our troops in central Asia last January. I was a member of the first bipartisan Senate delegation to visit our troops on the front lines in the war zone. I was inspired by the patriotism and professionalism of our men and women in uniform.

As long as they know our Nation is united behind them, they are willing to bear any hardship no matter how harsh, undertake any mission no matter how dangerous, and willingly risk their lives each and every day just by doing their jobs.

The obligation on us, in return, is clear. The legislation before the Senate recognizes our obligation to improve the quality of service for our American forces who need and deserve the finest equipment and the best resources to combat any threat.

For example, the bill includes a 4.1-percent across-the-board pay raise for our military personnel and an increase in the housing allowance that will reduce the average out-of-pocket expenses for off-post housing to 7.5 percent in 2002. This represents significant progress toward the goal of eliminating by 2005 the need for our military personnel to reach into their own pockets to pay for housing. I also support, and cosponsored, an amendment adopted by the Senate earlier this week that will repeal the prohibition on concurrent receipt of non-disability retired military pay and veteran's disability pay for our military retirees, eliminating an inequity and allowing these veterans to collect the full amount they have earned.

This bill also begins to address the needs and concerns of our reserve forces. Specifically, it includes a study that will require the Department of Defense to assess the compensation and benefits of our reservists, who have been called upon more and more to serve our country and protect our freedoms. Under the total force concept, more than 80,000 Selected Reserve and National Guard personnel are now on active duty, nearly 9 months after the attacks of September 11. This study is the first step to ensuring that our reservists receive the compensation and benefits that are proportional to the commitment and services that they provide.

While the bill reflects significant investments in our national defense—including a significant increase to respond to the attacks of September 11—it will take several years of sustained increases in defense spending to completely recover from the “procurement holiday” of previous years.

I stand with the majority of the Armed Services Committee that believes more needs to be done to address the shipbuilding shortfalls that this administration inherited from the previous administration.

The Navy's shipbuilding program simply is not adequate to meet the needs of a more dangerous world. I am particularly concerned about the under-funding of the Navy's destroyer, or "DDG-51" program, which serves as the backbone of the Navy's surface fleet. This bill fully funds only two DDG-51s next year despite the clear need for a third. I am therefore pleased that the Senate version of the bill does include an increase of $125 million above the administration's request toward the procurement of an additional much-needed destroyer.

During the committee markup, Senator WARNER, with my strong support, offered an alternative shipbuilding proposal that would have provided even more to meet the need for more ships through an additional $1 billion. Also, the alternative would have provided multi-year authority and additional advanced procurement for several shipbuilding programs. Further, it would have restored $690 million of the almost $900 million cut in various missile defense programs. I am very disappointed that this shipbuilding initiative was rejected in committee on a straight party-line vote as, ultimately, there will be a high price to pay if this shipbuilding trend is not reversed. We are making some progress. The out-year budgets for the Department of Defense have improved markedly in investing more resources into rebuilding our Naval Fleet.

I am encouraged and optimistic, however, that the Navy and its industry partners have heard our concerns about this egregious shortfall. Just recently an agreement was reached by the Navy, General Dynamics and Northrop Grumman Ship Systems to transfer ship construction between the two corporations' shipyards. The terms of this agreement is based on adding two additional DDG ships to the Navy's FY 2003 shipbuilding plan, which will be awarded to the Bath Iron Works in my State. Bath Iron Works has a long tradition of producing quality ships for the Navy. This agreement will immediately transfer DDG 102 to the Bath Iron Works facility for construction.

Further, as a result of this agreement, the Navy is expected to realize significant net cost savings on these programs, which could then be used to further invest in additional shipbuilding initiatives. The increased number of DDGs at Bath should provide increased stability and predictability at the yard, and maintain the critical surface combatant work force for the industrial base to remain competitive for the DD(X) family-of-ships.

The swap agreement has also led to discussions and a tentative agreement on the price and terms of a new DDG multi-year procurement. This contract, once awarded, will provide seven ships over the next four years, including three DDG swap option ships that Bath alone will have the opportunity to bid on. This new multi-year procurement contract will be the largest contract award in Bath's history. Let me state that again, this pending multi-year contract will be the largest contract awarded in Bath's history, and begin to remedy the shortfall in our naval fleet.

While the debate continues on how to transform our armed forces, the Senate is taking action to support our armed forces and the administration's priorities. I would like to take this opportunity to acknowledge and thank Chairman LEVIN and our senior Republican, Senator WARNER, for their tireless efforts to tackle the tough issues and produce an authorization bill that funds a number of critical priorities and provides support for the men and women of our armed forces.

Our armed forces stand ready. Now it is our responsibility to equip and support our men and women to meet the threats and challenges of today and those of tomorrow.

I believe the legislation before us is a strong step in the right direction, and I am pleased to have had an opportunity to shape this legislation as a member of the Senate Armed Services Committee.

I yield the floor and I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The assistant legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. REID. Madam President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. LEVIN. Madam President, On May 14, Department of Defense officials announced that they intended to classify details of future flight tests of the national missile defense system. This occurred after the Senate Armed Services Committee had completed its work on the Defense authorization bill, so we were unable to address this issue in the committee version of the bill. The issue needs to be addressed, however.

The administration claims that placing a shroud of secrecy around the national missile defense testing program is necessary to prevent details of its operation from being revealed to potential enemies. One can argue whether such secrecy is truly needed, since we are many years away from deployment an effective national missile defense systems.

What is not arguable is that Congress has a right and obligation to know the results of such critical tests, regardless of whether they are classified.

The amendment offered by Senator REED and myself would ensure that Congress gets regular reports, classified as necessary, on the results of each national missile defense flight test, 120 days following the test.

The reports should describe the objectives of each test, and whether the objectives were met. Such information is absolutely essential for Congress to be able to understand and evaluate the performance of the national missile defense system.

The word in the modified amendment is "thorough." This amendment ensures that constitutionally mandated oversight will, in fact, continue to be respected.

I hope all of my colleagues will support this important amendment.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Rhode Island.

AMENDMENT NO. 4029

Mr. REED. Madam President, I call up amendment No. 4029.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will report.

The assistant legislative clerk read as follows:

The Senator from Rhode Island [Mr. REED] for himself and Mr. LEVIN proposes an amendment numbered 4029.

Mr. REED. Madam President, I ask unanimous consent that reading of the amendment be dispensed with.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The amendment is as follows:

(Purpose: To require a report on the results of each flight test of the Ground-based Midcourse national missile defense system)

On page 34, after line 23, insert the following:

SEC. 226. REPORTS ON FLIGHT TESTING OF GROUND-BASED MIDCOURSE NATIONAL MISSILE DEFENSE SYSTEM.

(a) REQUIREMENT.—The Director of the United States Missile Defense Agency shall submit to the congressional defense committees a report on each flight test of the Ground-based Midcourse national missile defense system. The report shall be submitted not later than 90 days after the date of the test.

(b) CONTENT.—A report on a flight test under subsection (a) shall include the following matters:

(1) A detailed discussion of the content and objectives of the test.

(2) For each test objective, a statement regarding whether the objective was achieved.

(3) For any test objective not achieved—

(A) a detailed discussion describing the reasons for not achieving the objective; and

(B) a discussion of any plans for future tests to achieve the objective.

(c) FORMAT.—The reports required under subsection (a) shall be submitted in unclassified form, with a classified annex as necessary.

AMENDMENT NO. 4029, AS MODIFIED

Mr. REED. Madam President, I also at this time seek unanimous consent to send a modification of the amendment to the desk and have it reported.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection?

Mr. WARNER. Madam President, reserving the right to object—I shall not—the Senator submitted the amendment to me. I have been in consultation with the Department of Defense. We came back with certain modifications. The Senator has modified this amendment consistent with those recommendations that I received from the Department of Defense.

I have no objection to the Senator modifying the amendment.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, the amendment is so modified.

The amendment (No. 4029), as modified, is as follows:

On page 34, after line 23, insert the following:

SEC. 226. REPORTS ON FLIGHT TESTING OF GROUND-BASED MIDCOURSE NATIONAL MISSILE DEFENSE SYSTEM.

(a) REQUIREMENT.—The Director of the United States Missile Defense Agency shall submit to the congressional defense committees a report on each flight test of the Ground-based Midcourse national missile defense system. The report shall be submitted not later than 120 days after the date of the test.

(b) CONTENT.—A report on a flight test under subsection (a) shall include the following matters:

(1) A thorough discussion of the content and objectives of the test.

(2) For each test objective, a statement regarding whether the objective was achieved.

(3) For any test objective not achieved—

(A) a thorough discussion describing the reasons for not achieving the objective; and

(B) a discussion of any plans for future tests to achieve the objective.

(c) FORMAT.—The reports required under subsection (a) shall be submitted in classified form and unclassified form.

Mr. REED. I thank the Senator from Virginia for his help on this amendment.

I think this is an opportune time to call for passage of the amendment prior to any other discussion at this time. I urge passage of the amendment.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there further debate?

Mr. WARNER. We have no objection, Madam President.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, the amendment is agreed to.

The amendment (No. 4029), as modified, was agreed to.

Mr. LEVIN. Madam President, I move to reconsider the vote.

Mr. WARNER. I move to lay that motion on the table.

The motion to lay on the table was agreed to.

Mr. LEVIN. Madam President, I congratulate the Senator from Rhode Island on his amendment. I think he may want to take a minute to describe it. I will yield the floor for that purpose, and then I would like to add a comment on it of my own.

I yield the floor.

Mr. REID. Madam President, I have spoken to the two managers of the bill. It appears this is the last hurdle before final passage of this legislation. The staff is working now on a unanimous consent agreement. We will have final passage at or around 2 o'clock today.

Mr. LEVIN. Sounds good.

Mr. WARNER. Madam President, may I say to the distinguished leader that we have, as I am sure each manager has, tried to contact all offices and all Senators who have expressed any desire to either speak or submit amendments otherwise. But, as I understand it, we will hopefully vote around 2 o'clock. Can we allow a reasonable period such that if there is anything I have left undone Senators may contact me, or reciprocate on your side? Perhaps we can get a unanimous consent request in 15 or 20 minutes to lock in the vote at 2 o'clock.

Mr. REID. It takes the staff a while to do the unanimous consent request. It will take 15 or 20 minutes to do that.

Mr. LEVIN. If the Senator from Nevada will yield for an additional question, there are a number of amendments which I understand may be worked out between now and 2 o'clock.

Mr. WARNER. The Senator is correct.

Mr. REID. We would make sure that any consent allows that to take place.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Rhode Island is recognized.

Mr. REED. Madam President, I thank the Senator from Virginia for his help and cooperation, and the Senator from Michigan for his accommodation.

This is an amendment that responds to an announcement made by the Missile Defense Agency shortly after the conclusion of our committee deliberations. The announcement was that they would classify the details of all future flight tests of the national missile defense system—now called the land-based midcourse system.

I believe Congress needs information of that kind. I also believe those unclassified portions of the tests should be available to a broader community, particularly the scientific community.

The amendment that has been agreed to and included in this bill would require the Missile Defense Agency to provide to the Congress within 120 days a thorough report of the details of the tests. And it would include both an unclassified format and a classified format so that those items the Defense Department and the Missile Defense Agency believes should be secret will be kept secret, and it will be reported to us in a classified form.

Let me say that one of the persistent criticisms of the first test of the missile defense system—the land-based midcourse system—was the fact that the tests were unrealistic. In fact, this criticism—particularly by the scientific community—led the Missile Defense Agency to adopt a much more realistic, thorough, and exhaustive test process for our missile defense system.

That criticism, in effect, has been very helpful to the development of the national missile defense. I think it is something that should be encouraged—certainly not discouraged.

This view is also shared widely in many other places. Yesterday USA Today had an editorial which said "The Pentagon policy wrongly shields missile defense data."

They went on to point out that past scientific commentary about the performance of weapons systems has been very valuable in terms of improving those systems. They point specifically to the Patriot system. Initially, the Defense Department claimed that the Patriot was wildly successful in the gulf war.

It turned out that a scientist at MIT was able to look at some of the news video. He observed, based on his scientific training, that these claims were dubious. In fact, he proved to be correct. Once the Pentagon publicly acknowledged that the effectiveness of the Patriot was not as they had originally claimed, it was the beginning of serious work to accelerate the development of additional improvements. That improvement is now the PAC-3 system, a much more capable system.

I believe honestly that the Defense Department would have tried to move to a better version of Patriot anyway, but certainly the public scrutiny of this type of information helped that process move forward much more expeditiously.

As USA Today points out, we could spend up to $100 billion under the administration's missile defense plan. As they say:

Taxpayers deserve assurances beyond the Pentagon's word that the system works.

This is particularly important when, at the same time the Missile Defense Agency is talking about putting a much broader cloak of secrecy around what they do, they are also saying they want to have a contingent deployment of missile systems as early as 2004.

Again, some of these tests are not even scheduled to take place until after that date. Yet they are talking about a system in which they want to have something ready by 2004.

I fear that the pressure to put something in the field by 2004 will overcome the willingness to be as clear and transparent as you want them to be about these tests.

I hope this amendment will reinforce the Defense Department's view that these details are useful for the Congress and, in unclassified form, useful for the scientific community.

As a former director of operational testing, Phil Coyle, stated in a Washington Post article, on June 11, the new classification policy that is being proposed by the Missile Defense Agency is, in his words, "not justified by either the progress and tests so far or by the realisms of the test."

We are still at a very rudimentary stage, a stage in which details of the test will help inform the Congress, will help inform scientific observers, and, I hope, will help us keep this system on track and keep the system, in effect, honest, so that if people are looking closely, all the t's will be crossed and all the i's dotted.

I must also say, at this point, too, that General Kadish, particularly, has committed himself and budget dollars to ensure that a much more realistic and much more rigorous form of testing is employed. That is commendable and, indeed, is supported in the underlying legislation by our authorization.

Testing and reporting of results is very important because, as I mentioned many times, the comments of outside authorities, scientists, are very useful. The Union of Concerned Scientists, for example, prepared a report about the first several tests of the ground-based midcourse system. They made several valuable suggestions.

First, they suggested that you make the end game more realistic. By that, they meant we make the engagement with the kill vehicle and the enemy warhead much more realistic than the tests were at that stage. That is being done, not solely because of the UCS recommendation, but certainly it helped move along, I think, the concentration on more realism.

They also talked about more realistic test conditions. Some of these things do not strike me, at this juncture, as particularly sensitive information.

They talked about the geometry of the interception, whether it is the same flight track for the enemy warhead as well as for the interception vehicle, the kill vehicle.

The time of day: If we are only testing at the same time of day, when atmospheric conditions and sunlight or starlight are most opportune to discriminate a warhead from decoys, that is not a realistic test.

The weather conditions: Are we testing in foul weather as well as fair weather?

The flyout range, the altitude of the intercept—there are many things that are very important. And we should have an idea, on an unclassified and classified basis, of these parameters. And the scientific community should at least have an indication, on an unclassified basis, of what is taking place.

I believe the amendment is important. It is useful. I am extraordinarily pleased that the ranking member, the Senator from Virginia, was helpful in getting this done so expeditiously.

One final point, we are simply codifying what I believe and what I know to be the intent of the Department of Defense.

In that same USA Today article previously mentioned, Secretary Aldridge wrote:

There is not now, and can never be, any component of this missile defense program classified beyond the reach of the security clearances of its congressional overseers. Congress' constitutionally mandated oversight will always be respected.

That constitutionally mandated oversight has been codified in this amendment.

I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. EDWARDS). The Senator From Virginia.

Mr. WARNER. Mr. President, I make these few remarks concerning the Reed amendment now before the Senate.

With the modifications that I have proposed and the majority has accepted, I am not objecting to the inclusion of this amendment in the defense authorization bill. These modifications were at the request of the Department of Defense. But I do have concerns with its substance, concerns that are shared by the Administration and, specifically, the Director of the Missile Defense Agency.

This amendment offered by Senator REED would require the Director of the Missile Defense Agency to submit a report to the congressional defense committees on each flight test of the ground-based midcourse missile defense system, what we used to call the national missile defense system. This amendment would add an additional three to five reports a year to the long and continually growing list of reports that the Missile Defense Agency must submit to Congress annually.

Last year, at the insistence of our majority, the defense authorization act required several reports to Congress on missile defense. I strove, with some success, to assure that those reports were consistent with what Congress requires of other defense programs. This year, the bill our majority crafted in committee imposes five new reporting requirements related to missile defense, including annual operational assessments on research and development programs, annual assessments of military requirements for all Missile Defense Agency programs, and detailed cost information on several missile defense programs—information, I might add, that in some cases simply isn't available.

My specific concerns are, as follows:

First, this amendment requires a report on every single flight test of the national missile defense system. I am unaware of any other program in the Department of Defense for which we in Congress impose such detailed reporting requirements. As I stated earlier, my intent last year was to make reporting requirements on missile defense programs consistent with those for other defense programs.

Second, this amendment adds to the already substantial reporting burden on the Missile Defense Agency. I would note that the Secretary of Defense, in a letter to Chairman LEVIN and me, informed us that our bill, even prior to this amendment, "would impose a number of burdensome statutory restrictions that would undermine our ability to manage the [missile defense] program effectively." The Office of Management and Budget reiterated this view. A few moments ago, I spoke to General Kadish, the Director of the Missile Defense Agency, who echoed these concerns even as he reiterated his willingness to provide Congress with all information on tests to facilitate our legitimate oversight function.

Third, Congress already has a process to gain all the information that it desires on a test or tests. We need simply ask for a report or a briefing, and the Missile Defense Agency has responded, is responding, and will respond. I have heard no allegation that information on tests has been denied to the appropriate committee, or is not available on request.

I fully concur with those who believe that Congress should have access to all relevant information related to missile defense tests. I have relayed the assurances I received that the Missile Defense Agency will provide us with this information. All members, and staff with appropriate clearances, will have access to this information. Indeed, Committee staff received a classified briefing related to targets and countermeasures prior to the last long-range missile defense test.

In the interest of comity and the desire to complete work on this important legislation expeditiously, I will not oppose inclusion of this amendment in the pending bill. I will work during our conference with the House to improve the provisions on missile defense.

Mr. President, we had to handle this amendment very expeditiously in order to achieve our 2 o'clock objective to have final passage. I did review it very carefully with the Department of Defense. We did make the technical changes. But I would have to say that I hope there is no inference, from this amendment as it now has been amended, that the Department would not have responded to the Congress had the Congress requested any information under any tests.

So the amendment points up the importance of and the interest in the Congress, but at the same time Congress could have obtained the same information, as required by this amendment, had it taken the initiative. Am I not correct in that, I ask the Senator?

Mr. REED. If the Senator will yield, you are absolutely correct. What I would suggest is, because of the highly technical nature of the whole program, often we do not know what questions to ask at times. As a result, with this reporting requirement, I think we will fulfill our constitutional obligation.

I guess I would respond, finally, by saying there is a saying from a famous poet from New England, Robert Frost: "Good fences make good neighbors." Perhaps if we look at this as a good fence, we will be better neighbors with our friends in MDA.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Nevada.

Mr. REID. Mr. President, I was in discussion with the President pro tempore of the Senate on something very important; and that is when he is going to give his Fourth of July speech, at which I try to be present every year. I think we may be fortunate enough that the Senator may give that speech this afternoon when we finish this bill sometime.

I think I am now in a position to enter a unanimous consent request for this bill.

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that following passage of S. 2514, it be in order for the Senate to consider, en bloc, the following calendar items: Nos. 371, 372, 373—these are S. 2515, S. 2516, and S. 2517—that all after the enacting clause be stricken in each bill, and that the following divisions of S. 2514, as passed by the Senate, be inserted in lieu thereof, as follows: S. 2515, division A; S. 2516, division B; and S. 2517, division C; that the bills be read three times, passed, and the motion to reconsider be laid upon the table, en bloc; that the consideration of these items appear separately in the RECORD.

I further ask unanimous consent that with respect to S. 2515, S. 2516, and S. 2517, as passed, that if the Senate receives a message from the House with regard to any of these measures, the Senate insist on its amendment or disagree to the House amendment, and agree to or request a conference with the House on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses; and that the Chair be authorized to appoint conferees on the part of the Senate.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection?

Mr. WYDEN. Reserving the right to object.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Oregon.

Mr. WYDEN. Mr. President, I wish to discuss with the distinguished leader from Nevada and the chairman of the committee and the distinguished minority member the amendment I have with Senator SMITH.

This is an extremely important amendment. We have been trying to work out the details with respect to the majority and minority. I want to make sure that our right to offer that amendment is protected.

It is not clear to me, with respect to the unanimous consent request posed by the distinguished Senator from Nevada, that our right to offer the Wyden-Smith amendment, which is of enormous importance to the State of Oregon, would be protected. If I could yield to the distinguished chairman and ranking member so this point could be clarified, I am speaking on behalf of both myself and the Senator from Oregon.

Mr. REID. Mr. President, I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The assistant legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. REID. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. REID. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent the Senator from Florida be recognized for 5 minutes as in morning business.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. WARNER. Reserving the right to object, it is my understanding there is no amendment connected with this; is that correct?

Mr. NELSON of Florida. It is an amendment that has already been adopted.

Mr. WARNER. I thank the Senator. The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Florida.

Mr. NELSON of Florida. Mr. President, I wanted to again thank the leadership of our Armed Services Committee, the distinguished Senators from Michigan and Virginia, respectively, the chairman and ranking member of our committee, for the acceptance last evening of an amendment I had offered that was cosponsored by a number of Senators, including several on our Armed Services Committee, concerning a requirement that the Department of Defense will do an investigation and will report to the Congress on a regular basis about the biological and chemical testing that may have put some of our service men and women and, indeed, some civilians in harm's way.

Certainly, that wasn't the original intent when these tests were conducted back in the fifties, sixties, and seventies. But, indeed, that has been the upshot of what we now find out, in some cases, 30, 40 years later—even a half century later—that there may have been exposure that is causing our veterans to now need to know what the whole truth is in order to fix the past mistakes where veterans have been exposed to toxic substances, particularly from this chemical and biological testing, and to get full disclosure of this testing because it has been classified over the past number of decades. The veterans of this country certainly have a right to know, particularly with regard to getting them to come in and get the health care they need if, in fact, the health care is required.

Now, that is a general statement. Let me kind of flush it out with some specifics. In the sixties and the seventies, ships of ours in the Pacific were gassed with biological and chemical substances and, in some cases, simulants or simulations of those substances. That was a program under the acronym of SHAD, Shipboard Hazard and Defense. It was ostensibly to test those ships' ability to react and protect themselves if an enemy came out and suddenly tried to put these biological or chemical agents on our ships in order to immobilize and to kill our Navy.

In some cases, we were told these were not the actual materials, such as nerve gas, but that it was a simulant of nerve gas. Years later, decades later, we are finding that these simulants that were used are having an effect on the people who were sprayed; and, indeed, there actually may have been some exposure to the actual chemical and biological agents instead of just the simulants. There were 113 of these tests. Only 6 have been declassified. Of those 6, a population of 4,300 veterans have been identified to be contacted and, to date, only 622 have been written to when the Department of Defense declassified it, gave it to the Veterans' Administration. They wrote the letters and said: If you are having any effects, come into the veterans medical facility. Of those 622, a good number of them were in Florida, which is how I first started hearing about this.

Senator CLELAND will have hearings this fall on this very same issue, but what we are going to look into in this amendment, just attached last night to DOD, is the shipboard gassing in the sixties and seventies.

What Senator CLELAND's committee is going to look into is the overall testing because, lo and behold, I started getting all of these ruminations coming out of Florida about some mysterious tests that were conducted in the fifties at the old Boca Raton Airfield, an old World War II airfield, and an 85-acre parcel to the north that apparently is still undeveloped. But guess what has grown up around it. Florida Atlantic University, one of our major universities, was built on this site. The Boca Raton Airport, one of the major general aviation airports in Florida, is right there.

When I requested this information from the DOD back in February, as the junior Senator from Florida, DOD wrote back and said it is classified. Well, thank goodness that Senator LEVIN, our chairman, has tasked Senator CLELAND, our Personnel Subcommittee chairman, to get into this because our committee is clearly capable of handling classified information.

So I want the leadership to know how much I appreciate them doing this so the veterans will have full disclosure—were they in harm's way?—now that we are just finding out three and four decades later, certainly incited by these letters that, as we speak, are being mailed out to these veterans all over the country.

Thanks to the chairman and the ranking member, they accepted this amendment, which will be etched into law in our DOD authorization bill. Then, as we pursue the larger bill, including all the tests, other than just SHAD, Senator CLELAND's subcommittee will get into this investigation.

It is my understanding that Senator ROCKEFELLER, the chairman of the Veterans' Affairs Committee, is also interested in having hearings on this very same subject. I am so grateful to the leadership of this body, on behalf of the veterans of Florida in my case, and on behalf of the veterans of this country, to find out what happened—to peel back the onion and see what really happened—and if there is a problem, we can get these veterans into the medical facilities.

I thank the chairman for making this possible. I thank the distinguished assistant majority leader for giving me this time.

I yield the floor.

Mr. LEVIN. Mr. President, I thank Senator NELSON for his determination and passion on this issue. It will benefit the veterans who may have been affected. We are happy to work with him. Hopefully, his leadership will produce the critically necessary information we need to help with their medical situation. They are all in his debt and this body is as well.

Mr. REID. Mr. President, I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The senior assistant bill clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. LEVIN. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. LEVIN. Mr. President, I understand Senator HUTCHINSON has some remarks he would like to give in offering an amendment, and then after 10 minutes he will withdraw that amendment. I want to make sure he is in agreement with this before I ask unanimous consent.

I ask unanimous consent that Senator HUTCHINSON be recognized for 10 minutes to offer an amendment, and then at the end of that 10 minutes to withdraw the amendment.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The Senator from Arkansas.

AMENDMENT NO. 4069

Mr. HUTCHINSON. Mr. President, I call up amendment No. 4069.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will report.

The senior assistant bill clerk read as follows:

The Senator from Arkansas [Mr. HUTCHINSON] proposes an amendment numbered 4069.

Mr. HUTCHINSON. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the reading of the amendment be dispensed with.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The amendment is as follows:

At the end of subtitle A of title III, add the following:

SEC. 305. CLARA BARTON CENTER FOR DOMESTIC PREPAREDNESS.

Of the amount authorized to be appropriated by section 301(a)(5) for operation and maintenance for defensewide activities,

$3,000,000 shall be available for the Clara Barton Center for Domestic Preparedness, Arkansas.

Mr. HUTCHINSON. I thank the Chair.

Mr. President, I appreciate my colleagues giving me an opportunity to speak on this amendment. I think it is very important to our country. It is a matter that, after cloture, is not germane, and I intend to withdraw it. But I give notice that this is an important issue for our country and I intend to talk about it in the future. It is a matter that is critical to the protection of our military.

Today we are deploying our troops across the world to fight the war on terrorism, and it is clear our enemies have been actively attempting to acquire biological weapons.

We know Saddam Hussein has been relentless in his pursuit of biological weapons. Yet even with this knowledge, we continue today to deploy our troops without adequate vaccine protection. The shortage of anthrax vaccine, due to the failure of BioPort, has been well publicized. However, as we meet today, our military has no stocks of vaccines against a range of other pathogens that we know could be used against our troops.

According to unclassified documents released by the Pentagon, there are at least 10 nations right now pursuing biological weapons programs. Based on media reports, we know these nations include Iraq, Iran, and North Korea. In 1998, the Department of Defense instituted a program to vaccinate all uniformed military personnel against anthrax, but because of the debacle that has occurred since then, the resulting vaccine shortage, that program was curtailed and is only now beginning to get back in motion.

Today, only 526,000 service members have received any vaccine doses. The vast majority of these have received fewer than the recommended six doses. Soon it is expected that DOD will announce a new anthrax policy whereby only troops being deployed to so-called high-risk areas will be vaccinated. I look forward to learning what areas are designated as high-risk areas. Given what occurred on 9-11, even the Pentagon itself should qualify.

The tragedy of this situation is that there is no reason for us to be in this position. The DOD over a decade ago realized our nation needed a reliable source of vaccine. The private sector is simply unable to meet the requirement for vaccines against biological weapons. The production of these products is not profitable, the need is too small, the infrastructure costs are too high, and the liability is too great.

There is no greater proponent of the private sector than I. However, throughout the past decade private industry has declined to participate in this market. In fact, the only company that is chosen to contract with the Pentagon is BioPort. We know that has not been an altogether satisfactory experience.

This problem has been examined many times over the past decade. In fact, it has been studied twice by the Department of Defense. Both times, the conclusion was that our Nation needed a government-owned, contractor-operated vaccine production facility. This is referred to as a GOCO.

In January of 1991, Project Badger presented a report to DOD entitled "Long Term Expansion of Production Capability for Medical Defense Against Biological Warfare Agents." That is a long title, but the conclusion was that we needed to construct a Government-owned facility to provide assured manufacture of products against agents of biological origin.

At that time, DOD began site selection. They began planning for such a facility. In 1994, they prepared a study entitled "Department of Defense Vaccine Production Facility: An Economic Analysis of Alternatives."

They were moving ahead. Then, the previous administration reversed course and decided to rely solely upon the commercial sector. After dumping over $120 million, we are only now beginning to receive anthrax vaccine. We do not want to repeat that.

In November of 2000, the Department of Defense completed another in-depth study of a potential GOCO, which included detailed cost and design estimates. In February of 2001, the Department prepared a comprehensive life cycle cost estimate.

Finally, last July the Pentagon released its latest study, "Report on Biological Warfare Defense Vaccine Research & Development Programs." This study once again came to the same conclusion, was prepared by a team of DOD personnel, industry leaders, and academics, and it included a letter from former Surgeon General David Satcher, all of it endorsing the concept of a GOCO.

Since September 11, the establishment of a GOCO has been recommended by other organizations outside the Department of Defense.

In November of 2001, the Institute of Medicine at the National Academies issued a statement saying:

The establishment of a government-owned, contract-operated facility for research, development, and production of vaccines is essential.

I repeat, the Institute of Medicine concluded that such a facility is essential. In December of 2001, the Advisory Panel to Assess Domestic Response Capabilities for Terrorism, headed by former Virginia Gov. Jim Gilmore, issued a report, with their recommendation:

The establishment of a government-owned, contractor-operated national facility for the research, development and production of vaccines and therapeutics for specified infectious, especially contagious diseases, is needed.

I offered an amendment to our DOD authorization bill, a critical bill for our troops, that I believe would provide protection for our men and women in uniform. This amendment was cosponsored by Senator HUTCHISON of Texas, Senator MIKULSKI of Maryland, Senator LINCOLN of Arkansas, Senator SARBANES of Maryland, and Senator ROBERTS of Kansas. All of them have cosponsored it. They recognize that it would ensure that our troops receive the protection they require. We have seen DOD study the matter twice; we have seen the Institute of Medicine-issued opinion; former Surgeon General Satcher recommended the building of a GOCO.

All of these independent evaluations have concluded the same, and it is simply this: The private sector, for all of the good that it does, cannot, against some of the boutique biological pathogens and threats that may exist now and in the future against our troops and against our civilian population, and will not in the future see this as a profitable commercial venture.

The insurance for the American people, and the insurance for our men and women in uniform, is to have a Government-owned production facility, contractor-operated, to ensure that vaccine will always be available if and when it is needed.

I will withdraw the amendment I have offered. However, I will continue to bring this issue before the Senate. Our troops deserve more, I believe, than they are getting right now, and I intend to continue to pursue this issue as long as it takes until our troops are protected, whether it is through the homeland security bill or the Defense appropriations bill or other vehicles we may have, because this is vitally important.

It is important for our country. It is important for our troops. It is the right thing to do. We have waited too long to act, and should delay no longer.

AMENDMENT NO. 4069 WITHDRAWN

Mr. HUTCHINSON. I ask unanimous consent to withdraw my amendment.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered. The amendment is withdrawn.

Mr. HUTCHINSON. I thank the Chair, and I yield the floor.

Mr. LEVIN. I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The senior assistant bill clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. WYDEN. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

AMENDMENT NO. 4060

Mr. WYDEN. Mr. President, I call up amendment No. 4060 that I offer on behalf of myself and Senator SMITH of Oregon.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will report.

The assistant legislative clerk read as follows:

The Senator from Oregon [Mr. WYDEN], for himself and Mr. SMITH of Oregon, proposes an amendment numbered 4060.

Mr. WYDEN. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent reading of the amendment be dispensed with.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The amendment is as follows:

(Purpose: To authorize with an offset, $4,800,000 for personnel and procurement for the Oregon Army National Guard for purposes of Search and Rescue (SAR) and Medical Evacuation (MEDEVAC) missions in adverse weather conditions)

At the end of subtitle A of title X, add the following:

SEC. 1010. AVAILABILITY OF AMOUNTS FOR OREGON ARMY NATIONAL GUARD FOR SEARCH AND RESCUE AND MEDICAL EVACUATION MISSIONS IN ADVERSE WEATHER CONDITIONS.

(a) INCREASE IN AUTHORIZATION OF APPROPRIATIONS FOR ARMY PROCUREMENT.—The amount authorized to be appropriated by section 101(1) for procurement for the Army for aircraft is hereby increased by $3,000,000.

(b) AVAILABILITY.—Of the amount authorized to be appropriated by section 101(1) for procurement for the Army for aircraft, as increased by subsection (a), $3,000,000 shall be available for the upgrade of three UH-60L Blackhawk helicopters of the Oregon Army National Guard to the capabilities of UH-60Q Search and Rescue model helicopters, including Star Safire FLIR, Breeze-Eastern External Rescue Hoist, and Air Methods COTS Medical Systems upgrades, in order to improve the utility of such UH-60L Blackhawk helicopters in search and rescue and medical evacuation missions in adverse weather conditions.

(c) INCREASE IN AUTHORIZATION OF APPROPRIATIONS FOR MILITARY PERSONNEL.—The amount authorized to be appropriated by section 421 for military personnel is hereby increased by $1,800,000.

(d) AVAILABILITY.—Of the amount authorized to be appropriated by section 421 for military personnel, as increased by subsection (c), $1,800,000 shall be available for up to 26 additional personnel for the Oregon Army National Guard.

(e) OFFSET.—The amount authorized to be appropriated by section 301(a)(1) for operation and maintenance for the Army is hereby reduced by $4,800,000, with the amount of the reduction to be allocated to Base Operations Support (Servicewide Support).

Mr. WYDEN. Mr. President, the Pacific Northwest must have a search and rescue capability. The vast expanses of Federal land in our part of the country mean our citizens constantly face the risk of disasters and accidents, far from help. Local communities, many of them with tiny populations, do not have the resources to provide search and rescue services to the extraordinarily large surrounding wilderness areas.

The amendment I offer this afternoon on behalf of myself and Senator SMITH is a compromise. It would not have been our first choice. In an effort to work with our colleagues and appeal to our colleagues on a bipartisan basis, we offer this compromise to preserve a search and rescue capability in our region. Without this capability, the Pacific Northwest faces the certain loss of lives for disasters, fires, and accidents that are unique to our region.

This amendment authorizes a total of $4.8 million to the Oregon National Guard to upgrade three Blackhawk helicopters of the National Oregon Guard to the capabilities of the UH-60Q search and rescue helicopters similar to upgrades in the past. It would increase the authorization for military personnel by $1.8 million to ensure the Oregon Guard can respond to emergencies that require rapid medical attention.

Particularly during this season we are concerned about the host of possibilities that can strike our local communities, tragedies we have already seen won in recent difficulties in our region. We cannot afford to play Russian roulette with the safety, health, and security of our citizens.

I urge my colleagues to support the Wyden-Smith amendment that we have worked on with both the majority and the minority for many days.

I reserve my time to speak later in the debate.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Oregon.

Mr. SMITH of Oregon. I thank my colleague for being a partner in this cause to preserve in the Pacific Northwest a search and rescue capability.

Mr. President, I rise today to introduce an amendment with Senator WYDEN to preserve a truly invaluable search and rescue capability in the Pacific Northwest.

On May 30, all eyes in Oregon and across the nation watched as brave Oregonians put themselves in harms way to rescue climbers on Mt. Hood.

The rescuers included members of the Oregon National Guard, the Portland Mountain Rescue, and the Air Force Reserve 939th Air Rescue Wing, whose members have been lauded for scores of rescues on Mt. Hood and the Oregon Coast, not to mention rescues in our neighboring state of Washington. In fact this rescue wing volunteers for these types of rescues.

Recently, nine climbers were swept into a 20-foot deep crevasse on Mt. Hood. Tragically, three of the climbers did not survive, but the skills of the rescuers ensured that others would survive.

This rescue highlighted the skills of the Rescue Wing and the importance Oregonians place on the Wing's capabilities in the region. While adverse wind conditions most likely sent one of the helicopters into an inevitable crash, the highly skilled pilot of the 939th ensured that the crew survived and that all on the ground were unharmed.

Just one week prior, the 939th rescued a sick climber from Mt. Hood's Sandy Glacier. I believe this rescue highlights the Wing's capabilities: Late in the evening, the 304th Rescue Squadron used its night vision capabilities to spot the climber at an elevation of 8,750 feet.

The Pave Hawk, equipped with a hoist, lowered down Steve Rollins of Portland Mountain Rescue onto the Glacier to assess the climber. After being secured to the hoist, the climber and rescuer were raised into the helicopter and transported to safety.

Mr. President, Oregonians were devastated to hear of Air Force plans to take away the 939th Search and Rescue Wing out of the state.

Oregonians realize that the 939th's mission is to rescue our brave men in combat. In fact, we believe that the members of the 939th are among the very best trained in the nation. We know this because we know the Oregon terrain and we have witnessed firsthand their skill under most challenging conditions.

My original amendment with Senator WYDEN would have prohibited the use of funds to take this search and rescue unit away from the Pacific Northwest. Senator WYDEN and I understand the committee members have a problem with this amendment and we therefore introduced another amendment that would not interfere with the Air Force's force structure.

The managers have told Senator WYDEN and me that they would support this compromise: it authorizes a total of $4.8 million for the Oregon National Guard to be able to perform this mission.

I appreciate the assistance from Senators WARNER, LEVIN, LOTT and STEVENS, and look forward to working with them on this important issue.

Mr. President, let me close by illustrating why this is so important to me and all Oregonians.

The pioneer spirit of the Oregon Trail did not end with the settlement of the valleys of Oregon. That spirit and bravery is very much still alive in my state.

But Oregonians cannot go any further west. They can only go up—into the skies and into the mountains. It is there that the modern-day pioneers meet with both triumph and tragedy, and their lessons are learned.

The lessons of last week on Mt. Hood are harsh one that remind us of human frailty and the unbending forces of nature.

Not unlike the tragic events of the last year, what I saw in the recovery on Mt. Hood also illustrates the bravery and compassion inherent in us all, and I want that spirit to continue in Oregon.

Mr. President, this is the spirit that is the bedrock of America's Armed Forces. It is clear to me that removing the 939th from Oregon would truly be a tragedy without a lesson.

Again, on May 30, Oregonians became aware of a unit called the 939th. Prior to that, very few Oregonians would have any idea it was there, even though throughout the year, every year, the 939th has saved people trapped in natural disasters or engaged in recreational activities or sometimes just going about their business.

Truly, what they saw on May 30 was a tragedy that unfolded on national television when nine hikers climbing Mount Hood lost footing, fell into a crevice in which a number of them were killed. Many different units, from police, the Oregon National Guard, and the Air Force 939th search and rescue, came to their rescue.

They volunteered to do this. The 939th is always training to be prepared to help in military situations. They say these real-life situations are truly the best training they can have. In the course of training, they have saved countless human lives.

About a year ago, Senator WYDEN and I were informed that the Air Force was to move the 939th from Oregon. I am not one to interfere with basing decisions of the Air Force. When this happened, it was clear to every Oregonian that we needed them. So Senator WYDEN and I tried to make the case a few weeks ago that they ought to stay. Senator MCCAIN of Arizona pointed out we should not be telling the Air Force where to base their people. I think he has a good point.

Senator WYDEN and I are offering a compromise to say, fine, let us have the upgrades in the helicopters. Let us have the personnel for the Oregon National Guard. By the way, these upgrades have been made available in most of the 50 States, but not Oregon. All we are saying is we need some military component in the Pacific Northwest. The 939th is going to Arizona. I do not begrudge that to my colleagues from Arizona. I love Arizona and I love my colleagues. My Udall ancestry is all from there and I want Arizonans to have all the search and rescue capability they need. But, doggone it, why take it from Oregon and say you cannot have any comparable replacement? We are talking peanuts here when it comes to issues of life and death.

So I plead with my colleagues to allow this authorization because the whole country had the case made for them on national TV when they saw this rescue effort tragically end in a crash but with no additional loss of human life.

I wish the 939th well as they go to Arizona. This $4.8 million that it takes to upgrade these helicopters and to provide some personnel is precious little to ask in an authorization as gargantuan as this. So I appeal to the hearts and the feelings of all 50 States. Don't leave the Pacific Northwest without this capacity.

I have the privilege of sitting in Mark Hatfield's seat. Mark Hatfield, for reasons of personal conscience, was not a big advocate of military expenditure. The military money went in other places. He brought other kinds of expenditures to Oregon, I grant you. But what little we have probably puts Oregon the 50th of 50 States in receiving military appropriations. I say $4.8 million is not too much to ask.

I yield the floor and ask for the consideration and votes of colleagues on both sides of the aisle.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Nevada.

Mr. REID. I have spoken to the proponents of this bill and Senators MCCAIN and KYL. I do not know how much more time the Senators from Oregon want. They originally told me they wanted about 10 minutes. I think they used about that. The Senators from Arizona indicated they would take about 15 minutes, 20 at the most—10 for Senator KYL and Senator MCCAIN, in reverse order.

I am not asking unanimous consent at this time, but I hope that would be about all we need to talk on this amendment. We will have a vote on it. We were very close at one time to final passage. We will propound some unanimous consent requests in the near future, but I am indicating to Senators, maybe there will not be too much more talk on this?

Mr. WYDEN. Will the Senator yield?

Mr. REID. I am happy to yield.

Mr. WYDEN. It is not clear to me what the Senators from Arizona intend. Certainly I understand the desire of the distinguished Senator from Nevada to move expeditiously. I think both of us will try to do that.

Mr. MCCAIN. If the Senator will yield, I say to Senator REID we are going to have to, because of a previous unanimous consent agreement, get unanimous consent to allow a second-degree amendment to be considered. That would have to be the first order for us, to be able to get that.

Mr. REID. I understand.

Mr. MCCAIN. We were seeking that because we were under the impression, clearly a false one, that the Wyden-Smith amendment would be ruled, postcloture, nongermane. The Wyden-Smith amendment is germane so we had wanted to propose a second-degree amendment. If one of the Senators from Oregon objects, then obviously we hear the objection.

Could I be recognized, Mr. President?

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. CARPER). The Senator from Arizona.

Mr. MCCAIN. I ask unanimous consent a second-degree amendment on behalf of myself and Senator KYL, to the Smith amendment, be taken up at this time.

Mr. WYDEN. I object.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Objection is heard.

Mr. MCCAIN. Mr. President, I regret Senator WYDEN chooses to take what I think is an unwise course because I have to tell Senator WYDEN now that I will fight in the conference—and I will be a conferee—to have it either amended as we want it done or to take it out completely.

I think I may have the support of my colleagues because it really is unreasonable of Senator WYDEN to object because it was clear, and everybody is clear, that we were under the impression that the amendment was non-germane. We would have filed a second-degree amendment if it had been germane.

I do not question the choice of the Senator from Oregon, but I can assure the Senator from Oregon that, No. 1, Senator KYL and I could care less whether it went to Arizona or Alaska or New Jersey. I have steadfastly opposed micromanaging any of the services.

By the way—Senator KYL is going to want to talk about this a little bit—it is up to $69,000 per person we are going to expend on this, which is quite a remarkable expense that they have.

Second, if the Oregon National Guard wants to spend money, let them take it out of their existing funds. They are perfectly capable, under their budgetary and decisionmaking process, to make a decision that they want to upgrade their aircraft with the existing funds that they have.

I do not think Senator KYL and I would demand a vote on this. I will leave it up to Senator KYL. But I assure Senator WYDEN I would not have treated him in the same fashion. But I yield the floor.

Mr. WYDEN. Will the Senator yield?

Mr. MCCAIN. I have already yielded the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Oregon.

Mr. WYDEN. Mr. President, I want to make clear how extensive the efforts have been on the part of Senator SMITH and myself to work with the Senator from Arizona, to work with all of our colleagues on this issue. We have tried again and again. The distinguished Senator—

Mr. MCCAIN. Will the Senator yield on that point? Has the Senator ever said a word directly to me about his amendment?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator has the floor.

Mr. WYDEN. If I might finish? The fact is, we have come to the distinguished Senator from Arizona and discussed this several times. In fact, we discussed it at some length the night the Senator was unwilling to support another bipartisan effort to reach out to the distinguished Senator. I want to make it clear, I think he knows—

Mr. MCCAIN. Will the Senator yield on that point? Will the Senator yield on that point?

Mr. WYDEN. I will be glad to yield as soon as I finish.

Mr. MCCAIN. I didn't think he would.

Mr. WYDEN. I will be happy to yield to my colleague. As he knows from our work on the Senate Commerce Committee, I worked with the Senator from Arizona again and again because I appreciate his counsel and his wisdom. Yes, we have talked about this subject. We talked about it, in fact, the night that Senator SMITH and I tried another effort to come up with a bipartisan approach that would satisfy the Senator from Arizona. Today, we do feel that we have to go forward and protect our constituents.

People in Arizona are, in fact, going to be protected. As Senator SMITH said, the 939th is going to go to Arizona. That means the two Senators from Arizona, both of whom I value as good friends and worked with on many subjects, are going to have protection for their constituents.

What we have said is, now that Arizona is going to be protected, let us try another approach, an approach that is not injurious to the Senators from Arizona, so that our citizens, in an area where there are vast amounts of Federal land and great risks for our citizens, can also be protected. So it is in that context that I seek to have this move forward today in conjunction with Senator SMITH.

Finally, as I yield to my good friend from Arizona, I want to say to him that I will continue to work with him on this issue and virtually everything else that conceivably comes before the U.S. Senate because I value his input and his counsel.

We have worked together on a whole host of questions. Now, if the Senator from Arizona desires me to yield to him, I am glad to yield to the distinguished Senator.

Mr. MCCAIN. I thank my friend from Oregon. The fact is I have never had a direct conversation with the Senator from Oregon on this issue. He knows it and I know it.

Mr. WYDEN. I have to reclaim my time to say that is factually wrong. The night we tried to have the compromise, we in fact talked about it on several occasions.

Now I am happy to yield further to the Senator from Arizona.

Mr. MCCAIN. I yield the floor, Mr. President.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Arizona.

Mr. KYL. Let me say, first of all, it gives me no great pleasure to oppose an amendment offered by two of my best friends in the Senate, one Republican and one Democrat, good colleagues with whom we have worked on a lot of things.

This is not a matter of Arizona v. Oregon. It came to my attention on the night the senior Senator from Oregon was mentioning that there was an objection to the inclusion of an item in the managers' amendment to the supplemental appropriations bill which a number of Senators—Senator GRAMM of Texas, our colleague Senator MCCAIN, and I believe some others in this part of the Chamber were going through the managers' amendment to the supplemental appropriations bill. We objected to a whole variety of amendments which attempted to either spend money or micromanage money in ways inappropriate in our view at that time.

That is when this matter first came to my attention because a Member of the other side mentioned to me there was a managers' relating to the State of Arizona. Naturally, I was curious when I saw that the Air Force's 939th unit was going to be moved from Oregon to Arizona and that the amendment of the Senator from Oregon would have stopped that. I didn't know about it at the time. We objected to that and a variety of other things because we believed it was inappropriate to be on the supplemental appropriations bill.

Now our colleagues from Oregon have determined that they should not interfere with the movement of that unit to Arizona. But they want to make up for its loss through the amendment they are presenting here—I think that is a fair way to present it—as a result of which they want to take $3 million from the Army's active-duty operations and maintenance account for upgrades of helicopters; $3 million will be spent for procurement of helicopters and $1.8 million for the 26 Oregon National Guard personnel.

If I am incorrect, correct me. I believe those numbers are correct.

The fact that I don't view this as Arizona v. Oregon is illustrated by the fact that the unit will move to Arizona, and Arizona is no worse off.

I speak on this matter having nothing in terms of a parochial interest involved but, rather, because I have taken President Bush and Secretary Rumsfeld at their word. And Senator MCCAIN and I have worked for many months—in fact, a number of years, even before President Bush came into office—trying to preserve as much in the way of funding for our military as possible to be spent in an efficient way and not be wasted.

It is one reason we both support and are cosponsors of the base closing amendment, notwithstanding the fact that it jeopardizes at least one or maybe two Air Force bases. In at least one round, we had a major base closed. We are willing to take that risk for the State of Arizona because we believe we are United States Senators and we have an interest first to protect the United States of America and to protect our constituents to the extent we can. But when it comes to national security and national defense, we don't play around with it. I don't put parochial interests ahead of the interests of America in its defense.

When the President says, I don't have enough money for defense and I have to spend every nickel we get in the wisest possible way, and when the Secretary of Defense says, I am going to husband these resources and allocate them in the following way, then I don't think it is a good idea for Congress to say, because we want something for our home State, we are going to take money out of the Army's active-duty operations and maintenance account—almost $5 million—and put it into our State because we want a search and rescue mission for people who get into trouble in our beautiful mountains.

That is not right. I have no doubt that the local communities around Mount Hood and some of these other areas may not have the tax base to pay for this themselves. But the State of Oregon is on television—I have seen the ads, and they look great because they happen in the prettiest country in the world. You see the ads: "Come to Oregon"—I believe it is. I won't give the exact quotation of the ad. But they are very effective ads.

There is a great deal to come to Oregon for. Their beautiful mountains are part of that. If the State of Oregon, I think, with its multimillion-dollar budget—over a billion-dollar State budget—has enough money to urge people to come to the State of Oregon to enjoy its beauties, then I think they also have the ability to provide for their safety when they are there if $4.8 million is the difference; in other words, to provide some mechanism for the State to be sure people needing rescue on the side of a mountain could be rescued.

I have no idea what this unit is going to be doing in Arizona. We don't have big, beautiful snowcaps. We have a couple of them, but not the same kind of tourist attractions as the mountains in Oregon. The training, I believe, could be for the number of illegal aliens who come across the border to be rescued. About 50 or 60 have died already this year. Maybe that is what they intend to do. But I don't know. That is really, in a way, beside the point.

Neither State, nor any other State, should be seeking to take active-duty account money from the Defense Department and using it for what is a parochial need. I don't say parochial in a negative sense, but a local need, a need that could be satisfied by the people of the State.

That is reason for our opposition. It is not an Arizona v. Oregon issue, as the Senator from Oregon was himself being very clear. We don't believe we should be micromanaging the military, let alone taking money from the active-duty accounts.

I regret we are not able to offer the second-degree amendment because that would have prevented this, in effect. But it would require people from Oregon to make some choices about the $9 million we just added last night in this bill for Oregon. They will be able to move that money around and make the choices themselves as to where they want to get the funding. But it wouldn't have to come from active-duty accounts.

I hope if this amendment is adopted—I urge my colleagues not to allow it to be adopted—that there will be some discussion along the lines the Senator from Oregon was alluding to earlier. I don't think at the end of the day, as it is going right now, this is going to result in a conclusion that will be desirable from the standpoint of our colleagues from Oregon.

I appreciate what they are trying to do. Again, it gives me no pleasure to oppose them. But I think, if we have any concern at all about our active-duty troops, if we have any concern about spending money wisely, and keeping U.S. Federal military missions focused on our military and not the parochial needs of individual States to rescue people who may get into trouble, we should keep our eye on that ball, vote against this amendment, and allow the Defense Department to spend the money the way it wants to and help the State of Oregon get its funding in some other way.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Oregon.

Mr. SMITH of Oregon. Mr. President, I would like to tell the Senator exactly what the 939th will do in Arizona. They will train. They will look for opportunities to help in a civic way to be relevant to the people of Arizona and to rescue them because they want to be ready for combat situations. So they are going to look for opportunities to save the lives of Arizonians. God bless them in that effort.

What is the Defense budget? Probably $300 billion which we are going to vote for, and we are talking about $4.8 million.

I think what is really lost in my friends' comments is the role of the National Guard and the national defense. It is growing. It is not declining. National Guard people are looking all the time to do the same thing as the Air Force's 939th unit.

To suggest that somehow the Oregon National Guard is irrelevant to the national defense is just demonstrably false. As we speak, there are many Oregon National Guard units in Bosnia, Kosovo, and Afghanistan. They are deployed. I think the National Guard's role is growing. It is not diminishing.

To have these kinds of capacities, which many other States have, in Oregon is entirely reasonable, and it is entirely fair. I don't begrudge the Air Force moving the 939 to Arizona.

I am not sure I am very comfortable hearing that out of $300 billion, the Air Force can't allow $4.8 million for the State of Oregon when Oregonians are taxpayers too. We contribute to the national defense, and we get less in defense dollars than probably any State in America. Is that right? I say it is wrong. I say we ought to get some help here today on the floor of the Senate.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Oregon.

Mr. WYDEN. Mr. President, I wish to pick up on a remark of the Senator from Arizona. Again, he knows how much I enjoy working with him. We have worked together on the forest fires and a whole host of issues that are important.

I wish to address my friend's comments with respect to the contribution Oregon makes to our national security and why Senator SMITH and I see this as being important to our military and why it is a very constructive expenditure as it relates to the military.

For example, my colleague from Arizona said our State does not have high mountains. Well, the State of Oregon does. The State of Oregon—and we are very proud of them—have many high mountains. Those high mountains are part of a very good training ground for our military.

The Department of Defense has consistently said—as both of the Senators from Arizona know because they are very knowledgeable in military policy—that we ought to, as a nation, be strengthening our search and rescue capability.

I think my good friend, Senator KYL, has pointed out one of the aspects that Arizona lacks and with which Oregon can assist, and that is training as it relates to dealing with rescues from high mountains. The fact is, the people in the Northwest have been trained to rescue men and women wounded in combat. The value to our Nation of having this national training ground and this capability is a central reason why we are in support of this effort.

I am very hopeful that our colleagues will approve our bipartisan amendment.

I want to wrap up by way of saying I certainly do not consider this an Oregon against Arizona kind of battle. I am going to continue to work with both of my colleagues on this issue, but it seems to me that when we have tried to be considerate of the State of Arizona throughout this process, we would just hope that our colleagues would be willing to address these concerns that our constituents have, especially when we are showing that the contribution that Oregonians make is a contribution that advances our national security, advances our military well-being, and particularly makes a contribution that Senator KYL has said cannot be made in terms of training people in Arizona.

Mr. President, I yield at this time and reserve the right to respond to comments that might be made further.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Arizona.

Mr. McCAIN. Mr. President, the Pentagon says: The Pacific Northwest will continue to have a "very robust rescue capability." There are 109 rescue-capable helicopters in the Pacific Northwest and units on alert in Salem and Astoria. Assets include CH-47s on alert for high-altitude rescue, recovered mishap HH-60. Long-range, over-water missions are covered by the California Air National Guard.

In summary:

The Pacific Northwest will continue to have a very robust search and rescue force even after the assets from the 939th wing are moved to active duty units.

I have to tell the Senator from Oregon, the 939th is moving to active duty units in Arizona. It will not be practicing on civilians. There are two major bases in Arizona: Luke Air Force Base and Davis Monthan Air Force Base. They will be there ready to conduct search and rescue missions in case those many training flights that take place from both those bases suffer a mishap. That is what they will be doing.

They will also be patrolling our border from time to time because, as Jon said, people have died crossing the desert. But their primary mission will be to support the flight operations out of two major Air Force bases.

Mr. SMITH of Oregon. Will my colleague yield?

Mr. McCAIN. Sure.

Mr. SMITH of Oregon. I say to my friend—and I really mean that—you made my point. They will be focused on military missions. They will volunteer for these real-life rescue missions. They will save people in the desert.

Mr. McCAIN. They won't volunteer.

Mr. SMITH of Oregon. They do volunteer. That is what they do in Oregon.

Mr. McCAIN. They are an active duty unit now when they move.

Mr. SMITH of Oregon. All the helicopters you just named—all those helicopters—we are just asking them to get the upgrade. Other States have received them. We have not.

Mr. McCAIN. I thank my colleague.

We have probably wasted way too much of the Senate's time on this issue.

One, the administration opposes it. And the Army opposes it. The Army says, you are taking the money out of the U.S. Army's operating funds, which they badly need. According to them, insufficient infrastructure funding decreases readiness. They do not have enough money. And now you are going to take the money out of operations and maintenance for our active duty men and women—active duty men and women—in the military, and you are going to move it to the Guard.

All we are saying is—if you and your colleague would have allowed us—take the money out of the Guard units; shift it around to your own priorities in the National Guard. That seems eminently fair to me.

The Guard is very well funded. You are talking about the overall funding. The Guard is very well funded as well. I am not going to take too much more time on this.

The administration opposes it. The Army opposes it. We oppose it. It is something, frankly, that is unnecessary. To have this kind of transfer of funds, when our active duty military is already very short of funds, I think is a mistake.

Again, I think we could have solved this very easily with a second-degree amendment, if it had been allowed, that the money would have been taken out of existing Guard funds. Then you could upgrade it or do whatever you wanted to with Guard funds instead of taking it away from the men and women in the military.

I will tell the Senator from Oregon, there are too many people living in barracks that were built during the Korean war. There are too many people who are on active duty who have insufficient housing, lifestyles, quarters, and other basic amenities of life. And we are an all-volunteer force.

You are taking the money from the active duty personnel in order to satisfy what your perceived needs are of the Guard in the State of Oregon. I do not think that is fair to the active duty men and women in the military.

I yield the floor. And I don't think we have any further debate.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Oregon.

Mr. WYDEN. Mr. President, just to be very brief, with regard to the amount of time the Guard has spent overseas, they might as well be active duty people. These are people who have served our country with extraordinary valor all over the world. They could just as well be called active duty military.

I hope our colleagues support this bipartisan amendment.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The question is on agreeing to amendment No. 4060.

The amendment (No. 4060) was agreed to.

Mr. LEVIN. Mr. President, we have one amendment which has been cleared.

Mr. WARNER. Mr. President, do we have that amendment reconsidered and tabled?

Mr. REID. I move to reconsider the vote.

Mr. WARNER. I move to lay that motion on the table.

The motion to lay on the table was agreed to.

AMENDMENT NO. 4077, AS MODIFIED

Mr. LEVIN. Mr. President, I call up amendment No. 4077, on behalf of Senators MILLER and CLELAND, and send a modification of the amendment to the desk.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection to the amendment being modified?

Mr. WARNER. There is no objection.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The clerk will report.

The legislative clerk read as follows:

The Senator from Michigan [Mr. LEVIN], for Mr. MILLER, for himself and Mr. CLELAND, proposes an amendment numbered 4077, as modified.

Mr. LEVIN. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent reading of the amendment be dispensed with.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The amendment, as modified, is as follows:

(Purpose: To authorize $1,900,000 for procurement for the Marine Corps for upgrading live fire range target movers and to bring live fire range radio controls into compliance with Federal Communications Commission narrow band requirements)

In subtitle C of title I, strike "(reserved)" and insert the following:

SEC. 121. MARINE CORPS LIVE FIRE RANGE IMPROVEMENTS.

(a) INCREASE IN AUTHORIZATION OF APPROPRIATIONS.—The amount authorized to be appropriated by section 102(b) for procurement for the Marine Corps is hereby increased by $1,900,000, with the amount of the increase to be allocated to Training Devices.

(b) AVAILABILITY.—(1) Of the amount authorized to be appropriated by section 102(b) for procurement for the Marine Corps, as increased by subsection (a), $1,900,000 shall be available as follows:

(A) For upgrading live fire range target movers.

(B) To bring live fire range radio controls into compliance with Federal Communications Commission narrow band requirements.

(2) Amounts available under paragraph (1) for the purposes set forth in that paragraph are in addition to any other amounts available in this Act for such purposes.

(c) OFFSETTING REDUCTION.—The amount authorized to be appropriated by section 103(1) for the C-17 interim contractor support is reduced by $1,900,000.

Mr. LEVIN. Mr. President, this amendment, as modified, would add, with an offset, $1.9 million for buying upgrades for Marine Corps training devices to support live-fire training and live-fire range control systems.

I believe the amendment has been cleared.

Mr. WARNER. Mr. President, the chairman is correct.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, the amendment, as modified, is agreed to.

The amendment (No. 4077), as modified, was agreed to.

Mr. LEVIN. I move to reconsider the vote.

Mr. WARNER. I move to lay that motion on the table.

The motion to lay on the table was agreed to.

Mr. REID. Mr. President, I renew my previous unanimous consent request.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection?

Mr. WARNER. Our Republican leader has reviewed this and approves it.

Mr. REID. It is two pages long. I did not want to read it again. It is spread on the RECORD. I send a copy of it to the desk in case there is any misunderstanding.

I ask approval of the unanimous consent request.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection?

Hearing none, it is so ordered.

Mr. REID. Mr. President, we are going to have the vote on final passage at 3:15. As most know, Secretary Rumsfeld is going to be here at 2:45 for a short period of time. But that will give everyone time to visit with him. Then we would start a vote at 3:15.

NUNN-LUGAR EXPANSION ACT

Mr. LUGAR. Mr. President, I rise today to engage in a colloquy with the chairman of the Armed Services Committee, Senator LEVIN, and the chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee, Senator BIDEN, to discuss the legislative intent of the Nunn-Lugar Expansion Act.

I appreciate Chairman LEVIN's strong support for my bill. Under his leadership the Armed Services Committee adopted the bill and included it as section 1203 of the fiscal year 2003 Authorization bill. Furthermore, Chairman BIDEN is a cosponsor of the bill and his support is critical to the successful implementation of the nonproliferation authorities provided to the Secretary of Defense.

Section 1203 seeks to capitalize on the unique nonproliferation asset the Nunn-Lugar Program has created at the Department of Defense. An impressive cadre of talented scientists, technicians, negotiators, and managers has been assembled by the Defense Department to implement non-proliferation programs and to respond to proliferation emergencies. Equally impressive credentials are held by other agencies such as the Department of Energy, State Department, and Nuclear Regulatory Commission. Section 1203 acknowledges the unique skills held by various agencies and seeks to broaden the President's menu of response options. Our legislation rejects a "one size fits all" response and provides another department with the authorization to respond to a proliferation threat.

As the United States and our allies have sought to address the threats posed by terrorism and weapons of mass destruction in the aftermath of September 11, we have come to the realization that, in many cases, we lack an appropriate assortment of tools to address these threats. Beyond Russia and other states of the former Soviet Union, Nunn-Lugar-style cooperative threat reduction programs aimed at weapons dismantlement and counterproliferation do not exist. The ability to apply the Nunn-Lugar model to states outside the former Soviet Union would provide our President with another tool to confront the threats associated with weapons of mass destruction.

If the President determines that we must move more quickly than traditional consultation procedures allow, the legislation provides that authority to launch emergency operations. We must not allow a proliferation or WMD threat to "go critical" because we lacked the foresight to empower the President to respond with a variety of options.

In the former Soviet Union the value of being able to respond to proliferation emergencies has been clearly demonstrated. Under Nunn-Lugar the U.S. has undertaken time-sensitive missions like Project Sapphire in Kazabstan and Operation Auburn Endeavor in Georgia that have kept highly vulnerable weapons and materials of mass destruction from being proliferated. But these endeavors have also illustrated the inherent problems of the inter-agency process in addressing time sensitive threats. We have seen on more than one occasion that teams of lawyers haggling over agency prerogatives and turf have delayed responses to critical threats. We must not allow this to continue. We cannot permit the intersection of terrorism and weapons of mass destruction.

This type of scenario does not mean Congress will abandon its oversight responsibilities or the Administration should be continue and coordinate its actions to ensure the most seamless and effective response. Section 1203 requires extensive reporting requirements if action is taken under emergency circumstances. Furthermore, this legislation is not a blank check. We expect this legislation to be implemented with close consultation between relevant agencies. But at the same time, the legislative authority provided therein enables the President to avoid inter-agency logjams that would retard urgent American action.

Mr. BIDEN. I am delighted to join with my dear friend and colleague, Senator LUGAR, in supporting section 1203 of this bill. The Nunn-Lugar program and the several nonproliferation programs that have developed over the last decade were born in the need to secure excess weapons and dangerous materials and technology in the former Soviet Union. They have not yet fully achieved that objective, but they have accomplished far more than anybody other than Senators NUNN and LUGAR foresaw a decade ago. The record of former Soviet weapons and materials secured and destroyed, and of former weapons scientists given useful and honorable work, is a testament to the importance of positive incentives in foreign and strategic policy.

Proliferation is a worldwide threat, and there are sensitive materials and technology in many countries. Section 1203 is rightly designed to permit Nunn-Lugar activities the former Soviet Union, when there are opportunities to ensure that sensitive materials will never be acquired by rogue status of terrorists.

I am pleased that Senator LUGAR spoke of the need to give the President the authority to act in such cases. The current language of section 1203 could be construed to permit the Secretary of Defense to pursue such opportunities on his own, absent specific direction from the President. In my view, that might invite the Secretary of Defense to initiate sensitive foreign activities without the knowledge or support of the Secretary of State. I understand that this was not the intent of the managers, Senator LUGAR, or cosponsors of this bill. Because this was clearly not the intent, I understand the managers will work to clarify the language of section 1203 in conference so as to make clear that the authority to order these operations resides in the President, not in the Secretary of Defense. That will be a very useful contribution, and I commend them for it. I understand also that the conferees will make clear that the authority to draw funds from other programs will extend only to other Department of Defense programs, and I appreciate that clarification.

I would hope that the managers of the bill would also see fit to broaden the list of receipts of the reports required by section 1203. The Foreign Relations Committees of Congress have a legitimate interest in knowing when sensitive non-proliferation programs are to be instituted overseas. I understand that this concern will be kept in mind in conference, and I thank the managers for that courtesy.

Mr. LEVIN. I want to thank the sponsors of the legislation that was included as section 1203 in the fiscal year 2003 National Defense Authorization bill for bringing this matter to my attention. Of course the responsibility to initiate and expand the type of activities provided for in section 1203 of the bill rests ultimately with the President. As you are the original sponsors of this provision, I will honor your request and will urge the conferees to make the needed changes during the conference process.

THE PRICE-ANDERSON ACT

Mr. SMITH of New Hampshire. Mr. President, in March of this year, when we passed the energy bill, Senator VOINOVICH offered an amendment to reauthorize the Price-Anderson Act that passed overwhelmingly 78-21. The Price-Anderson Act expires on August 1, 2002. This act sets up a system of insurance and indemnification to protect the public against losses stemming from nuclear accidents. It has served the nation well since the 1950s and has been reauthorized three times. Price-

Anderson has been amended over the years so that the utility industry that operates nuclear reactors is charged premiums for this insurance. The private Department of Energy (DOE) contractors that are involved in strategic weapons production, clean up of national security sites, nuclear research and technology, as well as other related national priorities are indemnified by the government. In keeping with the directions in the current law both the DOE and the Nuclear Regulatory Commission (NRC) have issued reports urging renewal. The provisions of the Voinovich amendment to the energy bill to reauthorize this legislation were crafted in consonance with these reports. In the Defense authorization bill we are now considering, there is a provision to only renew the authority for the private DOE contractors. There is strong justification for doing so, since a lapse in the authority will affect important cleanup and defense programs as I mentioned before. Private industry must be indemnified properly before undertaking these important national projects. Reauthorization is vital to national defense and must be considered on "must do" legislation such as the defense bill. However, the NRC provision of Price-Anderson, one that falls under the jurisdiction of the Environment & Public Works Committee, is not included in this bill. Historically, in the reauthorization of Price-Anderson, we have never separated the DOE contractor provision from the NRC licensee provision. The three previous renewals of Price-Anderson have extended both the DOE and NRC portions of the Act at the same time for identical time periods. As the ranking member of the Environment & Public Works Committee and as a senior member of the Armed Services Committee, it was my hope that we could ensure that these two provisions of Price-Anderson be moved through the legislative process as one package, and not be separated. Due to the need of keeping non-military provisions off of the Defense Authorization bill while the bill is under consideration by the Senate, adding the NRC provision of Price-Anderson will not be possible at this time. However, it is certainly the hope of this Senator that the DOE and the NRC provisions of Price-Anderson remain on as close of a parallel legislative tracks as is possible, however that can be accomplished.

Mr. INHOFE. I am in complete agreement with my colleague. Should we let this authority lapse, it will jeopardize national security programs. Therefore, we must act in this bill with the provisions that cover the private DOE contractors. However, we must try to get the entire act renewed as recommended by the administration and the agencies that have help to develop, modify and oversee its activities over the past nearly half century that have served us so well. I strongly believe that it vital to pass full and comprehensive reauthorization of the Price-Anderson Act. The law has worked well and has been considered a model in other countries. It insures against terrorism against the plants and has been studied in an attempt to help fashion the terrorism insurance recently passed in this body. I would urge that we do what we can in this body to get Price-Anderson renewed in the most expeditious fashion. I want to thank my colleagues on both the Armed Services Committee and the Environment and Public Works Committee, of which I am the ranking member of the Nuclear Subcommittee, and I look forward to working with them so that we may pass comprehensive Price-Anderson reauthorization during the 107th Congress.

Mr. VOINOVICH. I Thank my colleagues for their commitment to this issue that is of the utmost national importance. I add my support to the idea that we should keep the pieces of this legislation together. I certainly agree that we should make certain that our private DOE contractors do not experience a protracted lapse in authority that will surely delay the implementation of important programs. But I want to point out that energy security and national security are very much related, and both are integral parts of our overall economic security. Nuclear power, science and technology are vital to this country. Nuclear generation provides 20 percent of our electricity and is the largest contributor to avoiding emissions. If we are to meet the future demands for electricity we will have to build more nuclear plants to augment the present fleet. All over the world, nations are considering building new nuclear facilities. The current administration wants to move forward with new plants that use new, more efficient nuclear technologies that reduce the volume of spent fuel and have even more safety features than the current plants which have unparalleled safety records. The original law was put together to support both aspects of nuclear operations. They have worked very well together. I would agree with my fellow Senators who have just spoken on this matter. I was proud to have introduced the original Price-Anderson reauthorization bill and was very pleased when the Senate voted overwhelming to include my Price-Anderson amendment on the energy bill. It is important that we reauthorize the entirety of this statute and I look forward to continuing to work with my fellow Senators to ensure that the Price-Anderson Act is reauthorized this Congress.

Mr. WARNER. I agree with my colleagues that reauthorization of Price-Anderson, both for DOE contractors and for NRC licensees is a priority for the Nation. I am hopeful that these two provisions to extend Price-Anderson will soon be enacted into law.

Mr. ALLARD. Mr. President, we just passed an amendment which will require the Missile Defense Agency to provide yet another report. While we accepted this amendment, I believe it is redundant and wasteful.

The criticism of MDA for classifying information on targets and countermeasures for future missile defense tests has been surprising, at best. The Missile Defense Agency (MDA) informed us some time ago that such information would be classified as testing becomes more sophisticated.

From the last three successful long-range intercept test successes, MDA has begun a progressive and more rigorous testing program to evaluate emerging and evolving technologies. These technologies include countermeasure to missile defenses that our adversaries might use and the means MDA devises to overcome those countermeasures. MDA has laid in a structure and process to identify likely or possible countermeasures and to assess their potential effectiveness; and to identify and assess possible counter-countermeasures.

I can't resist noting that the majority has cut about half the funding for this function in its missile defense proposals in this bill. I think if they were that concerned about countermeasures, perhaps they wouldn't have made this cut.

After MDA has identified these countermeasures, it designs and builds them. That's the only way MDA can test against them. Detailed knowledge of ballistic missile defense countermeasures techniques—techniques that we may be developing ourselves to test the strengths and weakness of our missile defense systems—could lead our adversaries to develop capabilities that can defeat our systems.

I don't believe anyone wants to reveal information that might compromise our security. We should not share information on targets and countermeasures with the likes of Iran, Iraq, and North Korea.

I fully concur with those who believe that Congress should have access to all relevant information related to missile defense tests. MDA has assured me that it will provide us with this information. All members, and staff with appropriate clearances, will have access to this information. Indeed, staff received classified information related to targets and countermeasures prior to the last long-range missile defense test.

To those who suggest that this move is designed to disguise or hide missile defense test failures, I would note that test successes or failures really can't be hidden.

Congress will have access to all the information, classified or otherwise. Not all information will be classified.

it will be clear to the public whether the interceptor hit the target or not. Classification may actually make it harder for MDA to demonstrate success to the public because it can't make details of the test public. Details of almost all military tests are classified. Have we ever explained to our adversaries how to defeat stealth technologies? Why would we do so with missile defense technology?

The decision to classify this information meets the criteria of Executive order 12958 that guides all DOD agencies in decisions on these matters. This executive order notes that information can be classified if it relates to "military plans, weapons systems, or operations" and "vulnerabilities or capabilities of systems. . . relating to the national security"; or if release of the information could reasonably be expected to "reveal information that would assist in the development or use of weapons of mass destruction."

I believe MDA countermeasures and targets information qualifies in all three categories.

Is classification premature? I don't think so. We hope to have early missile defense capabilities in the field in the not too distant future. These capabilities will be based on test assets. Publicly revealing the weaknesses of our test systems to our adversaries simply doesn't make any sense.

At this time, I would also like to make a few more points regarding the original cuts made by the Majority to the missile defense programs.

While I am very happy that the $814 million cut was restored by the Warner/Allard amendment, I am concerned that there is confusion that the second degree amendment in some way reflects that this Senate believes that the President does not have the flexibility to spend the money as he fits between missile defense and counter-terrorism. As a matter of fact, according to the Office of Management and Budget, as well as the chairman, the second degree amendment does not preclude the President from deciding where to spend the money—missile defense or counter-terrorism. And that is certainly my understanding, as well as the ranking member of the Armed Service Committee.

One of the major criticisms stated by the majority is the expenditure rates for Ballistic Missile Defense projects, particularly the rate of expenditure in the BMD System program element.

The Missile Defense Agency is attempting to develop a single integrated ballistic missile defense system capable of attacking missiles of varying ranges in all phases of flight and defeating missiles of all ranges.

Thus MDA has shifted from an element-centric approach with a focus on THAAD, PAC-3, NTW, NMD etc., to a system-centric approach that knits each of the elements into an integrated whole. The goal is to develop a seamless tool-kit of sensors, shooters, platforms battle management, and command and control assets that function as a single integrated BMD system.

Critical to this refocusing are integration efforts to tie disparate BMD projects into a coordinated whole. The BMD System program element is key to success in the endeavor.

But the chairman seems to argue that some funding will be left over at the end of fiscal year 2002 and thus not all the funding requested for fiscal year 2003 will be needed.

I strongly disagree and several points need to be made.

The 2002 budget was approved late. The FY 2002 defense authorization act wasn't signed until January of this year, at the end of the first quarter of the fiscal year. MDA projects—and all other DOD projects—were late in getting FY 2002 funds.

The expenditures that the chairman cited are already out of date. The figures he used were the expenditure figures from March 31, less than three months after MDA started receiving 2002 funds. The figure updated for the end of April is already about $100 million.

The end of year expenditure projection for this program element is about half the funds appropriated. More than 90 percent will be obligated. These figures are well within expected ranges.

I have the Missile Defense Agency projections for all their major project activities. All appear to be within expected ranges.

It is also very important to remember that the funding request in the BMD System program element is all R&D money. R&D funding is available for obligation for two years and available for expenditure until disbursed or rescinded. Congress provides extended availability for R&D funding specifically to help assure funding stability and planning and contractual flexibility.

If we accept the argument that we can cut funding in this program element because MDA will have Fiscal Year 02 funds left over, we have to accept the argument that the whole rationale for providing extended availability for R&D funding is flawed. We may as well go ahead and cut all R&D programs that have any funding left over from the previous year.

I don't think any one believes we should do that.

Citing an outdated expenditure figure for this program element so early in the fiscal year is simply misleading and I believe misguided.

Another concern I had with the Majority's cuts was the $147 million reduction in program operations. This reduction may sound mundane but is critical to the success of the programs.

The majority has justified the cuts on grounds that the funding is redundant and excessive. The committee report notes that program operations are adequately funded in each Missile Defense Agency project and the program operations funds justified in separate lines in each program element simply aren't needed. So the Armed Services Committee bill cuts each and every one of these funding lines.

But this justification is simply wrong. It is simply mistaken to state that the funding for program operation is redundant to funding elsewhere in the MDA budget. Not only is it mistaken, this funding reduction is extraordinarily damaging to the Missile Defense Agency.

What are "program operations?" Program operations are people. They provide the basic support for any program. They provide information technology support—the computer support people. They provide communications support. They provide security. They provide contract support. They support basic infrastructure and facilities.

It is true that this work is done at the project level. The THAAD project funds program operations unique to the THAAD project. Each MDA projects fund program operations unique to that project.

But the simple fact is that the program operations funds in each project are not used for same purposes as the funds that have been cut in Armed Services Committee bill. The funds cut by the Committee bill are not for activities unique to any particular project. They are for common program support.

The funds identified in the MDA budget for program operations will be used to support government and contractors for common program support at Missile Defense Agency Headquarters and for the service executive agents for missile defense programs. The Missile Defense Agency is required by law—Section 251 (d) of the Fiscal Year 1996 National Defense Authorization Act to request these funds in separate program elements.

This bill cuts almost all of this funding—$147 million of $185 million requested, or nearly 80 percent.

What does this cut do?

This reduction cuts nearly 1,000 people who provide basic support for Missile Defense Agency projects and activities. Army Space and Missile Defense Command will lose almost 400 people. The Army Program Executive Office for Air and Missile Defense will lose another 60. Missile Defense Agency Headquarters will lose around 400. The Navy and Air Force will lose about 75.

Heres how MDA describes the impact:

The majority of Army SMDC and Army PEO-AMD staffs would be eliminated.

Air Force and Navy organizations responsible for centralized management and/or sharing of common program management costs would be eliminated.

All contract support at MDA for program operations would be eliminated; computer center and thus computers shut down; no security (technical or physical), no staffing for supply/mail room, cleaning, and facility maintenance; no contractor support for common acquisition management functions performed by MDA, e.g. contracting, financial management, cost estimating, human resources.

That is an incredible hit on any organization.

Could MDA recover by redirecting funds to cover these functions? If these cuts survive the process, MDA would have to move money into activities in direct contravention of Congressional intent which is usually a pretty bad idea.

But even if MDA were to try use project funds to perform these program-wide activities, the agency would be in the position of trying to use new people to do many of these jobs. The Missile Defense Agency simply could not do this in anything approaching a timely manner. Consider contracting support. The whole thrust of the missile defense program has changed, moving toward a single integrated missile defense system and away from autonomous "stove-piped" systems. This will inevitably mean contract changes as the architecture evolves. Yet MDA's institutional memory would have been surgically excised by this reduction at precisely the time it is needed most. So MDA would take a double hit—a cut to project funds to pay for program operations, and inefficient and ineffective program operations because all the people who did that job will have been fired.

The 80 percent reduction to program operation is just one example of how damaging the missile defense reductions in this bill. It is inconsistent with good management, current law, and common sense. I cannot say if the majority simply erred in this reduction, or if the intent was to cripple the organization.

Another program that was hit hard by the majority's missile defense cuts deals with countermeasures—which for me makes these cuts even more surprising.

Many critics on the majority side have argued that simply countermeasures can render missile defenses ineffective. They have criticized missile defense technology and testing as too simple, and not sensitive enough to the measures our enemies might take to defeat our defenses. The former Director of Operational Test and Evaluation Phil Coyle used to make this argument in his official capacity and had many recommendations about how to improve what he saw as deficiencies. The chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee just recently repeated the view that simply countermeasures may be able to defeat missile defenses.

The Missile Defense Agency agreed that countermeasures represent a significant challenge, and has structured a significant part of its program to meet this challenge. Here's what they have done:

MDA moved from an architecture that relied very heavily on intercepting enemy missiles and warheads in their terminal phase, the final phase of flight as these weapons approach their target, to an architecture that seeks to intercept missiles and warheads in all phases flight-boost phase right after launch, and midcourse as the missiles and warheads fly ballistically toward their target as well as terminal phase. Countermeasures to defenses in any one phase of flight are greatly complicated by attacking missiles in all phases of flight.

MDA initiated technology efforts in the midcourse defense segment to develop counter-countermeasures and advanced kill vehicles to defeat countermeasures that our adversaries may develop or deploy.

MDA initiated a "Red, White, and Blue" team and a process to objectively assess the types of countermeasures that might be developed and deployed and the countermeasures that could be developed to counter them. The Red team assesses the likelihood and technical feasibility and effectiveness of various countermeasures; the Blue team assesses ways to defeat the countermeasures and does basic technical work to produce the counter-countermeasures; and the White team is the referee to make sure that proposals and assessments from the Red and Blue teams are fair.

Given the concerns expressed by our majority about the ability of adversaries to produce countermeasures that defeat our defenses, you would thank that these efforts would among those receiving the strongest support in this bill. If you thought that, you would be wrong. This bill decimates each of these approaches.

The bill makes extraordinarily deep reductions in boost phase intercept projects. The Airborne Laser program—cut by about a quarter—there is almost no funding for anything beyond the first prototype aircraft. Funding for space-based kinetic boost phase interceptors is eliminated. Funding for sea-based boost phase interceptors is eliminated. Space-based laser? That was killed last year. And the bill makes a $52 million reduction to Navy mid-course missile defense, and concept development and risk reduction effort to produce Navy missile defenses against medium, intermediate, and long-range missiles.

The bill cuts all the funding—100 percent of the funding—for the next generation kill vehicle and midcourse counter-countermeasures. This leaves the midcourse segment with no follow-on technology to defeat any advanced countermeasures our adversaries might develop or obtain and then deploy.

The bill cuts almost half of the funding for the Red, White and Blue team.

This reduction is part of the 2/3 reduction to Ballistic Missile Defense System program element. A key project in that program element is system engineering and analysis. That's where the Red, White and Blue team is funded. This bill decimates this key effort.

These reductions severely damage the effort to defeat BMD countermeasures—an effort that everyone—Republicans, Democrats, MDA, and missile defense critics—believes is critical. The rationale for these reductions, to be charitable, is unclear.

Let me end my statement by summarizing some of the majority's arguments which we have heard during the course of this debate.

First, funding is not adequately justified or unclear what product will be provided.

Not true.

The committee has received hundreds of pages of justification which describes in tremendous detail activities and products in each program element. I admit that not all of the detail was available at the beginning of the budget cycle because the National Team—which plans the activities—was just standing up. It is all available now.

Many of these important activities and products included in System Engineering & Integration are: concept development and system architecture; trade studies and analysis; functional allocation; BMD element (e.g. PAC-3, ABL, THAAD) specifications; verification of text objectives; engineering process controls; configuration management; interface specification; architecture definition; threat databases; modeling and simulation; test infrastructure and target requirement definition; schedule baseline; specialty engineering; and data management.

For Battle Management/Command and Control these activities include: definition of intelligence and sensor inputs; specifications; definition of interfaces; mission planning across BMD elements BM/C2 test planning, assessments BM/C2 system performance BM/C20T&E plans; BM/D2 transition plans; order of battle definition communications architecture message definition and formats network management information assurance wargaming support; and BM/C2 verification and test.

Here is an example of some of these activities:

System and element capability specification: $17.8 million.

Description: The system capability specifications provide design requirements for system integrators and element contractors to use in development and testing. It enables contractors to understand the context in which they are designing elements and to be more innovative in ensuring that their element meets its requirements and milestones in the BMD system. The system capability specification document describes the BMD system in terms of functions and performance based capabilities, shows the allocation of those capabilities the elements in the BMD system, and identifies methods to verify those capabilities at the system level. Element and component capability specifications documents describe the functions and capabilities of BMD system elements and components as they are allocated in the systems capabilities specifications. For new elements these documents may provide a very complete description of functions and capabilities and allocations to major subsystems. For existing elements, the documents may be higher level and might serve as the basis for engineering change proposals to bring the element into compliance with BMD system allocations and specifications. These documents are reviewed quarterly and updated annually.

The committee got over 100 pages of similar material describing these activities in a minute detail.

The second argument is that the funding is redundant.

Again, not true.

There is a semantic problem in considering "system engineering." System engineering takes place at the system level and the at the element level. The system level effort integrates all the disparate elements into a seamless whole. At the element level—or perhaps we would better call this "element engineering"—provides for integration between the parts of an element. For example, the THAAD program spends about 10 percent of its funding on "system engineering" to assure that the THAAD components—radar, missile, launcher, BMC2—work together seamlessly.

This is not the same work that is being done at the BMD system level. The system engineering and integration across elements of the BMD system is being done at a much more detailed level and more systematically than in the past. This is new or expanded work. On reason this work hasn't been done so much is the past is because of the former ABM Treaty constraints.

A third argument is that the funding is premature.

Once again, not true.

Much of this work has not been done before. It is needed to implement the new concept of missile defense as a single integrated system. If this work isn't started and can't continue now—the effectiveness of all missile defense systems will be degraded; deployment of effective missile defense will be delayed; costs will increase, since each element will have to "carry more of the load" and element-centric work will have to be redone later to make it compatible with a single integrated system. The start or expansion of this work coincides with establishment and stand-up of the National Team.

As I mentioned earlier but I believe is important to reiterate, it has also been argued that some funding will be left over at the end of fiscal year 2002 and thus not all the funding requested for fiscal year 2003 will be needed. Although the 2002 budget was approved late, the obligation and expenditure rate in System Engineering and Integration is well within expected ranges.

The funding request is all R&D money. R&D funding is available for obligation for two years and available for expenditure until disbursed or rescinded. Congress provides extended availability for R&D funding to help assure funding stability and planning and contractual flexibility.

If we accept the argument that we can cut funding in this program element because MDA will FY 02 funds left over, we have to accept the argument that the whole rationale for providing extended availability for R&D funding is flawed. We may as well go ahead and cut all R&D programs that have any funding left over from the previous year.

Fourth, that the funding is excessive.

Once again, not true.

MDA's BMD system level engineering and integration funding request, at 2 percent of the MDA budget of the budget, is modest.

Standard text (Essentials of Project and Systems Engineering Management) estimates requested resources for systems engineering to be 4–8 percent of total project cost. Costs tend to be higher for complicated projects.

MDA's system and element level engineering and integration funding is low compared to other programs.

What other programs spend on system engineering:

V-22—7.2 percent.

B-1b—14.3 percent.

V-22 (Marine)—11.5 percent.

F-22—5.5 percent.

E-3A AWACS—13 percent.

Safeguard—16 percent.

Patriot—19 percent.

E-4 Airborne Command post—12 percent.

Pershing II—21 percent.

JTIDS—12 percent.

Here's what Ballistic Missile Defense spends on system engineering:

Ground-based Midcourse—6.9 percent.

THAAD (03)—10 percent.

BMDs SE&I—2 percent.

These figures are not at all out of line with other complex DOD programs. The BMDs systems engineering funding is low by comparison—particularly given that we haven't done this mission before. This mission is almost uniquely complex.

In conclusion—the BMDs funding reductions aim at the heart of what MDA is trying to do and how MDA is trying to do it. I believe the funding reductions are completely unjustified and I am glad we made some progress in getting these very important missile defense programs back on track.

Mr. JEFFORDS. Mr. President, I would like to thank the managers of the bill, Senators LEVIN and WARNER, for not including proposals that the Administration has put forward that would undermine many of our environmental laws, in either the legislation that was reported by the Armed Services Committee and the final legislation that we are voting on today. I would also like to make clear my continuing concern with these proposals and my opposition to any efforts to include them in conference on the DoD authorization bill.

Title XII of the administration's National Defense Authorization Act for Fiscal Year 2003 contains several provisions that not only fall within the jurisdiction of the Committee on Environment and Public Works, which I chair, but proposes changes to our environmental laws that are unnecessary, broad, and—judging from the volume of mail I already have received—very controversial. The administration contends that these changes are needed for military readiness and training. However, it has not been demonstrated that is the case.

One provision could permanently extend the timeline for DoD's conformity analysis, required under the Clean Air Act, by 3 years for all activities broadly referred to as military readiness activities, without regard to whether there is a national security emergency or other need for such an extension.

Another provision attempts to permanently exempt the DoD from broad aspects of Resource Conservation and Recovery Act, RCRA, regulation and cleanup. The proposal significantly changes the definition of "solid waste," the crux of the RCRA statute. The proposal would exempt munitions that were deposited, incident to their normal and expected use on an operational range. The proposal also may exempt munitions wastes that remain after the range becomes "non-operational" a term not found in environmental law—prohibiting EPA and preempting the states from regulating the cleanup of the vast majority of unexploded ordnance, explosives and related materials that contaminate closed, transferring and transferred training ranges.

By exempting munitions-related materials from RCRA, the proposal could prohibit EPA and states from acting to address munitions-related environmental contamination that is not on a range at all, but has migrated from the range entirely off-site. The exemption also extends to any facility—not just training ranges—with munitions-type waste, which may include plants that manufacture explosives and other manufacturing facilities run by defense contractors. It is possible that the exemption also would extend to waste streams from the manufacture of explosives since the exemption covers "constituents."

The proposal also provides exemptions from the Comprehensive Environmental Response Compensation and Liability Act or Superfund. "Explosives unexploded ordnance, munitions, munition fragments or constituents thereof" would be permanently exempted from the definition of "release" under Superfund. In addition, because the definition of "solid waste" under RCRA triggers coverage as a "hazardous waste" under Superfund, the broad RCRA exemption would exempt munitions waste from regulation, i.e., clean-up, under Superfund. This could similarly tie the hands of the states to compel cleanup.

By affecting the definition of "hazardous substance," the proposal may preclude states and natural resources trustees from pursuing restoration of areas contaminated by munitions waste—this affects the "natural resource damages" section of the Superfund law. The proposal also may eliminate authority under section 104 of the Superfund law to clean up a release or respond to substantial threat of a release of hazardous substances on training ranges—and, as discussed above, possibly off-site and at manufacturing facilities as well.

The proposal would exempt the Department of Defense from the requirement of the Endangered Species Act of designating critical habitat on all "lands, or other geographical areas, owned or controlled by the Department, or designated for its use" if an Integrated Natural Resources Management Plan—INRMP—has been developed pursuant to the Sikes Act. The Sikes Act requires military installations to prepare plans that integrate the protection of natural resources on military lands with the use of military lands for military training. If the Fish and Wildlife Service determines that the plan "addresses special management consideration or protection," they can decide not to designate critical habitat. Although the Service in the past has excluded some bases from critical habitat designation based on an INRMP, in numerous other decisions, the Service has expressly found that an INRMP would not provide adequate protection in lieu of critical habitat designation.

Under the Endangered Species Act, the Service is required to consider "the impact on national security" when designating critical habitat. This proposal would preclude the Service from designating critical habitat if an INRMP has been completed.

The proposal would authorize military readiness activities under the Migratory Bird Treaty Act—MBTA—without further action by the Secretary of the Interior. It would exempt the DOD from the requirement, applicable to everyone else and founded on treaties between the United States and Canada, Mexico, Russia, and Japan, that they obtain a permit from the Fish and Wildlife Service before killing migratory birds or destroying their eggs. Such action could be carried out without any assessment of biological impact, effort to mitigate or seek alternatives, oversight or accountability.

In March of 2002, a court ruled that the MBTA applied to training activities at the Farallon de Medinilla range in the Western Pacific and enjoined the Navy from continuing the bombing activities there. The Navy has applied for a special purpose permit under the MBTA allowing for incidental take and are completing the biological justification. While the MBTA does not have an exemption for national security, it does provide for permits to be issued if the urgency of the training is determined by the Secretary of the Interior to be compelling justification and there can be compensation for the biological benefits of birds that may be taken.

It is my hope that during the conference with the House on this legislation, the provisions in the House bill amending the Endangered Species Act and the Migratory Bird Treaty Act be deleted. The Committee on Environment and Public Works is the appropriate committee to examine the need for any such environmental legislation and to act upon any such legislation.

Mr. BYRD. Mr. President, I have serious concerns about the amendments that have just been adopted to add $814 million to either missile defense funding or combating terrorism. We have heard a day and a half of debate on these amendments, which relate to one of the great issues of our national defense policy. I am stunned that these important amendments were accepted without a rollcall vote.

My concern with these amendments are numerous. The supposed offset for these additional funds is, at the moment, nothing more than a work of fiction. Supposedly, the Office of Management and Budget, in its mid-session review of the budget, will revise downward its estimate of the inflation rate. Not only is this report yet to be released, but also we are making budget decisions based upon projections that may or may not pan out.

In addition, the amendments backtrack on cuts in the missile defense program made by the Armed Services Committee. As a member of that committee, I think that we made the right choices on trimming a missile defense budget request that was far too large to support a program that remains in an elementary phrase. By pouring so much money so quickly into missile defense programs, we are only encouraging a rush to failure. I am especially alarmed that these amendments allow for more missile defense funding at a time when the programs are becoming increasingly shrouded in secrecy, as if the Pentagon wishes to stifle public debate about the utility and effectiveness of anti-missile systems.

The amendments leave the decision about whether to use $814 million for missile defense or for combating terrorism entirely to the President. There is an alarming trend in Congress to simply delegate the decisions on many important issues to the Chief Executive. The President is the Commander-in-Chief of the military, but the Constitution charges Congress with the authority to "raise and support armies" and to "provide and maintain a navy." The Founding Fathers of this country clearly intended to have Congress determine how the funds intended for our national defense would be allocated.

The amendments adopted today delegate, from the Congress to the President, the decision of how to use $814 million. It is an avoidance of our constitutional responsibilities. The amendment offered by the chairman of the Armed Services Committee establishes the top priority for these funds to be used for combating terrorism at home and abroad, but I have no idea for what purposes these funds could be used. I do not know whether I would have supported this amendment, but it is profoundly disappointing that Senators did not have the opportunity to cast their vote on this proposal.

I had even greater concerns about the underlying amendment, offered by the ranking member of the Armed Services Committee. As I said before, I question the source of the $814 million, the potential for the funds to restore the well-justified cuts in missile defense programs, and its delegation to the President of an important decision on the funding of our military. But again, I did not have the opportunity to register my vote.

I hope that my colleagues would take a more careful look at what powers we invest in the President. We should also take a look at how we dispose of such important business as increasing the missile defense budget by $814 million. We must never allow ourselves to be absolved of our constitutional responsibilities to decide and vote on matters of such great importance.

Mr. FRIST. Mr. President, I thank the distinguished chairman and ranking member of the Senate Armed Services Committee for their assistance and support in authorizing funding for a military construction project of critical importance to the State of Tennessee and the United States. I also thank the skilled staff members on the Senate Armed Services Committee who assisted this action: George Lauffer and Michael McCord.

The amendment in question was advanced by FRED THOMPSON and I to authorize $8.4 million in funding for the construction of a Composite Aircraft Maintenance Complex at Berry Field Guard Base in Nashville, TN. This important project is vital to the combat readiness for the 118th Air Wing of the Tennessee Air National Guard. Currently, the 118th is housed in a variety of substandard buildings, some of which are more than 40 years old. This collection of buildings encroaches upon the aircraft clear zone making it difficult for personnel to work and drill, impeding combat readiness and jeopardizing aircraft safety. Aircraft cannot be moved into hangars properly or left on jacks due to wind conditions. All of these problems combine to create significant safety problems and increase the amount of time it takes to repair damaged aircraft. In addition, the 118th needs nine airfield waivers to operate and continue its mission. By constructing this new complex, several of those waivers will be eliminated and the base will be a safer and more efficient place to accomplish its vital mission.

I would like my colleagues to know that the 118th played a vital role in the immediate response to the 9-11 tragedy and continues to contribute importantly to the ongoing national security needs of the country. One item of human interest occurred within an hour after the World Trade Center was attacked by terrorists and all of the Nation's aircraft were grounded by the President. The 118th was called and given approval to fly a donated liver from Nashville to a little girl in Houston, TX. At that time, only three non-fighter aircraft were in the air over the United States—Air Force One, its supporting tanker, and a lone C-130 from the 118th. In the shadow of thousands of people killed in New York City that day, the 118th had the privilege of helping to save a life.

In the weeks after September 11, the 118th was given numerous alert missions requiring Tennessee Air Guardsmen to be on call 24 hours a day, 7 days a week. The aircraft and maintenance personnel were sleeping in an old converted aircraft hangar at night and prepared to fly anywhere at any time.

Early in the month of October 2001, the 118th was again called for an extremely vital mission of National Security and Homeland Security Support. The 118th was one of only five C-130 units deployed for Operation Noble Eagle-QRF (Quick Reaction Force). Their mission was to deploy as soon as possible to a forward base, and be ready for 24/7 operations with a 1-hour alert call out. The 118th proudly performed this mission faster and better than any other Air National Guard, Air Force Reserve, or Active Duty unit. Within 22 hours of notification, the 118th had aircraft in the air moving forward, and was the sole C-130 unit operationally ready at the 48-hour mark.

Over the next 4 months—between October 2001 and February 2002—the 118th became the standard to which other units trained in relation to the QRF. The 118th maintained operational readiness with one-third of the unit deployed, and still preserved exceptionally high training standards at home station.

To date, the 118th has activated more than 340 individuals to support the worldwide mission. The unit is currently supporting Air Mobility Command with 33 percent of its aircraft on a daily basis flying active duty missions. Back at home station, Command and Control has been operating 24/7 ever since September 11. The 118th Command Post and Crisis Action Team have played a critical role in the direction and guidance of the unit's response to every assignment and emergency that has arisen. The base medical department, normally two full-time people, has increased to 13 in order to support the increasing number of wing personnel now on active duty.

In conclusion, on behalf of the men and women of the 118th Airlift Wing, Senator THOMPSON and myself, I would like to thank the chairman, ranking member, and our Senate colleagues for authorizing this important funding.

Mr. BIDEN. Mr. President, the Senate returned yesterday to an issue which, in recent years, has polarized our debate on national security and foreign policy. An amendment proposed by Senator WARNER allowed the President to add $814 million to the research and development budget for missile defense, money that was not recommended by the Armed Services Committee.

It also provided the President the authority to allocate these funds to "antiterrorism" projects, but I have no reason to believe the President would choose this latter option.

Senator WARNER's amendment was passed with a second-degree amendment by Senator LEVIN that emphasized that combating terrorism should be the top priority for the use of these funds, although the President could still allocate the entire $814 million to missile defense activities.

It has been my hope that the formal U.S. withdrawal from the Anti-Ballistic Missile Treaty, an event which took place less than 2 weeks ago, would emerge as a real turning point in the debate over national missile defense. From this point forward, I fervently wish that officials of all stripes—executive and legislative, Democratic and Republican—will be freed to evaluate missile defense as we would any other major defense initiative.

The touchstone for evaluating any missile defense must be the test that the American people sent us here to propound: Will this program make the United States more secure, or less so? Will national missile defense be operationally effective under real-world conditions, or will it remain a system that no commander can rely on?

Yesterday's passage of the Warner amendment was not a final decision on the future of national missile defense, nor was it a referendum on the President's decision to withdraw from the ABM Treaty. Even if the amendment had fallen, the Senate would still have authorized $6.8 billion in fiscal year 2003 on missile defense activities, a significant sum of money of any measure.

The proponents of the Warner amendment contended that an $814 million reduction in an administration request totaling $7.6 billion would seriously hamper our Nation's efforts to move forward on missile defense. Let's take a closer look at a couple of these reductions proposed by the Armed Services Committee:

A cut of $200 million for a number of overhead activities, variously described as "Program Operations" or "Systems Engineering and Integration," which are repeated multiple times in the administration's budget request. The administration cited this particular cut as an attempt by missile defense opponents to block the effective integration of missile defense components.

Despite repeated requests by the Armed Services Committee, however, the Missile Defense Agency never justified these duplicative requests or explained how they would fit together to enhance system integration.

A reduction of $30 million, requested by the administration for the purchase of a second Airborne Laser prototype aircraft. However, the Pentagon does not plan to test the first Airborne laser aircraft until fiscal year 2005. Doesn't it make sense to delay the purchase of a second model until you get some feedback from the testing of the initial model? After all, there are real questions regarding payload and beam stability in bad weather, which relate as much to the aircraft as to the laser.

Contrary to what missile defense advocates contended, the Armed Services Committee did not set out to destroy our national missile defense effort. If that has been their intention the committee would have cut far more than $814 million in a $7.6 billion budget.

This debate was also over priorities. How should the United States spend an extra national defense dollar: On missile defense or on other more pressing needs? In my view, when we consider underfunded antiterrorism missions, one stands out above the beyond the others.

Our first line of defense in today's world should be to ensure that rogue states and terrorists never obtain weapons of mass destruction or the materials needed to make them. We spend between $1 and $2 billion a year toward this goal. We are nowhere close to the levels recommended by numerous outside experts, including the bipartisan task force headed by Howard Baker and Lloyd Cutler a year ago, which advocated spending approximately $3 billion per year.

The committee's original reduction would still have provided funding for our missile defense efforts that was four to six times what we spend on threat reduction programs. Putting aside the overall merits of national missile defense, I ask one simple question: Why can't we show the same sense of urgency and offer the same level of resources in combating the more immediate risk to a more anonymous nuclear weapon delivered without a ballistic missile, but hidden in the hull of a ship or smuggled in the trunk of a compact car?

Were this any other weapons system but national missile defense, I doubt the Senate would have amended such a modest and sensible committee-recommended funding reduction. Major weapons programs often encounter problems. My friends on the Armed Services Committee are all too familiar with unpredictable testing schedules, skyrocketing budgets, and the need to maintain effective oversight with respect to all weapons programs. And so it is with national missile defense.

The Armed Services Committee recommended some judicious cuts in missile defense funding on account of a lack of clarity and a lack of justification by administration officials. I believe the Senate should have rejected the Warner amendment.

Neither could I support the Levin second-degree amendment. I understood the chairman's intentions—to send a clear message that this body views antiterrorism missions as the greatest priority for our Nation.

He was absolutely right—that is our No. 1 priority. But the second-degree amendment still enabled the President to dedicate some, or even all, of the additional $814 million towards missile defense.

The administration did not prove the case for additional funding for missile defense beyond the $6.8 billion recommended by the Armed Services Committee. Our Nation faces too many threats for which we are not adequately prepared, to justify spending this additional funding on missile defense.

Regardless of what each of us may think or believe on national missile defense, it does not deserve an exemption from the basic principles of rational budgeting and honest oversight which govern every other Pentagon acquisition program.

Mr. DURBIN. Mr. President, I rise today to express my concerns about the serious wilderness and public lands management problems created by title XIV of the House version of the Defense Authorization Act. This provision was added in the chairman's mark at the behest of Representative JIM HANSEN. Title XIV would profoundly impact land management of nearly 11 million acres of non-military public lands falling underneath the Utah Test and Training Range airspace in western Utah.

No hearings were held in either the House or Senate to consider the possible consequences of the sweeping and controversial provisions in title XIV. While the House Resource and Senate Energy Committees would be appropriate venues for such hearings, hearings were not held in these committees, and they were not held in the House or Senate Armed Services Committees. No General Accounting Office or Department of Defense report has ever demonstrated the need for the provisions contained in title XIV. The Department of Defense has never requested the kind of control over non-military public land mandated by the provisions in title XIV.

In truth, title XIV is an attack without justification on the traditional management of wilderness and other nonmilitary public lands.

I wish to add my voice to the voices of Representative IKE SKELTON and 19 other House Democrats serving on the Armed Services Committee who noted in the committee report that:

"The military use language of title XIV is unprecedented and not found in any other law. Ironically, these provisions set a standard for wilderness management that would provide less protection to the wilderness areas designated by title XIV than the protections available to non-designated public lands. Millions of acres of designated wilderness and millions more acres of public land underlie military airspace across the United States. None of these lands have or need the restrictive language that title XIV would apply to wilderness and public lands in Utah.

"Language in title XIV would strip the authority of the Secretary of the Interior to determine where and whether facilities and equipment are placed on public lands within wilderness areas. Another provision allows the Secretary of the Air Force to unilaterally close or restrict access to wilderness and WSAs outside the boundaries of the UTTR and the Dugway Proving Grounds. These provisions are unprecedented, and no clear rationale has been given to warrant this change from existing law. Moreover, title XIV creates a different standard for access and military use for land in Utah than is applicable to all other public land areas of the United States.

"Furthermore, title XIV requires the Secretary of the Interior to gain the prior concurrence of the Secretary of the Air Force and the commander-in-chief of the military forces of the State of Utah before developing, maintaining, or revising land use plans required by Federal law for millions of acres of public lands in Utah. Is it unwise policy, to say the least, for a Cabinet secretary's role to be subordinate to a service secretary and a state military commanders."

Taken together, the provisions in title XIV go far beyond any language ever included in enacted wilderness legislation, they put in place unprecedented high levels of Department of Defense control for all nonmilitary public lands falling underneath the airspace of the Utah test and Training Range, and they designate as wilderness, albeit wilderness in name only, merely a small portion of lands included in America's Redrock Wilderness Act, S. 786, of which I am the lead sponsor.

I urge those Senators who will serve conferees on the Defense Authorization Act to work for the removal of title XIV in conference.

I also would like to speak for a moment on two additional provisions within the Department of Defense authorization bill that passed out of the House, HR 4546. These measures weaken protections for endangered species and migratory birds.

I would like to state for the record that there are existing provisions that allow for case-by-case exemptions to address national security interests. For example, section 7(j) of the Endangered Species Act, ESA, gives the Secretary of Defense the authority to secure an exemption from the ESA's provisions whenever the Secretary finds it necessary for reasons of national security. Moreover, title 10 U.S.C. 2014 specifically empowers the President to resolve any conflicts between the DOD and other executive agencies that affect training or readiness. These waivers should be invoked on a case-by-case basis, rather than giving the DOD a blanket exemption to ignore laws that protect the air and water in and around our military facilities, the health of the people who live on and nearby bases, and America's wildlife and public lands.

Again, I urge my colleagues who will serve on the conference for this bill to reject any permanent weakening of or permanent waivers enabling the circumvention of our Nation's environment and public health laws.

Mr. BUNNING. Mr. President, I was proud to support the recent passage of S. 2514, the National Defense Authorization Act for fiscal year 2003. This bill continues to strengthen our military and is vital to the war on terrorism.

This is the most important bill we have debated in the Senate all year. The threats against us are real and I am pleased the Senate acted swiftly in passing this strong defense package. This bill authorizes $393.4 billion for national defense. That is $43 billion above the 2002 level, and the largest defense spending increase in over 20 years.

We are in this war against terrorism for the long haul and our increased military funding is justified. We now have troops on the ground in Afghanistan, the Philippines, and many other places we could not have foreseen before September 11. Depending on what happens as we fight this war, we may have to deploy our troops elsewhere to contain and battle threats against our Nation and freedoms.

This bill focuses on five objectives for our national defense.

First, it improves the compensation and quality of life for our soldiers, retirees and their families. For the fourth year in a row this bill includes a 4.1 percent across the board pay raise for all military personnel, with a targeted pay raise between 5.5 and 6.5 percent for mid-career personnel. A new assignment incentive pay of up to $1,500 per month is authorized to encourage personnel to volunteer for hard-to-fill positions and assignments.

The bill rewards our retirees and disabled veterans. The bill authorizes concurrent receipt of retired military pay and veterans' disability compensation for all disabled military retirees eligible for non-disability retirement.

For our troops with families, this bill increases the housing allowance, with the goal of eliminating average out-of-pocket housing expenses by 2005. And on our installations, $640 million is being added above the budget request to improve and replace facilities. This will help improve the housing, dining and recreation facilities for our trainees and troops.

These quality of life issues boost the morale of our troops, and send a strong signal that we in congress and across the Nation appreciate their defense of America and her freedoms.

Secondly, this bill also contains those necessary readiness funds to allow the services to conduct the full range of their assigned missions. We have added $126 million for firing range enhancements so that we can properly and effectively train our troops to fight and win.

And to show that defense is a top priority for our Nation, this bill authorizes the administration's $10 billion request to cover the operating costs of the ongoing war on terrorism for next year. After speaking with various military leaders and hearing their testimony before the Senate Armed Services Committee, we heard how important the issue of readiness is for every branch of the military today. This bill addresses this important issue by funding the most pressing shortfalls.

Third, in this bill we also address the goal of improving efficiency and increasing savings with DOD programs and operations. These savings will allow us to redirect and focus on high-priority programs within the DOD.

Some of these provisions include $400 million in anticipated savings by deferring spending on financial systems that would not be consistent with those financial management systems available and used by non-government entities. Soon we will have a system to better keep track of valuable DOD and service funds. This brings not only savings, but accountability to the DOD and the services. Although the DOD's mission is more unique than any other Federal department, it is not immune to wasteful and duplicative spending which we often see in other Federal departments.

Furthermore, this bill holds a provision requiring the DOD to establish new internal controls to address repeat problems with the abuse of credit cards we have seen for the purchase of non-essential and questionable travel spending by military and civilian personnel. And with the $393.4 billion we are authorizing in this bill, it is imperative now more than ever that we have a real sense of accountability for oversight reasons and for the sake of making sure we are giving the taxpayers the biggest bang for the buck. After all, this bill spends more than $1 billion a day on national defense activities. For that price, the taxpayers should get their money's worth.

Fourth, this bill also helps our military meet more non-traditional threats. We increased funding for fighting these threats to help secure our nuclear weapons and materials at Department of Energy facilities, and defend against chemical and biological weapons and other weapons of mass destruction.

Finally, our Senate Armed Services Committee wanted to be sure that our military always stay on the cutting edge of new technologies and strategies to meet the threats of the 21st century. Promoting and embracing transformation of our forces is not easy. But it is essential. This bill helps us to promote a new mind set for the future. I know it is tough to wean ourselves off of some of the legacy systems and structures in place in our armed forces. And I know that some in our armed forces are skeptical about change. But we have to begin to think differently. The world is changing, and not necessarily for the better. Our military has to keep up with that change.

While I did vote for this bill in the Senate Armed Services Committee, I did not agree with the fact that it originally slashed missile defense spending by just over $800 million. This drastically altered President Bush's national security strategy and made our Nation and allies more vulnerable to a possible missile attack.

But thankfully we found a way on the Senate floor during the bill's consideration to move just over $800 million back to President Bush's missile defense priorities to protect America. I was proud to cosponsor an amendment which fulfilled this obligation by using expected DOD inflationary savings and adjustments. This offset was responsible because it did not cut any other valuable DOD programs needed to strengthen our military. And I was pleased that this was a bipartisan effort by the Senate with the amendment's unanimous acceptance.

But, thankfully this amendment was accepted. Without it, this vital bill was jeopardized. After all, Secretary Rumsfeld, in a letter to the Senate Armed Services Committee wrote, "if the missile defense provisions in the Senate Armed Services Committee's version of the bill were to be adopted by Congress, I would recommend to the President that he veto the Fiscal Year 2003 National Defense Authorization Act." So, its inclusion helped pave the way to an optimistic path to President Bush's desk.

Finally, we have had a very intense debate about the Crusader Artillery System. I would like to note that while I supported the compromise Levin amendment last week over the Crusader program, I remain concerned about our ability to effectively support our troops with adequate fire support. Right now we are vastly under-gunned in artillery by some nations. Our own artillery systems could not even meet our needs during the Gulf war more than a decade ago. And those systems have not significantly changed since then.

The possibility of shifting funds from Crusader to other indirect fire weapons concerns me in that we are again delaying when we will actually deploy sufficient fire support to protect our armed forces. The DOD hopes to speed up the deployment of these new technologies so they would be available around the same time Crusader will be. I am concerned about our ability to meet this time line.

Throwing money at a program does not necessarily mean you can magically speed up its development. Some things just take time, and Crusader is a lot farther along in the development process than many of these other technologies. I will be watching this process closely to ensure that effective indirect fire support capability reaches our troops quickly.

Overall, this is a solid bill. The sooner we get this bill to President Bush, then the better chance we have at providing our military with the essential training and strength resources to fight terrorism or anything else that seeks to destroy America, our people and our freedoms.

Mr. ROBERTS, Mr. President, I wish to clarify my comments concerning my amendment to authorize, with an offset, $1,000,000 for research, development, test, and evaluation, defense-wide, for analysis and assessment of efforts to counter possible agroterrorist attacks. The amendment was adopted June 26 by voice vote. I stated then that the $1,000,000 was destined for the In-House Laboratory Independent Research (PE 0601103D8Z) account. In fact, the funds will be applied to the Chemical and Biological Defense Program (PE 0601384BP) account. The intent of the amendment, however, remains the same. It is still my hope that universities with established expertise in the agricultural sciences can conduct studies and exercises that lead to better coordination between Federal, State, and local authorities as they attempt to detect, deter, and respond to large scale coordinated attacks on U.S. agriculture. I envision universities assisting the Department of Defense in determining what role—if any—our military or defense agencies play in countering agroterrorism. I thank my colleagues for supporting amendment No. 4138.

Mrs. FEINSTEIN. Mr. President, I rise today to thank the leadership on both sides of the aisle for clearing an amendment I introduced with my colleague from Alaska, Senator STEVENS, to prohibit the use of nuclear armed interceptors as part of a Ballistic Missile Defense System (BMDS).

Senators LEVIN and WARNER have shown tremendous leadership by working hard to address this important issue, and I want to personally thank them for their efforts.

I want to comment briefly on the details of the amendment because I feel so strongly, as do my colleagues in the Senate, that both Chambers of Congress move to prohibit nuclear armed interceptors.

A nuclear armed interceptor is a defensive missile that uses a nuclear, rather than conventional, explosive tip to destroy its target. It is based on the premise that a large blast will overwhelm all of the components of an enemy missile.

The Washington Post reported in April of this year that the Pentagon was pursuing plans to resume research and testing of nuclear armed interceptors as part of a Ballistic Missile Defense System (BMDS).

I think this would be a great mistake and would endanger the health and safety of all Americans.

The Post reported on April 11 that the Defense Science Board, a research body within the Department of Defense, received encouragement from Secretary Rumsfeld to consider using nuclear tipped warheads for a missile defense system.

On April 17, Senator STEVENS and I, at an Appropriations Defense Subcommittee hearing, asked General Kadish of the Missile Defense Agency to refute the Washington Post story. He responded that his agency would not conduct research into nuclear warheads.

To further clarify the point, we also asked Secretary Rumsfeld to address the allegation in writing. He also assured us the Pentagon would no longer encourage such testing.

Inexplicably, in this year's House Armed Services Committee report on the House passed Defense authorization bill, there is language sanctioning nuclear interceptor research. The report states:

The Department may investigate other options for ballistic missile defense nuclear armed interceptors, blast fragment warheads . . . as alternatives to current approaches . . .

This troubling development led Senator STEVENS and me to introduce today's amendment, which prohibits any funds from being used for nuclear armed interceptors.

Our amendment simply states:

None of the funds authorized to be appropriated by this or any other Act may be used for research, development, test, evaluation, procurement or deployment of nuclear armed interceptors of a missile defense system.

The use of nuclear armed interceptors represents a deeply troubling departure from the missile defense testing that has occurred up to this point.

For the past year, the Pentagon has been pursuing a technically problematic approach to missile defense.

They have attempted to "hit a bullet with a bullet."

This means that the missile defense system has to individually hit each incoming warhead in order to eliminate the total threat.

But under this system, the Missile Defense Agency still fails to address the decoy warheads and other countermeasures that force our systems to rapidly determine which is the actual warhead to be targeted and which is simply a decoy.

This core dilemma led the Pentagon to explore the concept of using a nuclear armed interceptor to destroy all of the incoming warheads, real and decoy alike.

Instead of targeting a particular missile, a nuclear tipped interceptor would be exploded in the vicinity of the missile, ensuring the destruction of the missile and any others objects around it.

This approach raises serious questions about the confidence the Missile Defense Agency appears to have in its current "Hit a Bullet with a Bullet" plan.

But perhaps more importantly, this approach overlooks a laundry list of catastrophic side-effects that would accompany a nuclear blast in the atmosphere.

Even a low-yield nuclear blast in the atmosphere would have grave consequences on public health and on the global economy.

Atmospheric winds could potentially spread fall-out over American or allied sovereign territory, the very territory we are trying to protect from nuclear attack.

Add the possibility of intercepting a chemical or biological warhead, and we exponentially increase the risk of spreading spores or chemical agents over a wide area.

The Electromagnetic Pulse (EMP) from an overhead nuclear blast would severely disrupt and most likely permanently damage U.S. and foreign satellites.

These are the very satellite systems we rely on to provide us with early warning and key intelligence for national security operations.

I think we all can see the serious ramifications of pursuing such an ill-advised policy, and I believe that this amendment is needed to prevent us from going down this path.

As Senators from two States that could feel the brunt of radiological, chemical or biological fall-out in the event of a missile defense activation, we are compelled to act.

But make no mistake about it, every State in the Union faces the specter of contamination.

Given the language included in the House bill promoting nuclear intercept research, it is critical the Senate take a leadership role by preventing such research and testing.

I urge my colleagues to support this amendment and inject some common sense into the debate over the future of missile defense.

Ms. SNOWE. Mr. President, I rise to speak on the Senate version of the FY2003 National Defense authorization bill.

As a former member of the Senate Armed Services Committee and former chair of the Seapower Subcommittee, I fully appreciate the hard work and long hours my colleagues in the Senate and their counterparts in the House have dedicated to the completion of the bill.

There are many important provisions in this bill. However, there are also some critical defense requirements which were overlooked. And I would like to take a moment to address those concerns.

First and foremost, with the enormous increase in the defense budget overall, I am deeply troubled that we would fail to sustain the size of our naval fleet, which has played such a critical role in the war on terror.

Admiral Robert J. Natter, Commander in Chief of the U.S. Atlantic Fleet, captured it best when he said "We fight them here, or we can fight them there—it's America's choice." And he continued "I'd prefer to fight them there, because I know we can beat them."

Well, we can't fight them there without a Navy. In the opening days of Operation Enduring Freedom, our Navy fired over 90 Tomahawk cruise missiles aimed at crippling Taliban air defenses. The Navy executed the majority of the air strikes in the land war. Aircraft-carrier based fighter and strike aircraft launched 60 to 80 missions a day dropping thousands of bombs on terrorists and Taliban targets. More than 50 Navy ships participated in the action. I am proud of our Navy, but the fact of the matter is, if we do not increase the ship procurement rate, the size and strength of our fleet is going to be diminished.

If we allow this to happen, we are doing future generations a great disservice. Because the reality is that, when the United States is unable, for whatever reason, to launch military strikes from ground bases in a region where U.S. interests are at stake, there are times when our Navy may be the only option.

Yet, the fleet was stretched too thin even before Operation Enduring Freedom. When I was chair of the Senate Seapower Subcommittee, I heard this time and again from senior Navy officials. As the war on terror continues, I believe it is more important than ever that we maintain a fleet large enough and strong enough to project the power we need in order to safeguard U.S. interests.

These are the facts. The Administration proposed in its budget to procure five new Navy ships in Fiscal Year 2003 and a total of 34 new Navy ships through Fiscal Year 2007. This is an average of 6.8 new ships per year. But we need 8.9 ships per year just to maintain a 310-ship fleet.

The size of the fleet could fall to 263 ships by 2015 to 2025 if we do not reverse this trend. Last year, Secretary Rumsfeld painted an even more dire picture, estimating that the Navy could end up with a 230 ship Navy in the 2025 time frame without substantial increases in the build rate. Contrast this with the size of our fleet in 1987 when we had 568 ships.

I know that the administration recognizes the problem, and I credit them with understanding the need to build more ships in the future. The DOD and the Navy have acknowledged the need to build more ships. Last year, a study conducted by the Office of the Secretary of Defense concluded that the Navy should have 340 ships. Navy officials put the number at 370-380. And they should know. They are the men and women who are responsible for our forward deployed forces. But we need to help them by taking action. Whatever the ultimate number, we need to reverse the current trend and begin to build a bigger fleet. But we need to begin to produce more ships now, because there is not doubt that the size of our naval fleet is a vital matter of national security. We can't afford to wait any longer.

We can't afford to risk this essential component of our world-wide defense force. After all, 80 percent of the planet's population lives along the coastal plains of the world, and it is the Navy that has the capability that is imperative if we are to maintain military superiority and defend America's national interests in the 21st century. For even with today's rapidly changing and diverse security threats, there is no foreseeable future that would have our security interests best served by a diminished naval fleet.

Despite the fact that Secretary England has endorsed funding for a third destroyer, for example, this bill fails to fund an additional ship. To maintain readiness and to sustain the industrial base, we desperately need a third destroyer authorized and funded in fiscal year 2003.

Even to maintain a 116-ship surface combatant force, given the projected service life of 35 years for DDG-51 Class ships, requires a sustained replacement rate of over three ships per year. If you assume a 30-year service life, which is more realistic historically, sustaining even the 116-ship surface combatant force would require annual procurement of almost four DDGs each year.

And at a rate of only two destroyers a year, it may be difficult to sustain the yards that have historically built these critical platforms. That is why I was pleased to team with Senator COLINS to extend the multi-year procurement rate for DDG destroyers through fiscal year 2007. As chair of the Seapower Subcommittee, I secured procurement authorization for three DDGs annually through fiscal year 2005, and this bill extends that authorization for an additional two years. It is still imperative to add a third destroyer to the fiscal year 2003 budget, but this multi-year procurement is a step in the right direction.

While I am very concerned about the failure to fully fund the shipbuilding accounts, I do believe credit is due in some other important areas. For example, the bill does make some invaluable personnel contributions. The measure includes a 4.1 percent across-the-board pay raise for all military personnel, with an additional targeted pay raise for the mid-career force. It includes a provision authorizing the concurrent receipt of military retirement pay and veterans disability compensation for military retirees with disabilities, an effort which I have long supported.

The bill also reaffirms Congress's commitment to the war on terror by funding requirements needed to support our Soldiers, Marines, Sailors, and Airmen who are on the front lines with the planes, vehicles, ships and armaments they need to carry out their critical missions.

The bill would set aside $10 billion, as requested by the administration, to fund ongoing operations in the war against international terrorism during fiscal year 2003. And it includes substantial funding to meet asymmetrical terrorist threats including chemical, biological, and nuclear weapons and develop the agility, mobility, and survivability necessary to meet the challenges of the future.

It would increase by $199.7 million funding to enhance the security of nuclear materials and nuclear weapons at Department of Energy facilities. It would increase funding for U.S. Special Operations Command by $42.7 million. Defenses against chemical and biological weapons and other efforts to combat weapons of mass destruction would see an increase of $30.5 million. And the bill would find the request of over $2 billion for force protection improvements to DOD installations around the world.

Finally, the bill would also make possible continued improvements in the Navy's human resources services with the authorization of $1.5 million for operation of a pilot human resources call center in Machias, Maine under an amendment I worked to include in the bill.

This call center went on-line in January of this year. I worked hard with the Navy to locate this facility in Washington County, ME to help compensate for the loss of military personnel at the Cutler Naval Computer and Telecommunications station in Cutler, a communication center used to provide contact with U.S. submarines in the North Atlantic, Mediterranean and Arctic seas. At its peak there were 220 people working at the base—110 civilians and 110 Navy personnel.

The call center establishes a single national employee benefits center for the Department of the Navy to standardize the "call in capability" of services currently performed in eight separate Human Resources Service Centers. This center integrates developed computer and internet technologies to provide updated information immediately to Navy civilians and beneficiaries who make inquiries.

In closing, let me say that I hope during the House-Senate conference on the defense authorization that we will be able to build on the foundation that has been set in this bill and make it an even stronger bill.

Mr. FEINGOLD. Mr. President, I will vote against the National Defense Authorization Act for fiscal year 2003. I regret that the Senate has missed another opportunity to reorient the thinking—and spending—of the Pentagon.

I strongly support our men and women in uniform in the ongoing fight against global terrorism and in their other missions, both at home and abroad. I commend the members of the National Guard and Reserves and their families for the sacrifices they have made to protect our security and freedom. More than 85,000 National Guard and Reserve forces have been called to active duty since September 11, including personnel from a number of units in Wisconsin. All members of our military and their families—active duty, National Guard, and Reserves—deserve our sincere thanks for their commitment to protect this country and to undertake the fight against terrorism in the wake of the horrific attacks of September 11.

Each year that I have been a Member of this body, I have expressed my concern about the priorities of the Pentagon and about the process by which we consider the Department of Defense authorization and appropriations bills. I am troubled that the Department of Defense does not receive the same scrutiny as other parts of our Federal budget. This time of unprecedented national crisis underscores the need for the Congress and the administration to take a hard look at the Pentagon's budget to ensure that scarce taxpayer dollars are targeted to those programs that are necessary to defend our country in the post-cold war world and to ensure that our Armed Forces have the resources they need for the battles ahead.

There can be no doubt that Congress should provide the resources necessary to fight and win the battle against terrorism. There should also be no doubt that this ongoing campaign should not be used as an excuse to continue to drastically increase an already bloated defense budget.

When adjusted for inflation, the spending authorized by this bill, as it was reported to the Senate by the Armed Services Committee, represents the largest increase in defense spending since 1966. Just how big is this increase? The whopping $393.4 billion authorized by this bill is $152.2 billion more than combined defense budgets of the United Kingdom, Japan, Russia, France, Germany, Saudi Arabia, India, China, South Korea, Taiwan, Iran, Pakistan, Syria, Iraq, North Korea, Yugoslavia, Libya, Sudan, and Cuba.

The $46 billion increase over fiscal year 2002 alone is more than the Defense budgets of any one of these 19 countries. The country with the second-largest defense budget, the United Kingdom, spent just $34.8 billion in 2001. This bill authorizes a defense budget that is more than 11 times greater than that of our closest ally.

A strong national defense is crucial to the peace and stability of our Nation. But a strong economy is also essential to national security. We must not focus on one to the detriment of the other. Many of the expensive weapons systems that are authorized in this bill have little or nothing to do with the fight against terrorism, which is often cited as the reason for the $46 billion increase in defense spending contained in this bill. I am concerned that if we continue down this path, defense spending will spiral further out of control, perhaps putting other areas of our economy at risk.

I am pleased that the Senate adopted an amendment to cut funding for the Army's Crusader mobile artillery program. I support the Secretary of Defense's decision to cancel this outdated program. Last month, I introduced legislation that would terminate the Crusader program, saving taxpayers an estimated $10 billion over the life of the program. I commend the Secretary of Defense for his efforts to transform our military to meet the challenges of the 21st Century and beyond, and agree that cold war-era dinosaurs such as the Crusader should be terminated.

I regret that so little progress has been made to transform the military for these new challenges. The hard-fought battle to terminate the Crusader program—a program that was canceled by the Secretary of Defense—stands as an example of how difficult it is to change the mind-set of the Pentagon and the Congress. The beleaguered Crusader is the poster child for an obsolete, cold war-era program, yet there are those in the Congress and at the Pentagon who are digging in their heels and trying desperately to save it. The termination of a weapon system such as the Crusader is an example of the hard decisions that this body will have to make as we face the realities of the federal budget and as we seek to provide our Armed Forces with the equipment they will need to fight the battles of the future.

I am pleased that this bill authorizes an increase in full-time manning for the Army National Guard. As we continue to call upon the Guard and Reserves for active-duty missions that are longer in duration, the role of the full-time Army National Guard personnel who support these missions becomes increasingly important. The Army National Guard relies heavily on Active Guard/Reserves and Military Technicians to perform a wide variety of essential day-to-day operations, ranging from equipment maintenance to leadership and staff roles.

According to Lieutenant General Roger C. Schultz, Director of the Army National Guard, "Increased full time support is an absolute necessity for Army National Guard units as the Army places greater reliance on the Army National Guard to provide trained and ready soldiers in support of Homeland Security efforts, as well as forces for theater Commander in Chiefs in support of the National Military Strategy. These full time personnel are the vital link for the traditional part time Army National Guard commanders working to achieve expected readiness goals. Units that are understrength in full time support personnel have difficulty maintaining pace with current elevated Operational Tempo. Consequently, many units fail to attain and maintain readiness levels."

This bill authorizes 724 additional Active Guard/Reserve positions and 487 additional military technicians, which, according to the National Guard Bureau, are the minimum essential requirements for full-time manning for the Army National Guard. These increases match those contained in an amendment that I offered to the fiscal year 2003 budget resolution that was adopted unanimously during the Budget Committee's mark-up earlier this year.

I am troubled that the Senate added to the bill the $814.3 million that the Armed Services Committee cut from the President's request for national missile defense by the unfortunate adoption of an amendment offered by the ranking member of the committee, Mr. WARNER. The amendment would allow the President to spend this money on missile defense or on defense activities to combat terrorism at home and abroad. This bill, as reported to the Senate, includes $6.8 billion for the still unproven missile defense system. While I did not originally oppose legislation authorizing development of a missile defense system, I remain skeptical about the need for such a system. Congress should maintain tight cost controls over this system, as the Armed Services Committee attempted to do by cutting $814.3 million for a number of questionable aspects of the Administration's request. I am still concerned that the $6.8 billion in the bill is far too much for this program, but these cuts were a step in the right direction.

I am also concerned that the proposed offset for the additional funding in the Warner amendment comes from "amounts that the Secretary determines unnecessary by reason of a revision of assumptions regarding inflation that are applied as a result of the mid-session review of the budget conducted by the Office of Management and Budget during the spring and early summer of 2002." This flimsy accounting gimmick should not be cited as an offset. In reality, there is no offset for this spending increase.

I am pleased that the Senate adopted a language offered by the chairman of the committee, Mr. LEVIN, that directs that priority for allocating any funds made available to the Department by a lower rate of inflation be given to "activities for protecting the American people at home and abroad by combating terrorism at home and abroad." Clearly, the proposed missile defense system does not fit this definition. But I am troubled by the underlying Warner amendment because I oppose giving the President the option to spend additional funding on missile defense.

I am pleased that the committee included in the bill language that will help to improve congressional oversight of the missile defense program by, one, requiring that the Director of Operational Test and Evaluation conduct an annual operational assessment of the program and that the Joint Requirements Oversight Council review the cost schedule and performance criteria for the program, and, two, requiring that the Secretary conduct a review of the major elements of the missile defense program and report to Congress cost and schedule information similar to that required for other major defense programs.

Turning to another issue, I continue to be concerned about the Marine Corps' troubled V-22 Osprey program. I met recently with Colonel Dan Schultz, the Marines' V-22 Program Manager, and others to discuss the status of this program and to express my concerns about the Osprey. I appreciate Colonel Schultz' commitment to ensuring that the Osprey is a safe and effective aircraft and his thoughtful approach to the new flight testing program, which began on May 29.

The safety of our men and women in uniform should continue to be top priority as we consider the Osprey's future.

I am troubled that the Osprey nearly made it to a Milestone III production decision in late 2000 with extensive problems in its hydraulics system and flight control software. While I appreciate the hard work that the Marines and the contractors have done to correct these problems, I remain concerned that there is no clear answer for why these deadly problems, which combined to cause the December 2000 crash that killed four Marines, weren't discovered much earlier.

I am also troubled by the lack of concrete information about how to avoid the dangerous vortex ring state, which occurs when the Osprey descends too rapidly. I remain concerned about the effect that the vortex ring state could have on the ability of the Osprey to perform in combat, especially if a pilot has to make a fast exit from a hostile situation. I will monitor closely planned extensive testing that the Marine Corps has planned to study this phenomenon and ways to help pilots avoid it.

The ongoing flight tests should provide a definitive assessment of the aircraft's capabilities. If the Osprey is not up to the job, then the Defense Department should be prepared to consider other alternatives that will meet the needs of the Marine Corps in a safe and cost-effective manner. I will work to ensure that Congress maintains strict oversight of the testing program.

In addition, I will oppose any attempt to increase procurement of the Osprey beyond the minimum sustaining rate until the Marine Corps has demonstrated that the Osprey is safe and effective and meets or exceeds all of its performance criteria. I am still not convinced that the Osprey will work, and whether it can be made to work in a cost-effective manner.

In sum, as I have said time and time again, there are millions upon millions of dollars in this bill that are being spent on outdated or questionable or unwanted programs. This money would be better spent on programs that truly improve our readiness and modernize our Armed Forces. This money also would be better spent on efforts to improve the morale of our forces, such as ensuring that all of our men and women in uniform have a decent standard of living or providing better housing for our Armed Forces and their families. For those reasons, I will oppose this bill.

Mr. JEFFORDS. Mr. President, I want to thank the chairman, the ranking member, and the staff of the Senate Armed Services Committee for their efforts to address my concerns with the current funding situation for the National Guard Competitive Sports Program. I hope this issue can be resolved in conference.

Mr. President, our world as we know it changed dramatically after the events of September 11, 2001. I believe we must support the President of the United States in a time of war and I think the Fiscal Year 2003 National Defense Authorization Act does exactly that. However, I think we must not lose sight of the fact that we still rely on an all-volunteer force to man the ranks of our military. This means we must, even in a time of war, continue to have a robust retention and recruiting program, especially if the war on terrorism becomes a lengthy one. The best recruiting and retention programs are those that enable the services to get out and interact with the public, which brings me to an issue I would like to see rectified in conference.

We need a minor change in current law, which would allow National Guard units to use a small amount of appropriated funds to sponsor sports competitions and send Guard members to those competitions. As the law reads now, only non-appropriated funds may be used to cover expenses such as health, pay, and personal expenses for participating National Guard members. Unlike our active forces, the National Guard does not have access to non-appropriated funds as they do not own or operate non-appropriated fund generating functions, such as military exchanges, commissaries, and the like.

Unlike Active Duty military personnel who have all health, pay, and personal expenses covered while participating in competitive sports, National Guard members are not on duty while competing in sporting events, and thus are not covered. For example, if a National Guard member suffers an injury while competing at the marksmanship competition, the service member must pay for the incurred health costs although the individual was competing with his or her Guard unit. And, unfortunately, placing National Guard members on orders, as occur when military reservists participate in these competitions, is not a solution to the coverage issue.

The senior Senator from Vermont and I had hoped to offer an amendment to allow the National Guard to spend a limited amount of appropriated funds, capped at $2.5 million per year, on its sports program. It should be emphasized that we only seek to allow the National Guard to participate in the same manner as Active Duty military. The House overwhelmingly passed a National Guard Sports amendment offered by Representative BEREUTER to their Fiscal Year 2003 National Defense Act, which is identical to the change I seek. I urge the chairman and ranking member to adopt the Bereuter provision in the House bill when the Fiscal Year 2003 National Defense Authorization Act goes to conference.

On 17 June 2002, Colonel Willie Davenport, Chief of the National Guard Bureau's Office of Sports Management passed away while on travel between duty stations. I did not know Colonel Davenport, but my staff informs me that he was by all appearances a gentle, modest, and gracious man. My staff worked extensively with Colonel Davenport in preparing an amendment concerning National Guard Sports. I read the Guard's recent press release concerning Colonel Davenport, and I was quite impressed by his accomplishments as a teacher, mentor, coach, and soldier. What many may not know is that Colonel Davenport while serving as a soldier was also a five-time Olympian. He won Gold in the 110-meter high hurdles while representing the United States in the 1968 summer Olympics in Mexico City, and that was only the beginning. Colonel Davenport went on from there to represent the Army and the United States in a variety of capacities in the competitive sports world. He coached the All-Army Track and Field Team from 1993-1996, which was undefeated all 4 years. Colonel Davenport in his capacity as a teacher, mentor, coach, soldier and Olympian made a very positive, and lasting impression on a good number of young men and women who came to know, work, and enjoy his company. A man of his character and accomplishment will be missed. We know that he has prepared a good number of others to continue to light the path ahead. Colonel Davenport had a dream. His dream was to develop a program that would train and sponsor premier Army and Air National Guard athletes for international competition.

Colonel Davenport's National Guard Competitive Events Sports Program provides National Guard members with an opportunity to hone their training-related skills, such as running, swimming, and marksmanship, in a competitive atmosphere. As the National Guard actively recruits new members, this can be another feature in recruitment and retention programs for certain members of the National Guard. Through these competitions, National Guard members can qualify for higher-level national and international competitions, including the Pan American Games and the Olympics.

National Guard members who compete in athletic and small arms competitions could then do so with members of the Active Duty military. Bringing Active, Reserve, and National Guard components together at these competitive sports events will help build greater service component cohesiveness.

While recruiting, retention, esprit de corps, and community support have always been important to maintaining a strong National Guard structure, they have become even more critical as we wage the war on terrorism during which our men and women in the National Guard are more frequently called into duty overseas and to provide security on the homeland.

The National Guard needs a change in the law if Colonel Davenport's National Guard Competitive Events Sports Program is going to survive. The National Guard must be able to sponsor competitions and send its members to those competitions, as they are an important tool and incentive to recruit and retain some of America's best and brightest.

This issue is important to the Vermont Guard and the National Guard as a whole. I hope we can provide the National Guard with the authority they need to have a robust sports program.

Ms. SNOWE. Mr. President, I rise today to speak in favor of the amendment offered by my friend and colleague, Senator HUTCHISON, regarding base closures.

Last year, with the passage of the fiscal year 2002 National Defense Authorization Act, Congress authorized a round of base closures in fiscal year 2005. So we are now on a path to a base closure round in 3 years.

Even before the horrific attacks of September 11, 2001, there were serious questions about both the integrity of the base closing process itself as well as the actual benefits. Now, with the U.S. in the midst of a war on terror, with no end in sight, I do not believe base closure is a wise path. Instead, Congress was pressed to authorize a base closure round in the dark.

Proponents of base closure claim that efforts to reduce infrastructure have not kept pace with our post cold war military force reductions, and that bases must be downsized proportionate to the reduction in total force strength. However, there is no straight line corollary between the size of our forces and the infrastructure required to support them.

Since the end of the cold war, through fiscal year 01, we reduced the military force structure by about 36 percent and reduced the defense budget by about 40 percent. But while the size of the armed services has decreased, the number of contingencies that our service members have been called upon to respond to in the last decade has dramatically increased. And, keep in mind, once property is relinquished and remediated, it is permanently lost as a military asset for all practical purposes.

In addition, advocates of base closure allege that billions of dollars will be saved. And yet, the Department of Defense has admitted that savings will not be immediate—that approximately $10 billion would be needed for up-front environmental and other costs; and that savings would not materialize for years.

This is why I was pleased to team with Senator HUTCHISON in her effort to establish some basic criteria designed to guide the process, and I deeply regret that the Senate will not have the opportunity to adopt these provisions.

Senator HUTCHISON's provision, of which I am an original cosponsor, would set criteria for the base closure process—to make the process less political, less subjective, and more objective.

The Hutchison amendment would have made sure that the process accounts for force structure and mission requirements, force protection, homeland security requirements, proximity to mobilization points, costs of relocating infrastructure including military construction costs, compliance with environmental laws, contract termination costs, unique characteristics of existing facilities, and State and local support for a continued presence by the military.

I want to protect the military's critical readiness and operational assets. I want to protect the home port berthing for our ships and submariners, the airspace that our aircraft fly in and the training areas and ranges that our armed forces require to support and defend our nation and its interests. I want to protect the economic viability of communities in every State. And I want to make absolutely sure that this Nation maintains the military infrastructure it will need in the years to come to support the war on terror.

In short, we must not degrade the readiness of our armed forces by closing more bases. I thank Senator HUTCHISON for her leadership on this important issue, and I remain hopeful that if we press ahead with this ill-conceived base closure round in just 3 years time we will have an opportunity to at least establish sound, basic ground rules.

Mr. WELLSTONE. Mr. President, I rise to address the subject of our Nation's security needs in the context of the Defense authorization bill presently before the Senate.

I believe we must provide the best possible training, equipment, and preparation for our military forces, so they can effectively carry out whatever peacekeeping, humanitarian, war-fighting, or other missions they are given. They deserve the targeted pay raises of 4–6 percent, the incentive pay for difficult-to-fill assignments, and the upgrades to currently substandard housing contained in this bill. Under an amendment adopted by the Senate, the women who serve our country overseas in the Armed Forces will be able to obtain safe, privately funded abortions in overseas military hospitals. For many years running, those in our armed forces have been suffering from a declining quality of life, despite rising military Pentagon budgets. The pressing needs of our dedicated men and women in uniform, and those of their families, must be addressed as they continue to be mobilized in the war against terrorism in response to the attacks of September 11. This bill goes far in addressing those needs, and I will vote for it today.

This bill also addresses a fundamental unfairness in the treatment of America's veterans by allowing concurrent receipt of military retiree benefits and VA disability benefits. Under current law, if you are career military and you earned a military pension, and you also have service-connected disability as a veteran, your military pension will be reduced by the amount you receive in VA disability payments. As a result, hundreds of thousands of American veterans, men and women who have served their country, are being cheated out of retirement benefits by this bizarre rule and it is time to make a change. Our disabled veterans have earned their retirement and deserve to receive fair treatment.

Last year we passed this same legislation in the Senate, but it was gutted in the House. The Defense Department says it will recommend a veto of this bill if we restore these benefits. But I do not believe that the President will veto legislation to restore the benefits earned by disabled veterans, while career military men and women are overseas fighting for their country, at great risk to their lives. Instead of making threats, let's sit down and get this done for America's vets.

I also believe the bill addresses some of the serious flaws in the process by which the Defense Department summarily terminated the Crusader Artillery system. I strongly believe in fair, transparent, and informed government-decision making processes, which did not occur in the case of the Crusader. Three Defense secretaries, three Army secretaries, and three Army chiefs of staff, as well as numerous administration officials, testified in support of the Crusader. Yet within a few weeks of this testimony, the Secretary of Defense abruptly terminated the Crusader. The decision was made without consultation with the Joint Chiefs of Staff, without consultation with the Army, and without consultation with members of Congress. The Senate adopted an amendment which would require the Army Chief of Staff and Secretary of Defense to conduct a serious study of the best way to provide for the Army's need for indirect fire support. At the same time, it provides the Secretary of Defense, following the study, a full range of options. These include termination to continued funding of Crusader, to funding alternative systems to meet battlefield requirements.

Another issue I consider to be extremely important in relation to this bill has to do with our own military presence in the Republic of Colombia. As you know, under Plan Colombia, restrictions were placed on the number of U.S. troops and contract personnel in Colombia at any given time. Initially, a 500 troop, 300 contractor limitation was in place. Over time, however, the Senate has acted to address the needs of the Departments of Defense and State by shifting the ration of troop and contractors to 1:1. As a result of recent Foreign Operations Appropriations legislation, the troop cap dropped from 500 to 400, while the contractor cap was lifted from 300 to 400 personnel.

Frankly, I am concerned that attempts may be made to raise the troop and contractor caps in Colombia. I have long argued that the United States should be careful and targeted in how it approaches the conflict in Colombia. I'm sure that most Senators would agree that it is important to retain the present limitations on U.S. troops and contractors in Colombia at 800 thru 400 troops, 400 contractors. Moreover, it is my understanding that the Department of Defense has not asked for the troop cap to be raised in Colombia, nor has the administration sought to have the troop cap waived. For this reason, I would like to be on record in support of present troop and contractor limitations in Colombia.

Although I expect future debate on the contentious issues surrounding U.S. policy in the Andes, I think it is important for the Senate to be clear on this component of our aid to Colombia. I am concerned that we are getting deeper and deeper into a devastating civil conflict with myriad violent actors of ill repute. That said, I continue to hold out hope that the Congress can work with the administration to craft a policy for Colombia that reflects the best of American values, and acknowledges the economic and social needs of Colombia's beleaguered population. The administration should retain the troop and contractor caps in Colombia, and Congress should be adequately consulted should they decide to seek any such change.

I also have concerns about the bill, especially about its missile defense provisions. The initial committee language would have cut total funding for missile defense from $7.6 billion to $6.8 billion. The Senate adopted an amendment to restore the entire $814.3 million that the Senate Armed Services Committee cut from missile defense, with the President being given the option of spending the funds on either missile defense programs or on combating terrorism. It was not my preference that the cut be restored, but I agree with the Senate's unanimous sentiment that these funds be used for the urgent priority of combating terrorism, and my strong hope is that the President will not disregard the will of the Senate and use these funds for missile defense instead.

I have long been a critic of Ballistic Missile Defense, BMD, and I still have strong reservations about the feasibility, cost, and rationale for such a system. The last time I addressed missile defense on the Senate floor was on September 25, exactly two weeks after terrorists destroyed the World Trade Center. I argued then that pressing ahead on BMD would make the U.S. less rather than more secure. Instead, I suggested the Senate give homeland defense the high priority it deserves by transferring funds to it from missile defense programs.

Given the justifiable concerns of Americans about possible terrorist attacks on U.S. nuclear facilities, it makes more sense to use the funds to protect our citizens against a priority threat rather than to counter a low priority threat with a very costly system that a number of informed scientists believe may never work.

Under Chairman LEVIN's leadership, the committee eased the effects of the administration's April decision to provide emergency funding for only 7 percent of Energy Secretary Abraham's request for $398 million to improve security of nuclear weapons and waste. In a letter sent by Secretary Abraham to OMB Director Mitchell Daniels obtained by the New York Times, the Secretary stressed that the $398 million he was requesting was "a critical down payment to the safety and security of our nation and its people." I couldn't agree more. But the administration obviously didn't agree and approved only $26 million.

The April 23rd New York Times article on the matter made clear that the programs covered by the DOE request are vital to the protection of the United States from terrorist attack. Unbelievably, funding was turned down for several programs designed to safeguard nuclear weapons and weapons material in storage, including: $41 million to reduce the number of places where weapons-grade plutonium and uranium were stored; $12 million to detect explosives in packages and vehicles at DOE sites; $13 million to improve perimeter barriers and fences; $30 million to improve DOE computers, including the ability to communicate critical cyber-threat and incident information; and $34 million for increasing security at DOE laboratories.

Who can argue that BMD funding for programs that can't be justified by DOD or are duplicative should take priority over programs designed to deter terrorist actions against U.S. nuclear weapons, weapons materials, and weapons laboratories? Just a few days ago, reports of possible terrorist use of a dirty bomb against the United States caused widespread public alarm. I am sure the American people would be even more alarmed by a threatened terrorist attack against DOE nuclear facilities.

An attack by ballistic missiles is one of the least likely threats we face. Much more probable threats which a missile defense won't address are nuclear, biological or chemical attacks using planes, boats, trucks or suitcases. And as we are all aware even an impenetrable missile defense would have been useless against the assault on the World Trade Center. In short, I remain convinced that a national missile defense would be ineffective in preventing attacks by rogue states or terrorists.

While the intelligence community continues to devote considerable resources to estimating both the threat of an ICBM and unconventional attack on the United States, it still finds that unconventional attacks are the more likely of the two. For example, recent testimony by the National Intelligence Officer, NIO, for Strategic and Nuclear Programs, before a subcommittee of the Senate Governmental Affairs Committee repeated previous intelligence community judgments that U.S. territory is more likely to be struck by non-missile means of delivering weapons of mass destruction, WMD, than by ICBM's. His remarks were based on an unclassified version of a National Intelligence Estimate, NIE, that was released in January entitled: "Foreign Missile Developments and the Ballistic Missile Threat Through 2015." NIE's represent the collective judgment of the U.S. intelligence community.

In testifying on why using non-missile means of delivering WMD's are the more likely option, the NIO adduced reasons similar to those cited before by other intelligence sources. Compared to ICBM's, he said, non-missile means are "less costly, easier to acquire, and more reliable and adequate . . . and also can be used with attribution."

The NIO meant by this that non-missile means have the advantage of being used without imperiling those responsible, while ICBM's have "signatures" enabling the U.S. to quickly identify the attackers. Consequently, countries like North Korea, Iran, and Iraq which he said could be capable of launching missiles at the U.S. by 2015, would be risking a devastating counterattack by the United States. The key question of why these countries would risk destruction by firing an ICBM at us, when non-missiles can be used without a return address has yet to be revealed by intelligence or defense sources. North Korean, Iraqi, and Iranian leaders are evil, but they aren't suicidal.

The NIO noted some states armed with missiles have shown "a willingness to use chemical weapons with other delivery means," adding that U.S. territory is more likely to be attacked with non-missile WMD by terrorists. He concluded the intelligence community believes that the U.S. will face a growing missile threat because missiles have become important regional weapons for numerous countries and provide a level of prestige, coercive diplomacy and deterrence unmatched by non-missile means.

But this thesis has been ably refuted by Joseph Cirincione, head of the Carnegie Endowment's Nuclear Proliferation Program. In a February speech before the American Association for the Advancement of Science he argued that the U.S. is facing a declining ballistic missile threat rather than the increasing threat the intelligence community sees.

Cirincione focuses on the 1998 Rumsfeld Commission study which assessed the ballistic missile threat to the United States and took a much more alarmist view than intelligence assessments that had examined the same issue. The Rumsfeld Commission found that North Korea and Iran were devoting "extraordinary resources" to developing ballistic missiles capabilities that pose "a substantial and immediate danger to the U.S., its vital interests and its allies."

The Rumsfeld Commission report was an outgrowth of harsh attacks by several leading members of Congress on 1993 and 1995 NIE's. The 1993 NIE concluded that only China and several states of the former Soviet Union had the capability to attack the continental U.S. with land-based ballistic missiles, adding that "... the probability is low that any other country will acquire this capability during the next 15 years." In a similar vein, the 1995 NIE, said: "The Intelligence Community judges that in the next 15 years no country other than the major declared nuclear powers [i.e. Russia and China] will develop a ballistic missile that could threaten the contiguous 48 states or Canada."

In the aftermath of harsh congressional criticism of the estimates, a congressionally mandated panel in December 1996 led by former Bush Administration CIA Director Robert Gates reviewed the 1995 NIE. The panel concurred with the NIE, finding that it was unlikely the continental U.S. would face an ICBM threat from a third world country before 2010 "even taking into account the acquisition of foreign hardware and technical assistance, and that case is even stronger than was presented in the estimate."

Apparently displeased by the Gates panel report as much as they were by the 1995 NIE, Congress mandated the Rumsfeld Commission panel which finally provided a different answer. The 1998 Commission report concluded that a new nation could plausibly field an ICBM "with little or no warning." In the aftermath, the intelligence community adopted the "could standard" which became apparent in the 1999 NIE. That consensus report contained the following dissent from one of the intelligence agencies involved in producing the NIE: Some analysts believe that the prominence given to missiles countries "could" develop gives more credence than is warranted to developments that may prove implausible.

The "could" standard was one of three major changes made to assessment methodology. The other shifts were to substantially reduce the range of missiles considered serious threats by shifting from threats to 48 continental States to threats to any of the land mass of the 50 States and changing the time line from when a country would first deploy a long-range missile to when a country could first test a long-range missile. The geographic criterion change had the effect of shortening missile range by some 3,000 miles, the distance from Seattle to the western-most tip of Alaska's Aleutian Islands. In effect, this means the North Korea's medium-range ballistic missile the Taepodong-1 could be considered the same threat as an ICBM. The time line shift represents a decrease of five years, which previous estimates said was the difference between first test and likely deployment. Moreover, the new NIE's don't require a successful test.

The net effect of these three changes was to shift the goal posts in the direction indicated by the Rumsfeld Commission. These shifts account for almost all of the differences between the 1999 and 2001 NIE's and earlier estimates. Rather than representing some new, dramatic increase in the ballistic missile threat, they represent lowered standards for judging the threat.

Despite administration optimism about developing BMD and the prospects for quick deployment, prominent scientists and missile experts remain skeptical. Here are a few examples. Richard Garwin of the Council on Foreign Relations, a member of the Rumsfeld Commission, and a leading expert in military applications of science, is dubious about the administration's approach to BMD and its rationale for pursuing it.

A report in the Dallas Morning News quotes Garwin as questioning the emphasis on destroying missiles in mid-course, warning "it's not a sensible thing to do." He says the major flaw is that an enemy can defeat the system by such means as concealing the payload bomb in a balloon the size of a house so that hitting the balloon would have little chance of disabling the weapon. Deploying numerous, sophisticated decoys would also be an effective counter-measure.

Garwin suspects DOD money is going to the mid-course approach because its proponents aren't really hoping to use BMD against rogue states as they claim, but are aiming at "China first, then Russia." He reasons that while ships or land-based launch sites would be suitable for shooting down Iraqi or North Korean missiles in boost-phase, they would be useless against Russia and China. A mid-course strategy, however, could counter a limited missile attack from those nations. The implications are chilling. I hope and pray that Garwin is wrong about BMD's true mission, because if Russia and China reach the same conclusion, we may be in for a renewed nuclear arms race.

Dr. Garwin now questions the rationale for BMD, despite his participation in the Rumsfeld Commission which assessed the ballistic missile threat to the United States. He was quoted in a June 12 news wire report as stating: "Fifteen million . . . cargo containers enter the United States every year with a minute chance of being inspected. Why should a nation with a few ICBM's risk their being destroyed pre-emptively when other means are available for delivery?"

Steven Weinberg, a Nobel Laureate in physics, is one of the most prominent and trenchant scientific critics of BMD. He strongly believes that it would be smarter to put the billions pouring into missile defense into other homeland security efforts. Weinberg points out that if the U.S. deploys BMD, intelligence analysts estimate China will sharply expand its arsenal from about 20 ICBM's to 200 or so. Should this occur both India and Pakistan would probably also expand their nuclear arsenals. As we all know, the last thing the world needs is a spiraling nuclear arms race in South Asia.

Weinberg believes a BMD system would be fatally flawed. He contends that missile defenses are easy to defeat. The attacker surrounding his warheads with decoys, he says always has the last move. He makes a persuasive case that a ballistic missile attack on the United States is an unlikely threat. The real danger we face, he says, is the spread of nuclear material that can be set off without missiles. He concludes that President Bush is pursuing "a missile defense undertaken for its own sake, rather than any application it may have in defending our own country." While I doubt this is an accurate characterization of the President's motives, I agree with Weinberg's conclusion that the spread of nuclear materials is now a much more serious threat to our country than a ballistic missile attack.

Both distinguished missile experts and the media have opposed the Administration's new secrecy policy which will classify previously unclassified materials regarding targets and countermeasures to be used in flight intercept test of the Ground-Based Mid-course Defense system.

Such secrecy is both undesirable and unnecessary. BMD development has benefitted much from public scrutiny by physicists and other scientists, weapons experts, watchdog groups, and the press. Cutting off access would be clearly counterproductive. Philip Coyle, who served as Assistant Secretary of Defense and DOD's Director of Operational Test and Evaluation from 1994–2001 is one of the nation's foremost experts on missile defense. He argues that it will take some 20 developmental tests costing $100 million a piece and may take years before testing with realistic decoys can start. Coyle believes secrecy is premature since there's "no danger" the test program will be in a position to "give away any secrets" for years to come.

Coyle also is dismayed that MDA is withholding information from the Pentagon's own independent review offices, such as the Director of Operational Test and Evaluation. Current laws give the Director rights to unfettered access to all major DOD acquisition programs. Who can argue with Coyle when he says that if independent review of testing is stifled DOD itself won't be able "to make reasonable judgements about the program's viability."

The final issue I want to raise is the matter of the adequacy of current testing. Two years ago I joined Senator DURBIN in introducing an amendment to require more realistic testing of the national missile defense system. At the time I stated on the floor that missile defense testing used at that time proved little or nothing: "Current testing determines whether or not the system works against cooperative targets on a test range. This methodology is insufficient to determine the technological feasibility of the system against likely threats. At present, even if the tests had been hailed as total successes, they would have proved nothing more than the system is unproven against real threats. . . . Current testing does not take countermeasures into account."

Unfortunately, what I said was true 2 years ago is still true today. Philip Coyle has recently said that the missile defense program "is not at the point where the types of decoys being used have even begun to be representative of the likely enemy countermeasures against missile defense." He noted that so far the decoys used have been "round balloons which don't look at all like a target re-entry vehicle." Coyle who may know more about BMD testing than anyone, concluded "it may be the end of this decade before . . . testing with 'real world decoys' can begin."

The administration plans to rush a rudimentary missile defense system into the field beginning in 2004. Few scientists believe that it will be an effective system. Dr. David Wright, Senior Scientist, Union of Concerned Scientists and an MIT research physicist recently charged that "rather than waiting until the technical issues are addressed, it is rushing [to deploy] immature defense systems. . . . These systems will not provide 'emergency capability' against real-world threats, only the illusion of capability." I couldn't agree more with Dr. Wright.

I still agree with the U.S. intelligence community, noted scientists and missile experts that ballistic missiles are one of the least likely threats we face. Much more probable threats are WMD attacks using planes, boats, trucks, or suitcases. Eminent scientists are skeptical of Administration optimism about prospects for developing and quickly deploying BMD. I fully share their skepticism.

The new DOD secrecy policy which will classify previously unclassified material regarding targets and countermeasure used in BMD is undesirable and indefensible. I strongly oppose MDA withholding information from the Pentagon's own independent review offices and applaud the Committee bill for requiring these offices to provide Congress and DOD with annual assessments of the military utility and potential operational effectiveness of major missile defense programs.

In conclusion, I believe in maintaining a strong national defense. We face a number of credible threats in the world today, including terrorism and the proliferation of weapons of mass destruction. We must make sure we carefully identify the threats we face and tailor our defense spending to meet them. We could do a better job of that than this bill does, and I hope that as we move to conference, the committee will make every effort to transfer funds from relatively low-priority programs to those designed to meet the urgent and immediate anti-terrorism and defense of our forces.

Mrs. CARNAHAN. Mr. President, I am very pleased that the Senate has agreed to accept an amendment to the Defense Department authorization bill which will protect small businesses that contract with our armed forces. I thank Senator KERRY for his leadership on this issue. I am proud to have worked with him on this amendment, on behalf of the men and women who are living the American dream by starting and growing their own businesses.

The amendment that I cosponsored with Senator KERRY is very simple. It seeks to preserve opportunities for small businesses across the country to contract with the United States Army to provide goods and services for our soldiers. The Secretary of the Army recently developed a plan to consolidate procurement contracts. Our amendment requires the Secretary to report to Congress on the effect that this consolidation plan has on the participation of small businesses in Army procurement.

I share the Secretary's goal of getting the most for taxpayers' money. And I want to ensure that our procurement policies are efficient. But I believe that the best procurement policies enable all businesses, large and small, to compete for contracts. After all, any economist will tell you that competition will drive prices down and quality up. When the Government consolidates many contracts into one enormous, unwieldy contract, it is nearly impossible for small or local businesses to compete.

I have met with many small business owners from Missouri who have told me that they are anxious to provide quality goods and services to our military; but too often their businesses have been unable to compete because we have bundled together so many diverse procurement needs into one contract that only very large corporations have the capacity to fill the entire contract. Such a system does not benefit our military or our taxpayers.

I am a cosponsor of the Small Business Federal Contractor Safeguard Act, S. 2466. This legislation addresses the problem of consolidated or bundled contracts. Of course, the Government should do all it can to take advantage of economies of scale in production or other benefits that can result from a large contract with a single supplier. Nothing in our legislation would prevent large contracts that serve a genuine economic purpose. However, I am concerned that too often contracts are bundled together simply for the sake of bureaucratic efficiency. This is a disservice to us all, and I am hopeful that the Senate will soon act on S. 2466.

I am concerned that the Army's decision to proactively consolidate contracts is a step in the wrong direction. The Army has assured me that they have considered the interests of small businesses. Our amendment simply asks the Army to report back to Congress on their progress as they reform their procurement policies. I hope that the report will be filled with good news. I hope that we will learn of the Army exceeding small business participation goals. I look forward to reading such a report. But I believe that it is imperative that we follow this issue closely. We must ensure that our military is prepared to take full advantage of the tremendous opportunities available from contracting with small businesses across the country.

I thank my colleagues for joining me in asking that the Secretary of the Army provide us with this important report.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Nevada.

Mr. REID. Mr. President, I have spoken to the two managers, staffs on both sides. It appears it would be better to vote now on final passage of this most important bill. I should alert all Members that later this afternoon, when Secretary Rumsfeld's briefing is completed, we will have another vote on a resolution dealing with the Pledge of Allegiance.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Arizona?

Mr. KYL. Would the Senator yield for a question?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Arizona is recognized.

Mr. KYL. Would it be possible to lock in the vote at 3:15? I am sorry.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Virginia.

Mr. WARNER. Mr. President, I would like to express my profound appreciation to the distinguished Senator from Michigan for his able assistance. We have worked together, this is our 24th year on bills of this matter.

Again, I think we have achieved a bill which is in the best interest of the country. I thank you, sir. I thank all members of the Armed Services Committee. I thank all staff persons on the Armed Services Committee, particularly my able assistant, the chief of staff on the Republican side, Ms. Ansley, and her counterpart—maybe the word “counterpart” is a little soft—her partner, David Lyles.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Michigan.

Mr. LEVIN. Mr. President, let me thank my ranking member. I can't imagine having someone to work with who is better than Senator WARNER. This has been a long relationship and a trusting relationship. It makes all the difference in getting legislation addressed, much less passed in this body.

I thank my staff, David Lyles, and crew, Judy Ansley and her staff, who, again, worked in a bipartisan way to make this bill happen, to make it possible for us to pass it. I think this is almost record time. This is only the second time in the last 10 years, I believe, where we have been able to pass the Defense authorization bill prior to July 1.

We have resolved our differences in a way which has contributed to the security of the Nation. We have had our disagreements. We are here to have disagreements, to try to resolve them, and where we can't resolve them by compromise, to have votes. That is what we have done. We again succeeded.

I also thank our majority leader, Senator DASCHLE. I thank Senator LOTT, Senator NICKLES, and particularly, I single out, to his embarrassment, again, Senator REID of Nevada. He makes the wheels run on this floor. He provides the oil and the grease which makes it possible for the wheels of this little buggy of ours to keep going. Without him, I can't imagine how we would be able to function as efficiently as we do with all of the inefficiencies to which we all know the Senate is subjected.

Mr. WARNER. I join my colleague in thanking our distinguished majority leader and Republican leader, who worked hand in hand with us, and, indeed, the majority whip. I would only revise one thing about the majority whip: He does use, as he drives the buggy, the whip. But he uses it judiciously and fairly. I received a little crack this morning myself, as did one other colleague from the other side. It was equal.

At any rate, he succeeded, and I thank my dear friend. I have the utmost admiration for him.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The deputy majority leader.

Mr. REID. Mr. President, working with these two experienced veterans, competent legislators has been a pleasure.

UNANIMOUS CONSENT AGREEMENT—S. 2690

Mr. REID. Mr. President, I also ask unanimous consent that immediately, following the vote on passage of the DOD bill, the Senate proceed to consideration of S. 2690, introduced earlier today by Senator HUTCHINSON and others, which reaffirms the reference to one nation under God in the Pledge of Allegiance; further, I ask the bill then be immediately read the third time, and the Senate proceed to a vote on passage of the bill with no intervening action or debate at 3:20 p.m. today.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. REID. I ask for the yeas and nays on passage of S. 2690.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there a sufficient second?

There appears to be a sufficient second.

The yeas and nays were ordered.

Mr. REID. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that rule XII, paragraph 4, be waived in relation to the Defense authorization bill.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. REID. I ask for the yeas and nays on final passage of S. 2514.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there a sufficient second?

There is a sufficient second.

Mr. REID. Mr. President, I ask that S. 2514 be read the third time, and the Senate then vote on passage of S. 2514 without any intervening action or debate.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The question is on the engrossment and third reading of the bill.

The bill was ordered to be engrossed for the third reading and was read the third time.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The bill having been read the third time, the question is, Shall the bill, as amended, pass?

The clerk will call the roll.

The legislative clerk called the roll.

Mr. NICKLES. I announce that the Senator from North Carolina (Mr. HELMS) is necessarily absent.

I further announce that if present and voting the Senator from North Carolina (Mr. HELMS) would vote “yea.”

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Are there any other Senators in the Chamber desiring to vote?

The result was announced—yeas 97, nays 2, as follows:

[Rollcall Vote No. 165 Leg.]

YEAS—97

Akaka	Durbin	McConnell
Allard	Edwards	Mikulski
Allen	Ensign	Miller
Baucus	Enzi	Murkowski
Bayh	Feinstein	Murray
Bennett	Fitzgerald	Nelson (FL)
Biden	Frist	Nelson (NE)
Bingaman	Graham	Nickles
Bond	Gramm	Reed
Boxer	Grassley	Reid
Breaux	Gregg	Roberts
Brownback	Hagel	Rockefeller
Bunning	Harkin	Santorum
Burns	Hatch	Sarbanes
Campbell	Hollings	Schumer
Cantwell	Hutchinson	Sessions
Carnahan	Hutchison	Shelby
Carper	Inhofe	Smith (NH)
Chafee	Inouye	Smith (OR)
Cleland	Jeffords	Snowe
Clinton	Johnson	Specter
Cochran	Kennedy	Stabenow
Collins	Kerry	Stevens
Conrad	Kohl	Thomas
Corzine	Kyl	Thompson
Craig	Landrieu	Thurmond
Crapo	Leahy	Torricelli
Daschle	Levin	Voinovich
Dayton	Lieberman	Warner
DeWine	Lincoln	Wellstone
Dodd	Lott	Wyden
Domenici	Lugar
Dorgan	McCain

NAYS—2

Byrd

Feingold

NOT VOTING—1

Helms

The bill (S. 2514), as amended, was passed.

(The bill will be printed in a future edition of the RECORD.)

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The provisions of the order will be executed.

DEPARTMENT OF DEFENSE AUTHORIZATION ACT FOR FISCAL YEAR 2003

The bill (S. 2515) to authorize appropriations for fiscal year 2003 for military activities of the Department of Defense, to prescribe personnel strengths for such fiscal year for the Armed Forces, and for other purposes, was considered, ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

MILITARY CONSTRUCTION AUTHORIZATION ACT FOR FISCAL YEAR 2003

The bill (S. 2516) to authorize appropriations for fiscal year 2003 for military construction, and for other purposes, was considered, ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

DEPARTMENT OF ENERGY NATIONAL SECURITY ACT FOR FISCAL YEAR 2003

The bill (S. 2517) to authorize appropriations for fiscal year 2003 for defense activities of the Department of Energy, and for other purposes, was considered, ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

Mr. REID. Mr. President, I now ask unanimous consent that the Senate proceed to the consideration of Calendar No. 379, H.R. 4546, the House companion measure; that all after the enacting clause be stricken and the text of S. 2514, as passed by the Senate, be inserted in lieu thereof; that the bill be read a third time, passed and the motion to reconsider be laid upon the table; that the Senate insist on its amendment, request a conference with the House on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses, and that the Chair be authorized to appoint conferees on the part of the Senate, with the above occurring without further intervening action or debate.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The bill (H.R. 4546), as amended, was read the third time and passed.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. CARPER) appointed Mr. LEVIN, Mr. KENNEDY, Mr. BYRD, Mr. LIEBERMAN, Mr. CLELAND, Ms. LANDRIEU, Mr. REED, Mr. AKAKA, Mr. NELSON of Florida, Mr. NELSON of Nebraska, Mrs. CARNAHAN, Mr. DAYTON, Mr. BINGAMAN, Mr. WARNER, Mr. THURMOND, Mr. MCCAIN, Mr. SMITH of New Hampshire, Mr. INHOFE, Mr. SANTORUM, Mr. ROBERTS, Mr. ALLARD, Mr. HUTCHINSON, Mr. SESSIONS, Ms. COLLINS, and Mr. BUNNING conferees on the part of the Senate.

PROVIDING FOR CONDITIONAL ADJOURNMENT OR RECESS OF BOTH HOUSES OF CONGRESS

Mr. DASCHLE. I ask unanimous consent that the Senate proceed to the immediate consideration of the adjournment resolution, that the concurrent resolution be agreed to, and the motion to reconsider be laid upon the table without intervening action or debate.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The concurrent resolution (S. Con. Res. 125) was agreed to, as follows:

S. CON. RES. 125

Resolved by the Senate (the House of Representatives concurring), That when the Senate recesses or adjourns at the close of business on Thursday, June 27, 2002, or Friday, June 28, 2002, on a motion offered pursuant to this concurrent resolution by its Majority Leader or his designee, it stand recessed or adjourned until 12:00 noon on Monday, July 8, 2002, or until such other time on that day as may be specified in the motion to recess or adjourn, or until Members are notified to reassemble pursuant to section 2 of this concurrent resolution, whichever occurs first; and that when the House adjourns on the legislative day of Thursday, June 27, 2002, Friday, June 28, 2002, or Saturday, June 29, 2002, on a motion offered pursuant to this concurrent resolution by its Majority Leader or his designee, it stand adjourned until 2:00 p.m. on Monday, July 8, 2002, or until Members are notified to reassemble pursuant to section 2 of this concurrent resolution, whichever occurs first.

SEC. 2. The Majority Leader of the Senate and the Speaker of the House, acting jointly after consultation with the Minority Leader of the Senate and the Minority Leader of the House, shall notify the Members of the Senate and House, respectively, to reassemble at such place and time as they may designate whenever, in their opinion, the public interest shall warrant it.

MORNING BUSINESS

Mr. DASCHLE. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the Senate now proceed to a period for morning business until the hour of 3:20 p.m., when I understand the next vote will occur.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mrs. CARNAHAN). The Senator from Arkansas.

TO REAFFIRM THE REFERENCE TO ONE NATION UNDER GOD IN THE PLEDGE OF ALLEGIANCE

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Under a previous order, the Senate will proceed to the consideration of S. 2690.

The clerk will report the bill by title.

The assistant legislative clerk read as follows:

The bill (S. 2690) to reaffirm the reference to "One Nation Under God" in the Pledge of Allegiance bill.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Arkansas.

Mr. HUTCHINSON. At 3:20 this afternoon we will vote on a piece of legislation I introduced to reaffirm Congress' commitment to the Pledge of Allegiance and our national motto "In God we trust." I hope my colleagues will join me in this reaffirmation. Many already have.

I ask unanimous consent the list of 32 Senators as original cosponsors be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the material was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

ORIGINAL COSPONSORS OF S. 2690

Mr. Sessions, Mr. Lott, Mr. Nichols, Mr. Burns, Ms. Collins, Mrs. Hutchison, Mr. Helms, Mr. Inhoff.

Mr. Campbell, Mr. Roberts, Mr. DeWine, Mr. McConnell, Mr. Shelby, Mr. Bennett, Mr. Stevens, Mr. Voinovich.

Mr. Phil Gramm, Mr. George Allen, Mr. Ensign, Mr. Bob Smith, Mr. Bunning, Mr. Enzi, Mr. Hagel, Mr. Lugar.

Mr. Bond, Mr. Murkowski, Mr. Craig, Mr. Thomas, Mr. Crapo, Mr. Brownback, Mr. Domenici, Mr. Kyl, Mr. Zell Miller.

Mr. HUTCHINSON. Yesterday's decision by the Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals in Newdow v. U.S. Congress was, in a word, outrageous. It is inexplicable that this man so seriously objected to his daughter having to listen and watch others recite the pledge at their school. Keep in mind, in this country no one can be forced to recite the Pledge of Allegiance. It is simply a matter of respect.

It is appalling that this court took the time and judicial resources to resuscitate this case which the district court had already dismissed for failing to state a claim. This complaint was a mess. The plaintiff, Dr. Newdow, who represented himself, asked a Federal court to order the President to change a law. The court took great pains to find a claim in Mr. Newdow's complaint and then to rule in his favor.

He did this at a time when Federal judicial resources are very strained. The Nation is trying to function in the speedy manner required by the sixth amendment, with 89 judicial vacancies, a staggering number, representing 10 percent of the Federal judiciary.

According to the Judicial Conference, in the past three decades, a U.S. Courts of Appeals judges' average caseload increased by nearly 200 percent. In light of these strained resources, it is appalling to me that the court took time to resuscitate this very flawed case.

The Pledge of Allegiance plays a very important part in the citizenship experience of every American. It is part of the patriotic thread that weaves us all together in times of crisis and times of celebration.

If the ninth circuit's interpretation of the establishment clause stands, many national ceremonies and celebrations will be negatively impacted. Singing of songs with references to God on government property will be prohibited. For example, songs such as "Star Spangled Banner," "God Bless America," and "America the Beautiful," which Americans sing every Fourth of July on the steps of this building. But such references are not just important in ties of celebration. On September 11 we stood on the steps of the Capitol and sang "God Bless America." Countless Americans uttered the phrase "God Bless America" and prayed together in public spaces. This ruling could prohibit that.

Judge Ferdinand Fernandez wisely dissented from this decision. His words have been quoted before. He said it beautifully. Such phrases as "In God we trust" or "under God" have no tendency to establish a religion in this country or to suppress anyone's exercise or nonexercise of religion. He went on, in eloquent terms, and defends his dissent.

I believe this ruling will be soundly rejected. I was so pleased that yesterday the majority leader and the minority leader moved the Senate very quickly in expressing its disapproval immediately following the ruling yesterday. The Ninth Circuit is not unfamiliar with going out on a limb, and the Supreme Court is not unfamiliar with striking it down. This circuit is the most overturned circuit in the country.

There is certainly nothing wrong with pushing the envelope and using an original interpretation on novel issues of law, but this court repeatedly makes rulings which countervail standing precedent. Instead of administering justice, it seems some judges in the ninth circuit are far more interested in making social policy statements. It is not what the Constitution asks them to do and it is not what the American people pay them for.

The first amendment prohibits Congress from passing any law establishing a religion. Coming as they did from a land with an established religion where those of other faiths were not well tolerated, they set the highest value on freedom of religion. But they were not advocating freedom from religion.

By passing this legislation today the Senate will make clear that we understand the Founders' intention. We will reiterate our support for the Pledge of Allegiance as codified and our national motto, "In God we trust."

Finally, I commend the Judiciary Committee today in voting out the nomination of Lavenski Smith to the Eighth Circuit Court of Appeals. Lavenski Smith, who is from the State of Arkansas will make an outstanding jurist on the Federal bench. He is supremely well qualified as a former member of the Arkansas Supreme Court. He understands the proper role of the judiciary.

I applaud the committee's unanimous vote today. I believe if we did not have the vacancies on the Federal bench to the extent that we now have them, the decision from the Ninth Circuit would not have occurred. In Judge Smith's confirmation hearings last month, he expressed his unshakable respect for an adherence to precedent. He said even when it goes against his personal beliefs, he would follow precedence. Clearly, we need people like Lavenski Smith on the bench.

I am pleased that the Judiciary Committee has taken this step. I am also pleased that the Senate will, today, make clear to the Federal judiciary, our reaffirmation of our Pledge of Allegiance and our national motto "In God we trust."

I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The assistant bill clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. HUTCHINSON. Madam President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. HUTCHINSON. Madam President, I ask unanimous consent that Senator ZELL MILLER be added as an original cosponsor on the bill on which we are about to vote.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. HUTCHINSON. I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The assistant bill clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. SESSIONS. Madam President, I ask unanimous consent the order for the quorum call be dispensed with.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. SESSIONS. Madam President, I would like to speak in support of the legislation proposed by Senator HUTCHINSON from Arkansas. I am a cosponsor and helped draft this legislation. I would say this: This is not an itty-bitty issue. This is a big issue. The Congress and States and cities have been expressing a desire to have, and be allowed to have, an expression of faith in the public life of America. The courts have been on a trend for decades now to constrict that.

The opinion out of the Ninth Circuit is not as aberrational as some would think. The Supreme Court, in my view, has been inconsistent and unclear. It has cracked down on some very small instances of public expression of faith. Our courts have made decisions such as constraining a valedictorian's address at a high school. Certainly our prayer in schools has been rigorously constricted or eliminated in any kind of normal classroom setting, as has the prayer at football games.

I will just say we hope the courts will reconsider some of their interpretations of the establishment clause and the free exercise clause of the first amendment and help heal the hurt in this country.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The hour of 3:20 has arrived.

Mr. DASCHLE. Madam President, I wish to announce this will be a final rollcall vote of the day and the week. Our next rollcall vote will occur Tuesday morning following the July Fourth recess. Senators should be on notice that we will have a vote that morning and votes throughout the day and the week.

I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The question is on the engrossment and third reading of the bill.

The bill was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading and was read the third time.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The bill having been read the third time, the question is, Shall the bill pass?

The yeas and nays have been ordered.

The clerk will call the roll.

The senior assistant bill clerk called the roll.

Mr. NICKLES. I announce that the Senator from North Carolina (Mr. HELMS) is necessarily absent.

I further announce that if present and voting the Senator from North Carolina (Mr. HELMS) would vote "yea."

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Are there any other Senators in the Chamber desiring to vote?

The result was announced—yeas 99, nays 0, as follows:

[Rollcall Vote No. 166 Leg.]

YEAS—99

Akaka	Dorgan	Lugar
Allard	Durbin	McCain
Allen	Edwards	McConnell
Baucus	Ensign	Mikulski
Bayh	Enzi	Miller
Bennett	Feingold	Murkowski
Biden	Feinstein	Murray
Bingaman	Fitzgerald	Nelson (FL)
Bond	Frist	Nelson (NE)
Boxer	Graham	Nickles
Breaux	Gramm	Reed
Brownback	Grassley	Reid
Bunning	Gregg	Roberts
Burns	Hagel	Rockefeller
Byrd	Harkin	Santorum
Campbell	Hatch	Sarbanes
Cantwell	Hollings	Schumer
Carnahan	Hutchinson	Sessions
Carper	Hutchison	Shelby
Chafee	Inhofe	Smith (NH)
Cleland	Inouye	Smith (OR)
Clinton	Jeffords	Snowe
Cochran	Johnson	Specter
Collins	Kennedy	Stabenow
Conrad	Kerry	Stevens
Corzine	Kohl	Thomas
Craig	Kyl	Thompson
Crapo	Landrieu	Thurmond
Daschle	Leahy	Torricelli
Dayton	Levin	Voinovich
DeWine	Lieberman	Warner
Dodd	Lincoln	Wellstone
Domenici	Lott	Wyden

NOT VOTING—1

Helms

The bill (S. 2690) was passed, as follows:

S. 2690

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

SECTION 1. FINDINGS.

Congress finds the following:

(1) On November 11, 1620, prior to embarking for the shores of America, the Pilgrims signed the Mayflower Compact that declared: "Having undertaken, for the Glory of God and the advancement of the Christian Faith and honor of our King and country, a voyage to plant the first colony in the northern parts of Virginia,".

(2) On July 4, 1776, America's Founding Fathers, after appealing to the "Laws of Nature, and of Nature's God" to justify their separation from Great Britain, then declared: "We hold these Truths to be self-evident, that all Men are created equal, that they are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable Rights, that among these are Life, Liberty, and the Pursuit of Happiness".

(3) In 1781, Thomas Jefferson, the author of the Declaration of Independence and later the Nation's third President, in his work titled "Notes on the State of Virginia" wrote: "God who gave us life gave us liberty. And can the liberties of a nation be thought secure when we have removed their only firm basis, a conviction in the minds of the people that these liberties are of the Gift of God. That they are not to be violated but with His wrath? Indeed, I tremble for my country when I reflect that God is just; that his justice cannot sleep forever.".

(4) On May 14, 1787, George Washington, as President of the Constitutional Convention, rose to admonish and exhort the delegates and declared: "If to please the people we offer what we ourselves disapprove, how can we afterward defend our work? Let us raise a standard to which the wise and the honest can repair; the event is in the hand of God!"

(5) On July 21, 1789, on the same day that it approved the Establishment Clause concerning religion, the First Congress of the United States also passed the Northwest Ordinance, providing for a territorial government for lands northwest of the Ohio River, which declared: "Religion, morality, and knowledge, being necessary to good government and the happiness of mankind, schools and the means of education shall forever be encouraged."

(6) On September 25, 1789, the First Congress unanimously approved a resolution calling on President George Washington to proclaim a National Day of Thanksgiving for the people of the United States by declaring, "a day of public thanksgiving and prayer, to be observed by acknowledging, with grateful hearts, the many signal favors of Almighty God, especially by affording them an opportunity peaceably to establish a constitution of government for their safety and happiness."

(7) On November 19, 1863, President Abraham Lincoln delivered his Gettysburg Address on the site of the battle and declared: "It is rather for us to be here dedicated to the great task remaining before us—that from these honored dead we take increased devotion to that cause for which they gave the last full measure of devotion—that we here highly resolve that these dead shall not have died in vain—that this Nation, under God, shall have a new birth of freedom—and that Government of the people, by the people, for the people, shall not perish from the earth."

(8) On April 28, 1952, in the decision of the Supreme Court of the United States in Zorach v. Clauson, 343 U.S. 306 (1952), in which school children were allowed to be excused from public schools for religious observances and education, Justice William O. Douglas, in writing for the Court stated: "The First Amendment, however, does not say that in every and all respects there shall be a separation of Church and State. Rather, it studiously defines the manner, the specific ways, in which there shall be no concern or union or dependency one on the other. That is the common sense of the matter. Otherwise the State and religion would be aliens to each other—hostile, suspicious, and even unfriendly. Churches could not be required to pay even property taxes. Municipalities would not be permitted to render police or fire protection to religious groups. Policemen who helped parishioners into their places of worship would violate the Constitution. Prayers in our legislative halls; the appeals to the Almighty in the messages of the Chief Executive; the proclamations making Thanksgiving Day a holiday; 'so help me God' in our courtroom oaths—these and all other references to the Almighty that run through our laws, our public rituals, our ceremonies would be flouting the First Amendment. A fastidious atheist or agnostic could even object to the supplication with which the Court opens each session: 'God save the United States and this Honorable Court.'"

(9) On June 15, 1954, Congress passed and President Eisenhower signed into law a statute amending the Pledge of Allegiance to read: "I pledge allegiance to the Flag of the United States of America and to the Republic for which it stands, one Nation under God, indivisible, with liberty and justice for all."

(10) On July 20, 1956, Congress proclaimed that the national motto of the United States is "In God We Trust", and that motto is inscribed above the main door of the Senate, behind the Chair of the Speaker of the House of Representatives, and on the currency of the United States.

(11) On June 17, 1963, in the decision of the Supreme Court of the United States in Abington School District v. Schempp, 374 U.S. 203 (1963), in which compulsory school prayer was held unconstitutional, Justices Goldberg and Harlan, concurring in the decision, stated: "But untutored devotion to the concept of neutrality can lead to invocation or approval of results which partake not simply of that noninterference and noninvolvement with the religious which the Constitution commands, but of a brooding and pervasive devotion to the secular and a passive, or even active, hostility to the religious. Such results are not only not compelled by the Constitution, but, it seems to me, are prohibited by it. Neither government nor this Court can or should ignore the significance of the fact that a vast portion of our people believe in and worship God and that many of our legal, political, and personal values derive historically from religious teachings. Government must inevitably take cognizance of the existence of religion and, indeed, under certain circumstances the First Amendment may require that it do so."

(12) On March 5, 1984, in the decision of the Supreme Court of the United States in Lynch v. Donnelly, 465 U.S. 668 (1984), in which a city government's display of a nativity scene was held to be constitutional, Chief Justice Burger, writing for the Court, stated: "There is an unbroken history of official acknowledgment by all three branches of government of the role of religion in American life from at least 1789. . . [E]xamples of reference to our religious heritage are found in the statutorily prescribed national motto 'In God We Trust' (36 U.S.C. 186), which Congress and the President mandated for our currency, see (31 U.S.C. 5112(d)(1) (1982 ed.)), and in the language 'One Nation under God', as part of the Pledge of Allegiance to the American flag. That pledge is recited by many thousands of public school children—and adults—every year. . . Art galleries supported by public revenues display religious paintings of the 15th and 16th centuries, predominantly inspired by one religious faith. The National Gallery in Washington, maintained with Government support, for example, has long exhibited masterpieces with religious messages, notably the Last Supper, and paintings depicting the Birth of Christ, the Crucifixion, and the Resurrection, among many others with explicit Christian themes and messages. The very chamber in which oral arguments on this case were heard is decorated with a notable and permanent—not seasonal—symbol of religion: Moses with the Ten Commandments. Congress has long provided chapels in the Capitol for religious worship and meditation."

(13) On June 4, 1985, in the decision of the Supreme Court of the United States in Wallace v. Jaffree, 472 U.S. 38 (1985), in which a mandatory moment of silence to be used for meditation or voluntary prayer was held unconstitutional, Justice O'Connor, concurring in the judgment and addressing the contention that the Court's holding would render the Pledge of Allegiance unconstitutional because Congress amended it in 1954 to add the words "under God," stated "In my view, the words 'under God' in the Pledge, as codified at (36 U.S.C. 172), serve as an acknowledgment of religion with 'the legitimate secular purposes of solemnizing public occasions, [and] expressing confidence in the future.'"

(14) On November 20, 1992, the United States Court of Appeals for the 7th Circuit, in Sherman v. Community Consolidated School District 21, 980 F.2d 437 (7th Cir. 1992), held that a school district's policy for voluntary recitation of the Pledge of Allegiance including the words "under God" was constitutional.

(15) The 9th Circuit Court of Appeals erroneously held, in Newdow v. U.S. Congress, (9th Cir. June 26, 2002) that the Pledge of Allegiance's use of the express religious reference "under God" violates the First Amendment to the Constitution, and that, therefore, a school district's policy and practice of teacher-led voluntary recitations of the Pledge of Allegiance is unconstitutional.

(16) The erroneous rationale of the 9th Circuit Court of Appeals in Newdow would lead to the absurd result that the Constitution's use of the express religious reference "Year of our Lord" in Article VII violates the First Amendment to the Constitution, and that, therefore, a school district's policy and practice of teacher-led voluntary recitations of the Constitution itself would be unconstitutional.

SEC. 2. ONE NATION UNDER GOD.

(a) REAFFIRMATION.—Section 4 of title 4, United States Code, is amended to read as follows:

"§ 4. Pledge of allegiance to the flag; manner of delivery

"The Pledge of Allegiance to the Flag: 'I pledge allegiance to the Flag of the United States of America, and to the Republic for which it stands, one Nation under God, indivisible, with liberty and justice for all,' should be rendered by standing at attention facing the flag with the right hand over the heart. When not in uniform men should remove their headdress with their right hand and hold it at the left shoulder, the hand being over the heart. Persons in uniform should remain silent, face the flag, and render the military salute."

(b) CODIFICATION.—In codifying this subsection, the Office of the Law Revision Council shall make no change in section 4, title 4, United States Code, but shall show in the historical and statutory notes that the 107th Congress reaffirmed the exact language that has appeared in the Pledge for decades.

SEC. 3. REAFFIRMING THAT GOD REMAINS IN OUR MOTTO.

(a) REAFFIRMATION.—Section 302 of title 36, United States Code, is amended to read as follows:

"§ 302. National motto

"'In God we trust' is the national motto."

(b) CODIFICATION.—In codifying this subsection, the Office of the Law Revision Council shall make no change in section 302, title 36, United States Code, but shall show in the historical and statutory notes that the 107th Congress reaffirmed the exact language that has appeared in the Motto for decades.

Mr. DASCHLE. I move to reconsider the vote.

Mr. LOTT. I move to lay that motion on the table.

The motion to lay on the table was agreed to.

UNANIMOUS CONSENT REQUEST—
H.R. 3009

Mr. DASCHLE. Madam President, I ask the Chair to lay before the Senate a message from the House with respect to H.R. 3009.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will state the message.

Mr. LOTT. Reserving the right to object, Madam President.

Mr. DASCHLE. I withdraw the request, Madam President.

Mr. REID. Madam President, I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The senior assistant bill clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. CAMPBELL. Madam President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. CAMPBELL. Madam President, I ask unanimous consent to speak for 6 minutes as in morning business.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

FOREST MANAGEMENT

Mr. CAMPBELL. Madam President, I rise today to talk about forest management, although I am certainly sad it has taken the current catastrophic wildfires out West to get some attention on this issue.

On May 18, before most of the fires had started and were underway, I held a field hearing for the Energy Committee in Golden, CO, to review coordination of firefighting efforts. The four intergovernmental witnesses all expressed serious concern that Colorado's unnaturally dense forests pose serious risk of unnaturally hot burning and unmanageable fires, increasing the danger to both people and property. Unfortunately, that worry became a very real, unimaginable reality for much of the West.

In our State alone just this year, we have had over 350,000 acres burn. As of yesterday, the Hayman fire east of I-25 between Denver and Colorado Springs had burned in excess of 137,000 acres, much of it in the all-important South Platte watershed of the City of Denver.

While the fire is now 70 percent contained, over 1,200 residents are at risk and many lost their homes. In fact, 618 homes and structures burned, and it has cost over $26 million so far in fighting this fire. The Forest Service tells us much of this fire is in an area of diseased and stressed timber, some of which they have been attempting to clean up, but opponents are delaying this needed management through courtroom appeals and litigation.

It is important to note that large parts of the area that has burned are in the areas that were designated as roadless during the Clinton administration, under the Clinton management plan.

We have the Million Fire near the little town of South Fork, CO, near Wolf Creek Pass. That fire is not big by the standards of this summer, but it has already consumed over 8,500 acres, and it is right on the outskirts of the town of South Fork. We have lost 13 homes and buildings in that fire. The resource managers tell us it is burning in an area of spruce and ponderosa pine already killed by insects.

History shows many of proposed salvage sales on the Rio Grande National Forest have also been opposed by opponents of cleaning the forests, and they have had difficulty getting proactive thinning and sanitation harvesting through the NEPA process. The agency tells us that nearly 100 additional homes and commercial buildings are currently threatened and that the town's watershed is also in the line of fire.

Finally, just near where I live in Durango, CO, what is called the Missionary Ridge fire, which I am sure you have seen on CNN and a number of other networks, is 15 miles from the town of Durango, CO—in fact, I can see it from my front porch—and it is burning that way. Ten subdivisions are endangered, over 1,150 residences are being evacuated, and we have lost 71 homes and outbuildings. The municipal watersheds of the towns of Durango and Bayfield are threatened, as well as numerous businesses, radio towers, and homes.

The interesting part of that fire is it is burning mostly in RARE II roadless areas. Last week, when I was home, the fire was only about 2 miles from the city limits of the town of Durango with zero containment and certainly has had a devastating impact on the morale of the community, on the structures, and on tourism, which is the backbone and mainstay of our economy.

All of those fires I have mentioned have really been eclipsed and overshadowed by the huge fire in Arizona in the Coconino National Forest, not far from the White River National Forest.

I am reminded of 1996, when there was an effort by the Forest Service to do some fuels reduction in the Coconino Forest. They were prevented from doing so by an environmental lawsuit under the Endangered Species Act which contended that the fuels reduction would disturb the goshawk, a small hawk. Later that same year, there was a fire that did start in that forest, and it destroyed everything in its path, including the goshawk nests. Now we have almost the same catastrophic fire in the White River National Forest.

Time and again, we hear from Colorado firefighters who are frustrated they can't seem to get ahead of the fires. I submit we cannot seem to get ahead of some of the lawsuits that block our responsible management of the forests, and we won't be able to get any place under control until we do. This year so far, we have had over 300 fires nationwide, and the fire season is just starting.

The science is certain: Thinning forests at natural levels significantly reduces the threat of wildfires. Yet the constant threat of environmental lawsuits has resulted in what has been described by the Forest Service as "analysis paralysis." The Forest Service is now forced to study and assess proposed actions, not for the right reasons, but because of any potential action in the courts, in anticipation of a flurry of lawsuits and appeals by some extreme groups. Dale Bosworth, Chief of the Forest Service, testified before our committee that they are now using over 40 percent of their agency work and a good deal of their resources, about $250 million a year, that could have gone to save lives and property. Instead, they are using it to prepare for court actions against opponents of cleaning the forest.

Environmental groups are proud of that obstruction-through-litigation strategy because every dollar we spend in litigating is one less dollar we spend on managing the forest. They do acknowledge, however, that forests are unnaturally dense.

In Colorado, normally we have 50 trees per acre. But now we see stands of 200, 500, and 800 trees per acre, representing unmanageable fuel loads. Many of these trees are dying from insect infestation, which increases the fire risk. Yet environmentalists still oppose any thinning or removal of dead timber except if it is near homes or around homes. They argue that thinning other parts of the forest grants unnecessary footholds for the "big, bad" timber industry that will ravage the landscape. It is interesting that what they completely ignore is that industry thinning on national forests is done under very close scrutiny of the National Environmental Policy Act.

What about lawsuits in the name of animals? On the one hand, environmentalists sue land managers to keep them from thinning because the action might disturb all manner of species. On the other hand, they ignore the complete devastation that catastrophic fires such as the ones we are experiencing do to the same species.

I spoke to one firefighter last week. He told me that the 150-foot flames in the Mission Ridge fire were traveling so fast and were so intense that birds in flight were actually being burned out of the air. Certainly, most small animals that are land animals have no chance at all. That includes the spotted owl, the red squirrel, Preble's meadow jumping mouse, and hundreds of animals on the endangered species list.

In arguing against thinning, environmentalists also ignore the very real long-term damage that large and intense fires have on soil and watersheds. Over 70 percent of our Nation's water comes from waterbodies in our forests. Yet, these environmental groups would prohibit thinning around watersheds, such as the South Platte project. I would have thought that they would support such efforts, especially after the Buffalo Creek fire of 1996, which cost the city of Denver millions of dollars to restore water quality.

Environmentalists oppose improving the safety of our watersheds because they fear losing the Clinton-era "roadless rule," which provides that no new roads can be built where none exist. Their prized "roadless rule" effectively acts as a wilderness designation requiring an act of Congress.

It is ironic that the "roadless rule" that environmentalists hold so dear was recently ruled illegal by a Federal judge in Idaho because the public comment period was grossly inadequate, stating, "Justice hurried on a proposal of this magnitude is Justice denied."

I am a big supporter of grass roots initiatives—local communities should be involved in land management decisions. Opportunities for public comment and participation are important aspects of environmental law. However, these opportunities are being poisoned by radical groups too interested in legitimizing their own worth to contributors than in collaboratively working for the betterment of our Nation's resources.

Some of these organizations have effectively paralyzed responsible forest management practices, thus contributing to poor forest health. In fact, 73 million acres of national forest are at risk from severe wildland fires. In the West, more than half of the rangeland riparian area on the National Forest System do not meet standards for healthy watersheds, and one in six acres in the Rocky Mountain and Plains states is making no progress toward improvement. All this in the name of environmentalism.

Forest Service Chief Dale Bosworth recently acknowledged that the Hayman Fire near Denver would not have been nearly as severe had forest thinning projects gone forward.

I am unwilling to allow our forest's health and environmental quality to continue deteriorating simply because a minority of environmental organizations have thrown science and good sense out of the window in the name of their own political agenda while completely avoiding the tragedy of the 14 deaths of firefighters from the Storm King Fire of 1994 or the recent loss of five firefighters in a bus wreck while on their way to fight fire in Colorado.

I have seen the negative effect that some environmental organizations have had in the West for a long time. But enough is enough—something has to change. It is unfortunate that it has taken tragic fires like the ones raging out West to get the Nation and the media to acknowledge the same.

I hope, as we move from this Congress to the next, we will look for more positive ways to achieve responsible forest management.

With that, I yield the floor and suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. REID. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. DAYTON). Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. REID. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the Senator from Delaware, Mr. CARPER, be recognized for 3 minutes as in morning business.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection?

Without objection, it is so ordered.

The Senator from Delaware is recognized for 3 minutes.

AMTRAK

Mr. CARPER. Mr. President, the attention of a lot of people in the Northwest and in the Midwest and in California has been drawn to the potential shutdown not just of the Amtrak passenger rail service, but commuter rail service in Boston, New York, Philadelphia, Wilmington, Delaware, Chicago, Los Angeles, and a lot of places in between.

Amtrak has sought to negotiate a loan from a consortium of private lenders. Literally in the middle of the negotiation, the administration put on the table its restructuring plan for Amtrak. That plan was, in my view, a "dismantling" plan for Amtrak. That was the end of the negotiations with the private lenders, for the most part.

Now Amtrak faces a difficult decision as to when to begin curtailing and shutting down its operations. When they do that, it will have a cascading effect on the operations of many commuter railroads in America as well.

The Secretary of the Department of Transportation, Norman Mineta, was before one of our committees today testifying. Knowing him as an old colleague and somebody who I respect, I think he is in a tough spot. I have not been inside his heart to see what he would want to do in his heart. Given that independence, I think he would favor going ahead with the loan guarantee, or support the Congress in going through and including a $200 million emergency supplemental for Amtrak. The administration, which created this crisis before us, is now still in a very good position to end the crisis, the threat. They can do that by saying, yes, we will provide the full loan guarantee, or we will support the appropriation from the Congress.

Our thanks to the chairman of the Appropriations Committee, Senator BYRD, and Senator STEVENS, the ranking Republican, for their willingness to support $200 million in the emergency supplemental to help us get through this difficult time, and later this fall we will resolve more fully the passenger rail service in this country.

I have said for a long time—and I will say it again today—the problem with passenger rail service in this country is we have never provided adequate capital support for passenger rail service. We need to do that, to find an earmark source of revenue. I hope in the months to come we will debate that and come to a consensus on that point.

I thank the Chair.

UNANIMOUS CONSENT REQUEST— H.R. 3009

Mr. REID. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the Chair lay before the Senate a message from the House with respect to H.R. 3009; that the Senate disagree to the House amendment, agree to the request for a conference with the House on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses; and that the Chair be authorized to appoint conferees on behalf of the Senate: three on behalf of the majority and two on behalf of the minority.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection?

Mr. LOTT. Reserving the right to object.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Republican leader.

Mr. LOTT. Mr. President, we have had a number of discussions with respect to how many conferees the Senate would want to have involved in this very important conference that will deal with trade issues on which we spent a great deal of time in the Senate, including the Andean trade authority, as well as the overall large trade assistance bill and the Trade Promotion Act—three very important pieces included in this one bill.

As we look at this, I think this is going to be one of the most important conferences we are going to deal with this year.

The House has a small number of conferees to the underlying bill, but they have a number of conferees to different sections to the bill. I suspect there is a total number of House conferees involved that would probably run in the 18 range.

We have members of the Finance Committee who worked very hard on this important legislation, and I had hoped that we could get an 8-to-7 or 7-to-6 ratio, or at minimum 6 to 5 to accommodate members of the Finance Committee who are on the subcommittee of jurisdiction and who have put a lot of work into this. I have even tried to say: OK, maybe we can make it work at 5 to 4, but we have not been able to get that worked out.

I think for the Senate to be limited to only five conferees on a bill of this magnitude and as complicated as this is, and as many people who worked so hard on it, that it would not be an acceptable arrangement at this time. So I have to object.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Objection has been heard.

Mr. REID. Mr. President, I am disappointed, but I certainly understand.

UNANIMOUS CONSENT REQUEST— H.R. 7

Mr. REID. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that at a time to be determined by the majority leader, after consultation with the Republican leader, and prior to the August recess, the Senate proceed to the consideration of H.R. 7, the charitable deductions bill, as reported by the Finance Committee, and that it be considered under the following limitation: That there be 4 hours for debate on the bill equally divided between the chairman and ranking member of the Finance Committee; that there be one substitute amendment in order to be offered by the majority leader or his designee; that the debate time shall come from the time on the bill; that upon the disposition of the substitute amendment and the use or yielding back of time, the bill be read a third time and the Senate vote on final passage of the bill, without any intervening action or debate.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection?

Mr. LOTT. Reserving the right to object, Mr. President.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Republican leader.

Mr. LOTT. Mr. President, this bill has not been filed and the amendment mentioned is a brandnew amendment which was received at 3:10 p.m. today. I really do not have any idea what is contained in this complete substitute, but I do know we would be unable to clear it for consent at this time. We are working right now to get in touch with Senator GRASSLEY and others to make sure they are familiar with this and have had a chance to look over the substitute amendment to make sure there is no problem with it.

I had hoped we had been able to clear this earlier today, and I hope that if we are not going out of session right away, we might even have a chance to come back, if I can get this cleared, later this afternoon. But until I can do a hotline on it and check with the senior member on the Finance Committee about the substitute amendment, I have to object at this time. I emphasize, I think maybe we can clear it before the afternoon is done. I hope we can come back to it.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Objection has been heard.

Mr. REID. Mr. President, I say to my friend, the distinguished Republican leader, Senator DASCHLE will be here tomorrow and maybe even tomorrow something can be worked out. My understanding is the President wants this badly, and I hope we can work it out.

UNANIMOUS CONSENT REQUEST— S. 1140

Mr. REID. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the Senate proceed to the consideration of Calendar No. 210, S. 1140; that the bill be read a third time and passed; that the motion to reconsider be laid upon the table, with no intervening action or debate; and that any statements relating to the bill be printed in the RECORD.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection?

Mr. LOTT. Reserving the right to object.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Republican leader.

Mr. LOTT. Mr. President, I have to say, I have no objection to this legislation. In fact, I am a cosponsor of this legislation. It has been discussed and considered for quite some time now, and with the overwhelming support it has, it should move forward.

However, on behalf of a Senator on my side of the aisle who is now in the Judiciary Committee in a meeting and could not be here at this particular time, I am going to have to object on his behalf, but I do want to say this: I do not agree. I believe this is legislation we should pass, and this is the last time I am going to have anybody on this side of the aisle object on this issue. Any Senator who has further objection is going to have to do it himself. As a courtesy to a Senator who is currently tied up, I do object.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Objection has been heard.

Mr. REID. Mr. President, I am truly disappointed. People from Nevada and all over the country need this legislation. As the majority leader said, we should work out some way to move this forward. It is too bad one Senator is holding this up.

UNANIMOUS CONSENT REQUEST— S. 1991

Mr. REID. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the majority leader, following consultation with the Republican leader, may proceed to the consideration of Calendar No. 404, S. 1991, the Amtrak authorization bill, at a time to be determined.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection?

Mr. LOTT. Mr. President, again reserving the right to object.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Republican leader.

Mr. LOTT. This is legislation we need to consider. It needs to be considered in the full light of day with amendments in order. We did have a full consideration of the bill in the Commerce Committee with amendments offered. Some were adopted and some were rejected. I voted for the legislation.

We need to move forward on the reform of Amtrak. We are in the process of putting additional money in Amtrak right now, and I support both the loan the administration is working out and perhaps additional money in the supplemental.

Having said that, I do note also that we have to make tough choices. Do we want a national rail passenger system or not? If we do, we have to figure out what kind of reforms we can put in place that will save money or provide additional money; what lines are we going to keep open and keep running or not; if and how much we are going to have to pay for it.

If the American people, through their Representatives and Senators, do not want to vote for additional funds, then that is one choice. I spoke passionately on the floor in 1997 when we passed Amtrak reform legislation. I made a commitment on this floor and to the American people that I supported this because I thought it could become self-supporting. I was wrong. I have to admit that. Now the question is, Do we want to continue to have Amtrak or not? I think we should. I still think it is an important mode of transportation we should not sacrifice. But the Congress is going to have to come to terms with reform.

There are some Senators who object to moving to it at this time. I believe specifically Senator McCain has indicated he has an objection to it. So while I do not agree with the objection, I do agree that the timing is such that we would not be able to give it full and appropriate consideration, in view of other issues to which we have already agreed to go. Therefore, I object.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Objection has been heard.

UNANIMOUS CONSENT REQUEST— EXECUTIVE CALENDAR

Mr. LOTT. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the Senate now proceed to executive session for consideration of the following nominations on the calendar: Nos. 810, 825 through 828, 840, 862 through 867, 887 through 889; I further ask that the nominations be confirmed, en bloc; that the motions to reconsider be laid upon the table; that the President be immediately notified of the Senate's action; and that the Senate then resume legislative session.

Before the Chair rules, I wish to indicate this request is with respect to 15 judicial nominations, some of which have been on the calendar since May 2. These are nominations that are pending in the Senate, not in the Judiciary Committee. They are ready for consideration by the entire Senate with only one exception; I know of no objections.

I will be giving a statement with regard to this matter later, but in consideration of Senator REID's and others' time, I thought I would make this unanimous consent request first and make my statement on this matter later.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection?

Mr. REID. Reserving the right to object.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Nevada.

Mr. REID. Mr. President, as we speak, there are negotiations going on at the White House dealing with a wide range of appointments and nominations. I hope this can be worked out. I was confident a day or two ago that the majority leader and the Republican leader, together with the White House, had worked something out on nominations on which we could move forward, but that did not come to be. We also know there is someone on the other side of the aisle who has asked that we on his behalf object, and I am doing that now. I object.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The objection has been heard.

The Republican leader.

Mr. LOTT. Mr. President, I understand there may be another unanimous consent request in a moment, but it could lead to some discussion back and forth, so at this time I yield myself leader time so I can address the issue that was just objected to.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator has that right.

Mr. LOTT. Mr. President, the Senate, the American people, and the House of Representatives have all expressed their outrage at the decision by the Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals yesterday which ruled that the Pledge of Allegiance is unconstitutional because it contains the phrase "under God." People are understandably stunned and find it not only unbelievable, but indefensible.

Senators and the American people are shocked that two Federal circuit judges were capable of making such an absurd decision. The fact that they did points up, once again, how vitally important these Federal judicial appointments are in guiding not only the country's present, but its future as well. Judges are important at every level, but particularly at the appellate court, the circuit court level.

This preposterous decision about the Pledge of Allegiance, which Senators have been outraged about, was handed down by three circuit court judges who voted 2-1 that reciting the Pledge violated the Constitution's Establishment Clause protections.

I should note that the vigorous dissent in the case was filed by Judge Ferdinand Fernandez, who was appointed by the first President Bush, and who went into great detail since echoed by many members of this chamber—as to why the other two judges views and reading of the law are both unfounded and inappropriate.

An interesting fact about these three judges is that two of the three are actually on senior status which means they are not considered active judges and are semi-retired. The fact that semi-retired judges were deciding is an indication in and of itself that there are problems in this circuit court and there are clearly major problems in the Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals.

Mr. President, we have been arguing for years about how the Ninth Circuit should be changed. It is a huge circuit which includes not only Hawaii and California, but Nevada, Arizona, Idaho, Oregon, Washington, and Montana as well. It is not surprising that the states in the circuit also have very different cultural views of the world. Therefore, geographically and ideologically, many Senators encompassed by the Ninth Circuit want it split into at least two, if not three, circuits.

The Ninth Circuit is also by far the court that has been reversed the most by the United States Supreme Court. Indeed, the 9th Circuit decisions that have been reviewed by the Supreme Court have been reversed over 80% of the time over the last 6 years. And these have not been close cases in the Supreme Court either. On average, the Ninth Circuit's decisions have received just two votes from the Supreme Court's nine justices.

Mr. President, I should also point that one of the judges who did decide to hold that the Pledge of Allegiance to the flag is unconstitutional was Stephen Reinhardt. This active judge, who was appointed in the last year of Jimmy Carter's Presidency, holds the record for the most unanimous reversals by the Supreme Court in a single court term—five. He has been reversed a total of 11 times since the court's 1996-1997 term. He has been involved in such infamous, ridiculous decisions as striking down California's "three strikes and you're out" criminal law this spring. He has a long record of other extremely unpopular and, in my opinion, inaccurate and unfounded interpretations of the law and/or the Constitution. So, this judge has engaged in a pattern of using his position on the court to become an activist for social change instead of interpreting the law as passed and voted on by Congress or as written by the Nation's Framers.

Twenty-eight active judges are authorized for the Ninth Circuit and five of those seats are vacant. Due to the heavy caseload in the Circuit, all five of those vacancies have been declared judicial emergencies by the Administrative Office of the Courts. President Bush has nominated individuals to fill three of those five vacancies, one from Hawaii who is supported by both of the Democrat Senators from his state has pending on the Executive Calendar since May 16, another from California has been held up in the Committee since June 22nd of last year without even a hearing, and the third from Nevada has been in the Committee for two months.

As we can see from this case that has everyone up in arms, these circuit judges do make a difference, and that is why President Bush's Circuit Court nominees are being held up. He and I agree that we should not be putting judges on the appellate courts who will render decisions such as this. The judgment of such judges really has to be questioned by the vast majority of Americans.

Despite the vacancies and the judicial emergencies on the Ninth Circuit and all the federal circuits, the Senate continues to have a problem confirming judges without undue and unjustifiable delay. There are some 45 judicial nominees pending before the Senate at one level or another. Yet, we have not confirmed one judge since before the Memorial Day Recess.

As I have already noted, as of this morning, there were 15 judges on the Executive Calendar who are ready to go if a few Senators would only let them. Three of the 15 are Circuit Court judges. And there are several circuits around the country that are having real problems handling their caseloads because they do not have enough judges to fill all of their seats—indeed one circuit, the Sixth, has half of its 16 judgeships vacant.

Around the country there are 89 judicial vacancies. Thirty-one are Circuit Court vacancies, 17 of which have been declared judicial emergencies by the Administrative Office of the Courts and the Judiciary Committee is holding 11 nominees President Bush has named to fill those 17 emergencies. There are currently 57 vacancies at the District Court level, 18 of which have been declared judicial emergencies.

I expect we are going to hear arguments back and forth about the numbers, well, it is because you guys did not confirm enough judges during the President Clinton's last 2 years. But whatever the history may have been, we have a problem now with our circuits that must and can be fixed.

Mr. President, another example of how important these judicial appointments can be and what the effect on the nation can be is the decision handed down by the Supreme Court today by a 5-4 vote upholding Cleveland's school voucher program. Frankly, I was amazed it was that close. Again, it points up the importance of even a single judge on the Supreme Court or on a circuit court.

I think that says a lot about the real reasons behind what is going on in the Committee with the President's judicial nominees. There are a number of people in the Senate who say that if the President tries to put a conservative, strict constructionist judge on the Supreme Court who will follow the law and not write it from the bench as the judges did in the Pledge of Allegiance case they are going to oppose him no matter how temperamentally, professionally, intellectually, or ethically qualified he or she is.

However, as I have said before, many of us on this side of the aisle, voted for Justice Ginsburg when she went through the Senate when President Clinton was in office. We knew we would not agree with most if not all of her future decisions but we felt we had to admit that she was competent, ethical, and qualified for the job despite our philosophically differences with her.

There are several other Clinton judges, particularly one or two out in the California circuit, that I voted whose future decisions I will probably live to regret for as long as I live. But there is something worse than bad judges, I guess, and that is no judges, which then expands the power of the bad judges like Judge Goodwin and Judge Reinhardt that are on the Circuit Courts of Appeal now.

I will take a moment to note that the Supreme Courts 5-to-4 decision on school vouchers will prove immensely important to thousands of low-income parents whose children are trapped in failing schools. Low-income children need an education even more than other children since it is often their only means of escaping poverty for the rest of their lives. So, when public schools are not succeeding, they and their parents shouldn't be sentenced to failure year after year. They deserve a system and a process that offers them a hand up, and if need be a hand out of a failing school, to find another avenue to succeed. The Supreme Court upheld a process where the money that is being expended on their child in a failing school, or in a school that is drug infested or riddled with crime, can be used instead to lift the child out of the failure and into a setting where they can get an real academically sound education. Is that such an awful result for the thousands of low-income children trapped in dysfunctional and failing schools?

In Philadelphia, PA, I understand the State has taken over the running of the public schools. What a tragedy.

When Cleveland's system was failing, the city seized the initiative to try and improve things, and so have other areas. In this Cleveland's case, they put in place a voucher program that is working. It is helping children get an education that will last the rest of their lives.

Mr. President, getting back to the absurd decision in San Francisco, it is easy for us all to say the Pledge of Allegiance with gusto and mean it, but we need to look behind this decision—how in the world it happened. It is that America's voters understand that these Federal judgeships, and who fills them, do make a difference in the kind of society that not only will we live in, but our children's children will live in. That is why I have tried to find a way to get an agreement to move the President's eminently qualified nominees.

Senator DASCHLE and I have been talking about it for about 3 weeks. I thought we had it all worked out. I think, frankly, we did have it worked out, but now our friend Senator MCCAIN says he is going to object to any and all nominations until he gets some sort of guarantee with regard to a nominee for the Federal Election Commission (FEC). Her nomination was not agreed to for 5 months, and now that the President has started the routine vetting process in order to formally send her nomination to the Senate, Senator MCCAIN is saying that if the nomination is not moved on immediately, he is going to hold up every single nomination pending in the Senate.

The investigation and FBI clearance process, for all nominees—and this is a Democrat nominee—usually takes about 2 months now and she will have to go through that process the same as everyone else. So, the President could not appoint her right now if he wanted to. She has not had the clearance check. So, evidently every nominee is going to be held up today, this week, and all of July over a single nominee to the FEC. That means that lifetime appointments of Federal judges on the circuit and district courts, both Democrat and Republican, some who have been waiting for a year or more, will have to wait for months on this single nominee who could not be confirmed today even if everyone was in agreement about her.

I do not get it, Mr. President. I think this is a real sad commentary and not becoming, quite frankly, of the Senate, if she should allow this unjustifiable obstruction of all nominees to occur.

I have made an effort, as has Senator DASCHLE. I thought we had made real progress and were ready to go forward with an agreement that would move nonjudicial nominations, judicial nominees, marshals, U.S. attorneys, and a lot of folks who have been waiting a long time. Then we hit a stone wall yet again.

I had hoped that one way to do overcome this obstacle would be to move these nominees en bloc. As everyone knows, I do not usually move to Executive Calendar nominations on my own because that is normally the majority leader's prerogative, but if all else fails, you have to take advantage of whatever avenue is available to you.

I hope the American people, and the Senate, will take another look at these judicial nominations—and how we can move them and get them confirmed. If it is a continuation of tit for tat when will it ever end? Maybe it will fall to my lot—no pun intended—to some day say that we are going to end this, and we are going to move these nominations unless there is a big ethical problem or they are obviously not qualified.

I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Nevada.

Mr. REID. Before the Republican leader leaves, I am not going to give a long statement regarding judicial appointments because I have done that on a number of occasions. Suffice it to say, the majority leader went through this. As has been said by the majority leader, and I have said it on a number of occasions, this is not tit for tat, this is not payback time.

I served and practiced law for many years and argued cases before the Ninth Circuit. I have two sons in the Ninth Circuit—Leif Reid is the administrative assistant for the circuit judge; the other was a law clerk to the chief judge—and I am familiar with the circuit. There are very fine men and women serving in that court. I am not here today to defend in any way President Nixon's appointment to the court or President Carter's appointment to the court the two people who wrote that decision. We would all acknowledge it is wrong. I am confident that the Ninth Circuit, when they meet en banc, will stay that decision made by the two judges.

UNANIMOUS CONSENT REQUEST

Mr. REID. I ask unanimous consent that upon completion of the county reform bill, the Senate proceed to immediate consideration of Calendar No. 414, S. 2039, the National Aviation Capacity Expansion Act for 2002.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection?

Mr. FITZGERALD. I object.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The objection is heard.

Mr. REID. It is unfortunate we cannot get consent to move forward with this bill. It is a bill that enjoys strong bipartisan support.

In April, the Commerce Committee voted 19 to 4 in favor of this very important legislation. More than 60 Senators indicated their support by sending a letter to the two leaders asking for this bill to come before the Senate immediately. I simply believe this is a national priority. I have flown into O'Hare many times and understand how busy and important that airport is for the country, not just for the people of Illinois. I believe we have the votes to pass this bill and to do so very quickly.

I say to my friend, the junior Senator from Illinois, to object to this point only delays the inevitable and stands in the way of addressing a national aviation capacity problem in the Chicago region which affects the whole country. It jeopardizes jobs and stalls economic development. I am very disappointed.

Mr. DURBIN. Will the Senator yield?

Mr. REID. I am happy to yield to my friend.

Mr. DURBIN. I thank the majority whip for the unanimous consent request and would like to ask him a question as to whether he has any plans or discussion with the majority leader in reference to proceeding on this matter.

Mr. REID. I have spoken to the majority leader on several occasions. This legislation enjoys strong support and is a priority for the majority leader. It is fair to say the majority leader will use all appropriate avenues to bring this legislation to final passage.

When an impressive coalition and supermajority of the Senate, labor, business, aircraft controllers, pilots, airlines, general aviation, and five former Secretaries of Transportation write, call, or in some way visit with the majority leader in support of this legislation, it is hard for the majority leader to ignore this, I respond to my friend.

Mr. DURBIN. If the majority whip will continue to yield, the purpose of this unanimous consent request was to make it clear on the record what I personally believed would occur when my colleague from the State of Illinois objected. There were some who said that would not happen, that once this bill had been reported from the committee, had gone through the regular order, with two hearings before the Senate Commerce Committee, on which my colleague from Illinois serves, a hearing both in Chicago as well as in Washington, when ample opportunity had been given both sides to present their point of view, when amendments were considered and offered by my colleague from Illinois, when the final vote on the committee was a substantial bipartisan vote of 19 to 4, it was the belief—and I am sorry to say the mistaken belief—of some of my colleagues in the Senate that my colleague from Illinois would accept a debate on this issue and would accept the consequences, up or down.

Apparently that is not to be the case. It leads us in a position, today, where those colleagues on the floor who have any doubt in their mind should have it dispelled. The objection by the Senator from Illinois makes it clear that he is prepared to delay this as long as possible.

The Senator from Nevada has put his finger on the issue. What is at stake is the safety of O'Hare, the world's busiest airport. What is at stake is the efficiency of that airport. What is at stake are hundreds of thousands of jobs in Illinois and literally the future of our economy. That may sound like hyperbole from a Senator, but what I have said is supported by the Chamber of Commerce on a national and State basis, the national AFL-CIO and the State AFL-CIO, all of the major business organizations, economic development organizations which support this bill and oppose the position taken by the junior Senator from Illinois.

This is not a bill just being offered by me but, rather, with the cooperation and the active participation of my colleague, Senator GRASSLEY of Iowa, Senator HARKIN as well, and a bipartisan coalition. As the majority whip has noted, 61 Senators have signed on in support of this bill and sent a letter to the majority leader and Republican leader to indicate that support. My junior colleague from the State of Illinois certainly does not have that kind of support. He has said he is going to try to delay this and try to avoid it for as long as possible.

In making this unanimous consent and making this statement, I hope it is clear on the record that at this point in time we will use any appropriate means to bring this issue forward. We will not be enslaved by the threat of filibuster. I say to my colleague from the State of Illinois, if he will accept a debate on this issue for a reasonable period of time, offer the amendments, and bring it up for a vote, I will accept the consequences. Let the Senate make its decision, yes or no. If the merits of his argument are compelling, he will succeed. If they are not compelling, he will lose. The same is true for my position. That is the nature of the legislative body. It is the nature of fair play. I hope my colleague from the State of Illinois will reconsider his dedication to these delays.

NINTH CIRCUIT OPINION

Mr. REID. Mr. President, while I still have the floor, I will respond more specifically to my friend, but I want to go off subject a little bit with some good news.

As I just stated, I had a couple of sons who worked the Ninth Circuit. My son Leif Reid is administrative assistant to the Ninth Circuit. He just called the cloakroom and indicated the Ninth Circuit stayed the order that was issued yesterday. The pledge is intact. He is faxing me the opinion of the court.

I am, frankly, amazed they did it as quickly as they did, but I am happy they did this.

Back to O'Hare, again I am speaking—and I rarely do this, but on this occasion I am speaking for the majority leader of the Senate, TOM DASCHLE. Senator DASCHLE has authorized me to say to Senator DURBIN that he will use all his options, all the options of the Senate, to pass this legislation this year.

On behalf of the many people who support this legislation, I say to my friend, Senator DURBIN, he has done great work on this issue. I appreciate the support of Senator GRASSLEY and Senator HARKIN but especially the Senator from Illinois for his hard work on behalf of frustrated fliers everywhere. We have frustrated fliers at McCarran in Las Vegas, the sixth busiest airport in America. This is unfortunate to frustrated fliers. When fliers at O'Hare are less frustrated, we have more people coming to Las Vegas. It affects not only the Chicago area, the State of Illinois, but the entire country. That is a massive airport and is a feeder to the rest of the world.

I salute Senator DURBIN for such patience. The Senate is going to act on this legislation in some way. There are ways to do this. We are going to do it in some way, shape, or form, and we will do it as quickly as we can. The Senator has the full support of the majority leader.

Mr. DURBIN. I ask unanimous consent to be recognized for 10 minutes in morning business.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. DURBIN. Mr. President, I again thank my colleague from the State of Nevada. Let me explain for a moment what the issue is before us so those who are not familiar with it can come to understand it. O'Hare is pretty well known across America. It is our busiest airport. In the year 2001, despite September 11, it turned out to have more flights and passengers than virtually any airport in America.

But O'Hare is an airport that was designed and built in 1959, 43 years ago, with an anticipated annual volume of 20 million passengers. It now has some 67 million passengers annually. The runways that were designed in 1959 were designed to standards and expectations of that era—standards and expectations that have changed dramatically.

What we have seen in 43 years is larger planes, more frequent flights, changes in air traffic control. All of these have challenged O'Hare and every airport in the country to modernize. But O'Hare has been stuck with the same runway configuration now for over 40 years.

Part of it has to do with politics because in my State of Illinois the Governor has the final word when it comes to the construction of airports. Politically, it meant that a Democratic mayor of Chicago and a Republican mayor from some other part of our State would rarely find common ground or agreement on the future of O'Hare. But last year, there was finally a breakthrough. Gov. George Ryan, a Republican, and Mayor Richard Daley of Chicago, a Democrat, came to an agreement about how to change O'Hare, modernize it, improve it, and make it safer. Many people thought it could not occur, but it did happen, and because of that decision and because of that agreement we now have a chance to make that airport modern and safe by 21st century standards.

Some say that seems to be obvious. Who would object to it? It turns out that a handful of communities around O'Hare naturally are concerned about the prospects of changing flight patterns or expanding service to that airport. They would object, as one might expect.

The elected officials in that area created a coalition to oppose these changes at O'Hare. My colleague in the Senate, the junior Senator from Illinois, has announced his opposition to any plans to change O'Hare. I understand that. But there comes a moment in time when you have to say: What is in the best interests of our entire State? What is in the best interests of the region? What is in the best interests of the Nation?

I think what the people of Illinois have said in overwhelming numbers is they believe this historic agreement is in our best interests. We have the support, as I mentioned earlier, of the National Chamber of Commerce, the Illinois State Chamber of Commerce, the National AFL-CIO, the Illinois State AFL-CIO, the Airline Pilots Association, the air traffic controllers, general aviation, virtually all major airlines. They have all signed onto this.

So as some might suggest, this is a unanimous opinion of the experts in aviation that this plan moving forward makes sense.

Of course, every item in the planned agreement between the Governor and the mayor would be subject to the same types of scrutiny and restriction as any other airport design. What I have here is the report of the Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transportation, which presents this bill, S. 2039, to the Senate. They make it clear here in precise language:

Nothing in the bill guarantees any funding for the O'Hare or Peotone project, or mandates that a specific set of runway configurations be approved, as the FAA retains all its existing discretion to analyze, review, and, if all relevant tests are met, approve the O'Hare project.

They go on to to say:

The FAA has discretion to modify the plan, if necessary, for efficiency, safety, or other concerns.

It says of the bill that it:

Requires any redesign plan to conform with the Clean Air Act and to conform with all other environmental mandates to the maximum extent possible, while requiring the State use its customarily practices to analyze any Clean Air Act requirements.

And it goes on to say this bill:

Provides no Federal priority for federal funding of any O'Hare projects, including the runway design plan.

My colleague will stand up here and tell you what I said is a lie; it is not true. But what I put before you is the report of his committee, which says in black and white that the FAA has the last word. The FAA can reject it. The FAA can say this runway plan will not work. He can stand here, as he has repeatedly, and say those words are not true. I stand behind the committee, his committee, and the report they have given to the Senate.

I think what they have said is true because I wrote the bill and I know what is in it. When the Senator from Illinois offered an amendment in committee and said: I want to make sure the FAA has the last word, we said we will take the amendment. We accept it. Still, it is not enough.

It has really come down to the point where it will never be enough when it comes down to what my colleague is asking for in this bill.

We have a situation where we have 61 Senators here who have signed onto a letter to the leadership, saying they are prepared to move forward on this bill. I can tell you an additional two Senators this week have told me they are prepared to support this as well. Another 10 Senators on the Republican side of the aisle have said they will support it when it comes to a vote. So the vote will be substantial.

The question before us, though, is when and where this will take place. The Senator from Illinois, my colleague, has made it clear by his objection that he is prepared to filibuster this bill. He has said as much—in Illinois and here in Washington. It is no great surprise.

But some of my colleagues in the Senate have said: Oh, no, he won't do that; when it is all over, he is going to bring it up and offer his amendments and take a vote and then it will all be over.

I said: No, I don't think so. Let's go ahead and make this unanimous consent request so it is clear on the record his intention and design to lead this to a filibuster, and I think we have done that today. In the course of doing that, I think what we have established is that we have to find whatever appropriate means are available, working to bring this issue for a vote in the Senate.

I am prepared to accept the decision of the Senate on this issue. I think that is why we are elected to this body, to bring our best ideas forward and say to the assembled Senators: We hope you will support us. If you do not, then it is understood we have lost our day, our opportunity. But I think now, in the best interests of safety at O'Hare, hundreds of thousands of jobs in our State, and the best interests of business in the region, that we should pass this bill as quickly as possible.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The majority leader.

Mr. DASCHLE. Mr. President, I come to the floor just to compliment the distinguished Senator from Illinois for his determination and the effort that he continues to make to ensure success. I will guarantee that before the end of this session, one way or the other, we are going to resolve this successfully. We will do whatever it takes to ensure that the people of Illinois, the business community at and around O'Hare and the tremendous service it provides are protected and that the priority it deserves is given on the Senate floor.

The Senator from Illinois has been relentless in his determination and in his advocacy. He has spoken in the caucus on countless occasions, in leadership, and on the Senate floor. I just wanted to assure him publicly, as I have privately, that we will continue to work on this until we get it done. It will happen.

I am convinced that 95, maybe 98 Senators support what the Senator from Illinois is attempting to do. I have every confidence that once we get to the vote, it is going to be overwhelming. So I will assure the Senator that we will continue to work with him and find a way to do it and make sure that it gets done in a time that will send the right message to the people of Illinois, the people of Chicago, the people who are concerned about safety, concerned about jobs, concerned about economic development—that the Senate understands that and, thanks to the leadership of the Senator from Illinois, we are going to deliver.

I simply wanted to add my voice to the many who support the Senator's efforts. I appreciate very much his coming to the floor this afternoon, again, to reiterate the extraordinary importance that this issue and this project has for the people of his State. I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Illinois.

Mr. DURBIN. Mr. President, I express my appreciation for this expression of personal support from the majority leader. I thank him. He has been cooperative from the start. He understands, as we all do, this is not a Chicago issue. This is a national issue. It is an issue that Senators across the Nation understand as we sit, hour after weary hour, in airports, wondering: What is wrong at O'Hare now?

What is wrong is a 40-year-old runway design that needs to be modernized; it needs to be safer; it needs to be improved. We cannot allow this issue to die. For the good of that airport, for national aviation, for jobs in Illinois, stopping this bill is a job killer in a State that needs jobs desperately. Stopping this bill is a business killer in a State that desperately needs businesses to expand. Stopping this bill is putting a dagger in the heart of the single most important public works project in the history of our State. I am not going to let that happen without a fight. I am happy to have the majority leader in my corner.

I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Illinois is recognized.

The Senator is recognized.

Mr. FITZGERALD. I thank the Chair.

Mr. President, I would like to respond to what my colleague from Illinois just said. I think there are a number of points that were glossed over.

I do oppose Senator DURBIN's bill with respect to O'Hare. Mr. DURBIN said it is necessary to pass this bill in order to expand O'Hare Airport. But I would point out that never in the history of our country, that I am aware of, has any airport in this country had a special bill mandating that the FAA approve its particular expansion plans.

The fact is, if Mayor Daley of Chicago wants to expand O'Hare Airport, he can simply file an application with the FAA to expand O'Hare Airport. The trouble is, if that were the case—if Mayor Daley were simply to file an application similar to all the other airports in the country—his application would have to be judged on the mere merits.

So Senator DURBIN and Mayor Daley came up with the idea of drafting a statute. They put that into bill form and are now asking Congress to pass it.

The purpose of that bill is twofold:

No. 1, the bill would straightjacket the FAA so that they would have no choice but to approve Mayor Daley's specific runway design at O'Hare Airport.

I could go on for a very long time. But maybe I will save that for a later date to tell you why it is in fact a bad runway design that Mayor Daley is trying to mandate in Federal law.

The bill of Senator DURBIN—I don't care what the committee report says—says that the FAA shall implement a Federal policy in favor of approving six parallel runways running in the east-west direction at O'Hare Airport. It says east-west. It is very specific.

I take issue with my colleague's comments or suggestions that the FAA could change it. In fact, it would be illegal for the FAA to reposition those runways in a northwest-southeast direction. Mayor Daley's and Senator DURBIN's exact runway design will be locked into Federal statutory law if my colleague's bill passes.

That is one of the objectives my colleague has. He wants to straightjacket the FAA, put a gun to the FAA's head, and force them to approve a bad runway design that has never been reviewed by any Federal aviation expert. It has never been tested in any modeling. In fact, it appears to be the back-of-a-napkin design.

Mayor Daley was before the Senate Commerce Committee, and he admitted that the city of Chicago had never itself done any studies to back up that design.

There is another goal my colleague is trying to accomplish with S. 2039. Right now, the city of Chicago has the power to condemn lands around O'Hare Airport and communities around O'Hare Airport, provided Mayor Daley gets a permit from the State of Illinois to do that. Senator DURBIN's bill would remove the requirement that Mayor Daley get a permit from the State before he condemns the communities around O'Hare. They cannot pass legislation in the State senate that would get rid of the permit requirement. So they have decided to come to Congress in Washington and to strip away the State's law and permit requirement at the Federal level.

If my colleague's bill passes, that will mean Mayor Daley could condemn all the communities around O'Hare without getting a permit from anybody. He would have an unfettered ability to condemn properties in communities that are outside the city of Chicago.

Imagine if the mayor of Minneapolis could go willy-nilly and condemn communities all around Minneapolis. Imagine what the communities around Minneapolis would think.

I think the State legislature was wise in imposing a requirement that the mayor of Chicago, before he goes out and condemns communities around his city, get a permit from the State of Illinois. I think the Federal Government would unbalance that wise State law if we were to remove that permit requirement.

If one person had the ability to willy-nilly condemn all parts of the Chicago area around O'Hare Airport, that would literally give the mayor of Chicago unfettered license to run over anybody he wanted at any time he wanted. I don't think this body should be part of conferring that kind of unfettered ability to run over people on the mayor of Chicago.

There are delays at O'Hare Airport right now. That is no doubt true. I stood right here 2 years ago and warned Congress not to lift the delay controls at O'Hare Airport. From 1969 to 1999—for 30 years—the FAA had delay controls at O'Hare Airport so that the airlines didn't schedule more flights than the airport had the capacity to handle.

In 1999, Congress took off the delay controls, allowing the airlines to schedule more flights than O'Hare had the capacity to handle. I warned that we would have horrible delays if we lifted those delay controls. That happened. There were interim studies by the FAA which showed that if the delay controls at O'Hare were lifted, delays would go up exponentially, and they have.

In my judgment, that was a deliberate attempt by United Airlines and American Airlines to cause delays at O'Hare and to build pressure to further expand O'Hare in an attempt to block a third airport which has been needed in Chicago for nearly 30 years. That is what we now see.

I also note that while Senator DURBIN's legislation would require the FAA, or force, or command the FAA to approve a runway expansion plan at O'Hare that would increase the capacity of the runways by 78 percent, at the same time the plan is to build new terminals which would only add 12 new gates.

This is a very bizarre plan that Congress is entering into. We are going to expand runway capacity by 78 percent, but we are only going to add 12 new gates. That really means that once runway capacity is expanded at O'Hare, it will be possible under this plan to land a plane but you will have nowhere to park it. It doesn't make any sense. It is not appropriate for Congress to be wresting control of airport design from the FAA and curtailing the FAA's discretion. We should leave the FAA's discretion intact.

If Senator DURBIN believes his runway design for O'Hare Airport has merit, then he should file an application with the FAA and see if the FAA approves it. He should not seek an end-run around the rules that all the other airports in the country abide by, nor should this body be part of stripping away the State of Illinois' requirement that the mayor of the city of Chicago get a permit before he condemns properties and communities that are outside the city of Chicago.

It is not right to give the mayor of Chicago unfettered ability to run over anyone he wants at any time he wants.

S. 2039 is an unfortunate piece of legislation. I will do everything I can to prevent its passage.

I note one good development. The House of Representatives took this bill up in just the last couple of days—I believe on Wednesday—a House companion bill to S. 2039. The House committee stripped out the language that had the effect of putting a straightjacket around the FAA and commanding the FAA to approve a specific runway design at O'Hare Airport. Even the House committee recognizes the impropriety of Congress putting a gun to the head of the FAA and forcing them to approve a specific runway design.

The House legislation simply allows Chicago to file a plan with the FAA and to be considered the same way any other airport expansion program or proposal is considered anywhere else in the country. Unfortunately, however, the House legislation does have the language giving the mayor of the city of Chicago unfettered condemnation authority, which I think is, as I pointed out earlier, a big mistake.

So with that, I do look forward to the debate. I am sure the debate will be coming. And if I cannot defeat this legislation, I ultimately want to change or modify it to make it less egregious than it now is. In its current form, it is such an egregious piece of legislation that I think it would be inappropriate for our Senate to devote time to it when we have Medicare prescription drug issues, homeland security, and 13 appropriations bills we still have not addressed.

With that, Mr. President, I thank this body for affording me this time to speak. I yield the floor and wish all my colleagues a good Fourth of July recess.

Mr. President, I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. NELSON of Florida). The clerk will call the roll.

The assistant legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. REID. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

(The remarks of Mr. REID pertaining to the introduction of S. 2697 are printed in today's RECORD under "Statements on Introduced Bills and Joint Resolutions.")

MORNING BUSINESS

Mr. REID. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that we proceed to a period of morning business, with Senators permitted to speak therein for up to 5 minutes each.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

PATENT AND TRADEMARK AUTHORIZATION ACT OF 2002

Mr. LEAHY. Mr. President, I am pleased that the Senate passed a bill which I introduced, the Patent and Trademark Authorization Act of 2002, which was reported out of the Judiciary Committee last week without objection. I appreciate that Senators HATCH, CANTWELL, REID, BENNETT and CARPER joined with me in co-sponsoring this bill.

This bill, the Patent and Trademark Authorization Act of 2002, will send a strong message to America's innovators and inventors that the Congress intends to protect and enhance our patent system. The PTO serves a critical role in the promotion and development of commercial activity in the United States by granting patents and trademark registrations to our Nation's innovators and businesses.

The costs of running the PTO are entirely paid for by fees collected by the PTO from users, individuals and companies that seek to benefit from patent and trademark protections. However, since 1992 Congress has diverted over $800 million of those fees for other government programs unrelated to the PTO.

This bill sends a strong message that Congress should appropriate to the PTO a funding level equal to these fees. The reason for this is simple: the creation of intellectual property by Americans, individuals and businesses, is a massive positive driving force for our economy and is a huge plus for our trade balance with the rest of the world. In recent years, the number of patent applications has risen dramatically, and that trend is expected to continue. Our patent examiners are very overworked, and emerging areas such as biotechnology and business method patents may overwhelm the system.

If fully implemented as intended, this bill can greatly assist the PTO in issuing quality patents more quickly, which means more investment, more jobs and greater productivity for American businesses.

The House of Representatives has passed a bill, H.R. 2047, which contains some similar provisions but just for fiscal year 2002 regarding the authorization of appropriations. That bill, H.R. 2047, was also passed by the Senate but amended to include the text of S. 1754, as reported out of the Judiciary Committee. This will provide the Congress the greatest opportunity to get this reform on the President's desk for signature.

Note that the Judiciary Committee reported out a substitute bill, with the assistance of Senator HATCH, which simply moved back some dates in S. 1754, as originally introduced. I am including a short explanation of S. 1754, as reported. This explanation also applies to the version of H.R. 2047 as passed by the Senate.

Section 1 of the bill sets forth the title, "The Patent and Trademark Office Authorization Act of 2002."

Section 2 authorizes Congress to appropriate to the PTO, in each of fiscal years 2003 through 2008, an amount equal to the fees estimated by the Secretary of Commerce to be collected in each of the next 5 fiscal years. The Secretary shall make this report to the Congress by February 15 of each such fiscal year.

This bill thus sets forth the goal, strongly supported by users of the patent system, that the PTO should have a budget equal to the fees collected for each year. In recent years, the appropriations' committees have not provided annual appropriations equal to the fees collected. This bill sets forth the wishes of the committee, and now the Senate as a whole, that the PTO be funded at levels determined by the anticipated fee collections.

Section 3 of the bill directs the PTO to develop, in the next three years, an electronic system for the filing and processing of all patent and trademark applications that is user friendly and that will allow the Office to process and maintain electronically the contents and history of all applications. Of the amount appropriated under section 2, section 3 authorizes Congress to appropriate not more than $50 million in fiscal years 2003 and 2004 for the electronic filing system. The PTO is working on this electronic system.

In section 4, the bill requires the Secretary of Commerce to annually report to the Judiciary Committees of the House of Representatives and the Senate on the progress made in implementing its strategic plan. The PTO issued a short version of its "21st Century Strategic Plan" on June 3, 2002, which is available on their website.

The bill also contains two sections which will clarify two provisions of current law and thus provide certainty and guidance to the PTO as well as inventors and businesses.

Section 5 of S. 1754 expands the scope of matters that may be raised during the reexamination process to a level which had been the case for many years. In background, Congress established the patent reexamination system in 1980 for three purposes: to attempt to settle patent validity questions quickly and less expensively than litigation; to allow courts to rely on PTO expertise; and, third, to reinforce investor confidence in the certainty of patent rights by affording an opportunity to review patents of doubtful validity.

This system of encouraging third parties to pursue reexamination as an efficient method of settling patent disputes is still a good idea. However, by clarifying current law this bill increases the discretion of the PTO and enhances the effectiveness of the reexamination process. It does this by permitting the use of relevant evidence that was considered by the PTO, but not necessarily cited. Thus, adding this new language to current law will help prevent the misuse of defective patents, especially those concerning business method patents.

It permits a reexamination based on prior art cited by an applicant that the examiner failed to adequately consider. Thus, this change allows the PTO to correct some examiner errors that it would not otherwise be able to correct. In a sense it deals with In re Portola Packaging, 110 F.3d 786, Fed. Cir. 1997, in a manner which should reduce the number of cases which will be handled in Federal court in a manner that fully protects the rights of interested parties, and the public interest. Thus, section 5 does not change the basic approach of current law but rather eliminates a presumption which could be wrong, allowing for mistakes to be fixed without expensive litigation.

Section 6 of the bill modestly improves the usefulness of inter partes reexamination procedures by enhancing the ability of third-party requesters to participate in that process by allowing such a third party to appeal an adverse reexamine decision in Federal court or to participate in the appeal brought by the patentee. This may make inter partes reexamination a somewhat more attractive option for challenging a patent in that a third party should feel more comfortable that the courts can be accessed to rectify a mistaken reexamination decision. This section should increase the use of the reexamine system and thus decrease the number of patent matters adjudicated in Federal court.

I look forward to working with the other body to assure that this bill becomes law as soon as possible. I appreciate the work of Herb Wamsley of the Intellectual Property Owners Association on this bill, and of Marla Grossman who worked with us in this effort. Also, I want to thank Mike Kirk of the American Intellectual Property Law Association for his help on these patent fee matters over the years.

LOCAL LAW ENFORCEMENT ACT OF 2001

Mr. SMITH of Oregon. Mr. President, I rise today to speak about hate crimes legislation I introduced with Senator KENNEDY in March of last year. The Local Law Enforcement Act of 2001 would add new categories to current hate crimes legislation sending a signal that violence of any kind is unacceptable in our society.

I would like to describe a terrible crime that occurred in August 2001 in Monmouth County, NJ. Seven people assaulted a 23-year-old learning disabled man with hearing and speech impediments. The victim was lured to a party, bound, and physically and verbally assaulted for three hours. Later, he was taken to a wooded area where the torture continued until he was able to escape. The perpetrators were sentenced on multiple counts in connection with the incident, including aggravated assault and harassment by bias intimidation.

I believe that government's first duty is to defend its citizens, to defend them against the harms that come out of hate. The Local Law Enforcement Enhancement Act of 2001 is now a symbol that can become substance. I believe that by passing this legislation and changing current law, we can change hearts and minds as well.

GETTING ANSWERS

Mr. DORGAN. Mr. President, during England's darkest hour in 1940, Winston Churchill spoke of an unwavering sense of purpose. "You ask, what is our aim? I can answer in one word: it is victory, victory at all costs, victory in spite of all terror," he told members of Parliament.

Sixty years later, we here in the United States are fighting a different kind of terror, terrorists who hide in caves and plan the murder of thousands of innocent Americans, but our resolve to defeat it matches that of Churchill. Some have expressed concerns that the investigations of how our intelligence and law enforcement authorities handled information prior to 9-11 will weaken our efforts to defeat terrorists.

Frankly, I think the questions that are being raised will strengthen our efforts to defeat terrorism. We have a lot of good men and women working in the CIA, the FBI and other agencies. But evidence, we have learned in recent months, suggests that there is a layer of bureaucracy and resistance in the management of some of these critical agencies that stifles the efforts of good law enforcement and good intelligence when tracking terrorists.

We have to fix that. Our job is to prevent the next act of terror and if the bureaucracy is clogging the arteries of our intelligence and law enforcement agencies, then we have to get rid of it.

Consider this: six months after Mohammed Atta and Marwan Al-Shehhi flew huge jets into the World Trade Center, the U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service inexplicably sent notice their visa status had been changed from travel to student. In recent weeks, reports indicate a Phoenix FBI agent alerted headquarters of his suspicions about Middle Eastern men taking flight lessons. Minneapolis agent Coleen Rowley has complained bitterly that her office's efforts to obtain a search warrant about a suspected hijacker were ignored. Now the CIA says that it was tracking two of those who committed terrorist's acts on 9-11, but there is controversy over whether the FBI was actually notified. As a result the terrorists moved in and out of our country with ease. These and other reports, in recent months, raise real concerns about how these federal intelligence and law enforcement agencies are working to prevent future acts of terrorism.

When people begin to raise questions about these issues, some claim that the intent is to criticize President Bush.

President Bush, indeed any President, would have moved heaven and earth to prevent the catastrophe of 9-11 if he had received any advance warning. These inquiries are not about the President or the White House. They are about the effectiveness of our Federal agencies in the war against terrorism here at home.

The information disclosed in recent months about some of the failures of these agencies has come from people working inside the agencies. These are employees of the FBI and other agencies who are blowing the whistle on agency managers who fail to see the gravity of this situation and refuse to take appropriate actions.

For example, Minneapolis FBI agents were admonished by their superiors for sharing information with the CIA in the case of suspected terrorist, Zacarias Moussaoui, who had links to Osama bin Laden. That is unacceptable. These agencies need to work together. Preventing the next terrorist act is a tough job, and we will succeed only if we have all of the resources working full time and cooperating fully.

In recent months and weeks, the head of Homeland Security has warned our country the terrorist attacks against the United States could happen at any time. That's why these agencies and their officials have to be fighting the battle against terrorists, not turf battles between their agencies.

Big, bureaucratic and slow doesn't get it anymore. We deserve better from these agencies. What if there is critical information right now in the possession of one agency that is not sharing it with another? Are those who dropped the ball last year in these agencies. The same ones we now rely on to prevent another terrorist nightmare?

The answer to these questions is why this is such an urgent matter. We, the President, the Congress and the American people, deserve the unvarnished facts so that we can move ahead and protect our country, so I say let's do these investigations. Let's make sure that they don't turn into a circus. As Sergeant Joe Friday used to say, "Just the facts, ma'am." Let's use those facts to make the changes these agencies so that the men and women of the FBI, the CIA and other agencies who are very capable and serve America well, are able to do their jobs successfully.

Only then, as Winston Churchill did, can we finally win the war against terrorism.

PLEDGE OF ALLEGIANCE

Mr. ALLARD. Mr. President, I would like to speak on the ridiculous ruling of the Ninth U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals. Literally ridiculous; it deserves to be ridiculed. It was a 2-1 decision, so there is, at least, one judge on the Court who can rule based on the same legal and civic theory that the rest of the country has been operating under for the last 226 years.

I cannot accept removing "under God" from the Pledge of Allegiance. This ruling is appalling. I never thought I would see the day when saying the Pledge of Allegiance would be declared unconstitutional by a court. I certainly did not think I would see it on the day I placed my hand on a Holy Bible and made an Oath at my swearing in.

The Magna Carta of 1215, considered the initial codification of Western democratic theory, clearly shows that power is granted from "above." Not "above" from a judge's bench, but higher—from an Almighty Power. Every major assertion of our fundamental political thought references God, and not in passing, but as a cornerstone of human life.

Sometimes it is again literally a cornerstone. The Jefferson Memorial has quotes from that great man, which contain references to God carved into the stone. The Lincoln Memorial also has a testament to that President's commitment to God cut into the very marble. Anyone reading his Second Inaugural must know his view of a daily presence of God in the affairs of man and in the political life of this nation. The Holocaust Memorial facade quotes scriptures. So does our Library of Congress, Union Station, Constitution Hall, and many others.

Even William Shakespeare's Puck is quoted referring to God over outside the Folger Shakespeare Theater—in a quote that I think rings especially true regarding certain court rulings—"Lord, What fools these mortals be." Lord, what foolish rulings these judges make. There has already been discussions on this floor regarding our coins, our money, and this very Chamber. I don't bring these up just to worry aloud as to whether they are soon to be ruled against as well, but to show that our nation was incorporated under God, and an attempt to excise God from this Republic is wrong and lacking in historical and legal insight.

Our citizens are free from an official state religion—not forced to be free from religious thought.

When President Eisenhower signed the law adding "under God" to the pledge, he was not doing so in attempt to lead this Nation down a Godly path. It was not using the bully pulpit to attempt to steer a course. He was affirming that this nation has already consistently and thoroughly incorporated belief in and submission to God.

We separated ourselves from the United Kingdom under the laws of Nature's God, claiming the unalienable rights we were endowed with by our Creator and appealing to the Supreme Judge of the world for recititude of our intentions. We have continued this way ever since—no matter what the Ninth might say.

Finally, I want to make it clear that I am not merely upset about the fact that the Pledge of Allegiance was ruled against. I want to also speak against the ongoing assault on our basic religious beliefs. As my friend Senator SESSIONS voiced earlier, this is just another result of a dangerous and radical viewpoint that is held by an irresponsible few. Few as they are compared to our citizens as a whole, there are far too many in this body and elsewhere who express beliefs and support for radical judges that cannot help but lead us to these types of decisions. We do not jump from a nation that believes itself endowed by its Creator with unalienable rights to a nation where the Pledge of Allegiance can be ruled unconstitutional without many intervening steps along the way. Those of us who oppose the many small steps taken down this path welcome those who finally stand aghast at where we end up. I hope this body and the Nation will move to correct the error.

REPORT ON TRIP TO BULGARIA, MACEDONIA, KOSOVO, SLOVAKIA, SLOVENIA AND BRUSSELS

Mr. VOINOVICH. Mr. President, over the Memorial Day recess, I joined seven members of the House of Representatives to participate in the spring meeting of the NATO Parliamentary Assembly. Twice a year, legislators from NATO member countries and seventeen countries that have been given "associate" status—including NATO aspirants and members of the Partnership for Peace program—gather to discuss significant issues facing the Alliance.

At the forefront of the agenda this year were issues related to the war on terrorism, and questions that will be raised when NATO heads of state meet in Prague this November, including: the future direction of the Alliance; the growing gap in military capabilities between the United States and our European allies; and the selection of new members.

This was the third year that I have participated in the NATO Parliamentary Assembly's spring gathering. The meeting took on a new urgency as the Alliance continues to confront a changed international security environment in the aftermath of the terrorist attacks on September 11th. As parliamentarians discussed the military campaign in Afghanistan and the role of NATO in the war on terror, I reminded my European counterparts of the need to invest in the defense budgets of their respective countries. Without fundamental military capabilities such as strategic airlift and command and control systems, the European contribution to the global war on terrorism will continue to be limited.

It was clear throughout the meeting that the events of 9-11 have impacted discussions in many areas, including expansion of the Alliance. During consideration of a Declaration on NATO Enlargement, I introduced an amendment calling attention to the significant threats that terrorism and the proliferation of weapons of mass destruction pose to NATO countries, and recognizing that as NATO considers enlargement, the Alliance remains open to tolerant, democratic societies, which embrace values that terrorism seeks to destroy.

As the meeting progressed, I also expressed my strong support for a robust round of enlargement during the Summit of the Alliance in Prague later this year. I share the President's vision of enlargement, articulated in Warsaw, Poland last June, when he said that as we approach Prague: "We should not calculate how little we can get away with, but how much we can do to advance the cause of freedom."

Yet while the Alliance should extend invitations to a number of countries in Prague, I believe it is premature to single out countries for membership at this point. Instead, we should continue to encourage aspirants to make progress on their membership action plans and move forward with democratic, economic and judicial reforms.

As such, during consideration of the Declaration on NATO Enlargement, I joined Congressman DOUG BEREUTER, the chairman of the U.S. delegation, and other members of the United States Congress at the meeting in abstaining from a vote on an amendment that identified seven countries as ready for membership in the Alliance. Despite U.S. concerns, the amendment was adopted.

While I do not disagree that the countries listed in the amendment—Bulgaria, Romania, Slovakia, Slovenia, Estonia, Latvia and Lithuania—have made some strides in their preparations to join NATO, there are serious discussions that must take place between now and November regarding the selection of new members.

This spring's NATO Parliamentary meeting was especially important to its host country, Bulgaria, which hopes to receive an invitation to join the Alliance in Prague. I remain very interested in discussion about NATO enlargement, and while in Sofia, I was glad to have opportunity to visit with Prime Minister Simeon Saxe-Coburg-Gothé and President Georgi Parvanov to discuss Bulgaria's work to join the Alliance. I also met with Defense Minister Nikolay Svinarov and Foreign Minister Solomon Passy, who I have met with previously in my office in Washington, DC.

My first official visit outside of the NATO session was with Bulgaria's Defense Minister, Nikolay Svinarov. Just minutes before our meeting, Mr. Svinarov spoke to the NATO PA's Committee on Defense and Security, outlining Bulgaria's plans to move forward with defense reforms. His presentation was clear, and I congratulated him on his effort to describe Bulgaria's progress on the defense portion of the membership action plan (MAP). While noting the progress that has been made, I encouraged him to follow through on the vision that he articulated to the NATO parliamentarians. I was impressed with Bulgaria's plan; however, it is evident that there is still a lot of work to be done to implement their ambitious agenda for military reform.

My impressions were reaffirmed several days later when I visited Graf Ignatievo air base, near the city of Plovdiv. The enthusiasm of the officers and pilots at the base was evident. Since 2001, the Bulgarian government has invested in modernization of base infrastructure, upgrading the runway and the flight line and renovating buildings and training facilities. While this is certainly a positive development, I was concerned with the equipment at the base, including Soviet-era

MiG-29 and MiG-21 aircraft. While the MiG-21s will be retired, the Bulgarians hope to upgrade their MiG-29s by 2004, with the goal of full NATO interoperability. There are serious questions not only about whether or not this can actually be done, but also whether this is money wisely spent. As NATO considers questions about military capabilities, it will be important to consider how NATO members and aspirant countries can best invest limited defense dollars to contribute to the overall mission of the Alliance. As Bulgaria continues with defense reforms, this will be one factor to consider.

Bulgaria must also confront challenges in other areas, including the need to move forward with judicial reforms. The government must take action to combat corruption and organized crime. I discussed this issue with Prime Minister Saxe-Coburg-Gothé and President Purvanov, as well as Foreign Minister Passy.

Perhaps one of the most eye-opening conversation I had during my trip to Bulgaria was with FBI Special Agent Victor Moore, who is working with the Bulgarian government and local NGOs to combat human trafficking. As a member of the Helsinki Commission and an active participant in the annual meetings of the OSCE Parliamentary Assembly, I have worked on this issue with Congressman CHRIS SMITH—who has a long record of work to combat the trafficking of men, women and children. I also follow the efforts of the Southeast European Cooperative Initiative (SECI), which aims to combat trans-border crime in the region.

SECI has spearheaded an initiative to combat human trafficking in southeast Europe, and Vic Moore's efforts are tied directly to their objectives. Of his eleven years in the FBI, he spent nine of them working on drug enforcement in New York City. In Bulgaria, he is working to give law enforcement personnel the skills they need to investigate and prosecute human trafficking cases. The Bulgarian government has formed a multi-agency task force, which has liberated more than 160 women, issued 60 arrest warrants and captured approximately 60 traffickers. This important work should continue. I believe it is important that the government take continued steps to strengthen the rule of law and reform the judicial systems. This will be important as NATO evaluates the progress of aspirant countries later this year.

In all of my conversations in Sofia, one thing was clear: the people of Bulgaria, and the members of government who represent them, want to join NATO. Over a breakfast meeting with members of the U.S. delegation at the home of our Ambassador to Bulgaria Jim Pardew, President Parvanov said that there is complete public and political consensus on NATO in Bulgaria.

I am hopeful Bulgaria's enthusiasm for NATO membership remains high, and the government stays committed to critical reform efforts.

After participating in the NATO Parliamentary Assembly meeting in Sofia, I traveled to Macedonia, Kosovo, Slovakia, Slovenia and Brussels to evaluate the situation in southeast Europe, and to examine progress in Macedonia, Slovakia and Slovenia as they work to join NATO.

Following my arrival in Skopje on Tuesday, May 28, 2002, I had the opportunity to visit with our Ambassador to Macedonia, Larry Butler, and his team at the U.S. Embassy. This was my third trip to Macedonia as a member of the U.S. Senate. I first traveled to Macedonia during the war and visited Stankovic refugee camp; my second trip was in February 2000, and I met with President Trajkovski, Prime Minister Goergievski, and ethnic Albanian leader Arben Xhaferi. At that time, our focus was on Kosovo. Since the spring of 2001, all eyes have been in Macedonia.

In August 2001, following the outbreak of violence in the spring by ethnic Albanian rebels from Macedonia and Kosovo, the government's political parties came together to sign a peace agreement. The plan—called the Ohrid Framework Agreement—called for the passage of laws and constitutional reforms to address concerns of Macedonia's ethnic Albanian minority, which makes up approximately one-third of the country's population.

At the time of my visit last month, the government was expected to pass a final package of laws to implement the Ohrid Framework Agreement. This was a primary topic of discussion in my conversations with our Ambassador and staff at the U.S. embassy, as well as President Trajkovski and Mr. Xhaferi. While the parliament did not act in the days immediately following my visit, as hoped, I was pleased to learn that fifteen of the seventeen outstanding laws were passed last Thursday, June 20, 2002. I am hopeful that action on the remaining issues will be taken soon.

During my meeting with Arben Xhaferi, he stressed the importance of the international community's involvement in Macedonia. He said the United States should continue to play a role in Macedonia—both with its military presence and financial assistance. While I agree with Mr. Xhaferi that U.S. involvement in the region is important, I stressed to him that the people of Macedonia—regardless of ethnicity—must take action to improve the situation in their country. While the international community can play a helpful role, ultimately, things are in the hands of the people and their elected leaders. As such, I encouraged Mr. Xhaferi to move forward with efforts to implement democratic and economic reforms, and to promote respect for the rule of law. I also shared with him my strong concern with organized crime, corruption and human trafficking in the region, and urged him to take action in this area.

During my meetings, it was also clear that demarcation of the border between Macedonia and Kosovo has become a significant political issue in both Macedonia and Kosovo. Some in Macedonia would like to move forward with the demarcation of border, recognized by the U.N. Security Council, which was formally agreed upon by Macedonia and the Federal Republic of Yugoslavia in March 2001.

Judging from my conversations in Kosovo, however, it was evident that there is not yet a consensus regarding the right time to put down markers along the border. This issue must be approached with caution.

I am also hopeful that free and fair parliamentary elections will take place in Macedonia on September 15, 2002, as planned. The United States and members of the international community, including the European Union, should do everything in their power to stress to leaders in Macedonia the importance of permitting people to go to the polls without incidence this fall.

On Wednesday, May 29, 2002, I spent the day in Kosovo. It was my third trip to Kosovo since February 2000, and the fourth full day that I have spent there. During my time in the Senate, I have been very active on issues affecting southeast Europe, and I have been particularly concerned with the situation of ethnic minorities and respect for minority rights throughout the region—in Bosnia-Herzegovina, Croatia, and the Federal Republic of Yugoslavia, as well as Kosovo. As such, I was glad to have the opportunity to examine this issue in Kosovo last month.

I spent time with the Head of UNMIK Michael Steiner, as well as Commander of KFOR General Valentin. I also met with President Rugova and Prime Minister Rexhepi, and Serb leaders Rada Trajkovic and Ljubomir Stanojkovic. I met with Ambassador John Menzies and his team at the U.S. Office in Pristina, and I was glad to visit with General Lute at KFOR Main and some of our troops at Camp Bondsteel, as well as Ambassador Pascal Fieschi, who heads the OSCE Mission in Kosovo.

Around the time of my visit, the Organization for Security and Cooperation and Europe (OSCE) and the U.N. High Commission on Refugees (UNHCR) released the Ninth Assessment of the Situation of Ethnic Minorities in Kosovo, which describes the quality of life experienced by Kosovo's minority groups.

My impressions after spending time in Kosovo last month reaffirm many of the conclusions reached in the OSCE-UNHCR report: while there has been some improvement for ethnic minorities, there is still a long way to go.

My first reaction was that things seem somewhat better now than they were when I visited nearly 3 years ago. I attribute this to several factors, including work done by the international community, including UNMIK, KFOR, the OSCE and others, as well as the interest that the people of Kosovo have shown in creating their own government following parliamentary elections last November and the election of new leadership in March. I believe the participation of the Serbian minority in the parliamentary elections last November was very important, as was the cooperation of the FRY government, which encourage Kosovar Serbs to vote.

Additionally, I was impressed with the "benchmark" goals that have been outlined by UNMIK, which call for progress in key areas, including respect for the rule of law, strengthening democratic institutions, and building a civil society.

The benchmarks paper also emphasizes respect for minority rights and refugee returns, which deserve attention both from the international community and from the newly elected leadership in Kosovo.

This document is very important, as it lays out a plan for Kosovo. It will be critical for the international community to refer to this document from time to time to assess progress and, as necessary, to redouble efforts in certain areas. In the past, I have been concerned that the international community has not been focused in its vision of Kosovo, and this document offers a positive step in the right direction.

To make real progress, however, we must encourage Michael Steiner and UNMIK to develop a strategic plan and a critical path for the implementation of the benchmark goals. When I attend the OSCE Parliamentary Assembly meeting in Berlin this July, I will encourage the Head of the OSCE Mission in Kosovo, Pascal Fieschi, to do so. This will allow UNMIK to monitor progress on the benchmark goals.

While in Kosovo, I also met with the Commander of KFOR, General Valentin, and discussed with him the security situation in the region. He is optimistic, and believes that there is progress every day. He said things are much better than they were three years ago. Ambassador Fieschi was also encouraged that things have gotten better for Kosovo's minorities, though he indicated that change has been slow.

While I agree that things are somewhat better, the findings in the OSCE-UNHCR report are less upbeat. With regard to security and freedom of movement, the report reads: "Despite the decrease in serious incidents of violence, harassment, intimidation and humiliation of members of minority communities in Kosovo continued to prevail as a feature of daily life." This affects all of Kosovo's minorities, including Serbs, Roma, Egyptians, Bosniaks, Croats, Albanians, Turks and others.

Serb leaders Rada Trajkovic and Ljubomir Stanojkovic discussed the situation for the Serbian minority with me over lunch in Gracanica, which was my third visit to the city. Though there are still many concerns which must be addressed, I got the general impression that things are somewhat better for the Serbs than they were two years ago. I am encouraged that Dr. Trajkovic and Mr. Stanojkovic are active and participating with the new government, and I believe it is important that they continue to call on others to do the same. I believe it is essential that Serbs participate in the municipal elections this October and take advantage of the opportunity to participate and have a voice at the table of government.

During my visit, I met with Ibrahim Rugova, who was elected President in March. This was my second meeting with Mr. Rugova—we visited when I was in Kosovo in February 2000. At that time, I also met with ethnic Albanian leaders Hashim Thaci and Rexhep Oosja. Two years ago, as Mr. Rugova and others continued to call for independence, I expressed my belief that there could be little serious discussion on independence until the rights of all people in Kosovo—including minorities—were protected. During our meeting in May, I again stressed this point.

In addition to President Rugova, I also met with the new Prime Minister of Kosovo, Bajram Rexhepi, and discussed with him the situation in Kosovo. I was impressed with him during our meeting. He seems to clearly understand work that needs to be done, focusing on the need for refugee returns and respect for minority rights, as well as the need to stimulate economic development. He reminded me that U.S. leadership in Kosovo, and the region at large, is still very important.

While I was pleased that everyone I spoke with during my meetings in Kosovo last month, including President Rugova, Prime Minister Rexhepi, and Michael Steiner, was committed to refugee returns, I am concerned because there are still more minorities leaving Kosovo than returning. With regard to returns, the OSCE-UNHCR report notes that if more people are to actually return, it will "require much more meaningful and broad progress on the main issues," such as security, freedom of movement, essential services and employment.

I also believe it is critical that Mr. Steiner and UNMIK articulate a clear action plan for returns. Additionally, following my visit to Kosovo, I remain very concerned with the situation in Mitrovica, which remains divided between north and south. I believe the only way to achieve any progress will be if the international community works with the elected leadership in Kosovo to find a solution. While there are different schools of thought as to what should happen in Mitrovica, it is imperative that discussion continues and the parties act to normalize life for all the city's residents. This should happen quickly, and any plan on decentralization to give local communities more a stronger voice should be finalized before the municipal elections in the fall.

I also believe we must watch the situation along the border with Macedonia carefully. This issue has become controversial in both Kosovo and Macedonia. While some in Macedonia would like to move forward with the demarcation of the border, this is a sensitive issue which must be approached calmly and rationally. The people of Kosovo do not support this border agreement, and at the end of May, the Kosovo Assembly passed a resolution denouncing the border agreement—which Michael Steiner immediately annulled. I believe there should be discussion on this matter, with all involved parties together at one table.

Following my time in Kosovo, I traveled to the Slovak Republic to discuss the country's aspirations to join the NATO Alliance, and to assess their progress as they continue to participate in the membership action plan process. Though my time was limited, I was pleased to finally have the chance to travel to Slovakia—which was the only country aspiring to join the NATO Alliance that I had yet to visit.

While in Bratislava, I spent time with our Ambassador to Slovakia, Ron Weiser, who is working hard to promote the merits of democracy, the rule of law and a free market economy as the country looks toward membership in NATO. I believe his work is important in the months leading to parliamentary elections this September, which could be a determining factor in Slovakia's candidacy for NATO membership.

During my visit, I had the opportunity to meet with Prime Minister Mikulas Dzurinda, who has pushed forward with critical economic and democratic reforms in Slovakia since becoming prime minister in 1998. His government has placed a top priority on joining NATO and the European Union. Prime Minister Dzurinda and I discussed ongoing efforts to liberalize the economy, strengthen democratic institutions and modernize the country's armed forces. We also talked about the importance of respecting minority rights including the rights of the country's ethnic Hungarian community. Additional, I expressed my strong concern with the problems of organized crime, corruption and human trafficking in central and eastern Europe, and encouraged the Prime Minister and his government to move forward with efforts to address these problems.

I also met with Robert Fico, leader of the Smer (Direction) political party, who hopes to be the country's next prime minister. Young and charismatic, Fico's animate campaign signs were all around town as we drove from one meeting to the next. Fico and his colleague also expressed their strong support for Slovakia's membership in NATO and the European Union. As the polls are close, it is possible that he could play a role in the formation of the next government.

Following my arrival at the Bratislava airport, I met with Defense State Secretary Ratislav Kacer. We discussed ongoing defense reforms, and the country's efforts to increase defense spending. During my time in public service, I have often said it is important to "work harder and smarter," and do more with less." Mr. Kacer knew of my philosophy, and said this could be helpful to Slovakia as the country works to modernize with limited resources. He reiterated the country's strong support of NATO, and said the government has aligned its own national defense priorities with issues important to the Alliance.

Additionally, I have the opportunity to visit with ethnic Hungarian Leader Mr. Laszlo Dobos, who was a member of Slovakia's parliament during the 1990s. Dr. Dobos is founder and chairman of Madach Posonium, as a Hungarian non-governmental organization that operates Hungarian bookstores in Slovakia and publishes Hungarian periodicals. We discussed a number of issues of concern to Slovakia's Hungarian community, including higher education and greater autonomy for local governments.

During all meetings in Slovakia, I noted that the upcoming elections will be very important to the future of the country. Voters will decide the direction of the Slovak Republic—and whether it moves toward membership in NATO and the EU, or whether it is left behind as others join the broader European Community of democracies. Values are the hallmark of the NATO alliance, and I believe it is critical that Slovakia embraces the ideals of democracy, the rule of law and respect for human rights, consistent with the current government, and break with the leadership of Vladimir Meciar that has been of strong concern to the United States, the European Union and other members of the international community in the past.

I was also glad to have the opportunity to visit Slovakia to talk about the country's work to join the NATO Alliance. I have long followed developments in Slovenia, and I believe the country is in a very good position as we approach the NATO summit in Prague.

Slovenia has made considerable progress on democratic, economic and defense reforms, and there is continued discussion on the merits of NATO membership in the public. At the same time, it is important that the government act to bolster public support for NATO, which has continued to hover around 50 percent. It is also imperative that the country work to increase its defense budget to the 2 percent mark. Currently, Slovenia allocates approximately 1.5 percent of GDP for its armed forces.

During my time in Slovenia I had the opportunity to visit with President Milan Kucan, who I have known for many years. We discussed the country's work to join NATO, as well as its progress in efforts to prepare for membership in the European Union. With regard to public opinion, President Kucan indicated that public support for NATO is not a problem. He said people want to discuss the implications of membership in the Alliance and debate the merits of joining NATO. We also discussed Slovenia's progress on military reforms, as well as the country's interest in working to promote security and stability in southeast Europe.

I again discussed these issues and found the same enthusiasm for Slovenia's membership in NATO and the European Union with members of the Slovenian parliament, including the President of Parliament Borut Pahor, President of the Foreign Affairs Committee Jelko Kacin and President of the Defense Committee Doran Marsic. Even the opposition expressed a solid commitment to moving forward with efforts to join the NATO Alliance. During consideration of a resolution on whether or not to have a national referendum on Slovenia's membership in NATO before the Prague summit, there was a very strong consensus that this should not happen until after the November meeting—with 63 agreeing that this should not happen immediately, with 9 opposing.

I also discussed these issues with Prime Minister Janez Drnovšek, who has recently announced his intention to run for President of Slovenia, as well as Minister of Defense Anton Grizold. Additionally, I visited with our ambassador, John Young, and discussed the country's strong candidacy for membership in both NATO and the European Union. I am hopeful that public support for NATO membership will continue to grow, and I am glad that this will be an enlightened decision in Slovenia given the high level of discussion on the issue.

Following meetings in Slovenia on Friday, May 31, 2002, I traveled to Brussels to visit with our Ambassador to NATO, Nick Burns, and the director of Javier Solana's Balkans Task Force, Mr. Stefan Lehne.

During my meeting with Stefan Lehne, I discussed my long interest in southeast Europe and impressions from my recent visits to Macedonia and Kosovo. I spoke with him about my strong concern with political situation in Macedonia, and urged the European Union to remain involved in efforts to bring all parties to the table to discuss disagreements over the order between Macedonia and Kosovo. I also told him I believe it is essential that the international community do everything in its power to encourage the Macedonian government to remain committed to free and fair parliamentary elections scheduled for this September.

We also discussed my interest in the Stability Pact—in particular, the Stability Pact's Quick Start Infrastructure Projects. I believe it is critical that the Pact make its intentions clear on the Quick Start projects.

Finally, we discussed my concern with organized crime, corruption and trafficking in human beings, drugs and weapons that plague many countries in central and eastern Europe. I encouraged Mr. Lehne to make these problems a top priority, as they undermine efforts on behalf of the international community to promote democratic reforms and respect for the rule of law in many of Europe's new democracies.

With Ambassador Nick Burns, I discussed my interest in NATO enlargement and observations from my visits to Bulgaria, Macedonia, Slovakia and Slovenia. While I share the vision of President Bush for a large round of enlargement in Prague, I expressed to Ambassador Burns my strong concern with the need for continued action in candidate countries.

As we approach Prague, we must decide whether each candidate country has gone far enough to take the necessary steps to join the Alliance. And as we answer that question, we will also ask whether or not action is still needed, and whether reforms are best encouraged if that country is extended an invitation at Prague, or if that country is instead asked to continue reforms while looking toward the next round of enlargement. These will be difficult questions, and we must be prepared to answer them.

I look forward to continued discussion with the administration and my colleagues in the Senate on NATO enlargement in the months ahead, and I encourage NATO aspirant countries to take as many steps as they can between now and November to address issues outlined in their respective Membership Action Plans.

Additionally, I will continue to be active and involved in the Senate on issues affecting southeast Europe. We had a very productive Helsinki Commission hearing to examine the situation for ethnic minorities in Kosovo earlier this month, and I will continue to discuss this issue when I participate in the annual meeting of the OSCE Parliamentary Assembly next week.

ADDITIONAL STATEMENTS

CHILDREN'S AID SOCIETY OF SOUTHEASTERN MICHIGAN CELEBRATES 140TH ANNIVERSARY

• Mr. LEVIN. Mr. President, I would like to congratulate the Children's Aid Society of Southeastern Michigan (CAS) on its 140th anniversary. In that time CAS has been an organization dedicated in service to children, youth, and families. For nearly a century and a half, CAS has been a dynamic and compassionate presence in the Michigan community.

CAS, the oldest child welfare agency in Michigan, is a non-profit, non-sectarian private organization dedicated to the preservation and quality of family life in Southeastern Michigan based in Detroit. Begun in 1862 by members of the Presbyterian Church to help Civil War orphans, CAS has expanded in the years since to help hundreds of thousands of troubled children and families. CAS aims to build strength within the family unit by providing a variety of comprehensive child and family-focused services, seeking to create the foundation for a better and healthier society.

The services that CAS provides are innovative and humanistic, viewing each individual and problem as unique. For example, the Work Works program gives high-risk youth between the ages of 13 and 17 training in employment skills and helps them in finding a job. Alumni of the program help other staff teach the skills of positive self-esteem, work ethics, and job readiness. Another program, Moving Families in the Right Direction, aims to prevent delinquency and school dropout by strengthening family functioning and relationships. Staff go into homes, schools, and the community to conduct counseling sessions and group work with youth between the ages of 10 and 17 who have been referred to them by the Police Department or Juvenile Court. By giving at-risk children and families early attention, CAS tries to help prevent the family break-up and juvenile delinquency that plagues so much of our country today. CAS also provides day care and has programs for early childhood education, mental health, child abuse, teen families, and parents.

Southeastern Michigan and the larger Detroit metropolitan area are deeply indebted to the work CAS has done for families and children over the last 140 years. Year in and year out CAS has fought to hold families together and ensure the welfare of children. The vital support services that CAS provides help children and parents deal with the difficult personal and societal issues they face in the 21st century. Having performed these important social services for over 140 years is indeed a tremendous accomplishment and deserves hearty commendation.

I know my Senate colleagues will join me in congratulating the Children's Aid Society of Southeastern Michigan for 140 years of success and in wishing it a fruitful future that only adds to its rich legacy of compassion.●

EDS' 40TH ANNIVERSARY

• Mrs. HUTCHISON. Mr. President. I extend my congratulations to EDS and to its employees on the company's 40th anniversary. On June 27, 1962, Electronic Data Systems was incorporated in Texas, and EDS is still headquartered in Plano, TX. The company's initial goal was simply to help companies use their computers more effectively. Since then, EDS has been a leader in the information-technology services industry.

EDS has flourished by adapting to its clients' needs and by providing information-technology and business-consulting services to every sector of the global economy. Evolving from a staff of fewer than 30 to a team of more than 140,000 employees in 50 States and more than 60 countries, EDS helps companies to excel in the digital economy.

In the 1960s, when the business world's use of computers was still novel, EDS recognized an opportunity to help companies use their computers effectively. In the 1970s, EDS expanded into new international markets, which today include some of its fastest-growing opportunities. Over the last two decades, personal computers and Web-based business models have changed the way people and businesses interact and access information. EDS has worked to ensure the strategic technological alignment of its clients in light of these developments.

EDS prides itself on consistently demonstrating resourcefulness and innovation, such as in aiding disaster recovery and providing information security in business continuity efforts. Responding quickly to unmet needs is a hallmark of successful businesses, such as EDS.

I commend EDS for its vitality and innovation, and send the people of EDS best wishes for the future.●

THE VANNEVAR BUSH AWARD FOR SCIENCE AND TECHNOLOGY TO ERICH BLOCH

• Mr. LIEBERMAN. Mr. President, I rise to bring to my colleagues' attention the fact that the National Science Board, NSB, has honored Erich Bloch as the 24th recipient of the Vannevar Bush Award for Science and Technology, its highest award for scientific achievement and statesmanship. Mr. Bloch's record of innovation and leadership in the advanced technology sector and the immense impact that his career has had on the field make him especially deserving of lofty praise. He received the award on May 7 in Washington, DC.

Mr. Bloch is a member of the President's Council of Advisors on Science and Technology, a distinguished fellow at the Council on Competitiveness, a former director of the National Science Foundation, and an outspoken supporter of fundamental research in leading innovation. He occupies a senior statesman status in science and engineering and has been a longtime supporter of science and mathematics education programs funded by the Federal Government.

Erich Bloch is a visionary innovator of enormous stature—in both high technology for the private sector—and in the organization and objectives of science and engineering research. Eamon Kelly, National Science Board chair, stated in announcing the honor. "He has been an exceptionally effective communicator of the benefits of public funding for science and technology, and a leader in establishing widely emulated mechanisms for productive partnerships in research and education across public, academic, and private sectors.

Before moving to Washington to become the National Science Foundation's only director from industry, Mr. Bloch was a famed electrical engineer at IBM and was one of the key figures responsible for IBM's STRETCH Computer Systems Engineering Project and in the groundbreaking developments of the IBM Systems 360. Until the 1960s, every computer model was generally designed independently, and at times individual machines were custom modified for a particular customer. The advent of the IBM-360 family of computers changed this forever. All these machines had the same user instruction set, taking advantage of IBM's engineering leadership in powerful disk drive systems. On the smaller machines, many of the more complex instructions were done in microcode rather than in hardware. Mr. Bloch headed IBM's development of the solid logic technology program, which provided IBM with the microelectronics technology for the System/360. Mr. Bloch's leadership ability was one of the key reasons for the success of the System/360. His strategy was to work around organizational structures and, as technical problems were identified, to assign groups or individuals who offered the best proposals. Mr. Bloch was the first to develop an IBM product with a ferrite core memory—a significant achievement in the search for memory technology. Mr. Bloch's accomplishments on the system, and the developments that occurred as part of his management style, helped revolutionize the computer industry and led to his receiving the 1985 National Medal of Technology with his IBM colleagues, Frederick P. Brooks, Jr., and Bob O. Evans.

In his 6-year term as NSF director, Erich Bloch built national support for advances in high-performance computing and networking. Mr. Bloch's important leadership in transitioning NSFNET to a commercialized Internet helped create an immense economic and societal impact from the 1990s to today. Mr. Bloch supported NSF's take over of the Defense Department's ARPANET, creating the government-owned and managed NSFNET connected to five university-based super-computer centers via a 56-Kbps backbone. NSFNET replaced ARPANET in 1990 and expanded to include a variety of regional networks that linked universities into the backbone network. The only other wide-area networks in existence, all government owned, supported only limited numbers of specialized contractors and researchers. Mr. Bloch supported key colleagues at NSF, like Steve Wolff, and they had the vision to see the power of networking in the academic and research communities, and in the process created a powerful user base, the first real customer base, that would not let the networking revolution stop. Just 10 years later, the Internet was "owned" by no one and managed by a wide variety of commercial and nonprofit organizations on a decentralized basis. NSFNET's backbone operated at 45 Mbps, which was raised to 155 Mbps after NSFNET was decommissioned. NSFNET was decommissioned in 1995 when there was enough commercial Internet service providers, web browsers, and search engines to sustain the networks, operations, and management—nearly 60,000 networks were connected to the backbone. Now, 61.4 percent of the U.S. population has online access according to the latest Nielsen Net Ratings.

According to a report published by the policy division of non-profit corporation SRI International entitled "The Role of NSF's Support of engineering in Enabling Technological Innovation," Erich Bloch played an important leadership role in three key decisions that spurred today's Internet. First, he influenced the NSF decision to make NSFNET an "open" network rather than one that served supercomputer researchers exclusively. NSF decided to make NSFNET a three-tiered, distributed network consisting of backbone, regional or mid-level networks, and local, initially campus-based, networks. Finally, NSF decided to make the Internet self-supporting, and a series of decisions Mr. Bloch backed concerning the implementation of the self-supporting Internet led to its burgeoning. DARPA in the '70's developed the prototype for the Internet, ARPANET. Assisted by Erich Bloch's leadership, NSF played a crucial role in transitioning NSFNET in the 1980s into the remarkable Internet system so important to us today.

Internet innovation was not Mr. Bloch's only role at NSF. Before his arrival at NSF, the agency largely saw computing as a research tool for existing science disciplines. As detailed in the book, "Funding the Revolution" by the National Research Council, Mr. Bloch treated computing as a new scientific field in its own right, both a new science and an interdisciplinary science connector. Mr. Bloch created a new science directorate at NSF entirely for computing, consolidating all of NSF's computing initiatives in one place, and recruited another famed computer pioneer, Gordon Bell of DEC, to head it up. Computer science was now on a par with the established physical and biological sciences and budgeting at NSF grew from $23 million in 1984 to $100 million in 1986 and has continued to rise since then. While NSF had followed distantly behind DARPA's leadership in computing, under Erich Bloch it came into its own and began sponsoring important scientific computing advances.

Erich Bloch has always realized government's significant role in technology development, in coordination with the academic and commercial sectors. In receiving this award, he acknowledged that, "we have learned that in these days of rapid development and keen competition much is to be gained from cooperative activities." He continued that, "the global market is a reality" due to the development of computers, communication networks and IT. "This paradigm change has pushed science and technology to the forefront of policy issues and policy considerations, here and across the globe."

Along with Erich Bloch's key contributions to computing and the Internet and his foresightedness in matters of public policy, he deserves acclaim for the role that he has played in education. His creation of the NSF engineering research centers and science and technology centers reflect his belief in knowledge transfer. He brought together university scientists and industry researchers to provide educational benefits and help transform engineering education as well as to extend fundamental research benefits to industry. In education, Mr. Bloch also oversaw NSF's support of system wide reform for K-12 math and science education, including emphasis on participation by women and minorities in science and engineering. During his tenure, the budget for education and human resources more than tripled and NSF's overall budget increased to $2 billion.

As a distinguished fellow with the Council on Competitiveness, a private, non-profit organization dedicated to furthering U.S. economic leadership, Mr. Bloch continues to advocate policies that promote the effective use of innovation in the development of the U.S. economy. He is also a member of the President's Council of Advisors on Science and Technology, has been a distinguished visiting professor at George Mason University, has been awarded 13 honorary degrees from major universities and ten major awards and medals, and serves as a member of numerous boards in both the public and private sectors.

For his remarkable vision, innovation, and continued contributions to the advanced technology sector and to the national interest in the economy and education, Erich Bloch is most deserving of the venerable Vannevar Bush Award. Very few can boast of having made similar contributions to society. I am delighted to bring this honor to the attention of my colleagues, awarded to a computer and Internet pioneer, a visionary research administrator and science educator, to the attention of my colleagues and to express my sincere congratulations to Mr. Bloch.●

ANTI-SEMITISM IN EUROPE

● Mr. SMITH of Oregon. Mr. President, I rise today to call attention to an editorial in today's Washington Post. Anti-Defamation League Director Abe Foxman has written an excellent piece on the recent wave of anti-Semitism in Europe. The Anti-Defamation League today released a telling survey on anti-Semitic attitudes in America and abroad and the results are nothing less than chilling. I would call on all my colleagues to take a look at this important survey and recommit ourselves to stopping all prejudice—particularly anti-Semitism both here and in Europe.

I ask to have today's editorial by Abe Foxman printed in the RECORD.

The editorial follows:

EUROPE'S ANTI-ISRAEL EXCUSE

(By Abraham H. Foxman—Thursday, June 27, 2002)

Throughout history a constant barometer for judging the level of hate and exclusion vs. the level of freedom and democracy in any society has been anti-Semitism—how a country treats its Jewish citizens. Jews have been persecuted and delegitimized throughout history because of their perceived differences. Any society that can understand and accept Jews is typically more democratic, more open and accepting of "the other." The predictor has held true throughout the ages.

During the Holocaust, Jews and other minorities of Europe were dispatched to the camps and, ultimately, their deaths in an environment rife with anti-Semitism. Nearly 60 years later in a modern, democratic Europe that presumably had shed itself of the legacy of that era, Jews have again come under attack. During the past year and a half a troubling epidemic of anti-Jewish hatred, not isolated to any one country or community, has produced a climate of intimidation and fear in the Jewish communities of Europe. Never, as a Holocaust survivor, did I believe we would witness another eruption of anti-Semitism of such magnitude, in Europe of all places. But the resiliency of anti-Semitism is unparalleled. It rears its ugly head in far-flung places, like Malaysia and Japan, where there are no Jews.

The Anti-Defamation League has been taking the pulse of anti-Semitism in America for more than 40 years. Never did I expect that we would have to do the same in Europe, given the history and our expectation that European anti-Semitism, while not eradicated, would be so marginal and so rejected that it would not be a major concern.

What we found in the countries we surveyed—Britain, France, Germany, Belgium, and Denmark—was shocking and disturbing. Classical anti-Semitism, coupled with a new form fueled by anti-Israel sentiment, has become a potent and dangerous mix in countries with enormous Muslim and Arab populations.

More than 1 million Jews live in these five nations, and their communities are under siege. Who would have believed that we would see the burning of synagogues and attacks on Jewish students, rabbis, Jewish institutions and Jewish-owned property?

While European leaders have attempted to explain away these attacks as a fleeting response to events in the Middle East and not the harbinger of a more insidious and deeply ingrained hatred, the attitudes of average Europeans paint a far different picture. Among the 2,500 people polled in late May and early June as part of our survey, 45 percent admitted to their perception that Jews are more loyal to Israel than their own country, while 30 percent agreed with the statement that Jews have too much power in the business world. Perhaps most telling, 62 percent said they believe the outbreak of anti-Semitic violence in Europe is the result of anti-Israel sentiment, not anti-Jewish feeling. The contrariness of their own attitudes suggest that Europeans are loath to admit that hatred of Jews is making a comeback.

This view may make Europeans more comfortable in the face of what is happening in their countries, by suggesting that this time around, Jews are not the innocent victims but are themselves the victimizers in the Middle East. But the incredibly biased reaction against Israel seen in the poll—despite the fact that Israel under former prime minister Ehud Barak offered the Palestinians an independent state, and despite the fact that Palestinians have carried out a sustained campaign of terrorism against Israeli civilians—speaks to a repressed hostility to Jews that may not be socially acceptable in post-Holocaust Europe. Still, even with such constraints, some 30 percent of Europeans are not averse to expressing their anti-Semitic beliefs openly and directly.

Meanwhile, the Europeans have been tepid in their support for the U.S. war on terrorism and especially the Bush administration's efforts to broker an end to Israeli-Palestinian bloodshed. The Europeans seek to appease Saddam Hussein and other threats to the Western world while blaming Israel, not the Palestinian Authority, for the crisis. All while they minimize the extent of anti-Semitism in Europe and fail to immediately condemn horrific acts of harassment and vandalism. The message to Europe's burgeoning immigrant population is that there is a certain level of acceptance for intolerance.

It is time for Europe to assume responsibility for a situation of its own making. The combination of significant, openly expressed anti-Jewish bias together with irrational anti-Israel opinions creates a climate of great concern for the Jews of Europe. It is not surprising that in such an atmosphere Muslim residents feel free to attack Jewish students and religious institutions not because they are Israelis but because they are Jews. And it is not surprising that some European officials have begun telling Jewish leaders to advise their numbers to avoid public displays of Jewishness, instead of promising to protect their Jewish communities.

European leaders and officials must see what is going on for what it is—outright anti-Semitism—and condemn the revival of this ancient hatred that had its greatest manifestations on the same continent.

They must acknowledge that the anti-Israel vilification across Western Europe is unacceptable. The recent comparisons of Israelis to Nazis, to Jews as the executors of "massacres" and even as the killers of Christ—these do not fall into the category of legitimate criticism of a sovereign state. They create the very climate that questions the future of Jewish life in Europe.●

PASSING OF JUSTIN W. DART, JR.

● Mr. KENNEDY. Mr. President, I rise today to give tribute to the memory of Justin W. Dart, Jr., the greatest warrior in the fight for the rights of disabled persons. After nearly half a century of tireless advocacy for the civil rights of oppressed people in America and around the world, my friend Justin Dart passed away on Saturday with his wife and partner Yoshiko Dart at his side.

He was often called the Martin Luther King of the disability rights movement even though he called himself "just a foot soldier for the cause of freedom." Justin received five Presidential appointments, and was awarded the Presidential Medal of Freedom, our Nation's highest civilian honor. And without Justin, the Americans with Disabilities Act would never have become the law of the land. Justin's dedication to his vision of a "revolution of empowerment" brought together a fragmented community to march for freedom for Americans with disabilities. He taught us that disabled does not mean unable.

When President Bush signed the Americans with Disabilities Act into law and gave the first pen to Justin, he protested the fact that only three disability activists were on the podium, because he believed that the ADA would never have been accomplished without the power of hundreds of people with disabilities who made the difference. When he finally received the Presidential Medal of Freedom, Justin sent out replicas of this award to hundreds of disability rights activists across the country, writing that "this award belongs to you."

Even in his final words to us he talks of the power and importance of equal rights for all people. Disabled people across the country and around the world owe a great debt to Justin Dart for his love and his commitment to Justice. He is a hero not just to those with disabilities, but to all of us who learned from him and served with him in the great causes he inspired.

As President Kennedy once said, "As the dust of centuries has passed over our cities, we too will be remembered, not for our victories or defeats in battle or in politics, but for our contribution to the human spirit." Justin Dart brought the human spirit of the disability movement to life, and his spirit will live on through the lives of those he touched.●

HEROES OF OPERATION ENDURING FREEDOM

● Mr. MURKOWSKI. Mr. President, I am pleased to insert in the RECORD the heroic accounts of the 354th Wing and 18th Fighter Squadron at Eielson Air Force Base in Anchorage, AK, for the vital role they played in Operation Enduring Freedom.

The accounts that follow describe the daring mission of three pilots who were involved in a difficult rescue operation. Both Alaska, and the Nation, appreciate and honor their heroism that helped to save lives. I, along with my fellow colleagues, am extremely proud of our men and women who are at this very moment, much like the 354th Wing and 18th Fighter Squadron were doing, defending freedom and democracy around the world.

Today we are a Nation at war. A war against the evil of terrorism. Make no mistake, there are evil people in this world. There are people whose sole purpose on this earth is to harm and kill innocent people. Let us not forget what happened in our country just a short time ago. America's freedom, our freedom, the freedom of this Chamber and of millions of people all over the world, are protected by the men and women who serve in the armed forces.

It is with utmost respect and appreciation that I share the heroic events that took place during Operation Enduring Freedom. But before I do, let me personally comment on why lives were saved based upon the acts of three fine soldiers. It all comes down to training. Our military has an extraordinary ability to prepare our soldiers for battle. Our soldiers are the best in the world. I commend the armed forces for preparing our soldiers for battle and for bringing them home safely. It is no coincidence that our soldiers, who face grave and dire situations, prevail.

Thirty nine lives were saved because of the actions of Lieutenant Colonel Burt A. Bartley, Captain James R. Sears, Jr. and Captain Andrew J. Lipina. The tale of this mission surely seems unreal. A MH-47 helicopter was shot out of the sky. The enemy was fast closing on the downed helicopter where 10 injured soldiers were in need of immediate medical attention. Time was of the essence. Instantly, a rescue operation was put into motion. And this was no simple rescue.

When the enemy is armed and looking to kill, it is imperative that all available resources are put to their maximum utilization. After all available artillery were depleted, a 500 pound bomb was dropped within 100 meters of the crash site, creating a barrier between the wounded soldiers and the advancing enemy. 100 meters, the length of a football field. This allowed the rescue operation to be successfully carried out. As you will read, this was America at its best. I applaud the heroism and bravery of all those involved in this daring rescue.

I ask that the summary of the heroic actions of the 354th Wing and 18th Fighter Squadron at Eielson Air Force Base, be printed in the RECORD.

The material follows:

CITATION TO ACCOMPANY THE AWARD OF THE SILVER STAR TO BURT A. BARTLEY

Lieutenant Colonel Burt A. Bartley distinguished himself by heroism and courageous action as F-16CG flight lead, 18th Fighter Squadron, in support of Operation ENDURING FREEDOM. Upon learning of a downed MH-47 helicopter, Lieutenant Colonel Bartley departed assigned airspace to immediately support the recovery of thirty-nine personnel on board. Enroute to the site, Lieutenant Colonel Bartley established deconfliction with two Unmanned Aerial Vehicles (UAV) and two F-15Es near the crash site to provide maximum support to the rescue effort. With the F-15Es out of ammunition, Lieutenant Colonel Bartley immediately employed 20mm cannon fire to neutralize the enemy troops that were directly firing upon the survivors. He made two strafing runs with little regard for his own safety into rapidly rising mountainous terrain, and directly in the face of the same small arms fire that downed the helicopter. He then provided a rapid talk-on to his wingman, who was experiencing radio problems, to suppress the advancing enemy troops. His skill and determination forced the enemy troops to stop the attack on the downed helicopter crew and friendly forces and concentrate on digging in for cover approximately 50 meters from the crashed MH-47. After expending all 500 rounds of 20mm ammunition he stayed with the Ground Forward Air Controller (GFAC) on the radio while his wingman passed all critical information to command and control assets and located the tanker. His actions resulted in the flight's ability to maintain continuous contact with the GFAC and continue to threaten the advancing enemy forces for over two and a half hours. Upon returning to the crash site, the GFAC reported that the previously pinned down enemy had begun to close in on their position again. After his wingman had verified from command and control that no other airborne assets had 20mm or light ordnance, Lieutenant Colonel Bartley informed the GFAC of the impending danger and at the GFAC's request dropped 500 pound bombs within 100 meters of the crash site in order to keep the enemy forces at bay. Meanwhile, a second GFAC reported two more critically wounded soldiers requiring immediate evacuation. Lieutenant Colonel Bartley pinned down the enemy, and directed his wingman to coordinate for the air evacuation. He offered to escort the helicopters through the area with numerous small arms threats and Rocket Propelled Grenades. His quick thinking and superior coordination allowed friendly forces to maintain a secure location in extremely close proximity to the impact points and undoubtedly saved the lives of 21 uninjured survivors and 10 wounded in the crash site, and enabled the safe recovery of all 39 Americans. The undaunted leadership, extreme heroism and courageous actions of Lieutenant Colonel Bartley are consistent with the highest traditions of the United States Air Force.

ANDREW J. LIPINA: DISTINGUISHED FLYING
CROSS NARRATIVE

Captain Andrew J. Lipina distinguished himself by extraordinary heroism and gallantry in action as F-16CG fighter pilot, 18th Expeditionary Fighter Squadron, in support of Operation ENDURING FREEDOM. During the third day of Operation ANACONDA, Captain Lipina learned of a downed MH-47 helicopter with the survivors actively taking fire, and departed assigned airspace to immediately support the recovery effort. Thirty-nine personnel were on board when a Rocket Propelled Grenade (RPG) attack disabled their aircraft. Enroute to the site Captain Lipina quickly took control of external communication and coordinated with command and control assets to relocate air refueling tanker assets to support the rescue effort. He further deconflicted with two Unmanned Aerial Vehicles (UAV) and two F-15Es near the crash site. His formation quickly coordinated with the Ground Forward Air Controller (GFAC) to establish situational awareness. With the F-15E out of ammunition, Captain Lipina immediately employed 20mm cannon fire to neutralize the enemy troops that were directly firing upon the survivors from within 100 meters. He made two strafing runs, each closer to the crash site than the previous, with little regard for his own safety in order to help protect them from being overrun. These strafing passes were not only into rapidly rising mountainous terrain, but also directly in the face of the same small arms that downed the helicopter. His skill and determination forced the enemy troops to stop the attack on the downed helicopter crew and friendly forces and concentrate on digging in under the cover of a tree located approximately 50 meters from the crashed MH-47. After expending all 500 rounds of 20mm ammunition he coordinated with command and control assets to inform them of the disposition of friendly casualties and the location of their tanker. With their assigned tanker experiencing a air-refueling malfunction, Captain Lipina rapidly pointed the formation to the next closest tanker and masterfully coordinated to move it toward the crash site. Upon returning to the crash site from air refueling, the GFAC reported that the previously pinned down enemy had begun to close in on their position again. His actions resulted in the flight's ability to maintain continuous contact with the GFAC and continue to threaten the advancing enemy forces for over two and a half hours. After he had verified from command and control that no other airborne assets had 20mm or light ordnance, Captain Lipina's flight lead dropped 500 pound bombs within 100 meters of the crash site in order to keep the enemy forces at bay. Captain Lipina expertly sanitized the area for MANPADS and anti-aircraft artillery in the hostile and hazardous region of the downed helicopter. This was extremely important since a previous flight has been engaged by MANPADS. Meanwhile a second GFAC reported two critically wounded soldiers requiring immediate air evacuation. While his lead continued to work on pinning down the enemy, Captain Lipina began to coordinate for the air evacuation and offered his remaining bombs to escort the rescue helicopters through an area with numerous small arms and RPG threats. Additionally, he coordinated for other assets to move into position to support the survivors on the ground. The undaunted courage and heroism of Captain Lipina undoubtedly saved the lives of 21 uninjured survivors and 10 wounded in the crash site and enabled the safe recovery of all 39 Americans.

JAMES R. SEARS JR.: DISTINGUISHED FLYING
CROSS NARRATIVE

Captain James R. Sears Jr. distinguished himself by heroism and extraordinary achievement while participating in aerial flight as F-16CG flight lead, 18th Expeditionary Fighter Squadron on 20 January 2002. Captain Sears distinguished himself as On Scene Commander for a downed CH-53 in a heavily defended area of Taliban control in Northern Afghanistan during Operation ENDURING FREEDOM. During the Combat Search and Rescue he organized, directed, and controlled a total of 13 aircraft including three Unmanned Aerial Vehicles, five helicopters, one C-130, two F-16s, and two F-18s. He rapidly developed a deconfliction plan that ensured the safety of all assets and allowed them to operate within a five nautical mile radius of the downed helicopter.

After receiving the initial coordinates of the crash site he realized they were over one nautical mile off the actual location in heavily mountainous terrain. After a diligent, methodical search of the area, Captain Sears was able to get his eyes on the site, provide a perfect talk-on for his wingman, and direct the other support assets to the crash site. Using on-board sensors, Captain Sears was quickly able to pass updated coordinates to the thousandth of a degree to command and control agencies without compromising the safety of the entire rescue operation. He expertly sanitized the 60 nautical mile ingress and egress route through enemy territory.

Captain Sears then executed the demanding task of rescue escort for two helicopters. This involved maintaining visual contact and constant coverage while flying over 300 knots faster and being 15,000 feet higher than the helicopters. Captain Sears, in conjunction with command and control assets, coordinated a plan to move three separate tankers close enough to the crash site to ensure constant command for the entire time on scene. Captain Sears' flawless flight leadership allowed him to intercept and visually identify a Red Cross aircraft flying in the vicinity of the downed helicopter, not identifiable by electronic means or talking to command and control assets, ensuring the safety of the entire rescue effort. Captain Sears passed off On Scene Commander duties to two United States Navy F-18s after 4.5 hours on scene. Captain Sears' tireless efforts and tremendous focus was unprecedented considering in his single-seat F-16 he flew more than 3500 miles, logged 11.1 hours, and ten air refuelings requiring more than 120,000 pounds of fuel to be unloaded through hostile territory. Captain Sears' courage, superior airmanship, and unwavering devotion to duty in the face of personal danger were instrumental in accomplishing this hazardous mission and were in keeping with the highest traditions of the U.S. Air Force.●

TO JAN OMUNDSON AND PAM ELJ

● Mr. DAYTON. Mr. President, on many occasions in the past year and a half, I have come to the floor on behalf of steelworkers and their families who live on Minnesota's Iron Range in northeastern Minnesota. Like other steel-producing regions, the Iron Range has been hard hit by unfair foreign imports, devastating the United States steel and iron ore industries. And last year, Minnesota's Iron Range economy was rocked by the bankruptcy and closure of the LTV Steel Mining Company in Hoyt Lakes.

When the LTV Steel Mining Company closed, 1,400 employees were thrown out of work. Many of these men and women had dedicated their entire working lives to LTV. They are hard-working people with families and bills to pay. In addition to the layoffs, 1,700 retirees lost portions of their pensions and all of their health insurance and life insurance.

But if you know anything about Minnesota, you understand that in hard times we pull together and we persevere. This is especially true about the hardworking people of the Iron Range.

Today, I'd like to recognize two very unselfish Minnesotans, Jan Omundson and Pam Elj, who have gone above and beyond the call of normal duty to help the people hurt by the LTV closing.

For the past 3 months, Jan and Pam traveled more than 160 round-trip miles each day, from the Cities of Duluth and Virginia respectively, to help hundreds of displaced LTV employees and retirees understand their health care options. When an economic tragedy like this strikes a community, it's often a very painful, stressful, and confusing time for the families affected. Thanks to Jan and Pam, people affected now have a much better understanding of their benefits and their rights.

In her role as coordinator of the Arrowhead Area Agency on Aging's State Health Insurance Assistance Program, Jan Omundson led this team effort by organizing dozens of informational meetings to educate displaced LTV workers and retirees regarding their options. She was assisted by Pam Elj, who is a counselor with the Arrowhead Economic Opportunity Agency's Senior Insurance Advocacy Program. Together, they met with hundreds of retirees, displaced workers, and their families and outlined detailed and valuable information about options for health care coverage.

Jan and Pam were key to the success of this effort and it would not have been possible without the support and resources of the Arrowhead Regional Development Commission, the Arrowhead Economic Opportunity Agency, the Hoyt Lakes Community Credit Union, the City of Biwabik, and Blue Cross/Blue Shield of Minnesota.

I thank them all for their dedication and assistance during this very difficult time.●

COMMUNITY HERO

● Mr. SMITH of Oregon. Mr. President, today I salute a community leader in my home State of Oregon. I want to recognize the efforts of Susan Abravanel, Education Coordinator at SOLV, a nonprofit organization in Oregon, in advocating for service-learning, one of the most exciting educational initiatives taking hold in our Nation today.

Service-learning gives students the opportunity to learn through community service, but it is important to note that it is much more than just community service. It is a method of classroom instruction that engages a student's intellect through hands-on work outside the classroom that benefits the community at large. Research shows that students participating in service-learning make gains on achievement tests, complete their homework more often, and increase their grade point averages.

In addition to producing academic gains, service-learning is also associated with both increased attendance and reduced dropout rates. It is clear to educators across the country that service-learning helps students feel more connected to their own education while strengthening their connection to their community as well. It is for all of these reasons that Susan Abravanel is working so hard to advocate for service-learning in classrooms in Oregon and across the nation.

Ms. Abravanel is working closely with my office and with education leaders in Oregon to ensure that my home state remains a national leader in service-learning. Just 2 months ago, I introduced a bill with my colleague, Senator EDWARDS, to strengthen our Nation's commitment to service-learning. I feel confident that this bill will soon become law and that with Ms. Abravanel's continued efforts both here in Washington, DC and at home in Oregon, students will continue to benefit from an education tied to civic engagement.

Ms. Abravanel exemplifies the type of engaged citizen our schools must endeavor to produce, and her persistence will ensure that future generations of Americans will give back to their communities just as she has. I would also like to note that Susan isn't just concerned about education, her interests and efforts in Portland's Jewish community are well known and highly appreciated, she is the new President of the Oregon chapter of the American Jewish Committee. I look forward to working with Susan in her new role at the AJC and thank her for her continuing devotion to service-learning.●

MESSAGES FROM THE PRESIDENT

Messages from the President of the United States were communicated to the Senate by Ms. Evans, one of his secretaries.

EXECUTIVE MESSAGES REFERRED

As in executive session the Presiding Officer laid before the Senate messages from the President of the United States submitting sundry nominations which were referred to the appropriate committees.

(The nominations received today are printed at the end of the Senate proceedings.)

MESSAGE FROM THE HOUSE

At 12:29 p.m., a message from the House of Representatives, delivered by Ms. Niland, one of its reading clerks, announced that the House has passed the following bills, in which it requests the concurrence of the Senate:

H.R. 3180. An act to consent to certain amendments to the New Hampshire-Vermont Interstate School Compact.

H.R. 3764. An act to authorize appropriations for the Securities and Exchange Commission.

H.R. 4070. An act to amend the Social Security Act and the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 to provide additional safeguards for Social Security and Supplemental Security Income beneficiaries with representative payees, to enhance program protections, and for other purposes.

H.R. 4477. An act to amend title 18, United States Code, with respect to crimes involving the transportation of persons and sex tourism.

H.R. 4598. An act to provide for the sharing of homeland security information by Federal intelligence and law enforcement agencies with State and local entities.

H.R. 5018. An act to direct the Capitol Police Board to take steps to promote the retention of current officers and members of the Capitol Police and the recruitment of new officers and members of the Capitol Police, and for other purposes.

The message also announced that the House insists upon its amendment to the amendment of the Senate to the bill (H.R. 3009) to extend the Andean Trade Preference Act, to grant additional trade benefits under that Act, and for other purposes, and asks a conference with the Senate on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses thereon; and appoints the following Members to be the managers of the conference on the part of the House:

From the Committee on Ways and Means, for consideration of the House amendment and the Senate amendment, and modifications committed to conference: Mr. THOMAS, Mr. CRANE, and Mr. RANGEL.

From the Committee on Education and the Workforce, for consideration of section 603 of the Senate amendment, and modifications committed to conference: Mr. BOEHNER, Mr. SAM JOHNSON of Texas, and Mr. GEORGE MILLER of California.

From the Committee on Energy and Commerce, for consideration of section 603 of the Senate amendment, and modifications committed to conference: Mr. TAUZIN, Mr. BILIRAKIS, and Mr. DINGELL.

From the Committee on Government Reform, for consideration of section 344 of the House amendment and section 1143 of the Senate amendment, and modifications committed to conference: Mr. BURTON of Indiana, Mr. BARR of Georgia, and Mr. WAXMAN.

From the Committee on the Judiciary, for consideration of sections 111, 601 and 701 of the Senate amendment, and modifications committed to conference: Mr. SENNENBRENNER., Mr. CABLE and Mr. CONYERS.

From the Committee on Rules for considerations of sections 2103, 2105, and 2104 of the House amendment and sections 2103, 2105, and 2104 of the Senate amendment, and modifications committed to conference: Mr. DRIER, Mr. LINDEN and Mr. HASTINGS of Florida.

MEASURES REFERRED

The following bills were read the first and the second times by unanimous consent, and referred as indicated:

H.R. 3180. An act to consent to certain amendments to the New Hampshire-Vermont Interstate School Compact; to the Committee on the Judiciary.

H.R. 3764. An act to authorize appropriations for the Securities and Exchange Commission; to the Committee on Banking, Housing, and Urban Affairs.

H.R. 4070. An act to amend the Social Security Act and the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 to provide additional safeguards for Social Security and Supplemental Security Income beneficiaries with representative payees, to enhance program protections, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Finance.

H.R. 4477. An act to amend title 18, United States Code, with respect to crimes involving the transportation of persons and sex tourism; to the Committee on the Judiciary.

H.R. 4598. An act to provide for the sharing of homeland security information by Federal intelligence and law enforcement agencies with State and local entities; to the Committee on the Judiciary.

MEASURES PLACED ON THE CALENDAR

The following bill was read the second time, and placed on the calendar:

H.R. 3937. An act to revoke a Public Land Order with respect to certain lands erroneously included in the Cibola National Wildlife Refuge, California.

The following bill was read the first and second times by unanimous consent, and placed on the calendar:

H.R. 3389. An act to reauthorize the National Sea Grant College Program Act, and for other purposes.

EXECUTIVE AND OTHER COMMUNICATIONS

The following communications were laid before the Senate, together with accompanying papers, reports, and documents, which were referred as indicated:

EC-7621. A communication from the Principal Deputy Associate Administrator of the Environmental Protection Agency, transmitting, pursuant to law, the report of a rule entitled "Hydrogen Peroxide; An Amendment to an Exemption from the Requirement of a Tolerance; Technical Correction" (FRL6835-3) received on June 18, 2002; to the Committee on Agriculture, Nutrition, and Forestry.

EC-7622. A communication from the Principal Deputy Associate Administrator of the Environmental Protection Agency, transmitting, pursuant to law, the report of a rule entitled "Pesticide Tolerance Nomenclature Changes; Technical Amendment" (FRL6835-2) received on June 18, 2002; to the Committee on Agriculture, Nutrition, and Forestry.

EC-7623. A communication from the Principal Deputy Associate Administrator of the Environmental Protection Agency, transmitting, pursuant to law, the report of a rule entitled "Pesticide Tolerance Nomenclature Changes; Technical Amendment" (FRL7180-1) received on June 18, 2002; to the Committee on Agriculture, Nutrition, and Forestry.

EC-7624. A communication from the Congressional Review Coordinator, Policy and Program Development, Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service, Department of Agriculture, transmitting, pursuant to law, the report of a rule entitled "Rambutan, Longan, and Litchi from Hawaii" (Doc. No. 98-127-2) received on June 24, 2002; to the Committee on Agriculture, Nutrition, and Forestry.

EC-7625. A communication from the Congressional Review Coordinator, Policy and Program Development, Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service, Department of Agriculture, transmitting, pursuant to law, the report of a rule entitled "Citrus Canker; Packing in the Quarantined Area" (Doc. No. 99-080-2) received on June 24, 2002; to the Committee on Agriculture, Nutrition, and Forestry.

EC-7626. A communication from the Congressional Review Coordinator, Policy and Program Development, Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service, Department of Agriculture, transmitting, pursuant to law, the report of a rule entitled "Pine Shoot Beetle; Addition to Quarantined Areas" (Doc. No. 02-017-1) received on June 24, 2002; to the Committee on Agriculture, Nutrition, and Forestry.

EC-7627. A communication from the Congressional Review Coordinator, Policy and Program Development, Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service, Department of Agriculture, transmitting, pursuant to law, the report of a rule entitled "Gypsy Moth Generally Infested Areas" (Doc. No. 02-053-1) received on June 24, 2002; to the Committee on Agriculture, Nutrition, and Forestry.

EC-7628. A communication from the Chairman of the Board of Governors of the Federal Reserve System, transmitting, pursuant to law, a report on the profitability of the credit card operations of depository institutions for the year 2001; to the Committee on Banking, Housing, and Urban Affairs.

EC-7629. A communication from the Senior Paralegal, Regulations, Office of Thrift Supervision, Department of the Treasury, transmitting, pursuant to law, the report of a rule entitled "Capital: Qualifying Mortgage Loan, Interest Rate Risk Component, and Miscellaneous Changes" (RIN1550-AB45) received on June 20, 2002; to the Committee on Banking, Housing, and Urban Affairs.

EC-7630. A communication from the Senior Paralegal, Regulations, Office of Thrift Supervision, Department of the Treasury, transmitting, pursuant to law, the report of a rule entitled "Risk-Based Capital Standards: Claims on Securities Firms" (RIN1550-AB11) received on June 20, 2002; to the Committee on Banking, Housing, and Urban Affairs.

EC-7631. A communication from the Legislative and Regulatory Activities Division, Comptroller of the Currency, Administrator of National Banks, transmitting, pursuant to law, the report of a rule entitled "International Banking Activities: Capital Equivalency Deposits" (12 CFR Part 28) received on June 24, 2002; to the Committee on Banking, Housing, and Urban Affairs.

EC-7632. A communication from the Assistant to the Board of Governors of the Federal Reserve System, transmitting, pursuant to law, the report of a rule entitled "Regulation C (Home Mortgage Disclosure)" (Doc. No. R-1120) received on June 24, 2002; to the Committee on Banking, Housing, and Urban Affairs.

EC-7633. A communication from the Deputy Secretary, Division of Market Regulation, Securities and Exchange Commission, transmitting, pursuant to law, the report of a rule entitled "Commission Guidance on the Application of Certain Provisions of the Securities Act of 1933, the Securities Exchange Act of 1934, and Rules thereunder to Trading in Security Futures Products" received on June 24, 2002; to the Committee on Banking, Housing, and Urban Affairs.

EC-7634. A communication from the Principal Deputy Associate Administrator of the Environmental Protection Agency, transmitting, pursuant to law, the report of a rule entitled "Approval and Promulgation of State Plans for Designated Facilities and Pollutants; Commonwealth of Puerto Rico; Control of Emissions from Existing Hospital, Medical, and Infectious Waste Incinerators" (FRL7232-4) received on June 18, 2002; to the Committee on Environment and Public Works.

EC-7635. A communication from the Principal Deputy Associate Administrator of the Environmental Protection Agency, transmitting, pursuant to law, the report of a rule entitled "Approval and Promulgation of Implementation Plans; Louisiana; Control of Emissions of Volatile Organic Compounds from Industrial Wastewater Facilities" (FRL7234-3) received on June 18, 2002; to the Committee on Environment and Public Works.

EC-7636. A communication from the Principal Deputy Associate Administrator of the Environmental Protection Agency, transmitting, pursuant to law, the report of a rule entitled "Civil Monetary Penalty Inflation Adjustment Rule" (FRL7231-7) received on June 18, 2002; to the Committee on Environment and Public Works.

EC-7637. A communication from the Principal Deputy Associate Administrator of the Environmental Protection Agency, transmitting, pursuant to law, the report of a rule entitled "Determination of Nonattainment as of November 15, 1999, and Reclassification of the Baton Rouge Ozone Nonattainment Area" (FRL7235-9) received on June 18, 2002; to the Committee on Environment and Public Works.

EC-7638. A communication from the Principal Deputy Associate Administrator of the Environmental Protection Agency, transmitting, pursuant to law, the report of a rule entitled "Interim Final Determination that State has Corrected the Rule Deficiencies and Deferral of Sanctions, Ventura County Air Pollution Control District, State of California" (FRL7235-7) received on June 18, 2002; to the Committee on Environment and Public Works.

EC-7639. A communication from the Principal Deputy Associate Administrator of the Environmental Protection Agency, transmitting, pursuant to law, the report of a rule entitled "Wisconsin: Final Authorization of State Hazardous Waste Management Program Revision" (FRL7237-2) received on June 24, 2002; to the Committee on Environment and Public Works.

EC-7640. A communication from the Principal Deputy Associate Administrator of the Environmental Protection Agency, transmitting, pursuant to law, the report of a rule entitled "Revision to the California State Implementation Plan, South Coast Air Quality Management District" (FRL7227-2) received on June 24, 2002; to the Committee on Environment and Public Works.

EC-7641. A communication from the Principal Deputy Associate Administrator of the Environmental Protection Agency, transmitting, pursuant to law, the report of a rule entitled "Revision to the California State Implementation Plan, San Joaquin Valley Unified Air Pollution Control District" (FRL7227-6) received on June 24, 2002; to the Committee on Environment and Public Works.

EC-7642. A communication from the Principal Deputy Associate Administrator of the Environmental Protection Agency, transmitting, pursuant to law, the report of a rule entitled "Revision to the California State Implementation Plan, San Joaquin Valley Unified Air Pollution Control District" (FRL7220-4) received on June 24, 2002; to the Committee on Environment and Public Works.

EC-7643. A communication from the Principal Deputy Associate Administrator of the Environmental Protection Agency, transmitting, pursuant to law, the report of a rule entitled "Approval and Promulgation of Implementation Plans and Designation of Areas for Air Quality Planning Purposes: Arizona" (FRL7233-6) received on June 24, 2002; to the Committee on Environment and Public Works.

EC-7644. A communication from the Principal Deputy Associate Administrator of the Environmental Protection Agency, transmitting, pursuant to law, the report of a rule entitled "Approval and Promulgation of Implementation Plans; and Designation of Areas for Air Quality Planning Purposes: Arizona" (FRL7233-5) received on June 24, 2002; to the Committee on Environment and Public Works.

EC-7645. A communication from the Principal Deputy Associate Administrator of the Environmental Protection Agency, transmitting, pursuant to law, the report of a rule entitled "Approval and Promulgation of Sandpoint, Idaho, Air Quality Implementation Plan" (FRL7232-1) received on June 24, 2002; to the Committee on Environment and Public Works.

EC-7646. A communication from the Principal Deputy Associate Administrator of the Environmental Protection Agency, transmitting, pursuant to law, the report of a rule entitled "Approval and Promulgation of Air Quality Implementation Plans; Maryland Visible Emissions and Open Fire Amendments; Corrections" (FRL7236-8) received on June 24, 2002; to the Committee on Environment and Public Works.

EC-7647. A communication from the Principal Deputy Associate Administrator of the Environmental Protection Agency, transmitting, pursuant to law, the report of a rule entitled "Approval and Promulgation of Air Quality Implementation Plans; Wisconsin; Excess Volatile Organic Compound Emissions Fee Rule" (FRL7226-8) received on June 24, 2002; to the Committee on Environment and Public Works.

EC-7648. A communication from the Associate Administrator for Procurement, National Aeronautics and Space Administration, transmitting, pursuant to law, the report of a rule entitled "NASA Grant and Cooperative Agreement Handbook—Miscellaneous Changes" (14 CFR Part 1260) received on June 20, 2002; to the Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transportation.

EC-7649. A communication from the Attorney-Advisor, Bureau of Transportation Statistics, Department of Transportation, transmitting, pursuant to law, the report of a rule entitled "Air Carrier Traffic and Capacity Data by Nonstop Segment On-Flight Market" (RIN2139-AA08) received on June 20, 2002; to the Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transportation.

EC-7650. A communication from the Attorney-Advisor, Transportation Security Administration, Department of Transportation, transmitting, pursuant to law, the report of a rule entitled "Private Charter Security Rules" (RIN2110-AA05) received on June 20, 2002; to the Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transportation.

EC-7651. A communication from the Chief of the Regulations Unit, Internal Revenue Service, Department of Transportation, transmitting, pursuant to law, the report of a rule entitled "Safety/Security Zone Regulations: Ohio River Miles 252.0 to 253.0, Middleport, Ohio" ((RIN2115-AA97) (2002-0088)) received on June 20, 2002; to the Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transportation.

EC-7652. A communication from the Chief of the Regulations Unit, Internal Revenue Service, Department of Transportation, transmitting, pursuant to law, the report of a rule entitled "Safety/Security Zone Regulations; Port of Tampa, FL" ((RIN2115-AA97) (2002-0090)) received on June 20, 2002; to the Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transportation.

EC-7653. A communication from the Chief of the Regulations Unit, Internal Revenue Service, Department of Transportation, transmitting, pursuant to law, the report of a rule entitled "Safety/Security Zone Regulations; St. Croix, U.S. Virgin Islands" ((RIN2115-AA97) (2002-0091)) received on June 20, 2002; to the Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transportation.

EC-7654. A communication from the Chief of the Regulations Unit, Internal Revenue Service, Department of Transportation, transmitting, pursuant to law, the report of a rule entitled "Safety/Security Zone Regulations; San Juan, Puerto Rico" ((RIN2115-AA97) (2002-0092)) received on June 20, 2002; to the Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transportation.

EC-7655. A communication from the Chief of the Regulations Unit, Internal Revenue Service, Department of Transportation, transmitting, pursuant to law, the report of a rule entitled "Safety/Security Zone Regulations; Buffalo River, Buffalo, NY" ((RIN2115-AA97) (2002-0093)) received on June 20, 2002; to the Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transportation.

EC-7656. A communication from the Chief of the Regulations Unit, Internal Revenue Service, Department of Transportation, transmitting, pursuant to law, the report of a rule entitled "Safety/Security Zone Regulations; Navy Pier, Lake Michigan, Chicago Harbor, IL" ((RIN2115-AA97) (2002-0095)) received on June 20, 2002; to the Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transportation.

EC-7657. A communication from the Chief of the Regulations Unit, Internal Revenue Service, Department of Transportation, transmitting, pursuant to law, the report of a rule entitled "Drawbridge Regulations; Atlantic Avenue Bridge (SR 806), Atlantic Intracoastal Waterway, mile 1039.6, Delray Beach, FL" ((RIN2115-AE47) (2002-0056)) received on June 20, 2002; to the Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transportation.

EC-7658. A communication from the Chief of the Regulations Unit, Internal Revenue Service, Department of Transportation, transmitting, pursuant to law, the report of a rule entitled "Safety/Security Zone Regulations; Ohio River Miles 269.0 to 270.0, Gallipolis, Ohio" ((RIN2115-AA97) (2002-0087)) received on June 20, 2002; to the Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transportation.

EC-7659. A communication from the Chief of the Regulations Unit, Internal Revenue Service, Department of Transportation, transmitting, pursuant to law, the report of a rule entitled "Safety/Security Zone Regulations; Silver Dollar Casino Cup Hydroplane Races, Lake Washington, WA" ((RIN2115-AA97) (2002-0089)) received on June 20, 2002; to the Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transportation.

EC-7660. A communication from the Chief of the Regulations Unit, Internal Revenue Service, Department of Transportation, transmitting, pursuant to law, the report of a rule entitled "Safety/Security Zone Regulations; Long Island Sound Marine Inspection and Captain of the Port Zone" ((RIN2115-AA97) (2002-0102)) received on June 20, 2002; to the Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transportation.

EC-7661. A communication from the Chief of the Regulations Unit, Internal Revenue Service, Department of Transportation, transmitting, pursuant to law, the report of a rule entitled "Regatta Regulations; SLR; Naticoke River, Sharptown, MD" ((RIN2115-AE46) (2002-0015)) received on June 20, 2002; to the Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transportation.

EC-7662. A communication from the Chief of the Regulations Unit, Internal Revenue Service, Department of Transportation, transmitting, pursuant to law, the report of a rule entitled "Safety/Security Zone Regulations; Kill Van Kull Channel, Newark Bay Channel, South Elizabeth Channel, Elizabeth Channel, Port Newark Channel and New Jersey Pierhead Channel, New York and New Jersey" ((RIN2115-AA97) (2002-0096)) received on June 20, 2002; to the Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transportation.

EC-7663. A communication from the Chief of the Regulations Unit, Internal Revenue Service, Department of Transportation, transmitting, pursuant to law, the report of a rule entitled "Safety/Security Zone Regulations; Tampa Bay and Crystal River, FL" ((RIN2115-AA97) (2002-0097)) received on June 20, 2002; to the Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transportation.

EC-7664. A communication from the Chief of the Regulations Unit, Internal Revenue Service, Department of Transportation, transmitting, pursuant to law, the report of a rule entitled "Regatta Regulations; SLR; Back River, Hampton, Virginia" ((RIN2115-AE46) (2002-0016)) received on June 20, 2002; to the Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transportation.

EC-7665. A communication from the Chief of the Regulations Unit, Internal Revenue Service, Department of Transportation, transmitting, pursuant to law, the report of a rule entitled "Safety/Security Zone Regulations; Fort Vancouver Fireworks Display, Columbia River, Vancouver, Washington" ((RIN2115-AA97) (2002-0098)) received on June 20, 2002; to the Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transportation.

EC-7666. A communication from the Chief of the Regulations Unit, Internal Revenue Service, Department of Transportation, transmitting, pursuant to law, the report of a rule entitled "Safety/Security Zone Regulations; Liquefied Hazardous Gas Tank Vessels, San Pedro Bay, California" ((RIN2115-AA97) (2002-0099)) received on June 20, 2002; to the Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transportation.

EC-7667. A communication from the Chief of the Regulations Unit, Internal Revenue Service, Department of Transportation, transmitting, pursuant to law, the report of a rule entitled "Safety/Security Zone Regulations; Ports of Jacksonville and Canaveral, FL" ((RIN2115-AA97) (2002-0100)) received on June 20, 2002; to the Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transportation.

EC-7668. A communication from the Chief of the Regulations Unit, Internal Revenue Service, Department of Transportation, transmitting, pursuant to law, the report of a rule entitled "Drawbridge Regulations; Hatchett Creek (US 41), Gulf Intracoastal Waterway, Venice, Sarasota County, FL" ((RIN2115-AE47) (2002-0057)) received on June 20, 2002; to the Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transportation.

EC-7669. A communication from the Chief of the Regulations Unit, Internal Revenue Service, Department of Transportation, transmitting, pursuant to law, the report of a rule entitled "Drawbridge Regulations; Atlantic Intracoastal Waterway, mile 1069.4 at Dania Beach, Broward County, FL" ((RIN2115-AE47) (2002-0058)) received on June 20, 2002; to the Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transportation.

EC-7670. A communication from the Chief of the Regulations Unit, Internal Revenue Service, Department of Transportation, transmitting, pursuant to law, the report of a rule entitled "Regulated Navigation Areas; Chesapeake Bay Entrance and Hampton Roads, VA and Adjacent Waters" ((RIN2115-AE84) (2002-0009)) received on June 20, 2002; to the Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transportation.

EC-7671. A communication from the Chief of the Regulations Unit, Internal Revenue Service, Department of Transportation, transmitting, pursuant to law, the report of a rule entitled "Safety/Security Zone Regulations; Ohio River mile 34.6 to 35.1, Shippingport, Pennsylvania" ((RIN2115-AA97) (2002-0101)) received on June 20, 2002; to the Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transportation.

EC-7672. A communication from the Chief of the Regulations Unit, Internal Revenue Service, Department of Transportation, transmitting, pursuant to law, the report of a rule entitled "Regatta Regulations; Norfolk Harbor, Elizabeth River, Norfolk and Portsmouth, Virginia" ((RIN2115-AE46) (2002-0017)) received on June 20, 2002; to the Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transportation.

EC-7673. A communication from the Chief of the Regulations Unit, Internal Revenue Service, Department of Transportation, transmitting, pursuant to law, the report of a rule entitled "Regatta Regulations; Northeast River, North East, Maryland" ((RIN2115-AE46) (2002-0018)) received on June 20, 2002; to the Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transportation.

EC-7674. A communication from the Chief of the Regulations Unit, Internal Revenue Service, Department of Transportation, transmitting, pursuant to law, the report of a rule entitled "Regatta Regulations; SLR; SAIL MOBILE 2002, Port of Mobile, Mobile, Alabama" ((RIN2115-AE46) (2002-0019)) received on June 20, 2002; to the Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transportation.

EC-7675. A communication from the Chief of the Regulations Unit, Internal Revenue Service, Department of Transportation, transmitting, pursuant to law, the report of a rule entitled "Safety/Security Zone Regulations; Racine Harbor, Lake Michigan, Racine, Wisconsin" ((RIN2115-AA97) (2002-0094)) received on June 20, 2002; to the Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transportation.

EC-7676. A communication from the Attorney, Research and Special Programs Administration, Department of Transportation, transmitting, pursuant to law, the report of a rule entitled "Hazardous Materials: Requirements for Maintenance, Reclassification, Repair and Use of DOT Specification Cylinders" (RIN2137-AD58) received on June 24, 2002; to the Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transportation.

EC-7677. A communication from the Program Analyst of the Federal Aviation Administration, Department of Transportation, transmitting, pursuant to law, the report of a rule entitled "Airworthiness Directives: Boeing Model 767-200, 300, and 300F Series Airplanes" ((RIN2120-AA64) (2002-0287)) received on June 24, 2002; to the Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transportation.

EC-7678. A communication from the Program Analyst of the Federal Aviation Administration, Department of Transportation, transmitting, pursuant to law, the report of a rule entitled "Airworthiness Directives: Boeing Model 777-200 and 300 Series Airplanes" ((RIN2120-AA64) (2002-0288)) received on June 24, 2002; to the Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transportation.

EC-7679. A communication from the Program Analyst of the Federal Aviation Administration, Department of Transportation, transmitting, pursuant to law, the report of a rule entitled "Airworthiness Directives: Air Tractor Inc. Models AT 502, 502A, 502B, and 503A" ((RIN2120-AA64) (2002-0289)) received on June 24, 2002; to the Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transportation.

EC-7680. A communication from the Program Analyst of the Federal Aviation Administration, Department of Transportation, transmitting, pursuant to law, the report of a rule entitled "Security Considerations for the Flightdeck on Foreign Operated Transport Category Airplanes; Request for Comments" (RIN2120-AH70) received on June 24, 2002; to the Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transportation.

EC-7681. A communication from the Program Analyst of the Federal Aviation Administration, Department of Transportation, transmitting, pursuant to law, the report of a rule entitled "Airworthiness Directives: Eurocopter Deutschland Model EC135 Helicopters" ((RIN2120-AA64) (2002-0285)) received on June 24, 2002; to the Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transportation.

EC-7682. A communication from the Program Analyst of the Federal Aviation Administration, Department of Transportation, transmitting, pursuant to law, the report of a rule entitled "Airworthiness Directives: Bell Helicopter Textron, Inc. Model 205A, 205A1, 205B, 212, 412, 412EP, and 412CF Helicopters" ((RIN2120-AA64) (2002-0286)) received on June 24, 2002; to the Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transportation.

EC-7683. A communication from the Program Analyst of the Federal Aviation Administration, Department of Transportation, transmitting, pursuant to law, the report of a rule entitled "Airworthiness Directives: Gulfstream Aerospace LP Model Galaxy and Gulfstream 200 Airplanes" ((RIN2120-AA64) (2002-0291)) received on June 24, 2002; to the Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transportation.

EC-7684. A communication from the Program Analyst of the Federal Aviation Administration, Department of Transportation, transmitting, pursuant to law, the report of a rule entitled "Airworthiness Directives: Raytheon Aircraft Company Model 390 Airplanes" ((RIN2120-AA64) (2002-0290)) received on June 24, 2002; to the Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transportation.

EC-7685. A communication from the Program Analyst of the Federal Aviation Administration, Department of Transportation, transmitting, pursuant to law, the report of a rule entitled "Standard Instrument Approach Procedures; Miscellaneous Amendments (30); Amdt. No. 3009" ((RIN2120-AA65) (2002-0038)) received on June 24, 2002; to the Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transportation.

EC-7686. A communication from the Program Analyst of the Federal Aviation Administration, Department of Transportation, transmitting, pursuant to law, the report of a rule entitled "Standard Instrument Approach Procedures; Miscellaneous Amendments (46); Amdt. No. 3007" ((RIN2120-AA65) (2002-0040)) received on June 24, 2002; to the Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transportation.

EC-7687. A communication from the Program Analyst of the Federal Aviation Administration, Department of Transportation, transmitting, pursuant to law, the report of a rule entitled "Establishment of Class E Airspace; Calipatria, CA" ((RIN2120-AA66) (2002-0095)) received on June 24, 2002; to the Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transportation.

EC-7688. A communication from the Program Analyst of the Federal Aviation Administration, Department of Transportation, transmitting, pursuant to law, the report of a rule entitled "Modification of Class E Airspace; Thens, OH" ((RIN2120-AA66) (2002-0094)) received on June 24, 2002; to the Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transportation.

EC-7689. A communication from the Program Analyst of the Federal Aviation Administration, Department of Transportation, transmitting, pursuant to law, the report of a rule entitled "Standard Instrument Approach Procedures; Miscellaneous Amendments (76); Amdt. 3008" ((RIN2120-AA65) (2002-0039)) received on June 24, 2002; to the Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transportation.

EC-7690. A communication from the Program Analyst of the Federal Aviation Administration, Department of Transportation, transmitting, pursuant to law, the report of a rule entitled "Standard Instrument Approach Procedures; Miscellaneous Amendments (42); Amdt. No. 3010" ((RIN2120-AA65) (2002-0037)) received on June 24, 2002; to the Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transportation.

REPORTS OF COMMITTEES

The following reports of committees were submitted:

By Mr. BINGAMAN, from the Committee on Energy and Natural Resources, with an amendment in the nature of a substitute:

S. 1175: A bill to modify the boundary of Vicksburg National Military Park to include the property known as Pemberton's Headquarters, and for other purposes. (Rept. No. 107-183).

By Mr. BINGAMAN, from the Committee on Energy and Natural Resources, without amendment:

H.R. 1384: To amend the National Trails System Act to designate the route in Arizona and New Mexico which the Navajo and Mescalero Apache Indian tribes were forced to walk in 1863 and 1864, for study for potential addition to the National Trails System. (Rept. No. 107-184).

H.R. 2234: A bill to revise the boundary of the Tumacacori National Historical Park in the State of Arizona. (Rept. No. 107-185).

By Mr. HOLLINGS, from the Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transportation, with an amendment:

S. 2037: A bill to mobilize technology and science experts to respond quickly to the threats posed by terrorist attacks and other emergencies, by providing for the establishment of a national emergency technology guard, a technology reliability advisory board, and a center for evaluating antiterrorism and disaster response technology within the National Institute of Standards and Technology. (Rept. No. 107-186).

By Mr. HOLLINGS, from the Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transportation, without amendment:

S. 2428: A bill to amend the National Sea Grant College Program Act. (Rept. No. 107-187).

By Mr. JEFFORDS, from the Committee on Environment and Public Works, without amendment:

H.R. 3322: A bill to authorize the Secretary of the Interior to construct an education and administrative center at the Bear River Migratory Bird Refuge in Box Elder County, Utah.

H.R. 3958: A bill to provide a mechanism for the settlement of claims of the State of Utah regarding portions of the Bear River Migratory Bird Refuge located on the shore of the Great Salt Lake, Utah.

By Mr. LEAHY, from the Committee on the Judiciary, without amendment and with a preamble:

S. Res. 281: A resolution designating the week beginning August 25, 2002, as "National Fraud Against Senior Citizens Awareness Week".

S. Res. 284: A resolution expressing support for "National Night Out" and requesting that the President make neighborhood crime prevention, community policing, and reduction of school crime important priorities of the Administration.

By Mr. LEAHY, from the Committee on the Judiciary, with an amendment:

S. 1339: A bill to amend the Bring Them Home Alive Act of 2000 to provide an asylum program with regard to American Persian Gulf War POW/MIAs, and for other purposes.

S. 2134: A bill to allow American victims of state sponsored terrorism to receive compensation from blocked assets of those states.

By Mr. LEAHY, from the Committee on the Judiciary, without amendment:

S. 2633: A bill to prohibit an individual from knowingly opening, maintaining, managing, controlling, renting, leasing, making available for use, or profiting from any place for the purpose of manufacturing, distributing, or using any controlled substance, and for other purposes.

EXECUTIVE REPORTS OF COMMITTEES

The following executive reports of committees were submitted:

By Mr. LEVIN for the Committee on Armed Services.

Air Force nomination of Gen. Ralph E. Eberhart.

Army nomination of Brig. Gen. John M. Urias.

Army nominations beginning Brig. Gen. George W.S. Read and ending Col. Larry Knightner, which nominations were received by the Senate and appeared in the Congressional Record on June 4, 2002.

Army nominations beginning Brig. Gen. Edwin E. Spain III and ending Col. Dennis E. Lutz, which nominations were received by the Senate and appeared in the Congressional Record on June 4, 2002.

Army nomination of Brig. Gen. Joseph G. Webb, Jr.

Army nominations beginning Brig. Gen. Wayne M. Erck and ending Col. John P. McLaren, Jr., which nominations were received by the Senate and appeared in the Congressional Record on June 11, 2002.

Navy nomination of Rear Adm. Phillip M. Balisle.

Navy nomination of Rear Adm. Robert F. Willard.

Air Force nominations beginning Brigadier General Robert Damon Bishop, Jr. and ending Brigadier General Stephen G. Wood, which nominations were received by the Senate and appeared in the Congressional Record on February 15, 2002.

Mr. LEVIN. Mr. President, for the Committee on Armed Services I report favorably the following nomination lists which were printed in the RECORDS on the dates indicated, and ask unanimous consent, to save the expense of reprinting on the Executive Calendar that these nominations lie at the Secretary's desk for the information of Senators.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Army nominations beginning Timothy C * Beaulieu and ending William E Wheeler, which nominations were received by the Senate and appeared in the Congressional Record on June 4, 2002.

Army nominations beginning Duane A Belote and ending Neal E * Woollen, which nominations were received by the Senate and appeared in the Congressional Record on June 4, 2002.

Army nominations beginning John C Aupke and ending Steven R Young, which nominations were received by the Senate and appeared in the Congressional Record on June 4, 2002.

Army nominations beginning Ann M Altman and ending Angelia L * Wherry, which nominations were received by the Senate and appeared in the Congressional Record on June 4, 2002.

Army nominations beginning Ryo S Chun and ending John K Zaugg, which nominations were received by the Senate and appeared in the Congressional Record on June 4, 2002.

Marine Corps nominations beginning Derek M Abbey and ending Mark D Zimmer, which nominations were received by the Senate and appeared in the Congressional Record on June 4, 2002.

Army nomination of Michael J. Meese.

Army nominations beginning Steven A. Beyer and ending James F. Roth, which nominations were received by the Senate and appeared in the Congressional Record on June 5, 2002.

Army nomination of Jay A. Jupiter.

Army nomination of Andrew D. Magnet.

Army nominations beginning Bernard Coleman and ending Michael A. Stone, which nominations were received by the Senate and appeared in the Congressional Record on June 5, 2002.

Air Force nomination of Sharon G. Harris.

Air Force nominations beginning Nicola A. * Choate and ending Nicholas G. * Viyouth, which nominations were received by the Senate and appeared in the Congressional Record on June 7, 2002.

Air Force nominations beginning Kathleen N. Echiverri and ending Jeffrey E. Haymond, which nominations were received by the Senate and appeared in the Congressional Record on June 7, 2002.

Army nomination of Robert A. Mason.

Army nominations beginning Richard E. Humston and ending Dwight D. Riggs, which nominations were received by the Senate and appeared in the Congressional Record on June 7, 2002.

Army nomination of Nanette S. Patton.

By Mr. LEAHY for the Committee on the Judiciary.

Lavenski R. Smith, of Arkansas, to be United States Circuit Judge for the Eighth Circuit.

(Nominations without an asterisk were reported with the recommendation that they be confirmed.)

INTRODUCTION OF BILLS AND JOINT RESOLUTIONS

The following bills and joint resolutions were introduced, read the first and second times by unanimous consent, and referred as indicated:

By Mr. ENSIGN:

S. 2688. A bill to amend title XVIII of the Social Security Act to waive the part B late enrollment penalty for military retirees who enroll by December 31, 2003, and to provide a special part B enrollment period for such retirees; to the Committee on Finance.

By Mr. LEVIN (for himself and Ms. STABENOW):

S. 2689. A bill to establish a United States-Canada customs inspection pilot project; to the Committee on Finance.

By Mr. HUTCHINSON (for himself, Mr. SESSIONS, Mr. LOTT, Ms. COLLINS, Mr. BURNS, Mrs. HUTCHISON, Mr. HELMS, Mr. INHOFE, Mr. CAMPBELL, Mr. ROBERTS, Mr. DEWINE, Mr. SHELBY, Mr. ALLEN, Mr. ENSIGN, Mr. SMITH of New Hampshire, Mr. BENNETT, Mr. STEVENS, Mr. VOINOVICH, Mr. GRAMM, Mr. MCCONNELL, Mr. BROWNBACK, Mr. NICKLES, Mr. BUNNING, Mr. ENZI, Mr. HAGEL, Mr. LUGAR, Mr. BOND, Mr. MURKOWSKI, Mr. CRAIG, Mr. THOMAS, Mr. CRAPO, Mr. DOMENICI, Mr. KYL, Mr. MILLER, Mr. ALLARD, and Mr. WARNER):

S. 2690. A bill to reaffirm the reference to one Nation under God in the Pledge of Allegiance; considered and passed.

By Mr. FEINGOLD:

S. 2691. A bill to amend the Communications Act of 1934 to facilitate an increase in programming and content on radio that is locally and independently produced, to facilitate competition in radio programming, radio advertising, and concerts, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transportation.

By Mr. CORZINE (for himself, Mr. TORRICELLI, Mr. DURBIN, and Mr. NELSON of Florida):

S. 2692. A bill to provide additional funding for the second round of empowerment zones and enterprise communities; to the Committee on Finance.

By Mr. DORGAN (for himself and Mr. CORZINE):

S. 2693. A bill to amend the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 to encourage retirement savings for individuals by providing a refundable credit for individuals to deposit in a Social Security Plus account, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Finance.

By Mr. ALLEN (for himself and Mr. WARNER):

S. 2694. A bill to extend Federal recognition to the Chickahominy Tribe, the Chickahominy Indian Tribe—Eastern Division, the Upper Mattaponi Tribe, the Rappahannock Tribe, Inc., the Monacan Tribe, and the Nansemond Tribe; to the Committee on Indian Affairs.

By Mr. FRIST (for himself, Mr. FEINGOLD, and Mr. LUGAR):

S. 2695. A bill to amend the Foreign Assistance Act of 1961 to extend the authority for debt reduction, debt-for-nature swaps, and debt buybacks to nonconcessional loans and credits made to developing countries with tropical forests; to the Committee on Foreign Relations.

By Mr. BINGAMAN:

S. 2696. A bill to clear title to certain real property in New Mexico associated with the Middle Rio Grande Project, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Energy and Natural Resources.

By Mr. REID (for himself, Mrs. BOXER, Mrs. CLINTON, Mr. LIEBERMAN, and Mr. SARBANES):

S. 2697. A bill to require the Secretary of the Interior to implement the final rule to phase out snowmobile use in Yellowstone National Park, John D. Rockefeller Jr. Memorial Parkway, and Grand Teton National Park, and snowplane use in Grand Teton National Park; to the Committee on Energy and Natural Resources.

By Mr. ROCKEFELLER:

S. 2698. A bill to establish a grant program for school renovation, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Health, Education, Labor, and Pensions.

By Mr. ROCKEFELLER:

S. 2699. A bill to amend the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 to expand the incentives for the construction and renovation of public schools; to the Committee on Finance.

SUBMISSION OF CONCURRENT AND SENATE RESOLUTIONS

The following concurrent resolutions and Senate resolutions were read, and referred (or acted upon), as indicated:

By Mr. BIDEN (for himself, Mr. THURMOND, Mr. CONRAD, Mr. CLELAND, Mrs. CLINTON, Mr. ROCKEFELLER, Mr. MILLER, Mr. DEWINE, Mr. COCHRAN, Mr. DURBIN, Mr. LUGAR, Ms. COLLINS, Mr. SESSIONS, Mr. KERRY, Mr. BREAUX, Mr. DODD, Mr. DORGAN, Mr. HELMS, Mr. BAUCUS, Mrs. BOXER, Mr. JOHNSON, Ms. LANDRIEU, Mr. GRASSLEY, Mr. ROBERTS, Mr. LEVIN, Mr. REID, Mr. LEAHY, Mr. MCCAIN, Mr. HOLLINGS, Mr. SARBANES, Mr. VOINOVICH, Mr. INHOFE, Mrs. MURRAY, Mr. GREGG, Ms. MIKULSKI, Mr. DOMENICI, Mr. HUTCHINSON, Mrs. LINCOLN, Mr. SANTORUM, Mr. CRAPO, Mr.

BUNNING, Mr. CRAIG, Mr. STEVENS, Mr. AKAKA, Mr. NELSON of Florida, Mr. CARPER, Mr. INOUE, Mr. HAGEL, Mr. FEINGOLD, Mr. WARNER, Mr. BINGAMAN, and Mr. DAYTON):

S. Res. 293. A resolution designating the week of November 10 through November 16, 2002, as "National Veterans Awareness Week" to emphasize the need to develop educational programs regarding the contributions of veterans to the country; to the Committee on the Judiciary.

By Mrs. FEINSTEIN (for herself, Mr. SPECTER, Mr. DASCHLE, Mr. DODD, Mr. TORRICELLI, Mr. FEINGOLD, Mr. DAYTON, Ms. STABENOW, Mr. DURBIN, Mr. JEFFORDS, Mr. KENNEDY, Mr. INOUE, Ms. CANTWELL, Mr. LEAHY, Mr. WYDEN, Mrs. BOXER, Mr. REED, Mr. AKAKA, Mr. HARKIN, Mrs. CLINTON, Mr. REID, Mrs. MURRAY, Mr. CORZINE, Mr. BINGAMAN, Ms. MIKULSKI, Mr. BAYH, Mr. LEVIN, Mr. WELLSTONE, Mr. KERRY, Ms. COLLINS, Mr. LIEBERMAN, Ms. LANDRIEU, Mr. EDWARDS, Mr. SMITH of Oregon, Mr. BIDEN, Mr. SCHUMER, Mr. CHAFEE, Mr. SARBANES, Mr. KOHL, Mrs. CARNAHAN, Mr. CARPER, Mr. NELSON of Florida, and Mr. CLELAND):

S. Res. 294. A resolution to amend rule XLII of the Standing Rules of the Senate to prohibit employment discrimination in the Senate based on sexual orientation; to the Committee on Rules and Administration.

By Mr. CAMPBELL (for himself, Mr. AKAKA, Mr. DOMENICI, Mr. COCHRAN, and Ms. STABENOW):

S. Res. 295. A resolution commemorating the 32nd Anniversary of the Policy of Indian Self-Determination; to the Committee on the Judiciary.

By Mr. DASCHLE:

S. Con. Res. 125. A concurrent resolution providing for a conditional adjournment or recess of the Senate and a conditional adjournment of the House of Representatives; considered and agreed to.

By Mr. REID (for himself, Mr. CRAIG, Mrs. FEINSTEIN, and Ms. STABENOW):

S. Con. Res. 126. A concurrent resolution expressing the sense of Congress regarding Scleroderma; to the Committee on Health, Education, Labor, and Pensions.

ADDITIONAL COSPONSORS

S. 326

At the request of Ms. COLLINS, the name of the Senator from New Mexico (Mr. DOMENICI) was added as a cosponsor of S. 326, a bill to amend title XVIII of the Social Security Act to eliminate the 15 percent reduction in payment rates under the prospective payment system for home health services and to permanently increase payments for such services that are furnished in rural areas.

S. 346

At the request of Mr. MURKOWSKI, the name of the Senator from Missouri (Mr. BOND) was added as a cosponsor of S. 346, a bill to amend chapter 3 of title 28, United States Code, to divide the Ninth Judicial Circuit of the United States into two circuits, and for other purposes.

S. 454

At the request of Mr. BINGAMAN, the name of the Senator from California

(Mrs. BOXER) was added as a cosponsor of S. 454, a bill to provide permanent funding for the Bureau of Land Management Payment in Lieu of Taxes program and for other purposes.

S. 572

At the request of Mr. CHAFEE, the name of the Senator from Georgia (Mr. CLELAND) was added as a cosponsor of S. 572, a bill to amend title XIX of the Social Security Act to extend modifications to DSH allotments provided under the Medicare, Medicaid, and SCHIP Benefits Improvement and Protection Act of 2000.

S. 677

At the request of Mr. FRIST, his name was added as a cosponsor of S. 677, a bill to amend the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 to repeal the required use of certain principal repayments on mortgage subsidy bond financing to redeem bonds, to modify the purchase price limitation under mortgage subsidy bond rules based on median family income, and for other purposes.

S. 999

At the request of Mr. BINGAMAN, the name of the Senator from Delaware (Mr. BIDEN) was added as a cosponsor of S. 999, a bill to amend title 10, United States Code, to provide for a Korea Defense Service Medal to be issued to members of the Armed Forces who participated in operations in Korea after the end of the Korean War.

S. 1156

At the request of Mr. SMITH of Oregon, the name of the Senator from Virginia (Mr. ALLEN) was added as a cosponsor of S. 1156, a bill to amend the Consumer Product Safety Act to provide that low-speed electric bicycles are consumer products subject to such Act.

S. 1220

At the request of Mr. BREAUX, the name of the Senator from Georgia (Mr. MILLER) was added as a cosponsor of S. 1220, a bill to authorize the Secretary of Transportation to establish a grant program for the rehabilitation, preservation, or improvement of railroad track.

S. 1339

At the request of Mr. LEAHY, the name of the Senator from Utah (Mr. HATCH) was added as a cosponsor of S. 1339, a bill to amend the Bring Them Home Alive Act of 2000 to provide an asylum program with regard to American Persian Gulf War POW/MIAs, and for other purposes.

S. 1379

At the request of Mr. KENNEDY, the name of the Senator from Montana (Mr. BAUCUS) was added as a cosponsor of S. 1379, a bill to amend the Public Health Service Act to establish an Office of Rare Diseases at the National Institutes of Health, and for other purposes.

S. 1394

At the request of Mr. ENSIGN, the names of the Senator from Massachusetts (Mr. KENNEDY), the Senator from Massachusetts (Mr. KERRY), and the Senator from New Jersey (Mr. TORRICELLI) were added as cosponsors of S. 1394, a bill to amend title XVIII of the Social Security Act to repeal the medicare outpatient rehabilitation therapy caps.

S. 1476

At the request of Mr. CLELAND, the name of the Senator from South Carolina (Mr. HOLLINGS) was added as a cosponsor of S. 1476, a bill to authorize the President to award a gold medal on behalf of the Congress to Reverend Doctor Martin Luther King, Jr. (posthumously) and his widow Coretta Scott King in recognition of their contributions to the Nation on behalf of the civil rights movement.

S. 1777

At the request of Mrs. CLINTON, the name of the Senator from New Mexico (Mr. BINGAMAN) was added as a cosponsor of S. 1777, a bill to authorize assistance for individuals with disabilities in foreign countries, including victims of landmines and other victims of civil strife and warfare, and for other purposes.

S. 2013

At the request of Mr. WELLSTONE, his name was added as a cosponsor of S. 2013, a bill to clarify the authority of the Secretary of Agriculture to prescribe performance standards for the reduction of pathogens in meat, meat products, poultry, and poultry products processed by establishments receiving inspection services.

S. 2055

At the request of Ms. CANTWELL, the name of the Senator from Virginia (Mr. WARNER) was added as a cosponsor of S. 2055, a bill to make grants to train sexual assault nurse examiners, law enforcement personnel, and first responders in the handling of sexual assault cases, to establish minimum standards for forensic evidence collection kits, to carry out DNA analyses of samples from crime scenes, and for other purposes.

S. 2428

At the request of Mr. KERRY, the name of the Senator from Florida (Mr. GRAHAM) was added as a cosponsor of S. 2428, a bill to amend the National Sea Grant College Program Act.

S. 2438

At the request of Mr. SARBANES, the name of the Senator from Missouri (Mrs. CARNAHAN) was added as a cosponsor of S. 2438, a bill to amend the Truth in Lending Act to protect consumers against predatory practices in connection with high cost mortgage transactions, to strengthen the civil remedies available to consumers under existing law, and for other purposes.

S. 2455

At the request of Mr. ENSIGN, the name of the Senator from Wyoming (Mr. ENZI) was added as a cosponsor of S. 2455, a bill to amend the Small Business Act to direct the Administrator of the Small Business Administration to establish a pilot program to provide regulatory compliance assistance to small business concerns, and for other purposes.

S. 2480

At the request of Mr. LEAHY, the names of the Senator from Iowa (Mr. GRASSLEY) and the Senator from Oklahoma (Mr. INHOFE) were added as cosponsors of S. 2480, a bill to amend title 18, United States Code, to exempt qualified current and former law enforcement officers from state laws prohibiting the carrying of concealed handguns.

S. 2490

At the request of Mr. TORRICELLI, the name of the Senator from Nebraska (Mr. NELSON) was added as a cosponsor of S. 2490, a bill to amend title XVIII of the Social Security Act to ensure the quality of, and access to, skilled nursing facility services under the medicare program.

S. 2513

At the request of Mr. BIDEN, the names of the Senator from Utah (Mr. HATCH), the Senator from Illinois (Mr. DURBIN), the Senator from California (Mrs. FEINSTEIN), and the Senator from Vermont (Mr. LEAHY) were added as cosponsors of S. 2513, a bill to assess the extent of the backlog in DNA analysis of rape kit samples, and to improve investigation and prosecution of sexual assault cases with DNA evidence.

S. 2528

At the request of Mr. DOMENICI, the name of the Senator from Georgia (Mr. MILLER) was added as a cosponsor of S. 2528, a bill to establish a National Drought Council within the Federal Emergency Management Agency, to improve national drought preparedness, mitigation, and response efforts, and for other purposes.

S. 2536

At the request of Ms. STABENOW, the name of the Senator from Maryland (Ms. MIKULSKI) was added as a cosponsor of S. 2536, a bill to amend title XIX of the Social Security Act to clarify that section 1927 of that Act does not prohibit a State from entering into drug rebate agreements in order to make outpatient prescription drugs accessible and affordable for residents of the State who are not otherwise eligible for medical assistance under the medicaid program.

S. 2570

At the request of Ms. COLLINS, the name of the Senator from Mississippi (Mr. COCHRAN) was added as a cosponsor of S. 2570, a bill to temporarily increase the Federal medical assistance percentage for the medicaid program, and for other purposes.

S. 2613

At the request of Mr. LIEBERMAN, the name of the Senator from New Jersey (Mr. TORRICELLI) was added as a cosponsor of S. 2613, a bill to amend section 507 of the Omnibus Parks and Public Lands Management Act of 1996 to authorize additional appropriations for historically black colleges and universities, to decrease the cost-sharing requirement relating to the additional appropriations, and for other purposes.

S. 2622

At the request of Mr. HOLLINGS, the name of the Senator from Georgia (Mr. CLELAND) was added as a cosponsor of S. 2622, a bill to authorize the President to posthumously award a gold medal on behalf of Congress to Joseph A. De Laine in recognition of his contributions to the Nation.

S. 2633

At the request of Mr. BIDEN, the names of the Senator from Utah (Mr. HATCH), the Senator from Vermont (Mr. LEAHY), and the Senator from Illinois (Mr. DURBIN) were added as cosponsors of S. 2633, a bill to prohibit an individual from knowingly opening, maintaining, managing, controlling, renting, leasing, making available for use, or profiting from any place for the purpose of manufacturing, distributing, or using any controlled substance, and for other purpose.

S. 2637

At the request of Mr. CONRAD, the name of the Senator from Texas (Mr. GRAMM) was added as a cosponsor of S. 2637, a bill to amend the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 and the Surface Mining Control and Reclamation Act of 1977 to protect the health benefits of retired miners and to restore stability and equity to the financing of the United Mine Workers of America Combined Benefit Fund and 1992 Benefit Plan by providing additional sources of revenue to the Fund and Plan, and for other purposes.

S. 2647

At the request of Ms. SNOWE, the name of the Senator from Maine (Ms. COLLINS) was added as a cosponsor of S. 2647, a bill to require that activities carried out by the United States in Afghanistan relating to governance, reconstruction and development, and refugee relief and assistance will support the basic human rights of women and women's participation and leadership in these areas.

S. RES. 266

At the request of Mr. ROBERTS, the name of the Senator from California (Mrs. FEINSTEIN) was added as a cosponsor of S. Res. 266, a resolution designating October 10, 2002, as "Put the Brakes on Fatalities Day."

S. RES. 284

At the request of Mr. BIDEN, the name of the Senator from New Jersey (Mr. CORZINE) was added as a cosponsor of S. Res. 284, a resolution expressing support for "National Night Out" and requesting that the President make neighborhood crime prevention, community policing, and reduction of school crime important priorities of the Administration.

S. CON. RES. 119

At the request of Mr. BURNS, the names of the Senator from Georgia (Mr. CLELAND), the Senator from Louisiana (Ms. LANDRIEU), the Senator from Georgia (Mr. MILLER), and the Senator from Washington (Mrs. MURRAY) were added as cosponsors of S. Con. Res. 119, a concurrent resolution honoring the United States Marines killed in action during World War II while participating in the 1942 raid on Makin Atoll in the Gilbert Islands and expressing the sense of Congress that a site in Arlington National Cemetery, near the Space Shuttle Challenger Memorial at the corner of Memorial and Farragut Drives, should be provided for a suitable monument to the Marine Raiders.

S. CON. RES. 121

At the request of Mr. HUTCHINSON, the names of the Senator from Colorado (Mr. CAMPBELL) and the Senator from Mississippi (Mr. COCHRAN) were added as cosponsors of S. Con. Res. 121, a concurrent resolution expressing the sense of Congress that there should be established a National Health Center Week for the week beginning on August 18, 2002, to raise awareness of health services provided by community, migrant, public housing, and homeless health centers.

S. CON. RES. 122

At the request of Ms. SNOWE, the names of the Senator from Maryland (Ms. MIKULSKI) and the Senator from New Jersey (Mr. TORRICELLI) were added as cosponsors of S. Con. Res. 122, a concurrent resolution expressing the sense of Congress that security, reconciliation, and prosperity for all Cypriots can be best achieved within the context of membership in the European Union which will provide significant rights and obligations for all Cypriots, and for other purposes.

AMENDMENT NO. 3922

At the request of Mr. HUTCHINSON, the name of the Senator from Arkansas (Mrs. LINCOLN) was added as a cosponsor of amendment No. 3922 proposed to S. 2514, an original bill to authorize appropriations for fiscal year 2003 for military activities of the Department of Defense, for military construction, and for defense activities of the Department of Energy, to prescribe personnel strengths for such fiscal year for the Armed Forces, and for other purposes.

AMENDMENT NO. 3983

At the request of Mr. STEVENS, his name was added as a cosponsor of amendment No. 3983 intended to be proposed to S. 2514, an original bill to authorize appropriations for fiscal year 2003 for military activities of the Department of Defense, for military construction, and for defense activities of the Department of Energy, to prescribe personnel strengths for such fiscal year for the Armed Forces, and for other purposes.

AMENDMENT NO. 4094

At the request of Ms. COLLINS, the name of the Senator from Maine (Ms. SNOWE) was added as a cosponsor of amendment No. 4094 proposed to S. 2514, an original bill to authorize appropriations for fiscal year 2003 for military activities of the Department of Defense, for military construction, and for defense activities of the Department of Energy, to prescribe personnel strengths for such fiscal year for the Armed Forces, and for other purposes.

AMENDMENT NO. 4134

At the request of Ms. COLLINS, the name of the Senator from Maine (Ms. SNOWE) was added as a cosponsor of amendment No. 4134 proposed to S. 2514, an original bill to authorize appropriations for fiscal year 2003 for military activities of the Department of Defense, for military construction, and for defense activities of the Department of Energy, to prescribe personnel strengths for such fiscal year for the Armed Forces, and for other purposes.

AMENDMENT NO. 4143

At the request of Ms. LANDRIEU, the name of the Senator from Maine (Ms. COLLINS) was added as a cosponsor of amendment No. 4143 proposed to S. 2514, an original bill to authorize appropriations for fiscal year 2003 for military activities of the Department of Defense, for military construction, and for defense activities of the Department of Energy, to prescribe personnel strengths for such fiscal year for the Armed Forces, and for other purposes.

STATEMENTS ON INTRODUCED BILLS AND JOINT RESOLUTIONS

By Mr. FEINGOLD:

S. 2691. A bill to amend the Communications Act of 1934 to facilitate an increase in programming and content on radio that is locally and independently produced, to facilitate competition in radio programming, radio advertising, and concerts, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transportation.

Mr. FEINGOLD. Mr. President, I rise today to introduce legislation that will promote competition in the radio and concert industries.

This legislation will begin to address many of the concerns that I have heard from my constituents regarding the concentration of ownership in the radio and concert industry and its effect on consumers, artists, local businesses, and ticket prices.

A few weeks ago, I began discussing with my colleagues a number of concerns that I have been hearing from Wisconsinites. Anti-competitive practices are hurting local radio station owners, local businesses, consumers, and artists.

During the debate of the 1996 Telecommunications Act, I joined a number of my colleagues in opposing the deregulation of radio ownership rules because of concerns about its effect on consumers, artists, and local radio stations.

Passage of this act was an unfortunate example of the influence of soft money in the political process. As my colleagues will recall, I have consistently said that this act was bought and paid for by soft money. Everyone was at the table, except for the consumers.

We have enacted legislation to rid the system of this loophole in campaign finance law, but we must also repair the damage that it allowed.

In just five years since its passage, the effects of the Telecommunications Act have been far worse than we imagined. While I opposed this act because of its anti-consumer bias, I did not predict that the elimination of the national radio ownership caps and relaxation of local ownership caps would have triggered such a tremendous wave of consolidation and harmed such as diverse range of interests.

This legislation did not simply raise the national ownership limits on radio stations, it eliminated them all together. It also dramatically altered the local radio station ownership limits through the implementation of a tiered ownership system that allowed a company to own more radio stations in the larger markets.

When the 1996 Telecommunications Act became law there were approximately 5,100 owners of radio stations. Today, there are only about 3,800 owners, a decrease of about 25 percent.

Concentration at the local levels are unprecedented.

At the same time that ownership of radio stations has become increasingly concentrated, some large radio station ownership groups have also bought promotion services and advertising.

I have been hearing from people at home in Wisconsin, from Radio station owners, artists, broadcasters, and concert promoters who are being pushed out by anti-competitive practices, practices that result from an increasingly concentrated market.

I am very concerned that these levels of concentration are pushing independent radio station owners and concert promoters out of business. And I am concerned that a few companies are leveraging their cross-ownership of radio, concert promotion, and venues in an anti-competitive manner.

My legislation addresses these concerns by prohibiting any entity that owns radio stations, concert promotion services, or venues from leveraging their cross-ownership in anti-competitive manner. Under this proposal, the FCC would revoke the license of any radio station that uses its cross ownership of promotion services or venues to prevent access to the airwaves, venues, or in other anti-competitive ways.

For example, if an owner of a radio station and promotion service hindered access to the airwaves of a rival promoter, then the owner would be subject to penalties.

My legislation will also ensure that any future consolidation does not result in these anti-competitive practices. It will strengthen the FCC merger review process by requiring the FCC to scrutinize the mergers of large radio station ownership groups to consider the effect of national and local concentration on independent radio stations, concert promoters and consumers.

At the same time, it will also curb future local consolidation by preventing any upward revision of the limitation of multiple ownership of radio stations in local markets.

It will also close a loophole that currently allows large radio ownership companies to exceed the cap by "warehousing stations" through a third party. In these arrangements, large radio owners control a station through a third party, but the stations are not accounted for in their local ownership cap.

Finally, my legislation will also address many of the problems created by the consolidation in the radio industry, such as the new forms of payola. This legislation will require the FCC to modernize the Federal payola prohibition to prevent these large radio station ownership groups from leveraging their power to extract money or other consideration from artists, such as forcing them to play concerts for free.

Radio is a public medium and we must ensure that it serves the public good. The concentration of ownership, in the radio and concert industry, has caused great harm to people and businesses that have been involved in and concerned about the industry for generations.

It also harms the flow of creativity and ideas that artists seek to contribute to our society. This concentration does a disservice to our society at every level of the industry, and it must be addressed.

I urge my colleagues to join me to cosponsor this legislation to help to restore competition to the radio and concert industry by putting independent radio stations and concert promoters on a level playing field in the marketplace. This will help promote competition, local input, and diversity, and promote consumer choices.

By Mr. CORZINE (for himself, Mr. TORRICELLI, Mr. DURBIN, and Mr. NELSON of Florida):

S. 2692. A bill to provide additional funding for the second round of empowerment zones and enterprise communities; to the Committee on Finance.

Mr. CORZINE. Mr. President, today I am introducing legislation, "The Round II Empowerment Zone/Enterprise Community, EZ/EC, Flexibility Act of 2002," to provide funding for the Round II Enterprise Zone/Enterprise Community program. I want to thank and acknowledge Senators TORRICELLI, DURBIN and NELSON of Florida for their cosponsorship of this bill.

This legislation would encourage economic development throughout the EZ/EC program, particularly to the 15 Round II urban and 5 rural empowerment zones that were designated in 1999. Each of those communities has put together strong strategic initiatives to promote economic growth.

The legislation would help ensure that these Round II communities will be provided with the funding they have been promised. The bill also would authorize the use of EZ/EC grants as a match for other relevant Federal programs. This would provide the EZ/EC program with maximum flexibility to implement initiatives at the local level.

The Enterprise Zone/Enterprise Community program was created to provide Federal assistance over ten years in designated urban and rural communities that would fuel economic revitalization and job growth. The program does so primarily by providing federal grants to communities and tax and regulatory relief to help communities attract and retain businesses.

Unfortunately, an inequity now exists between the way Round I and Round II EZs and ECs have been funded. Those communities that won EZ designations in the initial round, in 1994, received full funding from the Congress, which made all grant awards available for use within the first two years of designation. However, EZs and ECs designated in Round II did not receive this same funding authority.

Federal benefits promised to the Round IIs included funding grants of $100 million for each urban zone, $40 million for each rural zone and about $3 million for each Enterprise Community over a ten-year period beginning in 1999. In reliance on those "promised" funds, Round II zones prepared strategic plans for economic revitalization based on the availability of that funding. However, unlike Round I designees, who received a full funding up front, Round II zones have received a mere fraction of the funding promise.

The lack of a certain, predictable funding stream will ultimately undermine the ability of Round II EZs/ECs to effectively implement their economic growth strategies in their designated communities. And that's a shame, because the EZ/EC initiative has produced real results.

In fact, I'm proud to say that one of the best Round II EZs is located in Cumberland County, NJ. The Cumberland County Empowerment Zone, a collaborative effort of the communities of Bridgeton, Millville, Vineland and Port Norris, has been a model EZ, and committed all the funds made available to it by HUD.

Since the creation of the EZ, Cumberland County has witnessed more than 100 housing units rehabbed, renovated or newly built. A $4 million loan pool has been created to fund community and small business reinvestment. The EZ also has led to the funding for over 60 economic development initiatives, utilizing more than $11 million in funding to leverage $120 million in private, public and tax exempt bond financing.

These are real results. And if the Federal commitment to the EZ continues, over 1,100 new jobs will be created in the County over the next year and a half alone.

Cumberland County is just one example of how the EZ/EC initiative has brought hope and promise to communities throughout America. We need to do more to support and build on these initiatives. Now is the time for Congress to fulfill the promise made to Round II EZs and ECs.

I urge my colleagues to cosponsor this legislation, and hope the Senate will expedite its consideration.

By Mr. DORGAN (for himself and Mr. CORZINE):

S. 2693: A bill to amend the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 to encourage retirement savings for individuals by providing a refundable credit for individuals to deposit in a Social Security Plus account, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Finance.

Mr. DORGAN. Mr. President, the Board of Trustees for the Social Security Trust Fund issued its annual report in March describing the financial health of the Trust Fund and its outlook for the future. The report shows that the financial condition of the Trust Fund over the next few decades has improved somewhat since last year, that is, the Social Security program is now expected to remain solvent for three additional years through 2041. This is welcome news for the tens of millions of baby boomers who will depend on this program in the coming decades.

However, this latest Trustees' report also makes clear that the Social Security program still faces significant long-term financial challenges. This finding was not unexpected. In fact, there is already bipartisan agreement in Congress that we will need to make some careful changes to the Social Security system in order to guarantee the solvency of the Social Security Trust Fund beyond 2041. Today, Senator CORZINE of New Jersey and I are introducing legislation that we think should be part of those reform discussions.

Our legislation, called the Social Security Plus Account Act, builds upon two fundamental principles: One, the underlying guaranteed defined benefit approach of the current Social Security program should not be scrapped or weakened. Social Security has become the foundation of the Nation's retirement system, something that people can always count on. At a time when private employers are shifting more retirement saving risks onto the shoulders of their employees through the use of defined contribution plans like 401(k) plans rather than traditional defined benefit pension plans, the need to retain Social Security's basic guaranteed payment is paramount.

Second, this legislation recognizes that Congress must do more to encourage families and individuals, especially those of modest means, to increase their savings and to build a retirement nest egg. Specifically, our legislation provides for the creation of new tax-favored retirement savings accounts that individuals and families could access to supplement, but not replace, their expected future Social Security benefits.

Unlike many reform proposals, this legislation leaves the Social Security program intact. Many privatization plans force you to choose between individual accounts and the loss of Social Security's guaranteed benefit at current levels. Our proposal calls for personal accounts as an "add-on" to Social Security. This is an important distinction from the "carve-out" accounts featured in privatization plans. Privatization plans will inevitably reduce traditional guaranteed benefits. Our approach would not.

Under this legislation, eligible individuals can set up and make tax-favored contributions of up to $2,000 to a new Social Security Plus Account, SSPA. To provide an extra savings boost for low- and moderate-income families, our legislation would require the Federal Government to provide matching contributions between 25 and 100 percent for married couples with adjusted gross income below $100,000, $50,000 for singles. The $2,000 limit applies to the total of the individual's own contribution and the Federal match. This will make it much more affordable for low and moderate earners to fully fund their accounts.

Like traditional individual retirement accounts, SSPAs can grow tax-free. For example, if an individual aged 30 who files a joint return and has annual earnings of about $25,000 contributes $500 to a SSPA, the Federal Government would match that contribution with a $500 contribution to the account. If that individual contributes $500 in cash each year to the account for 32 years, earning 5-percent interest per year, until retirement at age 62, he or she would have some $80,000 available for distribution from the account. This amount grows to $160,000 if the individual is able to contribute the maximum in each year.

Let's take another example. Assume that an individual who is forty years old, files a joint return and has annual adjusted gross income of $80,000. If he or she could make the maximum permissible contribution each year until reaching age 62, along with an annual government match of $400, he or she might expect to have at least $160,128 available at retirement.

Under our legislation, the accrued amounts that are paid out or distributed when the holder of a SSPA retires, dies or becomes disabled are treated like Social Security benefits and a portion of the distributions would be taxed only above certain threshold amounts.

Now I fully understand that we may not be able to enact this legislation this year or next. Regrettably, last year's highly-touted projected budget surpluses have vanished for at least the next several years and resources are now scarce. The massive tax cuts put in place in the summer of 2001, and scheduled to take full effect over a period of years, will make finding adequate funds for many of the Nation's critical spending priorities even more difficult.

However, many of the privatization proposals would require massive infusions from the Treasury general revenue fund to offset the transition and other costs for even partial privatization initiatives. If such resources are available, it seems to me that we would better serve our citizens by using these scarce resources to enact Social Security Plus Accounts that will help them save for retirement but not put the underlying Social Security program at risk.

The current Social Security system has served us well for many years and will continue to do so if we make some adjustments. Still we all know that Social Security reform is needed. I remain committed to working on a bipartisan basis to address the long-term solvency issues facing Social Security and to improve retirement savings. And we do need to implement appropriate Social Security reforms as soon as our resources will allow us. Needlessly delaying efforts to shore up Social Security for the long term would likely require more severe action.

We certainly can't afford to make matters worse in the interim. A number of us in the Senate are concerned by the proposals offered by President Bush and some in Congress to eliminate the guaranteed basis of Social Security and replace it, in part with private accounts. The suggestion to "privatize" Social Security, or to invest a portion or all of the trust funds in the stock market, has been supported by the large investment banking houses and many others who believe that doing so would produce higher returns and improve the solvency of the system.

Several of the President's Commission on Social Security privatization plans would divert some of the payroll taxes that are currently being collected. Some of the proposals would use well over $1 trillion from the Social Security Trust Fund. This would immediately and adversely impact the financial well-being of the Social Security Trust Fund, putting in jeopardy both current and future Social Security benefits.

I do not believe that investing the proceeds of the Social Security system in the stock market through individual accounts provides the kind of stability and certainty we need for the management of the Social Security program. Social Security is intended to provide what its name suggests, security. Stock market investments do not provide this secure foundation. They increase, on average, over certain time periods. But people don't retire at average times. They retire at particular times.

This point is mostly glossed over by the President's Commission to Strengthen Social Security. The Commission issued its final report last December that included several reform options that would allow workers to invest in personal retirement accounts, but reduce their traditional guaranteed Social Security benefit. In my judgment, no one, including the President's Commission, has provided a satisfactory answer to the question of what happens to people who retire when the market is down if we change Social Security, even partly, from a social insurance program to a stock market investment program. This is not mere polemics. The Enron debacle, the boom and bust of the dot com companies of the late 1990s, and the declining stock prices of recent weeks all serve as stark reminders to all of us about the perils of investing in the stock market.

Again, I will be working for appropriate reforms to extend the life of the Social Security Trust Fund so future generations can rely on Social Security. Social Security Plus Accounts can provide a much-needed supplement to the basic program, but would do so without undermining it. They do not reform the program by themselves, but are designed to be part of a responsible reform package.

For many of our nation's seniors, Social Security is the difference between poverty and a dignified retirement. When President Franklin D. Roosevelt signed the Social Security program into law in 1935 he said "We can never insure one-hundred percent of the population against one-hundred percent of the hazards and vicissitudes of life. But we have tried to frame a law which will give some measure of protection to the average citizen and his family against poverty ridden old age." The importance of his words and his new social insurance plan are reflected in Social Security's overwhelming success today. Let's make sure that the promise and security of Social Security is kept for many generations to come.

I urge my colleagues to consider supporting this proposal in the context of comprehensive Social Security reforms considered by the Senate. Below I've provided a detailed summary of the Social Security Plus Account Act to more fully explain how the new savings accounts would work.

I ask unanimous consent that a summary of the bill be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the summary was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

SOCIAL SECURITY PLUS ACCOUNT ACT OF 2002 In general

This legislation creates new tax-favored Social Security Plus Accounts (SSPA). Generally, an eligible individual with at least $5,000 of annual earnings and who is not a dependent of another taxpayer or a full-time college student may contribute up to $2,000 to a SSPA for each year until he or she reaches the age of 70½. An individual whose modified adjusted gross income exceeds $150,000 ($300,000 for a married individual) is ineligible to make a contribution to a SSPA.

A 20-percent refundable tax credit is allowed for eligible contributions to a SSPA. In addition, the federal government will match a percentage of a SSPA contribution for taxpayers with modified adjusted gross income (AGI) below a certain level (see below).

Amounts in SSPAs that are distributed for permissible purposes are subject to favorable income tax treatment and are not subject to penalty.

An eligible individual shall file a designation of the SSPA to which the match is made, along with his or her tax return for the year (or if no return is filed, on a form prescribed by the Secretary of the Treasury) not later than the due date for filing such return (including extensions) or the 15th day of April, whichever is later.

Matching contributions

In the case of an eligible individual, the federal government makes a matching contribution to the SSPA. This is accomplished as refundable tax credit for the tax year in an amount equal to the matching contribution. The allowable credit is treated as an overpayment of tax which may only be transferred to a SSPA.

The Secretary of the Treasury will make matching contributions to the SSPAs of taxpayers with modified AGI below a certain level. The applicable percentage shall be according to the following:

In the case of an individual filing a joint return:

The applicable percentage is:

If modified adjusted gross income is:
$30,000 or less	100
Over $30,000 but not over $60,000	50
Over $60,000 but not over $100,000	25
Over $100,000	zero
In the case of a head of household:
$22,500 or less	100

The applicable percentage is:

Over $22,500 but not over $45,000	50
Over $45,000 but not over $75,000	25
Over $75,000	zero
In the case of any other individual:
$15,000 or less	100
Over $15,000 but not over $30,000	50
Over $30,000 but not over $50,000	25
Over $50,000	zero

Maximum contributions

The maximum annual contribution to a SSPA each year is $2,000—including both the individual and matching contributions. As such, the maximum annual contribution would be $1,000 for those in the lowest bracket (with a $1,000 maximum match), $1,333.33 for the middle bracket (with a $667 maximum match) and $1,600 for the next bracket (with a $400 maximum match). Those in the highest bracket with earnings over $100,000 could contribute $2,000 (with no match).

Minimum contributions

The minimum annual contribution must be sufficient to ensure that the total deposit is $200 (i.e. the lowest bracket would have to contribute at least $100, the middle bracket would have to contribute at least $133, the next bracket at least $160, and the highest bracket at least $200).

Tax treatment of SSPAs

Similar to traditional individual retirement accounts (IRAs), amounts contributed to a SSPA would be tax-favored and accounts would grow tax-free. However, amounts paid or distributed out of a SSPA would be taxable like Social Security benefits. That is, up to 50% of SSPA benefits are taxable for taxpayers whose income plus 50% of their benefits exceed $25,000 for individuals and $32,000 for couples. Up to 85% of SSPA benefits are taxable for taxpayers whose income plus benefits exceeds $34,000 for individuals and $44,000 for couples.

10-percent penalty for disqualified distributions

Distributions that are not made from a SSPA after retirement, death, disability or not used for catastrophic medical expenses exceeding 7.5% of AGI are includible in gross income and are subject to regular tax rates and a 10-percent penalty. Matching contributions from the federal government may be distributed from an SSPA only after retirement, at death or in the event of disability.

Mr. CORZINE. Mr. President, I am pleased to join today with Senator DORGAN in introducing legislation, the Social Security Plus Account Act of 2002, that would create new tax-favored Social Security Plus Accounts to supplement the existing Social Security program.

Although the Social Security Trust Fund is now projected to remain solvent for almost 40 years, I share the interest of a broad range of leaders in exploring ways to extend solvency further into the future. At this point, it remains unclear when Social Security reform will be debated. However, Senator DORGAN and I are introducing this legislation in the hope that it will be considered when that debate moves forward.

As most of my colleagues know, last year President Bush appointed a commission to recommend ways to move toward privatization of Social Security. Last December, that commission issued a report that included proposals to establish privatized accounts into which a portion of Social Security contributions would be diverted. The Bush Commission's proposals included deep cuts in guaranteed benefits, cuts that for some current workers would exceed 25 percent, and for future retirees would exceed 45 percent.

I strongly oppose these cuts. In my view, they would take the security out of Social Security. That would undermine the central goal of the program.

At the same time, I recognize that, by itself, Social Security will not provide sufficient funds for many retirees in the future. That is why it is important that Americans save on their own to prepare for retirement. I therefore support other government initiatives to promote private savings, such as individual retirement accounts and 401(k) plans.

The proposal for Social Security Plus Accounts in this legislation takes the concept of an IRA or 401(k) account, and builds on it. These new accounts would provide an additional and more powerful savings incentive for many Americans, especially middle class workers and those with more modest incomes. Under our legislation, the government would match contributions by taxpayers with incomes below certain levels. In addition, all contributions would provide immediate tax relief: a tax cut equal to 20 percent of the contribution. Moreover, when a person takes money out of an account at retirement, the proceeds would be treated in the same manner as Social Security benefits, meaning that some or all proceeds could be withdrawn tax free.

A Social Security Plus Account would provide a useful supplement to our Social Security system, without weakening that system in any way. Unlike the proposals of the Bush Social Security Commission, these new accounts would not force a reduction in traditional Social Security benefits. This difference is critical.

Senator DORGAN and I recognize that the establishment of Social Security Plus Accounts would require resources that are not presently available. We therefore appreciate that action on our legislation will have to wait until later, when we have more financing. However, we believe it important to put our proposal on the table today, to help ensure that when the appropriate time comes, our colleagues understand that there is more than one way to establish personal accounts. The right way, as proposed in this legislation, is to establish accounts that supplement Social Security, without draining the Social Security Trust Fund, without cutting benefits, and without undermining Social Security's promise to Americans who have paid into the system in good faith.

I want to thank Senator DORGAN for his leadership in this effort. I look forward to working with him to ensure that we find new and better ways to promote savings, without undermining the basic guarantees provided through Social Security.

By Mr. ALLEN (for himself and Mr. WARNER):

S. 2694. A bill to extend Federal recognition to the Chickahominy Tribe, the Chickahominy Indian Tribe—Eastern Division, the Upper Mattaponi Tribe, the Rappahannock Tribe, Inc., the Monacan Tribe, and the Nansemond Tribe; to the Committee on Indian Affairs.

Mr. ALLEN. Mr. President, I rise in support of Virginia's Indian Tribes and to introduce a bill to extend Federal recognition to six of Virginia's Indian Tribes.

These Tribes have a rich tradition and history, not only for Virginia, but also for the Nation as a whole. My bill will recognize the Chickahominy Tribe; the Chickahominy Tribe Eastern Division; the Upper Mattaponi Tribe; the Rappahannock Tribe; the Monacan Tribe; and the Nansemond Tribe.

The title of the bill is the "Thomasina E. Jordan Indian Tribes of Virginia Federal Recognition Act". For me, this legislation also has a very personal aspect to it. Thomasina Jordan was a dear friend of mine. As Governor of Virginia, I appointed Thomasina as Chair of the Virginia Council on Indians, and she served as an advisor to me in many ways over the years. Thomasina was a great leader and civil rights activist in Virginia, paving the way for this legislation. Regrettably, she passed away in 1999 after a long and courageous battle with cancer. I offer this legislation in her memory as her last battle on earth was for Federal recognition of Virginia's tribes. Thomasina's efforts to ensure equal rights and recognition to all American Indians continue today in spirit because she was able to have an effect on the lives of so many individuals and encourage many to join her quest for fairness, honor and justice.

The American Indians in Virginia contribute to the diverse, exciting nature and heritage of the Commonwealth of Virginia. Virginians are united in their desire to honor these first residents and I am pleased that Senator WARNER and I are able to join Virginia's House Delegation in offering this legislation.

There are more than 550 federally recognized Tribes in the United States. While no Tribes have been federally recognized in Virginia, the Commonwealth of Virginia has recognized the eight main tribes. According to the U.S. Census Bureau, there are over 21,000 American Indians living in Virginia.

"Federally recognized" means these tribes and groups can enjoy a special legal relationship with the U.S. government where no decisions about their lands and people are made without Indian consent. It is important that we give Federal recognition to these proud Virginia tribes so that they can not only be honored in the manner they deserve but also for the many benefits that federal recognition would provide.

Members of federally recognized tribes, most importantly, can qualify for grants for higher education opportunities.

There is absolutely no reason why American Indian Tribes in Virginia should not share in the same benefits that so many Indian tribes around the country enjoy.

The Indian Tribes in Virginia have one of the longest histories of any Indian tribe in America, which is a remarkable point considering none of the tribes in Virginia are federally recognized. As Virginia approaches the 400th anniversary of the 1607 founding of Jamestown, the first permanent English settlement in North America, it is crucial that the role of Indian tribes in Virginia in the development of our Commonwealth and our country are properly recognized and appreciated.

There are three routes that an Indian Tribe can pursue in order to receive Federal recognition. One, the tribe can apply for administrative recognition through the Bureau of Indian Affairs, which all these Virginia Tribes have done. Two, a tribe can gain Federal recognition through an act of Congress. And three, the tribe can obtain Federal recognition through legal proceedings in the court system.

There has been a sharp increase in recent years of the number of tribes seeking Federal recognition via an application to the Bureau of Indian Affairs. However, the General Accounting Office recently reported that, while the workload at the Bureau of Indian Affairs has increased dramatically, the resources to handle the large volume of applications has actually decreased. Since 1978, the Bureau of Indian Affairs has processed only 32 of the 150 applications it received, deciding favorably on only 12 of them. In fact, BIA averages only 1.3 completed applications a year. The route of Federal recognition through the Bureau of Indian Affairs and Bureau of Acknowledgment and Recognition is a cumbersome and lengthy process, which has taken sometimes over 20 years for an application to be decided upon.

In 1999, the Virginia General Assembly passed a resolution calling on the U.S. Congress to grant Federal recognition to the tribes in Virginia. Identical legislation to what I introduce today has already been introduced in the House. I join my House colleagues, Mr. MORAN of Virginia, Mrs. JO ANN DAVIS of Virginia, Mr. TOM DAVIS of Virginia, Mr. SCOTT, Mr. SCHROCK, Mr. BOUCHER, and Mr. FORBES in this important endeavor.

The precedent has already been set for the second route for attainment of Federal recognition, through an act of Congress. Since the 93rd Congress (1973–1974), Congress has restored Federal recognition to eighteen tribes and has granted seven new Federal recognitions to tribes. In 2000, Congress passed a law to grant new Federal recognition to the Shawnee Indians as a separate tribe from the Cherokee Nation of Oklahoma and another law to restore Federal recognition to the tribe of Graton Rancheria of California. It is time that Virginia's tribes receive the same recognition.

The main goal of this legislation is to establish a more equitable relationship between the tribes and the State and Federal Government.

While I understand that some may have a concern that Federal recognition of Indian tribes may lead to the establishment of gaming operations within a State, this is not the case. As a result of the 1988 Indian Gaming Regulatory Act, federally recognized Indian Tribes can conduct only the gaming operations that are authorized by State law. Tribes are unable to operate casinos, slot machines or card games unless approved by a specific State/Tribe Compact. My bill includes language restating this point to make it clear that nothing in the Act provides an exception to the Indian Gaming Regulatory Act. Ultimately, it gives proper coverage under Virginia law so as not to provide special gaming privileges.

This legislation not only lays out the path for granting Federal recognition to six American Indian Tribes in Virginia, but it also honors and details the proud history of each of the six Tribes.

The Virginia tribes have fought hard to retain their heritage and cultural identity, and it is my hope that this legislation be seen as a way to recognize this identity.

As Americans, we need to appreciate the many contributions American Indians have made to our Nation in order to make it the great country it is today. Thomasina Jordan once wrote: "We belong to this land. For 10,000 years we have been here. We were never a conquered people. The dominant society needed us to survive in 1607, and it needs American Indians and our spiritual values to survive in the next millennium." The Commonwealth of Virginia has realized that it needs its proud Indian tribes. This bill is another step toward recognizing and appreciating this special relationship.

By Mr. FRIST (for himself, Mr. FEINGOLD, and Mr. LUGAR):

S. 2695. A bill to amend the Foreign Assistance Act of 1961 to extend the authority for debt reduction, debt-for-nature swaps, and debt buybacks to nonconsessional loans and credits made to developing countries with tropical forests; to the Committee on Foreign Relations.

Mr. FRIST. Mr. President, today I rise to introduce, with Senator FEINGOLD and Senator LUGAR, a bill that could have a far-reaching impact in preserving some of the most pristine tropical forest in the world.

We seek to amend the Tropical Forest Conservation Act, TFCA, a law passed in 1998. The TFCA has led to the preservation of thousands of acres of tropical forest, particularly in the Americas, by allowing low and middle income countries to engage in debt-for-nature "swaps." The TFCA allows eligible governments to divert resources currently needed for debt service toward the conservation and management of disappearing rain forests.

Our amendment to TFCA would expand the use of this successful program. Our change would allow more tropical forests to be preserved. Under TFCA, countries are limited to using concessional debt for making swaps. Concessional debt is special low-interest loans reserved for the poorest countries to exchange non-concessional debt, e.g. Export-Import bank loans, etc. for preserved forest land. This change will not only increase the potential for swaps in countries with concessional debt, but also make some countries newly eligible for the program.

One example of a country that is not currently eligible for TFCA, but that has great potential for using the expanded program, is the African nation of Gabon. Gabon has some extraordinary, pristine forest land that deserves to be preserved.

In the fall of 2000, the National Geographic Society sponsored a 2000-mile, 15-month expedition through Central Africa by Dr. Mike Fay, a well known conservationist. Dr. Fay traveled through some of the last unexplored regions on earth, including the Langoue forest in Gabon. His expedition encountered a remarkable variety of species and habitat that are in danger of disappearing unless we help Gabon's government preserve it. Dr. Fay's observations of the Langoue Forest are compelling. Here are some excerpts from his report:

"[T]here's a river in almost the dead center of Gabon called the Ivindo which has an amazing set of waterfalls. It's a big river, probably a hundred or so meters wide, of slow, black water, and it drains almost all of northeastern Gabon. These chutes, these waterfalls—two in particular called Mingouli and Kongou—make this place an attraction.

An Italian named Giuseppe Vassallo, who died about a year and a half ago . . . promoted this place as a national park because he said it was the best forest in Gabon. He talked about it and lobbied for it and cajoled people, but it just never quite happened. We walked across this block that he'd always talked about, and I actually flew over it with him in '98 . . .

And we discovered the highest concentration of giant elephants that we'd seen on the entire walk. It's probably the only place left in the central African forest with elephants that are abundant and with a large percentage of very large males, tusks that no one has seen in a very long time, one hundred pounds on a side. Giant elephants, it's something you just don't see because they've been pouched out of the population. [And] naive gorillas, something that we hadn't seen on the entire trip. You can tell they're naive because when they see you they don't run away, they don't look alarmed, they don't act alarmed, they don't vocalize. The males don't charge at all and they get very curious. They come to see you and they approach well within the danger zone. They sit there for hours and they just stare as if it's something they've never seen before, and it's pretty obvious that they haven't.

You travel a little bit farther along and there's this mountain that we'd been navigating toward for a few weeks, and it's again full of elephants, and it's got all kinds of beautiful topography and rocky cliffs. It's a real sort hidden forest, and it really gives you a feeling of great isolation being up on this mountain plateau. So we started walking south of the mountain and pretty soon we came upon an elephant trail that lead us a little bit astray. It lead us to the east of where we wanted to go but we kept on following it and it just got bigger and bigger and bigger. I looked at the map and it was obvious that it was navigating us right toward a clearing. Long before you get to an elephant clearing you can tell where you're going, because the elephant trail opens up to like two meters wide, it's covered with dung, and there's a huge amount that are on these "highways." It's a lot like how major highway arteries in the States get bigger as they go into the city, that's basically what it is for elephants, it's an "elephant city." So, we get there, and there it is, this clearing that no one has ever seen before, no conservationist even could have imagined existed in Gabon. This place is just abounding with wildlife and you think "This place really is what old Giuseppe said it was." Even though he had never walked in it, it was as if he just knew this place was the best. The place is called Langoue and it still exists.

There are about 1.2 million acres in the Langoue Forest that are completely untouched. Experts familiar with the region estimate that more than 700,000 acres at the heart of the forest could be preserved for about $3.5 million. This part of the forest includes the naive gorillas, the giant elephants, and the waterfalls.

At the very modest cost, our amendment will give nations like Gabon a new tool for preserving their remaining tropical forest, for the benefit of the people of Gabon, and for the benefit of mankind.

I ask unanimous consent that the full text of the interview with Dr. Fay and the text of a letter from Conservation International appear at this point in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the material was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

[From National Geographic News, Aug. 9, 2001]

INTERVIEW: MIKE FAY IS ON A TREK TO PRESERVE FOREST IN GABON
(By Andrew Jones)

Last year, conservationist J. Michael Fay completed a 2,000-mile (3,218-kilometer), fifteen-month walk through central Africa in some of the world's most pristine forests. Now, the expedition leader for the National Geographic Society and an ecologist for the Wildlife Conservation Society has undertaken another challenge: a personal campaign to preserve nearly 250,000 hectares (618,000 acres) of forest in Gabon as a national park.

National Geographic News: You were in the African bush for fifteen months. How has that changed your perspective on conservation?

Dr. J. Michael Fay: As a conservationist, I would say it's a double-edged sword. Because when you're out there, you realize how much is left. There's such abundance—it's so huge, it goes on forever. You can walk for fifteen months and basically be in the woods the whole time and not have to traverse areas that are inhabited by humans. And you think, "Wow, that's cool. This place is at the ends of the Earth; it will never be touched." Then you look at the map and the logging activity and you look at the human expansion and you think, "This place is all going to disappear in the next seven to ten years."

It makes you wake up to the fact that human beings, even in the 21st century, still don't regard natural resources as something precious. Because if they did, there would be a worldwide effort to preserve these places rather than extract wood out of them as quickly as possible with zero regard for ecosystems, while wasting most of that wood before you get it to the market. So from my perspective, it was pretty depressing.

NG News: do you think there's anyone in particular to blame? Or is there no one person or group we can point to as the source of the problem?

Fay: I think the human species is what it is. It evolved to extract as many resources as it possibly could from the environment to survive better and better. That's kind of what humans are programmed to do. And to do the opposite of that, to conserve, I think is a very difficult thing for people to even comprehend, let alone enact. It's kind of counter-evolutionary, and I think it takes a lot of education and a lot of foresight. If humans want to survive on this planet without having some kind of catastrophic event take out large percentages of the population someday in the future, then they're going to have to make that shift. A lot of people talk about it, a lot of people understand it, but it's really hard to make that last jump and actually say, "Okay, I'm going to make a switch."

NG News: You're now trying to have nearly 250,000 hectares of forest land in Gabon designated as a national park. Why did you choose that particular area?

Fay: Well, there's a river in almost the dead center of Gabon called the Ivindo which has an amazing set of waterfalls. It's a big river, probably a hundred or so meters wide, of slow, black water, and it drains almost all of northeastern Gabon. These chutes, these waterfalls—two in particular called Mingouli and Kongou—make this place an attraction.

An Italian named Giuseppe Vassallo, who died about a year and a half ago . . . promoted this place as a national park because he said it was the best forest in Gabon. He talked about it and lobbied for it and cajoled people, but it just never quite happened. We walked across this block that he'd always talked about, and I actually flew over it with him in '98. We looked at the logging companies coming in from the west at a very rapid rate, and so we tried to design a walk in this place that didn't go through any logging.

And we discovered the highest concentration of giant elephants that we'd seen on the entire walk. It's probably the only place left in the central African forest with elephants that are abundant and with a large percentage of every large males—tusks that no one has seen in a very long time, one hundred pounds on a side. Giant elephants—it's something you just don't see because they've been poached out of the population. [And] naive gorillas—something that we hadn't seen on the entire trip. You can tell they're naive because when they see you they don't run away, they don't look alarmed, they don't act alarmed, they don't vocalize. The males don't charge at all and they get very curious. They come to see you and they approach well within the danger zone. They sit there for hours and they just stare as if it's something they've never seen before, and it's pretty obvious that they haven't.

You travel a little bit farther along and there's this mountain that we'd been navigating toward for a few weeks, and it's again full of elephants, and it's got all kinds of beautiful topography and rocky cliffs. It's a real sort of hidden forest, and it really gives you a feeling of great isolation being up on this mountain plateau.

So we started walking south of the mountain and pretty soon we came upon an elephant trail that lead us a little bit astray. It lead us to the east of where we wanted to go but we kept on following it and it just got bigger and bigger and bigger. I looked at the map and it was obvious that it was navigating us right toward a clearing. Long before you get to an elephant clearing you can tell where you're going, because the elephant trail opens up to like two meters wide, it's covered with dung, and there's a huge amount of track that are on these "highways." It's a lot like how major highway arteries in the States get bigger as they go into the city—that's basically what it is for elephants—it's an "elephant city." So, we get there, and there it is—this clearing that no one has ever seen before, no conservationist even could have imagined existed in Gabon. This place is just abounding with wildlife and you think "This place really is what old Giuseppe said it was." Even though he had never walked in it, it was as if he just knew this place was the best. The place is called Langoue and it still exists.

If you look at the map from a land-use perspective though, you realize that the entire block has been given away to many different logging companies, and they're working their way into Langoue as fast as we can talk. They're going to log that entire area, and there's still about 500,000 hectares [1,235,500 acres] that are completely virgin, untouched forest. But because of the sheer number of logging companies in there, the potential to log that block completely very quickly is very high. So we're launching a campaign with the government and the logging companies and the conservation community and with the general public to try and create a national park in this place. That means pushing back time. That means going back in time essentially four or five years [ago], when there were no logging concessions in this place. And that's difficult to do. And it's expensive.

NG News: How much money are you looking to raise?

Fay: Well, if we had three and a half million dollars today, right now, we can go into Gabon tomorrow and negotiate the logging rights for those concessions and maybe preserve 300,000 hectares [741,000 acres] of that forest, which includes those native gorillas, the giant elephants, the clearing on the mountain and the waterfalls. We could start that process quite easily tomorrow. But surprisingly, finding three and a half million dollars for conservation, in this world that has too much money, is very difficult.

NG News: Where have you been looking for funding?

Fay: Everywhere. You know, we don't have a major coordinated fund-raising effort that we're investing lots of money into. We're trying to do it on the cheap, I guess you could say. We're trying to use the media coverage that we've received and use the connections that we have from a number of sources. We have raised well over a million dollars already, but we . . . need three and a half million dollars, and without it we're not gonna get that national park. . . . When you look at the exploitation of the resources in those countries it's not done for the consumption of Gabonese or Congolese, it's done primarily for the consumption of Americans, Asians, and Europeans. And people need to be responsible for that. They can't just blithely keep going farther afield and exploiting the wilderness without having to pay some attention to that fact, without having to pay up. . . . We get all upset when the U.S. government wants to go drilling in [the Arctic National Wildlife Refuge]. But when an oil company wants to drill in the most pristine place in Gabon, we don't say "boo." And that has to change. People need to be responsible globally if they're going to exploit globally. It has to be a two-way street.

NG News: How do you propose to monitor the park and protect it from such threats as poaching, logging, and bushmeat hunting?

Fay: It's that double-edged sword again. The place is very isolated right now. So we're looking at a four-pronged approach. The first prong was to basically get a team on the ground . . . to protect that clearing and get a presence in there that says to people, "There's somebody looking after this place." People have taken an interest in it, people have recognized that it's something that needs to be protected. . . . We have money from the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service to establish a camp and a team on the ground. So that's prong number one.

Prong number two is the buy-back. We need to negotiate with logging companies and with the Gabonese government to find out how much it is going to cost and which blocks we can get. We're dealing with ten different blocks, each about 25,000 hectares (62,000 acres) . . . and each one takes a separate negotiation essentially. We have the green light from the Gabonese forestry minister to start this process.

The third prong of the effort is to establish a trust fund so that management will take place there in the long term. Trust funds not only create a situation where you can get funding for a place like that, but you also have a much broader management base . . . because if there's an international trust fund then there's an international board. And if there's an international board, people are going to be interested in keeping this place in a state that this fund was set up to preserve. Over the years national governments in Africa have shown great interest and have collaborated in international conservation efforts in their countries. This is seen as positive and we have had great success in the past with these associations.

And then the fourth thing is to actually establish a long-term presence on the ground, which again requires some sort of international collaboration between the conservation organization and the national government. It relies on funding from the outside rather than inside the country. We have a grant to pay for the ground action for the next three years and the effort to negotiate the national park. So we're making pretty good progress on our four prongs. But we've only completed about 10 to 30 percent of the 100 percent that we need to go on all four of those demands. So, there's still a lot of work to be done.

There are some positive elements to build on. Along the megatransect route there are already some protected areas. The idea is to preserve and fully protect about one tenth of the entire forest. We need to be pragmatic by setting reasonable targets that we can accomplish.

CONSERVATION INTERNATIONAL,
Washington, DC, June 26, 2002.

Hon. BILL FRIST,

U.S. Senate, 416 Russell Senate Office Building,
Washington, DC

DEAR SENATOR FRIST: Conservation International applauds your leadership in sponsoring legislation to strengthen the Tropical Forest Conservation Act (TFCA). Through making nonconcessional debt eligible for TFCA treatment, this legislation paves the way for substantial conservation gains by allowing additional countries to participate in debt-for-nature swaps.

Gabon is a good example. The country contains some of the world's most pristine and biologically important tropical forests—forests that shelter an incredible diversity of wildlife including populations of gorillas and chimpanzees so wild as to never before have encountered human beings. Protecting Gabon's forests is an urgent priority of the conservation community. It is also important to Gabon's future. These forests are essential to maintaining hydrological patterns, protecting water quality and quantity, and offering development opportunities in the form of a potentially significant ecotourism market. As you well know, their exploitation poses an additional risk of exposing human beings to deadly disease. In fact, the most recent Ebola outbreak occurred in Gabon.

Gabon should be a strong candidate for debt relief under the Tropical Forest Conservation Act: it has abundant, critical, and threatened tropical forests; it has a stable political regime; it seeks resources for conservation; and it owes debts to the United States. Unfortunately, the TFCA's narrow construction prohibits Gabon from seeking debt treatment under the Act. Your legislation would change this.

Conservation International has a long history of participating in debt-for-nature swaps and has significant private resources to bring to the table in support of public/private partnerships under the TFCA. In fact, we recently worked with The Nature Conservancy and World Wildlife Fund to contribute a total of $1.1 million to a TFCA deal in Peru, which leveraged $5.5 million in U.S. Government funds and generated $10.6 million in local currency payments for conservation of Peru's forests. With passage of your legislation, CI anticipates additional opportunities to work with the U.S. and key tropical forest countries to simultaneously achieve conservation and debt relief.

Thank you once again for your leadership.

Sincerely,

NICHOLAS LAPHAM,
Senior Director for Policy.

By Mr. BINGAMAN:

S. 2696. A bill to clear title to certain real property in New Mexico associated with the Middle Rio Grande Project, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Energy and Natural Resources.

Mr. BINGAMAN. Mr. President, today I am pleased to introduce the Albuquerque Biological Park Title Clarification Act. This bill would assist the City of Albuquerque, NM by clearing its title to two parcels of land located along the Rio Grande. More specifically, it would allow the city to move forward with its plans to improve the properties as part of a Biological Park Project, a city funded initiative to create a premier environmental educational center for its citizens and the entire State of New Mexico.

The Biological Park Project has been in the works since 1987 when the city began to develop an aquarium and botanic garden along the banks of the Rio Grande. The facilities constitutes just a portion of the overall project. In pursuit of the balance of the project, the city, in 1997, purchased two properties from the Middle Rio Grande Conservancy District, MRGCD, for $3,875,000. The first property, Tingley Beach, had been leased by the city from MRGCD since 1931 and used for public park purposes. The second property, San Gabriel Park, had been leased by the city since 1963, and also used for public park purposes.

In the year 2000, the city's plan were interrupted when the U.S. Bureau of Reclamation claimed that in 1953 it had acquired ownership of all of MRGCD's property that is associated with the Middle Rio Grande Project. The United States' assertion called into question the validity of the 1997 transaction between the city and MRGCD. Both MRGCD and the city dispute the United States' claim of ownership.

This dispute is delaying the city's progress in developing the Biological Park Project. If the matter is simply left to litigation, the delay will be both indefinite and unnecessary. Reclamation has already determined that the two properties are surplus to the needs of the Middle Rio Grande Project. Moreover, this history of this issue indicates that Reclamation had once considered releasing its interest in the properties for $1.00 each. Obviously, the Federal interest in these properties is low while the local interest is very high. Moreover, this bill would address only the status of the two properties at issue. The general dispute concerning title to project works is left for the courts to decide.

I hope my colleagues will work with me to help resolve this issue which is important to the citizens of my state. While much of what we do here in the Congress is complex and time-consuming work, we should also have the ability to move quickly when necessary and appropriate to solve local problems caused by federal actions. I therefore urge my colleagues to support this legislation.

I ask unanimous consent that the text of the bill be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the bill was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

S. 2696

Be it enacted by the Senate and the House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

SECTION 1. SHORT TITLE.

This Act may be cited as the "Albuquerque Biological Park Title Clarification Act".

SEC. 2. FINDINGS AND PURPOSE.

(a) FINDINGS.—The Congress finds that:

(1) In 1997, the City of Albuquerque, New Mexico paid $3,875,000 to the Middle Rio Grande Conservancy District to acquire two parcels of land known as Tingley Beach and San Gabriel Park.

(2) The City intends to develop and improve Tingley Beach and San Gabriel Park as part of its Albuquerque Biological Park Project.

(3) In 2000, the City's title to Tingley Beach and San Gabriel Park was clouded by the Bureau of Reclamation's assertion that MRGCD had earlier transferred its assets, including Tingley Beach and San Gabriel Park, to the United States as part of a 1953 grant of easement associated with the Middle Rio Grande Project.

(4) The City's ability to continue developing the Albuquerque Biological Park Project has been hindered by the cloud on its title.

(5) The United States' claim of ownership is disputed by the City and MRGCD in Rio Grande Silvery Minnow v. John W. Keys, III, No. CV 99-1320 JP/RLP-ACE (D. N.M. filed Nov. 15 1999).

(6) Tingley Beach and San Gabriel Park are surplus to the needs of the Middle Rio Grande Project.

(b) PURPOSE.—The purpose of this Act is to disclaim on behalf of the United States, any right, title, and interest it may have in and to Tingley Beach and San Gabriel Park, thereby removing the cloud on the City's title to these lands.

SEC. 3. DEFINITIONS.

In this Act:

(a) CITY.—The term "City" means the City of Albuquerque, New Mexico.

(b) MIDDLE RIO GRANDE CONSERVANCY DISTRICT.—The terms "Middle Rio Grande Conservancy District" and "MRGCD" mean a political subdivision of the State of New Mexico, created in 1925 to provide and maintain flood protection and drainage, and maintenance of ditches, canals, and distribution system for irrigation in the Middle Rio Grande Valley.

(c) MIDDLE RIO GRANDE PROJECT.—The term "Middle Rio Grande Project" means the federal reclamation project on the Middle Rio Grande authorized by the Flood Control Act of 1948 (Public Law 80-858; 62 Stat. 1179) and the Flood Control Act of 1950 (Public Law 81-516).

(d) SAN GABRIEL PARK.—The term "San Gabriel Park" means the tract of land containing 40.2236 acres, more or less, situated within Section 12, and Section 13, T10N, R2E, N.M.P.M., City of Albuquerque, Bernalillo County, New Mexico, and described by New Mexico State Plane Grid Bearings (Central Zone) and ground distances in a Special Warranty Deed conveying the property from MRGCD to the City, dated November 25, 1997.

(e) TINGLEY BEACH.—The term "Tingley Beach" means the tract of land containing 25.2005 acres, more or less, situated within Section 13 and Section 24, T10N, R2E, N.M.P.M., City of Albuquerque, Bernalillo County, New Mexico, and described by New Mexico State Plane Grid Bearings (Central Zone) and ground distances in a Special Warranty Deed conveying the property from MRGCD to the City, dated November 25, 1997.

SEC. 4. DISCLAIMER OF PROPERTY INTEREST.

(a) IN GENERAL.—As of the date of enactment of this Act, the United States—

(1) disclaims any right, title, and interest it may have in and to Tingley Beach and San Gabriel Park; and

(2) recognizes as valid the special warranty deeds dated November 25, 1997, conveying Tingley Beach and San Gabriel Park from MRGCD to the City.

(b) OTHER FEDERAL ACTION.—The Secretary of the Interior shall take any and all actions to ensure that future maps, property descriptions, or other documents generated in association with the Middle Rio Grande Project, are consistent with this Act.

SEC. 5. OTHER RIGHTS, TITLE, AND INTERESTS UNAFFECTED.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Except as expressly provided in section 4, nothing in this Act shall be construed to affect any right, or interest in and to any land associated with the Middle Rio Grande Project.

(b) ONGOING LITIGATION.—Nothing contained in this Act shall be construed to affect or otherwise interfere with any position set forth by any party in the lawsuit pending before the United States District Court for the District of New Mexico, No. CV 99-1320 JP/RLP-ACE, entitled Rio Grande Silvery Minnow v. John W. Keys, III, concerning the right, title, or interest in and to any property associated with the Middle Rio Grande Project.

By Mr. REID (for himself, Mrs. BOXER, Mrs. CLINTON, Mr. LIEBERMAN, and Mr. SARBANES):
S. 2697. A bill to require the Secretary of the Interior to implement the final rule to phase out snowmobile use in Yellowstone National Park, John D. Rockefeller, Jr. Memorial Parkway, and Grant Teton National Park, and snowplane use in Grand Teton National Park; to the Committee on Energy and Natural Resources.

Mr. REID. Mr. President, in Yellowstone National Park last winter, park rangers wore respirators. This isn't some kind of a joke, this is the truth. In Yellowstone National Park, the park rangers wore respirators because the air was so clouded and fogged with the pollution from snowmobiles that they had to do that to preserve their health.

Earlier this week, the Bush administration decided to open Yellowstone and Grand Teton National Parks to snowmobile traffic. In doing so, they chose to ignore an avalanche of public comments that strongly supported the banning of snowmobiles in these two magnificent national parks. They chose pollution over protection.

Mr. President, this isn't the first failing grade of this administration's environmental report card. I am sorry to say it probably won't be the last. It is, however, particularly disappointing in light of the Yellowstone National Park's importance to the American people.

Today, I join with Senators BOXER, CLINTON, and LIEBERMAN to introduce the Yellowstone Protection Act to shield America's first national park from a relapse of damaging snowmobile traffic.

Congressmen RUSH HOLT and CHRISTOPHER SHAYS are introducing a similar bill in the House of Representatives today. I salute them for their bipartisan leadership on this most important issue.

When Congress established the National Park Service, we directed it to "conserve the scenery and the natural and historic objects and the wildlife" of our parks "unimpaired for the enjoyment of future generations."

Mr. President, I have given speeches talking about Government and the things we should be proud of. Near the top of the list every time is our national park system. We are the envy of the world with these magnificent parks, as well we should be. To think that people who work in the parks must wear respirators because of the smog caused by snowmobiles, that is hard to imagine.

In January of 2001, the National Park Service did the right thing. Wisely, it adopted a rule to phase out snowmobile use in the park. After carefully studying the science, examining the law, and reviewing the comments of the American people, it determined—the Park Service did—that the use of snowmobiles was inconsistent with the mission of Yellowstone National Park.

Yet despite that historic decision and the overwhelming evidence that led to it, despite the science the EPA said was among the best it had ever seen, despite the support of over 80 percent of the people commenting on this issue, the National Park Service, under pressure from the administration and special interests, decided on Tuesday to roll back this commonsense rule.

The Bush administration chose to ignore science, environmental laws, and public opinion.

The Yellowstone Protection Act simply codifies the original National Park Service rule that would have banned snowmobiles in the park.

Yellowstone Park is the birthplace of our park system. Congress created the National Park Service to protect Yellowstone and other parks.

Yellowstone Park should serve as a guiding light for our protection of natural resources, not as a canary in a coal mine.

Today, we must act to protect Yellowstone just as our forefathers did in 1872, when they established this magnificent national park. They made a farsighted decision to guarantee that each new generation would inherit a healthy and vibrant Yellowstone.

This Congress must step forward to uphold what Congress began 130 years ago.

This legislation requires the management of Yellowstone and Grand Teton National Parks to be guided by law and informed by science, not dictated and directed by special interests.

We have suffered through the work that has been done by the Bush administration with the environment—whether it is arsenic in the water, whether it is stopping children from having their blood tested for lead, whether it is making it easier for power generators to dump millions of tons of pollutants in the air, whether it is easing up on Superfund legislation, refusing to fund Superfund legislation—all these things you would think would be enough. But, no, it is not enough. Now they have to say that Smokey the Bear must wear a respirator. I think that is too much.

I ask unanimous consent that the text of this bill be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the bill was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

S. 2697

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

SECTION 1. SHORT TITLE.

This Act may be cited as the "Yellowstone Protection Act".

SEC. 2. FINDINGS.

Congress finds the following:

(1) The January 22, 2001, rule phasing out snowmobile use in Yellowstone National Park, Grand Teton National Park, and the John D. Rockefeller, Jr. Memorial Parkway was made by professionals in the National Park Service who based their decision on law, 10 years of scientific study, and extensive public process.

(2) An environmental impact statement that formed the basis for the rule concluded that snowmobile use is impairing or adversely impacting air quality, natural soundscapes, wildlife, public and employee health and safety, and visitor enjoyment. According to the Environmental Protection Agency, the environmental impact statement had "among the most thorough and substantial science base that we have seen supporting a NEPA document".

(3) The National Park Service concluded that snowmobile use is violating the mission given to the agency by Congress—to manage the parks "in such manner and by such means as will leave them unimpaired for the enjoyment of future generations". The National Park Service also found that snowmobile use is "inconsistent with the requirements of the Clean Air Act, Executive Orders 11644 and 11989 [by Presidents Nixon and Carter, relating to off-road vehicle use on public lands], the NPS's general snowmobile regulations and NPS management objectives for the parks".

(4) In order to maintain winter visitor access, the Park Service outlined a plan to use the already existing mode of winter transportation known as snowcoaches, which are mass transit, oversnow vehicles similar to vans. The final rule states that a snowcoach transit system "would reduce adverse impacts on park resources and values, better provide for public safety, and provide for public enjoyment of the park in winter".

(5) The National Park Service Air Resources Division determined that despite being outnumbered by automobiles 16 to 1 during the course of a year, snowmobiles produce up to 68 percent of Yellowstone's carbon monoxide pollution and up to 90 percent of the park's annual hydrocarbon emissions.

(6) Noise from snowmobiles routinely disrupts natural sounds and natural quiet at popular Yellowstone attractions. A February 2000 "percent time audible" study found snowmobile noise present more than 90 percent of the time at 8 of 13 sites.

(7) In Yellowstone's severe winter climate, snowmobile traffic regularly disturbs and harasses wildlife. In October 2001, 18 eminent scientists warned the Secretary of the Interior that "ignoring this information would not be consistent with the original vision intended to keep our national parks unimpaired for future generations". National Park Service regulations allow snowmobile use only when that use "will not disturb wildlife..." (36 CFR 2.18(c)).

(8) At Yellowstone's west entrance, park rangers and fee collectors suffer from symptoms of carbon monoxide poisoning due to snowmobile exhaust. According to National Park Service records, in December 2000, a dozen park employees filed medical complaints citing sore throats, headaches, lethargy, eye irritation, and tightness in the lungs. Their supervisor requested more staff at the west entrance, not because of a need for additional personnel to cover the work there, but so the supervisor could begin rotating employees more frequently out of the "fume cloud" for the sake of their health. In 2002, for the first time in National Park history, rangers were issued respirators to wear while performing their duties.

(9) The public opportunity to engage in the environmental impact study process was extensive and comprehensive. During the 3-year environmental impact study process and rulemaking, there were 4 opportunities for public consideration and comment. The Park Service held 22 public hearings in regional communities such as West Yellowstone, Cody, Jackson, and Idaho Falls, and across the Nation. The agency received over 70,000 individual comments. At each stage of the input process, support for phasing out snowmobiles grew, culminating in a 4-to-1 majority in favor of the rule in early 2001. More recently, 82 percent of those commenting wrote in favor of the National Park Service decision to phase out snowmobile use in the parks.

SEC. 3. FINAL RULE CODIFIED.

Beginning on the date of the enactment of this Act, the Secretary of the Interior shall implement the final rule to phase out snowmobile use in Yellowstone National Park, the John D. Rockefeller Jr. Memorial Parkway, and Grand Teton National Park, and snowplane use in Grand Teton National Park, as published in the Federal Register on January 22, 2001 (66 Fed. Reg. 7260-7268). The Secretary shall not have the authority to modify or supersede any provision of that final rule.

By Mr. ROCKEFELLER:

S. 2698. A bill to establish a grant program for school renovation, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Health, Education, Labor, and Pensions.

By Mr. ROCKEFELLER:

S. 2699. A bill to amend the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 to expand the incentives for the construction and renovation of public schools; to the Committee on Finance.

Mr. ROCKEFELLER. Mr. President, today I am introducing two bills aimed at addressing our national school infrastructure crisis. Schools across America have been allowed to fall into ill repair, and in some school districts, there is a serious need for new school construction.

The Department of Education has found that the average age of a public school building in this country is 42 years old, an age when buildings tend to deteriorate. In 1995, the GAO found that the unmet need for school construction and renovation in the United States was a staggering $112 billion.

When our schools are in poor condition, our children suffer and our Nation suffers. Studies have shown that children in well-kept schools perform better than children in deteriorating buildings. Certainly our children deserve the advantages that come with studying in a safe, clean, modern environment. The state of our schools is unacceptable, and it is our responsibility to do all we can to remedy this situation.

These bills are the first pieces of my education agenda for 2002. In addition to investing in school construction, we must also invest in school leadership. Within the next few weeks, I intend to promote initiatives for school principals and incentives to recruit and retain teachers. School leadership will be essential in meeting the higher standards set by our new Leave No Child Behind Act, and principals play a pivotal role. I will be pushing legislation to ensure that we invest in leadership programs to help principals be bold leaders of reform. Also, I intend to introduce tax incentives to reward highly qualified teachers as a way to recruit and retain the best and the brightest for our classrooms. Building leadership among principals and teachers is as essential to quality education as modern schools.

These efforts build on my ongoing education efforts on math and science and technology. In 1996, I was proud to sponsor the E-Rate program with Senator SNOWE to connect our classroom to the Internet because our students must be connected to modern technology to gain the skills needed for the 21st century. This year, I am working hard to enact the National Math and Science Partnership Act to authorize almost a $1 billion a year for five years for the National Science Foundation to invest in promoting quality math and science education. The combination of these legislative initiatives should help provide the essential resources and leadership necessary to achieve our education goals.

I can see the effects of deteriorating school buildings in my State of West Virginia. There alone, the need for school construction, renovation, and repair is rapidly approaching a staggering $2 billion over the next 10 years, a sum West Virginia cannot meet without assistance.

West Virginia has, in the past, benefited greatly from Federal programs designed to improve the quality of school buildings, and the money we've received has been put to excellent use. Funding made available by the Qualified Zone Academy Bond program, a program in which the Federal Government authorizes the states to sell school construction bonds and then pays the interest to the bond holders, has provided my state with over $4 million in bond funding since 1998. This money has been used to renovate science labs, install wireless computer equipment, remove asbestos, and provide modular classrooms, among many other valuable projects. Another program, a direct funding initiative included in the FY 2001 final budget agreement, has also been a great success in West Virginia and across the nation.

Many schools in my State are unable to take advantage of school bondings because some local communities are so needy that they cannot afford even the low- or no-interest loans that program makes available. And when areas which are already disadvantaged are hit with natural disasters, such as the heart-breaking catastrophic flooding West Virginia has now suffered two years in a row, school districts cannot be expected to keep up with their infrastructure needs.

The direct funding initiative in the 2001 budget made $1.2 billion in grants available for emergency school renovation and repair and technology improvements across America. West Virginia was fortunate to receive nearly $8 million in funding from the program, enabling our schools to replace roofs, fix faulty wiring and sewage systems, remove asbestos, and make themselves better prepared for fire emergencies.

The success stories from these programs prove that we can make a real impact in the quality of schools in our nation. I am proud to introduce two bills today designed to build upon these past successes: the America's Better Classroom Act and the Building Our Children's Future Act.

The America's Better Classroom Act is designed to expand and build upon the success of the Qualified Zone Academy Bond, or the QZAB program. It expands this program by $2.8 billion so even more school districts will be able to take advantage of the low- or no-interest school construction loans that it provides. QZAB's are aimed at schools in disadvantaged areas. To qualify, a school must be located in an empowerment zone, enterprise community, or 35 per cent of its students must be eligible for free or reduced lunch.

In addition to expanding the QZAB program, the America's Better Classroom Act creates a new $22 billion bonding program designed to help all school districts meet their renovation needs. Funding to states will be allocated based on the Title I funding formula. In this way, many more school districts will have the opportunity to reap the benefits of no- or low-interest loans for school renovation and repair. This legislation is similar to a House bill sponsored by Congresswoman NANCY JOHNSON and Congressman CHARLIE RANGEL. I look forward to working with the House colleagues on this crucial program.

The second bill I introduce today is the Building Our Children's Future Act, a $5 billion initiative designed to help schools that, due to poverty, high growth, or unforeseen disaster, are unable to meet their repair and renovation needs. Many districts that are facing these difficult challenges find themselves so strapped that they cannot even afford to pay back the principle on an interest-free loan. These areas need direct help, and this grant program provides it.

The Building Our Children's Future Act gives each State funding based on Title I, with a priority to target funding to schools that have been damaged or destroyed by a natural disaster or are located in a high poverty or high growth areas, defined by the state. This makes certain that states have the flexibility to put the money where it is needed the most.

The bill also recognizes that not all renovation needs are the same. In the 21st century, providing students and teachers with access to technology will be a critical part of keeping schools up-to-date. Likewise, we have made a commitment to assist states in covering the costs of special education, a commitment that will undoubtedly require renovation and construction to accommodate special needs. For this reason, the Building Our Children's Future Act sets aside a portion of its funds for states to make technology improvements and carry out programs under the Individuals with Disabilities Education Act.

Finally, the Building Our Children's Future Act also makes money available to schools with high Native American populations and schools located in outlying areas, so that no group will be left behind as we seek to remedy our school infrastructure crisis.

I believe that America's Better Classroom Act and the Building Our Children's Future Act are important steps toward giving our children the learning environments they deserve. When our schools are in disrepair, we cannot expect our educational system to be any different. I hope you will join me in supporting these two bills and, in doing so, join me in supporting the futures of our children and our Nation.

STATEMENTS ON SUBMITTED
RESOLUTIONS

SENATE RESOLUTION 293—DESIGNATING THE WEEK OF NOVEMBER 10 THROUGH NOVEMBER 16, 2002, AS "NATIONAL VETERANS AWARENESS WEEK" TO EMPHASIZE THE NEED TO DEVELOP EDUCATIONAL PROGRAMS REGARDING THE CONTRIBUTIONS OF VETERANS TO THE COUNTRY

Mr. BIDEN (for himself, Mr. THURMOND, Mr. CONRAD, Mr. CLELAND, Mrs. CLINTON, Mr. ROCKEFELLER, Mr. MILLER, Mr. DEWINE, Mr. COCHRAN, Mr. DURBIN, Mr. LUGAR, Ms. COLLINS, Mr. SESSIONS, Mr. KERRY, Mr. BREAUX, Mr. DODD, Mr. DORGAN, Mr. HELMS, Mr. BAUCUS, Mrs. BOXER, Mr. JOHNSON, Ms. LANDRIEU, Mr. GRASSLEY, Mr. ROBERTS, Mr. LEVIN, Mr. REID, Mr. LEAHY, Mr. MCCAIN, Mr. HOLLINGS, Mr. SARBANES, Mr. VOINOVICH, Mr. INHOFE, Mrs. MURRAY, Mr. GREGG, Ms. MIKULSKI, Mr. DOMENICI, Mr. HUTCHINSON, Mrs. LINCOLN, Mr. SANTORUM, Mr. CRAPO, Mr. BUNNING, Mr. CRAIG, Mr. STEVENS, Mr. AKAKA, Mr. NELSON of Florida, Mr. CARPER, Mr. INOUE, Mr. HAGEL, Mr. FEINGOLD, Mr. WARNER, Mr. BINGAMAN, and Mr. DAYTON) submitted the following resolution; which was referred to the Committee on the Judiciary

S. RES. 293

Whereas tens of millions of Americans have served in the Armed Forces of the United States during the past century;

Whereas hundreds of thousands of Americans have given their lives while serving in the Armed Forces during the past century;

Whereas the contributions and sacrifices of the men and women who served in the Armed Forces have been vital in maintaining our freedoms and way of life;

Whereas the advent of the all-volunteer Armed Forces has resulted in a sharp decline in the number of individuals and families who have had any personal connection with the Armed Forces;

Whereas this reduction in familiarity with the Armed Forces has resulted in a marked decrease in the awareness by young people of the nature and importance of the accomplishments of those who have served in our Armed Forces, despite the current educational efforts of the Department of Veterans Affairs and the veterans service organizations;

Whereas our system of civilian control of the Armed Forces makes it essential that the future leaders of the Nation understand the history of military action and the contributions and sacrifices of those who conduct such actions; and

Whereas on October 30, 2001, President George W. Bush issued a proclamation urging all Americans to observe November 11 through November 17, 2001, as National Veterans Awareness Week: Now, therefore, be it

Resolved, That the Senate—

(1) designates the week of November 10 through November 16, 2002, as "National Veterans Awareness Week" for the purpose of emphasizing educational efforts directed at elementary and secondary school students concerning the contributions and sacrifices of veterans; and

(2) requests that the President issue a proclamation calling on the people of the United States to observe National Veterans Awareness Week with appropriate educational activities.

Mr. BIDEN. Mr. President, today I have the honor of joining with 50 of my colleagues in submitting a resolution expressing the sense of the Senate that the week that includes Veterans' Day this year be designated as "National Veterans Awareness Week." This marks the third year in a row that I have introduced such a resolution, which has been adopted unanimously by the Senate on both previous occasions.

The purpose of National Veterans Awareness Week is to serve as a focus for educational programs designed to make students in elementary and secondary schools aware of the contributions of veterans and their importance in preserving American peace and prosperity. This goal takes on particular importance and immediacy this year as we find ourselves at war in the wake of the attack against us on our own territory.

Why do we need such an educational effort? In a sense, this action has become necessary because we are victims of our own success with regard to the superior performance of our armed forces. The plain fact is that there are just fewer people around now who have had any connection with military service. For example, as a result of tremendous advances in military technology and the resultant productivity increases, our current armed forces now operate effectively with a personnel roster that is one-third less in size than just 10 years ago. In addition, the success of the all-volunteer career-oriented force has led to much lower turnover of personnel in today's military than in previous eras when conscription was in place. Finally, the number of veterans who served during previous conflicts, such as World War II, when our military was many times larger than today, is inevitably declining.

The net result of these changes is that the percentage of the entire population that has served in the Armed Forces is dropping rapidly, a change that can be seen in all segments of society. Whereas during World War II it was extremely uncommon to find a family in America that did not have one of its members on active duty, now there are numerous families that include no military veterans at all. As a consequence of this lack of opportunity for contacts with veterans, many of our young people have little or no connection with or knowledge about the important historical and ongoing role of men and women who have served in the military. This omission seems to have persisted despite ongoing educational efforts by the Department of Veterans Affairs and the veterans service organizations.

This lack of understanding about military veterans' important role in our society can have potentially serious repercussions. In our country, civilian control of the armed forces is the key tenet of military governance. A citizenry that is oblivious to the capabilities and limitations of the armed forces, and to its critical role throughout our history can make decisions that have unexpected and unwanted consequences. Even more important, general recognition of the importance of those individual character traits that are essential for military success, such as patriotism, selflessness, sacrifice and heroism, is vital to maintaining these key aspects of citizenship in the armed forces and even throughout the population at large.

Among today's young people, a generation that has grown up largely during times of peace and extraordinary prosperity and has embraced a "me first" attitude, it is perhaps even more important to make sure that there is solid understanding of what it has taken to attain this level of comfort and freedom. Even in the midst of our ongoing war against terrorism, with Americans in uniform finding themselves in harm's way around the world, many young people seem to be totally divorced from the implications of the conflict that is raging.

The failure of our children to understand why a military is important, why our society continues to depend on it for ultimate survival, and why a successful military requires integrity and sacrifice, will have predictable consequences as these youngsters become of voting age. Even though military service is a responsibility that is no longer shared by a large segment of the population, as it has been in the past, knowledge of the contributions of those who have served in the Armed Forces is as important as it has ever been. To the extent that many of us will not have the opportunity to serve our country in uniform, we must still remain cognizant of our responsibility as citizens to fulfill the obligations, we owe, both tangible and intangible, to those who do serve and who do sacrifice on our behalf.

The importance of this issue was brought home to me two years ago by Samuel I. Cashdollar, who was then a 13-year-old seventh grader at Lewes Middle School in Lewes, DE. Samuel won the Delaware VFW's Youth Essay Contest that year with a powerful presentation titled "How Should We Honor America's Veterans?" Samuel's essay pointed out that we have Nurses' Week, Secretaries' Week, and Teachers' Week, to rightly emphasize the importance of these occupations, but the contributions of those in uniform tend to be overlooked. We don't want our children growing up to think that Veterans Day has simply become a synonym for department store sale, and we don't want to become a Nation where more high school seniors recognize the name Britney Spears than the name Dwight Eisenhower.

National Veterans Awareness Week complements Veterans Day by focusing on education as well as commemoration, on the contributions of the many in addition to the heroism and service of the individual. National Veterans Awareness Week also presents an opportunity to remind ourselves of the contributions and sacrifices of those who have served in peacetime as well as in conflict; both groups work unending hours and spend long periods away from their families under conditions of great discomfort so that we all can live in a land of freedom and plenty.

Last year, my resolution designating National Veterans Awareness Week had 58 cosponsors and was approved in the Senate by unanimous consent. Responding to that resolution, President Bush issued a proclamation urging our citizenry to observe National Veterans Awareness Week. I ask my colleagues to continue this trend of support for our veterans by endorsing this resolution again this year. Our children and our children's children will need to be well informed about what veterans have accomplished in order to make appropriate decisions as they confront the numerous worldwide challenges that they are sure to face in the future.

SENATE RESOLUTION 294—TO AMEND RULE XLII OF THE STANDING RULES OF THE SENATE TO PROHIBIT EMPLOYMENT DISCRIMINATION IN THE SENATE BASED ON SEXUAL ORIENTATION

Mrs. FEINSTEIN (for herself, Mr. SPECTER, Mr. DASCHLE, Mr. DODD, Mr. TORRICELLI, Mr. FEINGOLD, Mr. DAYTON, Ms. STABENOW, Mr. DURBIN, Mr. JEFFORDS, Mr. KENNEDY, Mr. INOUE, Ms. CANTWELL, Mr. LEAHY, Mr. WYDEN, Mrs. BOXER, Mr. REED, Mr. AKAKA, Mr. HARKIN, Mrs. CLINTON, Mr. REID, Mrs. MURRAY, Mr. CORZINE, Mr. BINGAMAN, Ms. MIKULSKI, Mr. BAYH, Mr. LEVIN, Mr. WELLSTONE, Mr. KERRY, Ms. COLLINS, Mr. LIEBERMAN, Ms. LANDRIEU, Mr. EDWARDS, Mr. SMITH of Oregon, Mr. BIDEN, Mr. SCHUMER, Mr. CHAFEE, Mr. SARBANES, Mr. KOHL, Mrs. CARNAHAN, Mr. CARPER, Mr. NELSON of Florida, and Mr. CLELAND) submitted the following resolution; which was referred to the Committee on Rules and Administration:

S. RES. 294

Resolved,
SECTION 1. AMENDMENT TO THE STANDING RULES OF THE SENATE.

Paragraph 1 of rule XLII of the Standing Rules of the Senate is amended by striking "or state of physical handicap" and inserting "state of physical handicap, or sexual orientation".

Mrs. FEINSTEIN. Mr. President, I rise today to submit a resolution to prohibit employment discrimination in the United States Senate based on sexual orientation.

The resolution would amend the Standing Rules of the Senate by adding "sexual orientation" to "race, color, religion, sex, national origin, age, or state of physical handicap" in the anti-discrimination provision of rule 42, which governs the Senate's employment practices.

I am very pleased that 41 of my colleagues, Senators SPECTER, DASCHLE, DODD, TORRICELLI, FEINGOLD, DAYTON, STABENOW, DURBIN, JEFFORDS, KENNEDY, INOUE, CANTWELL, LEAHY, WYDEN, BOXER, REED, AKAKA, HARKIN, CLINTON, REID, MURRAY, CORZINE, BINGAMAN, MIKULSKI, BAYH, LEVIN, WELLSTONE, KERRY, COLLINS, LIEBERMAN, LANDRIEU, EDWARDS, SMITH of Oregon, BIDEN, SCHUMER, CHAFEE, SARBANES, KOHL, CARNAHAN, CARPER, and NELSON of Florida, have joined me in submitting this resolution today.

By amending the current rule, it would forbid any Senate member, officer or employee from terminating, refusing to hire, or otherwise discriminating against an individual with respect to promotion, compensation, or any other privilege of employment, on the basis of that individual's sexual orientation.

Senate employees currently have no recourse available to them should they become a victim of this type of employment discrimination.

If the rules are amended, any Senate employee that encountered discrimination based on their sexual orientation would have the option of reporting it to the Senate Ethics Committee. The Ethics Committee could then investigate the claim and recommend discipline for any Senate member, officer or employee found to have violated the rule.

Unfortunately, the Senate is already well behind other establishments of the U.S. Government in this area of anti-discrimination.

By 1996, at least 13 cabinet level agencies, including the Departments of Justice, Agriculture, Transportation, Health and Human Services, Interior, Housing and Urban Development, Labor, and Energy, in addition to the General Accounting Office, General Services Administration, Internal Revenue Service, the Federal Reserve System, Office of Personnel Management, and the White House had already issued policy statements forbidding sexual orientation discrimination.

In 1998, Executive Order 13087 was issued to prohibit sexual orientation discrimination in the Federal executive branch, including civilian employees of the military departments and sundry other governmental entities.

That Executive order now covers approximately 2 million Federal civilian workers, yet, four years later, there are still employees of the United States Senate that are unprotected.

In taking this step toward addressing discrimination, the Senate would join not only the Executive Branch, but also 294 Fortune 500 companies, 23 State governments and 252 local governments that have already prohibited workplace discrimination based on sexual orientation.

Currently, at least 68 Senators have already adopted written policies for their congressional offices indicating that sexual orientation is not a factor in their employment decisions.

Now, I urge my colleagues to join me by making this policy universal for the Senate, rather than relying on a patchwork of protection that only covers some of the Senate's employees.

SENATE RESOLUTION 295—COMMEMORATING THE 32ND ANNIVERSARY OF THE POLICY OF INDIAN SELF-DETERMINATION

Mr. CAMPBELL (for himself, Mr. AKAKA, Mr. DOMENICI, Mr. COCHRAN, and Ms. STABENOW) submitted the following resolution; which was referred to the Committee on the Judiciary:

S. RES. 295

Whereas the United States of America and the Sovereign Indian Tribes contained within its boundaries have had a long and mutually beneficial relationship since the beginning of the Republic.

Whereas the United States has recognized this special legal and political relationship and its trust responsibility to the Indian Tribes as reflected in the Federal Constitution, treaties, numerous court decisions, Federal statutes, executive orders, and course of dealing;

Whereas Federal policy toward the Indian Tribes has vacillated through history and often failed to uphold the government-to-government relationship that has endured for more than 200 years;

Whereas these Federal policies included the wholesale removal of Indian tribes and their members from their aboriginal homelands, attempts to assimilate Indian people into the general culture, as well as the termination of the legal and political relationship between the United States and the Indian tribes;

Whereas President Richard M. Nixon, in his 'Special Message to Congress on Indian Affairs' on July 8, 1970, recognized that the Indian Tribes constitute a distinct and valuable segment of the American federalist system, whose members have made significant contributions to the United States and to American culture;

Whereas President Nixon determined that Indian Tribes, as local governments, are best able to discern the needs of their people and are best situated to determine the direction of their political and economic futures;

Whereas in his 'Special Message' President Nixon recognized that the policies of legal and political termination on the one hand, and paternalism and excessive dependence on the other, devastated the political, economic, and social aspects of life in Indian America, and had to be radically altered;

Whereas in his 'Special message' President Nixon set forth the foundation for a new, more enlightened Federal Indian policy grounded in economic self-reliance and political self-determination; and

Whereas this Indian self-determination policy has endured as the most successful policy of the United States in dealing with the Indian Tribes because it rejects the failed policies of termination and paternalism and recognized 'the integrity and right to continued existence of all Indian Tribal and Alaska native governments, recognizing that cultural pluralism is a source of national strength';

Now, therefore, be it

Resolved, That the Senate of the United States recognizes the unique role of the Indian Tribes and their members in the United States, and commemorates the vision and leadership of President Nixon, and every succeeding President, in fostering the policy of Indian Self-Determination

Mr. CAMPBELL. Mr. President, I am pleased to submit today a resolution to commemorate the anniversary of a little-noticed but critical event that took place 32 years ago this summer.

In July 1970, President Richard M. Nixon delivered his now-famous "Special Message to the Congress on Indian Affairs" that revolutionized how our Nation deals with Native governments and Native people from Florida to Alaska, from Maine to Hawaii.

With centuries of ill-conceived and misdirected Federal policies and practices behind us, I am happy to say that the Nixon Indian policy continues as the bedrock of America's promise to Native Americans.

In his Message to Congress, the President made the case for a more enlightened Federal Indian policy. Citing historical injustices as well as the practical failure of all previous Federal policies regarding Indian Nations, President Nixon called for the rejection of both the "termination" policy of the 1950s and the "excessive dependence" on the Federal Government by Indian tribes and people fostered by Federal paternalism.

Nixon observed that "[t]he first Americans—the Indians—are the most deprived and most isolated group in our Nation. On virtually every scale of measurement—employment, income, education, health—the condition of the Indian people rank at the bottom."

Thirty-two years later, Indians continue to suffer high rates of unemployment, are mired in poverty, and still rank at or near the bottom of nearly every social and economic indicator in the Nation. Nonetheless, there is cause for hope that the conditions of Native Americans are improving, however slowly.

The twin pillars of the policy change initiated in 1970 are political self determination and economic self reliance. Without doubt, the most enduring legacy of the 1970 Message is the Indian self determination policy best embodied in the Indian Self Determination and Education Assistance Act of 1975, amended several times since then.

This Act, which has consistently been supported, promoted, and expanded with bipartisan support, authorizes Indian tribes to assume responsibility for and administer programs and services formerly provided by the Federal Government.

As of 2001, nearly one-half of all Bureau of Indian Affairs, BIA, and Indian Health Service, IHS, programs and services have been assumed by tribes under the Indian Self Determination Act.

With this transfer of resources and decision making authority, tribal governments have succeeded in improving the quality of services to their citizens, developed more sophisticated tribal governing structures and practices, improved their ability to govern, and strengthened their economies.

Self determination contracting and compacting has improved the efficiency of Federal programs and services and at the same time have devolved control over these resources from Washington, DC to the local, tribal governments which are much more in tune with the needs of their own people.

As steps are taken to provide tribes the tools they need to develop vigorous economies and generate tribal revenues, our policy in Congress and across the Federal Government should be to encourage and assist tribes to expand self determination and self governance into other agencies and programs, and in the process help Native people to achieve real and measurable success in improving their standard of living.

The challenge of the Nixon Message was not only to the Federal Government but to the tribes themselves: that by building strong tribal governments and more robust economies, real independence and true self determination can be achieved.

Our experience has shown that any cooperative efforts between the United States and the tribes must include a solemn assurance that the special relationship will endure and will not be terminated because of the fits and starts of periodic economic success enjoyed by some Indian tribes.

President Nixon wisely realized that the mere threat of termination results in a tendency toward an unhealthy dependence on the Federal Government which has plagued Native people for decades. As President Nixon himself knew, Native people are not hapless bystanders in this process. His Message recognized that the story of the Indian in America is one of "endurance, survival, of adaptation and creativity in the face of overwhelming obstacles."

The persistence and tenacity of Native people has been the foundation in forging a more enlightened Indian policy and with the assistance of the United States will, I am confident, result in true self determination for Native people in the United States.

I urge my colleagues to join me in recognizing the Nixon Message and our collective efforts over time in making Indian self determination a reality.

SENATE CONCURRENT RESOLUTION 125—PROVIDING FOR A CONDITIONAL ADJOURNMENT OR RECESS OF THE SENATE AND A CONDITIONAL ADJOURNMENT OF THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Mr. DASCHLE submitted the following concurrent resolution; which was considered and agreed to:

S. CON. RES. 125

Resolved by the Senate (the House of Representatives concurring), That when the Senate recesses or adjourns at the close of business on Thursday, June 27, 2002, or Friday, June 28, 2002, on a motion offered pursuant to this concurrent resolution by its Majority Leader or his designee, it stand recessed or adjourned until 12:00 noon on Monday, July 8, 2002, or until such other time on that day as may be specified in the motion to recess or adjourn, or until Members are notified to reassemble pursuant to section 2 of this concurrent resolution, whichever occurs first; and that when the House adjourns on the legislative day of Thursday, June 27, 2002, Friday, June 28, 2002, or Saturday, June 29, 2002, on a motion offered pursuant to this concurrent resolution by its Majority Leader or his designee, it stand adjourned until 2:00 p.m. on Monday, July 8, 2002, or until Members are notified to reassemble pursuant to section 2 of this concurrent resolution, whichever occurs first.

SEC. 2. The Majority Leader of the Senate and the Speaker of the House, acting jointly after consultation with the Minority Leader of the Senate and the Minority Leader of the House, shall notify the Members of the Senate and House, respectively, to reassemble at such place and time as they may designate whenever, in their opinion, the public interest shall warrant it.

SENATE CONCURRENT RESOLUTION 126—EXPRESSING THE SENSE OF CONGRESS REGARDING SCLERODERMA

Mr. REID (for himself, Mr. CRAIG, Mrs. FEINSTEIN, and Ms. STABENOW) submitted the following concurrent resolution; which was referred to the Committee on Health, Education, Labor, and Pensions:

S. CON. RES. 126

Whereas Scleroderma is a debilitating and potentially fatal autoimmune disease with a broad range of symptoms that may be either localized or systemic;

Whereas Scleroderma may attack vital internal organs, including the heart, esophagus, lungs, and kidneys, and may do so without causing any external symptoms;

Whereas more than 300,000 people in the United States suffer from Scleroderma;

Whereas the symptoms of Scleroderma include hardening and thickening of the skin, swelling, disfigurement of the hands, spasms of blood vessels causing severe discomfort in the fingers and toes, weight loss, joint pain, difficulty swallowing, extreme fatigue, and ulcerations on the fingertips which are slow to heal;

Whereas people with advanced Scleroderma may be unable to perform even the simplest tasks;

Whereas 80 percent of the people suffering from Scleroderma are women between the ages of 25 and 55;

Whereas Scleroderma is the fifth leading cause of death among all autoimmune diseases for women who are 65 years old or younger;

Whereas the wide range of symptoms and localized and systemic variations of Scleroderma make it difficult to diagnose;

Whereas the average diagnosis of Scleroderma is made 5 years after the onset of symptoms;

Whereas the cause of Scleroderma is still unknown and there is no known cure;

Whereas Federal funding for Scleroderma research is less than for other diseases of similar prevalence; and

Whereas the estimated annual direct and indirect costs of Scleroderma in the United States are $1,500,000,000: Now, therefore, be it

Resolved by the Senate (the House of Representatives concurring), That it is the sense of Congress that—

(1) private organizations and health care providers should be recognized for their efforts to promote awareness and research of Scleroderma;

(2) the people of the United States should make themselves aware of the symptoms of Scleroderma and contribute to the fight against Scleroderma;

(3) the Federal Government should promote awareness regarding Scleroderma, adequately fund research projects regarding Scleroderma within the fiscal budget, and continue to consider ways to improve the quality of health care services provided for Scleroderma patients, including making prescription medication more affordable;

(4) the National Institutes of Health should continue to play a leadership role in the fight against Scleroderma by—

(A) working more closely with private organizations and researchers to find a cure for Scleroderma;

(B) funding research projects regarding Scleroderma conducted by private organizations and researchers;

(C) holding a Scleroderma symposium which would bring together distinguished scientists and clinicians from across the United States to determine the most important priorities in Scleroderma research;

(D) supporting the formation of small workgroups composed of experts from diverse but related scientific fields to study Scleroderma;

(E) conducting more genetic, environmental, and clinical research regarding Scleroderma;

(F) training more basic and clinical scientists to carry out such research; and

(G) providing for better dissemination of the information learned from such research; and

(5) the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention should give priority to the establishment of a national epidemiological study to better track the incidence of Scleroderma and to gather information about the disease that could lead to a cure.

AMENDMENTS SUBMITTED AND PROPOSED

SA 4166. Mr. WARNER submitted an amendment intended to be proposed by him to the bill S. 2514, to authorize appropriations for fiscal year 2003 for military activities of the Department of Defense, for military construction, and for defense activities of the Department of Energy, to prescribe personnel strengths for such fiscal year for the Armed Forces, and for other purposes; which was ordered to lie on the table.

SA 4167. Mr. HOLLINGS submitted an amendment intended to be proposed by him to the bill S. 2514, supra; which was ordered to lie on the table.

SA 4168. Mr. HOLLINGS submitted an amendment intended to be proposed by him to the bill S. 2514, supra; which was ordered to lie on the table.

SA 4169. Mr. WARNER proposed an amendment to the bill S. 2514, supra.

SA 4170. Mr. WARNER proposed an amendment to the bill S. 2514, supra.

SA 4171. Mr. McCAIN (for himself and Mr. KYL) submitted an amendment intended to be proposed to amendment SA 4060 proposed by Mr. WYDEN (for himself and Mr. SMITH of Oregon) to the bill (S. 2514) supra; which was ordered to lie on the table.

SA 4172. Mr. REID (for Mr. LIEBERMAN (for himself and Mr. THOMPSON)) proposed an amendment to the bill S. 803, to enhance the management and promotion of electronic Government services and processes by establishing an Office of Electronic Government within the Office of Management and Budget, and by establishing a broad framework of measures that require using Internet-based information technology to enhance citizen access to Government information and services, and for other purposes.

TEXT OF AMENDMENTS

SA 4166. Mr. WARNER submitted an amendment intended to be proposed by him to the bill S. 2514, to authorize appropriations for fiscal year 2003 for military activities of the Department of Defense, for military construction, and for defense activities of the Department of Energy, to prescribe personnel strengths for such fiscal year for the Armed Forces, and for other purposes; which was ordered to lie on the table, as follows:

Strike the matter proposed to be inserted and insert the following:

(a) FISCAL YEAR 2003.—The Armed Forces are authorized strengths for active duty personnel as of September 30, 2003, as follows:

- (1) The Army, 480,000.
- (2) The Navy, 375,700.
- (3) The Marine Corps, 175,000.
- (4) The Air Force, 359,000.

(b) AUTHORITY TO EXCEED.—Upon a determination of the Secretary of Defense that it is necessary in the national security interests of the United States, the active duty personnel strengths of the Armed Forces may exceed the authorized strengths provided under paragraphs (1), (2), and (4) of subsection (a) as follows:

- (1) For the Army, by not more than 5,000.
- (2) For the Navy, by not more than 3,500.
- (3) For the Air Force, by not more than 3,500.

SA 4167. Mr. HOLLINGS submitted an amendment intended to be proposed by him to the bill S. 2514, to authorize appropriations for fiscal year 2003 for military activities of the Department of Defense, for military construction, and for defense activities of the Department of Energy, to prescribe personnel strengths for such fiscal year for the Armed Forces, and for other purposes; which was ordered to lie on the table, as follows:

At the end of subtitle D of title X, add the following:

SEC. 1046. SENSE OF CONGRESS ON ENHANCEMENT OF NATIONAL SECURITY COUNCIL.

(a) FINDINGS.—Congress makes the following findings:

(1) The President received no specific information or warning of the terrorist attacks on September 11, 2001.

(2) Every effort should be taken immediately to prevent a similar failure of intelligence in the future.

(3) In light of the terrorist attacks on September 11, 2001, it is clear that the United States should have a domestic intelligence service as well as a foreign intelligence service.

(4) The Federal Bureau of Investigation moved immediately after September 11, 2001, to organize a domestic intelligence service and coordinate and communicate with the Central Intelligence Agency.

(5) The National Security Council is responsible for providing both domestic and foreign intelligence for the President.

(6) The National Security Council is comprised of the Vice President, the Secretary of State, and the Secretary of Defense, and the National Security Council focuses on international threats and foreign policy.

(7) The National Security Council either failed to receive, or failed to analyze in a timely manner, intelligence that could have facilitated the interdiction of the terrorist attacks on September 11, 2001.

(8) The National Security Council must give equal treatment to homeland security, requiring a flow of timely reports not only from the Central Intelligence Agency and the Defense Intelligence Agency, but also from the Federal Bureau of Investigation, the Customs Services, the Coast Guard, the Border Patrol, the Immigration and Naturalization Service, and other departments and agencies of the Federal Government, as well as domestic law enforcement agencies.

(9) The reorganization and strengthening of the National Security Council should occur immediately and cannot and should not await the establishment of a Department of Homeland Security.

(b) SENSE OF CONGRESS.—It is the sense of Congress that the President should issue immediately an Executive Order enhancing the National Security Council in order to provide for the more timely delivery of intelligence to, and analysis of intelligence for, the President.

SA 4168. Mr. HOLLINGS submitted an amendment intended to be proposed by him to the Bill S. 2514, to authorize appropriations for fiscal year 2003 for military activities of the Department of Defense, for military construction, and for defense activities of the Department of Energy, to prescribe personnel strengths for such fiscal year for the Armed Forces, and for other purposes; which was ordered to lie on the table; as follows:

At the appropriate place, insert the following:

TITLE —HOMELAND SECURITY INFORMATION SHARING

SEC. 1. SHORT TITLE.

This Act may be cited as the "Homeland Security Information Sharing Act".

SEC. 2. FINDINGS AND SENSE OF CONGRESS.

(a) FINDINGS.—The Congress finds the following:

(1) The President received no specific information or warning of the terrorist attacks on September 11, 2001.

(2) Every effort should be taken immediately to prevent a similar failure of intelligence in the future.

(3) In light of the terrorist attacks on September 11, 2001, it is clear that the United States should have a domestic intelligence service as well as a foreign intelligence service.

(4) The Federal Bureau of Investigation moved immediately after September 11, 2001, to organize a domestic intelligence service and coordinate and communicate with the Central Intelligence Agency.

(5) The National Security Council is responsible for providing both domestic and foreign intelligence for the President.

(6) The National Security Council is comprised of the Vice President, the Secretary of State, and the Secretary of Defense, and the National Security Council focuses on international threats and foreign policy.

(7) The National Security Council either failed to receive, or failed to analyze in a timely manner, intelligence that could have facilitated the interdiction of the terrorist attacks on September 11, 2001.

(b) SENSE OF CONGRESS.—It is the sense of Congress that Federal State, and local entities should share homeland security information to the maximum extent practicable, with special emphasis on hard-to-reach urban and rural communities.

SA 4169. Mr. WARNER proposed an amendment to the bill S. 2514, to authorize appropriations for fiscal year 2003 for military activities of the Department of Defense, for military construction, and for defense activities of the Department of Energy, to prescribe personnel strengths for such fiscal year for the Armed Forces, and for other purposes; as follows:

On page 130, between lines 6 and 7, insert the following:

SEC. 604. TEMPORARY AUTHORITY FOR HIGHER RATES OF PARTIAL BASIC ALLOWANCE FOR HOUSING FOR CERTAIN MEMBERS ASSIGNED TO HOUSING UNDER ALTERNATIVE AUTHORITY FOR ACQUISITION AND IMPROVEMENT OF MILITARY HOUSING.

(a) AUTHORITY.—The Secretary of Defense may prescribe and, under section 403(n) of title 37, United States Code, pay for members of the Armed Forces (without dependents) in privatized housing higher rates of partial basic allowance for housing than those that are authorized under paragraph (2) of such section 403(n).

(b) MEMBERS IN PRIVATIZED HOUSING.—For the purposes of this section, a member of the Armed Forces (without dependents) is a member of the Armed Forces (without dependents) in privatized housing while the member is assigned to housing that is acquired or constructed under the authority of subchapter IV of chapter 169 of title 10, United States Code.

(c) TREATMENT OF HOUSING AS GOVERNMENT QUARTERS.—For purposes of section 403 of title 37, United States Code, a member of the Armed Forces (without dependents) in privatized housing shall be treated as residing in quarters of the United States or a housing facility under the jurisdiction of the Secretary of a military department while a higher rate of partial allowance for housing is paid for the member under this section.

(d) PAYMENT TO PRIVATE SOURCE.—The partial basic allowance for housing paid for a member at a higher rate under this section may be paid directly to the private sector source of the housing to whom the member is obligated to pay rent or other charge for residing in such housing if the private sector source credits the amount so paid against the amount owed by the member for the rent or other charge.

(e) TERMINATION OF AUTHORITY.—Rates prescribed under subsection (a) may not be paid under the authority of this section in connection with contracts that are entered into after December 31, 2007, for the construction or acquisition of housing under the authority of subchapter IV of chapter 169 of title 10, United States Code.

SA 4170. Mr. WARNER proposed an amendment to the bill S. 2514, to authorize appropriations for fiscal year 2003 for military activities of the Department of Defense, for military construction, and for defense activities of the Department of Energy, to prescribe personnel strengths for such fiscal year for the Armed Forces, and for other purposes; as follows:

At the end of subtitle A of title III, add the following:

SEC. 305. DISPOSAL OF OBSOLETE VESSELS OF THE NATIONAL DEFENSE RESERVE FLEET.

Of the amount authorized to be appropriated by section 301(a)(2) for operation and maintenance for the Navy, $20,000,000 may be available, without fiscal year limitation if so provided in appropriations Acts, for expenses related to the disposal of obsolete vessels in the Maritime Administration National Defense Reserve Fleet.

SA 4171. Mr. MCCAIN (for himself and Mr. KYL) submitted an amendment intended to be proposed to amendment SA 4060 proposed by Mr. WYDEN (for himself and Mr. SMITH of Oregon) to the bill (S. 2514) to authorize appropriations for fiscal year 2003 for military activities of the Department of Defense, for military construction, and for defense activities of the Department of Energy, to prescribe personnel strengths for such fiscal year for the Armed Forces, and for other purposes; which was ordered to lie on the table; as follows:

On page 3, strike lines 1 through 5, and insert the following:

(e) OFFSET.—The amount authorized to be appropriated by section 2601(1)(A), and, within that amount, the amount that is available for a military construction project for a Reserve Center in Lane County, Oregon, are hereby reduced by $4,800,000.

SA 4172. Mr. REID (for Mr. LIEBERMAN (for himself and Mr. THOMPSON)) proposed an amendment to the bill S. 803, to enhance the management and promotion of electronic Government services and processes by establishing an Office of Electronic Government within the Office of Management and Budget, and by establishing a broad framework of measures that require using internet-based information technology to enhance citizen access to Government information and services, and for other purposes; as follows:

Strike all after the enacting clause and insert the following:

SECTION 1. SHORT TITLE; TABLE OF CONTENTS.

(a) SHORT TITLE.—This Act may be cited as the “E-Government Act of 2002”.

(b) TABLE OF CONTENTS.—The table of contents for this Act is as follows:

Sec. 1. Short title; table of contents.
Sec. 2. Findings and purposes.

TITLE I—OFFICE OF MANAGEMENT AND BUDGET ELECTRONIC GOVERNMENT SERVICES

Sec. 101. Management and promotion of electronic Government services.
Sec. 102. Conforming amendments.

TITLE II—FEDERAL MANAGEMENT AND PROMOTION OF ELECTRONIC GOVERNMENT SERVICES

Sec. 201. Definitions.
Sec. 202. Federal agency responsibilities.
Sec. 203. Compatibility of Executive agency methods for use and acceptance of electronic signatures.
Sec. 204. Federal Internet portal.
Sec. 205. Federal courts.
Sec. 206. Regulatory agencies.
Sec. 207. Accessibility, usability, and preservation of Government information.

Sec. 208. Privacy provisions.
Sec. 209. Federal Information Technology workforce development.
Sec. 210. Common protocols for geographic information systems.
Sec. 211. Share-in-savings program improvements.
Sec. 212. Integrated reporting study and pilot projects.
Sec. 213. Community technology centers.
Sec. 214. Enhancing crisis management through advanced information technology.
Sec. 215. Disparities in access to the Internet.
Sec. 216. Notification of obsolete or counterproductive provisions.

TITLE III—GOVERNMENT INFORMATION SECURITY

Sec. 301. Information security.
TITLE IV—AUTHORIZATION OF APPROPRIATIONS AND EFFECTIVE DATES
Sec. 401. Authorization of appropriations.
Sec. 402. Effective dates.

SEC. 2. FINDINGS AND PURPOSES.

(a) FINDINGS.—Congress finds the following:

(1) The use of computers and the Internet is rapidly transforming societal interactions and the relationships among citizens, private businesses, and the Government.

(2) The Federal Government has had uneven success in applying advances in information technology to enhance governmental functions and services, achieve more efficient performance, increase access to Government information, and increase citizen participation in Government.

(3) Most Internet-based services of the Federal Government are developed and presented separately, according to the jurisdictional boundaries of an individual department or agency, rather than being integrated cooperatively according to function or topic.

(4) Internet-based Government services involving interagency cooperation are especially difficult to develop and promote, in part because of a lack of sufficient funding mechanisms to support such interagency cooperation.

(5) Electronic Government has its impact through improved Government performance and outcomes within and across agencies.

(6) Electronic Government is a critical element in the management of Government, to be implemented as part of a management framework that also addresses finance, procurement, human capital, and other challenges to improve the performance of Government.

(7) To take full advantage of the improved Government performance that can be achieved through the use of Internet-based technology requires strong leadership, better organization, improved interagency collaboration, and more focused oversight of agency compliance with statutes related to information resource management.

(b) PURPOSES.—The purposes of this Act are the following:

(1) To provide effective leadership of Federal Government efforts to develop and promote electronic Government services and processes by establishing an Administrator of a new Office of Electronic Government within the Office of Management and Budget.

(2) To promote use of the Internet and other information technologies to provide increased opportunities for citizen participation in Government.

(3) To promote interagency collaboration in providing electronic Government services, where this collaboration would improve the service to citizens by integrating related functions, and in the use of internal electronic Government processes, where this collaboration would improve the efficiency and effectiveness of the processes.

(4) To improve the ability of the Government to achieve agency missions and program performance goals.

(5) To promote the use of the Internet and emerging technologies within and across Government agencies to provide citizen-centric Government information and services.

(6) To reduce costs and burdens for businesses and other Government entities.

(7) To promote better informed decision-making by policy makers.

(8) To promote access to high quality Government information and services across multiple channels.

(9) To make the Federal Government more transparent and accountable.

(10) To transform agency operations by utilizing, where appropriate, best practices from public and private sector organizations.

(11) To provide enhanced access to Government information and services in a manner consistent with laws regarding protection of personal privacy, national security, records retention, access for persons with disabilities, and other relevant laws.

TITLE I—OFFICE OF MANAGEMENT AND BUDGET ELECTRONIC GOVERNMENT SERVICES

SEC. 101. MANAGEMENT AND PROMOTION OF ELECTRONIC GOVERNMENT SERVICES.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Title 44, United States Code, is amended by inserting after chapter 35 the following:

“CHAPTER 36—MANAGEMENT AND PROMOTION OF ELECTRONIC GOVERNMENT SERVICES

“Sec.

“3601. Definitions.

“3602. Office of Electronic Government.

“3603. Chief Information Officers Council.

“3604. E-Government Fund.

“3605. E-Government report.

“§ 3601. Definitions

“In this chapter, the definitions under section 3502 shall apply, and the term—

“(1) ‘Administrator’ means the Administrator of the Office of Electronic Government established under section 3602;

“(2) ‘Council’ means the Chief Information Officers Council established under section 3603;

“(3) ‘electronic Government’ means the use by the Government of web-based Internet applications and other information technologies, combined with processes that implement these technologies, to—

“(A) enhance the access to and delivery of Government information and services to the public, other agencies, and other Government entities; or

“(B) bring about improvements in Government operations that may include effectiveness, efficiency, service quality, or transformation;

“(4) ‘enterprise architecture’—

“(A) means—

“(i) a strategic information asset base, which defines the mission;

“(ii) the information necessary to perform the mission;

“(iii) the technologies necessary to perform the mission; and

“(iv) the transitional processes for implementing new technologies in response to changing mission needs; and

“(B) includes—

“(i) a baseline architecture;

“(ii) a target architecture; and

“(iii) a sequencing plan;

“(5) ‘Fund’ means the E-Government Fund established under section 3604;

“(6) ‘interoperability’ means the ability of different operating and software systems, applications, and services to communicate and exchange data in an accurate, effective, and consistent manner;

“(7) ‘integrated service delivery’ means the provision of Internet-based Federal Government information or services integrated according to function or topic rather than separated according to the boundaries of agency jurisdiction; and

“(8) ‘tribal government’ means the governing body of any Indian tribe, band, nation, or other organized group or community, including any Alaska Native village or regional or village corporation as defined in or established pursuant to the Alaska Native Claims Settlement Act (43 U.S.C. 1601 et seq.), which is recognized as eligible for the special programs and services provided by the United States to Indians because of their status as Indians.

“§ 3602. Office of Electronic Government

“(a) There is established in the Office of Management and Budget an Office of Electronic Government.

“(b) There shall be at the head of the Office an Administrator who shall be appointed by the President, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate.

“(c) The Administrator shall assist the Director in carrying out—

“(1) all functions under this chapter;

“(2) all of the functions assigned to the Director under title II of the E-Government Act of 2002; and

“(3) other electronic government initiatives, consistent with other statutes.

“(d) The Administrator shall assist the Director and the Deputy Director for Management and work with the Administrator of the Office of Information and Regulatory Affairs in setting strategic direction for implementing electronic Government, under relevant statutes, including—

“(1) chapter 35;

“(2) division E of the Clinger-Cohen Act of 1996 (division E of Public Law 104-106; 40 U.S.C. 1401 et seq.);

“(3) section 552a of title 5 (commonly referred to as the Privacy Act);

“(4) the Government Paperwork Elimination Act (44 U.S.C. 3504 note);

“(5) the Government Information Security Reform Act; and

“(6) the Computer Security Act of 1987 (40 U.S.C. 759 note).

“(e) The Administrator shall work with the Administrator of the Office of Information and Regulatory Affairs and with other offices within the Office of Management and Budget to oversee implementation of electronic Government under this chapter, chapter 35, the E-Government Act of 2002, and other relevant statutes, in a manner consistent with law, relating to—

“(1) capital planning and investment control for information technology;

“(2) the development of enterprise architectures;

“(3) information security;

“(4) privacy;

“(5) access to, dissemination of, and preservation of Government information;

“(6) accessibility of information technology for persons with disabilities; and

“(7) other areas of electronic Government.

“(f) Subject to requirements of this chapter, the Administrator shall assist the Director by performing electronic Government functions as follows:

“(1) Advise the Director on the resources required to develop and effectively operate and maintain Federal Government information systems.

“(2) Recommend to the Director changes relating to Governmentwide strategies and priorities for electronic Government.

“(3) Provide overall leadership and direction to the executive branch on electronic Government by working with authorized officials to establish information resources management policies and requirements, and by reviewing performance of each agency in acquiring, using, and managing information resources.

“(4) Promote innovative uses of information technology by agencies, particularly initiatives involving multiagency collaboration, through support of pilot projects, research, experimentation, and the use of innovative technologies.

“(5) Oversee the distribution of funds from, and ensure appropriate administration and coordination of, the E-Government Fund established under section 3604.

“(6) Coordinate with the Administrator of General Services regarding programs undertaken by the General Services Administration to promote electronic government and the efficient use of information technologies by agencies.

“(7) Lead the activities of the Chief Information Officers Council established under section 3603 on behalf of the Deputy Director for Management, who shall chair the council.

“(8) Assist the Director in establishing policies which shall set the framework for information technology standards for the Federal Government under section 5131 of the Clinger-Cohen Act of 1996 (40 U.S.C. 1441), to be developed by the National Institute of Standards and Technology and promulgated by the Secretary of Commerce, taking into account, if appropriate, recommendations of the Chief Information Officers Council, experts, and interested parties from the private and nonprofit sectors and State, local, and tribal governments, and maximizing the use of commercial standards as appropriate, as follows:

“(A) Standards and guidelines for interconnectivity and interoperability as described under section 3504.

“(B) Consistent with the process under section 207(d) of the E-Government Act of 2002, standards and guidelines for categorizing Federal Government electronic information to enable efficient use of technologies, such as through the use of extensible markup language.

“(C) Standards and guidelines for Federal Government computer system efficiency and security.

“(9) Sponsor ongoing dialogue that—

“(A) shall be conducted among Federal, State, local, and tribal government leaders on electronic Government in the executive, legislative, and judicial branches, as well as leaders in the private and nonprofit sectors, to encourage collaboration and enhance understanding of best practices and innovative approaches in acquiring, using, and managing information resources;

“(B) is intended to improve the performance of governments in collaborating on the use of information technology to improve the delivery of Government information and services; and

“(C) may include—

“(i) development of innovative models—

“(I) for electronic Government management and Government information technology contracts; and

“(II) that may be developed through focused discussions or using separately sponsored research;

“(ii) identification of opportunities for public-private collaboration in using Internet-based technology to increase the efficiency of Government-to-business transactions;

“(iii) identification of mechanisms for providing incentives to program managers and other Government employees to develop and implement innovative uses of information technologies; and

“(iv) identification of opportunities for public, private, and intergovernmental collaboration in addressing the disparities in access to the Internet and information technology.

“(10) Sponsor activities to engage the general public in the development and implementation of policies and programs, particularly activities aimed at fulfilling the goal of using the most effective citizen-centered strategies and those activities which engage multiple agencies providing similar or related information and services.

“(11) Oversee the work of the General Services Administration and other agencies in developing the integrated Internet-based system under section 204 of the E-Government Act of 2002.

“(12) Coordinate with the Administrator of the Office of Federal Procurement Policy to ensure effective implementation of electronic procurement initiatives.

“(13) Assist Federal agencies, including the General Services Administration, the Department of Justice, and the United States Access Board in—

“(A) implementing accessibility standards under section 508 of the Rehabilitation Act of 1973 (29 U.S.C. 794d); and

“(B) ensuring compliance with those standards through the budget review process and other means.

“(14) Oversee the development of enterprise architectures within and across agencies.

“(15) Assist the Director and the Deputy Director for Management in overseeing agency efforts to ensure that electronic Government activities incorporate adequate, risk-based, and cost-effective security compatible with business processes.

“(16) Administer the Office of Electronic Government established under section 3602.

“(17) Assist the Director in preparing the E-Government report established under section 3605.

“(g) The Director shall ensure that the Office of Management and Budget, including the Office of Electronic Government, the Office of Information and Regulatory Affairs, and other relevant offices, have adequate staff and resources to properly fulfill all functions under the E-Government Act of 2002.

“§ 3603. Chief Information Officers Council

“(a) There is established in the executive branch a Chief Information Officers Council.

“(b) The members of the Council shall be as follows:

“(1) The Deputy Director for Management of the Office of Management and Budget, who shall act as chairperson of the Council.

“(2) The Administrator of the Office of Electronic Government.

“(3) The Administrator of the Office of Information and Regulatory Affairs.

“(4) The chief information officer of each agency described under section 901(b) of title 31.

“(5) The chief information officer of the Central Intelligence Agency.

“(6) The chief information officer of the Department of the Army, the Department of the Navy, and the Department of the Air Force, if chief information officers have been designated for such departments under section 3506(a)(2)(B).

“(7) Any other officer or employee of the United States designated by the chairperson.

“(c)(1) The Administrator of the Office of Electronic Government shall lead the activities of the Council on behalf of the Deputy Director for Management.

“(2)(A) The Vice Chairman of the Council shall be selected by the Council from among its members.

“(B) The Vice Chairman shall serve a 1-year term, and may serve multiple terms.

“(3) The Administrator of General Services shall provide administrative and other support for the Council.

“(d) The Council is designated the principal interagency forum for improving agency practices related to the design, acquisition, development, modernization, use, operation, sharing, and performance of Federal Government information resources.

“(e) In performing its duties, the Council shall consult regularly with representatives of State, local, and tribal governments.

“(f) The Council shall perform functions that include the following:

“(1) Develop recommendations for the Director on Government information resources management policies and requirements.

“(2) Share experiences, ideas, best practices, and innovative approaches related to information resources management.

“(3) Assist the Administrator in the identification, development, and coordination of multiagency projects and other innovative initiatives to improve Government performance through the use of information technology.

“(4) Promote the development and use of common performance measures for agency information resources management under this chapter and title II of the E-Government Act of 2002.

“(5) Work as appropriate with the National Institute of Standards and Technology and the Administrator to develop recommendations on information technology standards developed under section 20 of the National Institute of Standards and Technology Act (15 U.S.C. 278g-3) and promulgated under section 5131 of the Clinger-Cohen Act of 1996 (40 U.S.C. 1441), as follows:

“(A) Standards and guidelines for interconnectivity and interoperability as described under section 3504.

“(B) Consistent with the process under section 207(d) of the E-Government Act of 2002, standards and guidelines for categorizing Federal Government electronic information to enable efficient use of technologies, such as through the use of extensible markup language.

“(C) Standards and guidelines for Federal Government computer system efficiency and security.

“(6) Work with the Office of Personnel Management to assess and address the hiring, training, classification, and professional development needs of the Government related to information resources management.

“(7) Work with the Archivist of the United States to assess how the Federal Records Act can be addressed effectively by Federal information resources management activities.

“§ 3604. E-Government Fund

“(a)(1) There is established in the Treasury of the United States the E-Government Fund.

“(2) The Fund shall be administered by the Administrator of the General Services Administration to support projects approved by the Director, assisted by the Administrator of the Office of Electronic Government, that enable the Federal Government to expand its ability, through the development and implementation of innovative uses of the Internet or other electronic methods, to conduct activities electronically.

“(3) Projects under this subsection may include efforts to—

“(A) make Federal Government information and services more readily available to members of the public (including individuals, businesses, grantees, and State and local governments);

“(B) make it easier for the public to apply for benefits, receive services, pursue business opportunities, submit information, and otherwise conduct transactions with the Federal Government; and

“(C) enable Federal agencies to take advantage of information technology in sharing information and conducting transactions with each other and with State and local governments.

“(b)(1) The Administrator shall—

“(A) establish procedures for accepting and reviewing proposals for funding;

“(B) consult with interagency councils, including the Chief Information Officers Council, the Chief Financial Officers Council, and other interagency management councils, in establishing procedures and reviewing proposals; and

“(C) assist the Director in coordinating resources that agencies receive from the Fund with other resources available to agencies for similar purposes.

“(2) When reviewing proposals and managing the Fund, the Administrator shall observe and incorporate the following procedures:

“(A) A project requiring substantial involvement or funding from an agency shall be approved by a senior official with agency-wide authority on behalf of the head of the agency, who shall report directly to the head of the agency.

“(B) Projects shall adhere to fundamental capital planning and investment control processes.

“(C) Agencies shall identify in their proposals resource commitments from the agencies involved and how these resources would be coordinated with support from the Fund, and include plans for potential continuation of projects after all funds made available from the Fund are expended.

“(D) After considering the recommendations of the interagency councils, the Director, assisted by the Administrator, shall have final authority to determine which of the candidate projects shall be funded from the Fund.

“(E) Agencies shall assess the results of funded projects.

“(c) In determining which proposals to recommend for funding, the Administrator—

“(1) shall consider criteria that include whether a proposal—

“(A) identifies the group to be served, including citizens, businesses, the Federal Government, or other governments;

“(B) indicates what service or information the project will provide that meets needs of groups identified under subparagraph (A);

“(C) ensures proper security and protects privacy;

“(D) is interagency in scope, including projects implemented by a primary or single agency that—

“(i) could confer benefits on multiple agencies; and

“(ii) have the support of other agencies; and

“(E) has performance objectives that tie to agency missions and strategic goals, and interim results that relate to the objectives; and

“(2) may also rank proposals based on criteria that include whether a proposal—

“(A) has Governmentwide application or implications;

“(B) has demonstrated support by the public to be served;

“(C) integrates Federal with State, local, or tribal approaches to service delivery;

“(D) identifies resource commitments from nongovernmental sectors;

“(E) identifies resource commitments from the agencies involved;

“(F) uses web-based technologies to achieve objectives;

“(G) identifies records management and records access strategies;

“(H) supports more effective citizen participation in and interaction with agency activities that further progress toward a more citizen-centered Government;

“(I) directly delivers Government information and services to the public or provides the infrastructure for delivery;

“(J) supports integrated service delivery;

“(K) describes how business processes across agencies will reflect appropriate transformation simultaneous to technology implementation; and “(L) is new or innovative and does not supplant existing funding streams within agencies.

“(d) The Fund may be used to fund the integrated Internet-based system under section 204 of the E-Government Act of 2002.

“(e) None of the funds provided from the Fund may be transferred to any agency until 15 days after the Administrator of the General Services Administration has submitted to the Committees on Appropriations of the Senate and the House of Representatives, the Committee on Governmental Affairs of the Senate, the Committee on Government Reform of the House of Representatives, and the appropriate authorizing committees of the Senate and the House of Representatives, a notification and description of how the funds are to be allocated and how the expenditure will further the purposes of this chapter.

“(f)(1) The Director shall report annually to Congress on the operation of the Fund, through the report established under section 3605.

“(2) The report under paragraph (1) shall describe—

“(A) all projects which the Director has approved for funding from the Fund; and

“(B) the results that have been achieved to date for these funded projects.

“(g)(1) There are authorized to be appropriated to the Fund—

“(A) $45,000,000 for fiscal year 2003;

“(B) $50,000,000 for fiscal year 2004;

“(C) $100,000,000 for fiscal year 2005;

“(D) $150,000,000 for fiscal year 2006; and

“(E) such sums as are necessary for fiscal year 2007.

“(2) Funds appropriated under this subsection shall remain available until expended.

“§ 3605. E-Government report

“(a) Not later than March 1 of each year, the Director shall submit an E-Government status report to the Committee on Governmental Affairs of the Senate and the Committee on Government Reform of the House of Representatives.

“(b) The report under subsection (a) shall contain—

“(1) a summary of the information reported by agencies under section 202(f) of the E-Government Act of 2002;

“(2) the information required to be reported by section 3604(f); and

“(3) a description of compliance by the Federal Government with other goals and provisions of the E-Government Act of 2002.”.

(b) TECHNICAL AND CONFORMING AMENDMENT.—The table of chapters for title 44, United States Code, is amended by inserting after the item relating to chapter 35 the following:

“[36. Management and Promotion of Electronic Government Services .. 3601”.

SEC. 102. CONFORMING AMENDMENTS.

(a) ELECTRONIC GOVERNMENT AND INFORMATION TECHNOLOGIES.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—The Federal Property and Administrative Services Act of 1949 (40 U.S.C. 471 et seq.) is amended by inserting after section 112 the following:

“SEC. 113. ELECTRONIC GOVERNMENT AND INFORMATION TECHNOLOGIES.

“The Administrator of General Services shall consult with the Administrator of the Office of Electronic Government on programs undertaken by the General Services Administration to promote electronic Government and the efficient use of information technologies by Federal agencies.”.

(2) TECHNICAL AND CONFORMING AMENDMENT.—The table of sections for the Federal Property and Administrative Services Act of 1949 is amended by inserting after the item relating to section 112 the following:

“Sec. 113. Electronic Government and information technologies.”.

(b) MODIFICATION OF DEPUTY DIRECTOR FOR MANAGEMENT FUNCTIONS.—Section 503(b) of title 31, United States Code, is amended—

(1) by redesignating paragraphs (5), (6), (7), (8), and (9), as paragraphs (6), (7), (8), (9), and (10), respectively; and

(2) by inserting after paragraph (4) the following:

“(5) Chair the Chief Information Officers Council established under section 3603 of title 44.”.

(c) OFFICE OF ELECTRONIC GOVERNMENT.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—Chapter 5 of title 31, United States Code, is amended by inserting after section 506 the following:

“§ 507. Office of Electronic Government

“The Office of Electronic Government, established under section 3602 of title 44, is an office in the Office of Management and Budget.”.

(2) TECHNICAL AND CONFORMING AMENDMENT.—The table of sections for chapter 5 of title 31, United States Code, is amended by inserting after the item relating to section 506 the following:

“507. Office of Electronic Government.”.

TITLE II—FEDERAL MANAGEMENT AND PROMOTION OF ELECTRONIC GOVERNMENT SERVICES

SEC. 201. DEFINITIONS.

Except as otherwise provided, in this title the definitions under sections 3502 and 3601 of title 44, United States Code, shall apply.

SEC. 202. FEDERAL AGENCY RESPONSIBILITIES.

(a) IN GENERAL.—The head of each agency shall be responsible for—

(1) complying with the requirements of this Act (including the amendments made by this Act), the related information resource management policies and guidance established by the Director of the Office of Management and Budget, and the related information technology standards promulgated by the Secretary of Commerce;

(2) ensuring that the information resource management policies and guidance established under this Act by the Director, and the information technology standards promulgated under this Act by the Secretary of Commerce are communicated promptly and effectively to all relevant officials within their agency; and

(3) supporting the efforts of the Director and the Administrator of the General Services Administration to develop, maintain, and promote an integrated Internet-based system of delivering Federal Government information and services to the public under section 204.

(b) PERFORMANCE INTEGRATION.—

(1) Agencies shall develop performance measures that demonstrate how electronic government enables progress toward agency objectives, strategic goals, and statutory mandates.

(2) In measuring performance under this section, agencies shall rely on existing data collections to the extent practicable.

(3) Areas of performance measurement that agencies should consider include—

(A) customer service;

(B) agency productivity; and

(C) adoption of innovative information technology, including the appropriate use of commercial best practices.

(4) Agencies shall link their performance goals to key groups, including citizens, businesses, and other governments, and to internal Federal Government operations.

(5) As appropriate, agencies shall work collectively in linking their performance goals to groups identified under paragraph (4) and shall use information technology in delivering Government information and services to those groups.

(c) AVOIDING DIMINISHED ACCESS.—When promulgating policies and implementing programs regarding the provision of Government information and services over the Internet, agency heads shall consider the impact on persons without access to the Internet, and shall, to the extent practicable—

(1) ensure that the availability of Government information and services has not been diminished for individuals who lack access to the Internet; and

(2) pursue alternate modes of delivery that make Government information and services more accessible to individuals who do not own personal computers or lack access to the Internet.

(d) ACCESSIBILITY TO PEOPLE WITH DISABILITIES.—All actions taken by Federal departments and agencies under this Act shall be in compliance with section 508 of the Rehabilitation Act of 1973 (29 U.S.C. 794d).

(e) SPONSORED ACTIVITIES.—Agencies shall sponsor activities that use information technology to engage the public in the development and implementation of policies and programs.

(f) CHIEF INFORMATION OFFICERS.—The Chief Information Officer of each of the agencies designated under chapter 36 of title 44, United States Code (as added by this Act) shall be responsible for—

(1) participating in the functions of the Chief Information Officers Council; and

(2) monitoring the implementation, within their respective agencies, of information technology standards promulgated under this Act by the Secretary of Commerce, including common standards for interconnectivity and interoperability, categorization of Federal Government electronic information, and computer system efficiency and security.

(g) E-GOVERNMENT STATUS REPORT.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—Each agency shall compile and submit to the Director an annual E-Government Status Report on—

(A) the status of the implementation by the agency of electronic government initiatives;

(B) compliance by the agency with this Act; and

(C) how electronic Government initiatives of the agency improve performance in delivering programs to constituencies.

(2) SUBMISSION.—Each agency shall submit an annual report under this subsection—

(A) to the Director at such time and in such manner as the Director requires;

(B) consistent with related reporting requirements; and

(C) which addresses any section in this title relevant to that agency.

(h) USE OF TECHNOLOGY.—Nothing in this Act supersedes the responsibility of an agency to use or manage information technology to deliver Government information and services that fulfill the statutory mission and programs of the agency.

(i) NATIONAL SECURITY SYSTEMS.—

(1) INAPPLICABILITY.—Except as provided under paragraph (2), this title does not apply to national security systems as defined in section 5142 of the Clinger-Cohen Act of 1996 (40 U.S.C. 1452).

(2) APPLICABILITY.—Sections 202, 203, 210, and 214 of this title do apply to national security systems to the extent practicable and consistent with law.

SEC. 203. COMPATIBILITY OF EXECUTIVE AGENCY METHODS FOR USE AND ACCEPTANCE OF ELECTRONIC SIGNATURES.

(a) PURPOSE.—The purpose of this section is to achieve interoperable implementation of electronic signatures for appropriately secure electronic transactions with Government.

(b) ELECTRONIC SIGNATURES.—In order to fulfill the objectives of the Government Paperwork Elimination Act (Public Law 105-277; 112 Stat. 2681-749 through 2681-751), each Executive agency (as defined under section 105 of title 5, United States Code) shall ensure that its methods for use and acceptance of electronic signatures are compatible with the relevant policies and procedures issued by the Director.

(c) AUTHORITY FOR ELECTRONIC SIGNATURES.—The Administrator of General Services shall support the Director by establishing a framework to allow efficient interoperability among Executive agencies when using electronic signatures, including processing of digital signatures.

(d) AUTHORIZATION OF APPROPRIATIONS.—There are authorized to be appropriated to the General Services Administration, to ensure the development and operation of a Federal bridge certification authority for digital signature compatibility, or for other activities consistent with this section, $8,000,000 in fiscal year 2003, and such sums as are necessary for each fiscal year thereafter.

SEC. 204. FEDERAL INTERNET PORTAL.

(a) IN GENERAL.—

(1) PUBLIC ACCESS.—The Director shall work with the Administrator of the General Services Administration and other agencies to maintain and promote an integrated Internet-based system of providing the public with access to Government information and services.

(2) CRITERIA.—To the extent practicable, the integrated system shall be designed and operated according to the following criteria:

(A) The provision of Internet-based Government information and services directed to key groups, including citizens, business, and other governments, and integrated according to function or topic rather than separated according to the boundaries of agency jurisdiction.

(B) An ongoing effort to ensure that Internet-based Government services relevant to a given citizen activity are available from a single point.

(C) Access to Federal Government information and services consolidated, as appropriate, with Internet-based information and services provided by State, local, and tribal governments.

(D) Access to Federal Government information held by 1 or more agencies shall be made available in a manner that protects privacy, consistent with law.

(b) AUTHORIZATION OF APPROPRIATIONS.—There are authorized to be appropriated to the General Services Administration $15,000,000 for the maintenance, improvement, and promotion of the integrated Internet-based system for fiscal year 2003, and such sums as are necessary for fiscal years 2004 through 2007.

SEC. 205. FEDERAL COURTS.

(a) INDIVIDUAL COURT WEBSITES.—The Chief Justice of the United States, the chief judge of each circuit and district, and the chief bankruptcy judge of each district shall establish with respect to the Supreme Court or the respective court of appeals, district, or bankruptcy court of a district, a website that contains the following information or links to websites with the following information:

(1) Location and contact information for the courthouse, including the telephone numbers and contact names for the clerk's office and justices' or judges' chambers.

(2) Local rules and standing or general orders of the court.

(3) Individual rules, if in existence, of each justice or judge in that court.

(4) Access to docket information for each case.

(5) Access to the substance of all written opinions issued by the court, regardless of whether such opinions are to be published in the official court reporter, in a text searchable format.

(6) Access to all documents filed with the courthouse in electronic form, described under subsection (c).

(7) Any other information (including forms in a format that can be downloaded) that the court determines useful to the public.

(b) MAINTENANCE OF DATA ONLINE.—

(1) UPDATE OF INFORMATION.—The information and rules on each website shall be updated regularly and kept reasonably current.

(2) CLOSED CASES.—Electronic files and docket information for cases closed for more than 1 year are not required to be made available online, except all written opinions with a date of issuance after the effective date of this section shall remain available online.

(c) ELECTRONIC FILINGS.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—Except as provided under paragraph (2), each court shall make any document that is filed electronically publicly available online. A court may convert any document that is filed in paper form to electronic form. To the extent such conversions are made, all such electronic versions of the document shall be made available online.

(2) EXCEPTIONS.—Documents that are filed that are not otherwise available to the public, such as documents filed under seal, shall not be made available online.

(3) PRIVACY AND SECURITY CONCERNS.—The Judicial Conference of the United States may promulgate rules under this subsection to protect important privacy and security concerns.

(d) DOCKETS WITH LINKS TO DOCUMENTS.—The Judicial Conference of the United States shall explore the feasibility of technology to post online dockets with links allowing all filings, decisions, and rulings in each case to be obtained from the docket sheet of that case.

(e) COST OF PROVIDING ELECTRONIC DOCKETING INFORMATION.—Section 303(a) of the Judiciary Appropriations Act, 1992 (28 U.S.C. 1913 note) is amended in the first sentence by striking "shall hereafter" and inserting "may, only to the extent necessary,".

(f) TIME REQUIREMENTS.—Not later than 2 years after the effective date of this title, the websites under subsection (a) shall be established, except that access to documents filed in electronic form shall be established not later than 4 years after that effective date.

(g) DEFERRAL.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—

(A) ELECTION.—

(i) NOTIFICATION.—The Chief Justice of the United States, a chief judge, or chief bankruptcy judge may submit a notification to the Administrative Office of the United States Courts to defer compliance with any requirement of this section with respect to the Supreme Court, a court of appeals, district, or the bankruptcy court of a district.

(ii) CONTENTS.—A notification submitted under this subparagraph shall state—

(I) the reasons for the deferral; and

(II) the online methods, if any, or any alternative methods, such court or district is using to provide greater public access to information.

(B) EXCEPTION.—To the extent that the Supreme Court, a court of appeals, district, or bankruptcy court of a district maintains a website under subsection (a), the Supreme Court or that court of appeals or district shall comply with subsection (b)(1).

(2) REPORT.—Not later than 1 year after the effective date of this title, and every year thereafter, the Judicial Conference of the United States shall submit a report to the Committees on Governmental Affairs and the Judiciary of the Senate and the Committees on Government Reform and the

Judiciary of the House of Representatives that—

(A) contains all notifications submitted to the Administrative Office of the United States Courts under this subsection; and

(B) summarizes and evaluates all notifications.

SEC. 206. REGULATORY AGENCIES.

(a) PURPOSES.—The purposes of this section are to—

(1) improve performance in the development and issuance of agency regulations by using information technology to increase access, accountability, and transparency; and

(2) enhance public participation in Government by electronic means, consistent with requirements under subchapter II of chapter 5 of title 5, United States Code, (commonly referred to as the Administrative Procedures Act).

(b) INFORMATION PROVIDED BY AGENCIES ONLINE.—To the extent practicable as determined by the agency in consultation with the Director, each agency (as defined under section 551 of title 5, United States Code) shall ensure that a publicly accessible Federal Government website includes all information about that agency required to be published in the Federal Register under section 552(a)(1) of title 5, United States Code.

(c) SUBMISSIONS BY ELECTRONIC MEANS.—To the extent practicable, agencies shall accept submissions under section 553(c) of title 5, United States Code, by electronic means.

(d) ELECTRONIC DOCKETING.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—To the extent practicable, as determined by the agency in consultation with the Director, agencies shall ensure that a publicly accessible Federal Government website contains electronic dockets for rulemakings under section 553 of title 5, United States Code.

(2) INFORMATION AVAILABLE.—Agency electronic dockets shall make publicly available online to the extent practicable, as determined by the agency in consultation with the Director—

(A) all submissions under section 553(c) of title 5, United States Code; and

(B) other materials that by agency rule or practice are included in the rulemaking docket under section 553(c) of title 5, United States Code, whether or not submitted electronically.

(e) TIME LIMITATION.—Agencies shall implement the requirements of this section consistent with a timetable established by the Director and reported to Congress in the first annual report under section 3605 of title 44 (as added by this Act).

SEC. 207. ACCESSIBILITY, USABILITY, AND PRESERVATION OF GOVERNMENT INFORMATION.

(a) PURPOSE.—The purpose of this section is to improve the methods by which Government information, including information on the Internet, is organized, preserved, and made accessible to the public.

(b) DEFINITIONS.—In this section, the term—

(1) “Committee” means the Interagency Committee on Government Information established under subsection (c); and

(2) “directory” means a taxonomy of subjects linked to websites that—

(A) organizes Government information on the Internet according to subject matter; and

(B) may be created with the participation of human editors.

(c) INTERAGENCY COMMITTEE.—

(1) ESTABLISHMENT.—Not later than 90 days after the date of enactment of this title, the Director shall establish the Interagency Committee on Government Information.

(2) MEMBERSHIP.—The Committee shall be chaired by the Director or the designee of the Director and—

(A) shall include representatives from—

(i) the National Archives and Records Administration;

(ii) the offices of the Chief Information Officers from Federal agencies; and

(iii) other relevant officers from the executive branch; and

(B) may include representatives from the Federal legislative and judicial branches.

(3) FUNCTIONS.—The Committee shall—

(A) engage in public consultation to the maximum extent feasible, including consultation with interested communities such as public advocacy organizations;

(B) conduct studies and submit recommendations, as provided under this section, to the Director and Congress; and

(C) share effective practices for access to, dissemination of, and retention of Federal information.

(4) TERMINATION.—The Committee may be terminated on a date determined by the Director, except the Committee may not terminate before the Committee submits all recommendations required under this section.

(d) CATEGORIZING OF INFORMATION.—

(1) COMMITTEE FUNCTIONS.—Not later than 1 year after the date of enactment of this Act, the Committee shall submit recommendations to the Director on—

(A) the adoption of standards, which are open to the maximum extent feasible, to enable the organization and categorization of Government information—

(i) in a way that is searchable electronically, including by searchable identifiers; and

(ii) in ways that are interoperable across agencies;

(B) the definition of categories of Government information which should be classified under the standards; and

(C) determining priorities and developing schedules for the initial implementation of the standards by agencies.

(2) FUNCTIONS OF THE DIRECTOR.—Not later than 180 days after the submission of recommendations under paragraph (1), the Director shall issue policies—

(A) requiring that agencies use standards, which are open to the maximum extent feasible, to enable the organization and categorization of Government information—

(i) in a way that is searchable electronically, including by searchable identifiers;

(ii) in ways that are interoperable across agencies; and

(iii) that are, as appropriate, consistent with the standards promulgated by the Secretary of Commerce under section 3602(f)(8) of title 44, United States Code;

(B) defining categories of Government information which shall be required to be classified under the standards; and

(C) determining priorities and developing schedules for the initial implementation of the standards by agencies.

(3) MODIFICATION OF POLICIES.—After the submission of agency reports under paragraph (4), the Director shall modify the policies, as needed, in consultation with the Committee and interested parties.

(4) AGENCY FUNCTIONS.—Each agency shall report annually to the Director, in the report established under section 202(g), on compliance of that agency with the policies issued under paragraph (2)(A).

(e) PUBLIC ACCESS TO ELECTRONIC INFORMATION.—

(1) COMMITTEE FUNCTIONS.—Not later than 1 year after the date of enactment of this Act, the Committee shall submit recommendations to the Director and the Archivist of the United States on—

(A) the adoption by agencies of policies and procedures to ensure that chapters 21, 25, 27, 29, and 31 of title 44, United States Code, are applied effectively and comprehensively to Government information on the Internet and to other electronic records; and

(B) the imposition of timetables for the implementation of the policies and procedures by agencies.

(2) FUNCTIONS OF THE ARCHIVIST.—Not later than 180 days after the submission of recommendations by the Committee under paragraph (1), the Archivist of the United States shall issue policies—

(A) requiring the adoption by agencies of policies and procedures to ensure that chapters 21, 25, 27, 29, and 31 of title 44, United States Code, are applied effectively and comprehensively to Government information on the Internet and to other electronic records; and

(B) imposing timetables for the implementation of the policies, procedures, and technologies by agencies.

(3) MODIFICATION OF POLICIES.—After the submission of agency reports under paragraph (4), the Archivist of the United States shall modify the policies, as needed, in consultation with the Committee and interested parties.

(4) AGENCY FUNCTIONS.—Each agency shall report annually to the Director, in the report established under section 202(g), on compliance of that agency with the policies issued under paragraph (2)(A).

(f) AVAILABILITY OF GOVERNMENT INFORMATION ON THE INTERNET.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—Not later than 1 year after the date of enactment of this Act, each agency shall—

(A) consult with the Committee and solicit public comment;

(B) determine which Government information the agency intends to make available and accessible to the public on the Internet and by other means;

(C) develop priorities and schedules for making that Government information available and accessible;

(D) make such final determinations, priorities, and schedules available for public comment;

(E) post such final determinations, priorities, and schedules on the Internet; and

(F) submit such final determinations, priorities, and schedules to the Director, in the report established under section 202(g).

(2) UPDATE.—Each agency shall update determinations, priorities, and schedules of the agency, as needed, after consulting with the Committee and soliciting public comment, if appropriate.

(g) ACCESS TO FEDERALLY FUNDED RESEARCH AND DEVELOPMENT.—

(1) DEVELOPMENT AND MAINTENANCE OF GOVERNMENTWIDE REPOSITORY AND WEBSITE.—

(A) REPOSITORY AND WEBSITE.—The Director of the National Science Foundation, working with the Director of the Office of Science and Technology Policy and other relevant agencies, shall ensure the development and maintenance of—

(i) a repository that fully integrates, to the maximum extent feasible, information about research and development funded by the Federal Government, and the repository shall—

(I) include information about research and development funded by the Federal Government and performed by—

(aa) institutions not a part of the Federal Government, including State, local, and foreign governments; industrial firms; educational institutions; not-for-profit organizations; federally funded research and development center; and private individuals; and

(bb) entities of the Federal Government, including research and development laboratories, centers, and offices; and

(II) integrate information about each separate research and development task or award, including—

(aa) the dates upon which the task or award is expected to start and end;

(bb) a brief summary describing the objective and the scientific and technical focus of the task or award;

(cc) the entity or institution performing the task or award and its contact information;

(dd) the total amount of Federal funds expected to be provided to the task or award over its lifetime and the amount of funds expected to be provided in each fiscal year in which the work of the task or award is ongoing;

(ee) any restrictions attached to the task or award that would prevent the sharing with the general public of any or all of the information required by this subsection, and the reasons for such restrictions; and

(ff) such other information as may be determined to be appropriate; and

(ii) 1 or more websites upon which all or part of the repository of Federal research and development shall be made available to and searchable by Federal agencies and non-Federal entities, including the general public, to facilitate—

(I) the coordination of Federal research and development activities;

(II) collaboration among those conducting Federal research and development;

(III) the transfer of technology among Federal agencies and between Federal agencies and non-Federal entities; and

(IV) access by policymakers and the public to information concerning Federal research and development activities.

(B) OVERSIGHT.—The Director of the Office of Management and Budget shall issue any guidance determined necessary to ensure that agencies provide all information requested under this subsection.

(2) AGENCY FUNCTIONS.—Any agency that funds Federal research and development under this subsection shall provide the information required to populate the repository in the manner prescribed by the Director of the Office of Management and Budget.

(3) COMMITTEE FUNCTIONS.—Not later than 18 months after the date of enactment of this Act, working with the Director of the Office of Science and Technology Policy, and after consultation with interested parties, the Committee shall submit recommendations to the Director on—

(A) policies to improve agency reporting of information for the repository established under this subsection; and

(B) policies to improve dissemination of the results of research performed by Federal agencies and federally funded research and development centers.

(4) FUNCTIONS OF THE DIRECTOR.—After submission of recommendations by the Committee under paragraph (3), the Director shall report on the recommendations of the Committee and Director to Congress, in the E-Government report under section 3605 of title 44 (as added by this Act).

(5) AUTHORIZATION OF APPROPRIATIONS.—There are authorized to be appropriated to the National Science Foundation for the development, maintenance, and operation of the Governmentwide repository and website under this subsection—

(A) $2,000,000 in each of the fiscal years 2003 through 2005; and

(B) such sums as are necessary in each of the fiscal years 2006 and 2007.

(h) PUBLIC DOMAIN DIRECTORY OF PUBLIC FEDERAL GOVERNMENT WEBSITES.—

(1) ESTABLISHMENT.—Not later than 2 years after the effective date of this title, the Director and each agency shall—

(A) develop and establish a public domain directory of public Federal Government websites; and

(B) post the directory on the Internet with a link to the integrated Internet-based system established under section 204.

(2) DEVELOPMENT.—With the assistance of each agency, the Director shall—

(A) direct the development of the directory through a collaborative effort, including input from—

- (i) agency librarians;
- (ii) information technology managers;
- (iii) program managers;
- (iv) records managers;
- (v) Federal depository librarians; and
- (vi) other interested parties; and

(B) develop a public domain taxonomy of subjects used to review and categorize public Federal Government websites.

(3) UPDATE.—With the assistance of each agency, the Administrator of the Office of Electronic Government shall—

(A) update the directory as necessary, but not less than every 6 months; and

(B) solicit interested persons for improvements to the directory.

(i) STANDARDS FOR AGENCY WEBSITES.—Not later than 18 months after the effective date of this title, the Director shall promulgate guidance for agency websites that include—

(1) requirements that websites include direct links to—

(A) descriptions of the mission and statutory authority of the agency;

(B) the electronic reading rooms of the agency relating to the disclosure of information under section 552 of title 5, United States Code (commonly referred to as the Freedom of Information Act);

(C) information about the organizational structure of the agency; and

(D) the strategic plan of the agency developed under section 306 of title 5, United States Code; and

(2) minimum agency goals to assist public users to navigate agency websites, including—

- (A) speed of retrieval of search results;
- (B) the relevance of the results;
- (C) tools to aggregate and disaggregate data; and
- (D) security protocols to protect information.

SEC. 208. PRIVACY PROVISIONS.

(a) PURPOSE.—The purpose of this section is to ensure sufficient protections for the privacy of personal information as agencies implement citizen-centered electronic Government.

(b) PRIVACY IMPACT ASSESSMENTS.—

(1) RESPONSIBILITIES OF AGENCIES.—

(A) IN GENERAL.—An agency shall take actions described under subparagraph (B) before—

- (i) developing or procuring information technology that collects, maintains, or disseminates information that includes any identifier permitting the physical or online contacting of a specific individual; or
- (ii) initiating a new collection of information that—

(I) will be collected, maintained, or disseminated using information technology; and

(II) includes any identifier permitting the physical or online contacting of a specific individual, if the information concerns 10 or more persons.

(B) AGENCY ACTIVITIES.—To the extent required under subparagraph (A), each agency shall—

- (i) conduct a privacy impact assessment;
- (ii) ensure the review of the privacy impact assessment by the Chief Information Officer, or equivalent official, as determined by the head of the agency; and
- (iii) if practicable, after completion of the review under clause (ii), make the privacy impact assessment publicly available through the website of the agency, publication in the Federal Register, or other means.

(C) SENSITIVE INFORMATION.—Subparagraph (B)(iii) may be modified or waived for security reasons, or to protect classified, sensitive, or private information contained in an assessment.

(D) COPY TO DIRECTOR.—Agencies shall provide the Director with a copy of the privacy impact assessment for each system for which funding is requested.

(2) CONTENTS OF A PRIVACY IMPACT ASSESSMENT.—

(A) IN GENERAL.—The Director shall issue guidance to agencies specifying the required contents of a privacy impact assessment.

(B) GUIDANCE.—The guidance shall—

- (i) ensure that a privacy impact assessment is commensurate with the size of the information system being assessed, the sensitivity of personally identifiable information in that system, and the risk of harm from unauthorized release of that information; and
- (ii) require that a privacy impact assessment address—

- (I) what information is to be collected;
- (II) why the information is being collected;
- (III) the intended use of the agency of the information;
- (IV) with whom the information will be shared;
- (V) what notice or opportunities for consent would be provided to individuals regarding what information is collected and how that information is shared;
- (VI) how the information will be secured; and

(VII) whether a system of records is being created under section 552a of title 5, United States Code, (commonly referred to as the Privacy Act).

(3) RESPONSIBILITIES OF THE DIRECTOR.—The Director shall—

- (A) develop policies and guidelines for agencies on the conduct of privacy impact assessments;
- (B) oversee the implementation of the privacy impact assessment process throughout the Government; and
- (C) require agencies to conduct privacy impact assessments of existing information systems or ongoing collections of personally identifiable information as the Director determines appropriate.

(c) PRIVACY PROTECTIONS ON AGENCY WEBSITES.—

(1) PRIVACY POLICIES ON WEBSITES.—

(A) GUIDELINES FOR NOTICES.—The Director shall develop guidance for privacy notices on agency websites used by the public.

(B) CONTENTS.—The guidance shall require that a privacy notice address, consistent with section 552a of title 5, United States Code—

- (i) what information is to be collected;

(ii) why the information is being collected;

(iii) the intended use of the agency of the information;

(iv) with whom the information will be shared;

(v) what notice or opportunities for consent would be provided to individuals regarding what information is collected and how that information is shared;

(vi) how the information will be secured; and

(vii) the rights of the individual under section 552a of title 5, United States Code (commonly referred to as the Privacy Act), and other laws relevant to the protection of the privacy of an individual.

(2) PRIVACY POLICIES IN MACHINE-READABLE FORMATS.—The Director shall issue guidance requiring agencies to translate privacy policies into a standardized machine-readable format.

SEC. 209. FEDERAL INFORMATION TECHNOLOGY WORKFORCE DEVELOPMENT.

(a) PURPOSE.—The purpose of this section is to improve the skills of the Federal workforce in using information technology to deliver Government information and services.

(b) IN GENERAL.—In consultation with the Director, the Chief Information Officers Council, and the Administrator of General Services, the Director of the Office of Personnel Management shall—

(1) analyze, on an ongoing basis, the personnel needs of the Federal Government related to information technology and information resource management;

(2) oversee the development of curricula, training methods, and training priorities that correspond to the projected personnel needs of the Federal Government related to information technology and information resource management; and

(3) assess the training of Federal employees in information technology disciplines, as necessary, in order to ensure that the information resource management needs of the Federal Government are addressed.

(c) EMPLOYEE PARTICIPATION.—Subject to information resource management needs and the limitations imposed by resource needs in other occupational areas, and consistent with their overall workforce development strategies, agencies shall encourage employees to participate in occupational information technology training.

(d) AUTHORIZATION OF APPROPRIATIONS.—There are authorized to be appropriated to the Office of Personnel Management for the implementation of this section, $7,000,000 in fiscal year 2003, and such sums as are necessary for each fiscal year thereafter.

SEC. 210. COMMON PROTOCOLS FOR GEOGRAPHIC INFORMATION SYSTEMS.

(a) PURPOSES.—The purposes of this section are to—

(1) reduce redundant data collection and information; and

(2) promote collaboration and use of standards for government geographic information.

(b) DEFINITION.—In this section, the term “geographic information” means information systems that involve locational data, such as maps or other geospatial information resources.

(c) IN GENERAL.—

(1) COMMON PROTOCOLS.—The Secretary of the Interior, working with the Director and through an interagency group, and working with private sector experts, State, local, and tribal governments, commercial and international standards groups, and other interested parties, shall facilitate the development of common protocols for the development, acquisition, maintenance, distribution, and application of geographic information. If practicable, the Secretary of the Interior shall incorporate intergovernmental and public private geographic information partnerships into efforts under this subsection.

(2) INTERAGENCY GROUP.—The interagency group referred to under paragraph (1) shall include representatives of the National Institute of Standards and Technology and other agencies.

(d) DIRECTOR.—The Director shall oversee—

(1) the interagency initiative to develop common protocols;

(2) the coordination with State, local, and tribal governments, public private partnerships, and other interested persons on effective and efficient ways to align geographic information and develop common protocols; and

(3) the adoption of common standards relating to the protocols.

(e) COMMON PROTOCOLS.—The common protocols shall be designed to—

(1) maximize the degree to which unclassified geographic information from various sources can be made electronically compatible and accessible; and

(2) promote the development of interoperable geographic information systems technologies that shall—

(A) allow widespread, low-cost use and sharing of geographic data by Federal agencies, State, local, and tribal governments, and the public; and

(B) enable the enhancement of services using geographic data.

(f) AUTHORIZATION OF APPROPRIATIONS.—There are authorized to be appropriated to the Department of the Interior such sums as are necessary to carry out this section, for each of the fiscal years 2003 through 2007.

SEC. 211. SHARE-IN-SAVINGS PROGRAM IMPROVEMENTS.

Section 5311 of the Clinger-Cohen Act of 1996 (divisions D and E of Public Law 104-106; 110 Stat. 692; 40 U.S.C. 1491) is amended—

(1) in subsection (a)—

(A) by striking “the heads of two executive agencies to carry out” and inserting “heads of executive agencies to carry out a total of 5 projects under”;

(B) by striking “and” at the end of paragraph (1);

(C) by striking the period at the end of paragraph (2) and inserting “; and”;

(D) by adding at the end the following:

“(3) encouraging the use of the contracting and sharing approach described in paragraphs (1) and (2) by allowing the head of the executive agency conducting a project under the pilot program—

“(A) to retain, until expended, out of the appropriation accounts of the executive agency in which savings computed under paragraph (2) are realized as a result of the project, up to the amount equal to half of the excess of—

“(i) the total amount of the savings; over

“(ii) the total amount of the portion of the savings paid to the private sector source for such project under paragraph (2); and

“(B) to use the retained amount to acquire additional information technology.”;

(2) in subsection (b)—

(A) by inserting “a project under” after “authorized to carry out”;

(B) by striking “carry out one project and”;

(3) in subsection (c), by inserting before the period “and the Administrator for the Office of Electronic Government”;

(4) by inserting after subsection (c) the following:

“(d) REPORT.—

“(1) IN GENERAL.—After 5 pilot projects have been completed, but no later than 3 years after the effective date of this subsection, the Director shall submit a report on the results of the projects to the Committee on Governmental Affairs of the Senate and the Committee on Government Reform of the House of Representatives.

“(2) CONTENTS.—The report under paragraph (1) shall include—

“(A) a description of the reduced costs and other measurable benefits of the pilot projects;

“(B) a description of the ability of agencies to determine the baseline costs of a project against which savings would be measured; and

“(C) recommendations of the Director relating to whether Congress should provide general authority to the heads of executive agencies to use a share-in-savings contracting approach to the acquisition of information technology solutions for improving mission-related or administrative processes of the Federal Government.”.

SEC. 212. INTEGRATED REPORTING STUDY AND PILOT PROJECTS.

(a) PURPOSES.—The purposes of this section are to—

(1) enhance the interoperability of Federal information systems;

(2) assist the public, including the regulated community, in electronically submitting information to agencies under Federal requirements, by reducing the burden of duplicate collection and ensuring the accuracy of submitted information; and

(3) enable any person to integrate and obtain similar information held by 1 or more agencies under 1 or more Federal requirements without violating the privacy rights of an individual.

(b) DEFINITIONS.—In this section, the term—

(1) “agency” means an Executive agency as defined under section 105 of title 5, United States Code; and

(2) “person” means any individual, trust, firm, joint stock company, corporation (including a government corporation), partnership, association, State, municipality, commission, political subdivision of a State, interstate body, or agency or component of the Federal Government.

(c) REPORT.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—Not later than 3 years after the date of enactment of this Act, the Director shall oversee a study, in consultation with agencies, the regulated community, public interest organizations, and the public, and submit a report to the Committee on Governmental Affairs of the Senate and the Committee on Government Reform of the House of Representatives on progress toward integrating Federal information systems across agencies.

(2) CONTENTS.—The report under this section shall—

(A) address the integration of data elements used in the electronic collection of information within databases established under Federal statute without reducing the quality, accessibility, scope, or utility of the information contained in each database;

(B) address the feasibility of developing, or enabling the development of, software, including Internet-based tools, for use by reporting persons in assembling, documenting, and validating the accuracy of information electronically submitted to agencies under nonvoluntary, statutory, and regulatory requirements;

(C) address the feasibility of developing a distributed information system involving, on a voluntary basis, at least 2 agencies, that—

(i) provides consistent, dependable, and timely public access to the information holdings of 1 or more agencies, or some portion of such holdings, including the underlying raw data, without requiring public users to know which agency holds the information; and

(ii) allows the integration of public information held by the participating agencies;

(D) address the feasibility of incorporating other elements related to the purposes of this section at the discretion of the Director; and

(E) make recommendations that Congress or the executive branch can implement, through the use of integrated reporting and information systems, to reduce the burden on reporting and strengthen public access to databases within and across agencies.

(d) PILOT PROJECTS TO ENCOURAGE INTEGRATED COLLECTION AND MANAGEMENT OF DATA AND INTEROPERABILITY OF FEDERAL INFORMATION SYSTEMS.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—In order to provide input to the study under subsection (c), the Director shall designate, in consultation with agencies, a series of no more than 5 pilot projects that integrate data elements. The Director shall consult with agencies, the regulated community, public interest organizations, and the public on the implementation of the pilot projects.

(2) GOALS OF PILOT PROJECTS.—

(A) IN GENERAL.—Each goal described under subparagraph (B) shall be addressed by at least 1 pilot project each.

(B) GOALS.—The goals under this paragraph are to—

(i) reduce information collection burdens by eliminating duplicative data elements within 2 or more reporting requirements;

(ii) create interoperability between or among public databases managed by 2 or more agencies using technologies and techniques that facilitate public access; and

(iii) develop, or enable the development of, software to reduce errors in electronically submitted information.

(3) INPUT.—Each pilot project shall seek input from users on the utility of the pilot project and areas for improvement. To the extent practicable, the Director shall consult with relevant agencies and State, tribal, and local governments in carrying out the report and pilot projects under this section.

(e) PRIVACY PROTECTIONS.—The activities authorized under this section shall afford protections for—

(1) confidential business information consistent with section 552(b)(4) of title 5, United States Code, and other relevant law;

(2) personal privacy information under sections 552(b)(6) and (7)(C) and 552a of title 5, United States Code, and other relevant law; and

(3) other information consistent with section 552(b)(3) of title 5, United States Code, and other relevant law.

SEC. 213. COMMUNITY TECHNOLOGY CENTERS.

(a) PURPOSES.—The purposes of this section are to—

(1) study and enhance the effectiveness of community technology centers, public libraries, and other institutions that provide computer and Internet access to the public; and

(2) promote awareness of the availability of on-line government information and services, to users of community technology centers, public libraries, and other public facilities that provide access to computer technology and Internet access to the public.

(b) STUDY AND REPORT.—Not later than 2 years after the effective date of this title, the Secretary of Education, in consultation with the Secretary of Housing and Urban Development, the Secretary of Commerce, the Director of the National Science Foundation, and the Director of the Institute of Museum and Library Services, shall—

(1) conduct a study to evaluate the best practices of community technology centers that have received Federal funds; and

(2) submit a report on the study to—

(A) the Committee on Governmental Affairs of the Senate;

(B) the Committee on Health, Education, Labor, and Pensions of the Senate;

(C) the Committee on Government Reform of the House of Representatives; and

(D) the Committee on Education and the Workforce of the House of Representatives.

(c) CONTENTS.—The report under subsection (b) may consider—

(1) an evaluation of the best practices being used by successful community technology centers;

(2) a strategy for—

(A) continuing the evaluation of best practices used by community technology centers; and

(B) establishing a network to share information and resources as community technology centers evolve;

(3) the identification of methods to expand the use of best practices to assist community technology centers, public libraries, and other institutions that provide computer and Internet access to the public;

(4) a database of all community technology centers that have received Federal funds, including—

(A) each center's name, location, services provided, director, other points of contact, number of individuals served; and

(B) other relevant information;

(5) an analysis of whether community technology centers have been deployed effectively in urban and rural areas throughout the Nation; and

(6) recommendations of how to—

(A) enhance the development of community technology centers; and

(B) establish a network to share information and resources.

(d) COOPERATION.—All agencies that fund community technology centers shall provide to the Department of Education any information and assistance necessary for the completion of the study and the report under this section.

(e) ASSISTANCE.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—The Secretary of the Department of Education shall work with other relevant Federal agencies, and other interested persons in the private and nonprofit sectors to—

(A) assist in the implementation of recommendations; and

(B) identify other ways to assist community technology centers, public libraries, and other institutions that provide computer and Internet access to the public.

(2) TYPES OF ASSISTANCE.—Assistance under this subsection may include—

(A) contribution of funds;

(B) donations of equipment, and training in the use and maintenance of the equipment; and

(C) the provision of basic instruction or training material in computer skills and Internet usage.

(f) ONLINE TUTORIAL.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—The Secretary of Education, in consultation with the Director of the Institute of Museum and Library Services, the Director of the National Science Foundation, other relevant agencies, and the public, shall develop an online tutorial that—

(A) explains how to access Government information and services on the Internet; and

(B) provides a guide to available online resources.

(2) DISTRIBUTION.—The Secretary of Education shall distribute information on the tutorial to community technology centers, public libraries, and other institutions that afford Internet access to the public.

(g) PROMOTION OF COMMUNITY TECHNOLOGY CENTERS.—In consultation with other agencies and organizations, the Department of Education shall promote the availability of community technology centers to raise awareness within each community where such a center is located.

(h) AUTHORIZATION OF APPROPRIATIONS.—There are authorized to be appropriated to the Department of Education for the study of best practices at community technology centers, for the development and dissemination of the online tutorial, and for the promotion of community technology centers under this section—

(1) $2,000,000 in fiscal year 2003;

(2) $2,000,000 in fiscal year 2004; and

(3) such sums as are necessary in fiscal years 2005 through 2007.

SEC. 214. ENHANCING CRISIS MANAGEMENT THROUGH ADVANCED INFORMATION TECHNOLOGY.

(a) PURPOSE.—The purpose of this section is to improve how information technology is used in coordinating and facilitating information on disaster preparedness, response, and recovery, while ensuring the availability of such information across multiple access channels.

(b) IN GENERAL.—

(1) STUDY ON ENHANCEMENT OF CRISIS RESPONSE.—Not later than 90 days after the date of enactment of this Act, the Federal Emergency Management Agency shall enter into a contract to conduct a study on using information technology to enhance crisis preparedness, response, and consequence management of natural and manmade disasters.

(2) CONTENTS.—The study under this subsection shall address—

(A) a research and implementation strategy for effective use of information technology in crisis response and consequence management, including the more effective use of technologies, management of information technology research initiatives, and incorporation of research advances into the information and communications systems to—

(i) the Federal Emergency Management Agency; and

(ii) other Federal, State, and local agencies responsible for crisis preparedness, response, and consequence management; and

(B) opportunities for research and development on enhanced technologies into areas of potential improvement as determined during the course of the study.

(3) REPORT.—Not later than 2 years after the date on which a contract is entered into under paragraph (1), the Federal Emergency Management Agency shall submit a report on the study, including findings and recommendations to—

(A) the Committee on Governmental Affairs of the Senate; and

(B) the Committee on Government Reform of the House of Representatives.

(4) INTERAGENCY COOPERATION.—Other Federal departments and agencies with responsibility for disaster relief and emergency assistance shall fully cooperate with the Federal Emergency Management Agency in carrying out this section.

(5) AUTHORIZATION OF APPROPRIATIONS.—There are authorized to be appropriated to the Federal Emergency Management Agency for research under this subsection, such sums as are necessary for fiscal year 2003.

(c) PILOT PROJECTS.—Based on the results of the research conducted under subsection (b), the Federal Emergency Management Agency shall initiate pilot projects or report to Congress on other activities that further the goal of maximizing the utility of information technology in disaster management. The Federal Emergency Management Agency shall cooperate with other relevant agencies, and, if appropriate, State, local, and tribal governments, in initiating such pilot projects.

SEC. 215. DISPARITIES IN ACCESS TO THE INTERNET.

(a) STUDY AND REPORT.—

(1) STUDY.—Not later than 90 days after the date of enactment of this Act, the Director of the National Science Foundation shall request that the National Academy of Sciences, acting through the National Research Council, enter into a contract to conduct a study on disparities in Internet access for online Government services.

(2) REPORT.—Not later than 2 years after the date of enactment of this Act, the Director of the National Science Foundation shall submit to the Committee on Governmental Affairs of the Senate and the Committee on Government Reform of the House of Representatives a final report of the study under this section, which shall set forth the findings, conclusions, and recommendations of the National Research Council.

(b) CONTENTS.—The report under subsection (a) shall include a study of—

(1) how disparities in Internet access influence the effectiveness of online Government services, including a review of—

(A) the nature of disparities in Internet access;

(B) the affordability of Internet service;

(C) the incidence of disparities among different groups within the population; and

(D) changes in the nature of personal and public Internet access that may alleviate or aggravate effective access to online Government services;

(2) how the increase in online Government services is influencing the disparities in Internet access and how technology development or diffusion trends may offset such adverse influences; and

(3) related societal effects arising from the interplay of disparities in Internet access and the increase in online Government services.

(c) RECOMMENDATIONS.—The report shall include recommendations on actions to ensure that online Government initiatives shall not have the unintended result of increasing any deficiency in public access to Government services.

(d) AUTHORIZATION OF APPROPRIATIONS.—There are authorized to be appropriated to the National Science Foundation $950,000 in fiscal year 2003 to carry out this section.

SEC. 216. NOTIFICATION OF OBSOLETE OR COUNTERPRODUCTIVE PROVISIONS.

If the Director of the Office of Management and Budget makes a determination that any provision of this Act (including any amendment made by this Act) is obsolete or counterproductive to the purposes of this

Act, as a result of changes in technology or any other reason, the Director shall submit notification of that determination to—

(1) the Committee on Governmental Affairs of the Senate; and

(2) the Committee on Government Reform of the House of Representatives.

TITLE III—GOVERNMENT INFORMATION SECURITY

SEC. 301. INFORMATION SECURITY.

(a) ADDITION OF SHORT TITLE.—Subtitle G of title X of the Floyd D. Spence National Defense Authorization Act for Fiscal Year 2001 (as enacted into law by Public Law 106-398; 114 Stat. 1654A-266) is amended by inserting after the heading for the subtitle the following new section:

“SEC. 1060. SHORT TITLE.

“This subtitle may be cited as the ‘Government Information Security Reform Act.’”

(b) CONTINUATION OF AUTHORITY.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—Section 3536 of title 44, United States Code, is repealed.

(2) TECHNICAL AND CONFORMING AMENDMENT.—The table of sections for chapter 35 of title 44, United States Code, is amended by striking the item relating to section 3536.

TITLE IV—AUTHORIZATION OF APPROPRIATIONS AND EFFECTIVE DATES

SEC. 401. AUTHORIZATION OF APPROPRIATIONS.

Except for those purposes for which an authorization of appropriations is specifically provided in title I or II, including the amendments made by such titles, there are authorized to be appropriated such sums as are necessary to carry out titles I and II for each of fiscal years 2003 through 2007.

SEC. 402. EFFECTIVE DATES.

(a) TITLES I AND II.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—Except as provided under paragraph (2), titles I and II and the amendments made by such titles shall take effect 120 days after the date of enactment of this Act.

(2) IMMEDIATE ENACTMENT.—Sections 207, 214, 215, and 216 shall take effect on the date of enactment of this Act.

(b) TITLES III AND IV.—Title III and this title shall take effect on the date of enactment of this Act.

NOTICES OF HEARINGS/MEETINGS

JOINT COMMITTEE ON PRINTING

Mr. DAYTON. Mr. President, I wish to announce that the Joint Committee on Printing will meet in SR-301, Russell Senate Office Building, on Wednesday, July 10, 2002, at 11:00 a.m. The Committee will meet to hold a hearing to receive testimony from The Honorable Mitchell E. Daniels, Jr., Director, Office of Management and Budget; The Honorable Michael F. DiMario, Public Printer, United States Government Printing Office; Ms. Julia F. Wallace, Regional Depository Librarian, representing the American Library Association, the American Association of Law Libraries, the Association of Research Libraries, and the Medical Library Association; Mr. Benjamin Y. Cooper, Executive Vice President for Public Affairs, Printing Industries of America; and Mr. William J. Boarman, President, Printing, Publishing and Media Workers Sector, Communications Workers of America, on Federal Government printing and public access to government documents.

Individuals and organizations interested in submitting a statement for the hearing record are requested to call Mr. Matthew McGowan, Staff Director of the Joint Committee on Printing, on 224-3244. For further information regarding the hearing, please contact Mr. McGowan.

AUTHORITY FOR COMMITTEES TO MEET

COMMITTEE ON BANKING, HOUSING, AND URBAN AFFAIRS

Mr. REID. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the Committee on Banking, Housing, and Urban Affairs be authorized to meet during the session of the Senate on Thursday, June 27, 2002, at 10 a.m. to conduct an oversight hearing on “The Preliminary Findings of the Commission on Affordable Housing and Health Facility Needs for Seniors in the 21st Century.”

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

COMMITTEE ON ENVIRONMENT AND PUBLIC WORKS

Mr. REID. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the Committee on Environment and Public Works be authorized to meet on Thursday, June 27, 2002, at 9:30 a.m. to conduct a business meeting to consider the following: S. 351, the Mercury Reduction and Disposal Act of 2001; S. 556, the Clean Power Act of 2002; S. 2664, the First Responder Terrorism Preparedness Act of 2002; H.R. 3322, the Bear River Migratory Bird Refuge Visitor Center Act; H.R. 3958, the Bear River Migratory Bird Refuge Settlement Act of 2002; and Subpoena for new source review documentation to the Environmental Protection Agency.

The business meeting will be held in SD-406.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

COMMITTEE ON FINANCE

Mr. REID. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the Committee on Finance be authorized to meet during the session of the Senate on Thursday, June 27, 2002 at 10 a.m. to consider the Nomination of Charlotte A. Lane, of West Virginia, to be a member of the United States International Trade Commission.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

COMMITTEE ON FOREIGN RELATIONS

Mr. REID. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the Committee on Foreign Relations be authorized to meet during the session of the Senate on Thursday, June 27, 2002 at 2:30 p.m. to hold a hearing relating to Human Rights in Central Asia.

Agenda

Witnesses

Panel 1: The Honorable Lorne Craner, Assistant Secretary for Democracy,

Human Rights, and Labor, Department of State, Washington, DC; the Honorable J.D. Crouch, Assistant Secretary for International Security Policy, Department of Defense, Washington, DC; and Mr. Lynn Pascoe, Deputy Assistant Secretary for Central Asia, Department of State, Washington, DC.

Panel 2: Ms. Martha Brill Olcott, Senior Associate, Carnegie Endowment for International Peace, Washington, DC; and the Honorable William Courtney, Former U.S. Ambassador to Kazakhstan and Georgia, Former Senior Advisor to the National Security Council, Senior Vice President, National Security Programs, DynCorp, Washington, DC.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

COMMITTEE ON GOVERNMENTAL AFFAIRS

Mr. REID. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the Committee on Government Affairs be authorized to meet on Thursday, June 27, 2002 at 1 p.m. for the purpose of holding a hearing to "Review the Relationship Between a Department of Homeland Security and the Intelligence Community."

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is ordered.

COMMITTEE ON HEALTH, EDUCATION, LABOR, AND PENSIONS

Mr. REID. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the Committee on Health, Education, Labor, and Pensions be authorized to meet for a hearing on "Title IX: Building on 30 Years of Progress" during the session of the Senate on Thursday, June 27, 2002, at 2:30 p.m. in SD-430.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

COMMITTEE ON THE JUDICIARY

Mr. REID. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the Committee on the Judiciary be authorized to meet to conduct a markup on Thursday, June 27, 2002, at 10 a.m., in SD-226.

Agenda

Nominations

Lavenski R. Smith to be a U.S. Circuit Court Judge for the Eighth Circuit, and John M. Rogers to be a U.S. Circuit Court Judge for the Sixth Circuit.

Bills

S. 2134, Terrorism Victim's Access to Compensation Act of 2002 [Harkin/Allen];

H.R. 3375, Embassy Employee Compensation Act [Blunt];

S. 486, Innocent Protection Act [Leahy/Smith];

S. 2633, Reducing Americans' Vulnerability to Ecstasy Act [Biden/Grassley];

S. 862, State Criminal Alien Assistance Program Reauthorization Act of 2001 [Feinstein/Kyl/Durbin/Cantwell];

S. 1339, Persian Gulf POW/MIA Accountability Act of 2001 [Campbell/

Kohl/Thurmond/Feinstein/Sessions/Schumer/McConnell/Durbin/Cantwell/Leahy];

S. 2395, Anticounterfeiting Amendments of 2002 [Biden]; and

S. 2513, DNA Sexual Assault Justice Act of 2002 [Biden/Cantwell/Clinton/Carper].

Resolutions

S. Res. 281, A resolution designating the week beginning August 25, 2002, as "National Fraud Against Senior Citizens Awareness Week". [Levin/Snowe];

S. Res. 284, A resolution expressing support for "National Night Out" and requesting that the President make neighborhood crime prevention, community policing, and reduction of school crime important priorities of the Administration. [Biden].

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

COMMITTEE ON THE JUDICIARY

Mr. REID. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the Committee on the Judiciary be authorized to meet to conduct a hearing on "Judicial Nominations" on Thursday, June 27, 2002 at 2 p.m. in Dirksen Room 226.

Agenda

Dennis Shedd, 4th Circuit; Terrence McVerry, Western District of Pennsylvania; and Arthur Schuab, Western District of Pennsylvania.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

SUBCOMMITTEE ON SURFACE TRANSPORTATION AND MERCHANT MARINE AND THE APPROPRIATIONS SUBCOMMITTEE ON TRANSPORTATION

Mr. REID. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the Subcommittee on the Surface Transportation and Merchant Marine and the Appropriations Subcommittee on Transportation be authorized to meet on Thursday, June 27, 2002, at 9:30 a.m. on Cross Border Trucking Issues.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

PRIVILEGE OF THE FLOOR

Ms. LANDRIEU. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that privilege of the floor be granted to Cathy Haverstock, a legislative fellow in my office, for the remainder of the debate on this bill.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

EXECUTIVE SESSION

EXECUTIVE CALENDAR

Mr. REID. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the Senate proceed to executive session to consider the following nominations reported earlier today by the Armed Services Committee: Calendar Nos. 894 through 902 and all the nominations placed on the Secretary's desk.

I ask further that the nominations be confirmed, the motions to reconsider be laid on the table, any statements thereon be printed at the appropriate place in the RECORD as though read; that the President be immediately notified of the Senate's action; and that the Senate return to legislative session, with the preceding all occurring without any intervening action or debate.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection?

Without objection, it is so ordered.

The nominations were considered and confirmed, as follows:

AIR FORCE

The following named officer for appointment in the United States Air Force to the grade indicated while assigned to a position of importance and responsibility under title 10, U.S.C., section 601:

To be general

Gen. Ralph E. Eberhart, 7375

The following named officers for appointment in the United States Air Force to the grade indicated under title 10, U.S.C., section 624:

To be major general

Brigadier General Robert Damon Bishop, Jr., 9524
Brigadier General Robert W. Chedister, 3487
Brigadier General Trudy H. Clark, 2591
Brigadier General Richard L. Comer, 4255
Brigadier General Craig R. Cooning, 4416
Brigadier General Scott S. Custer, 2467
Brigadier General Felix Dupre, 5938
Brigadier General Edward R. Ellis, 9696
Brigadier General Leonard D. Fox, 1435
Brigadier General Terry L. Gabreski, 2941
Brigadier General Michael C. Gould, 3374
Brigadier General Jonathan S. Gration, 9630
Brigadier General William W. Hodges, 4545
Brigadier General Donald J. Hoffman, 5449
Brigadier General John L. Hudson, 5860
Brigadier General Claude R. Kehler, 6600
Brigadier General Christopher A. Kelly, 6369
Brigadier General Paul J. Lebras, 9625
Brigadier General John W. Rosa, Jr., 3351
Brigadier General Ronald F. Sams, 5888
Brigadier General Kevin J. Sullivan, 2930
Brigadier General Mark A. Welsh, III, 4911
Brigadier General Stephen G. Wood, 7553

ARMY

The following named officer for appointment in the United States Army to the grade indicated under title 10, U.S.C., section 624:

To be major general

Brig. Gen. John M. Urias, 6022

The following named officers for appointment in the Reserve of the Army to the grades indicated under title 10, U.S.C., section 12203:

To be major general

Brig. Gen. George W. S. Read, 1278

To be brigadier general

Col. Larry Knightner, 5133

The following named officers for appointment in the Reserve of the Army to the grades indicated under title 10, U.S.C., section 12203:

To be major general

Brig. Gen. Edwin E. Spain, III, 8277

To be brigadier general

Col. Dennis E. Lutz, 9078

The following named officer for appointment as Assistant Surgeon General/Chief of the Dental Corps, United States Army and for appointment to the grade indicated under title 10, U.S.C., section 3039:

To be major general

Brig. Gen. Joseph G. Webb, Jr., 9082

The following named officers for appointment in the Reserve of the Army to the grades indicated under title 10, U.S.C., section 12203:

To be major general

Brig. Gen. Wayne M. Erck, 5508

Brig. Gen. Charles E. McCartney, Jr., 5546

Brig. Gen. Bruce E. Robinson, 2520

To be brigadier general

Col. David L. Evans, 3875

Col. William C. Kirkland, 4541

Col. James B. Mallory, III, 5088

Co. John P. McLaren, Jr., 4730

NAVY

The following named officer for appointment in the United States Navy to the grade indicated while assigned to a position of importance and responsibility under title 10, U.S.C., section 601:

To be vice admiral

Rear Adm. Phillip M. Balisle, 3385

The following named officer for appointment in the United States Navy to the grade indicated while assigned to a position of importance and responsibility under title 10, U.S.C., section 601:

To be vice admiral

Rear Adm. Robert F. Willard, 1564

NOMINATIONS PLACED ON THE SECRETARY'S DESK

AIR FORCE

PN1860 Air Force nomination of Sharon G. Harris, which was received by the Senate and appeared in the Congressional Record of June 7, 2002.

PN1861 Air Force nominations (3) beginning *Nicola A. Choate, and ending *Nicholas G. Viyouh, which nominations were received by the Senate and appeared in the Congressional Record of June 7, 2002.

PN1862 Air Force nominations (2) beginning Kathleen N. Echiverri, and ending Jeffrey E. Haymond, which nominations were received by the Senate and appeared in the Congressional Record of June 7, 2002.

ARMY

PN1809 Army nominations (14) beginning *Timothy C. Beaulieu, and ending William E. Wheeler, which nominations were received by the Senate and appeared in the Congressional Record of June 4, 2002.

PN1810 Army nominations (14) beginning Duane A. Belote, and ending *Neal E. Woolen, which nominations were received by the Senate and appeared in the Congressional Record of June 4, 2002.

PN1811 Army nominations (35) beginning John C. Aupke, and ending Steven R. Young, which nominations were received by the Senate and appeared in the Congressional Record of June 4, 2002.

PN1812 Army nominations (78) beginning Ann M. Altman, and ending *Angelia L. Wherry, which nominations were received by the Senate and appeared in the Congressional Record of June 4, 2002.

PN1813 Army nominations (123) beginning Ryo S. Chun, and ending John K. Zaugg, which nominations were received by the Senate and appeared in the Congressional Record of June 4, 2002.

PN1830 Army nomination of Michael J. Meese, which was received by the Senate and appeared in the Congressional Record of June 5, 2002.

PN1831 Army nominations (4) beginning Steven A. Beyer, and ending James F. Roth, which nominations were received by the Senate and appeared in the Congressional Record of June 5, 2002.

PN1832 Army nomination of Jay A. Jupiter, which were received by the Senate and appeared in the Congressional Record of June 5, 2002.

PN1833 Army nomination of Andrew D. Magnet, which were received by the Senate and appeared in the Congressional Record of June 5, 2002.

PN1834 Army nominations (9) beginning Bernard Coleman, and ending Michael A. Stone, which nominations were received by the Senate and appeared in the Congressional Record of June 5, 2002.

PN1865 Army nomination of Robert A. Mason, which was received by the Senate and appeared in the Congressional Record of June 7, 2002.

PN1866 Army nominations (3) beginning Richard E. Humston, and ending Dwight D. Riggs, which nominations were received by the Senate and appeared in the Congressional Record of June 7, 2002.

PN1889 Army nomination of Nanette S. Patton, which was received by the Senate and appeared in the Congressional Record of June 7, 2002.

MARINE CORPS

PN1814 Marine Corps nominations (1278) beginning Derek M. Abbey, and ending Mark D. Zimmer, which nominations were received by the Senate and appeared in the Congressional Record of June 4, 2002.

NOMINATION OF GEN. R.E. EBERHART

Mr. ALLARD. Mr. President, I would like to take this opportunity to congratulate General Ralph E. Eberhart, United States Air Force, on his appointment to serve as the first Commander-in-Chief of Northern Command as well as the commander of NORAD. General Eberhart's qualifications for this very important position are impeccable, and I have absolutely no doubt that he will bring the same success to Northern Command as he did to US Space Command.

Before General Eberhart departs US Space Command, I want to express my most sincere appreciation to him for his steadfast advocacy of military space capabilities over the past two years. His visionary leadership and dedication as the Commander-in-Chief of US Space Command and, until recently, Air Force Space Command, has truly brought military space into a new era. When he took command of US Space Command in February 2000, our country had just completed Operation Allied Force in Kosovo. At that time we recognized the value that space-based capabilities bring to the flight. GPS-guided weapons were the preferred munition and satellite communications provided double the bandwidth available in Desert Storm. Since Operation Allied Force, General Eberhart was able to increase the effectiveness of these very same capabilities by pressing for the integration of space capabilities with air, maritime and land assets. US Space Command's contributions are the hallmarks of Operation Enduring Freedom.

When military historians look back at Operation Enduring Freedom, they will note the extreme effectiveness bombs delivered with pinpoint accuracy within minutes of being requested by soldiers on the ground. They will note persistent surveillance and near-real time threat information beamed to cockpits. These capabilities would not be possible if it weren't for US Space Command. Space-based capabilities are an enabler of not just the Air Force's transformation, but also the Navy and Army.

General Eberhart's leadership of NORAD during Operation Noble Eagle is equally impressive. After September 11, NORAD went from having 14 aircraft on alert to more than 100. General Eberhart faced the challenges of supporting continuous combat air patrols, including all the supporting logistics such as tankers and integrating NATO AWACS. The change in focus of NORAD since Sept 11 is not, unfortunately, temporary and points our nation's need for a Unified Command to address threats to the United States as well as operations in North America.

North Command is crucial to our national security. I am very proud to host this command in Colorado and sincerely look forward to continue working with General Eberhart.

LEGISLATIVE SESSION

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senate will now return to legislative session.

MEASURE PLACED ON THE CALENDAR—H.R. 3937

Mr. REID. Mr. President, I understand that H.R. 3937 has been read for the first time and is now awaiting its second reading.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator is correct.

Mr. REID. I ask then, Mr. President, that H.R. 3937 be read for a second time, but I object to any further proceedings.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will read the bill for the second time.

The legislative clerk read as follows:

A bill (H.R. 3937) to revoke a Public Land Order with respect to certain lands erroneously included in the Cibola National Wildlife Refuge, California.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Objection having been heard, the bill will be placed on the calendar.

E-GOVERNMENT ACT OF 2002

Mr. REID. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the Senate proceed to Calendar No. 439, S. 803.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will report the title.

The legislative clerk read as follows:

A bill (S. 803) to enhance the management and promotion of the electronic Government services and processes by establishing a Federal Chief Information Officer within the Office of Management and Budget, and by establishing a broad framework of measures that require using Internet-based information technology to enhance citizen access to Government information and services, and for other purposes.

There being no objection, the Senate proceeded to consider the bill, which had been reported from the Committee on Governmental Affairs with an amendment to strike all after the enacting clause and inserting in lieu thereof the following:

[Omit the parts in black brackets and insert the parts printed in italic.]

S. 803

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

[SECTION 1. SHORT TITLE; TABLE OF CONTENTS.]

[(a) SHORT TITLE.—This Act may be cited as the “E-Government Act of 2001”.]

[(b) TABLE OF CONTENTS.—The table of contents for this Act is as follows:

[Sec. 1. Short title; table of contents.]

[Sec. 2. Findings and purposes.]

[TITLE I—OFFICE OF MANAGEMENT AND BUDGET ELECTRONIC GOVERNMENT SERVICES]

[Sec. 101. Federal Chief Information Officer.]

[Sec. 102. Office of Information Policy and Office of Information and Regulatory Affairs.]

[Sec. 103. Management and promotion of electronic Government services.]

[TITLE II—FEDERAL MANAGEMENT AND PROMOTION OF ELECTRONIC GOVERNMENT SERVICES]

[Sec. 201. Federal agency responsibilities.]

[Sec. 202. Compatibility of executive agency methods for use and acceptance of electronic signatures.]

[Sec. 203. Online Federal telephone directory.]

[Sec. 204. Online National Library.]

[Sec. 205. Federal courts.]

[Sec. 206. Regulatory agencies.]

[Sec. 207. Integrated reporting feasibility study and pilot projects.]

[Sec. 208. Online access to federally funded research and development.]

[Sec. 209. Common protocols for geographic information systems.]

[Sec. 210. Share-In-Savings Program improvements.]

[Sec. 211. Enhancing crisis management through advanced information technology.]

[Sec. 212. Federal Information Technology Training Center.]

[Sec. 213. Community technology centers.]

[Sec. 214. Disparities in access to the Internet.]

[Sec. 215. Accessibility, usability, and preservation of Government information.]

[Sec. 216. Public domain directory of Federal Government websites.]

[Sec. 217. Standards for agency websites.]

[Sec. 218. Privacy protections.]

[Sec. 219. Accessibility to people with disabilities.]

[Sec. 220. Notification of obsolete or counterproductive provisions.]

[TITLE III—AUTHORIZATION OF APPROPRIATIONS AND EFFECTIVE DATE]

[Sec. 301. Authorization of appropriations.]

[Sec. 302. Effective date.]

[SEC. 2. FINDINGS AND PURPOSES.]

[(a) FINDINGS.—Congress finds the following:

[(1) The use of computers and the Internet is rapidly transforming societal interactions and the relationships among citizens, private businesses, and the Government.]

[(2) The Federal Government has had uneven success in applying advances in information technology to enhance Governmental functions and services, achieve more efficient performance, and increase access to Government information and citizen participation in Government.]

[(3) Most Internet-based services of the Federal Government are developed and presented separately, according to the jurisdictional boundaries of an individual department or agency, rather than being integrated cooperatively according to function.]

[(4) Internet-based Government services involving interagency cooperation are especially difficult to develop and promote, in part because of a lack of funding mechanisms to support such interagency cooperation.]

[(5) To take full advantage of the improved Government performance that can be achieved through the use of Internet-based technology requires new leadership, better organization, improved interagency collaboration, and more focused oversight of agency compliance with statutes related to information resource management.]

[(b) PURPOSES.—The purposes of this Act are the following:

[(1) To provide effective leadership of Federal Government efforts to develop and promote electronic Government services and processes by establishing a Federal Chief Information Officer within the Office of Management and Budget.]

[(2) To establish measures that require using Internet-based information technology to enhance citizen access to Government information and services, improve Government efficiency and reduce Government operating costs, and increase opportunities for citizen participation in Government.]

[(3) To promote interagency collaboration in providing electronic Government services, where this collaboration would improve the service to citizens by integrating related function.]

[(4) To promote interagency collaboration in the use of internal electronic Government processes, where this collaboration would improve the efficiency and effectiveness of the processes.]

[TITLE I—OFFICE OF MANAGEMENT AND BUDGET ELECTRONIC GOVERNMENT SERVICES]

[SEC. 101. FEDERAL CHIEF INFORMATION OFFICER.]

[(a) ESTABLISHMENT.—Section 502 of title 31, United States Code, is amended—

[(1) by redesignating subsections (d), (e), and (f), as subsections (e), (f), and (g), respectively; and

[(2) by inserting after subsection (c) the following:

[(“d) The Office has a Federal Chief Information Officer appointed by the President, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate. The Federal Chief Information Officer shall provide direction, coordination, and oversight of the development, application, and management of information resources by the Federal Government.”.]

[(b) COMPENSATION.—Section 5313 of title 5, United States Code, is amended by adding at the end the following:

[(“Federal Chief Information Officer.”.)]

[(c) MODIFICATION OF DEPUTY DIRECTOR FOR MANAGEMENT FUNCTIONS.—Section 503(b)(2)(D) of title 31, United States Code, is amended by striking “and statistical policy” and inserting “collection review”.]

[(d) OFFICE OF INFORMATION POLICY.—

[(1) IN GENERAL.—Chapter 5 of title 31, United States Code, is amended by inserting after section 506 the following:

[(“§ 507. Office of Information Policy

[(“The Office of Information Policy, established under section 3503 of title 44, is an office in the Office of Management and Budget.”.)]

[(2) TECHNICAL AND CONFORMING AMENDMENT.—The table of sections for chapter 5 of title 31, United States Code, is amended by inserting after the item relating to section 506 the following:

[(“507. Office of Information Policy.”.)]

[(e) PRIVACY ACT FUNCTIONS.—

[Section 552a(v) of title 5, United States Code (commonly referred to as the Privacy Act) is amended to read as follows:

[(“v) OFFICE OF MANAGEMENT AND BUDGET RESPONSIBILITIES.—The Director of the Office of Management and Budget shall—

[(“1) develop and, after notice and opportunity for public comment, prescribe guidelines and regulations for the use of agencies in implementing the provisions of this section;

[(“2) provide continuing assistance to and oversight of the implementation of this section by agencies; and

[(“3) delegate all of the functions to be performed by the Director under this section to the Federal Chief Information Officer.”.)]

[(f) ACQUISITIONS OF INFORMATION TECHNOLOGY.—

[(1) RESPONSIBILITIES AND FUNCTIONS.—Section 5111 of the Clinger-Cohen Act of 1996 (40 U.S.C. 1411) is amended—

[(A) by inserting “(a) IN GENERAL.—” before “In fulfilling”; and

[(B) by adding at the end the following:

[(“b) DELEGATION.—The Director shall delegate all of the responsibilities and functions to be performed by the Director under this title to the Federal Chief Information Officer.”.)]

[(2) INFORMATION TECHNOLOGY ACQUISITION PILOT PROGRAMS.—Section 5301(a)(1) of the Clinger-Cohen Act of 1996 (40 U.S.C. 1471(a)(1)) is amended by striking “Administrator for the Office of Information and Regulatory Affairs” and inserting “Federal Chief Information Officer”.]

[(g) FEDERAL COMPUTER SYSTEMS STANDARDS AND GUIDELINES.—

[(1) PROMULGATION.—Section 5131 of the Clinger-Cohen Act of 1996 (40 U.S.C. 1441) is amended—

[(A) by striking “Secretary of Commerce” each place it appears and inserting “Federal Chief Information Officer” in each such place; and

[(B) by striking “Secretary” each place it appears and inserting “Federal Chief Information Officer” in each such place.]

[(2) SUBMISSION.—Section 20(a)(4) of the National Institute of Standards and Technology Act (15 U.S.C. 278g-3(a)(4)) is amended by striking “Secretary of Commerce” and inserting “Federal Chief Information Officer”.]

[(h) INFORMATION TECHNOLOGY FUND.—Section 110(a) of the Federal Property and Administrative Services Act of 1949 (40 U.S.C. 757(a)) is amended by adding at the end the following:

[(“3) The Administrator’s decisions with regard to obligations of and expenditures from the Fund shall be made after consultation with the Federal Chief Information Officer, with respect to those programs that—

["(A) promote the use of information technology to agencies; or

["(B) are intended to facilitate the efficient management, coordination, operation, or use of those information technologies.".

[(i) ELECTRONIC GOVERNMENT AND INFORMATION TECHNOLOGIES.—

[(1) IN GENERAL.—The Federal Property and Administrative Services Act of 1949 (40 U.S.C. 471 et seq.) is amended by inserting after section 112 the following:

["SEC. 113. ELECTRONIC GOVERNMENT AND INFORMATION TECHNOLOGIES.

["The Administrator of General Services shall consult with the Federal Chief Information Officer on programs undertaken by the General Services Administration to promote electronic Government and the efficient use of information technologies by Federal agencies.".

[(2) TECHNICAL AND CONFORMING AMENDMENT.—The table of sections for the Federal Property and Administrative Services Act of 1949 is amended by inserting after the item relating to section 112 the following:

["Sec. 113. Electronic Government and information technologies.".

[(j) GOVERNMENT PAPERWORK ELIMINATION.—The Government Paperwork Elimination Act (44 U.S.C. 3504 note) is amended—

[(1) by redesignating sections 1709 and 1710 as sections 1710 and 1711, respectively; and

[(2) by inserting after section 1708 the following:

["SEC. 1709. DELEGATION OF FUNCTIONS TO FEDERAL CHIEF INFORMATION OFFICER.

["The Director of the Office of Management and Budget shall delegate all of the functions to be performed by the Director under this title to the Federal Chief Information Officer.".

[(SEC. 102. OFFICE OF INFORMATION POLICY AND OFFICE OF INFORMATION AND REGULATORY AFFAIRS.

[(a) ESTABLISHMENT.—

[(1) IN GENERAL.—Section 3503 of title 44, United States Code, is amended to read as follows:

["§ 3503. Office of Information Policy and Office of Information and Regulatory Affairs

["(a)(1) There is established in the Office of Management and Budget an office to be known as the Office of Information Policy.

["(2) The Office shall be administered by the Federal Chief Information Officer established under section 502(d) of title 31. The Director shall delegate to the Federal Chief Information Officer the authority to administer all functions under this chapter, except those delegated to the Administrator of the Office of Information and Regulatory Affairs under subsection (b)(2). Any such delegation shall not relieve the Director of responsibility for the administration of such function.

["(b)(1) There is established in the Office of Management and Budget an office to be known as the Office of Information and Regulatory Affairs.

["(2) There shall be at the head of the Office an Administrator who shall be appointed by the President, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate. The Director shall delegate to the Administrator the authority to administer all functions under this chapter explicitly relating to information collection review. Any such delegation shall not relieve the Director of responsibility for the administration of such functions.".

[(2) TECHNICAL AND CONFORMING AMENDMENT.—The table of sections for chapter 35 of title 44, United States Code, is amended by striking the item relating to section 3503 and inserting the following:

["§ 3503. Office of Information Policy and Office of Information and Regulatory Affairs.".

[(b) PROMOTION OF INFORMATION TECHNOLOGY.—Section 3504(h)(5) of title 44, United States Code, is amended by inserting "direct the Federal Chief Information Officer and the Administrator of the Office of Information and Regulatory Affairs, acting jointly, to" after "(5)".

[(c) COORDINATION OF INFORMATION COLLECTION REVIEWS.—

[(1) INFORMATION COLLECTION REVIEW.—Section 3502 of title 44, United States Code is amended—

[(A) by redesignating paragraphs (6) through (14) as paragraphs (7) through (15), respectively; and

[(B) by inserting after paragraph (5) the following:

["(6) the term 'information collection review' means those functions described under section 3504(c) and related functions;".

[(2) COORDINATION.—Section 3504 of title 44, United States Code, is amended—

[(A) by redesignating paragraph (2) as paragraph (3); and

[(B) by inserting after paragraph (1) the following:

["(2) The Director shall ensure that the Office of Information Policy and the Office of Information and Regulatory Affairs coordinate their efforts in applying the principles developed and implemented under this section to information collection reviews.".

[(d) REFERENCES.—Reference in any Federal law, Executive order, rule, regulation, or delegation of authority, or any document of or relating to the Office of Information and Regulatory Affairs or the Administrator of the Office of Information and Regulatory Affairs, respectively, shall be deemed a reference to—

[(1) the Office of Information Policy or the Federal Chief Information Officer, respectively, with respect to functions described under section 3503(a) of title 44, United States Code (as amended by section 103 of this Act); and

[(2) the Office of Information and Regulatory Affairs or the Administrator of the Office of Information and Regulatory Affairs, respectively, with respect to functions described under section 3503(b) of such title (as amended by section 103 of this Act).

[(e) ADDITIONAL CONFORMING AMENDMENTS.—

[(1) RECOMMENDED LEGISLATION.—After consultation with the appropriate committees of Congress, the Director of the Office of Management and Budget shall prepare and submit to Congress recommended legislation containing technical and conforming amendments to reflect the changes made by this Act.

[(2) SUBMISSION TO CONGRESS.—Not later than 6 months after the effective date of this Act, the Director of the Office of Management and Budget shall submit the recommended legislation referred to under paragraph (1).

[(SEC. 103. MANAGEMENT AND PROMOTION OF ELECTRONIC GOVERNMENT SERVICES.

[(a) IN GENERAL.—Title 44, United States Code, is amended by inserting after chapter 35 the following:

["CHAPTER 36—MANAGEMENT AND PROMOTION OF ELECTRONIC GOVERNMENT SERVICES

["Sec.

["§ 3601. Definitions.

["§ 3602. Federal Chief Information Officer functions.

["§ 3603. Chief Information Officers Council.

["§ 3604. E-Government Fund.

["§ 3601. Definitions

["In this chapter, the definitions under section 3502 shall apply, and the term—

["(1) 'Council' means the Chief Information Officers Council established under section 3603;

["(2) 'Cross-Sector Forum' means the Cross-Sector Forum on Information Resources Management established under section 3602(a)(10);

["(3) 'Fund' means the E-Government Fund established under section 3604;

["(4) 'interoperability' means the ability of different software systems, applications, and services to communicate and exchange data in an accurate, effective, and consistent manner; and

["(5) 'integrated service delivery' means the provision of Internet-based Federal Government information or services integrated according to function rather than separated according to the boundaries of agency jurisdiction.

["§ 3602. Federal Chief Information Officer functions

["(a) Subject to the direction and approval of the Director of the Office of Management and Budget, and subject to requirements of this chapter, the Federal Chief Information Officer shall perform information resources management functions as follows:

["(1) Perform all functions of the Director, including all functions delegated by the President to the Director, relating to information resources management.

["(2) Perform the following functions with respect to information resources management:

["(A) Under section 5112 of the Clinger-Cohen Act of 1996 (40 U.S.C. 1412), review agency budget requests related to information technology capital planning and investment.

["(B) Under section 5113 of the Clinger-Cohen Act of 1996 (40 U.S.C. 1413), evaluate the investments referred to under subparagraph (A) with respect to performance and results.

["(C) Review legislative proposals related to information technology capital planning and investment.

["(D) Advise the Director on the resources required to develop and effectively operate and maintain Federal Government information systems.

["(E) Recommend to the Director changes relating to Governmentwide strategies and priorities for information resources management.

["(3) Provide overall leadership and direction to the executive branch on information policy by establishing information resources management policies and requirements, and by reviewing each agency's performance in acquiring, using, and managing information resources.

["(4) Promote innovative uses of information technology by agencies, particularly initiatives involving multiagency collaboration, through support of pilot projects, research, experimentation, and the use of innovative technologies.

["(5) Administer the distribution of funds from the E-Government Fund established under section 3604.

["(6) Consult with the Administrator of General Services regarding the use of the Information Technology Fund established under section 110 of the Federal Property and Administrative Coordinate Services Act of 1949 (40 U.S.C. 757), and coordinate with the Administrator of General Services regarding programs undertaken by the General Services Administration to promote electronic Government and the efficient use of information technologies by agencies.

["(7) Chair the Chief Information Officers Council established under section 3603.

["(8) Establish and promulgate information technology standards for the Federal Government under section 5131 of the Clinger-Cohen Act of 1996 (40 U.S.C. 1441) based on the recommendations of the National Institute of Standards and Technology, taking into account, if appropriate, recommendations of the Chief Information Officers Council, experts, and interested parties from the private and nonprofit sectors and State, local, and tribal governments, as follows:

["(A) Standards and guidelines for interconnectivity and interoperability as described under section 3504.

["(B) Standards and guidelines for categorizing and electronically labeling Federal Government electronic information, to enhance electronic search capabilities.

["(C) Standards and guidelines for Federal Government computer system efficiency and security.

["(9) Establish a regular forum for consulting and communicating with leaders in information resources management in the legislative and judicial branches to encourage collaboration and enhance understanding of best practices and innovative approaches in acquiring, using, and managing information resources.

["(10) Establish a regular forum for consulting and communicating with leaders in information resources management in State, local, and tribal governments (including the National Association of State Information Resources Executives) to encourage collaboration and enhance understanding of best practices and innovative approaches in acquiring, using, and managing information resources.

["(11) Establish a regular forum for consulting and communicating with program managers and leaders in information resources management in the regulatory executive branch agencies to encourage collaboration and enhance understanding of best practices and innovative approaches related to the acquisition, use, and management of information resources in regulatory applications.

["(12) Establish a Cross-Sector Forum on Information Resources Management, subject to the Federal Advisory Committee Act (5 U.S.C. App.), as a periodic colloquium with representatives from Federal agencies (including Federal employees who are not supervisors or management officials as such terms are defined under section 7103(a) (10) and (11), respectively) and the private, nonprofit, and academic sectors, to encourage collaboration and enhance understanding of best practices and innovative approaches in acquiring, using, and managing information resources. The Cross-Sector Forum shall be used for the following:

["(A) To develop innovative models for Government information resources management and for Government information technology contracts. These models may be developed through focused Cross-Sector Forum discussions or using separately sponsored research.

["(B) To identify opportunities for performance-based shared-savings contracts as a means of increasing the quantity and quality of Government information and services available through the Internet.

["(C) To identify opportunities for public-private collaboration in using Internet-based technology to increase the efficiency of Government-to-business transactions.

["(D) To identify mechanisms for providing incentives to program managers and other Government employees to develop and implement innovative uses of information technologies.

["(E) To identify opportunities for public-private collaboration in addressing the disparities in access to the Internet and information technology.

["(F) To develop guidance to advise agencies and private companies on any relevant legal and ethical restrictions.

["(13) Direct the establishment, maintenance, and promotion of an integrated Internet-based system of delivering Government information and services to the public. To the extent practicable, the integrated system shall be designed and operated according to the following criteria:

["(A) The provision of Internet-based Government information and services integrated according to function rather than separated according to the boundaries of agency jurisdiction.

["(B) An ongoing effort to ensure that all Internet-based Government services relevant to a given citizen activity are available from a single point.

["(C) Standardized methods for navigating Internet-based Government information and services.

["(D) The consolidation of Federal Government information and services with Internet-based information and services provided by State, local, and tribal governments.

["(14) Coordinate with the Administrator of the Office of Federal Procurement Policy to ensure effective implementation of electronic procurement initiatives.

["(15) Assist Federal agencies, the United States Access Board, the General Services Administration, and the Attorney General in—

["(A) implementing accessibility standards under section 508 of the Rehabilitation Act of 1973 (29 U.S.C. section 794d); and

["(B) ensuring compliance with those standards through the budget review process and other means.

["(16) Administer the Office of Information Policy established under section 3503.

["(b) The Director of the Office of Management and Budget shall consult with the Federal Chief Information Officer on each agency budget request and legislative proposal described under subsection (a)(2).

["(c) The Federal Chief Information Officer shall appoint the employees of the Office. The Director of the Office of Management and Budget shall ensure that the Office of Information Policy has adequate employees and resources to properly fulfill all functions delegated to the Office and the Federal Chief Information Officer.

["(d) There are authorized to be appropriated $15,000,000 for the establishment, maintenance, and promotion of the integrated Internet-based system established under subsection (a)(13) for fiscal year 2002, and such sums as are necessary for fiscal years 2003 through 2006.

["§ 3603. Chief Information Officers Council

["(a) There is established in the executive branch a Chief Information Officers Council.

["(b) The members of the Council shall be as follows:

["(1) The chief information officer of each agency described under section 901(b) of title 31.

["(2) The chief information officer of the Central Intelligence Agency.

["(3) The chief information officer of the Department of the Army, the Department of the Navy, and the Department of the Air Force, if chief information officers have been designated for these departments under section 3506(a)(2)(B).

["(4) Any other officers or employees of the United States designated by the Federal Chief Information Officer.

["(c)(1) The Federal Chief Information Officer shall be the Chairman of the Council.

["(2)(A) The Deputy Chairman of the Council shall be selected by the Council from among its members.

["(B) The Deputy Chairman shall serve a 1-year term, and may serve multiple terms.

["(3) The Administrator of General Services shall provide administrative and other support for the Council, including resources provided through the Information Technology Fund established under section 110 of the Federal Property and Administrative Services Act of 1949 (40 U.S.C. 757).

["(d) The Council is designated the principal interagency forum for improving agency practices related to the design, acquisition, development, modernization, use, operation, sharing, and performance of Federal Government information resources. The Council shall perform the following functions:

["(1) Develop recommendations for the Federal Chief Information Officer on Government information resources management policies and requirements.

["(2) Assist the Federal Chief Information Officer in developing and maintaining the Governmentwide strategic information resources management plan required under section 3506.

["(3) Share experiences, ideas, best practices, and innovative approaches related to information resources management.

["(4) Assist the Federal Chief Information Officer in the identification, development, and coordination of multiagency projects and other innovative initiatives to improve Government performance through the use of information technology.

["(5) Provide recommendations to the Federal Chief Information Officer regarding the distribution of funds from the E-Government Fund established under section 3604.

["(6) Coordinate the development and use of common performance measures for agency information resources management under section 5123 of the Clinger-Cohen Act of 1996 (40 U.S.C. 1423).

["(7) Work as appropriate with the National Institute of Standards and Technology to develop recommendations for the Federal Chief Information Officer on information technology standards developed under section 20 of the National Institute of Standards and Technology Act (15 U.S.C. 278g-3) and promulgated under section 5131 of the Clinger-Cohen Act of 1996 (40 U.S.C. 1441), as follows:

["(A) Standards and guidelines for interconnectivity and interoperability as described under section 3504.

["(B) Standards and guidelines for categorizing and electronically labeling Government electronic information, to enhance electronic search capabilities.

["(C) Standards and guidelines for Federal Government computer system efficiency and security.

“(8) Work with the Office of Personnel Management to assess and address the hiring, training, classification, and professional development needs of the Government related to information resources management.

“§ 3604. E-Government Fund

“(a) There is established in the Treasury of the United States an E-Government Fund, which shall be available without fiscal year limitation.

“(b) The Fund shall be used to fund interagency information technology projects, and other innovative uses of information technology. The Fund shall be operated as follows:

“(1) Any member of the Council, including the Federal Chief Information Officer, may propose a project to be funded from the Fund.

“(2) On a regular basis, an appropriate committee within the Council shall review candidate projects for funding eligibility, and make recommendations to the Federal Chief Information Officer on which projects should be funded from the Fund. The review committee shall consider the following:

“(A) The relevance of this project in supporting the missions of the affected agencies and other statutory provisions.

“(B) The usefulness of interagency collaboration on this project in supporting integrated service delivery.

“(C) The usefulness of this project in illustrating a particular use of information technology that could have broader applicability within the Government.

“(D) The extent to which privacy and information security will be provided in the implementation of the project.

“(E) The willingness of the agencies affected by this project to provide matching funds.

“(F) The availability of funds from other sources for this project.

“(3) After considering the recommendations of the Council, the Federal Chief Information Officer shall have final authority to determine which of the candidate projects shall be funded from the Fund.

“(c) The Fund may be used to fund the integrated Internet-based system under section 3602(a)(13).

“(d) None of the funds provided from the Fund may be transferred to any agency until 15 days after the Federal Chief Information Officer has submitted to the Committees on Appropriations of the Senate and the House of Representatives, the Committee on Governmental Affairs of the Senate, the Committee on Government Reform of the House of Representatives, and the appropriate authorizing committees of the Senate and the House of Representatives, a notification and description of how the funds are to be allocated and how the expenditure will further the purposes of this chapter.

“(e) The Federal Chief Information Officer shall submit an annual report to the President and Congress on the operation of the Fund. The report shall describe—

“(1) all projects which the Federal Chief Information Officer has approved for funding from the Fund;

“(2) the results that have been achieved to date for these funded projects; and

“(3) any recommendations for changes to the amount of capital appropriated annually for the Fund, with a description of the basis for any such recommended change.

“(f) There are authorized to be appropriated to the Fund $200,000,000 in each of the fiscal years 2002 through 2004, and such sums as may be necessary for fiscal years 2005 and 2006.”.

“(b) TECHNICAL AND CONFORMING AMENDMENT.—The table of chapters for title 44, United States Code, is amended by inserting after the item relating to chapter 35 the following:

“36. Management and Promotion of Electronic Government Services .. 3601”.

“TITLE II—FEDERAL MANAGEMENT AND PROMOTION OF ELECTRONIC GOVERNMENT SERVICES

“SEC. 201. FEDERAL AGENCY RESPONSIBILITIES.

“(a) IN GENERAL.—The head of each agency shall be responsible for—

“(1) complying with the requirements of this Act (including the amendments made by this Act) and the related information resource management policies and information technology standards established by the Federal Chief Information Officer;

“(2) ensuring that the policies and standards established by the Federal Chief Information Officer and the Chief Information Officers Council are communicated promptly and effectively to all relevant managers with information resource management responsibilities within their agency; and

“(3) supporting the efforts of the Federal Chief Information Officer to develop, maintain, and promote an integrated Internet-based system of delivering Federal Government information and services to the public under chapter 36 of title 44, United States Code (as added by section 103 of this Act).

“(b) CHIEF INFORMATION OFFICERS.—The Chief Information Officer of each of the agencies designated under chapter 36 of title 44, United States Code (as added by section 103 of this Act), shall be responsible for—

“(1) participating in the functions of the Chief Information Officers Council; and

“(2) monitoring the implementation, within their respective agencies, of information technology standards established by the Federal Chief Information Officer, including common standards for interconnectivity and interoperability, categorization and labeling of Federal Government electronic information, and computer system efficiency and security.

“(c) E-GOVERNMENT STATUS REPORT.—

“(1) IN GENERAL.—Each agency shall compile and submit to the Federal Chief Information Officer an E-Government Status Report on the current status of agency information and agency services available online.

“(2) CONTENT.—Each report under this subsection shall contain—

“(A) a list and brief description of the agency services available online;

“(B) a list, by number and title, of the 25 most frequently requested agency forms available online, annotated to indicate which forms can be submitted to the agency electronically; and

“(C) a summary of the type, volume, general topical areas, and currency of agency information available online.

“(3) SUBMISSION.—Not later than March 1, of each year, each agency shall submit a report under this subsection to the Federal Chief Information Officer.

“(4) CONSOLIDATION OF REPORTS.—Section 3516(a)(2) of title 31, United States Code, is amended—

“(A) by redesignating subparagraph (C) as subparagraph (D); and “(B) by inserting after subparagraph (B) the following:

“(‘(C) Any E-Government Status Report under section 201(c) of the E-Government Act of 2001.’.”.

“SEC. 202. COMPATIBILITY OF EXECUTIVE AGENCY METHODS FOR USE AND ACCEPTANCE OF ELECTRONIC SIGNATURES.

“(a) ELECTRONIC SIGNATURES.—In order to fulfill the objectives of the Government Paperwork Elimination Act (Public Law 105-277; 112 Stat. 2681-749 through 2681-751), each Executive agency (as defined under section 105 of title 5, United States Code) shall ensure that its methods for use and acceptance of electronic signatures are compatible with the relevant procedures and standards promulgated by the Director of the Office of Management and Budget.

“(b) BRIDGE AUTHORITY FOR DIGITAL SIGNATURES.—The Administrator of the General Services Administration shall support the Director of the Office of Management and Budget by establishing the Federal bridge certification authority which shall provide a central authority to allow efficient interoperability among Executive agencies when certifying digital signatures.

“(c) AUTHORIZATION OF APPROPRIATIONS.—There are authorized to be appropriated to the General Services Administration, to ensure the development and operation of a Federal bridge certification authority for digital signature compatibility, $7,000,000 in fiscal year 2002, and such sums as may be necessary for each fiscal year thereafter.

“SEC. 203. ONLINE FEDERAL TELEPHONE DIRECTORY.

“(a) IN GENERAL.—

“(1) DEVELOPMENT.—The Administrator of the General Services Administration, in coordination with the Chief Information Officers Council, shall develop and promulgate an online Federal telephone directory.

“(2) ORGANIZATION.—Information in the online Federal telephone directory shall be organized and retrievable both by function and by agency name.

“(3) TELEPHONE DIRECTORIES.—Information compiled for publication in the online Federal telephone directory shall be provided to local telephone book publishers, to encourage publication and dissemination of functionally arranged directories in local Federal blue pages.

“(b) EXECUTIVE AGENCIES.—

“(1) IN GENERAL.—Each Executive agency (as defined under section 105 of title 5, United States Code) shall publish an online agency directory, accessible by electronic link from the online Federal telephone directory.

“(2) CONTENT.—Each agency directory—

“(A) shall include telephone numbers and electronic mail addresses for principal departments and principal employees, subject to security restrictions and agency judgment; and “(B) shall be electronically searchable.

“SEC. 204. ONLINE NATIONAL LIBRARY.

“(a) IN GENERAL.—The Director of the National Science Foundation, the Secretary of the Smithsonian Institution, the Director of the National Park Service, the Director of the Institute of Museum and Library Services, and the Librarian of Congress shall establish an Online National Library after consultation with—

“(1) the private sector;

“(2) public, research, and academic libraries;

“(3) historical societies;

“(4) archival institutions; and

“(5) other cultural and academic organizations.

“(b) FUNCTIONS.—The Online National Library—

“(1) shall provide public access to an expanding database of educational resource materials, including historical documents, photographs, audio recordings, films, and other media as appropriate, that are significant for education and research in United States history and culture;

[(2) shall be functionally integrated, so that a user may have access to the resources of the Library without regard to the boundaries of the contributing institutions; and

[(3) shall include educational resource materials across a broad spectrum of United States history and culture, including the fields of mathematics, science, technology, liberal arts, fine arts, and humanities.

[(c) AUTHORIZATION OF APPROPRIATIONS.—For the purposes of developing, expanding, and maintaining this Online National Library, there are authorized to be appropriated—

[(1) to the National Science Foundation $5,000,000 in fiscal year 2002, and such sums as may be necessary for each fiscal year thereafter; and

[(2) to the Library of Congress $5,000,000 in fiscal year 2002, and such sums as may be necessary for each fiscal year thereafter.

[SEC. 205. FEDERAL COURTS.]

[(a) INDIVIDUAL COURT WEBSITES.—The Chief Justice of the United States and the chief judge of each circuit and district shall establish with respect to the Supreme Court or the respective court of appeal or district (including the bankruptcy court of that district) a website, that contains the following information or links to websites with the following information:

[(1) Location and contact information for the courthouse, including the telephone numbers and contact names for the clerk's office and justices' or judges' chambers.

[(2) Local rules and standing or general orders of the court.

[(3) Individual rules, if in existence, of each justice or judge in that court.

[(4) Access to docket information for each case.

[(5) Access to the substance of all written opinions issued by the court, regardless of whether such opinions are to be published in the official court reporter, in a text searchable format.

[(6) Access to all documents filed with the courthouse in electronic form, described under subsection (c)(2).

[(7) Any other information (including forms in a format that can be downloaded) that the court determines useful to the public.

[(b) MAINTENANCE OF DATA ONLINE.—

[(1) UPDATE OF INFORMATION.—The information and rules on each website shall be updated regularly and kept reasonably current.

[(2) CLOSED CASES.—Electronic files and docket information for cases closed for more than 1 year are not required to be made available online, except all written opinions with a date of issuance after the effective date of this section shall remain available online.

[(c) ELECTRONIC FILINGS.—

[(1) IN GENERAL.—Each court shall make any document that is filed electronically publicly available online. A court may convert any document that is filed in paper form to electronic form. To the extent such conversions are made, all such electronic versions of the document shall be made available online.

[(2) EXCEPTIONS.—

[(A) IN GENERAL.—Documents that are filed that are not otherwise available to the public, such as documents filed under seal, shall not be made available online.

[(B) LIMITATION.—

[(i) IN GENERAL.—A party, witness, or other person with an interest may file a motion with the court to redact any document that would be made available online under this section.

[(ii) REDACTION.—A redaction under this subparagraph shall be made only to—

[(I) the electronic form of the document made available online; and

[(II) the extent necessary to protect important privacy concerns.

[(C) PRIVACY CONCERNS.—The Judicial Conference of the United States may promulgate rules under this subsection to protect important privacy concerns.

[(d) DOCKETS WITH LINKS TO DOCUMENTS.—The Judicial Conference of the United States, in consultation with the Federal Chief Information Officer, shall explore the feasibility of technology to post online dockets with links allowing all filings, decisions, and rulings in each case to be obtained from the docket sheet of that case.

[(e) COST OF PROVIDING ELECTRONIC DOCKETING INFORMATION.—Section 503(a) of the Judiciary Appropriations Act, 1992 (28 U.S.C. 1913 note) is amended in the first sentence by striking "shall hereafter" and inserting "may, only to the extent necessary,".

[(f) TIME REQUIREMENTS.—Not later than 2 years after the effective date of this Act, the websites under subsection (a) shall be established, except that access to documents filed in electronic form shall be established not later than 4 years after that effective date.

[(g) OPT OUT.—

[(1) IN GENERAL.—

[(A) ELECTION.—

[(i) NOTIFICATION.—The Chief Justice of the United States or a chief judge may submit a notification to the Administrative Office of the United States Courts to elect not to comply with any requirement of this section with respect to the Supreme Court, a court of appeals, or district (including the bankruptcy court of that district).

[(ii) CONTENTS.—A notification submitted under this subparagraph shall state—

[(I) the reasons for the noncompliance; and

[(II) the online methods, if any, or any alternative methods, such court or district is using to provide greater public access to information.

[(B) EXCEPTION.—To the extent that the Supreme Court, a court of appeals, or district maintains a website under subsection (a), the Supreme Court or that court of appeals or district shall comply with subsection (b)(1).

[(2) REPORT.—Not later than 1 year after the effective date of this Act, the Judicial Conference of the United States shall submit a report to the Committees on Governmental Affairs and the Judiciary of the Senate and the Committees on Government Reform and the Judiciary of the House of Representatives that—

[(A) contains all notifications submitted to the Administrative Office of the United States Courts under this subsection; and

[(B) summarizes and evaluates all notifications.

[SEC. 206. REGULATORY AGENCIES.]

[(a) INFORMATION PROVIDED BY AGENCIES ONLINE.—To the extent practicable, each agency (as defined under section 551 of title 5, United States Code) shall—

[(1) establish a website with information about that agency; and

[(2) post on the website all information—

[(A) required to be published in the Federal Register under section 552(a)(1) of title 5, United States Code; and

[(B) made available for public inspection and copying under section 552(a) (2) and (5) of title 5, United States Code, after the effective date of this section.

[(b) COMPLIANCE.—An agency may comply with subsection (a)(2) by providing hypertext links on a website directing users to other websites where such information may be found. To the extent that an agency provides hypertext links, the agency shall provide clear instructions to users on how to access the information sought within the external website to which the links direct users.

[(c) SUBMISSIONS BY ELECTRONIC MEANS.—To the extent practicable, agencies shall accept submissions under section 553(c) of title 5, United States Code, by electronic means, including e-mail and telefacsimile.

[(d) ELECTRONIC DOCKETING.—

[(1) IN GENERAL.—To the extent practicable, agencies shall, in consultation with the Federal Chief Information Officer, and in connection with the forum established under section 3602(a)(10) of title 44, United States Code (as added by section 103 of this Act), establish and maintain on their websites electronic dockets for rulemakings under section 553 of title 5, United States Code.

[(2) INFORMATION AVAILABLE.—Agency electronic dockets shall make publicly available online—

[(A) all agency notices, publications, or statements in connection with each rulemaking; and

[(B) to the extent practicable, all submissions under section 553(c) of title 5, United States Code, whether or not submitted electronically.

[(e) OPT OUT.—

[(1) IN GENERAL.—

[(A) NOTIFICATION.—An agency may submit a notification to the Federal Chief Information Officer to elect to not comply with any requirement of subsection (d).

[(B) CONTENTS.—A notification submitted under this paragraph shall state—

[(i) the reasons for the noncompliance; and

[(ii) the online methods, if any, or any alternative methods, the agency is using to provide greater public access to regulatory proceedings.

[(2) REPORT.—Not later than October 1, of each year, the Federal Chief Information Officer shall submit a report to the Committee on Governmental Affairs of the Senate and the Committee on Government Reform of the House of Representatives that—

[(A) contains all notifications submitted to the Federal Chief Information Officer under this subsection; and

[(B) summarizes and evaluates all notifications.

[(f) TIME LIMITATION.—To the extent practicable, agencies shall implement subsections (a) and (b) not later than 2 years after the effective date of this Act, and subsection (c) not later than 4 years after that effective date.

[SEC. 207. INTEGRATED REPORTING FEASIBILITY STUDY AND PILOT PROJECTS.]

[(a) PURPOSES.—The purposes of this section are to—

[(1) enhance the interoperability of Federal information systems;

[(2) assist the public, including the regulated community, in electronically submitting information to agencies under Federal requirements, by reducing the burden of duplicate collection and ensuring the accuracy of submitted information; and

[(3) enable any person to integrate and obtain similar information held by 1 or more agencies under 1 or more Federal requirements without violating the privacy rights of an individual.

[(b) DEFINITIONS.—In this section, the term—

[(1) “agency” means an Executive agency as defined under section 105 of title 5, United States Code; and

[(2) “person” means any individual, trust, firm, joint stock company, corporation (including a government corporation), partnership, association, State, municipality, commission, political subdivision of a State, interstate body, or agency or component of the Federal Government.

[(c) REPORT.—

[(1) IN GENERAL.—Not later than 3 years after the date of enactment of this Act, the Federal Chief Information Officer shall conduct a study and submit a report to the Committee on Governmental Affairs of the Senate and the Committee on Government Reform of the House of Representatives on the feasibility of integrating Federal information systems across agencies.

[(2) CONTENT.—The report under this section shall—

[(A) address the feasibility of integrating data elements used in the electronic collection of information within databases established under Federal statute without reducing the quality, accessibility, scope, or utility of the information contained in each database;

[(B) address the feasibility of developing, or enabling the development of, software, including Internet-based tools, for use by reporting persons in assembling, documenting, and validating the accuracy of information electronically submitted to agencies under nonvoluntary, statutory, and regulatory requirements; and

[(C) address the feasibility of developing a distributed information system involving, on a voluntary basis, at least 2 agencies, that—

[(i) provides consistent, dependable, and timely public access to the information holdings of 1 or more agencies, or some portion of such holdings, including the underlying raw data, without requiring public users to know which agency holds the information;

[(ii) provides methods for input on improving the quality and integrity of the data, including correcting errors in submission, consistent with the need to archive changes made to the data; and

[(iii) allows any person to integrate public information held by the participating agencies;

[(D) address the feasibility of incorporating other elements related to the purposes of this section at the discretion of the Federal Chief Information Officer; and

[(E) make recommendations that Congress or the executive branch can implement, through the use of integrated reporting and information systems, to reduce the burden on reporting and strengthen public access to databases within and across agencies.

[(d) PILOT PROJECTS TO ENCOURAGE INTEGRATED COLLECTION AND MANAGEMENT OF DATA AND INTEROPERABILITY OF FEDERAL INFORMATION SYSTEMS.—

[(1) IN GENERAL.—In order to provide input to the study under subsection (c) the Federal Chief Information Officer shall implement a series of no more than 5 pilot projects that integrate data elements. The Federal Chief Information Officer shall consult with agencies, the regulated community, public interest organizations, and the public on the implementation.

[(2) GOALS OF PILOT PROJECTS.—

[(A) IN GENERAL.—Each goal described under subparagraph (B) shall be addressed by at least 1 pilot project each.

[(B) GOALS.—The goals under this paragraph are to—

[(i) reduce information collection burdens by eliminating duplicative data elements within 2 or more reporting requirements;

[(ii) create interoperability between or among public databases managed by 2 or more agencies using technologies and techniques that facilitate public access; and

[(iii) develop, or enable the development, of software to reduce errors in electronically submitted information.

[(3) INPUT.—Each pilot project shall seek input from users on the utility of the pilot project and areas for improvement.

[(e) CONSULTATION IN PREPARING THE REPORT AND PILOT PROJECT.—The Federal Chief Information Officer shall coordinate with the Office of Information and Regulatory Affairs, and to the extent practicable, shall work with relevant agencies, and State, tribal, and local governments in carrying out the report and pilot projects under this section.

[(f) PRIVACY PROTECTIONS.—The activities authorized in this section shall afford protections for confidential business information consistent with section 552(b)(4) of title 5, United States Code and personal privacy information under section 552a of title 5, United States Code and other relevant law.

[SEC. 208. ONLINE ACCESS TO FEDERALLY FUNDED RESEARCH AND DEVELOPMENT.]

[(a) DEFINITIONS.—In this section, the term—

[(1) “essential information” shall include—

[(A) information identifying any person performing research and development under an agreement and the agency providing the funding;

[(B) an abstract describing the research;

[(C) references to published results; and

[(D) other information determined appropriate by the interagency task force convened under this section; and

[(2) “federally funded research and development”—

[(A) shall be defined by the interagency task force, with reference to applicable Office of Management and Budget circulars and Department of Defense regulations; and

[(B) shall include funds provided to—

[(i) institutions other than the Federal Government; and

[(ii) Federal research and development centers.

[(b) INTERAGENCY TASK FORCE.—The Federal Chief Information Officer shall—

[(1) convene an interagency task force to—

[(A) review databases, owned by the Federal Government and other entities, that collect and maintain data on federally funded research and development to—

[(i) determine areas of duplication; and

[(ii) identify data that is needed but is not being collected or efficiently disseminated to the public or throughout the Government;

[(B) develop recommendations for the Federal Chief Information Officer on standards for the collection and electronic dissemination of essential information about federally funded research and development that addresses public availability and agency coordination and collaboration; and

[(C) make recommendations to the Federal Chief Information Officer on—

[(i) which agency or agencies should develop and maintain databases and a website containing data on federally funded research and development;

[(ii) whether to continue using existing databases, to use modified versions of databases, or to develop another database;

[(iii) the appropriate system architecture to minimize duplication and use emerging technologies;

[(iv) criteria specifying what federally funded research and development projects should be included in the databases; and

[(v) standards for security of and public access to the data; and

[(2) not later than 1 year of the date of enactment of this Act, after offering an opportunity for public comment, promulgate standards and regulations based on the recommendations, including a determination as to which agency or agencies should develop and maintain databases and a website containing data on federally funded research and development.

[(c) MEMBERSHIPS.—The interagency task force shall consist of the Federal Chief Information Officer and representatives from—

[(1) the Department of Commerce;

[(2) the Department of Defense;

[(3) the Department of Energy;

[(4) the Department of Health and Human Services;

[(5) the National Aeronautics and Space Administration;

[(6) the National Archives and Records Administration;

[(7) the National Science Foundation;

[(8) the National Institute of Standards and Technology; and [(9) any other agency determined by the Federal Chief Information Officer.

[(d) CONSULTATION.—The task force shall consult with—

[(1) Federal agencies supporting research and development;

[(2) members of the scientific community;

[(3) scientific publishers; and

[(4) interested persons in the private and nonprofit sectors.

[(e) DEVELOPMENT AND MAINTENANCE OF DATABASE AND WEBSITE.—

[(1) IN GENERAL.—

[(A) DATABASE AND WEBSITE.—The agency or agencies determined under subsection (b)(2), with the assistance of any other agency designated by the Federal Chief Information Officer, shall develop—

[(i) a database if determined to be necessary by the Federal Chief Information Officer; and

[(ii) a centralized, searchable website for the electronic dissemination of information reported under this section, with respect to information made available to the public and for agency coordination and collaboration.

[(B) CONFORMANCE TO STANDARDS.—The website and any necessary database shall conform to the standards promulgated by the Federal Chief Information Officer.

[(2) LINKS.—Where the results of the federally funded research have been published, the website shall contain links to the servers of the publishers if possible. The website may include links to other relevant websites containing information about the research.

[(3) OTHER RESEARCH.—The website may include information about published research not funded by the Federal Government, and links to the servers of the publishers.

[(4) DEVELOPMENT AND OPERATION.—The Federal Chief Information Officer shall oversee the development and operation of the website. The website shall be operational not later than 2 years after the date of enactment of this Act.

[(f) PROVISION OF INFORMATION.—Any agency that funds research and development meeting the criteria promulgated by the Federal Chief Information Officer shall provide the required information in the manner prescribed by the Federal Chief Information Officer. An agency may impose reporting requirements necessary for the implementation of this section on recipients of Federal funding as a condition of the funding.

[(g) AUTHORIZATION OF APPROPRIATIONS.—There are authorized to be appropriated for the development and maintenance of the centralized website and any necessary database under this section, $1,000,000 in fiscal year 2002, $5,000,000 in fiscal year 2003, and such sums as may be necessary for fiscal years 2004 through 2006.]

[SEC. 209. COMMON PROTOCOLS FOR GEOGRAPHIC INFORMATION SYSTEMS.]

[(a) IN GENERAL.—The Secretary of the Interior, in consultation with the National Institute of Standards and Technology and other agencies, private sector experts, commercial and international standards groups, and other interested parties, shall facilitate the development of common protocols for the development, acquisition, maintenance, distribution, and application of geographic information.]

[(b) FEDERAL CHIEF INFORMATION OFFICER.—The Federal Chief Information Officer shall—

[(1) oversee the interagency initiative to develop common protocols;

[(2) coordinate with State, local, and tribal governments and other interested persons on aligning geographic information; and

[(3) promulgate the standards relating to the protocols.]

[(c) COMMON PROTOCOLS.—The common protocols shall be designed to—

[(1) maximize the degree to which unclassified geographic information from various sources can be made electronically compatible; and

[(2) promote the development of interoperable geographic information systems technologies that will allow widespread, low-cost use and sharing of geographic data by Federal agencies, State, local, and tribal governments, and the public.]

[SEC. 210. SHARE-IN-SAVINGS PROGRAM IMPROVEMENTS.]

[Section 5311 of the Clinger-Cohen Act of 1996 (divisions D and E of Public Law 104-106; 110 Stat. 692; 40 U.S.C. 1491) is amended—

[(1) in subsection (a)—

[(A) by striking “the heads of two executive agencies to carry out” and inserting “heads of executive agencies to carry out a total of five projects under”;

[(B) by striking “and” at the end of paragraph (1);

[(C) by striking the period at the end of paragraph (2) and inserting “; and”;

[(D) by adding at the end the following:

[(“3) encouraging the use of the contracting and sharing approach described in paragraphs (1) and (2) by allowing the head of the executive agency conducting a project under the pilot program—

[(“A) to retain, out of the appropriation accounts of the executive agency in which savings computed under paragraph (2) are realized as a result of the project, up to the amount equal to half of the excess of—

[(“i) the total amount of the savings; over

[(“ii) the total amount of the portion of the savings paid to the private sector source for such project under paragraph (2); and

[(“B) to use the retained amount to acquire additional information technology.”;

[(2) in subsection (b)—

[(A) by inserting “a project under” after “authorized to carry out”;

[(B) by striking “carry out one project and”;

[(3) by striking subsection (c) and inserting the following:

[(“c) EVOLUTION BEYOND PILOT PROGRAM.—

(1) The Administrator may provide general authority to the heads of executive agencies to use a share-in-savings contracting approach to the acquisition of information technology solutions for improving mission-related or administrative processes of the Federal Government if—

[(“A) after reviewing the experience under the five projects carried out under the pilot program under subsection (a), the Administrator finds that the approach offers the Federal Government an opportunity to improve its use of information technology and to reduce costs; and

[(“B) issues guidance for the exercise of that authority.]

[(“2) For the purposes of paragraph (1), a share-in-savings contracting approach provides for contracting as described in paragraph (1) of subsection (a) together with the sharing and retention of amounts saved as described in paragraphs (2) and (3) of that subsection.]

[(“3) In exercising the authority provided to the Administrator in paragraph (1), the Administrator shall consult with the Federal Chief Information Officer.]

[(“d) AVAILABILITY OF RETAINED SAVINGS.—(1) Amounts retained by the head of an executive agency under subsection (a)(3) or (c) shall, without further appropriation, remain available until expended and may be used by the executive agency for any of the following purposes:

[(“A) The acquisition of information technology.]

[(“B) Support for share-in-savings contracting approaches throughout the agency including—

[(“i) education and training programs for share-in-savings contracting;

[(“ii) any administrative costs associated with the share-in-savings contract from which the savings were realized; or

[(“iii) the cost of employees who specialize in share-in-savings contracts.]

[(“2) Amounts so retained from any appropriation of the executive agency not otherwise available for the acquisition of information technology shall be transferred to any appropriation of the executive agency that is available for such purpose.”.]

[SEC. 211. ENHANCING CRISIS MANAGEMENT THROUGH ADVANCED INFORMATION TECHNOLOGY.]

[(a) IN GENERAL.—

[(1) STUDY ON ENHANCEMENT OF CRISIS RESPONSE.—Not later than 90 days after the date of enactment of this Act, the Federal Emergency Management Agency shall enter into a contract with the National Research Council of the National Academy of Sciences to conduct a study on using information technology to enhance crisis response and consequence management of natural and manmade disasters.]

[(2) CONTENT.—The study under this subsection shall address—

[(A) a research and implementation strategy for effective use of information technology in crisis response and consequence management, including the more effective use of technologies, management of information technology research initiatives, and incorporation of research advances into the information and communications systems of—

[(i) the Federal Emergency Management Agency; and

[(ii) other Federal, State, and local agencies responsible for crisis response and consequence management; and

[(B) opportunities for research and development on enhanced technologies for—

[(i) improving communications with citizens at risk before and during a crisis;

[(ii) enhancing the use of remote sensor data and other information sources for planning, mitigation, response, and advance warning;

[(iii) building more robust and trustworthy systems for communications in crises;

[(iv) facilitating coordinated actions among responders through more interoperable communications and information systems; and

[(v) other areas of potential improvement as determined during the course of the study.]

[(3) REPORT.—Not later than 2 years after the date on which a contract is entered into under paragraph (1), the National Research Council shall submit a report on the study, including findings and recommendations to—

[(A) the Committee on Governmental Affairs of the Senate;

[(B) the Committee on Government Reform of the House of Representatives; and

[(C) the Federal Emergency Management Agency.]

[(4) INTERAGENCY COOPERATION.—The Federal Emergency Management Agency and other Federal departments and agencies with responsibility for disaster relief and emergency assistance shall fully cooperate with the National Research Council in carrying out this section.]

[(5) EXPEDITED PROCESSING OF SECURITY CLEARANCES.—For the purpose of facilitating the commencement of the study under this section, the Federal Emergency Management Agency and other relevant agencies shall expedite to the fullest extent possible the processing of security clearances that are necessary for the National Research Council.]

[(6) AUTHORIZATION OF APPROPRIATIONS.—There are authorized to be appropriated to the Federal Emergency Management Agency for research under this subsection, $800,000 for fiscal year 2002.]

[(b) PILOT PROJECTS.—Based on the results of the research conducted under subsection (a), the Federal Chief Information Officer shall initiate pilot projects with the goal of maximizing the utility of information technology in disaster management. The Federal Chief Information Officer shall cooperate with the Federal Emergency Management Agency, other relevant agencies, and, if appropriate, State, local, and tribal governments, in initiating such pilot projects.]

[SEC. 212. FEDERAL INFORMATION TECHNOLOGY TRAINING CENTER.]

[(a) IN GENERAL.—In consultation with the Federal Chief Information Officer, the Chief Information Officers Council, and the Administrator of General Services, the Director of the Office of Personnel Management shall establish and operate a Federal Information Technology Training Center (in this section referred to as the “Training Center”).

[(b) FUNCTIONS.—The Training Center shall—

[(1) analyze, on an ongoing basis, the personnel needs of the Federal Government related to information technology and information resource management;

[(2) design curricula, training methods, and training schedules that correspond to the projected personnel needs of the Federal Government related to information technology and information resource management; and

[(3) recruit and train Federal employees in information technology disciplines, as necessary, at a rate that ensures that the Federal Government's information resource management needs are met.]

[(c) CURRICULA.—The curricula of the Training Center—

[(1) shall cover a broad range of information technology disciplines corresponding to the specific needs of Federal agencies;

[(2) shall be adaptable to achieve varying levels of expertise, ranging from basic non-occupational computer training to expert occupational proficiency in specific information technology disciplines, depending on the specific information resource management needs of Federal agencies;

[(3) shall be developed and applied according to rigorous academic standards; and

[(4) shall be designed to maximize efficiency through the use of self-paced courses, online courses, on-the-job training, and the use of remote instructors, wherever such features can be applied without reducing training effectiveness or negatively impacting academic standards.

[(d) EMPLOYEE PARTICIPATION.—Subject to information resource management needs and the limitations imposed by resource needs in other occupational areas, agencies shall encourage their employees to participate in the occupational information technology curricula of the Training Center.

[(e) AGREEMENTS FOR SERVICE.—Employees who participate in full-time training at the Training Center for a period of 6 months or longer shall be subject to an agreement for service after training under section 4108 of title 5, United States Code.

[(f) AUTHORIZATION OF APPROPRIATIONS.—There are authorized to be appropriated to the Office of Personnel Management for developing and operating the Training Center, $7,000,000 in fiscal year 2002, and such sums as may be necessary for each fiscal year thereafter.

[SEC. 213. COMMUNITY TECHNOLOGY CENTERS.]

[(a) STUDY AND REPORT.—Not later than 2 years after the effective date of this Act, the Secretary of Education, in consultation with the Secretary of Agriculture, the Secretary of Housing and Urban Development, the National Telecommunications and Information Administration, and the Federal Chief Information Officer, shall—

[(1) conduct a study to evaluate the best practices of community technology centers that receive Federal funds; and

[(2) submit a report on the study to—

[(A) the Committee on Governmental Affairs of the Senate;

[(B) the Committee on Health, Education, Labor, and Pensions of the Senate;

[(C) the Committee on Government Reform of the House of Representatives; and

[(D) the Committee on Education and the Workforce of the House of Representatives.

[(b) CONTENT.—The report shall include—

[(1) an evaluation of the best practices being used by successful community technology centers;

[(2) a strategy for—

[(A) continuing the evaluation of best practices used by community technology centers; and

[(B) establishing a network to share information and resources as community technology centers evolve;

[(3) the identification of methods to expand the use of best practices to assist community technology centers, public libraries, and other institutions that provide computer and Internet access to the public;

[(4) a database of all community technology centers receiving Federal funds, including—

[(A) each center's name, location, services provided, director, other points of contact, number of individuals served; and

[(B) other relevant information;

[(5) an analysis of whether community technology centers have been deployed effectively in urban and rural areas throughout the Nation; and

[(6) recommendations of how to—

[(A) enhance the development of community technology centers; and

[(B) establish a network to share information and resources.

[(c) COOPERATION.—All agencies that fund community technology centers shall provide to the Department of Education any information and assistance necessary for the completion of the study and the report under this section.

[(d) ASSISTANCE.—

[(1) IN GENERAL.—The Federal Chief Information Officer shall work with the Department of Education, other relevant Federal agencies, and other interested persons in the private and nonprofit sectors to—

[(A) assist in the implementation of recommendations; and

[(B) identify other ways to assist community technology centers, public libraries, and other institutions that provide computer and Internet access to the public.

[(2) TYPES OF ASSISTANCE.—Assistance under this paragraph may include—

[(A) contribution of funds;

[(B) donations of equipment, and training in the use and maintenance of the equipment; and

[(C) the provision of basic instruction or training material in computer skills and Internet usage.

[(e) TRAINING CENTER.—The Federal Information Technology Training Center established under section 212 of this Act shall make applicable information technology curricula available to members of the public through the community technology centers.

[(f) ONLINE TUTORIAL.—

[(1) IN GENERAL.—The Secretary of Education, in consultation with the Federal Chief Information Officer, the National Science Foundation, and other interested persons, shall develop an online tutorial that—

[(A) explains how to access information and services on the Internet; and

[(B) provides a guide to available online resources.

[(2) DISTRIBUTION.—The Secretary of Education shall distribute information on the tutorial to community technology centers, public libraries, and other institutions that afford Internet access to the public.

[(g) PROMOTION OF COMMUNITY TECHNOLOGY CENTERS.—In consultation with other agencies and organizations, the Department of Education shall promote the availability of community technology centers to raise awareness within each community where such a center is located.

[(h) AUTHORIZATION OF APPROPRIATIONS.—There are authorized to be appropriated to the Department of Education for the study of best practices at community technology centers, for the development and dissemination of the online tutorial, and for the promotion of community technology centers under this section $2,000,000 in fiscal year 2002, $2,000,000 in fiscal year 2003, and such sums as are necessary in fiscal years 2004 through 2006.

[SEC. 214. DISPARITIES IN ACCESS TO THE INTERNET.]

[(a) STUDY AND REPORT.—Not later than 1 year after the effective date of this Act—

[(1) the Federal Chief Information Officer shall enter into an agreement with a nonprofit, nonpartisan organization to conduct a study on disparities in Internet access across various demographic distributions; and

[(2) the nonprofit, nonpartisan organization shall conduct the study and submit a report to—

[(A) the Committee on Governmental Affairs of the Senate; and

[(B) the Committee on Government Reform of the House of Representatives.

[(b) CONTENT.—The report shall include a study of—

[(1) how disparities in Internet access influence the effectiveness of online Government services;

[(2) how the increase in online Government services is influencing the disparities in Internet access; and

[(3) any related societal effects arising from the interplay of disparities in Internet access and the increase in online Government services.

[(c) RECOMMENDATIONS.—The report shall include recommendations on actions to ensure that online Government initiatives shall not have the unintended result of increasing any deficiency in public access to Government services.

[(d) POLICY CONSIDERATIONS.—When promulgating policies and implementing programs regarding the provision of services over the Internet, the Federal Chief Information Officer and agency heads shall—

[(1) consider the impact on persons without access to the Internet; and

[(2) ensure that the availability of Government services has not been diminished for individuals who lack access to the Internet.

[(e) TECHNOLOGY CONSIDERATIONS.—To the extent feasible, the Federal Chief Information Officer and agency heads shall pursue technologies that make Government services and information more accessible to individuals who do not own computers or have access to the Internet.

[(f) AUTHORIZATION OF APPROPRIATIONS.—There are authorized to be appropriated $950,000 in fiscal year 2002 to carry out this section.

[SEC. 215. ACCESSIBILITY, USABILITY, AND PRESERVATION OF GOVERNMENT INFORMATION.]

[(a) DEFINITIONS.—In this section, the term—

[(1) “agency” has the meaning given under section 3502(1) of title 44, United States Code;

[(2) “Board” means the Advisory Board on Government Information established under subsection (b);

[(3) “Government information” means information created, collected, processed, disseminated, or disposed of by or for the Federal Government;

[(4) “information” means any communication or representation of knowledge such as facts, data, or opinions, in any medium or form, including textual, numerical, graphic, cartographic, narrative, or audiovisual forms; and

[(5) “permanent public access” means the process by which applicable Government information that has been disseminated on the Internet is preserved for current, continuous, and future public access.

[(b) ADVISORY BOARD.—

[(1) ESTABLISHMENT.—There is established the Advisory Board on Government Information. The Board shall be subject to the Federal Advisory Committee Act (5 U.S.C. App.).

[(2) MEMBERS.—The Federal Chief Information Officer shall appoint the members of the Board who shall include representatives from appropriate agencies and interested persons from the public, private, and nonprofit sectors.

[(3) FUNCTIONS.—The Board shall conduct studies and submit recommendations as provided by this section to the Federal Chief Information Officer.

[(4) TERMINATION.—The Board shall terminate 3 years after the effective date of this Act.

[(c) CATALOGUING AND INDEXING STANDARDS.—

[(1) AGENCY FUNCTIONS.—

[(A) REPORTS.—Not later than 180 days after the effective date of this Act, each agency shall submit a report to the Board on all cataloguing and indexing standards used by that agency, including taxonomies being used to classify information.

[(B) PRIORITIES AND SCHEDULES.—Not later than 180 days after the issuance of a circular or the promulgation of proposed regulations under paragraph (3), each agency shall consult with interested persons and develop priorities and schedules for making the agency indexing and cataloguing standards fully interoperable with other standards in use in the Federal Government.

[(2) BOARD FUNCTIONS.—The Board shall—

[(A) not later than 1 year after the effective date of this Act—

[(i) review cataloguing and indexing standards used by agencies; and

[(ii) determine whether the systems using those standards are generally recognized, in the public domain, and interoperable; and

[(B) not later than 18 months after the effective date of this Act—

[(i) consult interested persons;

[(ii) analyze and determine agency public domain standards that are not fully interoperable with other standards; and

[(iii) recommend priorities and schedules for making such standards fully interoperable.

[(3) FEDERAL CHIEF INFORMATION OFFICER FUNCTIONS.—

[(A) PROHIBITION OF PROPRIETARY SYSTEMS.—

[(i) IN GENERAL.—After the submission of recommendations by the Board under paragraph (2) and public notice and opportunity for comment, the Federal Chief Information Officer shall prohibit agencies from using any system the Federal Chief Information Officer determines to be proprietary.

[(ii) WAIVER.—The Federal Chief Information Officer may waive the application of clause (i), if the Federal Chief Information Officer determines there is a compelling reason to continue the use of the system.

[(B) INTEROPERABILITY STANDARDS.—Not later than 18 months after the effective date of this Act and after public notice and opportunity for comment, the Office of Management and Budget, acting through the Federal Chief Information Officer, shall issue a circular or promulgate proposed and final regulations requiring the interoperability standards of cataloguing and indexing standards used by agencies.

[(d) PERMANENT PUBLIC ACCESS STANDARDS.—

[(1) AGENCY FUNCTIONS.—

[(A) REPORT TO BOARD.—Not later than 180 days after the effective date of this Act, each agency shall submit a report to the Board on any action taken by the agency to—

[(i) preserve public access to information disseminated by the Federal Government on the Internet; and

[(ii) set standards and develop policies to ensure permanent public access to information disseminated by the Federal Government on the Internet.

[(B) COMPLIANCE WITH REGULATIONS.—Not later than 1 year after the issuance of the circular or the promulgation of final regulations under paragraph (3), and on October 1, of each year thereafter, each agency shall submit a report on compliance of that agency with such regulations to—

[(i) the Federal Chief Information Officer;

[(ii) the Committee on Governmental Affairs of the Senate; and

[(iii) the Committee on Government Reform of the House of Representatives.

[(2) BOARD FUNCTIONS.—

[(A) RECOMMENDED STANDARDS.—Not later than 30 months after the effective date of this Act and after consultation with interested persons, the Board shall submit recommendations to the Federal Chief Information Officer on standards for permanent public access to information disseminated by the Federal Government on the Internet.

[(B) CONTENTS.—The recommendations under subparagraph (A) shall include—

[(i) a definition of the types of information to which the standards apply; and

[(ii) the process by which an agency—

[(I) applies that definition to information disseminated by the agency on the Internet; and [(II) implements permanent public access.

[(3) FEDERAL CHIEF INFORMATION OFFICER FUNCTIONS.—

[(A) IN GENERAL.—After the submission of recommendations by the Board under paragraph (2) and public notice and opportunity for comment, the Office of Management and Budget, acting through the Federal Chief Information Officer, shall issue a circular or promulgate proposed and final regulations establishing permanent public access standards for agencies.

[(B) COMPLIANCE.—The Federal Chief Information Officer shall—

[(i) work with agencies to ensure timely and ongoing compliance with this subsection; and

[(ii) post agency reports on a centralized searchable database, with a link to the integrated Internet-based system established under section 3602(a)(13) of title 44, United States Code, as added by this Act.

[(c) INVENTORIES.—

[(1) AGENCY FUNCTIONS.—

[(A) IN GENERAL.—

[(i) INVENTORIES.—Not later than 180 days after the effective date of this Act, each agency shall inventory agency websites, including all directories and subdirectories of such websites established by the agency or contractors of the agency.

[(ii) INDIVIDUAL DOCUMENTS.—Nothing in this paragraph shall preclude an agency from inventorying individual documents on a website.

[(iii) ASSISTANCE.—The Federal Chief Information Officer and the General Services Administration shall assist agencies with inventories under this subsection.

[(B) COMPLETION OF INVENTORY.—Each agency shall complete inventories in accordance with the circular issued or regulations promulgated under paragraph (3) and post the inventories on the Internet.

[(2) BOARD FUNCTIONS.—Not later than 1 year after the effective date of this Act, the Board shall—

[(A) consult with interested parties;

[(B) identify for inventory purposes all classes of Government information, except classes of information—

[(i) the existence of which is classified; or

[(ii) is of such a sensitive nature, that disclosure would harm the public interest; and

[(C) make recommendations on—

[(i) the classes of information to be inventoried; and

[(ii) how the information within those classes should be inventoried.

[(3) FEDERAL CHIEF INFORMATION OFFICER FUNCTIONS.—

[(A) GUIDANCE.—After submission of recommendations by the Board under paragraph (2) and public notice and opportunity for comment, the Office of Management and Budget, acting through the Chief Information Officer, shall issue a circular or promulgate proposed and final regulations to provide guidance and requirements for inventorying under this subsection.

[(B) CONTENTS.—The circular or regulations under this paragraph shall include—

[(i) requirements for the completion of inventories of some portion of Government information identified by the Board;

[(ii) the scope of required inventories;

[(iii) a schedule for completion; and

[(iv) the classes of information required to be inventoried by law.

[(C) LINKING OF INVENTORIES.—The Federal Chief Information Officer shall link inventories posted by agencies under this subsection to the integrated Internet-based system established under section 3602(a)(13) of title 44, United States Code, as added by this Act.

[(f) STATUTORY AND REGULATORY REVIEW.—Not later than 180 days after the effective date of this Act, the General Accounting Office shall—

[(1) conduct a review of all statutory and regulatory requirements of agencies to list and describe Government information;

[(2) analyze the inconsistencies, redundancies, and inadequacies of such requirements; and

[(3) submit a report on the review and analysis to—

[(A) the Federal Chief Information Officer;

[(B) the Committee on Governmental Affairs of the Senate; and [(C) the Committee on Government Reform of the House of Representatives.

[(g) CATALOGUING AND INDEXING DETERMINATIONS.—

[(1) AGENCY FUNCTIONS.—

[(A) PRIORITIES AND SCHEDULES.—Not later than 180 days after the issuance of a circular or the promulgation of proposed regulations under paragraph (3), each agency shall consult with interested persons and develop priorities and schedules for cataloguing and indexing Government information. Agency priorities and schedules shall be made available for public review and comment and shall be linked on the Internet to an agency's inventories.

[(B) COMPLIANCE WITH REGULATIONS.—Not later than 1 year after the issuance of the circular or the promulgation of final regulations under paragraph (3), and on October 1, of each year thereafter, each agency shall submit a report on compliance of that agency with such circular or regulations to—

[(i) the Federal Chief Information Officer;

[(ii) the Committee on Governmental Affairs of the Senate; and

[(iii) the Committee on Government Reform of the House of Representatives.

[(2) BOARD FUNCTIONS.—The Board shall—

[(A) not later than 1 year after the effective date of this Act—

[(i) review the report submitted by the General Accounting Office under subsection (f); and

[(ii) review the types of Government information not covered by cataloguing or indexing requirements; and

[(B) not later than 18 months after receipt of agency inventories—

[(i) consult interested persons;

[(ii) review agency inventories; and

[(iii) make recommendations on—

[(I) which Government information should be catalogued and indexed; and

[(II) the priorities for the cataloguing and indexing of that Government information, including priorities required by statute or regulation.

[(3) FEDERAL CHIEF INFORMATION OFFICER FUNCTIONS.—

[(A) IN GENERAL.—After the submission of recommendations by the Board under paragraph (2) and public notice and opportunity for comment, the Office of Management and Budget, acting through the Federal Chief Information Officer, shall issue a circular or promulgate proposed and final regulations that—

[(i) specify which Government information is required to be catalogued and indexed; and

[(ii) establish priorities for the cataloging and indexing of that information.

[(B) COMPLIANCE.—The Federal Chief Information Officer shall—

[(i) work with agencies to ensure timely and ongoing compliance with this subsection; and

[(ii) post agency reports and indexes and catalogues on a centralized searchable database, with a link to the integrated Internet-based system established under section 3602(a)(13) of title 44, United States Code, as added by this Act.

[(h) AVAILABILITY OF GOVERNMENT INFORMATION ON THE INTERNET.—Not later than 1 year after the completion of the agency inventory referred to under subsection (e)(1)(B), each agency shall—

[(1) consult with the Board and interested persons;

[(2) determine which Government information the agency intends to make available and accessible to the public on the Internet and by other means;

[(3) develop priorities and schedules for making that Government information available and accessible;

[(4) make such final determinations, priorities, and schedules available for public comment; and

[(5) post such final determinations, priorities, and schedules on an agency website with a link to the integrated Internet-based system established under section 3602(a)(13) of title 44, United States Code, as added by this Act.

[SEC. 216. PUBLIC DOMAIN DIRECTORY OF FEDERAL GOVERNMENT WEBSITES.]

[(a) DEFINITIONS.—In this section, the term—

[(1) “agency” has the meaning given under section 3502(1) of title 44, United States Code; and

[(2) “directory” means a taxonomy of subjects linked to websites that is created with the participation of human editors.

[(b) ESTABLISHMENT.—Not later than 2 years after the effective date of this Act, the Federal Chief Information Officer and each agency shall—

[(1) develop and establish a public domain directory of Federal Government websites; and

[(2) post the directory on the Internet with a link to the integrated Internet-based system established under section 3602(a)(13) of title 44, United States Code, as added by this Act.

[(c) DEVELOPMENT.—With the assistance of each agency, the Federal Chief Information Officer shall—

[(1) direct the development of the directory through a collaborative effort, including input from—

[(A) agency librarians;

[(B) Federal depository librarians; and

[(C) other interested parties; and

[(2) develop a public domain taxonomy of subjects used to review and categorize Federal Government websites.

[(d) UPDATE.—With the assistance of each agency, the Federal Chief Information Officer shall—

[(1) update the directory; and

[(2) solicit interested persons for improvements to the directory.

[SEC. 217. STANDARDS FOR AGENCY WEBSITES.]

[(1) Not later than 1 year after the effective date of this Act, the Federal Chief Information Officer shall promulgate standards and criteria for agency websites that include—

[(1) requirements that websites include direct links to—

[(A) privacy statements;

[(B) descriptions of the mission and statutory authority of the agency;

[(C) the electronic reading rooms of the agency relating to the disclosure of information under section 552 of title 5, United States Code (commonly referred to as the Freedom of Information Act);

[(D) agency regulations, rules, and rulemakings;

[(E) information about the organizational structure of the agency, with an outline linked to the agency on-line staff directory; and

[(F) the strategic plan of the agency developed under section 306 of title 5, United States Code; and

[(2) minimum agency goals to assist public users to navigate agency websites, including—

[(A) speed of retrieval of search results;

[(B) the relevance of the results; and

[(C) tools to aggregate and disaggregate data.

[SEC. 218. PRIVACY PROVISIONS.]

[(a) DEFINITIONS.—In this section, the term—

[(1) “agency” has the meaning given under section 551(1) of title 5, United States Code;

[(2) “information system” means a discrete set of information resources organized for the collection, processing, maintenance, transmission, and dissemination of information, in accordance with defined procedures that—

[(A) electronically collects or maintains personally identifiable information on 10 or more individuals; or

[(B) makes personally identifiable information available to the public; and

[(3) “personally identifiable information” means individually identifiable information about an individual, including—

[(A) a first and last name;

[(B) a home or other physical address including street name and name of a city or town;

[(C) an e-mail address;

[(D) a telephone number;

[(E) a social security number;

[(F) a credit card number;

[(G) a birth date, birth certificate number, or a place of birth; and

[(H) any other identifier that the Federal Chief Information Officer determines permits the identification of physical or online contacting of a specific individual.

[(b) PRIVACY IMPACT ASSESSMENTS.—

[(1) RESPONSIBILITIES OF AGENCIES.—

[(A) IN GENERAL.—Before developing or procuring an information system, or initiating a new collection of personally identifiable information that will be collected, processed, maintained, or disseminated electronically, an agency shall—

[(i) conduct a privacy impact assessment;

[(ii) submit the assessment to the Federal Chief Information Officer; and

[(iii) after completion of any review conducted by the Federal Chief Information Officer, where practicable—

[(I) publish the assessment in the Federal Register; or

[(II) disseminate the assessment electronically.

[(B) SENSITIVE INFORMATION.—Subparagraph (A)(iii) may be modified or waived to protect classified, sensitive, or private information contained in an assessment.

[(2) CONTENTS OF A PRIVACY IMPACT ASSESSMENT.—A privacy impact assessment shall include—

[(A) a description of—

[(i) the information to be collected;

[(ii) the purpose for the collection of the information and the reason each item of information is necessary and relevant;

[(iii)(I) any notice that will be provided to persons from whom information is collected; and

[(II) any choice that an individual who is the subject of the collection of information shall have to decline to provide information;

[(iv) the intended uses of the information and proposed limits on other uses of the information;

[(v) the intended recipients or users of the information and any limitations on access to or reuse or redisclosure of the information;

[(vi) the period for which the information will be retained;

[(vii) whether and by what means the individual who is the subject of the collection of information—

[(I) shall have access to the information about that individual; or

[(II) may exercise other rights under section 552a of title 5, United States Code; and

[(viii) security measures that will protect the information;

[(B) an assessment of the potential impact on privacy relating to risks and mitigation of risks; and

[(C) other information and analysis required under guidance issued by the Federal Chief Information Officer.

[(3) RESPONSIBILITIES OF THE FEDERAL CHIEF INFORMATION OFFICER.—The Federal Chief Information Officer shall—

[(A)(i) develop policies and guidelines for agencies on the conduct of privacy impact assessments; and

[(ii) oversee the implementation of the privacy impact assessment process throughout the Government;

[(B) require agencies to conduct privacy impact assessments in—

[(i) developing or procuring an information system; or

[(ii) planning for the initiation of a new collection of personally identifiable information;

[(C) require agencies to conduct privacy impact assessments of existing information systems or ongoing collections of personally identifiable information as the Federal Chief Information Officer determines appropriate;

[(D) assist agencies in developing privacy impact assessment policies; and

[(E) encourage officers and employees of an agency to consult with privacy officers of that agency in completing privacy impact assessments.

[(c) PRIVACY PROTECTIONS ON AGENCY WEBSITES.—

[(1) PRIVACY POLICIES ON WEBSITES.—

[(A) GUIDELINES FOR NOTICES.—The Federal Chief Information Officer shall develop guidelines for privacy notices on agency websites.

[(B) CONTENTS.—The guidelines shall require that a privacy notice include a description of—

[(i) information collected about visitors to the agency's website;

[(ii) the intended uses of the information collected;

[(iii) the choices that an individual may have in controlling collection or disclosure of information relating to that individual;

[(iv) the means by which an individual may be able to—

[(I) access personally identifiable information relating to that individual that is held by the agency; and

[(II) correct any inaccuracy in that information;

[(v) security procedures to protect information collected online;

[(vi) the period for which information will be retained; and

[(vii) the rights of an individual under statutes and regulations relating to the protection of individual privacy, including section 552a of title 5, United States Code (commonly referred to as the Privacy Act of 1974) and section 552 of that title (commonly referred to as the Freedom of Information Act).

[(2) PRIVACY POLICIES IN MACHINE-READABLE FORMATS.—

[(A) IN GENERAL.—The Federal Chief Information Officer shall promulgate guidelines and standards requiring agencies to translate privacy policies into a standardized machine-readable format.

[(B) WAIVER OR MODIFICATION.—The Federal Chief Information Officer may waive or modify the application of subparagraph (A), if the Federal Chief Information Officer determines that—

[(i) such application is impracticable; or

[(ii) a more practicable alternative shall be implemented.

[(C) NOTIFICATION.—Not later than 30 days after granting a waiver or modification under subparagraph (B), the Federal Chief Information Officer shall notify the Committee on Governmental Affairs of the Senate and the Committee on Government Reform of the House of Representatives of the reasons for the waiver or modification.

[SEC. 219. ACCESSIBILITY TO PEOPLE WITH DISABILITIES.

[All actions taken by Federal departments and agencies under this Act shall be in compliance with section 508 of the Rehabilitation Act of 1973 (29 U.S.C. 794d).

[SEC. 220. NOTIFICATION OF OBSOLETE OR COUNTERPRODUCTIVE PROVISIONS.

[If the Federal Chief Information Officer makes a determination that any provision of this Act (including any amendment made by this Act) is obsolete or counterproductive to the purposes of this Act, as a result of changes in technology or any other reason, the Federal Chief Information Officer shall submit notification of that determination to—

[(1) the Committee on Governmental Affairs of the Senate; and

[(2) the Committee on Government Reform of the House of Representatives.

[TITLE III—AUTHORIZATION OF APPROPRIATIONS AND EFFECTIVE DATE

[SEC. 301. AUTHORIZATION OF APPROPRIATIONS.

[Except for those purposes for which an authorization of appropriations is specifically provided in this Act, including the amendments made by this Act, there are authorized to be appropriated such sums as may be necessary to carry out this Act for each of fiscal years 2002 through 2006.

[SEC. 302. EFFECTIVE DATE.

[This Act and the amendments made by this Act shall take effect 120 days after the date of enactment of this Act.]

SECTION 1. SHORT TITLE; TABLE OF CONTENTS.

(a) SHORT TITLE.—This Act may be cited as the “E-Government Act of 2002”.

(b) TABLE OF CONTENTS.—The table of contents for this Act is as follows:

Sec. 1. Short title; table of contents.

Sec. 2. Findings and purposes.

TITLE I—OFFICE OF MANAGEMENT AND BUDGET ELECTRONIC GOVERNMENT SERVICES

Sec. 101. Management and promotion of Electronic Government services.

Sec. 102. Conforming amendments.

TITLE II—FEDERAL MANAGEMENT AND PROMOTION OF ELECTRONIC GOVERNMENT SERVICES

Sec. 201. Definitions.

Sec. 202. Federal agency responsibilities.

Sec. 203. Compatibility of Executive agency methods for use and acceptance of electronic signatures.

Sec. 204. Federal Internet portal.

Sec. 205. Federal courts.

Sec. 206. Regulatory agencies.

Sec. 207. Accessibility, usability, and preservation of Government information.

Sec. 208. Privacy provisions.

Sec. 209. Federal Information Technology workforce development.

Sec. 210. Common protocols for geographic information systems.

Sec. 211. Share-in-savings program improvements.

Sec. 212. Integrated reporting study and pilot projects.

Sec. 213. Community technology centers.

Sec. 214. Enhancing crisis management through advanced information technology.

Sec. 215. Disparities in access to the Internet.

Sec. 216. Notification of obsolete or counterproductive provisions.

TITLE III—GOVERNMENT INFORMATION SECURITY

Sec. 301. Information security.

TITLE IV—AUTHORIZATION OF APPROPRIATIONS AND EFFECTIVE DATES

Sec. 401. Authorization of appropriations.

Sec. 402. Effective dates.

SEC. 2. FINDINGS AND PURPOSES.

(a) FINDINGS.—Congress finds the following:

(1) The use of computers and the Internet is rapidly transforming societal interactions and the relationships among citizens, private businesses, and the Government.

(2) The Federal Government has had uneven success in applying advances in information technology to enhance governmental functions and services, achieve more efficient performance, increase access to Government information, and citizen participation in Government.

(3) Most Internet-based services of the Federal Government are developed and presented separately, according to the jurisdictional boundaries of an individual department or agency, rather than being integrated cooperatively according to function.

(4) Internet-based Government services involving interagency cooperation are especially difficult to develop and promote, in part because of a lack of sufficient funding mechanisms to support such interagency cooperation.

(5) Electronic Government has its impact through improved Government performance and outcomes within and across agencies.

(6) Electronic Government is a critical element in the management of Government, to be implemented as part of a management framework that also addresses finance, procurement, human capital, and other challenges to improve the performance of Government.

(7) To take full advantage of the improved Government performance that can be achieved through the use of Internet-based technology requires new leadership, better organization, improved interagency collaboration, and more focused oversight of agency compliance with statutes related to information resource management.

(b) PURPOSES.—The purposes of this Act are the following:

(1) To provide effective leadership of Federal Government efforts to develop and promote electronic Government services and processes by establishing an Administrator of a new Office of Electronic Government within the Office of Management and Budget.

(2) To promote use of the Internet and other information technologies to provide increased opportunities for citizen participation in Government.

(3) To promote interagency collaboration in providing electronic Government services, where this collaboration would improve the service to citizens by integrating related functions, and in the use of internal electronic Government processes, where this collaboration would improve the efficiency and effectiveness of the processes.

(4) To improve the ability of the Government to achieve agency missions and program performance goals.

(5) To promote the use of the Internet and emerging technologies within and across Government agencies to provide citizen-centric services.

(6) To reduce costs and burdens for businesses and other Government entities.

(7) To promote better informed decisionmaking by policy makers.

(8) To promote access to high quality information and services across multiple channels, available to customers through the channels which are preferred by the customer.

(9) To make the Federal Government more transparent and accountable.

(10) To transform agency operations by utilizing, where appropriate, best practices from public and private sector organizations.

TITLE I—OFFICE OF MANAGEMENT AND BUDGET ELECTRONIC GOVERNMENT SERVICES

SEC. 101. MANAGEMENT AND PROMOTION OF ELECTRONIC GOVERNMENT SERVICES.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Title 44, United States Code, is amended by inserting after chapter 35 the following:

“CHAPTER 36—MANAGEMENT AND PROMOTION OF ELECTRONIC GOVERNMENT SERVICES

“Sec.

“3601. Definitions.

“3602. Office of Electronic Government.

“3603. Chief Information Officers Council.

“3604. E-Government Fund.

“3605. E-Government report.

“§ 3601. Definitions

“In this chapter, the definitions under section 3502 shall apply, and the term—

“(1) ‘Administrator’ means the Administrator of the Office of Electronic Government established under section 3602;

“(2) ‘Council’ means the Chief Information Officers Council established under section 3603;

“(3) ‘electronic Government’ means the use by the Government of web-based Internet applications and other digital technologies, combined with processes that implement these technologies, to—

“(A) enhance the access to and delivery of Government information and services to the public, other agencies, and other Government entities; or

“(B) bring about improvements in Government operations that may include effectiveness, efficiency, service quality, or transformation;

“(4) ‘enterprise architecture’ means a framework for incorporating business processes, information flows, applications, and infrastructure to support agency and interagency goals;

“(5) ‘Fund’ means the E-Government Fund established under section 3604;

“(6) ‘interoperability’ means the ability of different software systems, applications, and services to communicate and exchange data in an accurate, effective, and consistent manner; and

“(7) ‘integrated service delivery’ means the provision of Internet-based Federal Government information or services integrated according to function rather than separated according to the boundaries of agency jurisdiction.

“§3602. Office of Electronic Government

“(a) There is established in the Office of Management and Budget an Office of Electronic Government.

“(b) There shall be at the head of the Office an Administrator who shall be appointed by the President, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate.

“(c) The Administrator shall assist the Director in carrying out—

“(1) all functions under this chapter;

“(2) all of the functions assigned to the Director under title II of the E-Government Act of 2002; and

“(3) other electronic government initiatives, consistent with other statutes.

“(d) The Administrator shall assist the Director and the Deputy Director for Management and work with the Administrator of the Office of Information and Regulatory Affairs in setting strategic direction for implementing electronic Government, under relevant statutes, including—

“(1) chapter 35;

“(2) division E of the Clinger-Cohen Act of 1996 (division E of Public Law 104-106; 40 U.S.C. 1401 et seq.);

“(3) section 552a of title 5 (commonly referred to as the Privacy Act);

“(4) the Government Paperwork Elimination Act (44 U.S.C. 3504 note);

“(5) the Government Information Security Reform Act; and

“(6) the Computer Security Act of 1987 (40 U.S.C. 759 note).

“(e) The Administrator shall work with the Administrator of the Office of Information and Regulatory Affairs and with other offices within the Office of Management and Budget to oversee implementation of electronic Government under this chapter, chapter 35, the E-Government Act of 2002, and other relevant statutes relating to—

“(1) capital planning and investment control for information technology;

“(2) the development of enterprise architectures;

“(3) information security;

“(4) privacy;

“(5) access to, dissemination of, and preservation of Government information; and

“(6) other areas of electronic Government.

“(f) Subject to requirements of this chapter, the Administrator shall assist the Director by performing electronic Government functions as follows:

“(1) Advise the Director on the resources required to develop and effectively operate and maintain Federal Government information systems.

“(2) Recommend to the Director changes relating to Governmentwide strategies and priorities for electronic Government.

“(3) Provide overall leadership and direction to the executive branch on electronic Government by working with authorized officials to establish information resources management policies and requirements, and by reviewing performance of each agency in acquiring, using, and managing information resources.

“(4) Promote innovative uses of information technology by agencies, particularly initiatives involving multiagency collaboration, through support of pilot projects, research, experimentation, and the use of innovative technologies.

“(5) Oversee the distribution of funds from, and ensure appropriate administration of, the E-Government Fund established under section 3604.

“(6) Coordinate with the Administrator of General Services regarding programs undertaken by the General Services Administration to promote electronic government and the efficient use of information technologies by agencies.

“(7) Lead the activities of the Chief Information Officers Council established under section 3603 on behalf of the Deputy Director for Management, who shall chair the council.

“(8) Assist the Director in establishing policies which shall set the framework for information technology standards for the Federal Government under section 5131 of the Clinger-Cohen Act of 1996 (40 U.S.C. 1441), to be developed by the National Institute of Standards and Technology and promulgated by the Secretary of Commerce, taking into account, if appropriate, recommendations of the Chief Information Officers Council, experts, and interested parties from the private and nonprofit sectors and State, local, and tribal governments, and maximizing the use of commercial standards as appropriate, as follows:

“(A) Standards and guidelines for interconnectivity and interoperability as described under section 3504.

“(B) Standards and guidelines for categorizing Federal Government electronic information to enable efficient use of technologies, such as through the use of extensible markup language.

“(C) Standards and guidelines for Federal Government computer system efficiency and security.

“(9) Sponsor ongoing dialogue that—

“(A) shall be conducted among Federal, State, local, and tribal government leaders on electronic Government in the executive, legislative, and judicial branches to encourage collaboration and enhance understanding of best practices and innovative approaches in acquiring, using, and managing information resources;

“(B) is intended to improve the performance of governments in collaborating on the use of information technology to improve the delivery of information and services; and

“(C) may include—

“(i) development of innovative models—

“(I) for electronic Government management and Government information technology contracts; and

“(II) that may be developed through focused discussions or using separately sponsored research;

“(ii) identification of opportunities for public-private collaboration in using Internet-based technology to increase the efficiency of Government-to-business transactions;

“(iii) identification of mechanisms for providing incentives to program managers and other Government employees to develop and implement innovative uses of information technologies; and

“(iv) identification of opportunities for public, private, and intergovernmental collaboration in addressing the disparities in access to the Internet and information technology.

“(10) Oversee the work of the General Services Administration and other agencies in developing the integrated Internet-based system under section 204 of the E-Government Act of 2002.

“(11) Coordinate with the Administrator of the Office of Federal Procurement Policy to ensure effective implementation of electronic procurement initiatives.

“(12) Assist Federal agencies, including the General Services Administration and the Department of Justice, and the United States Access Board in—

“(A) implementing accessibility standards under section 508 of the Rehabilitation Act of 1973 (29 U.S.C. 794d); and

“(B) ensuring compliance with those standards through the budget review process and other means.

“(13) Oversee the development of enterprise architectures within and across agencies.

“(14) Administer the Office of Electronic Government established under section 3602.

“(15) Assist the Director in preparing the E-Government report established under section 3605.

“(g) The Director shall ensure that the Office of Management and Budget, including the Office of Electronic Government, the Office of Information and Regulatory Affairs, and other relevant offices, have adequate staff and resources to properly fulfill all functions under the E-Government Act of 2002.

“§3603. Chief Information Officers Council

“(a) There is established in the executive branch a Chief Information Officers Council.

“(b) The members of the Council shall be as follows:

“(1) The Deputy Director for Management of the Office of Management and Budget, who shall act as chairperson of the Council.

“(2) The Administrator of the Office of Electronic Government.

“(3) The Administrator of the Office of Information and Regulatory Affairs.

“(4) The chief information officer of each agency described under section 901(b) of title 31.

“(5) The chief information officer of the Central Intelligence Agency.

“(6) The chief information officer of the Department of the Army, the Department of the Navy, and the Department of the Air Force, if chief information officers have been designated for such departments under section 3506(a)(2)(B).

“(7) Any other officer or employee of the United States designated by the chairperson.

“(c)(1) The Administrator of the Office of Electronic Government shall lead the activities of the Council on behalf of the Deputy Director for Management.

“(2)(A) The Vice Chairman of the Council shall be selected by the Council from among its members.

“(B) The Vice Chairman shall serve a 1-year term, and may serve multiple terms.

“(3) The Administrator of General Services shall provide administrative and other support for the Council.

“(d) The Council is designated the principal interagency forum for improving agency practices related to the design, acquisition, development, modernization, use, operation, sharing, and performance of Federal Government information resources.

“(e) The Council shall perform the following functions:

“(1) Develop recommendations for the Director on Government information resources management policies and requirements.

“(2) Share experiences, ideas, best practices, and innovative approaches related to information resources management.

“(3) Assist the Administrator in the identification, development, and coordination of multi-agency projects and other innovative initiatives to improve Government performance through the use of information technology.

“(4) Promote the development and use of common performance measures for agency information resources management under this chapter and title II of the E-Government Act of 2002.

“(5) Work as appropriate with the National Institute of Standards and Technology and the Administrator to develop recommendations on information technology standards developed under section 20 of the National Institute of Standards and Technology Act (15 U.S.C. 278g-3) and promulgated under section 5131 of the Clinger-Cohen Act of 1996 (40 U.S.C. 1441), as follows:

“(A) Standards and guidelines for interconnectivity and interoperability as described under section 3504.

“(B) Standards and guidelines for categorizing Federal Government electronic information to enable efficient use of technologies, such as through the use of extensible markup language.

“(C) Standards and guidelines for Federal Government computer system efficiency and security.

“(6) Work with the Office of Personnel Management to assess and address the hiring, training, classification, and professional development needs of the Government related to information resources management.

“§3604. E-Government Fund

“(a)(1) There is established in the General Services Administration the E-Government Fund.

“(2) The Fund shall be administered by the Administrator of the General Services Administration to support projects approved by the Director, assisted by the Administrator of the Office of Electronic Government, that enable the Federal Government to expand its ability, through the development and implementation of innovative uses of the Internet or other electronic methods, to conduct activities electronically.

“(3) Projects under this subsection may include efforts to—

“(A) make Federal information and services more readily available to members of the public (including individuals, businesses, grantees, and State and local governments);

“(B) make it easier for the public to apply for benefits, receive services, pursue business opportunities, submit information, and otherwise conduct transactions with the Federal Government; and

“(C) enable Federal agencies to take advantage of information technology in sharing information and conducting transactions with each other and with State and local governments.

“(b)(1) The Administrator shall—

“(A) establish procedures for accepting and reviewing proposals for funding; and

“(B) consult with interagency councils, including the Chief Information Officers Council, the Chief Financial Officers Council, and other interagency management councils, in establishing procedures and reviewing proposals.

“(2) When reviewing proposals and managing the Fund, the Administrator shall observe and incorporate the following procedures:

“(A) A project requiring substantial involvement or funding from an agency shall be approved by a senior official with agencywide authority on behalf of the head of the agency, who shall report directly to the head of the agency.

“(B) Projects shall adhere to fundamental capital planning and investment control processes.

“(C) Agencies shall assess the results of funded projects.

“(D) Agencies shall identify in their proposals resource commitments from the agencies involved, and include plans for potential continuation of projects after all funds made available from the Fund are expended.

“(E) After considering the recommendations of the interagency councils, the Director, assisted by the Administrator, shall have final authority to determine which of the candidate projects shall be funded from the Fund.

“(c) In determining which proposals to recommend for funding, the Administrator—

“(1) shall consider criteria that include whether a proposal—

“(A) identifies the customer group to be served, including citizens, businesses, the Federal Government, or other governments;

“(B) indicates what service or information the project will provide that meets needs of customers;

“(C) directly delivers services to the public or provides the infrastructure for delivery;

“(D) ensures proper security and protects privacy;

“(E) is interagency in scope, including projects implemented by a primary or single agency that—

“(i) could confer benefits on multiple agencies; and

“(ii) have the support of other agencies;

“(F) supports integrated service delivery;

“(G) describes how business processes across agencies will reflect appropriate transformation simultaneous to technology implementation;

“(H) has performance objectives that tie to agency missions and strategic goals, and interim results that relate to the objectives; and

“(I) is new or innovative and does not supplant existing funding streams within agencies; and

“(2) may also rank proposals based on criteria that include whether a proposal—

“(A) has Governmentwide application or implications;

“(B) has demonstrated support by the customers to be served;

“(C) integrates Federal with State, local, or tribal approaches to service delivery;

“(D) identifies resource commitments from nongovernmental sectors;

“(E) identifies resource commitments from the agencies involved; and

“(F) uses web-based technologies to achieve objectives.

“(d) The Fund may be used to fund the integrated Internet-based system under section 204 of the E-Government Act of 2002.

“(e) None of the funds provided from the Fund may be transferred to any agency until 15 days after the Administrator of the General Services Administration has submitted to the Committees on Appropriations of the Senate and the House of Representatives, the Committee on Governmental Affairs of the Senate, the Committee on Government Reform of the House of Representatives, and the appropriate authorizing committees of the Senate and the House of Representatives, a notification and description of how the funds are to be allocated and how the expenditure will further the purposes of this chapter.

“(f)(1) The Director shall report annually to Congress on the operation of the Fund, through the report established under section 3605.

“(2) The report shall describe—

“(A) all projects which the Director has approved for funding from the Fund; and

“(B) the results that have been achieved to date for these funded projects.

“(g)(1) There are authorized to be appropriated to the Fund—

“(A) $45,000,000 for fiscal year 2003;

“(B) $50,000,000 for fiscal year 2004;

“(C) $100,000,000 for fiscal year 2005;

“(D) $150,000,000 for fiscal year 2006; and

“(E) such sums as are necessary for fiscal year 2007.

“(2) Funds appropriated under this subsection shall remain available until expended.

“§3605. E-Government report

“(a) Not later than March 1 of each year, the Director shall submit an E-Government status report to the Committee on Governmental Affairs of the Senate and the Committee on Government Reform of the House of Representatives.

“(b) The report shall contain—

“(1) a summary of the information reported by agencies under section 202 (f) of the E-Government Act of 2002;

“(2) the information required to be reported by section 3604(f); and

“(3) a description of compliance by the Federal Government with other goals and provisions of the E-Government Act of 2002.”.

(b) TECHNICAL AND CONFORMING AMENDMENT.—The table of chapters for title 44, United States Code, is amended by inserting after the item relating to chapter 35 the following:

“36. Management and Promotion of Electronic Government Services ... 3601”.

SEC. 102. CONFORMING AMENDMENTS.

(a) ELECTRONIC GOVERNMENT AND INFORMATION TECHNOLOGIES.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—The Federal Property and Administrative Services Act of 1949 (40 U.S.C. 471 et seq.) is amended by inserting after section 112 the following:

“SEC. 113. ELECTRONIC GOVERNMENT AND INFORMATION TECHNOLOGIES.

“The Administrator of General Services shall consult with the Administrator of the Office of Electronic Government on programs undertaken by the General Services Administration to promote electronic Government and the efficient use of information technologies by Federal agencies.”.

(2) TECHNICAL AND CONFORMING AMENDMENT.—The table of sections for the Federal Property and Administrative Services Act of 1949 is amended by inserting after the item relating to section 112 the following:

“Sec. 113. Electronic Government and information technologies.”.

(b) MODIFICATION OF DEPUTY DIRECTOR FOR MANAGEMENT FUNCTIONS.—Section 503(b) of title 31, United States Code, is amended—

(1) by redesignating paragraphs (5), (6), (7), (8), and (9), as paragraphs (6), (7), (8), (9), and (10), respectively; and

(2) by inserting after paragraph (4) the following:

“(5) Chair the Chief Information Officers Council established under section 3603 of title 44.”.

(c) OFFICE OF ELECTRONIC GOVERNMENT.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—Chapter 5 of title 31, United States Code, is amended by inserting after section 506 the following:

“§507. Office of Electronic Government

“The Office of Electronic Government, established under section 3602 of title 44, is an office in the Office of Management and Budget.”.

(2) TECHNICAL AND CONFORMING AMENDMENT.—The table of sections for chapter 5 of title 31, United States Code, is amended by inserting after the item relating to section 506 the following:

“507. Office of Electronic Government.”.

TITLE II—FEDERAL MANAGEMENT AND PROMOTION OF ELECTRONIC GOVERNMENT SERVICES

SEC. 201. DEFINITIONS.

Except as otherwise provided, in this title the definitions under sections 3502 and 3601 of title 44, United States Code, shall apply.

SEC. 202. FEDERAL AGENCY RESPONSIBILITIES.

(a) IN GENERAL.—The head of each agency shall be responsible for—

(1) complying with the requirements of this Act (including the amendments made by this Act), the related information resource management policies and guidance established by the Director of the Office of Management and Budget, and the related information technology standards promulgated by the Secretary of Commerce;

(2) ensuring that the information resource management policies and guidance established under this Act by the Director, and the information technology standards promulgated under this Act by the Secretary of Commerce are communicated promptly and effectively to all relevant officials within their agency; and

(3) supporting the efforts of the Director and the Administrator of the General Services Administration to develop, maintain, and promote an integrated Internet-based system of delivering Federal Government information and services to the public under section 204.

(b) PERFORMANCE INTEGRATION.—

(1) Agencies shall develop performance measures that demonstrate how electronic government enables progress toward agency objectives and strategic goals.

(2) In measuring performance under this section, agencies shall rely on existing data collections to the extent practicable.

(3) Areas of performance measurement that agencies should consider include—

(A) customer service;

(B) agency productivity; and

(C) adoption of innovative information technology, including the appropriate use of commercial best practices.

(4) Agencies shall link their performance goals to key customer segments, including citizens, businesses, and other governments, and to internal Federal Government operations.

(5) As appropriate, agencies shall work collectively in linking their performance goals to key customer segments and shall use information technology in delivering information and services to common customer groups.

(c) AVOIDING DIMINISHED ACCESS.—When promulgating policies and implementing programs regarding the provision of information and services over the Internet, agency heads shall consider the impact on persons without access to the Internet, and shall, to the extent practicable—

(1) ensure that the availability of Government services and information has not been diminished for individuals who lack access to the Internet; and

(2) pursue alternate modes of delivery that make Government services and information more accessible to individuals who do not own computers or lack access to the Internet.

(d) ACCESSIBILITY TO PEOPLE WITH DISABILITIES.—All actions taken by Federal departments and agencies under this Act shall be in compliance with section 508 of the Rehabilitation Act of 1973 (29 U.S.C. 794d).

(e) CHIEF INFORMATION OFFICERS.—The Chief Information Officer of each of the agencies designated under chapter 36 of title 44, United States Code (as added by this Act) shall be responsible for—

(1) participating in the functions of the Chief Information Officers Council; and

(2) monitoring the implementation, within their respective agencies, of information technology standards promulgated under this Act by the Secretary of Commerce, including common standards for interconnectivity and interoperability, categorization of Federal Government electronic information, and computer system efficiency and security.

(f) E-GOVERNMENT STATUS REPORT.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—Each agency shall compile and submit to the Director an E-Government Status Report on—

(A) the status of the implementation by the agency of electronic government initiatives;

(B) compliance by the agency with this Act; and

(C) how electronic Government initiatives of the agency improve performance in delivering programs to constituencies.

(2) SUBMISSION.—Each agency shall submit a report under this subsection—

(A) to the Director at such time and in such manner as the Director requires; and

(B) consistent with related reporting requirements.

(g) USE OF TECHNOLOGY.—Nothing in this Act supersedes the responsibility of an agency to use information technology to deliver information and services that fulfill the statutory mission and programs of the agency.

SEC. 203. COMPATIBILITY OF EXECUTIVE AGENCY METHODS FOR USE AND ACCEPTANCE OF ELECTRONIC SIGNATURES.

(a) PURPOSE.—The purpose of this section is to achieve interoperable implementation of electronic signatures for secure electronic government.

(b) ELECTRONIC SIGNATURES.—In order to fulfill the objectives of the Government Paperwork Elimination Act (Public Law 105-277; 112 Stat. 2681-749 through 2681-751), each Executive agency (as defined under section 105 of title 5, United States Code) shall ensure that its methods for use and acceptance of electronic signatures are compatible with the relevant procedures and standards promulgated by the Director.

(c) AUTHORITY FOR ELECTRONIC SIGNATURES.—The Administrator of General Services shall support the Director by establishing a framework to allow efficient interoperability among Executive agencies when using electronic signatures, including certification of digital signatures.

(d) AUTHORIZATION OF APPROPRIATIONS.—There are authorized to be appropriated to the General Services Administration, to ensure the development and operation of a Federal bridge certification authority for digital signature compatibility, or for other activities consistent with this section, $8,000,000 in fiscal year 2003, and such sums as are necessary for each fiscal year thereafter.

SEC. 204. FEDERAL INTERNET PORTAL.

(a) IN GENERAL.—

(1) PUBLIC ACCESS.—The Director shall work with the Administrator of the General Services Administration and other agencies to maintain and promote an integrated Internet-based system of providing the public with access to Government information and services.

(2) CRITERIA.—To the extent practicable, the integrated system shall be designed and operated according to the following criteria:

(A) The provision of Internet-based Government information and services directed to key customer groups, including citizens, business, and other governments, and integrated according to function rather than separated according to the boundaries of agency jurisdiction.

(B) An ongoing effort to ensure that Internet-based Government services relevant to a given citizen activity are available from a single point.

(C) Access to Federal Government information and services consolidated, as appropriate, with Internet-based information and services provided by State, local, and tribal governments.

(b) AUTHORIZATION OF APPROPRIATIONS.—There are authorized to be appropriated to the General Services Administration $15,000,000 for the maintenance, improvement, and promotion of the integrated Internet-based system for fiscal year 2003, and such sums as are necessary for fiscal years 2004 through 2007.

SEC. 205. FEDERAL COURTS.

(a) INDIVIDUAL COURT WEBSITES.—The Chief Justice of the United States, the chief judge of each circuit and district, and the chief bankruptcy judge of each district shall establish with respect to the Supreme Court or the respective court of appeals, district, or bankruptcy court of a district, a website that contains the following information or links to websites with the following information:

(1) Location and contact information for the courthouse, including the telephone numbers and contact names for the clerk's office and justices' or judges' chambers.

(2) Local rules and standing or general orders of the court.

(3) Individual rules, if in existence, of each justice or judge in that court.

(4) Access to docket information for each case.

(5) Access to the substance of all written opinions issued by the court, regardless of whether such opinions are to be published in the official court reporter, in a text searchable format.

(6) Access to all documents filed with the courthouse in electronic form, described under subsection (c).

(7) Any other information (including forms in a format that can be downloaded) that the court determines useful to the public.

(b) MAINTENANCE OF DATA ONLINE.—

(1) UPDATE OF INFORMATION.—The information and rules on each website shall be updated regularly and kept reasonably current.

(2) CLOSED CASES.—Electronic files and docket information for cases closed for more than 1 year are not required to be made available online, except all written opinions with a date of issuance after the effective date of this section shall remain available online.

(c) ELECTRONIC FILINGS.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—Except as provided under paragraph (2), each court shall make any document that is filed electronically publicly available online. A court may convert any document that is filed in paper form to electronic form. To the extent such conversions are made, all such electronic versions of the document shall be made available online.

(2) EXCEPTIONS.—

(A) IN GENERAL.—Documents that are filed that are not otherwise available to the public, such as documents filed under seal, shall not be made available online.

(B) LIMITATION.—

(i) IN GENERAL.—A party, witness, or other person with an interest may file a motion with the court to redact any document that would be made available online under this section.

(ii) REDACTION.—A redaction under this subparagraph shall be made only to—

(I) the electronic form of the document made available online; and

(II) the extent necessary to protect important privacy concerns.

(3) PRIVACY AND SECURITY CONCERNS.—The Judicial Conference of the United States may promulgate rules under this subsection to protect important privacy and security concerns.

(d) DOCKETS WITH LINKS TO DOCUMENTS.—The Judicial Conference of the United States shall explore the feasibility of technology to post online dockets with links allowing all filings, decisions, and rulings in each case to be obtained from the docket sheet of that case.

(e) COST OF PROVIDING ELECTRONIC DOCKETING INFORMATION.—Section 303(a) of the Judiciary Appropriations Act, 1992 (28 U.S.C. 1913 note) is amended in the first sentence by striking "shall hereafter" and inserting "may, only to the extent necessary,".

(f) TIME REQUIREMENTS.—Not later than 2 years after the effective date of this title, the websites under subsection (a) shall be established, except that access to documents filed in electronic form shall be established not later than 4 years after that effective date.

(g) DEFERRAL.—(1) IN GENERAL.—*(A) ELECTION.—

(i) NOTIFICATION.—The Chief Justice of the United States, a chief judge, or chief bankruptcy judge may submit a notification to the Administrative Office of the United States Courts to defer compliance with any requirement of this section with respect to the Supreme Court, a court of appeals, district, or the bankruptcy court of a district.

(ii) CONTENTS.—A notification submitted under this subparagraph shall state—

(I) the reasons for the deferral; and

(II) the online methods, if any, or any alternative methods, such court or district is using to provide greater public access to information.

(B) EXCEPTION.—To the extent that the Supreme Court, a court of appeals, district, or bankruptcy court of a district maintains a website under subsection (a), the Supreme Court or that court of appeals or district shall comply with subsection (b)(1).

(2) REPORT.—Not later than 1 year after the effective date of this title, and every year thereafter, the Judicial Conference of the United States shall submit a report to the Committees on Governmental Affairs and the Judiciary of the Senate and the Committees on Government Reform and the Judiciary of the House of Representatives that—

(A) contains all notifications submitted to the Administrative Office of the United States Courts under this subsection; and

(B) summarizes and evaluates all notifications.

SEC. 206. REGULATORY AGENCIES.

(a) PURPOSES.—The purposes of this section are to—

(1) improve performance in the development and issuance of agency regulations by using information technology to increase access, accountability, and transparency; and

(2) enhance public participation in Government by electronic means, consistent with requirements under subchapter II of chapter 5 of title 5, United States Code, (commonly referred to as the Administrative Procedures Act).

(b) INFORMATION PROVIDED BY AGENCIES ONLINE.—To the extent practicable as determined by the agency in consultation with the Director, each agency (as defined under section 551 of title 5, United States Code) shall ensure that a publicly accessible Federal Government website includes all information about that agency required to be published in the Federal Register under section 552(a)(1) of title 5, United States Code.

(c) SUBMISSIONS BY ELECTRONIC MEANS.—To the extent practicable, agencies shall accept submissions under section 553(c) of title 5, United States Code, by electronic means, including e-mail and telefacsimile.

(d) ELECTRONIC DOCKETING.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—To the extent practicable, as determined by the agency in consultation with the Director, agencies shall ensure that a publicly accessible Federal Government website contains electronic dockets for rulemakings under section 553 of title 5, United States Code.

(2) INFORMATION AVAILABLE.—Agency electronic dockets shall make publicly available online to the extent practicable, as determined by the agency in consultation with the Director—

(A) all submissions under section 553(c) of title 5, United States Code; and

(B) other materials that by agency rule or practice are included in the rulemaking docket under section 553(c) of title 5, United States Code, whether or not submitted electronically.

(e) TIME LIMITATION.—Agencies shall implement the requirements of this section consistent with a timetable established by the Director and reported to Congress in the first annual report under section 3605 of title 44 (as added by this Act).

SEC. 207. ACCESSIBILITY, USABILITY, AND PRESERVATION OF GOVERNMENT INFORMATION.

(a) PURPOSE.—The purpose of this section is to improve the methods by which Government information, including information on the Internet, is organized, preserved, and made accessible to the public.

(b) DEFINITIONS.—In this section, the term—

(1) “agency” has the meaning given under section 3502(1) of title 44, United States Code;

(2) “Committee” means the Interagency Committee on Government Information established under subsection (c);

(3) “directory” means a taxonomy of subjects linked to websites that—

(A) organizes Government information on the Internet according to subject matter; and

(B) may be created with the participation of human editors;

(4) “Government information” means information created, collected, processed, disseminated, or disposed of by or for the Federal Government; and

(5) “information” means any communication or representation of knowledge such as facts, data, or opinions, in any medium or form, including textual, numerical, graphic, cartographic, narrative, or audiovisual forms.

(c) INTERAGENCY COMMITTEE.—

(1) ESTABLISHMENT.—Not later than 90 days after the date of enactment of this title, the Director shall establish the Interagency Committee on Government Information.

(2) MEMBERSHIP.—The Committee shall be chaired by the Director or the designee of the Director and—

(A) shall include representatives from—

(i) the National Archives and Records Administration;

(ii) the offices of the Chief Information Officers from Federal agencies; and

(iii) other relevant officers from the executive branch; and

(B) may include representatives from the Federal legislative and judicial branches.

(3) FUNCTIONS.—The Committee shall—

(A) engage in public consultation to the maximum extent feasible, including consultation with interested communities such as public advocacy organizations;

(B) conduct studies and submit recommendations, as provided under this section, to the Director and Congress;

(C) act as a resource to assist agencies in the effective implementation of policies derived from this Act; and

(D) share effective practices for access to, dissemination of, and retention of Federal information.

(4) TERMINATION.—The Committee shall terminate on a date determined by the Director, except the Committee may not terminate before the Committee submits all recommendations required under this section.

(d) CATEGORIZING OF INFORMATION.—

(1) COMMITTEE FUNCTIONS.—Not later than 1 year after the date of enactment of this Act, the Committee shall submit recommendations to the Director on—

(A) the adoption of standards, which are open to the maximum extent feasible, to enable the organization and categorization of Government information—

(i) in a way that is searchable electronically, including by searchable identifiers; and

(iii) in ways that are interoperable across agencies;

(B) the definition of categories of Government information which should be classified under the standards; and

(C) determining priorities and developing schedules for the initial implementation of the standards by agencies.

(2) FUNCTIONS OF THE DIRECTOR.—Not later than 180 days after the submission of recommendations under paragraph (1), the Director shall issue policies—

(A) requiring the adoption of standards, which are open to the maximum extent feasible, to enable the organization and categorization of Government information—

(i) in a way that is searchable electronically, including by searchable identifiers; and

(ii) in ways that are interoperable across agencies;

(B) defining categories of Government information which shall be required to be classified under the standards; and

(C) determining priorities and developing schedules for the initial implementation of the standards by agencies.

(3) COMPLIANCE REPORT.—After the submission of agency reports under paragraph (4), the Director shall—

(A) annually report to Congress on compliance with this subsection in the E-Government report under section 3605 of title 44, United States Code (as added by this Act); and

(B) modify the policies, as needed, in consultation with the Committee and interested parties.

(4) AGENCY FUNCTIONS.—Each agency shall report annually to the Director, in the report established under section 202(f), on compliance of that agency with the policies issued under paragraph (2)(A).

(e) PUBLIC ACCESS TO ELECTRONIC INFORMATION.—

(1) COMMITTEE FUNCTIONS.—Not later than 1 year after the date of enactment of this Act, the Committee shall submit recommendations to the Director and the Archivist of the United States on—

(A) the adoption by agencies of policies and procedures to ensure that chapters 21, 25, 27, 29, and 31 of title 44, United States Code, are applied effectively and comprehensively to Government information on the Internet and to other electronic records; and

(B) the imposition of timetables for the implementation of the policies and procedures by agencies.

(2) FUNCTIONS OF THE ARCHIVIST.—Not later than 180 days after the submission of recommendations by the Committee under paragraph (1), the Archivist of the United States shall issue policies—

(A) requiring the adoption by agencies of policies and procedures to ensure that chapters 21, 25, 27, 29, and 31 of title 44, United States Code, are applied effectively and comprehensively to Government information on the Internet and to other electronic records; and

(B) imposing timetables for the implementation of the policies, procedures, and technologies by agencies.

(3) MODIFICATION OF POLICIES.—After the submission of agency reports under paragraph (4), the Archivist of the United States shall modify the policies, as needed, in consultation with the Committee and interested parties.

(4) AGENCY FUNCTIONS.—Each agency shall report annually to the Director, in the report established under section 202(f), on compliance of that agency with the policies issued under paragraph (2)(A).

(5) FUNCTIONS OF THE DIRECTOR.—After the submission of agency reports under paragraph (4), the Director shall annually report to Congress on compliance with this subsection in the E-Government report under section 3605 of title 44 (as added by this Act).

(f) EDUCATIONAL RESOURCE MATERIALS.—

(1) COMMITTEE FUNCTIONS.—

(A) IDENTIFICATION OF AGENCIES.—Not later than 90 days after the date of enactment of this Act, the Committee shall identify agencies involved in disseminating educational resources materials.

(B) RECOMMENDATIONS.—Not later than 15 months after the date of enactment of this Act, working with the Librarian of Congress, the Archivist of the United States, the Director or the Institute of Museum and Library Services, and the agencies previously identified by the Committee, and after consultation with interested parties, including libraries, historical societies, archival institutions, and other cultural and academic organizations, the Committee shall submit recommendations to the Director on—

(i) policies to promote coordinated access to educational resources materials on the Internet; and

(ii) the imposition of timetables for the implementation of the policies by agencies, where appropriate.

(2) FUNCTIONS OF THE DIRECTOR.—

(A) Not later than 180 days after the submission of recommendations by the Committee under paragraph (1)(B), the Director shall issue policies—

(i) promoting coordinated access to educational resources materials on the Internet; and

(ii) imposing timetables for the implementation of the policies by agencies, as appropriate.

(B) After the submission of agency reports under paragraph (3), the Director shall—

(i) annually report to Congress on compliance with this subsection in the E-Government report under section 3605 of title 44 (as added by this Act); and

(ii) refine the policies, as needed, in consultation with the Committee and interested parties.

(3) AGENCY FUNCTIONS.—Each agency shall report annually to the Director, in the report established in section 202(f), on compliance of that agency with the policies issued under paragraph (2)(A).

(g) AVAILABILITY OF GOVERNMENT INFORMATION ON THE INTERNET.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—Not later than 1 year after the date of enactment of this Act, each agency shall—

(A) consult with the Committee and solicit public comment;

(B) determine which Government information the agency intends to make available and accessible to the public on the Internet and by other means;

(C) develop priorities and schedules for making that Government information available and accessible;

(D) make such final determinations, priorities, and schedules available for public comment;

(E) post such final determinations, priorities, and schedules on the Internet; and

(F) submit such final determinations, priorities, and schedules to the Director, in the report established under section 202(f).

(2) UPDATE.—Each agency shall update determinations, priorities, and schedules of the agency, as needed, after consulting with the Committee and soliciting public comment, if appropriate.

(h) ACCESS TO FEDERALLY FUNDED RESEARCH AND DEVELOPMENT.—

(1) DEFINITIONS.—In this subsection, the term—

(A) “essential information” shall include—

(i) the name, mission, and annual budget authority for research and development of all Federal agencies, constituent bureaus of agencies, the constituent programs of such bureaus, and the constituent projects of such programs; and

(ii) details on every separable research and development task performed intramurally within the Federal entities described under clause (i) on every extramural research and development award made by the Federal entities described under clause (i), and on every individual research and development task or award, including field work proposals, made by a federally funded research and development center, including—

(I) the unique identifying number of the task or award;

(II) the dates upon which the research and development task or award is expected to start and end;

(III) an abstract describing the objective and the scientific and technical focus of the research and development task or award;

(IV) the name of the principal person or persons performing the research and development, their contact information and institutional affiliations, and the geographic location of the institution;

(V) the total amount of Federal funds expected to be provided to the research and development task or award over its lifetime and the amount of funds expected to be provided in each fiscal year in which the work of the research and development task or award is ongoing;

(VI) the type of legal instrument under which the research and development funds were transferred to the recipient;

(VII) the name and location of any industrial partner formally involved in the performance of the research and development task or award;

(VIII) any restrictions attached to the task or award that would prevent the sharing with the general public of any or all of the information determined to be essential information, and the reasons for such restrictions; and

(IX) such other information as may be determined to be appropriate; and

(B) “Federal research and development”—

(i) means those activities which constitute basic research, applied research, and development as defined by the Director; and

(ii) shall include all funds spent on Federal research and development that are provided to—

(I) institutions and entities not a part of the Federal Government, including—

(aa) State, local, and foreign governments;

(bb) industrial firms;

(cc) educational institutions;

(dd) not-for-profit organizations;

(ee) federally funded research and development centers; and

(ff) private individuals; and

(II) entities of the Federal Government, including research and development laboratories, centers, and offices.

(2) DEVELOPMENT AND MAINTENANCE OF GOVERNMENTWIDE DATABASE AND WEBSITE.—

(A) DATABASE AND WEBSITE.—The Director of the National Science Foundation, working with the Director of the Office of Management and Budget and the Director of the Office of Science and Technology Policy, shall develop and maintain—

(i) a database that fully integrates, to the maximum extent feasible, all essential information on Federal research and development that is gathered and maintained by Federal agencies; and

(ii) 1 or more websites upon which all or part of the database of Federal research and development shall be made available to and searchable by Federal agencies and non-Federal entities, including the general public, to facilitate—

(I) the coordination of Federal research and development activities;

(II) collaboration among those conducting Federal research and development;

(III) the transfer of technology among Federal agencies and between Federal agencies and non-Federal entities; and

(IV) access by policymakers and the public to information concerning Federal research and development activities.

(B) OVERSIGHT.—The Director of the Office of Management and Budget shall oversee the development and operation of the database and website and issue any guidance determined necessary to ensure that agencies provide all essential information requested under this subsection.

(3) AGENCY FUNCTIONS.—

(A) IN GENERAL.—Any agency that funds Federal research and development of this subsection shall—

(i) provide the information required to populate the database in the manner prescribed by the Director of the Office of Management and Budget; and

(ii) report annually to the Director, in the report established under section 202(f), on compliance of that agency with the requirements established under this subsection.

(B) REQUIREMENTS.—An agency may impose reporting requirements necessary for the implementation of this section on recipients of Federal research and development funding as a condition of receiving the funding.

(4) COMMITTEE FUNCTIONS.—Not later than 1 year after the date of enactment of this Act, working with the Director of the Office of Science and Technology Policy, and after consultation with interested parties, the Committee shall submit recommendations to the Director on—

(A) policies to improve agency reporting of information for the database established under this subsection; and

(B) policies to improve dissemination of the results of research performed by Federal agencies and federally funded research and development centers.

(5) FUNCTIONS OF THE DIRECTOR.—

(A) RECOMMENDATIONS.—After submission of recommendations by the Committee under paragraph (4), the Director shall report on the recommendations of the Committee and Director to Congress, in the E-Government report under section 3605 of title 44 (as added by this Act).

(B) COMPLIANCE.—The Director shall annually report to Congress on agency compliance with the requirements established under paragraph (3).

(6) AUTHORIZATION OF APPROPRIATIONS.—There are authorized to be appropriated to the National Science Foundation for the development, maintenance, and operation of the governmentwide database and website under this subsection—

(A) $2,000,000 in each of the fiscal years 2003 through 2005; and

(B) such sums as are necessary in each of the fiscal years 2006 and 2007.

(i) PUBLIC DOMAIN DIRECTORY OF FEDERAL GOVERNMENT WEBSITES.—

(1) ESTABLISHMENT.—Not later than 2 years after the effective date of this title, the Director and each agency shall—

(A) develop and establish a public domain directory of Federal Government websites; and

(B) post the directory on the Internet with a link to the integrated Internet-based system established under section 204.

(2) DEVELOPMENT.—With the assistance of each agency, the Director shall—

(A) direct the development of the directory through a collaborative effort, including input from—

(i) agency librarians;

(ii) information technology managers;

(iii) program managers;

(iv) records managers;

(v) Federal depository librarians; and

(vi) other interested parties; and

(B) develop a public domain taxonomy of subjects used to review and categorize Federal Government websites.

(3) UPDATE.—With the assistance of each agency, the Administrator of the Office of Electronic Government shall—

(A) update the directory as necessary, but not less than every 6 months; and

(B) solicit interested persons for improvements to the directory.

(j) STANDARDS FOR AGENCY WEBSITES.—Not later than 1 year after the effective date of this title, the Director shall promulgate guidance for agency websites that include—

(1) requirements that websites include direct links to—

(A) descriptions of the mission and statutory authority of the agency;

(B) the electronic reading rooms of the agency relating to the disclosure of information under section 552 of title 5, United States Code (commonly referred to as the Freedom of Information Act);

(C) information about the organizational structure of the agency, with an outline linked to the agency online staff directory; and

(D) the strategic plan of the agency developed under section 306 of title 5, United States Code; and

(2) minimum agency goals to assist public users to navigate agency websites, including—

(A) speed of retrieval of search results;

(B) the relevance of the results; and

(C) tools to aggregate and disaggregate data.

SEC. 208. PRIVACY PROVISIONS.

(a) PURPOSE.—The purpose of this section is to ensure sufficient protections for the privacy of personal information as agencies implement citizen-centered electronic Government.

(b) PRIVACY IMPACT ASSESSMENTS.—
(1) RESPONSIBILITIES OF AGENCIES.—

(A) IN GENERAL.—An agency shall take actions described under subparagraph (B) in subsection (b)(1)(B), before—

(i) developing or procuring information technology that collects, maintains, or disseminates information that includes any identifier permitting the physical or online contacting of a specific individual; or

(ii) initiating a new collection of information that—

(I) will be collected, maintained, or disseminated electronically; and

(II) includes any identifier permitting the physical or online contacting of a specific individual, if the information concerns 10 or more persons.

(B) AGENCY ACTIVITIES.—To the extent required under subparagraph (A), each agency shall—

(i) conduct a privacy impact assessment;

(ii) ensure the review of the privacy impact assessment by the Chief Information Officer, or equivalent official, as determined by the head of the agency; and

(iii) if practicable, after completion of the review under clause (ii), make the privacy impact assessment publicly available, through the website of the agency, publication in the Federal Register, or other means.

(C) SENSITIVE INFORMATION.—Subparagraph (B)(iii) may be modified or waived to protect classified, sensitive, or private information contained in an assessment.

(D) COPY TO DIRECTOR.—Agencies shall provide the Director with a copy of the privacy impact assessment for each system for which funding is requested.

(2) CONTENTS OF A PRIVACY IMPACT ASSESSMENT.—

(A) IN GENERAL.—The Director shall issue guidance to agencies specifying the required contents of a privacy impact assessment.

(B) GUIDANCE.—The guidance shall—

(i) ensure that a privacy impact assessment is commensurate with the size of the information system being assessed, the sensitivity of personally identifiable information in that system, and the risk of harm from unauthorized release of that information; and

(ii) require that a privacy impact assessment address—

(I) what information is to be collected;

(II) why the information is being collected;

(III) the intended use of the agency of the information;

(IV) with whom the information will be shared;

(V) what notice or opportunities for consent would be provided to individuals regarding what information is collected and how that information is shared;

(VI) how the information will be secured; and

(VII) whether a system of records is being created under section 552a of title 5, United States Code, (commonly referred to as the Privacy Act).

(3) RESPONSIBILITIES OF THE DIRECTOR.—The Director shall—

(A) develop policies and guidelines for agencies on the conduct of privacy impact assessments;

(B) oversee the implementation of the privacy impact assessment process throughout the Government; and

(C) require agencies to conduct privacy impact assessments of existing information systems or ongoing collections of personally identifiable information as the Director determines appropriate.

(c) PRIVACY PROTECTIONS ON AGENCY WEBSITES.—

(1) PRIVACY POLICIES ON WEBSITES.—

(A) GUIDELINES FOR NOTICES.—The Director shall develop guidance for privacy notices on agency websites.

(B) CONTENTS.—The guidance shall require that a privacy notice address—

(i) what information is to be collected;

(ii) why the information is being collected;

(iii) the intended use of the agency of the information;

(iv) with whom the information will be shared;

(v) what notice or opportunities for consent would be provided to individuals regarding what information is collected and how that information is shared;

(vi) how the information will be secured; and

(vii) a statement of the rights of the individual under section 552a of title 5, United States Code (commonly referred to as the Privacy Act), and other laws relevant to the protection of the privacy of an individual.

(2) PRIVACY POLICIES IN MACHINE-READABLE FORMATS.—The Director shall issue guidance requiring agencies to translate privacy policies into a standardized machine-readable format.

SEC. 209. FEDERAL INFORMATION TECHNOLOGY WORKFORCE DEVELOPMENT.

(a) PURPOSE.—The purpose of this section is to improve the skills of the Federal workforce in using information technology to deliver information and services.

(b) IN GENERAL.—In consultation with the Director, the Chief Information Officers Council, and the Administrator of General Services, the Director of the Office of Personnel Management shall oversee the development and operation of a Federal Information Technology Training Center (in this section referred to as the "Training Center").

(c) FUNCTIONS.—The Training Center shall—

(1) analyze, on an ongoing basis, the personnel needs of the Federal Government related to information technology and information resource management;

(2) oversee the development of curricula, training methods, and training schedules that correspond to the projected personnel needs of the Federal Government related to information technology and information resource management; and

(3) oversee the training of Federal employees in information technology disciplines, as necessary, at a rate that ensures that the information resource management needs of the Federal Government are met.

(d) EMPLOYEE PARTICIPATION.—Subject to information resource management needs and the limitations imposed by resource needs in other occupational areas, and consistent with their overall workforce development strategies, agencies shall encourage employees to participate in the occupational information technology curricula of the Training Center.

(e) AUTHORIZATION OF APPROPRIATIONS.—There are authorized to be appropriated to the Office of Personnel Management for overseeing the development and operation of the Training Center, $7,000,000 in fiscal year 2003, and such sums as are necessary for each fiscal year thereafter.

SEC. 210. COMMON PROTOCOLS FOR GEOGRAPHIC INFORMATION SYSTEMS.

(a) PURPOSES.—The purposes of this section are to—

(1) reduce redundant data collection and information; and

(2) promote collaboration and use of standards for government geographic information.

(b) DEFINITION.—In this section, the term "geographic information" means information systems that involve locational data, such as maps or other geospatial information resources.

(c) IN GENERAL.—

(1) COMMON PROTOCOLS.—The Secretary of the Interior, working with the Director and through an interagency group, and working with private sector experts, State, local, and tribal governments, commercial and international standards groups, and other interested parties, shall facilitate the development of common protocols for the development, acquisition, maintenance, distribution, and application of geographic information. If practicable, the Secretary of the Interior shall incorporate intergovernmental and public private geographic information partnerships into efforts under this subsection.

(2) INTERAGENCY GROUP.—The interagency group referred to under paragraph (1) shall include representatives of the National Institute of Standards and Technology and other agencies.

(d) DIRECTOR.—The Director shall—

(1) oversee the interagency initiative to develop common protocols;

(2) oversee the coordination with State, local, and tribal governments, public private partnerships, and other interested persons on effective and efficient ways to align geographic information and develop common protocols; and

(3) oversee the adoption of common standards relating to the protocols.

(e) COMMON PROTOCOLS.—The common protocols shall be designed to—

(1) maximize the degree to which unclassified geographic information from various sources can be made electronically compatible and accessible; and

(2) promote the development of interoperable geographic information systems technologies that shall—

(A) allow widespread, low-cost use and sharing of geographic data by Federal agencies, State, local, and tribal governments, and the public; and

(B) enable the enhancement of services using geographic data.

(f) AUTHORIZATION OF APPROPRIATIONS.—There are authorized to be appropriated to the Department of the Interior such sums as are necessary to carry out this section, for each of the fiscal years 2003 through 2007.

SEC. 211. SHARE-IN-SAVINGS PROGRAM IMPROVEMENTS.

Section 5311 of the Clinger-Cohen Act of 1996 (divisions D and E of Public Law 104-106; 110 Stat. 692; 40 U.S.C. 1491) is amended—

(1) in subsection (a)—

(A) by striking "the heads of two executive agencies to carry out" and inserting "heads of executive agencies to carry out a total of 5 projects under";

(B) by striking "and" at the end of paragraph (1);

(C) by striking the period at the end of paragraph (2) and inserting "; and"; and

(D) by adding at the end the following:

"(3) encouraging the use of the contracting and sharing approach described in paragraphs (1) and (2) by allowing the head of the executive agency conducting a project under the pilot program—

"(A) to retain, out of the appropriation accounts of the executive agency in which savings computed under paragraph (2) are realized as a result of the project, up to the amount equal to half of the excess of—

"(i) the total amount of the savings; over

"(ii) the total amount of the portion of the savings paid to the private sector source for such project under paragraph (2); and

"(B) to use the retained amount to acquire additional information technology.";

(2) in subsection (b)—

(A) by inserting "a project under" after "authorized to carry out"; and

(B) by striking "carry out one project and"; and

(3) in subsection (c), by inserting before the period "and the Administrator for the Office of Electronic Government"; and

(4) by inserting after subsection (c) the following:

“(d) REPORT.—

“(1) IN GENERAL.—After 5 pilot projects have been completed, but no later than 3 years after the effective date of this subsection, the Director shall submit a report on the results of the projects to the Committee on Governmental Affairs of the Senate and the Committee on Government Reform of the House of Representatives.

“(2) CONTENTS.—The report shall include—

“(A) a description of the reduced costs and other measurable benefits of the pilot projects;

“(B) a description of the ability of agencies to determine the baseline costs of a project against which savings would be measured; and

“(C) recommendations of the Director relating to whether Congress should provide general authority to the heads of executive agencies to use a share-in-savings contracting approach to the acquisition of information technology solutions for improving mission-related or administrative processes of the Federal Government.”.

SEC. 212. INTEGRATED REPORTING STUDY AND PILOT PROJECTS.

(a) PURPOSES.—The purposes of this section are to—

(1) enhance the interoperability of Federal information systems;

(2) assist the public, including the regulated community, in electronically submitting information to agencies under Federal requirements, by reducing the burden of duplicate collection and ensuring the accuracy of submitted information; and

(3) enable any person to integrate and obtain similar information held by 1 or more agencies under 1 or more Federal requirements without violating the privacy rights of an individual.

(b) DEFINITIONS.—In this section, the term—

(1) “agency” means an Executive agency as defined under section 105 of title 5, United States Code; and

(2) “person” means any individual, trust, firm, joint stock company, corporation (including a government corporation), partnership, association, State, municipality, commission, political subdivision of a State, interstate body, or agency or component of the Federal Government.

(c) REPORT.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—Not later than 3 years after the date of enactment of this Act, the Director shall conduct a study and submit a report to the Committee on Governmental Affairs of the Senate and the Committee on Government Reform of the House of Representatives on progress toward integrating Federal information systems across agencies.

(2) CONTENTS.—The report under this section shall—

(A) address the integration of data elements used in the electronic collection of information within databases established under Federal statute without reducing the quality, accessibility, scope, or utility of the information contained in each database;

(B) address the feasibility of developing, or enabling the development of, software, including Internet-based tools, for use by reporting persons in assembling, documenting, and validating the accuracy of information electronically submitted to agencies under nonvoluntary, statutory, and regulatory requirements; and

(C) address the feasibility of developing a distributed information system involving, on a voluntary basis, at least 2 agencies, that—

(i) provides consistent, dependable, and timely public access to the information holdings of 1 or more agencies, or some portion of such holdings, including the underlying raw data, without requiring public users to know which agency holds the information; and

(ii) allows the integration of public information held by the participating agencies;

(D) address the feasibility of incorporating other elements related to the purposes of this section at the discretion of the Director; and

(E) make recommendations that Congress or the executive branch can implement, through the use of integrated reporting and information systems, to reduce the burden on reporting and strengthen public access to databases within and across agencies.

(d) PILOT PROJECTS TO ENCOURAGE INTEGRATED COLLECTION AND MANAGEMENT OF DATA AND INTEROPERABILITY OF FEDERAL INFORMATION SYSTEMS.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—In order to provide input to the study under subsection (c), the Director shall designate a series of no more than 5 pilot projects that integrate data elements. The Director shall consult with agencies, the regulated community, public interest organizations, and the public on the implementation.

(2) GOALS OF PILOT PROJECTS.—

(A) IN GENERAL.—Each goal described under subparagraph (B) shall be addressed by at least 1 pilot project each.

(B) GOALS.—The goals under this paragraph are to—

(i) reduce information collection burdens by eliminating duplicative data elements within 2 or more reporting requirements;

(ii) create interoperability between or among public databases managed by 2 or more agencies using technologies and techniques that facilitate public access; and

(iii) develop, or enable the development, of software to reduce errors in electronically submitted information.

(3) INPUT.—Each pilot project shall seek input from users on the utility of the pilot project and areas for improvement. To the extent practicable, the Director shall consult with relevant agencies and State, tribal, and local governments in carrying out the report and pilot projects under this section.

(e) PRIVACY PROTECTIONS.—The activities authorized under this section shall afford protections for—

(1) confidential business information consistent with section 552(b)(4) of title 5, United States Code, and other relevant law; and

(2) personal privacy information under section 552a of title 5, United States Code, and other relevant law.

SEC. 213. COMMUNITY TECHNOLOGY CENTERS.

(a) PURPOSES.—The purposes of this section are to—

(1) study and enhance the effectiveness of community technology centers, public libraries, and other institutions that provide computer and Internet access to the public; and

(2) promote awareness of the availability of on-line government information and services, to users of community technology centers, public libraries, and other public facilities that provide access to computer technology and Internet access to the public.

(b) STUDY AND REPORT.—Not later than 2 years after the effective date of this title, the Secretary of Education, in consultation with the Secretary of Housing and Urban Development, the Secretary of Commerce, the Director of the National Science Foundation, and the Director of the Office of Management and Budget, shall—

(1) conduct a study to evaluate the best practices of community technology centers that receive Federal funds; and

(2) submit a report on the study to—

(A) the Committee on Governmental Affairs of the Senate;

(B) the Committee on Health, Education, Labor, and Pensions of the Senate;

(C) the Committee on Government Reform of the House of Representatives; and

(D) the Committee on Education and the Workforce of the House of Representatives.

(c) CONTENTS.—The report may consider—

(1) an evaluation of the best practices being used by successful community technology centers;

(2) a strategy for—

(A) continuing the evaluation of best practices used by community technology centers; and

(B) establishing a network to share information and resources as community technology centers evolve;

(3) the identification of methods to expand the use of best practices to assist community technology centers, public libraries, and other institutions that provide computer and Internet access to the public;

(4) a database of all community technology centers receiving Federal funds, including—

(A) each center's name, location, services provided, director, other points of contact, number of individuals served; and

(B) other relevant information;

(5) an analysis of whether community technology centers have been deployed effectively in urban and rural areas throughout the Nation; and

(6) recommendations of how to—

(A) enhance the development of community technology centers; and

(B) establish a network to share information and resources.

(d) COOPERATION.—All agencies that fund community technology centers shall provide to the Department of Education any information and assistance necessary for the completion of the study and the report under this section.

(e) ASSISTANCE.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—The Director of the Office of Management and Budget shall work with the Secretary of the Department of Education, other relevant Federal agencies, and other interested persons in the private and nonprofit sectors to—

(A) assist in the implementation of recommendations; and

(B) identify other ways to assist community technology centers, public libraries, and other institutions that provide computer and Internet access to the public.

(2) TYPES OF ASSISTANCE.—Assistance under this paragraph may include—

(A) contribution of funds;

(B) donations of equipment, and training in the use and maintenance of the equipment; and

(C) the provision of basic instruction or training material in computer skills and Internet usage.

(f) ONLINE TUTORIAL.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—The Secretary of Education, in consultation with the Director of the Office of Management and Budget, the Director of the National Science Foundation, other relevant agencies, and the public, shall develop an online tutorial that—

(A) explains how to access Government information and services on the Internet; and

(B) provides a guide to available online resources.

(2) DISTRIBUTION.—The Secretary of Education shall distribute information on the tutorial to community technology centers, public libraries, and other institutions that afford Internet access to the public.

(g) PROMOTION OF COMMUNITY TECHNOLOGY CENTERS.—In consultation with other agencies and organizations, the Department of Education shall promote the availability of community technology centers to raise awareness within each community where such a center is located.

(h) AUTHORIZATION OF APPROPRIATIONS.—There are authorized to be appropriated to the Department of Education for the study of best practices at community technology centers, for the development and dissemination of the online tutorial, and for the promotion of community technology centers under this section—

- (1) $2,000,000 in fiscal year 2003;
- (2) $2,000,000 in fiscal year 2004; and
- (3) such sums as are necessary in fiscal years 2005 through 2007.

SEC. 214. ENHANCING CRISIS MANAGEMENT THROUGH ADVANCED INFORMATION TECHNOLOGY.

(a) PURPOSE.—The purpose of this section is to improve how information technology is used in coordinating and facilitating information on disaster preparedness and response while ensuring the availability of such information across multiple access channels.

(b) IN GENERAL.—

(1) STUDY ON ENHANCEMENT OF CRISIS RESPONSE.—Not later than 90 days after the date of enactment of this Act, the Federal Emergency Management Agency shall enter into a contract to conduct a study on using information technology to enhance crisis response and consequence management of natural and manmade disasters.

(2) CONTENTS.—The study under this subsection shall address—

(A) a research and implementation strategy for effective use of information technology in crisis response and consequence management, including the more effective use of technologies, management of information technology research initiatives, and incorporation of research advances into the information and communications systems of—

(i) the Federal Emergency Management Agency; and

(ii) other Federal, State, and local agencies responsible for crisis response and consequence management; and

(B) opportunities for research and development on enhanced technologies into areas of potential improvement as determined during the course of the study.

(3) REPORT.—Not later than 2 years after the date on which a contract is entered into under paragraph (1), the Federal Emergency Management Agency shall submit a report on the study, including findings and recommendations to—

(A) the Committee on Governmental Affairs of the Senate; and

(B) the Committee on Government Reform of the House of Representatives.

(4) INTERAGENCY COOPERATION.—Other Federal departments and agencies with responsibility for disaster relief and emergency assistance shall fully cooperate with the Federal Emergency Management Agency in carrying out this section.

(5) AUTHORIZATION OF APPROPRIATIONS.—There are authorized to be appropriated to the Federal Emergency Management Agency for research under this subsection, such sums as are necessary for fiscal year 2003.

(c) PILOT PROJECTS.—Based on the results of the research conducted under subsection (a), the Federal Emergency Management Agency shall initiate pilot projects or report to Congress on other activities that further the goal of maximizing the utility of information technology in disaster management. The Federal Emergency Management Agency shall cooperate with other relevant agencies, and, if appropriate, State, local, and tribal governments, in initiating such pilot projects.

SEC. 215. DISPARITIES IN ACCESS TO THE INTERNET.

(a) STUDY AND REPORT.—

(1) STUDY.—Not later than 90 days after the date of enactment of this Act, the Director of the National Science Foundation shall request that the National Academy of Sciences, acting through the National Research Council, enter into a contract to conduct a study on disparities in Internet access for online Government services.

(2) REPORT.—Not later than 2 years after the date of enactment of this Act, the Director of the National Science Foundation shall submit to the Committee on Governmental Affairs of the Senate and the Committee on Government Reform of the House of Representatives a final report of the study under this section, which shall set forth the findings, conclusions, and recommendations of the Council.

(b) CONTENTS.—The report shall include a study of—

(1) how disparities in Internet access influence the effectiveness of online Government services, including a review of—

(A) the nature of disparities in Internet access;

(B) the affordability of Internet service;

(C) the incidence of disparities among different groups within the population; and

(D) changes in the nature of personal and public Internet access that may alleviate or aggravate effective access to online Government services;

(2) how the increase in online Government services is influencing the disparities in Internet access and how technology development or diffusion trends may offset such adverse influences; and

(3) related societal effects arising from the interplay of disparities in Internet access and the increase in online Government services.

(c) RECOMMENDATIONS.—The report shall include recommendations on actions to ensure that online Government initiatives shall not have the unintended result of increasing any deficiency in public access to Government services.

(d) AUTHORIZATION OF APPROPRIATIONS.—There are authorized to be appropriated to the National Science Foundation $950,000 in fiscal year 2003 to carry out this section.

SEC. 216. NOTIFICATION OF OBSOLETE OR COUNTERPRODUCTIVE PROVISIONS.

If the Director of the Office of Management and Budget makes a determination that any provision of this Act (including any amendment made by this Act) is obsolete or counterproductive to the purposes of this Act, as a result of changes in technology or any other reason, the Director shall submit notification of that determination to—

(1) the Committee on Governmental Affairs of the Senate; and

(2) the Committee on Government Reform of the House of Representatives.

TITLE III—GOVERNMENT INFORMATION SECURITY

SEC. 301. INFORMATION SECURITY.

(a) ADDITION OF SHORT TITLE.—Subtitle G of title X of the Floyd D. Spence National Defense Authorization Act for Fiscal Year 2001 (as enacted into law by Public Law 106-398; 114 Stat. 1654A-266) is amended by inserting after the heading for the subtitle the following new section:

“SEC. 1060. SHORT TITLE.

“This subtitle may be cited as the ‘Government Information Security Reform Act’.”

(b) CONTINUATION OF AUTHORITY.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—Section 3536 of title 44, United States Code, is repealed.

(2) TECHNICAL AND CONFORMING AMENDMENT.—The table of sections for chapter 35 of title 44, United States Code, is amended by striking the item relating to section 3536.

TITLE IV—AUTHORIZATION OF APPROPRIATIONS AND EFFECTIVE DATES

SEC. 401. AUTHORIZATION OF APPROPRIATIONS.

Except for those purposes for which an authorization of appropriations is specifically provided in title I or II, including the amendments made by such titles, there are authorized to be appropriated such sums as are necessary to carry out titles I and II for each of fiscal years 2003 through 2007.

SEC. 402. EFFECTIVE DATES.

(a) TITLES I AND II.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—Except as provided under paragraph (2), titles I and II and the amendments made by such titles shall take effect 120 days after the date of enactment of this Act.

(2) IMMEDIATE ENACTMENT.—Sections 207, 214, 215, and 216 shall take effect on the date of enactment of this Act.

(b) TITLES III AND IV.—Title III and this title shall take effect on the date of enactment of this Act.

Amend the title so as to read: “A bill to enhance the management and promotion of electronic Government services and processes by establishing an Office of Electronic Government within the Office of Management and Budget, and by establishing a broad framework of measures that require using Internet-based information technology to enhance citizen access to Government information and services, and for other purposes.”

Mr. MCCAIN. Mr. President, I urge my colleagues to pass S. 803, the E-Government Act of 2002. I believe that this bill will play an important role in making the Federal Government more responsive to our citizens.

The Internet would seem to be an ideal way for our constituents, especially those farthest from Washington, to get information and contact the government. However, many of our constituents complain that it is hard to access information from the government because the various agencies are not all prepared to deal with the advancements of the “digital age.” Meanwhile, some agencies are using the Internet in groundbreaking ways to improve their processes. In addition, the public has found that “e-government” programs have made interactions with the Federal Government more friendly and time-efficient. Today, it is easier for American citizens to find out about a government program, look up a regulation, apply for a grant, or download educational materials by using the Internet than by contacting a distant Federal agency.

This legislation has a number of provisions to promote innovative thinking in the field of “e-government,” while also assisting Federal departments and agencies in crossing into the 21st Century. The legislation establishes an Office of Electronic Government, headed by a Senate-confirmed administrator, within the Office of Management and Budget. This new administrator will sponsor a dialogue between government agencies, the public, and private and non-profit entities to spur creative new ideas for “e-government.” In addition the administrator will direct “e-government” initiatives, and oversee an interagency “e-government” fund to invest in cross-cutting projects with government-wide application. The bill also promotes the use of the Internet and other technologies to provide more information and better services to Americans through Internet strategies, such as the Federal “FirstGov” portal.

Finally, the bill includes a number of provisions that should make it easier for the public to access information about Federal scientific research, the Federal courts, and other areas of interest.

I would like especially to commend my friends, Senators LIEBERMAN and THOMPSON, the chairman and ranking member of the Government Affairs Committee, for their hard work on this legislation. This legislation addresses a complex issue that effects many agencies throughout government and its development required persistence and careful thought. The result of their efforts will improve Federal Government operations, and make the Government more responsive to the citizens we represent.

Mr. REID. Mr. President, it is my understanding Senators LIEBERMAN and THOMPSON have a substitute amendment that is at the desk. I ask unanimous consent that the amendment be considered and agreed to; that the motion to reconsider be laid upon the table; that the committee substitute amendment, as amended, be agreed to; that the bill, as amended, be read a third time and passed; that the motion to reconsider be laid upon the table, without intervening action or debate; that the title amendment be agreed to; that the motion to reconsider be laid upon the table; and that any statements relating to the bill be printed in the RECORD.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The amendment (No. 4172) was agreed to.

(The amendment is printed in today's RECORD under "Text of Amendments.")

The committee amendment, in the nature of a substitute, as amended, was agreed to.

The bill (S. 803), as amended, was read the third time and passed.

(The bill will be printed in a future edition of the RECORD.)

The title was amended so as to read: "A bill to enhance the management and promotion of electronic Government services and processes by establishing an Office of Electronic Government within the Office of Management and Budget, and by establishing a broad framework of measures that require using Internet-based information technology to enhance citizen access to Government information and services, and for other purposes."

ORDER FOR BILL TO BE PRINTED—S. 2514

Mr. REID. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that S. 2514, as passed by the Senate, be printed.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

NATIONAL FRAUD AGAINST SENIOR CITIZENS AWARENESS WEEK

Mr. REID. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the Senate proceed to Calendar No. 454, S. Res. 281.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will report the title.

The legislative clerk read as follows:

A resolution (S. Res. 281) designating the week beginning August 25, 2002, as "National Fraud Against Senior Citizens Awareness Week."

There being no objection, the Senate proceeded to consider the resolution.

Mr. REID. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the resolution and preamble be agreed to, en bloc; that the motion to reconsider be laid upon the table; and that any statements relating to the resolution be printed in the RECORD.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The resolution (S. Res. 281) was agreed to.

The preamble was agreed to.

The resolution, with its preamble, reads as follows:

S. RES. 281

Whereas perpetrators of mail, telemarketing, and Internet fraud frequently target their schemes at senior citizens because seniors are often vulnerable and trusting people;

Whereas, as victims of such schemes, many senior citizens have been robbed of their hard-earned life savings and frequently pay an emotional cost, losing not only their money, but also their self-respect and dignity;

Whereas perpetrators of fraudulent schemes against American seniors often operate outside the United States, reaching their victims through the mail, telephone lines, and the Internet;

Whereas the Deceptive Mail Prevention and Enforcement Act increased the power of the United States Postal Service to protect consumers against those who use deceptive mailings featuring games of chance, sweepstakes, skill contests, and facsimile checks;

Whereas the Postal Inspection Service responded to 66,000 mail fraud complaints, arrested 1,691 mail fraud offenders, convicted 1,477 such offenders, and initiated 642 civil or administrative actions in fiscal year 2001;

Whereas mail fraud investigations by the Postal Inspection Service in fiscal year 2001 resulted in over $1,200,000,000 in court-ordered and voluntary restitution payments;

Whereas the Postal Inspection Service, in an effort to curb cross-border fraud, is involved in 3 major fraud task forces with law enforcement officials in Canada, namely, Project Colt in Montreal, The Strategic Partnership in Toronto, and Project Emptor in Vancouver;

Whereas consumer awareness is the best protection from fraudulent schemes; and

Whereas it is vital to increase public awareness of the enormous impact that fraud has on senior citizens in the United States, and to educate the public, senior citizens, their families, and their caregivers about the signs of fraudulent activities and how to report suspected fraudulent activities to the appropriate authorities: Now, therefore, be it

Resolved, That the Senate—
(1) designates the week beginning August 25, 2002, as "National Fraud Against Senior Citizens Awareness Week"; and

(2) requests the President to issue a proclamation calling on the people of the United States to observe the week with appropriate activities and programs to—

(A) prevent the purveyors of fraud from victimizing senior citizens in the United States; and

(B) educate and inform the public, senior citizens, their families, and their caregivers about fraud perpetrated through mail, telemarketing, and the Internet.

HISTORICAL SIGNIFICANCE OF 100TH ANNIVERSARY OF KOREAN IMMIGRATION TO UNITED STATES

Mr. REID. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the Judiciary Committee be discharged from further consideration of S. Res. 185 and the Senate proceed to its immediate consideration.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered. The clerk will report the resolution by title.

The legislative clerk read as follows:

A resolution (S. Res. 185) recognizing the historical significance of the 100th anniversary of Korean immigration to the United States.

There being no objection, the Senate proceeded to consider the resolution.

Mr. REID. I ask unanimous consent that the resolution and preamble be agreed; that the motion to reconsider be laid upon the table; and that any statements relating thereto be printed in the RECORD.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The resolution (S. Res. 185) was agreed to.

The preamble was agreed to.

The resolution, with its preamble, reads as follows:

S. RES. 185

Whereas missionaries from the United States played a central role in nurturing the political and religious evolution of modern Korea, and directly influenced the early Korean immigration to the United States;

Whereas in December 1902, 56 men, 21 women, and 25 children left Korea and traveled across the Pacific Ocean on the S.S. Gaelic and landed in Honolulu, Hawaii on January 13, 1903;

Whereas the early Korean-American community was united around the common goal of attaining freedom and independence for their colonized mother country;

Whereas members of the early Korean-American community served with distinction in the Armed Forces of the United States during World War I, World War II, and the Korean Conflict;

Whereas on June 25, 1950, Communist North Korea invaded South Korea with approximately 135,000 troops, thereby initiating the involvement of approximately 5,720,000 personnel of the United States Armed Forces who served during the Korean Conflict to defeat the spread of communism in Korea and throughout the world;

Whereas casualties in the United States Armed Forces during the Korean Conflict included 54,260 dead (of whom 33,665 were battle deaths), 92,134 wounded, and 8,176 listed as missing in action or prisoners of war;

Whereas in the early 1950s, thousands of Koreans, fleeing from war, poverty, and desolation, came to the United States seeking opportunities;

Whereas Korean-Americans, like waves of immigrants to the United States before them, have taken root and thrived in the United States through strong family ties, robust community support, and countless hours of hard work;

Whereas Korean immigration to the United States has invigorated business, church, and academic communities in the United States;

Whereas according to the 2000 United States Census, Korean-Americans own and operate 135,571 businesses across the United States that have gross sales and receipts of $46,000,000,000 and employ 333,649 individuals with an annual payroll of $5,800,000,000;

Whereas the contributions of Korean-Americans to the United States include, the invention of the first beating heart operation for coronary artery heart disease, the development of the nectarine, a 4-time Olympic gold medalist, and achievements in engineering, architecture, medicine, acting, singing, sculpture, and writing;

Whereas Korean-Americans play a crucial role in maintaining the strength and vitality of the United States-Korean partnership;

Whereas the United States-Korean partnership helps undergird peace and stability in the Asia-Pacific region and provides economic benefits to the people of the United States and Korea and to the rest of the world; and

Whereas beginning in 2003, more than 100 communities throughout the United States will celebrate the 100th anniversary of Korean immigration to the United States: Now, therefore, be it

Resolved, That the Senate—

(1) recognizes the achievements and contributions of Korean-Americans to the United States over the past 100 years; and

(2) requests that the President issue a proclamation calling on the people of the United States and interested organizations to observe the anniversary with appropriate programs, ceremonies, and activities.

ORDERS FOR FRIDAY, JUNE 28, 2002

Mr. REID. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that when the Senate completes its business today, it adjourn until the hour of 9:30 a.m., Friday, June 28; that immediately following the prayer and the pledge, the Journal of proceedings be approved to date, the morning hour be deemed to have expired, the time for the two leaders be reserved for their use later in the day, and the Senate be in a period for morning business with Senators permitted to speak therein for up to 10 minutes each.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

PROGRAM

Mr. REID. There will be no rollcall votes tomorrow. There will be morning business. The next rollcall vote will occur Tuesday morning, July 9.

ADJOURNMENT UNTIL 9:30 A.M. TOMORROW

Mr. REID. If there is no further business to come before the Senate, I ask unanimous consent that the Senate stand in adjournment under the previous order.

There being no objection, the Senate, at 5:32 p.m., adjourned until Friday, June 28, 2002, at 9:30 a.m.

NOMINATIONS

Executive nominations received by the Senate June 27, 2002:

DEPARTMENT OF STATE

LINDA ELLEN WATT, OF FLORIDA, A CAREER MEMBER OF THE SENIOR FOREIGN SERVICE, CLASS OF MINISTER-COUNSELOR, TO BE AMBASSADOR EXTRAORDINARY AND PLENIPOTENTIARY OF THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA TO THE REPUBLIC OF PANAMA.

IN THE NAVY

THE FOLLOWING NAMED OFFICER FOR APPOINTMENT IN THE UNITED STATES NAVY TO THE GRADE INDICATED WHILE ASSIGNED TO A POSITION OF IMPORTANCE AND RESPONSIBILITY UNDER TITLE 10, U.S.C., SECTION 601:

To be admiral

VICE ADM. EDMUND P. GIAMBASTIANI JR.

CONFIRMATIONS

Executive Nominations Confirmed by the Senate June 27, 2002:

IN THE AIR FORCE

THE FOLLOWING NAMED OFFICER FOR APPOINTMENT IN THE UNITED STATES AIR FORCE TO THE GRADE INDICATED WHILE ASSIGNED TO A POSITION OF IMPORTANCE AND RESPONSIBILITY UNDER TITLE 10, U.S.C., SECTION 601:

To be general

GEN. RALPH E. EBERHART

THE FOLLOWING NAMED OFFICERS FOR APPOINTMENT IN THE UNITED STATES AIR FORCE TO THE GRADE INDICATED UNDER TITLE 10, U.S.C., SECTION 624:

To be major general

BRIGADIER GENERAL ROBERT DAMON BISHOP, JR.
BRIGADIER GENERAL ROBERT W. CHEDISTER
BRIGADIER GENERAL TRUDY H. CLARK
BRIGADIER GENERAL RICHARD L. COMER
BRIGADIER GENERAL CRAIG R. COONING
BRIGADIER GENERAL SCOTT S. CUSTER
BRIGADIER GENERAL FELIX DUPRE
BRIGADIER GENERAL EDWARD R. ELLIS
BRIGADIER GENERAL LEONARD D. FOX
BRIGADIER GENERAL TERRY L. GABRESKI
BRIGADIER GENERAL MICHAEL C. GOULD
BRIGADIER GENERAL JONATHAN S. GRATTON
BRIGADIER GENERAL WILLIAM W. HODGES
BRIGADIER GENERAL DONALD J. HOFFMAN
BRIGADIER GENERAL JOHN L. HUDSON
BRIGADIER GENERAL CLAUDE R. KEHLER
BRIGADIER GENERAL CHRISTOPHER A. KELLY
BRIGADIER GENERAL PAUL J. LEBRAS
BRIGADIER GENERAL JOHN W. ROSA, JR.
BRIGADIER GENERAL RONALD F. SAMS
BRIGADIER GENERAL KEVIN J. SULLIVAN
BRIGADIER GENERAL MARK A. WELSH III
BRIGADIER GENERAL STEPHEN G. WOOD

IN THE ARMY

THE FOLLOWING NAMED OFFICER FOR APPOINTMENT IN THE UNITED STATES ARMY TO THE GRADE INDICATED UNDER TITLE 10, U.S.C., SECTION 624:

To be major general

BRIG. GEN. JOHN M. URIAS

THE FOLLOWING NAMED OFFICERS FOR APPOINTMENT IN THE RESERVE OF THE ARMY TO THE GRADES INDICATED UNDER TITLE 10, U.S.C., SECTION 12203:

To be major general

BRIG. GEN. GEORGE W. S. READ

To be brigadier general

COL. LARRY KNIGHTNER

THE FOLLOWING NAMED OFFICERS FOR APPOINTMENT IN THE RESERVE OF THE ARMY TO THE GRADES INDICATED UNDER TITLE 10, U.S.C., SECTION 12203:

To be major general

BRIG. GEN. EDWIN E. SPAIN III

To be brigadier general

COL. DENNIS E. LUTZ

THE FOLLOWING NAMED OFFICER FOR APPOINTMENT AS ASSISTANT SURGEON GENERAL/CHIEF OF THE DENTAL CORPS, UNITED STATES ARMY AND FOR APPOINTMENT TO THE GRADE INDICATED UNDER TITLE 10, U.S.C., SECTION 3039:

To be major general

BRIG. GEN. JOSEPH G. WEBB, JR.

THE FOLLOWING NAMED OFFICERS FOR APPOINTMENT IN THE RESERVE OF THE ARMY TO THE GRADES INDICATED UNDER TITLE 10, U.S.C., SECTION 12203:

To be major general

BRIG. GEN. WAYNE M. ERCK
BRIG. GEN. CHARLES E. MCCARTNEY, JR.
BRIG. GEN. BRUCE E. ROBINSON

To be brigadier general

COL. DAVID L. EVANS
COL. WILLIAM C. KIRKLAND
COL. JAMES B. MALLORY III
COL. JOHN P. MCLAREN, JR.

IN THE NAVY

THE FOLLOWING NAMED OFFICER FOR APPOINTMENT IN THE UNITED STATES NAVY TO THE GRADE INDICATED WHILE ASSIGNED TO A POSITION OF IMPORTANCE AND RESPONSIBILITY UNDER TITLE 10, U.S.C., SECTION 601:

To be vice admiral

REAR ADM. PHILLIP M. BALISLE

THE FOLLOWING NAMED OFFICER FOR APPOINTMENT IN THE UNITED STATES NAVY TO THE GRADE INDICATED WHILE ASSIGNED TO A POSITION OF IMPORTANCE AND RESPONSIBILITY UNDER TITLE 10, U.S.C., SECTION 601:

To be vice admiral

REAR ADM. ROBERT F. WILLARD

AIR FORCE NOMINATION OF SHARON G. HARRIS.

AIR FORCE NOMINATIONS BEGINNING * NICOLA A. CHOATE AND ENDING * NICHOLAS G. VIYUOH, WHICH NOMINATIONS WERE RECEIVED BY THE SENATE AND APPEARED IN THE CONGRESSIONAL RECORD ON JUNE 7, 2002.

AIR FORCE NOMINATIONS BEGINNING KATHLEEN N. ECHIVERRI AND ENDING JEFFREY E. HAYMOND, WHICH NOMINATIONS WERE RECEIVED BY THE SENATE AND APPEARED IN THE CONGRESSIONAL RECORD ON JUNE 7, 2002.

ARMY NOMINATIONS BEGINNING * TIMOTHY C. BEAULIEU AND ENDING WILLIAM E. WHEELER, WHICH NOMINATIONS WERE RECEIVED BY THE SENATE AND APPEARED IN THE CONGRESSIONAL RECORD ON JUNE 4, 2002.

ARMY NOMINATIONS BEGINNING DUANE A. BELOTE AND ENDING * NEAL E. WOOLLEN, WHICH NOMINATIONS WERE RECEIVED BY THE SENATE AND APPEARED IN THE CONGRESSIONAL RECORD ON JUNE 4, 2002.

ARMY NOMINATIONS BEGINNING JOHN C. AUPKE AND ENDING STEVEN R. YOUNG, WHICH NOMINATIONS WERE RECEIVED BY THE SENATE AND APPEARED IN THE CONGRESSIONAL RECORD ON JUNE 4, 2002.

ARMY NOMINATIONS BEGINNING ANN M. ALTMAN AND ENDING * ANGELIA L. WHERRY, WHICH NOMINATIONS WERE RECEIVED BY THE SENATE AND APPEARED IN THE CONGRESSIONAL RECORD ON JUNE 4, 2002.

ARMY NOMINATIONS BEGINNING RYO S. CHUN AND ENDING JOHN K. ZAUGG, WHICH NOMINATIONS WERE RECEIVED BY THE SENATE AND APPEARED IN THE CONGRESSIONAL RECORD ON JUNE 4, 2002.

ARMY NOMINATION OF MICHAEL J. MEESE.

ARMY NOMINATIONS BEGINNING STEVEN A. BEYER AND ENDING JAMES F. ROTH, WHICH NOMINATIONS WERE RECEIVED BY THE SENATE AND APPEARED IN THE CONGRESSIONAL RECORD ON JUNE 5, 2002.

ARMY NOMINATION OF JAY A. JUPITER.

ARMY NOMINATION OF ANDREW D. MAGNET.

ARMY NOMINATIONS BEGINNING BERNARD COLEMAN AND ENDING MICHAEL A. STONE, WHICH NOMINATIONS WERE RECEIVED BY THE SENATE AND APPEARED IN THE CONGRESSIONAL RECORD ON JUNE 5, 2002.

ARMY NOMINATION OF ROBERT A. MASON.

ARMY NOMINATIONS BEGINNING RICHARD E. HUMSTON AND ENDING DWIGHT D. RIGGS, WHICH NOMINATIONS WERE RECEIVED BY THE SENATE AND APPEARED IN THE CONGRESSIONAL RECORD ON JUNE 7, 2002.

ARMY NOMINATION OF NANETTE S. PATTON.

MARINE CORPS NOMINATIONS BEGINNING DEREK M. ABBEY AND ENDING MARK D. ZIMMER, WHICH NOMINATIONS WERE RECEIVED BY THE SENATE AND APPEARED IN THE CONGRESSIONAL RECORD ON JUNE 4, 2002.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES—Thursday, June 27, 2002

The House met at 10 a.m.

The Reverend Frederick J. Huscher, Chaplain, Riverside County Sheriff's Department, Riverside, California, offered the following prayer:

O gracious and loving Lord, quiet our restless mind so that our hearts may speak honestly in prayer and our spirits may listen carefully to Your counsel and instruction. As sovereign Lord, You have placed into our simple hands the overwhelming responsibility to mold the course of this great Nation. Lest pride cause us to forget that we are but Your appointed servants, cause us to strive shoulder to shoulder to maintain the noble heritage that we are a free Nation under God by Your divine will and grace. May Your Spirit direct our hearts and mind to seek only what is right and pure for the people of this land, to make decisions which protect our freedoms and promote the well-being of Your people. O God, we honor You as the Lord of this Nation. May our ministry glorify Your name and be a blessing to this land. Amen.

THE JOURNAL

The SPEAKER. The Chair has examined the Journal of the last day's proceedings and announces to the House his approval thereof.

Pursuant to clause 1, rule I, the Journal stands approved.

Mr. WALDEN of Oregon. Mr. Speaker, pursuant to clause 1, rule I, I demand a vote on agreeing to the Speaker's approval of the Journal.

The SPEAKER. The question is on the Speaker's approval of the Journal.

The question was taken; and the Speaker announced that the ayes appeared to have it.

Mr. WALDEN of Oregon. Mr. Speaker, I object to the vote on the ground that a quorum is not present and make the point of order that a quorum is not present.

The SPEAKER. Evidently, a quorum is not present.

The Sergeant at Arms will notify absent Members.

The vote was taken by electronic device, and there were—yeas 348, nays 59, answered “present” 1, not voting 26, as follows:

[Roll No. 267]

YEAS—348

Abercrombie	Bachus	Barrett
Ackerman	Baker	Bartlett
Akin	Baldacci	Barton
Andrews	Ballenger	Bass
Armey	Barcia	Becerra
Baca	Barr	Bentsen

Bereuter	Fossella	Latham	Roemer	Shuster	Tiberi
Berkley	Frank	LaTourette	Rogers (KY)	Simmons	Tierney
Berman	Frelinghuysen	Leach	Rogers (MI)	Simpson	Toomey
Biggert	Frost	Lee	Ros-Lehtinen	Skeen	Turner
Bilirakis	Gallegly	Levin	Ross	Skelton	Upton
Bishop	Ganske	Lewis (CA)	Rothman	Smith (MI)	Velazquez
Blagojevich	Gekas	Lewis (GA)	Roybal-Allard	Smith (NJ)	Vitter
Blumenauer	Gephardt	Lewis (KY)	Royce	Smith (TX)	Walden
Blunt	Gibbons	Linder	Rush	Snyder	Walsh
Boehert	Gilchrest	Lipinski	Ryan (WI)	Solis	Wamp
Boehner	Gillmor	Lofgren	Ryun (KS)	Souder	Watkins (OK)
Bonilla	Gilman	Lowey	Sanders	Spratt	Watson (CA)
Bonior	Gonzalez	Lucas (KY)	Sawyer	Stearns	Watt (NC)
Bono	Goode	Lucas (OK)	Saxton	Stenholm	Watts (OK)
Boozman	Goodlatte	Luther	Schiff	Stump	Weiner
Boswell	Gordon	Lynch	Schrock	Sullivan	Weldon (FL)
Boucher	Goss	Maloney (NY)	Scott	Sununu	Weldon (PA)
Boyd	Graham	Manzullo	Sensenbrenner	Sweeney	Wexler
Brady (TX)	Granger	Markey	Serrano	Tanner	Whitfield
Brown (SC)	Graves	Mascara	Sessions	Tauscher	Wicker
Bryant	Green (WI)	Matheson	Shadegg	Taylor (NC)	Wilson (NM)
Burr	Greenwood	Matsui	Shaw	Terry	Wilson (SC)
Burton	Grucci	McCarthy (MO)	Shays	Thomas	Wolf
Buyer	Gutierrez	McCarthy (NY)	Sherman	Thornberry	Woodley
Callahan	Gutknecht	McCollum	Sherwood	Thune	Young (FL)
Calvert	Hall (OH)	McCrery	Shimkus	Thurman
Camp	Hall (TX)	McHugh	Shows	Tiahrt
Cannon	Hansen	McInnis
Cantor	Harman	McIntyre
Capito	Hart	McKeon
Capps	Hastings (WA)	McKinney
Cardin	Hayes	Meehan
Castle	Hayworth	Meeks (NY)
Chabot	Herger	Menendez
Chambliss	Hill	Mica
Clayton	Hilleary	Miller-
Clement	Hinojosa	McDonald
Coble	Hobson	Miller, Dan
Collins	Hoefel	Miller, Gary
Combest	Hoekstra	Miller, Jeff
Cooksey	Holden	Mink
Cox	Holt	Mollohan
Cramer	Honda	Moran (KS)
Crenshaw	Hooley	Moran (VA)
Crowley	Horn	Morella
Cubin	Hostettler	Murtha
Culberson	Houghton	Myrick
Cummings	Hoyer	Nadler
Cunningham	Hulshof	Napolitano
Davis (CA)	Hunter	Neal
Davis (FL)	Hyde	Nethercutt
Davis, Jo Ann	Inslee	Ney
Davis, Tom	Isakson	Norwood
Deal	Issa	Ortiz
DeGette	Istook	Osborne
Delahunt	Jackson (IL)	Ose
DeLauro	Jefferson	Otter
DeLay	Jenkins	Pallone
DeMint	John	Pascarell
Deutsch	Johnson (CT)	Paul
Diaz-Balart	Johnson (IL)	Payne
Dingell	Johnson, Sam	Pelosi
Doggett	Jones (NC)	Pence
Dooley	Jones (OH)	Peterson (PA)
Doolittle	Kanjorski	Peterson (PA)
Doyle	Kaptur	Phelps
Dreier	Keller	Pickering
Duncan	Kelly	Pitts
Dunn	Kennedy (RI)	Platts
Edwards	Kerns	Pombo
Ehlers	Kildee	Pomeroy
Emerson	Kilpatrick	Portman
Engel	Kind (WI)	Pryce (OH)
Eshoo	King (NY)	Putnam
Etheridge	Kingston	Quinn
Evans	Kirk	Radanovich
Everett	Kleczka	Rahall
Farr	Knollenberg	Rangel
Ferguson	Kolbe	Regula
Flake	LaHood	Rehberg
Fletcher	Lampson	Reyes
Foley	Langevin	Reynolds
Forbes	Lantos	Rivers
Ford	Larson (CT)	Rodriguez

Green (TX)	Johnson, E. B.	Price (NC)
Hastings (FL)	Kennedy (MN)	Ramstad
Hefley	Kucinich	Sabo
Hilliard	Larsen (WA)	Sánchez
Jackson-Lee	LoBiondo	Sandlin
(TX)	McDermott	Schaffer
Johnson, E. B.	McGovern	Schakowsky
Kennedy (MN)	McNulty	Slaughter
Kucinich	Miller, George	Strickland
Larsen (WA)	Moore	Stupak
LoBiondo	Obey	Taylor (MS)
McDermott	Oliver	Thompson (CA)
McGovern	Pastor	Thompson (MS)
McNulty	Peterson (MN)	Udall (CO)
Miller, George		Udall (NM)
Moore		Visclosky
Obey		Waters
Oliver		Weller
Pastor		Wu
Peterson (MN)		Wynn

NAYS—59

Aderholt	Allen	Baird	Baldwin	Berry	Borski	Brady (PA)	Brown (FL)	Brown (OH)	Capuano	Carson (IN)	Carson (OK)	Clyburn	Condit	Costello	Crane	Davis (IL)	DeFazio	English	Filner
----------	-------	-------	---------	-------	--------	------------	------------	------------	---------	-------------	-------------	---------	--------	----------	-------	------------	---------	---------	--------

Green (TX)	Hastings (FL)	Hefley	Hilliard	Jackson-Lee	(TX)	Johnson, E. B.	Kennedy (MN)	Kucinich	Larsen (WA)	LoBiondo	McDermott	McGovern	McNulty	Miller, George	Moore	Obey	Oliver	Pastor	Peterson (MN)
------------	---------------	--------	----------	-------------	------	----------------	--------------	----------	-------------	----------	-----------	----------	---------	----------------	-------	------	--------	--------	---------------

Price (NC)	Ramstad	Sabo	Sánchez	Sandlin	Schaffer	Schakowsky	Slaughter	Strickland	Stupak	Taylor (MS)	Thompson (CA)	Thompson (MS)	Udall (CO)	Udall (NM)	Visclosky	Waters	Weller	Wu	Wynn
------------	---------	------	---------	---------	----------	------------	-----------	------------	--------	-------------	---------------	---------------	------------	------------	-----------	--------	--------	----	------

ANSWERED “PRESENT”—1

Tancredo

NOT VOTING—26

Clay	Conyers	Coyne	Dicks	Ehrlich	Fattah	Hinchey	Israel	LaFalce	Maloney (CT)	Meek (FL)	Northup	Nussle	Oberstar	Owens	Oxley	Riley	Rohrabacher	Roukema	Smith (WA)	Stark	Tauzin	Towns	Traficant	Waxman	Young (AK)
------	---------	-------	-------	---------	--------	---------	--------	---------	--------------	-----------	---------	--------	----------	-------	-------	-------	-------------	---------	------------	-------	--------	-------	-----------	--------	------------

□ 1029

So the Journal was approved.
The result of the vote was announced as above recorded.

PLEDGE OF ALLEGIANCE

The SPEAKER. Will the gentleman from Oklahoma (Mr. WATTS) come forward and lead the House in the Pledge of Allegiance.

Mr. WATTS of Oklahoma led the Pledge of Allegiance as follows:

I pledge allegiance to the Flag of the United States of America, and to the Republic for which it stands, one nation under God, indivisible, with liberty and justice for all.

□ This symbol represents the time of day during the House proceedings, e.g., □ 1407 is 2:07 p.m.

Matter set in this typeface indicates words inserted or appended, rather than spoken, by a Member of the House on the floor.

Barcia	Fattah	Hastings (FL)
Clay	Fletcher	Hinchey
Ehrlich	Gephardt	Hoekstra

Hooley	Moore	Tauzin
Hunter	Northup	Trafficant
Hyde	Oberstar	Vitter
Israel	Platts	Watkins (OK)
Kanjorski	Reyes	Wu
Keller	Riley	Wynn
LaFalce	Roukema	Young (AK)
Meek (FL)	Rush

□ 1054

Mr. HINOJOSA, Ms. MCCOLLUM and Mr. OXLEY changed their vote from "aye" to "no".

So the motion to adjourn was rejected.

The result of the vote was announced as above recorded.

PERSONAL EXPLANATION

Mr. ISRAEL. Mr. Speaker, I was absent from votes this morning so that I could be in New York to be with my children as they go away for the summer. I missed two votes. Were I here I would have voted as follows:

Rollcall Vote 267, on Approving the Journal: "yea"; and

Rollcall Vote 268, that the House Adjourn: "no."

SUPPORTING THE PLEDGE OF ALLEGIANCE

(Mr. FOLEY asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. FOLEY. Mr. Speaker, in the dark hours after September 11 there was one thing that brought a Nation together, young and old, rich and poor, black and white, Hispanics, and that was the Pledge of Allegiance to the flag of this great Nation. As men and women were toiling to rescue victims in Washington, Pennsylvania and New York, our hearts and minds turned to God to ask for divine guidance as we struggled with this difficult time.

In my morning run this morning I visited the Jefferson, Lincoln and Roosevelt memorials to bear witness to the inscriptions of their most memorable speeches to this Nation, each citing God's divine guidance in creating the Nation.

Now, judges of the Ninth Circuit of the left coast of the United States have decided that this Pledge of Allegiance is unconstitutional. The ACLU may be applauding a ruling, but their victory will be short-lived. One Nation under God, indivisible, with liberty and justice for all; behind me "In God We Trust," in a Nation God guides us in a country where free people worship.

I reject the court's ruling. I urge Congress to immediately undertake a constitutional amendment, and I salute every man and woman in uniform who serves this Nation being guided by God's love and inspiration.

RETURN LUDWIG KOONS

(Mr. LAMPSON asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. LAMPSON. Mr. Speaker, again I rise to talk about international child abduction and the case of Ludwig Koons who is being kept illegally in Rome, Italy. The injustice that is being done to this family is outrageous and an example of what thousands of American parents and children face each day.

Ludwig Koons was born in New York and was abducted from his family residence to Rome by his mother, Ilona Staller. Mr. Koons was awarded custody in the United States, but the Italian courts have refused to accept any American jurisdiction. The father has been deemed the fit parent by the courts and by U.S. and by Italian psychologists who have stated that Ludwig is in grave danger and must be returned to his father. Yet he remains captive in Italy, being held by the Italian government and by his mother who is a porn star who lives in a pornographic compound.

Mr. Speaker, every day Members of this body and this administration speak about family values. Family values. I can think of no better way to demonstrate our commitment to family values than to return Ludwig Koons to his father now. We must bring our children home.

AMERICA IS ONE NATION UNDER GOD

(Mr. REHBERG asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. REHBERG. Mr. Speaker, one Nation under God. These four solemn words form the very backbone of our great democracy. In one short breath these patriotic words in the Pledge of Allegiance from which they are proudly spoken have guided the American experiment in democracy for generations.

Yesterday, through a gross example of misguided judicial activism, two Federal judges stripped these words from the American vocabulary. It is bizarre decisions like this that have given the Ninth Circuit the dubious distinction of being the most overturned court in the Nation. In one year alone, 26 of the Ninth Circuit's 27 rulings were thrown out.

This decision further brings the light the desperate need for the other body to quick blocking President Bush's judicial nominees and supply our courts with qualified judges that will interpret, not rewrite, the Constitution. I hope the Senate is listening.

Mr. Speaker, I do pledge allegiance to the flag; and I am proud to say that, despite the beliefs of the Ninth Circuit, this is still one Nation under God.

ANNOUNCEMENT BY THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. LATOURETTE). The Chair would remind all Members to not urge action by the other body.

□ 1100

INSURANCE PROTECTION ACT

(Ms. JACKSON-LEE of Texas asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend her remarks.)

Ms. JACKSON-LEE of Texas. Mr. Speaker, my silence today reflects the fact that the Republicans gagged me by presenting to this House an Insurance Protection Act that takes away the rights of my mother and your mother and your father to be able to have a real guaranteed prescription drug benefit through Medicare that initially was signed by the President of the United States, Lyndon Baines Johnson, in 1965. I am gagged today, but I will not remain silent because I live in America; and I will fight this fight to get a real Medicare drug benefit for the American people. We will fight and we will win.

HONORING BAKER PRICE FALLS

(Mrs. MYRICK asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend her remarks.)

Mrs. MYRICK. Mr. Speaker, I want to honor a truly amazing young man from my district in North Carolina. Baker Price Falls spent his life serving others and serving the Lord. He would have turned 26 today, but sadly he passed away this year from leukemia. He spent his life doing missions work. Whether he was working in the inner city of Philadelphia or D.C. or doing missions work over in Mexico or Alaska, he desired to be a servant for the Lord. As a member of the Harley Davidson Owners group in Gastonia, he spent that opportunity as well in service to the Lord. Baker was attending the University of Nations in Kona, Hawaii, where he was training for missions work in Africa, and in order to attend school he sold his most prized possession, which was his Harley.

Unfortunately, before he left for Africa, he was diagnosed with leukemia. Even in sickness he was a light and an inspiration to all who knew him and came around him during that time. He was always smiling and always faithful, and he was a witness of God's love even in very difficult circumstances. A very special person, we will always remember him.

PROTECTING AIR QUALITY

(Mr. PRICE of North Carolina asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. PRICE of North Carolina. Mr. Speaker, I am proud to inform colleagues that North Carolina has become the first southern State to impose tough new pollution standards on aging coal-fired power plants.

This bipartisan legislation is an initiative of Governor Mike Easley, with the collaboration of industry and of environmental and public health advocates. It requires plants to reduce their sulfur dioxide and nitrogen oxide emissions by 74 and 78 percent, respectively. These standards will improve the quality of life for North Carolinians, and they will save lives by reducing the incidence and severity of respiratory illness.

Ironically, as North Carolina takes steps to improve air quality, the Bush administration has proposed a major step backward, actually weakening the Clean Air Act. The EPA's proposed loosening of "new source review" regulations would allow thousands of the country's biggest polluters to avoid installing pollution-control equipment as they update and modernize their plants. So even though North Carolina will be doing its part to reduce pollution that causes ozone and acid rain, our State will continue to be stricken by pollution from other States.

North Carolina has taken a significant step, Mr. Speaker. I am hopeful that this will stiffen EPA's spine, to give all Americans the protection they need.

THE CALIFORNIA JUDICIARY

(Mr. ISSA asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. ISSA. Mr. Speaker, it is no surprise that yesterday the Ninth Circuit ruled in complete and total disregard for the wishes of the people of California. I heard earlier speakers address the House and talk of the vacancies, and there are five on the Ninth Circuit, specifically because of the inaction of the Senate; and I would like to associate myself with those who have called for the Senate to take appropriate action.

But more importantly here today as a Californian, I want to make it very clear that when we are called the "left coast," they are only speaking about our courts; they are only speaking about the insane actions that often come from our judiciary. They are not speaking about the people of California up and down the State who embrace America's core values, including one Nation under God, indivisible.

ANNOUNCEMENT BY THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. LATOURETTE). The Chair would again remind all Members that it is not appropriate during debate to urge action by the other body.

OUTRAGE OVER PRESCRIPTION DRUG RULE

(Mr. GREEN of Texas asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. GREEN of Texas. Mr. Speaker, we are one Nation under God, but God please help this House of Representatives. For the outrageous procedure that the Committee on Rules did this morning, we need God's blessing. For years and years seniors in our country have needed a prescription drug benefit, and yet early this morning Medicare was styled as a Soviet-style health care plan in the Committee on Rules, Medicare that was passed and had provided health care for seniors for over 35 years called Soviet care.

Well, the Soviet concern is what the procedure is today in the House of Representatives, not allowing an option except on the Republican prescription drug bill that is so filled with holes, it leaks so bad, no senior will be able to get any prescription drugs. They will not have these lifesaving pharmaceuticals. Now they are not turning on their electricity, they are taking half prescriptions, and yet the Republicans today are giving them a sieve to be able to sift through.

SHOCKED AND APPALLED BY NINTH CIRCUIT'S DECISION

(Mr. PENCE asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. PENCE. Mr. Speaker, like most Americans I believe in this country, I believe in God, and I believe in the power and importance of allegiance to our flag. As such, like millions of Americans, I was shocked and appalled by the Ninth Circuit's pledge decision.

Mr. Speaker, we open this House in prayer to God. The walls of this temple of democracy bear His name, but it is unconstitutional for our children to name God as they acknowledge their fealty to that very same Nation? Sadly, Mr. Speaker, this decision is part of a 35-year effort by radical secularists who would twist the freedom of religion into a freedom from religion.

We must reject this course of judiciary decisions. I pledge myself to fight every decision by the judiciary that seeks to drive expressions of faith, the Ten Commandments and voluntary prayer from schools, out of every corner of American life, so help me God.

MEDICARE WITHERING ON THE VINE

(Mr. McDERMOTT asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. McDERMOTT. Mr. Speaker, the Republican candidate for President several years ago proudly voted against Medicare. The former Speaker, Mr. Gingrich, said that he hoped that Medicare would wither on the vine. Many of us wondered what he really meant.

Today, in the Committee on Rules, we found out the truth. A gentleman from Georgia on the Committee on Rules said that there are two proposals before us today, the Republican proposal and a Soviet-style program. When pressed, he said we all know Medicare is a Soviet-style program.

There is where we are. The Republican plan is a plan to privatize Medicare, first by doing the drug benefit and then extending it into the rest. It is a Trojan horse designed to get rid of Medicare, and everybody who votes for that bill today will be setting that in motion.

My mother, my colleagues' mothers, their grandfathers, their fathers, they do not want Medicare to wither on the vine; but this House is prepared to prevent us from giving even an alternative to the American people. That is what Soviets do.

RECOGNIZING GREATER MIAMI JEWISH FEDERATION AND MI- CHAEL-ANN RUSSEL JEWISH COMMUNITY CENTER

(Ms. ROS-LEHTINEN asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend her remarks.)

Ms. ROS-LEHTINEN. Mr. Speaker, I am pleased to recognize the Greater Miami Jewish Federation and the Michael-Ann Russel Jewish Community Center to commend them for their efforts on the Interfaith Solidarity with Israel rally which recently took place in my home district of Miami.

I want to especially thank Rachel Sapoznik, international division chairwoman from the Greater Miami Jewish Federation, Fanny Hanono and Avy Weberman from the Michael-Ann Russell Jewish Community Center for their tireless efforts in making this rally a giant success. The event included a variety of speakers from different religious denominations, parochial schools, youth groups and community organizations.

The rally provided an opportunity for folks to voice their support for the State of Israel and gave them specific information on the different ways that they can help both of our countries fight the international war on terrorism.

I want to especially thank those organizers of the Interfaith Solidarity with Israel rally for uniting our community in its support for this embattled country.

AMERICA'S SENIORS WANT GUARANTEED ACCESS TO MEDICINES

(Mrs. CHRISTENSEN asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)

Mrs. CHRISTENSEN. Mr. Speaker, left to the Republican sham prescription drug bill, our parents, including individuals with disabilities, will find themselves at the mercy of private HMOs having to search for a plan. America's seniors want guaranteed access to the medicines their doctors prescribe at prices they can afford, and they depend on that guarantee for help and for life.

The only bill on the floor today guarantees no prescription drug benefit. The plan the Republicans are trying to force on this country does nothing to curb soaring drug prices, not enough to restore provider payments and does everything to benefit private insurance companies.

Our plan, the Dingell bill, honors our responsibilities to this Nation's seniors, gives them coverage for any drug their doctor prescribes, and guarantees that beneficiaries always have coverage, with lower monthly premiums and a lower out-of-pocket maximum. Our plan beats theirs any day and in any way. That is why we are being denied a chance to offer it.

That is not fair to us, their colleagues, and it disrespects those who sent us here; but it is most unfair to the seniors and their families who need real help with medication now.

ENERGY INDEPENDENCE THROUGH FUEL CELLS

(Mrs. BIGGERT asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend her remarks.)

Mrs. BIGGERT. Mr. Speaker, I rise this morning to highlight the promise and the potential of fuel cells in hydrogen to help us gain greater energy independence in a way that is safe, clean and renewable.

Often called minipower plants, fuel cells could hold the key to energy independence for America. In an article entitled "Squeaky Clean," the magazine The Economist referred to fuel cells as the next big thing, and the most promising fuel cells operate on hydrogen, which the magazine Physics Today referred to as the fuel of the future.

We know their potential. Zero emissions. Water and heat are the only by-products, and when both heat and electricity are used, fuel cells can obtain more than 80 percent efficiency.

Researchers at our national science labs, corporations, universities and small businesses are working hard to help us realize the potential of fuel cells.

America has the ingenuity and the expertise to meet our future energy demands, and fuel cells can help us to do so in an environmentally responsible way that sets a standard for the world.

WOMEN AND PRESCRIPTION DRUGS

(Ms. SOLIS asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)

Ms. SOLIS. Mr. Speaker, women in this country need a Medicare drug benefit now. In the State of California, 56 percent of Medicare recipients are women. These elderly women have on the average spent about 10 percent of the cost for prescription drugs there, but this year alone their costs went up about 20 percent; and for people from my district particularly, this is a very, very extreme hardship.

Most are on fixed incomes and cannot afford those costs, and they believe the plan that is being proposed by the Republicans today will actually make their lives worse. I know that because their plan will help to benefit HMOs and insurance companies and it is a farce. They are saying that our current drug benefit program is a Soviet-style form of government. That cannot be farther from the truth.

When I go into my senior citizen centers, the first thing people ask me is, HILDA SOLIS, you are my representative, why is there not a better benefit program so I can pay for my treatment that I need to control my diabetes, to get my insulin, to pay for the things that I need to survive?

Let us do the right thing today. Let us vote for a Democratic substitute that is fair for all people.

ASTONISHMENT AND OUTRAGE AT RULING OF NINTH CIRCUIT COURT OF APPEALS

(Mr. GIBBONS asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. GIBBONS. Mr. Speaker, today I rise to express my astonishment and outrage at the ruling of the Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals, which declared the Pledge of Allegiance to be unconstitutional. Mr. Speaker, what could this court be thinking? Under their reasoning, our money would be unconstitutional, the Presidential oath would be unconstitutional, and yes, this very Chamber, the House of Representatives, would be unconstitutional.

To call the Pledge of Allegiance unconstitutional is the highest embarrassment for our judicial system, and this ruling undermines everything our Nation stands for, principles set back in 1776, as well as the Declaration of Independence, which by the way includes the word God as well.

Mr. Speaker, is the very document that announced our Nation's independence also unconstitutional? Next week we will be celebrating our Nation's independence, and I hope every American will remember and celebrate our Nation's traditions, including expressing our unity as one Nation under God, indivisible, with liberty and justice for all, and may God bless America.

REPUBLICANS DENYING OUR SENIORS RELIEF THEY NEED

(Mr. DOGGETT asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)

Mr. DOGGETT. Mr. Speaker, today Republicans refuse to permit consideration of a prescription drug plan for our seniors on the very same day that one of their leaders condemns the basic Medicare program as a Soviet-style program. The Republicans have no prescription drug plan, only a scheme to privatize Medicare and to protect prescription drug manufacturers. They want to turn seniors over to HMOs with no guaranteed deductible, no guaranteed premium, and no guaranteed benefit. Some plan.

The House Republican leadership has once again pledged its allegiance to the pharmaceutical manufacturers who are the price gougers that forcing our seniors to pay the highest prices of any people in the entire world. Little wonder that these same manufacturers are already on the airwaves across America paying millions for ads to defend their Republican House partners who are trying today to deny our seniors the relief they so very desperately need.

□ 1115

LIBERAL COURTS ERR AGAIN

(Mr. PITTS asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. PITTS. Mr. Speaker, our liberal friends in the Federal courts have erred again. The 14th amendment says that no State, and I quote, "shall deprive any person of life, liberty, or property without due process of law." Yet late last year the Supreme Court ruled that this guaranteed doctors the right to impale partially-born babies in the skull with scissors and extract them dead from their mother's birth canals.

The first amendment says America cannot have an official State church, like England has, and I quote, "Congress shall make no law respecting an establishment of religion." Yet a Federal judge in my district has recently ruled that the Ten Commandments have to be taken down from the county courthouse wall where they have stood for 82 years.

The first amendment says, "Congress shall make no law prohibiting the free exercise of religion." Yet, despite this, the 9th Circuit court ruled yesterday that in school children are not allowed to recite the Pledge of Allegiance any more, even though they have been doing it since 1892.

Mr. Speaker, the judicial branch of government is out of control. They are making a mockery of our Constitution. The Congress and the President must stand up to the radical activist judges and make things right again.

HOUSE DIVIDED ON PRESCRIPTION DRUG PLAN

(Mr. CROWLEY asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. CROWLEY. Mr. Speaker, 9 months ago I stood on this floor and talked about the attack upon my great city, the City of New York. Never before in my 4 years in this Congress had I felt this House and this country more united than at that moment.

The pundits began to speak, and they began to ask questions like, how long would it last; how long would this House stay united; and would it be the Democrats or the Republicans who would blink first? Unfortunately, it has been the Republicans.

Today, they offer a prescription drug plan without giving the opportunity for this side of the aisle to present our plan, without having a fair vote up and down on both. They know the Democratic side would win. This bill, our bill, would win the day.

It appears in the middle of the night that there was an election held, that there are now 436 Members of Congress. Robert Ingram, I do not know which State he is from, but he has already proven himself to be a great fund-raiser for the Republican side of the aisle. He has raised $250,000 from GlaxoSmithKline, apparently his former company; from Pfizer, $150,000; from Merck, $150,000. The money is where this bill follows, and the American people are going to know about it.

This House has been brought asunder not by the Democrats but by the Republicans today, by their actions. It is intolerable, and the American people should know about it and know fully what happens today.

PRAISING MANCOR CAROLINA

(Mr. JOE WILSON of South Carolina asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. WILSON of South Carolina. Mr. Speaker, I rise to commemorate the 50th anniversary of Mancor Carolina, located in Lugoff, in Kershaw County, South Carolina.

In 1987, Mancor opened a manufacturing business with 45 employees, serving customers such as Dana Corporation and Mack Trucks.

In 1998, Dilip Teppara became Vice President and General Manager of Mancor Carolina. During the last 4 years, under Mr. Teppara's leadership, Mancor has more than doubled its sales; and the company has grown to nearly 175 employees.

Mancor Carolina is now a major supplier to companies such as Dana in Lugoff, Freightliner in Gaffney, John Deere in Augusta, Komatsu in Newberry, Caterpillar, and Mack Trucks in Winnsboro. Mancor is one of the largest private employers in Kershaw County, and the company is undergoing a multimillion dollar expansion which will create new jobs for the community.

I want to commend Mr. Poul Hansen, Mr. Preben Ostberg, and Mr. Art Church for their vision in making Mancor Carolina a world-class manufacturing company. Most importantly, though, the success of Mancor Carolina is due to its employees and their families. Mancor would not be where it is today without their commitment, sacrifice, and dedication.

KEEP MEDICARE PUBLIC

(Mr. BROWN of Ohio asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. BROWN of Ohio. Mr. Speaker, 37 years ago, the majority Republicans voted against the creation of Medicare, which has turned out to be probably the single best program the U.S. government has ever sponsored.

Republican leader Newt Gingrich said that Medicare should wither on the vine. The Republicans, in the late 1990s, proceeded to cut $250 billion from Medicare. Today, our Republican leader in the Committee on Rules labeled Medicare a Soviet-style program. In my 10 years in Congress, the only people I have found that are hostile to Medicare, that do not like the Medicare program, are my Republican friends on that side of the aisle.

Today, we have a choice. We have a choice between a Medicare prescription drug plan written for America's seniors or a private insurance plan written, the Republican's private insurance plan, written by and for the drug companies, which will privatize Medicare.

Let us keep Medicare public, let us pass a prescription drug benefit that works for seniors, not for the drug companies.

DEPARTMENT OF DEFENSE APPROPRIATIONS ACT, 2003

Mrs. MYRICK. Mr. Speaker, by direction of the Committee on Rules, I call up House Resolution 461 and ask for its immediate consideration.

The Clerk read the resolution, as follows:

H. RES. 461

Resolved, That at any time after the adoption of this resolution the Speaker may, pursuant to clause 2(b) of rule XVIII, declare the House resolved into the Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union for consideration of the bill (H.R. 5010) making appropriations for the Department of Defense for the fiscal year ending September 30, 2003, and for other purposes. The first reading of the bill shall be dispensed with. All points of order against consideration of the bill are waived. General debate shall be confined to the bill and shall not exceed one hour equally divided and controlled by the chairman and ranking minority member of the Committee on Appropriations. After general debate the bill shall be considered for amendment under the five-minute rule. Points of order against provisions in the bill for failure to comply with clause 2 of rule XXI are waived. During consideration of the bill for amendment, the Chairman of the Committee of the Whole may accord priority in recognition on the basis of whether the Member offering an amendment has caused it to be printed in the portion of the Congressional Record designated for that purpose in clause 8 of rule XVIII. Amendments so printed shall be considered as read. At the conclusion of consideration of the bill for amendment the Committee shall rise and report the bill to the House with such amendments as may have been adopted. The previous question shall be considered as ordered on the bill and amendments thereto to final passage without intervening motion except one motion to recommit with or without instructions.

SEC. 2. That upon the adoption of this resolution it shall be in order, any rule of the House to the contrary notwithstanding, to consider concurrent resolutions providing for adjournment of the House and Senate during the month of July.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. LATOURETTE). The gentlewoman from North Carolina (Mrs. MYRICK) is recognized for 1 hour.

Mrs. MYRICK. Mr. Speaker, for purposes of debate only, I yield the customary 30 minutes to the gentleman from Texas (Mr. FROST); pending which I yield myself such time as I may consume. During consideration of the resolution, all time yielded is for purposes of debate only.

Yesterday, the Committee on Rules met and granted an open rule for H.R. 5010, the fiscal year 2003 Department of Defense Appropriations Act. The rule provides for 1 hour of general debate equally divided between the chairman and ranking minority member of the Committee on Appropriations.

This is a fair and open rule for a very important bill. It cannot get any better than that. The rule allows any Member to offer any amendment to the bill, as long as their amendment complies with the normal rules of the House.

The defense appropriations bill provides the tools and the resources for our military to wage an aggressive war against terrorism while defending our Nation against an ever-changing military threat. In our global campaign against global terror, our military must have every resource, every tool, every weapon and every advantage they need for the missions to come.

I agree with President Bush when he says that there is no silver bullet, no single event or single action that is going to suddenly make the threat of terrorism disappear. This broad-based and sustained effort will continue until terrorism is routed out. The situation is similar to the Cold War, when continuous pressure from many nations caused communism to collapse from within. We will press the fight as long as it takes, and we will prevail.

I am very pleased that this bill makes significant improvements in the quality of life of the men and women who serve in the Armed Forces. These improvements include a 4.1 percent military personnel pay raise and targeted pay raises to mid-grade non-commissioned officers; generous housing allowances that will significantly decrease service personnel's out-of-pocket housing expenses; and access to quality health care.

We can never pay our men and women in uniform on a scale that matches the magnitude of their sacrifice, but this bill reflects our respect for their selfless service.

Today, more than ever, we also owe those in uniform the resources they need to maintain a very high state of readiness. Our enemies rely upon surprise and deception. They used to rely upon the fact that they thought we were soft, but I do not think they think that way anymore.

Our forces must be ready to deploy to any point on the globe on short notice. This bill increases operation and maintenance by over $9.7 billion. Our Nation must have, and will have, ready forces that can bring victory to our country and safety to our people.

The world's best soldiers, sailors, airmen and Marines also deserve the world's best weaponry. To ensure that, our Nation must invest in procurement. This defense bill contains about $70.3 billion for procurement. The Nation must give our military the weapons it needs to meet the threats of our future. If the war against terror means we must find terror wherever it exists, pull it out by its roots, and bring people to justice, our military must have the means to achieve the objective.

To that end, Mr. Speaker, I urge my colleagues to support this rule and to support the underlying bill. Because now, more than ever, we must improve our national security.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. FROST. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Over the past several months, Mr. Speaker, the world has seen the skill, courage and professionalism of the United States military. America's men and women in uniform have done everything this country has asked of them, and they have done it well. So I am pleased to report that the defense appropriations bill on the floor today provides them with the resources they need to continue to ensure our national security.

I would like to commend the chairman of the Committee on Appropriations, the gentleman from Florida (Mr. YOUNG); the ranking Democrat, the gentleman from Wisconsin (Mr. OBEY); the subcommittee chairman, the gentleman from California (Mr. LEWIS); and the subcommittee ranking member, the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. MURTHA), for the tremendous job they have done to support America's troops and to protect Americans here at home. The bill represents the bipartisan support this Congress has for our troops and the war on terrorism.

Overall, it provides nearly $34 billion more for national defense than we spent last year. It reflects the homeland security priorities for which Democrats have fought so hard, including $385 million for the chemical and biological defense program, and it funds substantial quality of life improvements for America's men and women in uniform and their families.

In particular, this bill includes a 4.1 percent military pay raise and even larger increases for the mid-grade non-commissioned officers whom the armed services must retain. To improve military health care, it significantly increases funding for the Defense Health Program, some $141 million above the President's request.

I also am pleased that this bill continues to fund the wide range of weapons programs that will ensure America's military superiority throughout the world. For instance, it includes $4.1 billion to procure 23 F-22 Raptor aircraft, the next-generation air dominance fighter for the Air Force. It also provides $882 million for research and development for this aircraft.

Additionally, the bill provides $3.5 billion for continued development of the Joint Strike Fighter, the high-technology multi-role fighter of the future for the Air Force, the Navy and the Marines; and it includes $1 billion for 11 V-22 aircraft.

In sum, Mr. Speaker, this bill does a good job of providing needed resources to our troops for the fiscal year that begins on October 1, but I would be remiss if I did not call attention to the more pressing problem facing America's military right now. Specifically, U.S. troops are fighting the war on terrorism around the world at this very moment. They are winning, but they desperately need additional resources now for the remainder of this fiscal year.

Mr. Speaker, it is no secret that the Armed Forces will have to take drastic steps if they do not get help soon. The Army could have to cancel training exercises, for instance; and the Air Force could have to severely cut flight hours.

That is why both the House and the Senate passed the emergency supplemental appropriations bill with substantial bipartisan support. Unfortunately, that bill is still stuck in a conference committee. Why? Because Republican leaders are playing a high-stakes game of political chicken with our troops.

□ 1130

They are trying to use the wartime spending bill to hide the fact that they have increased America's national debt and are raiding Social Security.

Make no mistake, America's debt is increasing because of the fiscally irresponsible tax plan Republicans passed last year. But House Republican leaders are desperate to disguise that fact from the American people, so they are holding hostage the wartime emergency spending supplemental bill.

Mr. Speaker, House Democrats have repeatedly tried to work with Republicans to ensure the United States does not default on its debt. We have offered to help pass a bipartisan, short-term increase in the debt limit. All we ask is that Republicans join us in an honest, comprehensive budget summit so we can stop the fiscal irresponsibility that is rating the Social Security trust fund.

Unfortunately, Republican leaders are afraid to take responsibility for their actions. They are afraid that a straight up-or-down vote to raise the debt ceiling will highlight the rising tide of red ink Republicans have created.

That sort of budgetary dishonesty is bad enough, but holding up the emergency supplemental spending bill that our troops need is beyond the pale. Simply put, it is a particularly shameful form of war profiteering.

Mr. Speaker, it does not have to be that way. Historically, Democrats and Republicans in Congress have worked together to support America's national defense. On the floor today, we are doing just that with the spending bill for the next fiscal year.

I urge the Republican leadership to stop holding hostage the emergency wartime supplemental spending bill. Have the courage to increase the debt separately and free the supplemental.

How, Mr. Speaker, can the Republican leadership let this body adjourn for the Fourth of July recess, our most patriotic celebration, without tending to the needs of the men and women who are defending our flag and our country in every corner of this globe? To me, it is an abdication of the responsibilities we, the elected Members of the House of Representatives, have to our constituents and to our country.

If the Republican majority wants to govern, now is the time to show the country that they are capable of doing so. Pass a separate debt limit and bring up the supplemental that is so desperately needed right now by every branch of the armed services.

If the Republican leadership will do that, then we can pass the supplemental with an overwhelmingly bipartisan majority and get the troops the assistance that they need today. We are providing the assistance in this legislation that is before us that they need starting October 1, and that is good and we all support that. But what about the months of July, August, and September? Let us move on and provide that help also.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mrs. MYRICK. Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. FROST. Mr. Speaker, I yield 4 minutes to the gentleman from Wisconsin (Mr. OBEY), the ranking member on the Committee on Appropriations.

Mr. OBEY. Mr. Speaker, this is a bipartisan bill. It is a bipartisan rule. Both ought to be supported. The bill itself will pass overwhelmingly after the House is finished disposing of it. I want to congratulate all of those who had anything to do with putting it together, most especially the gentleman from California (Mr. LEWIS) and the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. MURTHA).

Having said that, I cannot help but noting how ironic it is that on the same day that the House will be debating the bill that provides the resources to enable our military to defend this country and to take the battle to terrorists around the world, how ironic it is that this House on another bill coming up later today will not stand up for the very values that we are today buttressing by the funding that we are providing in this bill.

What will happen today, in my view, on the rule on prescription drugs will demonstrate that the biggest threat to this democracy and the biggest threat to the average citizen just trying to get through the day and pay their bills, the biggest threat to them is not from any foreign power. The biggest threat is from some of their own representatives who will refuse to practice democracy here at home.

We are shortly going to be considering a prescription drug bill which is of, by, and for the pharmaceutical industry. It is designed not to solve the problem of seniors who face mounting drug costs. It is designed to block us from being able to provide any comprehensive, meaningful relief by providing a guaranteed benefit under Medicare.

It is apparent to me that those who run this House have determined that the only way they can win with their proposal is to avoid giving the elected representatives of every senior in America an opportunity to choose how we can most effectively solve the problem of runaway prescription drug prices.

It seems to me that a Congress which can produce legislation such as we have before us this morning is a Congress that ought not to be afraid to provide choice in the way we deal with the problems of our senior citizens. We hear the Republican leadership of this Congress prattle on to an almost nauseating degree about the need for us to provide choice programs in schools; but they are apparently afraid to give us the opportunity to choose among alternatives when it comes to dealing with what is probably the biggest financial crisis that our senior citizens have today.

I am going to support this rule, and I will support this bill; but it is a sad day when the elected leadership of this House, who more than any other have a responsibility to defend democratic values, decide instead that the only way they can win is by crushing those same democratic values.

Make no mistake about it, the prescription drug bill which is coming at us today is not designed to solve a problem. It is designed to prevent Members of this House from producing a comprehensive alternative that will solve the problem. It says to America's seniors, you are going to have to accept the fact that we have decided in our infinite wisdom that the only solution we will provide for the problem is a subsidizing of insurance companies.

Mr. Speaker, that is not what the average senior expects. It is not what our constituents, regardless of age, elected us to come here to do. Before this day is over, it will be a shameful day in the history of democracy in this House.

Mrs. MYRICK. Mr. Speaker, I yield 3 minutes to the gentleman from North Carolina (Mr. HAYES).

Mr. HAYES. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentlewoman for yielding me this time.

The irony today that we stand before this body and ask for the needed resources and assets that our men in uniform need to protect our freedom and our liberty and our heritage, we stand here under the very appropriate words "In God We Trust," but yet a judge in California, with the stroke of a pen, would undo these things that we fight for. I hope that irony is not lost on us today.

Mr. Speaker, I rise in support of the rule that will allow for consideration of H.R. 5010, the defense appropriations bill for fiscal year 2003. The tragic events of September 11, 2001, have thrust our Nation's military into the spotlight and called to duty the brave men and women of the U.S. Armed Forces. Once again, U.S. citizens are rallying behind them in strong support of the harrowing mission they have been called upon to do; and today the United States Congress has a duty to pass this important legislation that will help provide the necessary resources for these brave men and women to do their job.

This legislation first and foremost takes care of our most vital asset in the military, our people. It provides every servicemember with a 4.1 percent pay raise. It approves housing allowances for the buy-down of service personnel's out-of-pocket housing expenses from 11.3 to 7.5 percent in 2003. For the soldiers and airmen in my district at Fort Bragg and Pope Air Force Base, the ability to adequately care for their families and train for the mission for which they are called are the two issues which are second to none. I believe this legislation makes significant progress in these areas.

The defense appropriations bill for fiscal year 2003 builds upon our work from last year and continues to reverse the decline of military readiness by funding key operations, maintenance, and training accounts. This financial support devoted to our national security is long in coming. We must adequately provide the men and women from Fort Bragg and Pope Air Force Base and all of our military personnel who are currently prosecuting the war on terrorism adequate and necessary resources to do their job.

I would like to specifically mention that this bill provides some funding for some key capabilities for our U.S. Special Forces, whose anniversary we celebrated last week. While they, alongside members from all our Armed Forces, serve in Afghanistan and all over the world today, we show our support by providing the funding necessary to effectively and safely do their job. The $354.7 billion we are voting on today will help do that. It is targeted at two of the most critical areas crucial to maintaining a quality of life and readiness. Furthermore, this bill funds the development and testing of an effective ballistic missile defense system.

Mr. Speaker, it is gross injustice and misfortune that it took the tragedy in September to focus the public eye on the need for a more robust defense budget; but I feel the legislation in front of us takes that step, and the rule provides for its consideration. I urge Members to vote strongly in favor of the bill.

Mr. FROST. Mr. Speaker, I yield 3 minutes to the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. KUCINICH).

Mr. KUCINICH. Mr. Speaker, at a time when this country is prepared to spend up to $400 billion for the military and an extra $50 billion for defense, $37 billion for homeland security, I think it is appropriate to ask how we can create peace around the world.

Last summer, I introduced H.R. 2459, legislation to create a Cabinet-level Department of Peace which embodies a broad-based approach to peaceful, non-violent conflict resolution at domestic and international levels. The mission of the Department is to make non-violence an organizing principle in our society and to help create conditions for a more peaceful world where someday we can make war itself archaic. Over 43 Members of Congress support this bill.

The Department would be headed by a Secretary of Peace appointed by the President with the advice and consent of the Senate. Domestically, the Department would be responsible for developing policies which address issues, including domestic violence, child abuse, mistreatment of the elderly. Internationally, the Department would analyze foreign policy and make recommendations to the President on matters pertaining to national security, including the protection of human rights and the prevention and de-escalation on armed and unarmed international conflict.

I have received thousands of letters of support and e-mails from all over the United States and all over the world in support of a Department of Peace. People are demanding an end to violence. They are demanding an end to war, and the Department of Peace can be instrumental in realizing this goal.

We are in a new millennium, and the time has come to review age-old challenges with new thinking, wherein we can conceive of peace as simply not being the absence of violence, but the active presence and the capacity for a higher evolution of human awareness, of respect, trust and integrity; wherein we all may tap the infinite capabilities of humanity to transform consciousness and conditions which impel or compel violence at a personal, group, or national level toward developing a new understanding of, and a commitment to, compassion and love.

We have above the Speaker the words "In God We Trust." Let us place our faith in our capacity to go beyond weapons as instruments of resolving international conflict and believe in our own ability to evolve and to make a difference. The Department of Peace is a path toward just that.

□ 1145

Mr. FROST. Mr. Speaker, I urge adoption of the rule.

Mr. Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time.

Mrs. MYRICK. Mr. Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time, and I move the previous question on the resolution.

The previous question was ordered.

The resolution was agreed to.

A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. LATOURETTE). Pursuant to House Resolution 461 and rule XVIII, the Chair declares the House in the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union for the consideration of the bill, H.R. 5010.

□ 1145

IN THE COMMITTEE OF THE WHOLE

Accordingly, the House resolved itself into the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union for the consideration of the bill (H.R. 5010) making appropriations for the Department of Defense for the fiscal year ending September 30, 2003, and for other purposes, with Mr. CAMP in the chair.

The Clerk read the title of the bill.

The CHAIRMAN. Pursuant to the rule, the bill is considered as having been read the first time.

Under the rule, the gentleman from California (Mr. LEWIS) and the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. MURTHA) each will control 30 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from California (Mr. LEWIS).

Mr. LEWIS of California. Mr. Chairman, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

It is my privilege to rise today and join the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. MURTHA) to take up the defense appropriations bill for the year 2003. We have been allocated adequate time on both sides. This bill involves an expenditure of some $354.7 billion on behalf of our national defense, and at this point, I would like to insert for the RECORD a summary of this bill, by appropriations account.

COMPARATIVE STATEMENT OF NEW BUDGET (OBLIGATIONAL) AUTHORITY FOR 2002
AND BUDGET REQUESTS AND AMOUNTS RECOMMENDED IN THE BILL FOR 2003
(Amounts in Thousands)

	FY 2002 Enacted	FY 2003 Request	Bill	Bill vs. Enacted	Bill vs. Request
TITLE I
MILITARY PERSONNEL
Military Personnel, Army.....	23,752,384	27,079,392	26,832,217	+3,079,833	-247,175
Military Personnel, Navy.....	19,551,484	22,074,901	21,874,395	+2,322,911	-200,506
Military Personnel, Marine Corps.....	7,345,340	8,558,887	8,504,172	+1,158,832	-54,715
Military Personnel, Air Force.....	19,724,014	22,142,585	21,957,757	+2,233,743	-184,828
Reserve Personnel, Army.....	2,670,197	3,398,555	3,373,455	+703,258	-25,100
Reserve Personnel, Navy.....	1,654,523	1,927,152	1,897,352	+242,829	-29,800
Reserve Personnel, Marine Corps.....	471,200	557,883	553,983	+82,783	-3,900
Reserve Personnel, Air Force.....	1,061,160	1,243,904	1,236,904	+175,744	-7,000
National Guard Personnel, Army.....	4,041,695	5,128,988	5,070,188	+1,028,493	-58,800
National Guard Personnel, Air Force.....	1,784,654	2,135,611	2,124,411	+339,757	-11,200
Total, title I, Military Personnel.....	82,056,651	94,247,858	93,424,834	+11,368,183	-823,024
TITLE II
OPERATION AND MAINTENANCE
Operation and Maintenance, Army.....	22,335,074	23,961,173	23,942,768	+1,607,694	-18,405
Operation and Maintenance, Navy.....	26,876,636	28,697,235	29,121,836	+2,245,200	+424,601
Operation and Maintenance, Marine Corps.....	2,931,934	3,310,542	3,579,359	+647,425	+268,817
Operation and Maintenance, Air Force.....	26,026,789	26,772,768	27,587,959	+1,561,170	+815,191
Operation and Maintenance, Defense-Wide.....	12,773,270	14,169,258	14,850,377	+2,077,107	+681,119
Operation and Maintenance, Army Reserve.....	1,771,246	1,880,110	1,976,710	+205,464	+96,600
Operation and Maintenance, Navy Reserve.....	1,003,690	1,159,734	1,239,309	+235,619	+79,575
Operation and Maintenance, Marine Corps Reserve.....	144,023	185,532	189,532	+45,509	+4,000
Operation and Maintenance, Air Force Reserve.....	2,024,866	2,135,452	2,165,604	+140,738	+30,152
Operation and Maintenance, Army National Guard.....	3,768,058	4,049,567	4,231,967	+463,909	+182,400
Operation and Maintenance, Air National Guard.....	3,988,961	4,062,445	4,113,010	+124,049	+50,565
Overseas Contingency Operations Transfer Fund 1/.....	50,000	50,000	---	-50,000	-50,000
United States Court of Appeals for the Armed Forces...	9,096	9,614	9,614	+518	---
Environmental Restoration, Army.....	389,800	395,900	395,900	+6,100	---
Environmental Restoration, Navy.....	257,517	256,948	256,948	-569	---
Environmental Restoration, Air Force.....	385,437	389,773	389,773	+4,336	---
Environmental Restoration, Defense-Wide.....	23,492	23,498	23,498	+6	---
Environmental Restoration, Formerly Used Defense Sites	222,255	212,102	212,102	-10,153	---
Overseas Humanitarian, Disaster, and Civic Aid.....	49,700	58,400	58,400	+8,700	---
Former Soviet Union Threat Reduction.....	---	416,700	416,700	+416,700	---
Support for International Sporting Competition, Defense	15,800	19,000	19,000	+3,200	---
Defense emergency response fund 2/.....	---	19,460,616	---	---	-19,460,616
Total, title II, Operation and maintenance.....	105,047,644	131,676,367	114,780,366	+9,732,722	-16,896,001
TITLE III
PROCUREMENT
Aircraft Procurement, Army.....	1,984,391	2,061,027	2,214,369	+229,978	+153,342
Missile Procurement, Army.....	1,079,330	1,642,296	1,112,772	+33,442	-529,524
Procurement of Weapons and Tracked Combat Vehicles, Army.....	2,193,746	2,248,558	2,248,358	+54,612	-200
Procurement of Ammunition, Army.....	1,200,465	1,159,426	1,207,560	+7,095	+48,134
Other Procurement, Army.....	4,183,736	5,168,453	6,017,380	+1,833,644	+848,927
Aircraft Procurement, Navy.....	7,938,143	8,203,955	8,682,655	+744,512	+478,700
Weapons Procurement, Navy.....	1,429,592	1,832,617	2,384,617	+955,025	+552,000
Procurement of Ammunition, Navy and Marine Corps.....	461,399	1,015,152	1,167,130	+705,731	+151,978
Shipbuilding and Conversion, Navy.....	9,490,039	8,191,194	8,127,694	-1,362,345	-63,500
Other Procurement, Navy.....	4,270,976	4,347,024	4,631,299	+360,323	+284,275

COMPARATIVE STATEMENT OF NEW BUDGET (OBLIGATIONAL) AUTHORITY FOR 2002
AND BUDGET REQUESTS AND AMOUNTS RECOMMENDED IN THE BILL FOR 2003
(Amounts in Thousands)

	FY 2002 Enacted	FY 2003 Request	Bill	Bill vs. Enacted	Bill vs. Request
Procurement, Marine Corps.....	995,442	1,288,383	1,369,383	+373,941	+81,000
Aircraft Procurement, Air Force.....	10,567,038	12,067,405	12,492,730	+1,925,692	+425,325
Missile Procurement, Air Force.....	2,989,524	3,575,162	3,185,439	+195,915	-389,723
Procurement of Ammunition, Air Force.....	866,644	1,133,864	1,290,764	+424,120	+156,900
Other Procurement, Air Force.....	8,085,863	10,523,946	10,622,660	+2,536,797	+98,714
Procurement, Defense-Wide.....	2,389,490	2,688,515	3,457,405	+1,067,915	+768,890
National Guard and Reserve Equipment.....	699,130	---	---	-699,130	---
Defense Production Act Purchases	40,000	73,057	73,057	+33,057	---
Total, title III, Procurement.....	60,864,948	67,220,034	70,285,272	+9,420,324	+3,065,238
TITLE IV
RESEARCH, DEVELOPMENT, TEST AND EVALUATION
Research, Development, Test and Evaluation, Army 3/..	7,106,074	6,820,333	7,447,160	+341,086	+626,827
Research, Development, Test and Evaluation, Navy.....	11,498,506	12,496,065	13,562,218	+2,063,712	+1,066,153
Research, Development, Test and Evaluation, Air Force.	14,669,931	17,564,984	18,639,392	+3,969,461	+1,074,408
Research, Development, Test and Evaluation, Defense-Wide.....	15,415,275	16,598,863	17,863,462	+2,448,187	+1,264,599
Operational Test and Evaluation, Defense.....	231,855	222,054	242,054	+10,199	+20,000
Total, title IV, Research, Development, Test and Evaluation.....	48,921,641	53,702,299	57,754,286	+8,832,645	+4,051,987
TITLE V
REVOLVING AND MANAGEMENT FUNDS
Defense Working Capital Funds.....	1,312,986	1,499,656	1,832,956	+519,970	+333,300
National Defense Sealift Fund: Ready Reserve Force	432,408	934,129	944,129	+511,721	+10,000
Total, title V, Revolving and Management Funds..	1,745,394	2,433,785	2,777,085	+1,031,691	+343,300
TITLE VI
OTHER DEPARTMENT OF DEFENSE PROGRAMS
Defense Health Program:
Operation and maintenance.....	17,659,475	14,234,041	13,916,791	-3,742,684	-317,250
Procurement.....	267,915	278,742	283,743	+15,828	+5,001
Research and development.....	463,804	67,214	400,214	-63,590	+333,000
Total, Defense Health Program.....	18,391,194	14,579,997	14,600,748	-3,790,446	+20,751
Chemical Agents & Munitions Destruction, Army:
Operation and maintenance.....	739,020	974,238	974,238	+235,218	---
Procurement.....	164,158	213,278	213,278	+49,120	---
Research, development, test and evaluation.....	202,379	302,683	302,683	+100,304	---
Total, Chemical Agents.....	1,105,557	1,490,199	1,490,199	+384,642	---
Drug Interdiction and Counter-Drug Activities, Defense	842,581	848,907	859,907	+17,326	+11,000
Office of the Inspector General.....	152,021	157,165	157,165	+5,144	---
Total, title VI, Other Department of Defense Programs.....	20,491,353	17,076,268	17,108,019	-3,383,334	+31,751
TITLE VII
RELATED AGENCIES
Central Intelligence Agency Retirement and Disability System Fund.....	212,000	212,000	212,000	---	---
Intelligence Community Management Account.....	160,429	147,754	162,254	+1,825	+14,500
Transfer to Department of Justice.....	(42,752)	(34,100)	(34,100)	(-8,652)	---

COMPARATIVE STATEMENT OF NEW BUDGET (OBLIGATIONAL) AUTHORITY FOR 2002
AND BUDGET REQUESTS AND AMOUNTS RECOMMENDED IN THE BILL FOR 2003
(Amounts in Thousands)

	FY 2002 Enacted	FY 2003 Request	Bill	Bill vs. Enacted	Bill vs. Request
Payment to Kaho'olawe Island Conveyance, Remediation, and Environmental Restoration Fund.....	67,500	25,000	25,000	-42,500	---
National Security Education Trust Fund.....	8,000	8,000	8,000	---	---
Total, title VII, Related agencies.....	447,929	392,754	407,254	-40,675	+14,500

TITLE VIII

GENERAL PROVISIONS

Additional transfer authority (Sec. 8005).....	(2,000,000)	(2,500,000)	(2,500,000)	(+500,000)	---
Indian Financing Act incentives (Sec. 8021).....	8,000	---	8,000	---	+8,000
FFRDCs.....	-40,000	---	---	+40,000	---
Disposal & lease of DOD real property (Sec. 8035).....	19,000	29,730	29,730	+10,730	---
Overseas Mil Fac Invest Recovery (Sec. 8038).....	3,362	---	1,000	-2,362	+1,000
Rescissions (Sec. 8050).....	-531,475	---	-192,932	+338,543	-192,932
Excess Foreign Currency Cash Balance (Sec. 8082).....	-240,000	---	-615,000	-375,000	-615,000
Travel Cards (Sec. 8087).....	8,000	10,000	10,000	+2,000	---
Defense Cooperation Account (Sec. 8109).....	---	5,000	5,000	+5,000	---
United Service Organizations.....	8,500	---	---	-8,500	---
Transfer within SCN (Sec. 8130).....	---	---	---	---	---
Government Purchase Card (Sec. 8103).....	-100,000	---	-97,000	+3,000	-97,000
National D-Day Museum.....	4,250	---	---	-4,250	---
American Red Cross.....	3,500	---	---	-3,500	---
Newmark.....	8,500	---	---	-8,500	---
Fisher House (Sec. 8099).....	1,700	---	2,000	+300	+2,000
Zero emission steam technology demo.....	1,700	---	---	-1,700	---
CAAS/Contract Growth (Sec. 8100).....	-1,650,000	---	-51,000	+1,599,000	-51,000
Utilities.....	-105,000	---	---	+105,000	---
Tethered Aerostat Radar System	3,000	---	---	-3,000	---
Fairchild Air Force Base	6,000	---	---	-6,000	---
Army Acquisition Restructuring	-5,000	---	---	+5,000	---
USS Alabama Museum Memorial	4,200	---	---	-4,200	---
Special Needs Learning Center	3,500	---	---	-3,500	---
Eisenhower Commission	2,600	---	---	-2,600	---
Travel cost growth	-262,000	---	---	+262,000	---
Legislative liaison savings	-50,000	---	---	+50,000	---
Reserve Component Incentive and Bonus programs	10,000	---	---	-10,000	---
Fort Des Moines Memorial Grant	4,500	---	---	-4,500	---
Clear Radar Upgrade	8,000	---	---	-8,000	---
Defense Counter-Terrorism Fellowship prog.....	17,900	---	---	-17,900	---
Padgett Thomas Barracks	15,000	---	---	-15,000	---
USS Intrepid Museum Memorial	4,250	---	---	-4,250	---
Armed Forces Retirement Home	5,200	---	---	-5,200	---
Working Capital Funds Cash Balance (Sec.8112).....	---	---	-470,000	-470,000	-470,000
Working Capital Funds Excess Carryover (Sec. 8113)....	---	---	-475,000	-475,000	-475,000
Ctr for Mil Recruiting Assessment & Vet Emp(Sec. 8115)	---	---	4,000	+4,000	+4,000
Army Venture Capital Funds (Sec. 8105).....	---	---	17,000	+17,000	+17,000
Total, title VIII, General Provisions.....	-2,832,813	44,730	-1,824,202	+1,008,611	-1,868,932

TITLE IX

COUNTER-TERRORISM & DEFENSE AGAINST WEAPONS OF MASS DESTRUCTION

Counter-Terrorism & Operational Response Transfer Fund	478,000	---	---	-478,000	---
Transfer to Department of Justice.....	(10,000)	---	---	(-10,000)	---

COMPARATIVE STATEMENT OF NEW BUDGET (OBLIGATIONAL) AUTHORITY FOR 2002
AND BUDGET REQUESTS AND AMOUNTS RECOMMENDED IN THE BILL FOR 2003
(Amounts in Thousands)

	FY 2002 Enacted	FY 2003 Request	Bill	Bill vs. Enacted	Bill vs. Request
Former Soviet Union Threat Reduction.....	403,000	---	---	-403,000	---
Total, title IX, Counter-terrorism and Defense Against Weapons of Mass Destruction.....	881,000	---	---	-881,000	---
Total for the bill (net).....	317,623,747	366,794,095	354,712,914	+37,089,167	-12,081,181
OTHER APPROPRIATIONS
Emergency Response Fund (P.L. 107-117).....	3,395,600	---	---	-3,395,600	---
Net grand total (including other appropriations)	321,019,347	366,794,095	354,712,914	+33,693,567	-12,081,181
CONGRESSIONAL BUDGET RECAP
Scorekeeping adjustments:
Stockpile collections (unappropriated).....	-150,000	---	---	+150,000	---
O&M, Army transfer to National Park Service:
Defense function.....	-1,000	---	---	+1,000	---
Nondefense function.....	1,000	---	---	-1,000	---
Disabled military retiree payments (mandatory)....	55,000	55,000	55,000	---	---
Military personnel accounts (discretionary)...	-55,000	-55,000	-55,000	---	---
Total adjustments.....	-150,000	---	---	+150,000	---
Adjusted total (incl scorekeeping adjustments) 4/	320,869,347	366,794,095	354,712,914	+33,843,567	-12,081,181
Appropriations.....	(321,400,822)	(366,794,095)	354,905,846	(+33,505,024)	(-11,888,249)
Rescissions.....	(-531,475)	---	(-192,932)	(+338,543)	(-192,932)
Total (including adjustments).....	320,869,347	366,794,095	354,712,914	+33,843,567	-12,081,181
Amount in this bill.....	(321,019,347)	(366,794,095)	354,712,914	(+33,693,567)	(-12,081,181)
Scorekeeping adjustments.....	(-150,000)	---	---	(+150,000)	---
Total mandatory and discretionary.....	320,869,347	366,794,095	354,712,914	+33,843,567	-12,081,181
Mandatory.....	267,000	267,000	267,000	---	---
Discretionary.....	320,602,347	366,527,095	354,445,914	+33,843,567	-12,081,181

Footnotes:

1. Budget amendment (H. Doc. 107-189) reduced Overseas Contingency Operations Transfer Fund by $2,632,000.
2. The FY 2003 budget request for the "Defense Emergency Response Fund" was reduced by $594,384,000 and transferred to Military Construction.
3. Budget Amendment (H. Doc. 107-219) terminated the Army's Crusader artillery program of $475,609,000 and reallocated these funds to other R&D, Army programs.
4. The fiscal year 2003 budget request was adjusted to not include $3,412,561,000, the proposed cost to cover the accrued costs related to retirement benefits of Civil Service Retirement System employees and retiree health benefits for all civilian employees.

COMPARATIVE STATEMENT OF NEW BUDGET (OBLIGATIONAL) AUTHORITY FOR 2002
AND BUDGET REQUESTS AND AMOUNTS RECOMMENDED IN THE BILL FOR 2003
(Amounts in Thousands)

	FY 2002 Enacted	FY 2003 Request	Bill	Bill vs. Enacted	Bill vs. Request
RECAPITULATION
Title I - Military Personnel.....	82,056,651	94,247,858	93,424,834	+11,368,183	-823,024
Title II - Operation and Maintenance.....	105,047,644	131,676,367	114,780,366	+9,732,722	-16,896,001
Title III - Procurement.....	60,864,948	67,220,034	70,285,272	+9,420,324	+3,065,238
Title IV - Research, Development, Test and Evaluation.....	48,921,641	53,702,299	57,754,286	+8,832,645	+4,051,987
Title V - Revolving and Management Funds.....	1,745,394	2,433,785	2,777,085	+1,031,691	+343,300
Title VI - Other Department of Defense Programs.....	20,491,353	17,076,268	17,108,019	-3,383,334	+31,751
Title VII - Related agencies.....	447,929	392,754	407,254	-40,675	+14,500
Title VIII - General provisions (net).....	-2,832,813	44,730	-1,824,202	+1,008,611	-1,868,932
Title IX - Counter-terrorism & Defense against Weapons of Mass Destruction (net).....	881,000	---	---	-881,000	---
Total, Department of Defense (in this bill).....	317,623,747	366,794,095	354,712,914	+37,089,167	-12,081,181
Other appropriations.....	3,395,600	---	---	-3,395,600	---
Total DoD funding available (net).....	321,019,347	366,794,095	354,712,914	+33,693,567	-12,081,181
Scorekeeping adjustments.....	-150,000	---	---	+150,000	---
Total mandatory and discretionary.....	320,869,347	366,794,095	354,712,914	+33,843,567	-12,081,181

Mr. Chairman, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. MURTHA. Mr. Chairman, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

We did the best we could do with the amount of money we had available. This is a good bill.

Mr. SCOTT. Mr. Chairman, I am pleased to rise in support of this legislation to provide for the FY 2003 Department of Defense appropriations. I extend my appreciation to both Subcommittee Chairman LEWIS and Ranking Member MURTHA for this bipartisan legislation.

I have the pleasure of representing portions of the Hampton Roads area—home to Newport News Shipyard and the world's largest naval base, Norfolk Naval base. The recently released 2000 census figures show that the Hampton Roads area is the military capital of the United States. We have 91,615 men and women in uniform that live in the Hampton Roads metropolitan area, more than anywhere else in the country. For these men and women, I am especially pleased that the appropriations bill funds a 4.1 percent pay increase and increases the basic housing allowance for our hardworking military personnel. Now more than ever, it is important that we show our appreciation for our men and women in uniform.

I would also like to compliment the Committee for appropriating $250 million for the new carrier, CVN-77. Since 9-11, we have overextended the use of our current carriers. Given the new threats we face, it is appropriate that we proceed with the construction of the new carrier. This is also an item for which the entire Virginia Delegation worked very hard to secure appropriations.

In addition to the funding for the new carrier, funding to allow for the construction of the fourth Virginia class submarine is vitally important.

Finally, I would like to thank the Subcommittee for funding that would go to science programs at historically black colleges and universities and for institutions serving Hispanic students.

Mr. SHAYS. Mr. Chairman, last year, as it has since 1990, the General Accounting Office (GAO) declared that Department of Defense's financial management systems pose a high risk of fraud, waste and mismanagement.

To get a better understanding of how the acquisition and procurement processes should operate, the House Government Reform Committee, National Security, Veterans Affairs and International Relations Subcommittee asked GAO to follow a defense inventory item from the initial idea through procurement and operation. They reviewed the procurement, accounting, control and payment processes for the Joint Lightweight Integrated Suit Technology (JLIST), a chemical and biological protection garment for use by military personnel.

The General Accounting Office found DOD's nonintegrated data systems and processes are wasting money and degrading readiness. Despite pledges to the Subcommittee 2 years ago to fix scattered inventory controls, DOD still cannot provide a real-time accounting of the location and condition of critical protective equipment.

As a result, as DOD procures hundreds of thousands of new JLIST garments annually, some military units have formally declared JLIST garment surpluses while others cannot get enough suits for training. While DOD is scheduled to procure 2.8 million more JLIST garments for approximately $100 each, GAO found some had been auctioned on the Internet for less than $3 each.

This form of waste directly affects readiness. When the chemical alarms again sound in the desert, U.S. forces will need those suits. Transformation of DOD's last-century financial management systems into a 21st Century enterprise architecture is a critical element of their ability to survive, and prevail, against tomorrow's threats.

DOD has been bogged down by scores of outdated data information systems that do not allow commanders and managers to make effective management decisions. The Secretary of Defense has stated, "One of my highest priorities is to have reliable, accurate and timely financial management information upon which to make the most effective business decisions," and has tasked the Under Secretary of Defense (Comptroller) to achieve this goal.

The use of chemical and biological weapons is a very real threat. The Comptroller must have the tools to assure military inventory, such as the JLIST and other protective equipment, and medical supplies, is readily available when needed. Except for system changes that are the results of statutory directives, the Department and its components should not allocate any funding to modify any system that is part of DOD's current financial management environment without the approval of the Comptroller. In granting this approval, the Under Secretary of Defense should assure that a valid business case has been made and that the systems modifications or enhancements comply with the new enterprise architecture DOD is attempting to implement.

Mr. CHAMBLISS. Mr. Chairman, I strongly support the FY03 National Defense Appropriations Act, which provides critical resources for our military to ensure that they have the adequate training, modern equipment, and sufficient resources to do their job in protection of our nation. I am proud of the work this Congress has done in crafting a bill that will support our troops and their families.

This bill is important for our nation. Our troops deserve a pay raise—and we provide that to them. We provide our troops and their families quality health care and benefits, which they are entitled to in return for their service and sacrifice for our nation. We provide significant funds for the development of technologies that are needed for our missile defense systems so that we are better prepared to meet the future threats this country faces. We increase the resources available to combat terrorism, which now is an immediate threat to the people of the United States. We increase key readiness accounts so that we continue to increase our capabilities to support our warfighters who are actively engaged in protecting American interests around the globe.

Let me say that this bill is also important to Georgia. We fully funded the president's budget requests for vital modern aircraft for our Air Force, include the F-22 advanced tactical fighter, the C-17, the C-130 and JSTARS and I oppose attempts to decrease funding for these critical weapons systems that our troops need to successfully fight and win a war.

Mr. Chairman, terrorism and our national security are not temporary problems, but perpetual reminders of the uncertainty of the days ahead and the need for our continued support for a strong national defense. I encourage my colleagues to join me in supporting our military and our President by voting for this bill and ensuring that the men and women in uniform who serve our nation valiantly everyday to protect and defend our freedom have the resources which they need to do their job and win the war on terrorism.

Mr. PASTOR. Mr. Chairman, it has come to my attention that the application of precisely controlled heat has shown excellent results in the treatment of benign and malignant skin disease. I am aware of the great potential of the ThermoMed Instrument in this regard and the published results of physicians using it. Impressive benefits including high cure rates, non-invasive and safe treatment, rapid healing and excellent cosmetic results, confirm the applicability of this new technology for the curative treatment of diseased tissue. Accordingly, I encourage the Department of Defense to conduct clinical evaluation of the ThermoMed Instrument and its applications for treating armed forces deployed around the world.

Mr. BENTSEN. Mr. Chairman, today I rise in support of H.R. 5010, important legislation that provides $354.7 billion appropriations to the Department of Defense (DoD), supporting the honorable men and women, at home and abroad, who are in service to the nation at this critical time. As our nation continues to face the most pressing military and defense priorities in its history, we must continue to provide adequate and secure funding for the continuing war on terrorism, and the DoD remains at the forefront of these vigilant efforts.

Mr. Chairman, I do have concerns about placing this measure first in our annual drive to pass appropriations bills, as we run the risk of drying up the well of funds available for the other funding measures. However, I am pleased that the Appropriations Committee has approved appropriate, responsible increases in funding for military personnel and operations and management over the Fiscal Year 2002 budget, as the DoD infrastructure must be capable of handling continuing and unanticipated demands in the global fight against terrorism.

More importantly, I am pleased that H.R. 5010 provides $11 million in federal funds for the Texas Training and Technology for Trauma and Terrorism (T5) program, $9.5 million for the Biology, Education, Screening, Chemoprevention, and Treatment (BESCT) lung cancer program at University of Texas (U.T.) M.D. Anderson Cancer Center, and $500,000 to the 147th Fighter Squadron of the U.S. Air Force's Texas Air National Guard to obtain chiropractic health care services. As the Texas delegation's lead sponsor of these projects, I have worked with the Memorial Hermann Hospital, Texas Heart Institute, and M.D. Anderson Cancer Center in my district, and the House Appropriations Committee, to secure funding as part of H.R. 5010.

Mr. Chairman, the T5 program is a collaborative effort with Memorial Hermann Hospital, the Texas Heart Institute, and M.D. Anderson

Cancer Center, that focuses on improving emergency care. The goal of the program is to identify the best ways of protecting Houston, and any other cities, from the mortality and cost of terrorism and other disasters. The T5 program is the successor program to the acclaimed University of Texas-Army collaboration known as DREAMS (Disaster Relief and Emergency Medical Services). This program will develop cutting-edge digital technology to link ambulances, hospitals, and LifeFlight helicopters to ensure faster diagnosis and treatment for patients; it establishes a Center for Disaster Preparedness that will focus on developing training programs for public health workers, emergency medical technicians, physicians, nurses, and public health programs in bioterrorism and disaster preparedness; and T5 establishes a new Army Training Center at the University of Texas Research Park where Army personnel undergo training in chemical and biological defenses and trauma surgery. The $11 million approved for this program represents the first federal support for the project. In the past, I helped secure $38 million for DREAMS, the previous program that T5 is modeled after. Memorial Hermann Hospital, Texas Heart Institute and M.D. Anderson Cancer Center are to be commended for their leadership in developing the medical technologies and treatments of the 21st Century.

In addition to that funding, the $9.5 million approved in H.R. 5010 for the BESCT lung cancer program at the U.T. M.D. Anderson Center is the fourth installment in a five-year plan to provide comprehensive services for lung cancer patients, including smoking cessation, early diagnosis, inhibition of cancer development in active and former smokers, and improved treatment and survival for patients with active lung cancer. In the past, I helped secure $18 million for this program as part of the Appropriations process. Mr. Speaker, lung cancer is the leading cause of cancer death in the United States today, killing more than 160,000 individuals a year. Research for this disease has not received adequate funding in proportion to the number of lung cancer patients who are suffering from this disease. I am pleased that U.T. M.D. Anderson's ambitious and vital program will have the funds necessary to help save lives and reduce health care costs.

H.R. 5010 also provides $750,000 for the 147th Fighter Squadron of the U.S. Air Force's Texas Air National Guard, which will enhance chiropractic health care services on the campus of Texas Chiropractic College in Pasadena, Texas. This funding will allow the Moody Clinic at the Texas Chiropractic College and the 147th Fighter Squadron to provide the men and women of the Texas Air National Guards with the resources to help provide new diagnostic imaging assets and other tools that will enhance chiropractic, pain management, and related health care services. At a time when many of our military are facing increased stress in service to our nation, I believe that this is a much needed first step in both relieving some of their pain and advancing chiropractic medicine.

Mr. Chairman, as H.R. 5010 provides critical funding for these and other important and timely programs, I urge my colleagues to join me in supporting this measure, to support our Armed Forces in their efforts to fight terrorism at home and abroad, and to provide homeland defense and protection to keep America strong and freedom alive.

Mr. SIMMONS. Mr. Chairman, I rise in support of H.R. 5010, the Department of Defense Appropriations Act for Fiscal Year 2003 and I ask my colleagues to support this important legislation.

This year's annual defense appropriations bill is good for both America and for my home state of Connecticut. This legislation provides the resources needed to fight the war on terrorism and build our nation's military infrastructure and readiness.

This legislation continues our efforts at transforming our military for the threats of the future. The bill contains $4.1 billion for 23, F-22 fighter aircraft, each of which are powered by two F135 engines assembled by Pratt and Whitney in Middletown, Connecticut. The F-22 will ensure that the U.S. maintains air dominance in any conflict in the years ahead.

The bill also continues our efforts at having the Pentagon buy smarter and more efficiently through continued research and development of the Joint Strike Fighter, now designated the F-35 and powered by the Pratt and Whitney award-winning F-135 engine system. Variants of one aircraft, the F-35, will eventually replace four aircraft, the F-16, the A-10, and the AV-8B and F-18 C/D, bringing important cost savings not only in production but in the maintenance and operation over the life of each aircraft.

Building on our transformation to a more mobile force the bill approves $3.7 billion to procure 12, C-17 Globemaster III transport aircraft; each of which are powered by four Pratt and Whitney F117 engines. The C-17 is the workhorse of getting our military to the fight and will be for years to come.

For our Army, this bill contains funds for 4 additional Black Hawk helicopters, built by Sikorsky in Connecticut, for a total of 31 aircraft. Our ground troops greatly benefit from the speed, reliability, and safety of this first-class helicopter.

For our Navy, this bill allocates $1.49 billion for one new Virginia Class attack submarine and over $1.03 billion for Trident Class submarine conversion. The Virginia Class and Trident conversion programs assure America's continual dominance of the seas well into the 21st century. Electric Boat, located in my district, has been manufacturing submarines for over a century. It manufactures the Virginia Class and designs much of the Trident conversion.

For these systems, the bill includes an additional $7 million for research and development of new payloads and sensors for submarines, much of which will be done at Electric Boat, in Groton, Connecticut.

As every regional military commander will attest, our Navy is stretched thin, especially our submarine force. These investments will add significant capability to the commanders in the field at low cost and low risk to the taxpayer. We must do continue to invest more in our submarine force.

Finally, this bill again addresses the needs of our best asset in our military: our troops. The bill funds a 4.1 percent military pay raise and selected targeted pay raises to mid-grade and non-commissioned officers. It approves housing allowances to bring down military personnel's out-of-pocket housing expenses from 11.3 percent to 7.5 percent. For years much of the nation has taken the men and women in the military for granted. This brings needed relief to these gallant personnel.

This is just a partial list of the support this legislation gives our men and women in uniform. When we pass this bill we will be providing for the financial and housing needs of our servicemen and women, who stand ready to go into harm's way anywhere in the world to defend our nation and our interests. It also allocates resources to continue our military's transformation to meet the challenges of tomorrow and it responds to the realities of the war on terrorism and sets us on course to meet the new challenges that unquestionably lie ahead.

When I came to Congress I pledged to do more to help Connecticut's defense industries and the men and women who work so hard 24 hours a day, seven days a week, to defend our nation. Looking at this legislation, I am pleased with what has been provided thus far and I look forward to building on these successes.

Mr. Chairman, this bill is a well-crafted bill to meet many of the needs of our military. I urge my colleagues to support the bill.

Mr. WATTS of Oklahoma. Mr. Chairman, I rise to explain why the United States Army needed to develop the Crusader Advanced Field Artillery System, and still very much needs the Crusader technologies for near future cannon artillery protection for our combat soldiers.

I stand here as the Congressman representing the U.S. Army Field Artillery Center at Fort Sill, Oklahoma. For decades, Fort Sill has been recognized as the Center for Excellence in field artillery for the United States, for NATO, in fact, for the world over. I champion Crusader because it is a superior weapon system that will equip our combat soldiers with the best field artillery system in the world—not the 9th best, behind China, Iran, North Korea and Russia. Crusader's leap-ahead mobility, lethality, and responsiveness is what our modern battlefield requirements dictate.

Countless news articles, speeches, testimony and letters emphasize that the U.S. Army has needed an advanced field artillery system for over a decade. The need for greater mobility in our self-propelled cannon howitzer became embarrassingly apparent during Desert Storm when our existing howitzers could not keep pace with the maneuver force.

Poor performance in Desert Storm accelerated the Army's planning for a major new artillery system that began in 1985. By mid-1993, the requirements for the advanced field artillery system and armored resupply vehicle were approved, and development commenced. In 1996, a major design change from a liquid propellant to a solid propellant for this system altered the development and deployment schedule.

Then came Governor George Bush's 1999 Citadel speech asserting that our heavy forces must be lighter. Shortly thereafter, Army Chief of Staff General Eric Shinseki directed that the Crusader howitzer become deployable as a system on a single C-17 sortie. That transformational forward-thinking General called it right. The Crusader team put the howitzer on a diet.

Lighter weight, more mobility was the upside of the trade off. The down side was a delay in deployment from FY2005 to FY2008.

Next, then Governor Bush debated Senator JOHN MCCAIN in New Hampshire and uttered the word "Crusader" when asked for an example of a weapon system a President Bush might terminate. But Governor Bush was talking about a 60-ton howitzer. By 2001, the Army requirements already incorporated the weight reduction to 40 tons.

Maybe President Bush and his staff zeroed in to kill a platform they thought was still too heavy at 60 tons. Maybe that is why the Defense Acquisition Executive, Undersecretary Pete Aldridge, penned a memo to Secretary of Defense Rumsfeld urging a Crusader briefing for the President, actually calling it "Crusader II" as if to emphasize its transformation. Aldridge's memo stated:

"In response to the President's continued concern over Crusader, I have prepared the attached that could be used as a memorandum for the President or a talking paper for a personal discussion. As we have said before the current Crusader II is not the 60-ton Crusader of the past. . . . The paper is written to return to basics: Why we need artillery; what are the artillery characteristics desired; and, what is the best artillery option (Paladin or Crusader II). A side-by-side comparison of Paladin and Crusader II clearly shows the comparative advantage of Crusader II."

In the proposed memorandum to the President, the bottom line "Recommendation" stated:

"Proceed with the development of Crusader II. It has the firefighting features, to include lethality, deployability and mobility, we need. The alternative is to surrender the technological gains made in this program and defer the qualitative edge we require relative to potential adversaries well into the next decade. Crusader II is a success story well worth sustaining."

All the way through February, March and April, reports, testimony, and other statements from the Department of Defense, the Department of the Army, the General Accounting Office, etc. reflected support for Crusader.

Out of the blue, by early May, the Defense Department decided to voice opposition to the Crusader. Surprising many in Government, media and even in our military, Pentagon officials undertook a unilateral campaign to reverse years of Army testimony in support for a weapons system which I believe is vital to our combat soldiers in fighting and winning wars.

The Crusader meets the needs of the 21st Century and the mission of transformation of U.S. Army weaponry. As Secretary Aldridge's memo noted, Crusader is deployable as a system anywhere in the world on a single C-17. It is reliable and versatile, prepared to perform in many different climates with many different scenarios. Crusader's characteristics of survivability and lethality make it a weapon to be feared by enemies of freedom—a word dear to president Bush.

I will never know what exactly caused the about-face, change of heart at the Pentagon over Crusader. Earlier this month, some of my colleagues and I sent a letter to Defense Secretary Donald Rumsfeld requesting documentation on, among other issues, an Assessment of Alternatives that would justify the abrupt decision to cancel the Crusader system. I never received a written response to my request. Nor did I ever receive the documents I requested, even in a personal meeting I had with the Deputy Secretary of Defense. Perhaps those documents, which should exist, do not. Perhaps I will never know.

What I do know, however, is that our ground forces need a balance in weaponry. They need fire support that includes missiles, rockets, helicopters, aircraft, gunfire and cannons. No matter how modern the warfare, battles cannot be fought, nor won, using only computers.

With great prescience, our forefathers drafted the United States Constitution giving the Congress the power "to raise and support armies." And, I am proud to say that the Congress, in its wisdom, has taken a different, and more studied approach to its decision-making on the Crusader.

For example, the House Armed Services Committee recommended, and the full House approved, full funding for FY 2003 for the Crusader Advanced Field Artillery System. This action included funding to complete the Assessment of Alternatives (AOA) study by which the Army normally determines how its new weapons system stacks up against predecessor and alternative systems.

The Senate just voted 93-3 to permit the Assessment of Alternatives study to proceed as well.

Today the House will vote on the recommendation of the House Appropriations Committee to take the logical next step. Acknowledging the last eight years of work, Costing roughly $2 billion to develop the Crusader system, the House Appropriations Committee report emphasizes that the major technological advances achieved by the Crusader program must be retained. The report lists as examples of Crusader's technological advances: a liquid cooled cannon; ammunition auto loader mechanism; digital fire control and targeting computers; and a glass cockpit.

The Committee report recommends that Crusader's technical team and facilities be retained to further develop an organic indirect fire cannon artillery system. Accordingly, the House Appropriations Committee has recommended a total of $368.5 million to provide for integrating cannon technologies with a suitable platform, and munitions, and to insure that such a system can be delivered not later than Fiscal Year 2008. Under the circumstances, the House Appropriations Committee has taken a good approach.

Remember, however, our combat soldiers continue to be at risk. We cannot afford any more delay in delivering them an advanced artillery system like Crusader. Therefore, as final action, the Congress must ensure that we provide the army with sufficient funding to deliver an indirect fire cannon and platform no later than FY 2008.

Before I close, I want to quote from a letter written by the former Commanding General of the Field Artillery Center at Fort Sill, Major General Leo J. Baxter (RET). General Baxter wrote:

"I have watched the development and maturity of many Army programs, none of which has matched the performance and capabilities of Crusader. Crusader is the answer for fire support in the future. It provides the close fire support necessary for our troops to maneuver on the battlefield. It also can provide the long-range precision fires enabled by Excalibur. Unlike air power, which certainly is important, Crusader will be available 24/7 and in all weather. The Defense Department has yet to specifically explain what new system will provide this support and then they will be ready. They simply are winging it and putting fighting men at risk."

In voting on the DOD Appropriations bill, including the provision on Crusader, you can rely on my words, or those of General Baxter. Or you can take your lead from the strong endorsements of over two dozen retired 4-Star Generals who bring to bear some 1,000 years of first-hand experience in the art of warfare. Many of the 4-Star Generals listed have supported Crusader in articles and letters, which I circulated earlier and place in the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD today. Many of these statements express grave concerns about the abrupt decision to cancel Crusader without first consulting with the Army leadership. In fact, the House Appropriations Committee Report expresses the same concern.

To a man, these Generals believe that the Army has waited too long already for robust advanced field artillery with Crusader's capabilities. These Army generals know best the battlefield requirements in any scenarios because they have fought and taken fire in many of them. Many of these Generals have personally witnessed the Crusader prototype, which has successfully fired over 6,500 rounds in Yuma, Arizona. I urge all of you to review these Generals' compelling statements.

Crusader's performance has earned support for full funding in the House-passed DOD Authorization bill, and FY2003 Appropriations for its next iteration deployable by FY2008.

I urge my colleagues to support the House authorization position and continued development of this technology on this critical artillery system.

Mr. GREEN of Texas. Mr. Chairman, I want to express my disappointment that the Appropriations Committee included $94 million to fund the Department of the Navy's Military Sealift Command purchase of T-5 Tankers.

As I have stated to the Chairman and the Ranking Member of the Defense Appropriations Subcommittee, I believe the Military Sealift Command has not determined the actual cost of exercising their buyout option—particularly by underestimating the purchase costs of the ships and by not taking into account lease and other termination costs.

There is no cost penalty for waiting until future fiscal years to purchase these vessels, when the T-5 Tankers will be older and will have a lower residual value.

However, Mr. Chairman, I note that the Committee acknowledged the excellent operating history of the T-5 Tankers by conditioning any changes in operating contracts resulting from this new acquisition strategy on a certification to the Committee that the readiness and efficiency attained in the current operation of these tankers be maintained.

Knowing how the Committee operates, it would be my understanding that such certification to the Committee is not pro forma, but substantive, supported by facts and timely submitted before agreements are executed affecting T-5 Tanker operators or operating personnel responsible for meeting the Defense Energy Support center's military fuel resupply needs.

The current T-5 Tankers operator with this excellent record, Ocean Shipholdings, Inc.—a Texas-based company—has long expressed its hope that the Navy will extend the existing leases when they expire. At the time Ocean Shipholdings is willing to renegotiate its operating contract in a fashion which secures these ships under operating rates beneficial to the Navy.

The Congress has been struggling to find additional funding to procure advanced combatant vessels and auxiliary craft for the Navy mission; using current procurement funds to purchase aging vessel already under lease is not the best use of those funds. It will reduce the funds available to the Navy for new vessel construction.

Ocean Shipholdings designed and built these five unique and environmentally compliant double-hulled ocean going oil tankers. These U.S. flag T-5 Tankers were completed in 1985 and 1986, at which time they were purchased and then leased back by private sector leasing companies.

The T-5 Tankers were then Time Chartered to the Military Sealift Command for a term of 20 years to transport petroleum fuels globally to meet the requirements of the Defense Energy Support Center under the Defense Logistics Agency.

Ocean Shipholdings was awarded the prime contract to manage, operate and maintain the T-5 Tankers for the term of the 20-year Time Charters. This included crew, maintenance, insurance, drydocking and logistics support on a turnkey basis.

Under the operation of Ocean Shipholdings, the T-5 Tanker fleet has reliably moved clean petroleum products worldwide for the Navy over the last sixteen years in some of the most hostile ocean environments, including Antarctica and Arctic seaports.

Ocean Shipholdings has a perfect safety and environmental record in the operation of the T-5 fleet, has maintained all five ships in full operating status and continuous deployment for sixteen years, and has established comprehensive in-house protocols and contractual arrangements for oil pollution response.

During Operation Desert Storm, this Texas-based tanker operator ran the T-5s in the war zone effectively and continuously with U.S. citizen officers and crew.

Instead of using scarce resources for the purchase of these T-5 Tankers in this time of increasing burdens on U.S. military global operations, maintaining the current leases will ensure the continued efficient operation of these T-5 Tankers by Ocean Shipholdings—while meeting the Defense Energy Support Center's requirements for global movement of defense fuels.

Extending the ship leases and Ocean Shipholdings operating contract—at rates favorable to the Navy and taxpayers—are the most stable and prudent courses of action to meet the Navy's defense fuels needs over the next decade.

As this bill moves through conference committee, I hope my colleagues will insist that the Navy maintain the same level of readiness and efficiency already experienced in the operation of these tankers by retaining their relationship with Ocean Shipholdings.

Mr. SABO. Mr. Chairman, I rise in support of this bill, and want to thank Mr. LEWIS and Mr. MURTHA for their fine work, particularly on the provisions related to the Army Crusader artillery program.

The gentlemen have been fair and responsive to my concerns that the Administration acted hastily in recommending cancellation of the Crusader program.

I am also grateful for the hard work of the staff—especially Greg Dahlberg, Bill Gnacek, Kevin Roper, Paul Juola and Letitia White—who helped the Subcommittee sort through these complex issues and produce a good bill.

Mr. Chairman, over the past two months, I have become increasingly convinced that the administration is wrong in asking Congress to terminate Crusader. I believe there is too much risk.

No one can argue that U.S. Army artillery is seriously outdated. Crusader was on-track and on budget to give us a fast, accurate, world-class artillery system to support and protect American soldiers in combat—by 2008.

Mr. Chairman, let me stress that date—2008. In military procurement terms, that is practically tomorrow. It puzzles me that we are at this point.

Clearly, we must maintain a robust heavy artillery development program. Therefore, I have pressed hard to ensure that this bill gives very clear direction to the Army regarding our intent for the follow-on artillery program.

For this challenging task, we give the Army a strict deadline and strong guidance to leverage the best elements of the Crusader program, the breakthrough technologies and the intellectual property, including the technical workforce, as they develop and field the next-generation heavy artillery system.

To underscore this point, I want to read from the bill:

Immediately upon termination of the Crusader Artillery System program, the Secretary of the Army shall enter into a contract to leverage technologies developed with funds invested in fiscal year 2002 and prior years under the Crusader Artillery System program . . . and other Army development programs in order to develop and field, by 2008, a Non-Line of Sight (NLOS) Objective Force artillery system and Resupply Vehicle variants of the Future Combat System.

I think I speak for many when I say that we will be watching their progress closely.

Mr. EDWARDS. Mr. Chairman, I rise today in support of the overall bill, which does a lot of good things for our service men and women and for our nation's defense.

I appreciate the good work of the Subcommittee Chairman, Mr. LEWIS and the Ranking Member, Mr. MURTHA in drafting this bill.

However, I have serious concerns over the Pentagon's cancellation of the Crusader artillery system—a decision that this bill ratifies.

We are blessed as a nation with soldiers who are willing to serve and sacrifice to defend our freedom. Our Army is the envy of the world. Our artillery, however, is not.

The Paladin artillery system, fielded today, is outgunned by at least 12 different countries, including all three countries in the Axis of Evil.

Remember, any war with Iran, Iraq or North Korea is going to be completely unlike Afghanistan. In each of these hypothetical conflicts, we will need heavy ground forces, just like the Gulf War, but we will face artillery systems superior to our own.

One of the Army's top priorities over the last decade has been to give our soldiers artillery support that is second to none, the Crusader, a program that has been on time and under budget.

On February 27, Deputy Secretary of Defense Paul Wolfowitz said:

I'm not one of those people who think that I can bet the farm on not needing artillery 10 years from now. And I think this [the Crusader] is the best artillery system available.

On February 28, the Army Chief of Staff, General Eric Shinseki, said:

Crusader's ability to keep up with ground maneuver forces, its longer range, its high rate of fire, its precision, would be a significant increase to the potential shortage of fire we have today.

Suddenly, in direct conflict with the President's Budget, the Pentagon reversed its unwavering support for Crusader and announced its cancellation.

The Administration has said they'll have alternatives in production by 2008. If that does not happen, the delay will put thousands of soldiers at undue risk.

Given the administration's commitment to cancel Crusader, I think the subcommittee leadership did its best to preserve funding for alternatives.

In conclusion, I believe the Pentagon think tank gurus have prematurely canceled Crusader. Canceling Crusader with nothing ready to take its place is putting the cart before the horse. However, I will work with them to get an effective alternative on line.

I hope those who killed the Crusader now feel an enormous responsibility to field a new artillery system by 2008. Delay in doing so could, God forbid, be measured in soldiers' lives lost in combat after 2008.

Mr. Chairman, I would finally like to include in the RECORD a statement by Congressman NORM DICKS and myself.

ADDITIONAL VIEWS OF HON. NORMAN D. DICKS
AND HON. CHET EDWARDS
THE GAMBLE ON CRUSADER

The Administration's recent decision to terminate the Crusader artillery system is a decision fraught with risk. Risk that we hope will not end up costing soldier's lives.

The Crusader self-propelled howitzer has been under development for the last eight years. This program is running under budget and on schedule with fielding of the first new howitzer set for 2008. The Crusader has been considered by the Army to be its highest priority acquisition program, because it would rectify the one glaring operational weakness that endangers the Army's battlefield success—heavy artillery support.

Currently, our Army is outgunned in heavy artillery by at least 12 different countries (including all 3 countries in the so-called "Axis of Evil")—a situation the Crusader would rectify. It is estimated that as many as 40 countries could soon have artillery systems that out-range the Army's current howitzer—the Paladin—and that 28 countries are developing artillery-delivered high precision munitions to complement these systems. Clearly, most other countries around the world plan on making high performance heavy artillery a mainstay of their military force for some time to come.

Last month, the Administration took the highly unusual step of deciding to cancel the Crusader program in the middle of the budget cycle. This action was taken without consultation with the Army's military leadership, and over their strong substantive objection. This decision will fundamentally alter the role that U.S. heavy artillery will play in future battles, yet we have seen very little evidence of any serious analytical effort to support this radical departure from the Army's accepted doctrine.

The Administration has essentially made a giant strategic bet on behalf of our land forces that the combination of future advances in precision cannon and rocket munitions (as distinguished from precision bombs and missiles) combined with hoped for perfection of real time target identification and selection technology (based on ubiquitous "24/7" all weather surveillance capabilities) will supplant the need to replace the Army's outdated Paladin howitzer with a system that shoots farther and faster.

This decision depends upon unproven technology and unproven tactics—betting that more traditional lethality and combat overmatch capabilities can be replaced by precision and speed. It is a decision that—as the Army's vaunted "Crusader talking points" said—"could put soldier's lives at risk" if the Department's hypothetical assumptions about how and where future wars will be fought turn out to be wrong.

What is somewhat puzzling to us in that the Army's artillery upgrade plan that the Secretary of Defense has now rejected calls for improvements in both areas—lethality and precision. The Army's Crusader plan that was devised in the last Administration and endorsed in the first two Bush Administration budgets called for fielding the new world-class Crusader howitzer by 2008 giving the U.S. Army an artillery system that is operationally and technologically superior to any artillery system in the world. The second part of the Army's plan was to perfect and field the GPS-guided Excalibur projectile to shoot from the Crusader within 3 to 5 years after the Crusader was in the force. The combination of Crusader and Excalibur would give the Army a truly devastating capability to support its soldiers—combining unprecedented accuracy with vastly superior rate of fire and range.

The Army had a prudent and affordable plan that recognized the possibility that developing precision-guided cannon projectiles and rocket systems is a difficult task that may end up falling short of expectations. Contrary to popular wisdom, precision-guided cannon and rocket systems are not perfected yet. Shooting sensitive high-tech precision guidance systems out of cannons exerts several hundred times the G-forces exerted on air-delivered precision-guided bombs and missiles such as JDAM or Tomahawk, and the cost that contractors propose charging to overcome these factors is very high at the current time. For instance, the Army's published plans call for paying $222,000 per round for the first 9,417 Excalibur projectiles when and if they are perfected.

This is 7 times greater than the Secretary of Defense' target price of $33,000 per round, and many experts question whether this target price will ever be achieved. It seems the Army had a very prudent plan—both from a warfighting perspective and from a development and cost risk perspective—that the Secretary of Defense summarily and unilaterally rejected.

So what is the Army left with under the Administration's new plan? In essence, the Army will be left with the outdated Paladin howitzer that sits on a 40-year-old chassis design that has already been upgraded six different times. The Paladin of the future will continue to shoot standard 155mm ammunition at low rates of fire and at substandard ranges as well as the new Excalibur precision projectile if it can be perfected, if the Paladin chassis can be shown to withstand the additional forces generated by firing this new round.

Whether Excalibur works or not, the Administration now plans on keeping the Paladin in the force until 2032 when the Future Combat System will finally phase it out.

The Administration explains that the risk of keeping the Paladin is acceptable because the greater precision and range of Excalibur rounds and the projected availability of fire support systems such as Guided MLRS and air-delivered precision munitions can cover the existing indirect fire support shortfall. Aside from the issues of bad weather, responsiveness, and ability to support the close fight, this new plan discounts many of the traditional roles of artillery that depend upon volume of fire over accuracy—such as fire to suppress enemy attacks, and cover fire to protect friendly troop movements or to protect sectors of a battlefield. Rate of fire is completely discounted as a priority under the new plan.

It does not overstate the case to say that Army military leaders do not support this plan—they see too much risk. While the Administration points to skirmishes in Afghanistan to support its bet on precision, many of our military leaders worry about the potential major battles that could erupt in Korea or other theaters where mechanized forces will determine the outcome. A high level Defense Department official echoed these exact concerns just 3 months ago when discussing the Crusader:

"Unless we want to have no new artillery facing North Korea's artillery, we need something. We have to remember, it's not just a matter of fighting on horseback with satellites and B-52s as we did in Afghanistan. We still face Kim Jung-II in North Korea. We still face Saddam Hussein in Iraq. We face others who use conventional weapons and the question then becomes do you want to modernize those or do you not.—Dov Zakheim, Comptroller, Department of Defense. Comments on The News House With Jim Lehrer March 18, 2002."

The Crusader decision also signals a troubling change of direction about how we will equip and fight our future force. Over the last several decades there has been a consensus that we should take maximum advantage of America's Scientific and technological strength to field military systems and devise military strategy and tactics to achieve decisive "combat overmatch" capabilities against any potential opponent. General Michael E. Ryan, former Air Force Chief of Staff, succinctly summed up the combat overmatch philosophy as follows: "I'm not interested in fair fights. What I'm interested in is a 100 to nothing score, not 51-49."

This philosophy has proven its worth—not only does it save American lives on the battlefield, but it is an effective way to win the peace. Our vastly superior military capabilities cause potential adversaries to think twice before confronting us or our allies militarily, which contributes significantly to world peace and stability. This was not always the case, and we must continue to work at keeping this edge.

Of all the military services, it is perhaps most important for the Army to continue with the philosophy of "combat overmatch" through superior technology. Unlike the Air Force and the Navy, we have a small Army compared to other countries. Currently, eight other armies in the world outnumber our Army. We make up for this with superior people, superior leadership, and superior technology, but numbers still matter if we let our technological edge slip.

It is disturbing that the Defense Department seems willing to rest on the laurels of past administrations and go back to a philosophy of "just enough." The Crusader would provide US military personnel with the best technology in the world that meets a known deficiency of a military service that American industry has shown it can deliver on time and on budget. The Crusader system is a state-of-the-art heavy artillery system that has already produced 7 new patents from its new technology. Over 6,000 test rounds have already been fired and the system is meeting or exceeding range, rate-of-fire, and reliability requirements by all accounts.

It is simply hard to understand why a system that meets the biggest Army warfighting deficiency is being scrapped.

If the President persists in demanding the termination of the Crusader, the weaknesses of the outdated Paladin (with or without the Excalibur projectile) make it imperative that we expedite the development and fielding of the Objective Force next generation artillery system. American soldiers do not deserve to continue to endure the risks of substandard artillery support. This deficiency must be eliminated as quickly as possible.

We therefore support the Committee position of adding $173 million to the $195 million budget request for development of the Objective Force artillery system in order to field a new system by 2008. This would accelerate the Army's old schedule by four to six years. This acceleration is possible only if the Army uses the existing Crusader engineering team and leverages the technology advances garnered with the Army's $2 billion investment that has already been spent on Crusader development.

Following are some of the detailed answers received from DOD to our specific questions on the Crusader that have been raised in the course of this debate.

1. How does the Crusader compare to other top foreign systems? Why don't we simply buy one of those systems?

A comparison of the most advanced artillery systems in the global marketplace available to our allies shows why the Army believes the Crusader is a superior artillery system. The Crusader delivers more firepower, is more mobile, protects its crew better, weighs less, uses fewer crewmembers, and is the only system that can be fully networked on the battlefield.

COMPARISON OF MODERN SELF-PROPELLED HOWITZERS

	Crusader (U.S.)*	Paladin (U.S.)	G6 (S. Africa)	AS90 (U.K.)	PzH2000 (Germany)
Max Range (km)*	40	30	30	37.4	37.4
Max Rate of Fire*	10 to 12/Minute. Indefinitely.	4/minute for 3	3/minute	6/minute for 3	6-8 minute for 3
Crew Size (howitzer + resupply veh.)	3 + 3	4 + 4	6+resupply crew	5+resupply crew	5+resupply crew
Curb Wt. (ton)	40	27	52	46.3	54+
Combat Wt. (ton)	50	32	55.6	50.7	60.3
Horsepower	1500	440	520	660	991
Projectile Qty.	48	39	45	58	60
Accuracy	96m @ 30km	232m@30km	Unknown	246m@30km	200m@km
Simultaneous rounds on target (MRSI Capability)	4-10 rounds	N/A	Unknown	Unknown	2-6 rounds
Highway speed (km/hr)*	67	60	85	52	62.5
X-Country Speed (km/hr)*	48	27	30	25	45
NBC Macro Protection	Yes	No	No	No	No
Resupply Vehicle	Yes/Automated	Yes/Manual	No	No	No
U.S. Command & Control	Yes	Yes/Not All	No	No	No

Notes:

¹ G6 is a South African howitzer, AS90 is from the United Kingdom, and PzH2000 is German.

² * indicates a key performance parameter (KPP). An additional KPP is the ability to automatically transfer 48 rounds from the resupply vehicle to the howitzer within 10.4 minutes, including maneuver time to link the vehicles—no other system can meet this requirement.

³ CEP is circular error probability.

⁴ MRSI is multiple round simultaneous impact capability.

⁵ NBC is nuclear (radiological) biological warfare, and chemical warfare crew protection.

Maximum Rate of Fire is at all deflections and quadrants using all projectile and fuse combinations.

2. How Much Does Crusader Cost?

A two-vehicle Crusader system (howitzer and resupply vehicle) could be procured for about $10.01 million (recurring production costs, FY 01 constant dollars) which is about 70% of the cost of one Army Blackhawk helicopter. In budget terms, the total procurement cost of $7 billion for 480 systems (another $4 billion is for development) is substantial in and of itself, but in terms of the total Defense budget the Army's planned average appropriation level of about $1 billion per year represents about one percent of the Army's annual budget, and about 3 tenths of one percent of the annual Defense Department budget. The total cost of the entire Crusader procurement is less than one year's worth of research for the missile defense program.

3. How much are the new Excalibur and guided MLRS munitions expected to cost, and how does that compare to standard 155mm ammunition?

Excalibur. The latest February 12, 2002 Army estimate pegged the future Excalibur program acquisition cost for the first 9,417 unitary projectiles at $222,000 per round, or a total cost of $2.1 billion. The Army could purchase nearly half of the entire Crusader fleet (209 out of 480 systems) for the cost of the first 10,000 rounds of Excalibur ammunition. The Administration's target unit cost for Excalibur unitary is $33,000 per round for 200,000 rounds, a seven-fold decrease compared to the current price, for a total cost of $6.6 billion. In addition, the Administration plans on buying an additional 40,264 Excalibur senior-fused (infra-red sensing skeet bomblets) projectiles at $96,000 per round, for a total cost of $3.9 billion. The past Army track record in precision/smart munitions programs (SADARM, MSTAR, BAT, WAM, Copperhead) does not support this cost reduction assumption. But assuming the Army can attain these "best cost" estimates the cost of the first 200,000 rounds of Excalibur unitary and 40,000 rounds of Excalibur sensor-fused projectiles would cost $10.5 billion, more than one and half times the total cost of the Crusader procurement ($7 billion). If the $33,000 "best cost" estimate for Excalibur unitary cannot be reached and the price can be reduced by only 50% to say, $100,000 per round, the total cost for Excalibur unitary projectiles sky-rockets to over $20 billion in order to attain the Army's initial 200,000-unit inventory objective. In any case, it would require annual appropriations of well over $1 billion per year in order to finance the Excalibur production rate efficiencies used as the basis for the target cost estimate—something that is unprecedented for one type of round of Army ammunition. It is also expected that the Army Excalibur inventory objective over time would increase well above 200,000 units.

Guided MLRS. The latest Army estimates peg the expected cost of Guided MLRS unitary rockets at $65,000 per unit. Assuming that the Army would fire a minimum of two rockets per target, the cheapest "kill" cost for a truck or a tank using guided MLRS would be $130,000. Each salvo of 12 MLRS rockets would cost $780,000 for unitary warheads (equivalent to the cost of 3,250 155mm projectiles).

Non-precision 155mm HE ammunition. The Army's most recent purchase of M107 HE 155mm projectiles was $240 per round for 155,000 rounds. M795 HE rounds are estimated to cost between $500 and $770 per round.

Inventory. The Army has an inventory of over 4.2 million 155mm HE rounds already paid for. There are no Excalibur projectiles or Guided MLRS rockets in the current inventory.

4. The Army has the best tank, the best infantry fighting vehicle, and the best attack helicopter in the world. Why has the Army operated so long with an inferior heavy artillery system?

During the late 1970's and 1980's the Army introduced new families of fighting systems that included the Abrams tank, Bradley fighting vehicle, air defense systems and helicopters such as Apache and Blackhawk. Due to fiscal constraints and diverging priorities in the mid 80's, the field artillery was forced to skip a generation of cannon modernization.

During that time period, the Army developed the Multiple Launch Rocket System (MLRS) to satisfy its deficiency in deep attack and Paladin was developed as an interim solution for its cannon deficiencies. Consequently, Paladin was a simple product improvement to the old M 109 that lacked mobility, lethality, and survivability. Because of the limitations of the chassis, Paladin lacks the potential or significant product improvement.

5. Can indirect cannon fire support missions be accomplished by greater investment in other systems—aircraft, missiles, and rockets?

U.S. ground forces have traditionally required a mix of rocket, missile and cannon systems to meet their fire support requirements. Cannons have historically provided close support to the maneuver arms on a 24-hour all weather basis. Although the unique characteristics that made cannon systems ideal for this mission are becoming less distinct as the capabilities of precision and smart munitions are improved, several distinct characteristics are likely to remain.

Flexibility and responsiveness. Flexibility and responsiveness are probably the cannon's hallmark. The close combat environment demands the ability to rapidly accommodate change. Cannon systems are more responsive to rapidly changing battle conditions because they carry a readily available quantity and variety of munitions and can rapidly change from one type of munition to another as required. Cannons reload by individual rounds vice pods for rockets/missiles. Rocket/missile pods can only accommodate one type of munition at a time. Often, the type of rocket/missile pod loaded may not be the optimum munition required for the specific target. Fires and effects coordinators then face what can be a dilemma. They must either search for launchers loaded with the correct munition, fire the launcher loaded with the less than optimum munition, or direct reload. Launcher reload operations can take approximately 7-20 minutes, making them less than ideal in a time critical situation. Aircraft carry limited amounts and types of munitions and must land to reconfigure or replenish their load. Aircraft reload cycles are generally much longer than missile and rocket systems. Army data indicated that a Crusader battalion could provide 130 tons of munitions in one hour, and 900 rounds in close support before the first aircraft sorties arrives on station.

Continuous Fires. Cannon systems are more capable of providing continuous fires (fires without gaps over a period of time) than are rocket/missile launchers and aircraft. With an actively cooled cannon, and fully automated rearm and resupply provided by Crusader resupply vehicles, the capability to provide continuous fires is greatly enhanced. Cannons have the capability to shift from target to target quickly—a matter of seconds in many cases. While launches do well in providing massed fires, there can often experience unacceptable gaps for reloading operation in sustaining fires.

Employment in Proximity to Friendly Forces. Providing fires in close proximity to friendly forces is an essential fire support task in the close fight. The minimum safe distance as measured by bursting radius is considerably smaller for cannons compared to existing rocket/missile systems. Final protective fires and "danger close" missions end up placing fires extremely close to friendly forces. The smaller bursting radius of cannon munitions enables the "echelonment of fires" whereby the infantry uses a succession of cannon and mortar systems interchangeably to maximize the coverage of fires until they must be shifted or lifted. Close fires require accuracy, responsiveness, timely delivery, and "controlled" (or limited) effects (burst radius), to reduce risk to supported forces. Cannon artillery can be employed much closer to our forces and is an absolute necessity in the close support role since it can be employed in all weather, in all terrain, day or night. Weather can severely hamper close air support. For instance, during the Kosovo air campaign, 56% of sorties were aborted due to weather. Of those sorties executed, 33% were adversely affected by weather, resulting in less than half of the targets being effectively engaged.

Sustainability. According to the Army, the logistical footprint for cannons is generally smaller than for rocket/missile launchers based on ammunition weight and cube size.

Cost of Munitions. Cannon munitions have historically been less expensive than rockets or missiles on a per-unit cost basis, and they provide a larger family of munitions to select from to deal with battlefield dynamics. Compared to the expected range of cost for new precision guided cannon and rocket munitions, the cost per round of non-precision 15mm cannon projectiles is cheaper on the order of 140-925 to one (see #3 above).

6. Will there be a void in indirect fire support without Crusader?

Possibly. According to the requirement that was developed by the Army and approved by the Joint Requirements Council of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, the Paladin was judged to be not mobile enough to keep up with our mechanized force in a maneuver-dominated fight. The Army is also concerned that the Paladin's range and rate-of-fire limitations prevent it from providing the required counter-fire "umbrella" for our forces. In addition to the significant increase in mobility, range, and rate-of-fire, Crusader provides the responsive, continuous fires and mobility required for fast moving close combat operations. Its automated ammunition handling and resupply system combined with an actively cooled cannon provide accurate sustained fires where needed in the required volume. Crusader interoperability with Joint and all Army command and control networks assures that effects are delivered when needed; providing direct link capability to any platform on the battlefield.

7. How old is Paladin and how much longer would it need to be in the force if Crusader is canceled? Can Paladin be upgraded to meet many of the Crusader requirements?

The M109 series howitzer design began in the mid-1950s and entered service in 1961. Paladin is the sixth modification to the M109 design—no Paladins are new howitzers. While maintaining virtually the same chassis, engine, transmission, and basic suspension, the Paladin's weight has grown by one third from 24 tons to 32 tons. The armament system has grown from a 24 caliber cannon with a range of 14 kilometers to a 39 caliber cannon with a range of 30 kilometers.

The Crusader was planned to remain in the force beyond 2032. If Crusader is not available and the M109 series howitzer must be continued in its place, it is probable that it too would be in the field in 2032. This would mean that the M109 series howitzer would be in the field 70 years after it initially entered service. The soldiers in 2030 could be fighting with the same howitzer used by their great grandfathers.

The Army evaluated the prospect of improving Paladin during the Cost and Operational Effectiveness Analysis completed for Crusader's Milestone 1 decision and the Congressional report delivered in December 2000. The analysis shows that to attain Crusader's rate-of-fire (10-12 RPM), cross country mobility (39-48 KPH) and firing range (40-50 KM), Paladin would require an automated ammunition handling system, increased horsepower, improved suspension, and a cooled 56 caliber cannon. Paladin lacks sufficient growth capacity in the chassis to allow these improvements. To strengthen the chassis to withstand these stresses would require replacing or significant design changes in the hull structure, hydraulics, engine, transmission and suspension sub-systems.

8. Is Crusader rate of fire oversold because it can't be resupplied at high enough rates? What is the logistical plan to resupply Crusader during maximum rates of fire?

Ammunition resupply has been an issue that has plagued artillerymen for years. Because Crusader has a fully automated resupply system, it allows a 300% improvement in resupply operations. The key to successfully achieving this new resupply requirement will be the fielding of fully automated resupply vehicles (RSVs) that can rearm a Crusader howitzer with 48 rounds and refuel it in 10 minutes—a 50% improvement. One technique employs two resupply vehicles (RSV's) per howitzer battery in the vicinity of the firing area to conduct rearming and refueling, two RSVs in hide areas with full loads of ammunition, and two RSVs uploading at the Logistics Resupply Point. Other methods may be employed, depending on the individual tactical situation, and considerations of distances that have to be traveled between the locations. The introduction of the wheeled RSV gives the commander enhanced flexibility to conduct resupply operations depending on the threat. For example, when facing a high counter fire threat, the commander could deploy the tracked resupply vehicles forward providing maximum protection for the crew while using the wheeled vehicles to upload and transport ammunition in the less vulnerable rear positions and transfer the ammunition to the tracked carriers. In a low counter fire threat, the commander could also deploy the wheeled vehicles forward maximizing through put of ammunition. The automatic resupply and cannon autoloader capability is a major technological leap forward for the Army, which has never had this capability before.

9. What force structure was sacrificed in anticipation of fielding Crusader? Will structure be added back if Crusader is terminated? What will that cost?

In anticipation of the increased firepower and productivity of the Crusader system, the Army reduced force structure in both maneuver and fire support units by 25 percent in the mid-1990s. The Army reduced Paladin and all other cannon battalions from three batteries of eight howitzers (3x8) to three batteries of six howitzers (3x6). MLRS battalions were also reduced to 3 batteries of 6 launchers each (down from 8 or 9 launchers each), at the same time, Army tactics were changed to take full advantage of the speed of its tanks, Bradley fighting vehicles the Crusader, and other situation awareness capabilities, increasing the planned battle space for Army forces by over 200 percent. Termination of the Crusader will necessitate a reexamination of Army force structure, tactics, techniques, and procedures.

10. What are remaining development and cost risks of the Crusader?

The Army has testified that it rates the Crusader program a moderate to low risk for technical performance, cost, and schedule. The software build for Crusader is on schedule and within cost estimates. The range and rate-of-fire key performance parameters are being demonstrated with the first prototype vehicle at Yuma Proving Grounds and the resupply and mobility are on schedule for demonstration in 2002. Over 6,000 test firings have shown the Crusader to be 142% more accurate to date than Paladin. Accuracy improvements come from: A new projectile tracking system that removes meteorological errors; Precision pointing with electric drives; thermal management; Muzzle velocity management; On-board projectile weighting; and Inertial reference unit coupled to GPS to null out position errors.

The program has been focusing significant effort on building the reliability of the system in order to remove soldiers from the technical and manual operational aspect of fighting a weapon system.

11. How much does the Crusader weigh and what can carry it?

The Crusader howitzer was redesigned several years ago to reduce its weight from 60 tons to 40 tons. Under the Army's current plan, Crusader artillery would be either prepositioned or moved by sea as part of a counterattack corps. If needed, Crusader systems could be airlifted on C-17 or C-5B aircraft. Deployments by airlift would most likely entail a battery of 3 Crusader systems to meet special contingencies. Crusader airlift ranges would be:

Nautical Miles

C-17:
2 howitzers (84 tons)	2,276
1 howitzer and 1 resupply vehicle
(w) (73 tons)	2,782
C-5B:
2 howitzers (84 tons)	3,200
1 howitzer and 1 resupply vehicle
(w) (73 tons)	3,500

Mr. NUSSLE. Mr. Chairman, I rise today in support of H.R. 5010, the Defense Appropriations Act for Fiscal Year 2003. This piece of legislation is perhaps the most important component of our wartime budget for America. It is the first bill we are considering pursuant to the 302(b) allocations filed by the Appropriations Committee on June 24. I am happy to report that it is consistent with the levels established in H. Con. Res. 353, the House concurrent resolution on the budget for fiscal year 2003, which we subsequently deemed as having the effect of a conference report on the resolution. The budget resolution provided $393.8 billion in budget authority for national defense, including $10 billion for a war reserve fund. This bill funds the bulk of that commitment. The rest is funded in separate military construction and energy and water appropriations bills.

H.R. 5010 provides $354.446 billion in new discretionary budget authority, which is $1 million less than the 302(b) allocation to the House Appropriations Subcommittee on Defense. Outlays of $345.328 billion are $782 million below the subcommittee's allocation. The bill contains no emergency-designated new budget authority, but does include $1.9 billion worth of BA savings including $945 million in Working Capital Revolving Fund reductions, $615 million in foreign currency savings and $195 million worth of rescissions of previously enacted BA.

Accordingly, the bill complies with section 302(f) of the Budget Act, which prohibits consideration of bills in excess of an appropriations subcommittee's 302(b) allocation of budget authority and outlays established in the budget resolution.

This bill represents the House's unwavering commitment to win the war against terrorism. But in addition to combating terrorism, H.R. 5010 follows the blueprint set forth in the resolution to give every service member a 4.1-percent pay raise, increased housing allowances, and incentive pay.

Finally, section 201 of the budget resolution provided for a $10-billion reserve fund to continue military operations in fiscal year 2003. The Appropriations Committee has advised that it will deal with the war reserve fund when the Pentagon provides more budgetary detail about how it plans to spend the $10 billion.

In conclusion, I express my support for H.R. 5010 and yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. BEREUTER. Mr. Chairman, this Member rises in strong support for H.R. 5010, the Defense appropriations bill for FY 2003. This Member would like to offer particular thanks to the Chairman of the Subcommittee on Department of Defense Appropriations, the distinguished gentleman from California (Mr. LEWIS) and the Ranking Minority Member on the Subcommittee on Department of Defense Appropriations, the distinguished gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. MURTHA) for their work on this important bill.

This Member sincerely thanks the Committee on Appropriations for including $2.75 million in fiscal year 2003 for the Air National Guard's Project ALERT. Currently, Project ALERT serves as an on-line training tool developed and used by the Nebraska National Guard in collaboration with the Department of Defense, the National Guard Bureau, the University of Nebraska, and Nebraska Educational Television. The $2.75 million appropriated in H.R. 5010 will assist with the development of the new courses and the modification of existing courses.

Indeed, the implications of Project ALERT extend nationwide and to components of both the active and reserve military forces. Allowing military forces to complete some training courses on their own time, as Project ALERT does, provides an opportunity to cut on-site training costs and time and to maximize exercise time. For the U.S. military to meet the challenges it will face during the current war on terrorism and throughout the 21st Century, it is crucial that Congress invest in innovative and flexible training tools such as Project ALERT.

Furthermore, this Member is very appreciative that the Committee has approved the appropriation of $4 million for a bioprocessing facility at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln, giving (UNL).

These funds will be used for the third phase of the project to establish and validate a current Good Manufacturing Practices (cGMP) processing facility with the capability to make vaccines as therapeutic countermeasures against biological warfare agents. Two cGMP pilot plants, one dedicated to yeast/bacterial culture and the other dedicated to mammalian cell culture will be built within the new Chemical Engineering building on the UNL campus. The funds will be used to build and equip the laboratories.

This will be a commercial-grade facility, giving UNL the capability, if required by the Department of Defense (DoD), to make vaccines against biological warfare agents and products that can be used as therapeutic countermeasures to treat people who have been exposed to biological agents. UNL is currently doing this on a smaller level and is well suited to pursue this expansion. These facilities certainly will enhance our nation's ability to respond to biological warfare.

In closing, Mr. Chairman, this Member urges his colleagues to support H.R. 5010.

Mr. CALVERT. Mr. Chairman, I rise today in strong support of the Defense Appropriations Act for Fiscal Year 2003. This bill provides our armed forces with the resources to fight terrorism and strengthens military quality of life, readiness, infrastructure and modernization programs. I would like to commend Chairman LEWIS, Ranking Member MURTHA and their staffs for their bipartisan work in putting this bill together.

The bill also includes funding for 12 new C-17 airlifters along with other acquisitions and improvements for our cargo and tanker fleet. Combat forces cannot fight, peacekeepers cannot keep the peace and humanitarian aid cannot be distributed without an effective, rapid global mobility force. Continuing to build up our cargo and tanker fleet will help ensure that the United States military can continue to effectively deliver both guns and butter anytime, anywhere.

Mr. GARY G. MILLER of California. Mr. Chairman, I wish to thank the distinguished Chairman of the Defense Appropriations Subcommittee, Congressman LEWIS, and Full Committee Chairman YOUNG for the incredible amount of work they and their Committees have put into this bill. The American people deserve a bill that provides for the defense of our nation and this bill puts us well on the way to a fully restored and invigorated military.

Earlier this year it came to my attention that across the Armed Services, Tuition Assistance funds had been exhausted for Fiscal Year 2002. As many Members know, the Tuition Assistance Program, commonly referred to as TA, provides soldiers, sailors, airmen, and marines the opportunity to construct an educational plan and have up to 75 percent of their tuition paid by their branch of service for amounts up to $3,500 per year. It's an extremely popular program and a great opportunity for our men and women in uniform to pursue a degree while serving their country. Unfortunately, instead of having this educational benefit available to them, our service members are confronted with a budget shortfall for 2002.

These men and women have put their lives on hold to serve their country; our nation should never put their educational plans on hold because of the exhaustion of TA dollars. That's why I am especially thankful to Chairman YOUNG, Chairman LEWIS, and their staffs for taking a close look at this program, which seeks to give our men and women in uniform greater access to higher education and eventually the dream of obtaining a college degree.

This bill includes a substantial increase in Tuition Assistance dollars—over $90 million in all. That's a twenty-five percent increase for this important program. So again, I thank the gentleman from California for bringing a bill to the floor that fully funds the President's request for Tuition Assistance and allows our service members the full measure of their educational benefits.

Mr. STARK. Mr. Chairman, I rise in opposition to the Defense Appropriation Act for FY 2003. This bill is full of all the usual pork.

On September 11, we were tragically shown how easy it is to defeat conventional defenses and deliver a weapon of mass destruction anywhere in the United States. This bill calls for spending billions on programs that don't directly respond to this basic security concern. In fact, most of this money will do nothing to help defend our country from terrorism or stop terrorist elements overseas.

We have now wasted over $100 billion on several different versions of a national missile defense system. If we continue to spend at this level for the next ten years, we will spend more than $200 billion. Why would anyone spend billions developing ICBMs when it would be far more cost effective and technologically feasible to put it on a boat, a plane, or in a cargo container?

We also are going to spend $7.6 billion on two advanced strike fighters designed to combat advanced tactical aircraft and penetrate enemy countries with integrated air defense systems. Yet, we are more threatened by those with the capability of building bombs in their basements than our most sophisticated adversaries, all of whom don't even possess these specialized air defenses. Will these multi-million dollar fighter planes help us? No. But, we are going to throw billions of dollars after these defense contractors anyway.

Finally, when the Administration decided to cancel the $11 billion Crusader mobile howitzer, the Republican Leadership refused to consider my amendment supporting the Administration's decision. Later when they saw the wisdom of cutting this program to put toward current homeland security needs, they still left a few hundred million in an account to continue to fund an identical artillery system. Why? To give more pork to our poor defense contractors.

It is time this Congress realizes: more money for unneeded and outdated programs will not improve our national security. We need to be wise in our defense spending. That is why I oppose this bill and urge my colleagues to vote against it.

Mr. BLUMENAUER. Mr. Chairman, I intend to support this bill before us today, but I have grave reservations about several of its provisions.

This bill spends $354.7 billion, $33.7 billion more than the current level. $7.4 billion of that is for the misguided missile defense system, which costs too much and is not in the best interest of the country. At this critical time in our nation's struggle against terrorism, we must spend our resources wisely on America's most immediate defense needs. Missile defense is not among them.

There are a few broader dimensions in this bill that are encouraging to me. The bill provides no funds for the outmoded Crusader mobile howitzer, a weapons system designed for a war from an age long past. I was pleased to see that the bill fully funds the President's request for the Defense Environmental Restoration Account.

I especially appreciate the emerging recognition by the Subcommittee of the importance of addressing the problem of unexploded ordnance (UXO), the bombs and shells that did not go off as intended and subsequently litter the landscape. I am pleased to be working with the Subcommittee leadership on this issue. We have made a step in the right direction toward getting the federal government to clean up after itself and be a good steward of the land. As we continue to consider defense appropriations funding as the year progresses, I hope that we will be able to address the critical needs for UXO research & development and cleanup.

Mr. MURTHA. Mr. Chairman, I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. LEWIS of California. Mr. Chairman, I yield back the balance of my time.

The CHAIRMAN. All time for general debate has expired.

Pursuant to the rule, the bill shall be considered for amendment under the 5-minute rule. During consideration of the bill for amendment, the Chair may accord priority in recognition to a Member offering an amendment that he has printed in the designated place in the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD. Those amendments will be considered read.

The Clerk will read.

The Clerk read as follows:

H.R. 5010

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That the following sums are appropriated, out of any money in the Treasury not otherwise appropriated, for the fiscal year ending September 30, 2003, for military functions administered by the Department of Defense, and for other purposes, namely:

TITLE I

MILITARY PERSONNEL

Mr. LEWIS of California (during the reading). Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent that the remainder of the bill through page 115, line 16, be considered as read, printed in the RECORD, and open to amendment at any point.

The CHAIRMAN. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from California?

Mr. KUCINICH. Mr. Chairman, I reserve the right to object. Mr. Chairman, if I can have an inquiry of the gentleman from Pennsylvania.

Mr. MURTHA. This just opens the bill up.

Mr. KUCINICH. A number of Members have amendments that might be relevant earlier in the bill. I just wondered, Will this open the process up to amendments at any point?

Mr. MURTHA. That is right.

Mr. KUCINICH. So all of our amendments, then, would have a chance to be brought forward. I thank the gentleman.

Mr. Chairman, I withdraw my reservation of objection.

The CHAIRMAN. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from California?

There was no objection.

The text of the remainder of the bill through page 115, line 16, is as follows:

MILITARY PERSONNEL, ARMY

For pay, allowances, individual clothing, subsistence, interest on deposits, gratuities, permanent change of station travel (including all expenses thereof for organizational movements), and expenses of temporary duty travel between permanent duty stations, for members of the Army on active duty (except members of reserve components provided for elsewhere), cadets, and aviation cadets; and for payments pursuant to section 156 of Public Law 97-377, as amended (42 U.S.C. 402 note), and to the Department of Defense Military Retirement Fund, $26,832,217,000.

MILITARY PERSONNEL, NAVY

For pay, allowances, individual clothing, subsistence, interest on deposits, gratuities, permanent change of station travel (including all expenses thereof for organizational movements), and expenses of temporary duty travel between permanent duty stations, for members of the Navy on active duty (except members of the Reserve provided for elsewhere), midshipmen, and aviation cadets; and for payments pursuant to section 156 of Public Law 97-377, as amended (42 U.S.C. 402 note), and to the Department of Defense Military Retirement Fund, $21,874,395,000.

MILITARY PERSONNEL, MARINE CORPS

For pay, allowances, individual clothing, subsistence, interest on deposits, gratuities, permanent change of station travel (including all expenses thereof for organizational movements), and expenses of temporary duty travel between permanent duty stations, for members of the Marine Corps on active duty (except members of the Reserve provided for elsewhere); and for payments pursuant to section 156 of Public Law 97-377, as amended (42 U.S.C. 402 note), and to the Department of Defense Military Retirement Fund, $8,504,172,000.

MILITARY PERSONNEL, AIR FORCE

For pay, allowances, individual clothing, subsistence, interest on deposits, gratuities, permanent change of station travel (including all expenses thereof for organizational movements), and expenses of temporary duty travel between permanent duty stations, for members of the Air Force on active duty (except members of reserve components provided for elsewhere), cadets, and aviation cadets; and for payments pursuant to section 156 of Public Law 97-377, as amended (42 U.S.C. 402 note), and to the Department of Defense Military Retirement Fund, $21,957,757,000.

RESERVE PERSONNEL, ARMY

For pay, allowances, clothing, subsistence, gratuities, travel, and related expenses for personnel of the Army Reserve on active duty under sections 10211, 10302, and 3038 of title 10, United States Code, or while serving on active duty under section 12301(d) of title 10, United States Code, in connection with performing duty specified in section 12310(a) of title 10, United States Code, or while undergoing reserve training, or while performing drills or equivalent duty or other duty, and for members of the Reserve Officers' Training Corps, and expenses authorized by section 16131 of title 10, United States Code; and for payments to the Department of Defense Military Retirement Fund, $3,373,455,000.

RESERVE PERSONNEL, NAVY

For pay, allowances, clothing, subsistence, gratuities, travel, and related expenses for personnel of the Navy Reserve on active duty under section 10211 of title 10, United States Code, or while serving on active duty under section 12301(d) of title 10, United States

Code, in connection with performing duty specified in section 12310(a) of title 10, United States Code, or while undergoing reserve training, or while performing drills or equivalent duty, and for members of the Reserve Officers' Training Corps, and expenses authorized by section 16131 of title 10, United States Code; and for payments to the Department of Defense Military Retirement Fund, $1,897,352,000.

RESERVE PERSONNEL, MARINE CORPS

For pay, allowances, clothing, subsistence, gratuities, travel, and related expenses for personnel of the Marine Corps Reserve on active duty under section 10211 of title 10, United States Code, or while serving on active duty under section 12301(d) of title 10, United States Code, in connection with performing duty specified in section 12310(a) of title 10, United States Code, or while undergoing reserve training, or while performing drills or equivalent duty, and for members of the Marine Corps platoon leaders class, and expenses authorized by section 16131 of title 10, United States Code; and for payments to the Department of Defense Military Retirement Fund, $553,983,000.

RESERVE PERSONNEL, AIR FORCE

For pay, allowances, clothing, subsistence, gratuities, travel, and related expenses for personnel of the Air Force Reserve on active duty under sections 10211, 10305, and 8038 of title 10, United States Code, or while serving on active duty under section 12301(d) of title 10, United States Code, in connection with performing duty specified in section 12310(a) of title 10, United States Code, or while undergoing reserve training, or while performing drills or equivalent duty or other duty, and for members of the Air Reserve Officers' Training Corps, and expenses authorized by section 16131 of title 10, United States Code; and for payments to the Department of Defense Military Retirement Fund, $1,236,904,000.

NATIONAL GUARD PERSONNEL, ARMY

For pay, allowances, clothing, subsistence, gratuities, travel, and related expenses for personnel of the Army National Guard while on duty under section 10211, 10302, or 12402 of title 10 or section 708 of title 32, United States Code, or while serving on duty under section 12301(d) of title 10 or section 502(f) of title 32, United States Code, in connection with performing duty specified in section 12310(a) of title 10, United States Code, or while undergoing training, or while performing drills or equivalent duty or other duty, and expenses authorized by section 16131 of title 10, United States Code; and for payments to the Department of Defense Military Retirement Fund, $5,070,188,000.

NATIONAL GUARD PERSONNEL, AIR FORCE

For pay, allowances, clothing, subsistence, gratuities, travel, and related expenses for personnel of the Air National Guard on duty under section 10211, 10305, or 12402 of title 10 or section 708 of title 32, United States Code, or while serving on duty under section 12301(d) of title 10 or section 502(f) of title 32, United States Code, in connection with performing duty specified in section 12310(a) of title 10, United States Code, or while undergoing training, or while performing drills or equivalent duty or other duty, and expenses authorized by section 16131 of title 10, United States Code; and for payments to the Department of Defense Military Retirement Fund, $2,124,411,000.

TITLE II

OPERATION AND MAINTENANCE

OPERATION AND MAINTENANCE, ARMY

For expenses, not otherwise provided for, necessary for the operation and maintenance of the Army, as authorized by law; and not to exceed $10,818,000 can be used for emergencies and extraordinary expenses, to be expended on the approval or authority of the Secretary of the Army, and payments may be made on his certificate of necessity for confidential military purposes, $23,942,768,000: Provided, That of the funds appropriated in this paragraph, not less than $355,000,000 shall be made available only for conventional ammunition care and maintenance.

OPERATION AND MAINTENANCE, NAVY

For expenses, not otherwise provided for, necessary for the operation and maintenance of the Navy and the Marine Corps, as authorized by law; and not to exceed $4,415,000 can be used for emergencies and extraordinary expenses, to be expended on the approval or authority of the Secretary of the Navy, and payments may be made on his certificate of necessity for confidential military purposes, $29,121,836,000.

OPERATION AND MAINTENANCE, MARINE CORPS

For expenses, not otherwise provided for, necessary for the operation and maintenance of the Marine Corps, as authorized by law, $3,579,359,000.

OPERATION AND MAINTENANCE, AIR FORCE

For expenses, not otherwise provided for, necessary for the operation and maintenance of the Air Force, as authorized by law; and not to exceed $7,902,000 can be used for emergencies and extraordinary expenses, to be expended on the approval or authority of the Secretary of the Air Force, and payments may be made on his certificate of necessity for confidential military purposes, $27,587,959,000: Provided, That notwithstanding any other provision of law, that of the funds available under this heading, $750,000 shall only be available to the Secretary of the Air Force for a grant to Florida Memorial College for the purpose of funding minority aviation training: Provided further, That of the amount provided under this heading, not less than $2,000,000 shall be obligated for the deployment of Air Force active and Reserve aircrews that perform combat search and rescue operations to operate and evaluate the United Kingdom's Royal Air Force EH-101 helicopter, to receive training using that helicopter, and to exchange operational techniques and procedures regarding that helicopter.

OPERATION AND MAINTENANCE, DEFENSE-WIDE
(INCLUDING TRANSFER OF FUNDS)

For expenses, not otherwise provided for, necessary for the operation and maintenance of activities and agencies of the Department of Defense (other than the military departments), as authorized by law, $14,850,377,000, of which not to exceed $25,000,000 may be available for the CINC initiative fund account; and of which not to exceed $34,500,000 can be used for emergencies and extraordinary expenses, to be expended on the approval or authority of the Secretary of Defense, and payments may be made on his certificate of necessity for confidential military purposes: Provided, That notwithstanding any other provision of law, of the funds provided in this Act for Civil Military programs under this heading, $750,000 shall be available for a grant for Outdoor Odyssey, Roaring Run, Pennsylvania, to support the Youth Development and Leadership program and Department of Defense STARBASE program: Provided further, That none of the funds appropriated or otherwise made available by this Act may be used to plan or implement the consolidation of a budget or appropriations liaison office of the Office of the Secretary of Defense, the office of the Secretary of a military department, or the service headquarters of one of the Armed Forces into a legislative affairs or legislative liaison office: Provided further, That $4,675,000, to remain available until expended, is available only for expenses relating to certain classified activities, and may be transferred as necessary by the Secretary to operation and maintenance appropriations or research, development, test and evaluation appropriations, to be merged with and to be available for the same time period as the appropriations to which transferred: Provided further, That any ceiling on the investment item unit cost of items that may be purchased with operation and maintenance funds shall not apply to the funds described in the preceding proviso: Provided further, That the transfer authority provided under this heading is in addition to any other transfer authority provided elsewhere in this Act.

OPERATION AND MAINTENANCE, ARMY
RESERVE

For expenses, not otherwise provided for, necessary for the operation and maintenance, including training, organization, and administration, of the Army Reserve; repair of facilities and equipment; hire of passenger motor vehicles; travel and transportation; care of the dead; recruiting; procurement of services, supplies, and equipment; and communications, $1,976,710,000.

OPERATION AND MAINTENANCE, NAVY RESERVE

For expenses, not otherwise provided for, necessary for the operation and maintenance, including training, organization, and administration, of the Navy Reserve; repair of facilities and equipment; hire of passenger motor vehicles; travel and transportation; care of the dead; recruiting; procurement of services, supplies, and equipment; and communications, $1,239,309,000.

OPERATION AND MAINTENANCE, MARINE CORPS
RESERVE

For expenses, not otherwise provided for, necessary for the operation and maintenance, including training, organization, and administration, of the Marine Corps Reserve; repair of facilities and equipment; hire of passenger motor vehicles; travel and transportation; care of the dead; recruiting; procurement of services, supplies, and equipment; and communications, $189,532,000.

OPERATION AND MAINTENANCE, AIR FORCE
RESERVE

For expenses, not otherwise provided for, necessary for the operation and maintenance, including training, organization, and administration, of the Air Force Reserve; repair of facilities and equipment; hire of passenger motor vehicles; travel and transportation; care of the dead; recruiting; procurement of services, supplies, and equipment; and communications, $2,165,604,000.

OPERATION AND MAINTENANCE, ARMY
NATIONAL GUARD

For expenses of training, organizing, and administering the Army National Guard, including medical and hospital treatment and related expenses in non-Federal hospitals; maintenance, operation, and repairs to structures and facilities; hire of passenger motor vehicles; personnel services in the National Guard Bureau; travel expenses (other than mileage), as authorized by law for Army personnel on active duty, for Army National Guard division, regimental, and battalion commanders while inspecting units in compliance with National Guard Bureau regulations when specifically authorized by the Chief, National Guard Bureau; supplying and equipping the Army National Guard as authorized by law; and expenses of repair, modification, maintenance, and issue of supplies and equipment (including aircraft), $4,231,967,000.

OPERATION AND MAINTENANCE, AIR NATIONAL GUARD

For operation and maintenance of the Air National Guard, including medical and hospital treatment and related expenses in non-Federal hospitals; maintenance, operation, repair, and other necessary expenses of facilities for the training and administration of the Air National Guard, including repair of facilities, maintenance, operation, and modification of aircraft; transportation of things, hire of passenger motor vehicles; supplies, materials, and equipment, as authorized by law for the Air National Guard; and expenses incident to the maintenance and use of supplies, materials, and equipment, including such as may be furnished from stocks under the control of agencies of the Department of Defense; travel expenses (other than mileage) on the same basis as authorized by law for Air National Guard personnel on active Federal duty, for Air National Guard commanders while inspecting units in compliance with National Guard Bureau regulations when specifically authorized by the Chief, National Guard Bureau, $4,113,010,000.

UNITED STATES COURT OF APPEALS FOR THE ARMED FORCES

For salaries and expenses necessary for the United States Court of Appeals for the Armed Forces, $9,614,000, of which not to exceed $2,500 can be used for official representation purposes.

ENVIRONMENTAL RESTORATION, ARMY
(INCLUDING TRANSFER OF FUNDS)

For the Department of the Army, $395,900,000, to remain available until transferred: Provided, That the Secretary of the Army shall, upon determining that such funds are required for environmental restoration, reduction and recycling of hazardous waste, removal of unsafe buildings and debris of the Department of the Army, or for similar purposes, transfer the funds made available by this appropriation to other appropriations made available to the Department of the Army, to be merged with and to be available for the same purposes and for the same time period as the appropriations to which transferred: Provided further, That upon a determination that all or part of the funds transferred from this appropriation are not necessary for the purposes provided herein, such amounts may be transferred back to this appropriation.

ENVIRONMENTAL RESTORATION, NAVY
(INCLUDING TRANSFER OF FUNDS)

For the Department of the Navy, $256,948,000, to remain available until transferred: Provided, That the Secretary of the Navy shall, upon determining that such funds are required for environmental restoration, reduction and recycling of hazardous waste, removal of unsafe buildings and debris of the Department of the Navy, or for similar purposes, transfer the funds made available by this appropriation to other appropriations made available to the Department of the Navy, to be merged with and to be available for the same purposes and for the same time period as the appropriations to which transferred: Provided further, That upon a determination that all or part of the funds transferred from this appropriation are not necessary for the purposes provided herein, such amounts may be transferred back to this appropriation.

ENVIRONMENTAL RESTORATION, AIR FORCE
(INCLUDING TRANSFER OF FUNDS)

For the Department of the Air Force, $389,773,000, to remain available until transferred: Provided, That the Secretary of the Air Force shall, upon determining that such funds are required for environmental restoration, reduction and recycling of hazardous waste, removal of unsafe buildings and debris of the Department of the Air Force, or for similar purposes, transfer the funds made available by this appropriation to other appropriations made available to the Department of the Air Force, to be merged with and to be available for the same purposes and for the same time period as the appropriations to which transferred: Provided further, That upon a determination that all or part of the funds transferred from this appropriation are not necessary for the purposes provided herein, such amounts may be transferred back to this appropriation.

ENVIRONMENTAL RESTORATION, DEFENSE-WIDE
(INCLUDING TRANSFER OF FUNDS)

For the Department of Defense, $23,498,000, to remain available until transferred: Provided, That the Secretary of Defense shall, upon determining that such funds are required for environmental restoration, reduction and recycling of hazardous waste, removal of unsafe buildings and debris of the Department of Defense, or for similar purposes, transfer the funds made available by this appropriation to other appropriations made available to the Department of Defense, to be merged with and to be available for the same purposes and for the same time period as the appropriations to which transferred: Provided further, That upon a determination that all or part of the funds transferred from this appropriation are not necessary for the purposes provided herein, such amounts may be transferred back to this appropriation.

ENVIRONMENTAL RESTORATION, FORMERLY USED DEFENSE SITES
(INCLUDING TRANSFER OF FUNDS)

For the Department of the Army, $212,102,000, to remain available until transferred: Provided, That the Secretary of the Army shall, upon determining that such funds are required for environmental restoration, reduction and recycling of hazardous waste, removal of unsafe buildings and debris at sites formerly used by the Department of Defense, transfer the funds made available by this appropriation to other appropriations made available to the Department of the Army, to be merged with and to be available for the same purposes and for the same time period as the appropriations to which transferred: Provided further, That upon a determination that all or part of the funds transferred from this appropriation are not necessary for the purposes provided herein, such amounts may be transferred back to this appropriation.

OVERSEAS HUMANITARIAN, DISASTER, AND CIVIC AID

For expenses relating to the Overseas Humanitarian, Disaster, and Civic Aid programs of the Department of Defense (consisting of the programs provided under sections 401, 402, 404, 2547, and 2551 of title 10, United States Code), $58,400,000, to remain available until September 30, 2004.

FORMER SOVIET UNION THREAT REDUCTION

For assistance to the republics of the former Soviet Union, including assistance provided by contract or by grants, for facilitating the elimination and the safe and secure transportation and storage of nuclear, chemical and other weapons; for establishing programs to prevent the proliferation of weapons, weapons components, and weapon-related technology and expertise; for programs relating to the training and support of defense and military personnel for demilitarization and protection of weapons, weapons components and weapons technology and expertise, and for defense and military contacts, $416,700,000, to remain available until September 30, 2005.

SUPPORT FOR INTERNATIONAL SPORTING COMPETITIONS, DEFENSE

For logistical and security support for international sporting competitions (including pay and non-travel related allowances only for members of the Reserve Components of the Armed Forces of the United States called or ordered to active duty in connection with providing such support), $19,000,000, to remain available until expended.

TITLE III
PROCUREMENT

AIRCRAFT PROCUREMENT, ARMY

For construction, procurement, production, modification, and modernization of aircraft, equipment, including ordnance, ground handling equipment, spare parts, and accessories therefor; specialized equipment and training devices; expansion of public and private plants, including the land necessary therefor, for the foregoing purposes, and such lands and interests therein, may be acquired, and construction prosecuted thereon prior to approval of title; and procurement and installation of equipment, appliances, and machine tools in public and private plants; reserve plant and Government and contractor-owned equipment layaway; and other expenses necessary for the foregoing purposes, $2,214,369,000, to remain available for obligation until September 30, 2005, of which not less than $225,675,000 shall be available for the Army National Guard and Army Reserve: Provided, That of the funds made available under this heading, $45,000,000 shall be available only to support a restructured CH-47F helicopter upgrade program that increases the production rate to 48 helicopters per fiscal year by fiscal year 2005: Provided further, That funds in the immediately preceding proviso shall not be made available until the Secretary of the Army has certified to the congressional defense committees that the Army intends to budget for the upgrade of the entire CH-47 fleet that is planned to be part of the Objective Force.

MISSILE PROCUREMENT, ARMY

For construction, procurement, production, modification, and modernization of missiles, equipment, including ordnance, ground handling equipment, spare parts, and accessories therefor; specialized equipment and training devices; expansion of public and private plants, including the land necessary therefor, for the foregoing purposes, and such lands and interests therein, may be acquired, and construction prosecuted thereon prior to approval of title; and procurement and installation of equipment, appliances, and machine tools in public and private plants; reserve plant and Government and contractor-owned equipment layaway; and other expenses necessary for the foregoing purposes, $1,112,772,000, to remain available for obligation until September 30, 2005, of which not less than $168,580,000 shall be available for the Army National Guard and Army Reserve.

PROCUREMENT OF WEAPONS AND TRACKED COMBAT VEHICLES, ARMY

For construction, procurement, production, and modification of weapons and tracked combat vehicles, equipment, including ordnance, spare parts, and accessories therefor; specialized equipment and training devices; expansion of public and private plants, including the land necessary therefor, for the foregoing purposes, and such lands and interests therein, may be acquired, and construction prosecuted thereon prior to approval of title; and procurement and installation of equipment, appliances, and machine tools in public and private plants; reserve plant and Government and contractor-owned equipment layaway; and other expenses necessary for the foregoing purposes, $2,248,358,000, to remain available for obligation until September 30, 2005, of which not less than $40,849,000 shall be available for the Army National Guard and Army Reserve.

PROCUREMENT OF AMMUNITION, ARMY

For construction, procurement, production, and modification of ammunition, and accessories therefor; specialized equipment and training devices; expansion of public and private plants, including ammunition facilities authorized by section 2854 of title 10, United States Code, and the land necessary therefor, for the foregoing purposes, and such lands and interests therein, may be acquired, and construction prosecuted thereon prior to approval of title; and procurement and installation of equipment, appliances, and machine tools in public and private plants; reserve plant and Government and contractor-owned equipment layaway; and other expenses necessary for the foregoing purposes, $1,207,560,000, to remain available for obligation until September 30, 2005, of which not less than $124,716,000 shall be available for the Army National Guard and Army Reserve.

OTHER PROCUREMENT, ARMY

For construction, procurement, production, and modification of vehicles, including tactical, support, and non-tracked combat vehicles; the purchase of not to exceed 40 passenger motor vehicles for replacement only; and the purchase of 6 vehicles required for physical security of personnel, notwithstanding price limitations applicable to passenger vehicles but not to exceed $180,000 per vehicle; communications and electronic equipment; other support equipment; spare parts, ordnance, and accessories therefor; specialized equipment and training devices; expansion of public and private plants, including the land necessary therefor, for the foregoing purposes, and such lands and interests therein, may be acquired, and construction prosecuted thereon prior to approval of title; and procurement and installation of equipment, appliances, and machine tools in public and private plants; reserve plant and Government and contractor-owned equipment layaway; and other expenses necessary for the foregoing purposes, $6,017,380,000, to remain available for obligation until September 30, 2005, of which not less than $1,129,578,000 shall be available for the Army National Guard and Army Reserve.

AIRCRAFT PROCUREMENT, NAVY

For construction, procurement, production, modification, and modernization of aircraft, equipment, including ordnance, spare parts, and accessories therefor; specialized equipment; expansion of public and private plants, including the land necessary therefor, and such lands and interests therein, may be acquired, and construction prosecuted thereon prior to approval of title; and procurement and installation of equipment, appliances, and machine tools in public and private plants; reserve plant and Government and contractor-owned equipment layaway, $8,682,655,000, to remain available for obligation until September 30, 2005, of which not less than $19,644,000 shall be available for the Navy Reserve and Marine Corps Reserve.

WEAPONS PROCUREMENT, NAVY

For construction, procurement, production, modification, and modernization of missiles, torpedoes, other weapons, and related support equipment including spare parts, and accessories therefor; expansion of public and private plants, including the land necessary therefor, and such lands and interests therein, may be acquired, and construction prosecuted thereon prior to approval of title; and procurement and installation of equipment, appliances, and machine tools in public and private plants; reserve plant and Government and contractor-owned equipment layaway, $2,384,617,000, to remain available for obligation until September 30, 2005.

PROCUREMENT OF AMMUNITION, NAVY AND MARINE CORPS

For construction, procurement, production, and modification of ammunition, and accessories therefor; specialized equipment and training devices; expansion of public and private plants, including ammunition facilities authorized by section 2854 of title 10, United States Code, and the land necessary therefor, for the foregoing purposes, and such lands and interests therein, may be acquired, and construction prosecuted thereon prior to approval of title; and procurement and installation of equipment, appliances, and machine tools in public and private plants; reserve plant and Government and contractor-owned equipment layaway; and other expenses necessary for the foregoing purposes, $1,167,130,000, to remain available for obligation until September 30, 2005, of which not less than $18,162,000 shall be for the Navy Reserve and Marine Corps Reserve.

SHIPBUILDING AND CONVERSION, NAVY

For expenses necessary for the construction, acquisition, or conversion of vessels as authorized by law, including armor and armament thereof, plant equipment, appliances, and machine tools and installation thereof in public and private plants; reserve plant and Government and contractor-owned equipment layaway; procurement of critical, long leadtime components and designs for vessels to be constructed or converted in the future; and expansion of public and private plants, including land necessary therefor, and such lands and interests therein, may be acquired, and construction prosecuted thereon prior to approval of title, as follows:

Carrier Replacement Program (CY), $250,000,000;
Carrier Replacement Program (AP-CY), $243,703,000;
Virginia Class Submarine, $1,490,652,000;
Virginia Class Submarine (AP-CY), $706,309,000;
SSGN Conversion, $404,305,000;
SSGN Conversion (AP-CY), $421,000,000;
CVN Refueling Overhauls (AP-CY), $296,781,000;
Submarine Refueling Overhauls, $231,292,000;
Submarine Refueling Overhauls (AP-CY), $88,257,000;

DDG-51, $2,273,002,000;
DDG-51 (AP-CY), $74,000,000;
LPD-17, $596,492,000;
LPD-17 (AP-CY), $8,000,000;
LCU (X), $9,756,000;
Outfitting, $300,608,000;
LCAC SLEP, $81,638,000;
Mine Hunter SWATH, $7,000,000; and
Completion of Prior Year Shipbuilding Programs, $644,899,000;

In all: $8,127,694,000, to remain available for obligation until September 30, 2007: Provided, That additional obligations may be incurred after September 30, 2007, for engineering services, tests, evaluations, and other such budgeted work that must be performed in the final stage of ship construction: Provided further, That none of the funds provided under this heading for the construction or conversion of any naval vessel to be constructed in shipyards in the United States shall be expended in foreign facilities for the construction of major components of such vessel: Provided further, That none of the funds provided under this heading shall be used for the construction of any naval vessel in foreign shipyards.

OTHER PROCUREMENT, NAVY

For procurement, production, and modernization of support equipment and materials not otherwise provided for, Navy ordnance (except ordnance for new aircraft, new ships, and ships authorized for conversion); the purchase of not to exceed 141 passenger motor vehicles for replacement only, and the purchase of 3 vehicles required for physical security of personnel, notwithstanding price limitations applicable to passenger vehicles but not to exceed $240,000 per unit for one unit and not to exceed $125,000 per unit for the remaining two units; expansion of public and private plants, including the land necessary therefor, and such lands and interests therein, may be acquired, and construction prosecuted thereon prior to approval of title; and procurement and installation of equipment, appliances, and machine tools in public and private plants; reserve plant and Government and contractor-owned equipment layaway, $4,631,299,000, to remain available for obligation until September 30, 2005, of which not less than $19,869,000 shall be for the Naval Reserve.

PROCUREMENT, MARINE CORPS

For expenses necessary for the procurement, manufacture, and modification of missiles, armament, military equipment, spare parts, and accessories therefor; plant equipment, appliances, and machine tools, and installation thereof in public and private plants; reserve plant and Government and contractor-owned equipment layaway; vehicles for the Marine Corps, including the purchase of not to exceed 28 passenger motor vehicles for replacement only; and expansion of public and private plants, including land necessary therefor, and such lands and interests therein, may be acquired, and construction prosecuted thereon prior to approval of title, $1,369,383,000, to remain available for obligation until September 30, 2005, of which not less than $253,724,000 shall be available for the Marine Corps Reserve.

AIRCRAFT PROCUREMENT, AIR FORCE

For construction, procurement, lease, and modification of aircraft and equipment, including armor and armament, specialized ground handling equipment, and training devices, spare parts, and accessories therefor; specialized equipment; expansion of public and private plants, Government-owned equipment and installation thereof in such plants, erection of structures, and acquisition of land, for the foregoing purposes, and such lands and interests therein, may be acquired, and construction prosecuted thereon, prior to approval of title; reserve plant and Government and contractor-owned tion of land, for the foregoing purposes, and such lands and interests therein, may be acquired, and construction prosecuted thereon prior to approval of title; reserve plant and Government and contractor-owned equipment layaway; and other expenses necessary for the foregoing purposes including rents and transportation of things, $12,492,730,000, to remain available for obligation until September 30, 2005, of which not less than $312,700,000 shall be available for the Air National Guard and Air Force Reserve: Provided, That of the amount provided under this heading, not less than $207,000,000 shall be used only for the producibility improvement program directly related to the F-22 aircraft program: Provided further, That amounts provided under this heading shall be used for the advance procurement of 15 C-17 aircraft.

MISSILE PROCUREMENT, AIR FORCE

For construction, procurement, and modification of missiles, spacecraft, rockets, and related equipment, including spare parts and accessories therefor, ground handling equipment, and training devices; expansion of public and private plants, Government-owned equipment and installation thereof in such plants, erection of structures, and acquisition of land, for the foregoing purposes, and such lands and interests therein, may be acquired, and construction prosecuted thereon prior to approval of title; reserve plant and Government and contractor-owned equipment layaway; and other expenses necessary for the foregoing purposes including rents and transportation of things, $3,185,439,000, to remain available for obligation until September 30, 2005.

PROCUREMENT OF AMMUNITION, AIR FORCE

For construction, procurement, production, and modification of ammunition, and accessories therefor; specialized equipment and training devices; expansion of public and private plants, including ammunition facilities authorized by section 2854 of title 10, United States Code, and the land necessary therefor, for the foregoing purposes, and such lands and interests therein, may be acquired, and construction prosecuted thereon prior to approval of title; and procurement and installation of equipment, appliances, and machine tools in public and private plants; reserve plant and Government and contractor-owned equipment layaway; and other expenses necessary for the foregoing purposes, $1,290,764,000, to remain available for obligation until September 30, 2005, of which not less than $120,200,000 shall be available for the Air National Guard and Air Force Reserve.

OTHER PROCUREMENT, AIR FORCE

For procurement and modification of equipment (including ground guidance and electronic control equipment, and ground electronic and communication equipment), and supplies, materials, and spare parts therefor, not otherwise provided for; the purchase of not to exceed 263 passenger motor vehicles for replacement only, and the purchase of 2 vehicles required for physical security of personnel, notwithstanding price limitations applicable to passenger vehicles but not to exceed $232,000 per vehicle; lease of passenger motor vehicles; and expansion of public and private plants, Government-owned equipment and installation thereof in such plants, erection of structures, and acquisition of land, for the foregoing purposes, and such lands and interests therein, may be acquired, and construction prosecuted thereon, prior to approval of title; reserve plant and Government and contractor-owned equipment layaway, $10,622,660,000, to remain available for obligation until September 30, 2005, of which not less than $167,600,000 shall be available for the Air National Guard and Air Force Reserve.

PROCUREMENT, DEFENSE-WIDE

For expenses of activities and agencies of the Department of Defense (other than the military departments) necessary for procurement, production, and modification of equipment, supplies, materials, and spare parts therefor, not otherwise provided for; the purchase of not to exceed 99 passenger motor vehicles for replacement only; the purchase of 4 vehicles required for physical security of personnel, notwithstanding price limitations applicable to passenger vehicles but not to exceed $250,000 per vehicle; expansion of public and private plants, equipment, and installation thereof in such plants, erection of structures, and acquisition of land for the foregoing purposes, and such lands and interests therein, may be acquired, and construction prosecuted thereon prior to approval of title; reserve plant and Government and contractor-owned equipment layaway, $3,457,405,000, to remain available for obligation until September 30, 2005: Provided, That funds provided under this heading for Patriot Advanced Capability-3 (PAC-3) missiles may be used for procurement of critical parts for PAC-3 missiles to support production of such missiles in future fiscal years.

DEFENSE PRODUCTION ACT PURCHASES

For activities by the Department of Defense pursuant to sections 108, 301, 302, and 303 of the Defense Production Act of 1950 (50 U.S.C. App. 2078, 2091, 2092, and 2093), $73,057,000 to remain available until expended.

TITLE IV

RESEARCH, DEVELOPMENT, TEST AND EVALUATION

RESEARCH, DEVELOPMENT, TEST AND EVALUATION, ARMY

For expenses necessary for basic and applied scientific research, development, test and evaluation, including maintenance, rehabilitation, lease, and operation of facilities and equipment, $7,447,160,000, to remain available for obligation until September 30, 2004.

RESEARCH, DEVELOPMENT, TEST AND EVALUATION, NAVY

For expenses necessary for basic and applied scientific research, development, test and evaluation, including maintenance, rehabilitation, lease, and operation of facilities and equipment, $13,562,218,000, to remain available for obligation until September 30, 2004: Provided, That funds appropriated in this paragraph which are available for the V-22 may be used to meet unique operational requirements of the Special Operations Forces.

RESEARCH, DEVELOPMENT, TEST AND EVALUATION, AIR FORCE

For expenses necessary for basic and applied scientific research, development, test and evaluation, including maintenance, rehabilitation, lease, and operation of facilities and equipment, $18,639,392,000, to remain available for obligation until September 30, 2004.

RESEARCH, DEVELOPMENT, TEST AND EVALUATION, DEFENSE-WIDE

For expenses of activities and agencies of the Department of Defense (other than the military departments), necessary for basic and applied scientific research, development, test and evaluation; advanced research projects as may be designated and determined by the Secretary of Defense, pursuant to law; maintenance, rehabilitation, lease, and operation of facilities and equipment, $17,863,462,000, to remain available for obligation until September 30, 2004.

OPERATIONAL TEST AND EVALUATION, DEFENSE

For expenses, not otherwise provided for, necessary for the independent activities of the Director, Operational Test and Evaluation, in the direction and supervision of operational test and evaluation, including initial operational test and evaluation which is conducted prior to, and in support of, production decisions; joint operational testing and evaluation; and administrative expenses in connection therewith, $242,054,000, to remain available for obligation until September 30, 2004.

TITLE V

REVOLVING AND MANAGEMENT FUNDS DEFENSE WORKING CAPITAL FUNDS

For the Defense Working Capital Funds, $1,832,956,000: Provided, That during fiscal year 2003, funds in the Defense Working Capital Funds may be used for the purchase of not to exceed 315 passenger carrying motor vehicles for replacement only for the Defense Security Service, and the purchase of not to exceed 7 vehicles for replacement only for the Defense Logistics Agency.

NATIONAL DEFENSE SEALIFT FUND

For National Defense Sealift Fund programs, projects, and activities, and for expenses of the National Defense Reserve Fleet, as established by section 11 of the Merchant Ship Sales Act of 1946 (50 U.S.C. App. 1744), and for the necessary expenses to maintain and preserve a U.S.-flag merchant fleet to serve the national security needs of the United States, $944,129,000, to remain available until expended: Provided, That none of the funds provided in this paragraph shall be used to award a new contract that provides for the acquisition of any of the following major components unless such components are manufactured in the United States: auxiliary equipment, including pumps, for all shipboard services; propulsion system components (that is; engines, reduction gears, and propellers); shipboard cranes; and spreaders for shipboard cranes: Provided further, That the exercise of an option in a contract awarded through the obligation of previously appropriated funds shall not be considered to be the award of a new contract: Provided further, That the Secretary of the military department responsible for such procurement may waive the restrictions in the first proviso on a case-by-case basis by certifying in writing to the Committees on Appropriations of the House of Representatives and the Senate that adequate domestic supplies are not available to meet Department of Defense requirements on a timely basis and that such an acquisition must be made in order to acquire capability for national security purposes: Provided further, That, notwithstanding any other provision of law, $10,000,000 of the funds available under this heading shall be available in addition to other amounts otherwise available, only to finance the cost of constructing additional sealift capacity.

TITLE VI

OTHER DEPARTMENT OF DEFENSE PROGRAMS

DEFENSE HEALTH PROGRAM

For expenses, not otherwise provided for, for medical and health care programs of the Department of Defense, as authorized by law, $14,600,748,000, of which $13,916,791,000 shall be for Operation and maintenance, of which not to exceed 2 percent shall remain available until September 30, 2004; of which $283,743,000, to remain available for obligation until September 30, 2005, shall be for Procurement; of which $400,214,000, to remain available for obligation until September 30, 2004, shall be for Research, development, test and evaluation, and of which not less than $10,000,000 shall be available for HIV prevention educational activities undertaken in connection with U.S. military training, exercises, and humanitarian assistance activities conducted primarily in African nations.

CHEMICAL AGENTS AND MUNITIONS

DESTRUCTION, ARMY

For expenses, not otherwise provided for, necessary for the destruction of the United States stockpile of lethal chemical agents and munitions in accordance with the provisions of section 1412 of the Department of Defense Authorization Act, 1986 (50 U.S.C. 1521), and for the destruction of other chemical warfare materials that are not in the chemical weapon stockpile, $1,490,199,000, of which $974,238,000 shall be for Operation and maintenance to remain available until September 30, 2004, $213,278,000 shall be for Procurement to remain available until September 30, 2005, and $302,683,000 shall be for Research, development, test and evaluation to remain available until September 30, 2004.

DRUG INTERDICTION AND COUNTER-DRUG ACTIVITIES, DEFENSE

(INCLUDING TRANSFER OF FUNDS)

For drug interdiction and counter-drug activities of the Department of Defense, for transfer to appropriations available to the Department of Defense for military personnel of the reserve components serving under the provisions of title 10 and title 32, United States Code; for Operation and maintenance; for Procurement; and for Research, development, test and evaluation, $859,907,000: Provided, That the funds appropriated under this heading shall be available for obligation for the same time period and for the same purpose as the appropriation to which transferred: Provided further, That upon a determination that all or part of the funds transferred from this appropriation are not necessary for the purposes provided herein, such amounts may be transferred back to this appropriation: Provided further, That the transfer authority provided under this heading is in addition to any other transfer authority contained elsewhere in this Act.

Office of the Inspector General

For expenses and activities of the Office of the Inspector General in carrying out the provisions of the Inspector General Act of 1978, as amended, $157,165,000, of which $155,165,000 shall be for Operation and maintenance, of which not to exceed $700,000 is available for emergencies and extraordinary expenses to be expended on the approval or authority of the Inspector General, and payments may be made on the Inspector General's certificate of necessity for confidential military purposes; and of which $2,000,000 to remain available until September 30, 2005, shall be for Procurement.

TITLE VII

RELATED AGENCIES

CENTRAL INTELLIGENCE AGENCY RETIREMENT AND DISABILITY SYSTEM FUND

For payment to the Central Intelligence Agency Retirement and Disability System Fund, to maintain the proper funding level for continuing the operation of the Central Intelligence Agency Retirement and Disability System, $212,000,000.

INTELLIGENCE COMMUNITY MANAGEMENT ACCOUNT

(INCLUDING TRANSFER OF FUNDS)

For necessary expenses of the Intelligence Community Management Account, $162,254,000, of which $24,252,000 for the Advanced Research and Development Committee shall remain available until September 30, 2004: Provided, That of the funds appropriated under this heading, $34,100,000 shall be transferred to the Department of Justice for the National Drug Intelligence Center to support the Department of Defense's counter-drug intelligence responsibilities, and of the said amount, $1,500,000 for Procurement shall remain available until September 30, 2005 and $1,000,000 for Research, development, test and evaluation shall remain available until September 30, 2004: Provided further, That the National Drug Intelligence Center shall maintain the personnel and technical resources to provide timely support to law enforcement authorities and the intelligence community by conducting document and computer exploitation of materials collected in Federal, State, and local law enforcement activity associated with counter-drug, counter-terrorism, and national security investigations and operations.

PAYMENT TO KAHŌ'OLAWĒ

ISLAND CONVEYANCE, REMEDIATION, AND ENVIRONMENTAL RESTORATION FUND

For payment to Kahō'olawē Island Conveyance, Remediation, and Environmental Restoration Fund, as authorized by law, $25,000,000, to remain available until expended.

NATIONAL SECURITY EDUCATION TRUST FUND

For the purposes of title VIII of Public Law 102-183, $8,000,000, to be derived from the National Security Education Trust Fund, to remain available until expended.

TITLE VIII

GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. 8001. No part of any appropriation contained in this Act shall be used for publicity or propaganda purposes not authorized by the Congress.

SEC. 8002. During the current fiscal year, provisions of law prohibiting the payment of compensation to, or employment of, any person not a citizen of the United States shall not apply to personnel of the Department of Defense: Provided, That salary increases granted to direct and indirect hire foreign national employees of the Department of Defense funded by this Act shall not be at a rate in excess of the percentage increase authorized by law for civilian employees of the Department of Defense whose pay is computed under the provisions of section 5332 of title 5, United States Code, or at a rate in excess of the percentage increase provided by the appropriate host nation to its own employees, whichever is higher: Provided further, That this section shall not apply to Department of Defense foreign service national employees serving at United States diplomatic missions whose pay is set by the Department of State under the Foreign Service Act of 1980: Provided further, That the limitations of this provision shall not apply to foreign national employees of the Department of Defense in the Republic of Turkey.

SEC. 8003. No part of any appropriation contained in this Act shall remain available for obligation beyond the current fiscal year, unless expressly so provided herein.

SEC. 8004. No more than 20 percent of the appropriations in this Act which are limited for obligation during the current fiscal year shall be obligated during the last 2 months of the fiscal year: Provided, That this section shall not apply to obligations for support of active duty training of reserve components or summer camp training of the Reserve Officers' Training Corps.

(TRANSFER OF FUNDS)

SEC. 8005. Upon determination by the Secretary of Defense that such action is necessary in the national interest, he may, with the approval of the Office of Management and Budget, transfer not to exceed $2,500,000,000 of working capital funds of the Department of Defense or funds made available in this Act to the Department of Defense for military functions (except military construction) between such appropriations or funds or any subdivision thereof, to be merged with and to be available for the same purposes, and for the same time period, as the appropriation or fund to which transferred: Provided, That such authority to transfer may not be used unless for higher priority items, based on unforeseen military requirements, than those for which originally appropriated and in no case where the item for which funds are requested has been denied by the Congress: Provided further, That the Secretary of Defense shall notify the Congress promptly of all transfers made pursuant to this authority or any other authority in this Act: Provided further, That no part of the funds in this Act shall be available to prepare or present a request to the Committees on Appropriations for reprogramming of funds, unless for higher priority items, based on unforeseen military requirements, than those for which originally appropriated and in no case where the item for which reprogramming is requested has been denied by the Congress: Provided further, That a request for multiple reprogrammings of funds using authority provided in this section must be made prior to May 1, 2003.

(TRANSFER OF FUNDS)

SEC. 8006. During the current fiscal year, cash balances in working capital funds of the Department of Defense established pursuant to section 2208 of title 10, United States Code, may be maintained in only such amounts as are necessary at any time for cash disbursements to be made from such funds: Provided, That transfers may be made between such funds: Provided further, That transfers may be made between working capital funds and the "Foreign Currency Fluctuations, Defense" appropriation and the "Operation and Maintenance" appropriation accounts in such amounts as may be determined by the Secretary of Defense, with the approval of the Office of Management and Budget, except that such transfers may not be made unless the Secretary of Defense has notified the Congress of the proposed transfer. Except in amounts equal to the amounts appropriated to working capital funds in this Act, no obligations may be made against a working capital fund to procure or increase the value of war reserve material inventory, unless the Secretary of Defense has notified the Congress prior to any such obligation.

SEC. 8007. Funds appropriated by this Act may not be used to initiate a special access program without prior notification 30 calendar days in session in advance to the congressional defense committees.

SEC. 8008. None of the funds provided in this Act shall be available to initiate: (1) a multiyear contract that employs economic order quantity procurement in excess of $20,000,000 in any 1 year of the contract or that includes an unfunded contingent liability in excess of $20,000,000; or (2) a contract for advance procurement leading to a multiyear contract that employs economic order quantity procurement in excess of $20,000,000 in any 1 year, unless the congressional defense committees have been notified at least 30 days in advance of the proposed contract award: Provided, That no part of any appropriation contained in this Act shall be available to initiate a multiyear contract for which the economic order quantity advance procurement is not funded at least to the limits of the Government's liability: Provided further, That no part of any appropriation contained in this Act shall be available to initiate multiyear procurement contracts for any systems or component thereof if the value of the multiyear contract would exceed $500,000,000 unless specifically provided in this Act: Provided further, That no multiyear procurement contract can be terminated without 10-day prior notification to the congressional defense committees: Provided further, That the execution of multiyear authority shall require the use of a present value analysis to determine lowest cost compared to an annual procurement.

Funds appropriated in title III of this Act may be used for multiyear procurement contracts as follows:

C-130 aircraft; and
F/A-18E and F engine.

SEC. 8009. Within the funds appropriated for the operation and maintenance of the Armed Forces, funds are hereby appropriated pursuant to section 401 of title 10, United States Code, for humanitarian and civic assistance costs under chapter 20 of title 10, United States Code. Such funds may also be obligated for humanitarian and civic assistance costs incidental to authorized operations and pursuant to authority granted in section 401 of chapter 20 of title 10, United States Code, and these obligations shall be reported to the Congress as of September 30 of each year: Provided, That funds available for operation and maintenance shall be available for providing humanitarian and similar assistance by using Civic Action Teams in the Trust Territories of the Pacific Islands and freely associated states of Micronesia, pursuant to the Compact of Free Association as authorized by Public Law 99-239: Provided further, That upon a determination by the Secretary of the Army that such action is beneficial for graduate medical education programs conducted at Army medical facilities located in Hawaii, the Secretary of the Army may authorize the provision of medical services at such facilities and transportation to such facilities, on a non-reimbursable basis, for civilian patients from American Samoa, the Commonwealth of the Northern Mariana Islands, the Marshall Islands, the Federated States of Micronesia, Palau, and Guam.

SEC. 8010. (a) During fiscal year 2003, the civilian personnel of the Department of Defense may not be managed on the basis of any end-strength, and the management of such personnel during that fiscal year shall not be subject to any constraint or limitation (known as an end-strength) on the number of such personnel who may be employed on the last day of such fiscal year.

(b) The fiscal year 2004 budget request for the Department of Defense as well as all justification material and other documentation supporting the fiscal year 2004 Department of Defense budget request shall be prepared and submitted to the Congress as if subsections (a) and (b) of this provision were effective with regard to fiscal year 2004.

(c) Nothing in this section shall be construed to apply to military (civilian) technicians.

SEC. 8011. Notwithstanding any other provision of law, none of the funds made available by this Act shall be used by the Department of Defense to exceed, outside the 50 United States, its territories, and the District of Columbia, 125,000 civilian workyears: Provided, That workyears shall be applied as defined in the Federal Personnel Manual: Provided further, That workyears expended in dependent student hiring programs for disadvantaged youths shall not be included in this workyear limitation.

SEC. 8012. None of the funds made available by this Act shall be used in any way, directly or indirectly, to influence congressional action on any legislation or appropriation matters pending before the Congress.

SEC. 8013. None of the funds appropriated by this Act shall be available for the basic pay and allowances of any member of the Army participating as a full-time student and receiving benefits paid by the Secretary of Veterans Affairs from the Department of Defense Education Benefits Fund when time spent as a full-time student is credited toward completion of a service commitment: Provided, That this subsection shall not apply to those members who have reenlisted with this option prior to October 1, 1987: Provided further, That this subsection applies only to active components of the Army.

SEC. 8014. None of the funds appropriated by this Act shall be available to convert to contractor performance an activity or function of the Department of Defense that, on or after the date of the enactment of this Act, is performed by more than 10 Department of Defense civilian employees until a most efficient and cost-effective organization analysis is completed on such activity or function and certification of the analysis is made to the Committees on Appropriations of the House of Representatives and the Senate: Provided, That this section and subsections (a), (b), and (c) of 10 U.S.C. 2461 shall not apply to a commercial or industrial type function of the Department of Defense that: (1) is included on the procurement list established pursuant to section 2 of the Act of June 25, 1938 (41 U.S.C. 47), popularly referred to as the Javits-Wagner-O'Day Act; (2) is planned to be converted to performance by a qualified nonprofit agency for the blind or by a qualified nonprofit agency for other severely handicapped individuals in accordance with that Act; or (3) is planned to be converted to performance by a qualified firm under 51 percent ownership by an Indian tribe, as defined in section 450b(e) of title 25, United States Code, or a Native Hawaiian organization, as defined in section 637(a)(15) of title 15, United States Code.

(TRANSFER OF FUNDS)

SEC. 8015. Funds appropriated in title III of this Act for the Department of Defense Pilot Mentor-Protege Program may be transferred to any other appropriation contained in this Act solely for the purpose of implementing a Mentor-Protege Program developmental assistance agreement pursuant to section 831 of the National Defense Authorization Act for Fiscal Year 1991 (Public Law 101-510; 10 U.S.C. 2301 note), as amended, under the authority of this provision or any other transfer authority contained in this Act.

SEC. 8016. None of the funds in this Act may be available for the purchase by the Department of Defense (and its departments and agencies) of welded shipboard anchor and mooring chain 4 inches in diameter and under unless the anchor and mooring chain are manufactured in the United States from components which are substantially manufactured in the United States: Provided, That for the purpose of this section manufactured will include cutting, heat treating, quality control, testing of chain and welding (including the forging and shot blasting process): Provided further, That for the purpose of this section substantially all of the components of anchor and mooring chain shall be considered to be produced or manufactured in the United States if the aggregate cost of the components produced or manufactured outside the United States exceeds the aggregate cost of the components produced or manufactured in the United States: Provided further, That when adequate domestic supplies are not available to meet Department of Defense requirements on a timely basis, the Secretary of the service responsible for the procurement may waive this restriction on a case-by-case basis by certifying in writing to the Committees on Appropriations that such an acquisition must be made in order to acquire capability for national security purposes.

SEC. 8017. None of the funds appropriated by this Act available for the Civilian Health and Medical Program of the Uniformed Services (CHAMPUS) or TRICARE shall be available for the reimbursement of any health care provider for inpatient mental health service for care received when a patient is referred to a provider of inpatient mental health care or residential treatment care by a medical or health care professional having an economic interest in the facility to which the patient is referred: Provided, That this limitation does not apply in the case of inpatient mental health services provided under the program for persons with disabilities under subsection (d) of section 1079 of title 10, United States Code, provided as partial hospital care, or provided pursuant to a waiver authorized by the Secretary of Defense because of medical or psychological circumstances of the patient that are confirmed by a health professional who is not a Federal employee after a review, pursuant to rules prescribed by the Secretary, which takes into account the appropriate level of care for the patient, the intensity of services required by the patient, and the availability of that care.

SEC. 8018. Notwithstanding any other provision of law, during the current fiscal year, the Secretary of Defense may, by executive agreement, establish with host nation governments in NATO member states a separate account into which such residual value amounts negotiated in the return of United States military installations in NATO member states may be deposited, in the currency of the host nation, in lieu of direct monetary transfers to the United States Treasury: Provided, That such credits may be utilized only for the construction of facilities to support United States military forces in that host nation, or such real property maintenance and base operating costs that are currently executed through monetary transfers to such host nations: Provided further, That the Department of Defense's budget submission for fiscal year 2004 shall identify such sums anticipated in residual value settlements, and identify such construction, real property maintenance or base operating costs that shall be funded by the host nation through such credits: Provided further, That all military construction projects to be executed from such accounts must be previously approved in a prior Act of Congress: Provided further, That each such executive agreement with a NATO member host nation shall be reported to the congressional defense committees, the Committee on International Relations of the House of Representatives and the Committee on Foreign Relations of the Senate 30 days prior to the conclusion and endorsement of any such agreement established under this provision.

SEC. 8019. None of the funds available to the Department of Defense may be used to demilitarize or dispose of M-1 Carbines, M-1 Garand rifles, M-14 rifles, .22 caliber rifles, .30 caliber rifles, or M-1911 pistols.

SEC. 8020. No more than $500,000 of the funds appropriated or made available in this Act shall be used during a single fiscal year for any single relocation of an organization, unit, activity or function of the Department of Defense into or within the National Capital Region: Provided, That the Secretary of Defense may waive this restriction on a case-by-case basis by certifying in writing to the congressional defense committees that such a relocation is required in the best interest of the Government.

SEC. 8021. In addition to the funds provided elsewhere in this Act, $8,000,000 is appropriated only for incentive payments authorized by section 504 of the Indian Financing Act of 1974 (25 U.S.C. 1544): Provided, That a subcontractor at any tier shall be considered a contractor for the purposes of being allowed additional compensation under section 504 of the Indian Financing Act of 1974 (25 U.S.C. 1544).

SEC. 8022. None of the funds appropriated by this Act shall be available to perform any cost study pursuant to the provisions of OMB Circular A-76 if the study being performed exceeds a period of 24 months after initiation of such study with respect to a single function activity or 48 months after initiation of such study for a multi-function activity.

SEC. 8023. Funds appropriated by this Act for the American Forces Information Service shall not be used for any national or international political or psychological activities.

SEC. 8024. Notwithstanding any other provision of law or regulation, the Secretary of Defense may adjust wage rates for civilian employees hired for certain health care occupations as authorized for the Secretary of Veterans Affairs by section 7455 of title 38, United States Code.

SEC. 8025. (a) Of the funds for the procurement of supplies or services appropriated by this Act, qualified nonprofit agencies for the blind or other severely handicapped shall be afforded the maximum practicable opportunity to participate as subcontractors and suppliers in the performance of contracts let by the Department of Defense.

(b) During the current fiscal year, a business concern which has negotiated with a military service or defense agency a subcontracting plan for the participation by small business concerns pursuant to section 8(d) of the Small Business Act (15 U.S.C. 637(d)) shall be given credit toward meeting that subcontracting goal for any purchases made from qualified nonprofit agencies for the blind or other severely handicapped.

(c) For the purpose of this section, the phrase "qualified nonprofit agency for the blind or other severely handicapped" means a nonprofit agency for the blind or other severely handicapped that has been approved by the Committee for the Purchase from the Blind and Other Severely Handicapped under the Javits-Wagner-O'Day Act (41 U.S.C. 46-48).

SEC. 8026. During the current fiscal year, net receipts pursuant to collections from third party payers pursuant to section 1095 of title 10, United States Code, shall be made available to the local facility of the uniformed services responsible for the collections and shall be over and above the facility's direct budget amount.

SEC. 8027. During the current fiscal year, and from any funds available to the Department of Defense, the Department is authorized to incur obligations of not to exceed $350,000,000 for purposes specified in section 2350j(c) of title 10, United States Code, in anticipation of receipt of contributions, only from the Government of Kuwait, under that section: Provided, That upon receipt, such contributions from the Government of Kuwait shall be credited to the appropriations or fund which incurred such obligations.

SEC. 8028. Of the funds made available in this Act, not less than $23,003,000 shall be available for the Civil Air Patrol Corporation, of which $21,503,000 shall be available for Civil Air Patrol Corporation operation and maintenance to support readiness activities which includes $1,500,000 for the Civil Air Patrol counterdrug program: Provided, That funds identified for "Civil Air Patrol" under this section are intended for and shall be for the exclusive use of the Civil Air Patrol Corporation and not for the Air Force or any unit thereof.

SEC. 8029. (a) None of the funds appropriated in this Act are available to establish a new Department of Defense (department) federally funded research and development center (FFRDC), either as a new entity, or as a separate entity administered by an organization managing another FFRDC, or as a nonprofit membership corporation consisting of a consortium of other FFRDCs and other non-profit entities.

(b) No member of a Board of Directors, Trustees, Overseers, Advisory Group, Special Issues Panel, Visiting Committee, or any similar entity of a defense FFRDC, and no paid consultant to any defense FFRDC, except when acting in a technical advisory capacity, may be compensated for his or her services as a member of such entity, or as a paid consultant by more than one FFRDC in a fiscal year: Provided, That a member of any such entity referred to previously in this subsection shall be allowed travel expenses and per diem as authorized under the Federal Joint Travel Regulations, when engaged in the performance of membership duties.

(c) Notwithstanding any other provision of law, none of the funds available to the department from any source during fiscal year 2003 may be used by a defense FFRDC, through a fee or other payment mechanism, for construction of new buildings, for payment of cost sharing for projects funded by Government grants, for absorption of contract overruns, or for certain charitable contributions, not to include employee participation in community service and/or development.

(d) Notwithstanding any other provision of law, of the funds available to the department during fiscal year 2003, not more than 6,277 staff years of technical effort (staff years) may be funded for defense FFRDCs: Provided, That of the specific amount referred to previously in this subsection, not more than 1,029 staff years may be funded for the defense studies and analysis FFRDCs.

(e) The Secretary of Defense shall, with the submission of the department's fiscal year 2004 budget request, submit a report presenting the specific amounts of staff years of technical effort to be allocated for each defense FFRDC during that fiscal year.

SEC. 8030. None of the funds appropriated or made available in this Act shall be used to procure carbon, alloy or armor steel plate for use in any Government-owned facility or property under the control of the Department of Defense which were not melted and rolled in the United States or Canada: Provided, That these procurement restrictions shall apply to any and all Federal Supply Class 9515, American Society of Testing and Materials (ASTM) or American Iron and Steel Institute (AISI) specifications of carbon, alloy or armor steel plate: Provided further, That the Secretary of the military department responsible for the procurement may waive this restriction on a case-by-case basis by certifying in writing to the Committees on Appropriations of the House of Representatives and the Senate that adequate domestic supplies are not available to meet Department of Defense requirements on a timely basis and that such an acquisition must be made in order to acquire capability for national security purposes: Provided further, That these restrictions shall not apply to contracts which are in being as of the date of the enactment of this Act.

SEC. 8031. For the purposes of this Act, the term "congressional defense committees" means the Armed Services Committee of the House of Representatives, the Armed Services Committee of the Senate, the Subcommittee on Defense of the Committee on Appropriations of the Senate, and the Subcommittee on Defense of the Committee on Appropriations of the House of Representatives.

SEC. 8032. During the current fiscal year, the Department of Defense may acquire the modification, depot maintenance and repair of aircraft, vehicles and vessels as well as the production of components and other Defense-related articles, through competition between Department of Defense depot maintenance activities and private firms: Provided, That the Senior Acquisition Executive of the military department or defense agency concerned, with power of delegation, shall certify that successful bids include comparable estimates of all direct and indirect costs for both public and private bids: Provided further, That Office of Management and Budget Circular A-76 shall not apply to competitions conducted under this section.

SEC. 8033. (a)(1) If the Secretary of Defense, after consultation with the United States Trade Representative, determines that a foreign country which is party to an agreement described in paragraph (2) has violated the terms of the agreement by discriminating against certain types of products produced in the United States that are covered by the agreement, the Secretary of Defense shall rescind the Secretary's blanket waiver of the Buy American Act with respect to such types of products produced in that foreign country.

(2) An agreement referred to in paragraph (1) is any reciprocal defense procurement memorandum of understanding, between the United States and a foreign country pursuant to which the Secretary of Defense has prospectively waived the Buy American Act for certain products in that country.

(b) The Secretary of Defense shall submit to the Congress a report on the amount of Department of Defense purchases from foreign entities in fiscal year 2002. Such report shall separately indicate the dollar value of items for which the Buy American Act was waived pursuant to any agreement described in subsection (a)(2), the Trade Agreement Act of 1979 (19 U.S.C. 2501 et seq.), or any international agreement to which the United States is a party.

(c) For purposes of this section, the term "Buy American Act" means title III of the Act entitled "An Act making appropriations for the Treasury and Post Office Departments for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1934, and for other purposes", approved March 3, 1933 (41 U.S.C. 10a et seq.).

SEC. 8034. Appropriations contained in this Act that remain available at the end of the current fiscal year as a result of energy cost savings realized by the Department of Defense shall remain available for obligation for the next fiscal year to the extent, and for the purposes, provided in section 2865 of title 10, United States Code.

(INCLUDING TRANSFER OF FUNDS)

SEC. 8035. Amounts deposited during the current fiscal year to the special account established under 40 U.S.C. 485(h)(2) and to the special account established under 10 U.S.C. 2667(d)(1) are appropriated and shall be available until transferred by the Secretary of Defense to current applicable appropriations or funds of the Department of Defense under the terms and conditions specified by 40 U.S.C. 485(h)(2)(A) and (B) and 10 U.S.C. 2667(d)(1)(B), to be merged with and to be available for the same time period and the same purposes as the appropriation to which transferred.

SEC. 8036. The President shall include with each budget for a fiscal year submitted to the Congress under section 1105 of title 31, United States Code, materials that shall identify clearly and separately the amounts requested in the budget for appropriation for that fiscal year for salaries and expenses related to administrative activities of the Department of Defense, the military departments, and the defense agencies.

SEC. 8037. Notwithstanding any other provision of law, funds available for "Drug Interdiction and Counter-Drug Activities, Defense" may be obligated for the Young Marines program.

(INCLUDING TRANSFER OF FUNDS)

SEC. 8038. During the current fiscal year, amounts contained in the Department of Defense Overseas Military Facility Investment Recovery Account established by section 2921(c)(1) of the National Defense Authorization Act of 1991 (Public Law 101-510; 10 U.S.C. 2687 note) shall be available until expended for the payments specified by section 2921(c)(2) of that Act.

SEC. 8039. (a) IN GENERAL.—Notwithstanding any other provision of law, the Secretary of the Air Force may convey at no cost to the Air Force, without consideration, to Indian tribes located in the States of North Dakota, South Dakota, Montana, and Minnesota relocatable military housing units located at Grand Forks Air Force Base and Minot Air Force Base that are excess to the needs of the Air Force.

(b) PROCESSING OF REQUESTS.—The Secretary of the Air Force shall convey, at no cost to the Air Force, military housing units under subsection (a) in accordance with the request for such units that are submitted to the Secretary by the Operation Walking Shield Program on behalf of Indian tribes located in the States of North Dakota, South Dakota, Montana, and Minnesota.

(c) RESOLUTION OF HOUSING UNIT CONFLICTS.—The Operation Walking Shield program shall resolve any conflicts among requests of Indian tribes for housing units under subsection (a) before submitting requests to the Secretary of the Air Force under subsection (b).

(d) INDIAN TRIBE DEFINED.—In this section, the term "Indian tribe" means any recognized Indian tribe included on the current list published by the Secretary of the Interior under section 104 of the Federally Recognized Indian Tribe Act of 1994 (Public Law 103-454; 108 Stat. 4792; 25 U.S.C. 479a-1).

SEC. 8040. During the current fiscal year, appropriations which are available to the Department of Defense for operation and maintenance may be used to purchase items having an investment item unit cost of not more than $100,000.

SEC. 8041. (a) During the current fiscal year, none of the appropriations or funds available to the Department of Defense Working Capital Funds shall be used for the purchase of an investment item for the purpose of acquiring a new inventory item for sale or anticipated sale during the current fiscal year or a subsequent fiscal year to customers of the Department of Defense Working Capital Funds if such an item would not have been chargeable to the Department of Defense Business Operations Fund during fiscal year 1994 and if the purchase of such an investment item would be chargeable during the current fiscal year to appropriations made to the Department of Defense for procurement.

(b) The fiscal year 2004 budget request for the Department of Defense as well as all justification material and other documentation supporting the fiscal year 2004 Department of Defense budget shall be prepared and submitted to the Congress on the basis that any equipment which was classified as an end item and funded in a procurement appropriation contained in this Act shall be budgeted for in a proposed fiscal year 2004 procurement appropriation and not in the supply management business area or any other area or category of the Department of Defense Working Capital Funds.

SEC. 8042. None of the funds appropriated by this Act for programs of the Central Intelligence Agency shall remain available for obligation beyond the current fiscal year, except for funds appropriated for the Reserve for Contingencies, which shall remain available until September 30, 2004: Provided, That funds appropriated, transferred, or otherwise credited to the Central Intelligence Agency Central Services Working Capital Fund during this or any prior or subsequent fiscal year shall remain available until expended: Provided further, That any funds appropriated or transferred to the Central Intelligence Agency for agent operations and for covert action programs authorized by the President under section 503 of the National Security Act of 1947, as amended, shall remain available until September 30, 2004.

SEC. 8043. Notwithstanding any other provision of law, funds made available in this Act for the Defense Intelligence Agency may be used for the design, development, and deployment of General Defense Intelligence Program intelligence communications and intelligence information systems for the Services, the Unified and Specified Commands, and the component commands.

SEC. 8044. Of the funds appropriated to the Department of Defense under the heading "Operation and Maintenance, Defense-Wide", not less than $10,000,000 shall be made available only for the mitigation of environmental impacts, including training and technical assistance to tribes, related administrative support, the gathering of information, documenting of environmental damage, and developing a system for prioritization of mitigation and cost to complete estimates for mitigation, on Indian lands resulting from Department of Defense activities.

SEC. 8045. Amounts collected for the use of the facilities of the National Science Center for Communications and Electronics during the current fiscal year and hereafter pursuant to section 1459(g) of the Department of Defense Authorization Act, 1986, and deposited to the special account established under subsection 1459(g)(2) of that Act are appropriated and shall be available until expended for the operation and maintenance of the Center as provided for in subsection 1459(g)(2).

SEC. 8046. (a) None of the funds appropriated in this Act may be expended by an entity of the Department of Defense unless the entity, in expending the funds, complies with the Buy American Act. For purposes of this subsection, the term "Buy American Act" means title III of the Act entitled "An Act making appropriations for the Treasury and Post Office Departments for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1934, and for other purposes", approved March 3, 1933 (41 U.S.C. 10a et seq.).

(b) If the Secretary of Defense determines that a person has been convicted of intentionally affixing a label bearing a "Made in America" inscription to any product sold in or shipped to the United States that is not made in America, the Secretary shall determine, in accordance with section 2410f of title 10, United States Code, whether the person should be debarred from contracting with the Department of Defense.

(c) In the case of any equipment or products purchased with appropriations provided under this Act, it is the sense of the Congress that any entity of the Department of Defense, in expending the appropriation, purchase only American-made equipment and products, provided that American-made equipment and products are cost-competitive, quality-competitive, and available in a timely fashion.

SEC. 8047. None of the funds appropriated by this Act shall be available for a contract for studies, analysis, or consulting services entered into without competition on the basis of an unsolicited proposal unless the head of the activity responsible for the procurement determines—

(1) as a result of thorough technical evaluation, only one source is found fully qualified to perform the proposed work;

(2) the purpose of the contract is to explore an unsolicited proposal which offers significant scientific or technological promise, represents the product of original thinking, and was submitted in confidence by one source; or

(3) the purpose of the contract is to take advantage of unique and significant industrial accomplishment by a specific concern, or to insure that a new product or idea of a specific concern is given financial support:

Provided, That this limitation shall not apply to contracts in an amount of less than $25,000, contracts related to improvements of equipment that is in development or production, or contracts as to which a civilian official of the Department of Defense, who has been confirmed by the Senate, determines that the award of such contract is in the interest of the national defense.

SEC. 8048. (a) Except as provided in subsections (b) and (c), none of the funds made available by this Act may be used—

(1) to establish a field operating agency; or

(2) to pay the basic pay of a member of the Armed Forces or civilian employee of the department who is transferred or reassigned from a headquarters activity if the member or employee's place of duty remains at the location of that headquarters.

(b) The Secretary of Defense or Secretary of a military department may waive the limitations in subsection (a), on a case-by-case basis, if the Secretary determines, and certifies to the Committees on Appropriations of the House of Representatives and Senate that the granting of the waiver will reduce the personnel requirements or the financial requirements of the department.

(c) This section does not apply to field operating agencies funded within the National Foreign Intelligence Program.

SEC. 8049. Notwithstanding section 303 of Public Law 96-487 or any other provision of law, the Secretary of the Navy is authorized to lease real and personal property at Naval Air Facility, Adak, Alaska, pursuant to 10 U.S.C. 2667(f), for commercial, industrial or other purposes: Provided, That notwithstanding any other provision of law, the Secretary of the Navy may remove hazardous materials from facilities, buildings, and structures at Adak, Alaska, and may demolish or otherwise dispose of such facilities, buildings, and structures.

(RESCISSIONS)

SEC. 8050. Of the funds provided in Department of Defense Appropriations Acts, the following funds are hereby rescinded from the following accounts and programs in the specified amounts:

"Aircraft Procurement, Army, 2002/2004", $3,000,000;

"Missile Procurement, Army, 2002/2004", $28,350,000;

"Procurement of Weapons and Tracked Combat Vehicles, Army, 2002/2004", $9,500,000;

"Procurement of Ammunition, Army, 2002/2004", $25,500,000;

"Procurement, Marine Corps, 2002/2004", $4,682,000;

"Aircraft Procurement, Air Force, 2002/2004", $23,500,000;

"Missile Procurement, Air Force, 2002/2004", $26,900,000;

"Research, Development, Test and Evaluation, Army, 2002/2003", $2,500,000;

"Research, Development, Test and Evaluation, Navy, 2002/2003", $2,000,000; and

"Research, Development, Test and Evaluation, Air Force, 2002/2003", $67,000,000.

SEC. 8051. None of the funds available in this Act may be used to reduce the authorized positions for military (civilian) technicians of the Army National Guard, the Air National Guard, Army Reserve and Air Force Reserve for the purpose of applying any administratively imposed civilian personnel ceiling, freeze, or reduction on military (civilian) technicians, unless such reductions are a direct result of a reduction in military force structure.

SEC. 8052. None of the funds appropriated or otherwise made available in this Act may be obligated or expended for assistance to the Democratic People's Republic of North Korea unless specifically appropriated for that purpose.

SEC. 8053. During the current fiscal year, funds appropriated in this Act are available to compensate members of the National Guard for duty performed pursuant to a plan submitted by a Governor of a State and approved by the Secretary of Defense under section 112 of title 32, United States Code: Provided, That during the performance of such duty, the members of the National Guard shall be under State command and control: Provided further, That such duty shall be treated as full-time National Guard duty for purposes of sections 12602(a)(2) and (b)(2) of title 10, United States Code.

SEC. 8054. Funds appropriated in this Act for operation and maintenance of the Military Departments, Combatant Commands and Defense Agencies shall be available for reimbursement of pay, allowances and other expenses which would otherwise be incurred against appropriations for the National Guard and Reserve when members of the National Guard and Reserve provide intelligence or counterintelligence support to Combatant Commands, Defense Agencies and Joint Intelligence Activities, including the activities and programs included within the National Foreign Intelligence Program (NFIP), the Joint Military Intelligence Program (JMIP), and the Tactical Intelligence and Related Activities (TIARA) aggregate: Provided, That nothing in this section authorizes deviation from established Reserve and National Guard personnel and training procedures.

SEC. 8055. During the current fiscal year, none of the funds appropriated in this Act may be used to reduce the civilian medical and medical support personnel assigned to military treatment facilities below the September 30, 2002 level: Provided, That the Service Surgeons General may waive this section by certifying to the congressional defense committees that the beneficiary population is declining in some catchment areas and civilian strength reductions may be consistent with responsible resource stewardship and capitation-based budgeting.

SEC. 8056. (a) LIMITATION ON PENTAGON RENOVATION COSTS.—Not later than the date each year on which the President submits to Congress the budget under section 1105 of title 31, United States Code, the Secretary of Defense shall submit to Congress a certification that the total cost for the planning, design, construction, and installation of equipment for the renovation of wedges 2 through 5 of the Pentagon Reservation, cumulatively, will not exceed four times the total cost for the planning, design, construction, and installation of equipment for the renovation of wedge 1.

(b) ANNUAL ADJUSTMENT.—For purposes of applying the limitation in subsection (a), the Secretary shall adjust the cost for the renovation of wedge 1 by any increase or decrease in costs attributable to economic inflation, based on the most recent economic assumptions issued by the Office of Management and Budget for use in preparation of the budget of the United States under section 1104 of title 31, United States Code.

(c) EXCLUSION OF CERTAIN COSTS.—For purposes of calculating the limitation in subsection (a), the total cost for wedges 2 through 5 shall not include—

(1) any repair or reconstruction cost incurred as a result of the terrorist attack on the Pentagon that occurred on September 11, 2001;

(2) any increase in costs for wedges 2 through 5 attributable to compliance with new requirements of Federal, State, or local laws; and

(3) any increase in costs attributable to additional security requirements that the Secretary of Defense considers essential to provide a safe and secure working environment.

(d) CERTIFICATION COST REPORTS.—As part of the annual certification under subsection (a), the Secretary shall report the projected cost (as of the time of the certification) for—

(1) the renovation of each wedge, including the amount adjusted or otherwise excluded for such wedge under the authority of paragraphs (2) and (3) of subsection (c) for the period covered by the certification; and

(2) the repair and reconstruction of wedges 1 and 2 in response to the terrorist attack on the Pentagon that occurred on September 11, 2001.

(e) DURATION OF CERTIFICATION REQUIREMENT.—The requirement to make an annual certification under subsection (a) shall apply until the Secretary certifies to Congress that the renovation of the Pentagon Reservation is completed.

SEC. 8057. Notwithstanding any other provision of law, that not more than 35 percent of funds provided in this Act for environmental remediation may be obligated under indefinite delivery/indefinite quantity contracts with a total contract value of $130,000,000 or higher.

SEC. 8058. (a) None of the funds available to the Department of Defense for any fiscal year for drug interdiction or counter-drug activities may be transferred to any other department or agency of the United States except as specifically provided in an appropriations law.

(b) None of the funds available to the Central Intelligence Agency for any fiscal year for drug interdiction and counter-drug activities may be transferred to any other department or agency of the United States except as specifically provided in an appropriations law.

(TRANSFER OF FUNDS)

SEC. 8059. Appropriations available in this Act under the heading "Operation and Maintenance, Defense-Wide" for increasing energy and water efficiency in Federal buildings may, during their period of availability, be transferred to other appropriations or funds of the Department of Defense for projects related to increasing energy and water efficiency, to be merged with and to be available for the same general purposes, and for the same time period, as the appropriation or fund to which transferred.

SEC. 8060. None of the funds appropriated by this Act may be used for the procurement of ball and roller bearings other than those produced by a domestic source and of domestic origin: Provided, That the Secretary of the military department responsible for such procurement may waive this restriction on a case-by-case basis by certifying in writing to the Committees on Appropriations of the House of Representatives and the Senate, that adequate domestic supplies are not available to meet Department of Defense requirements on a timely basis and that such an acquisition must be made in order to acquire capability for national security purposes: Provided further, That this restriction shall not apply to the purchase of "commercial items", as defined by section 4(12) of the Office of Federal Procurement Policy Act, except that the restriction shall apply to ball or roller bearings purchased as end items.

SEC. 8061. Notwithstanding any other provision of law, funds available to the Department of Defense shall be made available to provide transportation of medical supplies and equipment, on a nonreimbursable basis, to American Samoa, and funds available to the Department of Defense shall be made available to provide transportation of medical supplies and equipment, on a nonreimbursable basis, to the Indian Health Service when it is in conjunction with a civil-military project.

SEC. 8062. None of the funds in this Act may be used to purchase any supercomputer which is not manufactured in the United States, unless the Secretary of Defense certifies to the congressional defense committees that such an acquisition must be made in order to acquire capability for national security purposes that is not available from United States manufacturers.

SEC. 8063. Notwithstanding any other provision of law, the Naval shipyards of the United States shall be eligible to participate in any manufacturing extension program financed by funds appropriated in this or any other Act.

SEC. 8064. Notwithstanding any other provision of law, each contract awarded by the Department of Defense during the current fiscal year for construction or service performed in whole or in part in a State (as defined in section 381(d) of title 10, United States Code) which is not contiguous with another State and has an unemployment rate in excess of the national average rate of unemployment as determined by the Secretary of Labor, shall include a provision requiring the contractor to employ, for the purpose of performing that portion of the contract in such State that is not contiguous with another State, individuals who are residents of such State and who, in the case of any craft or trade, possess or would be able to acquire promptly the necessary skills: Provided, That the Secretary of Defense may waive the requirements of this section, on a case-by-case basis, in the interest of national security.

SEC. 8065. None of the funds made available in this or any other Act may be used to pay the salary of any officer or employee of the Department of Defense who approves or implements the transfer of administrative responsibilities or budgetary resources of any program, project, or activity financed by this Act to the jurisdiction of another Federal agency not financed by this Act without the express authorization of Congress: Provided, That this limitation shall not apply to transfers of funds expressly provided for in Defense Appropriations Acts, or provisions of Acts providing supplemental appropriations for the Department of Defense.

SEC. 8066. (a) LIMITATION ON TRANSFER OF DEFENSE ARTICLES AND SERVICES.—Notwithstanding any other provision of law, none of the funds available to the Department of Defense for the current fiscal year may be obligated or expended to transfer to another nation or an international organization any defense articles or services (other than intelligence services) for use in the activities described in subsection (b) unless the congressional defense committees, the Committee on International Relations of the House of Representatives, and the Committee on Foreign Relations of the Senate are notified 15 days in advance of such transfer.

(b) COVERED ACTIVITIES.—This section applies to—

(1) any international peacekeeping or peace-enforcement operation under the authority of chapter VI or chapter VII of the United Nations Charter under the authority of a United Nations Security Council resolution; and

(2) any other international peacekeeping, peace-enforcement, or humanitarian assistance operation.

(c) REQUIRED NOTICE.—A notice under subsection (a) shall include the following:

(1) A description of the equipment, supplies, or services to be transferred.

(2) A statement of the value of the equipment, supplies, or services to be transferred.

(3) In the case of a proposed transfer of equipment or supplies—

(A) a statement of whether the inventory requirements of all elements of the Armed Forces (including the reserve components) for the type of equipment or supplies to be transferred have been met; and

(B) a statement of whether the items proposed to be transferred will have to be replaced and, if so, how the President proposes to provide funds for such replacement.

SEC. 8067. To the extent authorized by chapter VI of chapter 148 of title 10, United States Code, the Secretary of Defense may issue loan guarantees in support of United States defense exports not otherwise provided for: Provided, That the total contingent liability of the United States for guarantees issued under the authority of this section may not exceed $15,000,000,000: Provided further, That the exposure fees charged and collected by the Secretary for each guarantee shall be paid by the country involved and shall not be financed as part of a loan guaranteed by the United States: Provided further, That the Secretary shall provide quarterly reports to the Committees on Appropriations, Armed Services, and Foreign Relations of the Senate and the Committees on Appropriations, Armed Services, and International Relations in the House of Representatives on the implementation of this program: Provided further, That amounts charged for administrative fees and deposited to the special account provided for under section 2540c(d) of title 10, shall be available for paying the costs of administrative expenses of the Department of Defense that are attributable to the loan guarantee program under subchapter VI of chapter 148 of title 10, United States Code.

SEC. 8068. None of the funds available to the Department of Defense under this Act shall be obligated or expended to pay a contractor under a contract with the Department of Defense for costs of any amount paid by the contractor to an employee when—

(1) such costs are for a bonus or otherwise in excess of the normal salary paid by the contractor to the employee; and

(2) such bonus is part of restructuring costs associated with a business combination.

SEC. 8069. (a) None of the funds appropriated or otherwise made available in this Act may be used to transport or provide for the transportation of chemical munitions or agents to the Johnston Atoll for the purpose of storing or demilitarizing such munitions or agents.

(b) The prohibition in subsection (a) shall not apply to any obsolete World War II chemical munition or agent of the United States found in the World War II Pacific Theater of Operations.

(c) The President may suspend the application of subsection (a) during a period of war in which the United States is a party.

(INCLUDING TRANSFER OF FUNDS)

SEC. 8070. During the current fiscal year, no more than $30,000,000 of appropriations made in this Act under the heading "Operation and Maintenance, Defense-Wide" may be transferred to appropriations available for the pay of military personnel, to be merged with, and to be available for the same time period as the appropriations to which transferred, to be used in support of such personnel in connection with support and services for eligible organizations and activities outside the Department of Defense pursuant to section 2012 of title 10, United States Code.

SEC. 8071. During the current fiscal year, in the case of an appropriation account of the Department of Defense for which the period of availability for obligation has expired or which has closed under the provisions of section 1552 of title 31, United States Code, and which has a negative unliquidated or unexpended balance, an obligation or an adjustment of an obligation may be charged to any current appropriation account for the same purpose as the expired or closed account if—

(1) the obligation would have been properly chargeable (except as to amount) to the expired or closed account before the end of the period of availability or closing of that account;

(2) the obligation is not otherwise properly chargeable to any current appropriation account of the Department of Defense; and

(3) in the case of an expired account, the obligation is not chargeable to a current appropriation of the Department of Defense under the provisions of section 1405(b)(8) of the National Defense Authorization Act for Fiscal Year 1991, Public Law 101-510, as amended (31 U.S.C. 1551 note): Provided, That in the case of an expired account, if subsequent review or investigation discloses that there was not in fact a negative unliquidated or unexpended balance in the account, any charge to a current account under the authority of this section shall be reversed and recorded against the expired account: Provided further, That the total amount charged to a current appropriation under this section may not exceed an amount equal to 1 percent of the total appropriation for that account.

SEC. 8072. Funds appropriated in title II of this Act and for the Defense Health Program in title VI of this Act for supervision and administration costs for facilities maintenance and repair, minor construction, or design projects may be obligated at the time the reimbursable order is accepted by the performing activity: Provided, That for the purpose of this section, supervision and administration costs includes all in-house Government cost.

SEC. 8073. During the current fiscal year, the Secretary of Defense may waive reimbursement of the cost of conferences, seminars, courses of instruction, or similar educational activities of the Asia-Pacific Center for Security Studies for military officers and civilian officials of foreign nations if the Secretary determines that attendance by such personnel, without reimbursement, is in the national security interest of the United States: Provided, That costs for which reimbursement is waived pursuant to this section shall be paid from appropriations available for the Asia-Pacific Center.

SEC. 8074. (a) Notwithstanding any other provision of law, the Chief of the National Guard Bureau may permit the use of equipment of the National Guard Distance Learning Project by any person or entity on a space-available, reimbursable basis. The Chief of the National Guard Bureau shall establish the amount of reimbursement for such use on a case-by-case basis.

(b) Amounts collected under subsection (a) shall be credited to funds available for the National Guard Distance Learning Project and be available to defray the costs associated with the use of equipment of the project under that subsection. Such funds shall be available for such purposes without fiscal year limitation.

SEC. 8075. Using funds available by this Act or any other Act, the Secretary of the Air Force, pursuant to a determination under section 2690 of title 10, United States Code, may implement cost-effective agreements for required heating facility modernization in the Kaiserslautern Military Community in the Federal Republic of Germany: Provided, That in the City of Kaiserslautern such agreements will include the use of United States anthracite as the base load energy for municipal district heat to the United States Defense installations: Provided further, That at Landstuhl Army Regional Medical Center and Ramstein Air Base, furnished heat may be obtained from private, regional or municipal services, if provisions are included for the consideration of United States coal as an energy source.

SEC. 8076. None of the funds appropriated in title IV of this Act may be used to procure end-items for delivery to military forces for operational training, operational use or inventory requirements: Provided, That this restriction does not apply to end-items used in development, prototyping, and test activities preceding and leading to acceptance for operational use: Provided further, That this restriction does not apply to programs funded within the National Foreign Intelligence Program: Provided further, That the Secretary of Defense may waive this restriction on a case-by-case basis by certifying in writing to the Committees on Appropriations of the House of Representatives and the Senate that it is in the national security interest to do so.

SEC. 8077. None of the funds made available in this Act may be used to approve or license the sale of the F-22 advanced tactical fighter to any foreign government.

SEC. 8078. (a) The Secretary of Defense may, on a case-by-case basis, waive with respect to a foreign country each limitation on the procurement of defense items from foreign sources provided in law if the Secretary determines that the application of the limitation with respect to that country would invalidate cooperative programs entered into between the Department of Defense and the foreign country, or would invalidate reciprocal trade agreements for the procurement of defense items entered into under section 2531 of title 10, United States Code, and the country does not discriminate against the same or similar defense items produced in the United States for that country.

(b) Subsection (a) applies with respect to—

(1) contracts and subcontracts entered into on or after the date of the enactment of this Act; and

(2) options for the procurement of items that are exercised after such date under contracts that are entered into before such date if the option prices are adjusted for any reason other than the application of a waiver granted under subsection (a).

(c) Subsection (a) does not apply to a limitation regarding construction of public vessels, ball and roller bearings, food, and clothing or textile materials as defined by section 11 (chapters 50-65) of the Harmonized Tariff Schedule and products classified under headings 4010, 4202, 4203, 6401 through 6406, 6505, 7019, 7218 through 7229, 7304.41 through 7304.49, 7306.40, 7502 through 7508, 8105, 8108, 8109, 8211, 8215, and 9404.

SEC. 8079. Funds made available to the Civil Air Patrol in this Act under the heading "Drug Interdiction and Counter-Drug Activities, Defense" may be used for the Civil Air Patrol Corporation's counterdrug program, including its demand reduction program involving youth programs, as well as operational and training drug reconnaissance missions for Federal, State, and local government agencies; and for equipment needed for mission support or performance: Provided, That the Department of the Air Force should waive reimbursement from the Federal, State, and local government agencies for the use of these funds.

SEC. 8080. (a) PROHIBITION.—None of the funds made available by this Act may be used to support any training program involving a unit of the security forces of a foreign country if the Secretary of Defense has received credible information from the Department of State that the unit has committed a gross violation of human rights, unless all necessary corrective steps have been taken.

(b) MONITORING.—The Secretary of Defense, in consultation with the Secretary of State, shall ensure that prior to a decision to conduct any training program referred to in subsection (a), full consideration is given to all credible information available to the Department of State relating to human rights violations by foreign security forces.

(c) WAIVER.—The Secretary of Defense, after consultation with the Secretary of State, may waive the prohibition in subsection (a) if he determines that such waiver is required by extraordinary circumstances.

(d) REPORT.—Not more than 15 days after the exercise of any waiver under subsection (c), the Secretary of Defense shall submit a report to the congressional defense committees describing the extraordinary circumstances, the purpose and duration of the training program, the United States forces and the foreign security forces involved in the training program, and the information relating to human rights violations that necessitates the waiver.

SEC. 8081. The Secretary of Defense, in coordination with the Secretary of Health and Human Services, may carry out a program to distribute surplus dental equipment of the Department of Defense, at no cost to the Department of Defense, to Indian health service facilities and to federally-qualified health centers (within the meaning of section 1905(1)(2)(B) of the Social Security Act (42 U.S.C. 1396d(1)(2)(B))).

SEC. 8082. The total amount appropriated in this Act is hereby reduced by $615,000,000 to reflect savings from favorable foreign currency fluctuations, to be derived as follows:

“Military Personnel, Army”, $154,000,000;
 “Military Personnel, Navy”, $11,000,000;
 “Military Personnel, Marine Corps”, $21,000,000;
 “Military Personnel, Air Force”, $49,000,000;
 “Operation and Maintenance, Army”, $189,000,000;
 “Operation and Maintenance, Navy”, $40,000,000;
 “Operation and Maintenance, Marine Corps”, $3,000,000;
 “Operation and Maintenance, Air Force”, $80,000,000; and
 “Operation and Maintenance, Defense-Wide”, $68,000,000.

SEC. 8083. None of the funds appropriated or made available in this Act to the Department of the Navy shall be used to develop, lease or procure the T-AKE class of ships unless the main propulsion diesel engines and propulsors are manufactured in the United States by a domestically operated entity: Provided, That the Secretary of Defense may waive this restriction on a case-by-case basis by certifying in writing to the Committees on Appropriations of the House of Representatives and the Senate that adequate domestic supplies are not available to meet Department of Defense requirements on a timely basis and that such an acquisition must be made in order to acquire capability for national security purposes or there exists a significant cost or quality difference.

SEC. 8084. None of the funds appropriated or otherwise made available by this or other Department of Defense Appropriations Acts may be obligated or expended for the purpose of performing repairs or maintenance to military family housing units of the Department of Defense, including areas in such military family housing units that may be used for the purpose of conducting official Department of Defense business.

SEC. 8085. Notwithstanding any other provision of law, funds appropriated in this Act under the heading “Research, Development, Test and Evaluation, Defense-Wide” for any advanced concept technology demonstration project may only be obligated 30 days after a report, including a description of the project and its estimated annual and total cost, has been provided in writing to the congressional defense committees: Provided, That the Secretary of Defense may waive this restriction on a case-by-case basis by certifying to the congressional defense committees that it is in the national interest to do so.

SEC. 8086. Notwithstanding any other provision of law, for the purpose of establishing all Department of Defense policies governing the provision of care provided by and financed under the military health care system’s case management program under 10 U.S.C. 1079(a)(17), the term “custodial care” shall be defined as care designed essentially to assist an individual in meeting the activities of daily living and which does not require the supervision of trained medical, nursing, paramedical or other specially trained individuals: Provided, That the case management program shall provide that members and retired members of the military services, and their dependents and survivors, have access to all medically necessary health care through the health care delivery system of the military services regardless of the health care status of the person seeking the health care: Provided further, That the case management program shall be the primary obligor for payment of medically necessary services and shall not be considered as secondarily liable to title XIX of the Social Security Act, other welfare programs or charity based care.

SEC. 8087. During the current fiscal year, refunds attributable to the use of the Government travel card, refunds attributable to the use of the Government Purchase Card and refunds attributable to official Government travel arranged by Government Contracted Travel Management Centers may be credited to operation and maintenance accounts of the Department of Defense which are current when the refunds are received.

SEC. 8088. (a) REGISTERING FINANCIAL MANAGEMENT INFORMATION TECHNOLOGY SYSTEMS WITH DOD CHIEF INFORMATION OFFICER.—None of the funds appropriated in this Act may be used for a mission critical or mission essential financial management information technology system (including a system funded by the defense working capital fund) that is not registered with the Chief Information Officer of the Department of Defense. A system shall be considered to be registered with that officer upon the furnishing to that officer of notice of the system, together with such information concerning the system as the Secretary of Defense may prescribe. A financial management information technology system shall be considered a mission critical or mission essential information technology system as defined by the Under Secretary of Defense (Comptroller).

(b) CERTIFICATIONS AS TO COMPLIANCE WITH FINANCIAL MANAGEMENT MODERNIZATION PLAN.—(1) During the current fiscal year, a financial management major automated information system may not receive Milestone A approval, Milestone B approval, or full rate production, or their equivalent, within the Department of Defense until the Under Secretary of Defense (Comptroller) certifies, with respect to that milestone, that the system is being developed and managed in accordance with the Department’s Financial Management Modernization Plan. The Under Secretary of Defense (Comptroller) may require additional certifications, as appropriate, with respect to any such system.

(2) The Chief Information Officer shall provide the congressional defense committees timely notification of certifications under paragraph (1).

(c) CERTIFICATIONS AS TO COMPLIANCE WITH CLINGER-COHEN ACT.—(1) During the current fiscal year, a major automated information system may not receive Milestone A approval, Milestone B approval, or full rate production approval, or their equivalent, within the Department of Defense until the Chief Information Officer certifies, with respect to that milestone, that the system is being developed in accordance with the Clinger-Cohen Act of 1996 (40 U.S.C. 1401 et seq.). The Chief Information Officer may require additional certifications, as appropriate, with respect to any such system.

(2) The Chief Information Officer shall provide the congressional defense committees timely notification of certifications under paragraph (1). Each such notification shall include, at a minimum, the funding baseline and milestone schedule for each system covered by such a certification and confirmation that the following steps have been taken with respect to the system:

- (A) Business process reengineering.
- (B) An analysis of alternatives.
- (C) An economic analysis that includes a calculation of the return on investment.
- (D) Performance measures.
- (E) An information assurance strategy consistent with the Department’s Global Information Grid.

(d) DEFINITIONS.—For purposes of this section:

(1) The term “Chief Information Officer” means the senior official of the Department of Defense designated by the Secretary of Defense pursuant to section 3506 of title 44, United States Code.

(2) The term “information technology system” has the meaning given the term “information technology” in section 5002 of the Clinger-Cohen Act of 1996 (40 U.S.C. 1401).

(3) The term “major automated information system” has the meaning given that term in Department of Defense Directive 5000.1.

SEC. 8089. During the current fiscal year, none of the funds available to the Department of Defense may be used to provide support to another department or agency of the United States if such department or agency is more than 90 days in arrears in making payment to the Department of Defense for goods or services previously provided to such department or agency on a reimbursable basis: Provided, That this restriction shall not apply if the department is authorized by law to provide support to such department or agency on a nonreimbursable basis, and is providing the requested support pursuant to such authority: Provided further, That the Secretary of Defense may waive this restriction on a case-by-case basis by certifying in writing to the Committees on Appropriations of the House of Representatives and the Senate that it is in the national security interest to do so.

SEC. 8090. None of the funds provided in this Act may be used to transfer to any non-governmental entity ammunition held by the Department of Defense that has a center-fire cartridge and a United States military nomenclature designation of “armor penetrator”, “armor piercing (AP)”, “armor piercing incendiary (API)”, or “armor-piercing incendiary-tracer (API-T)”, except to an entity performing demilitarization services for the Department of Defense under a contract that requires the entity to demonstrate to the satisfaction of the Department of Defense that armor piercing projectiles are either: (1) rendered incapable of reuse by the demilitarization process; or (2) used to manufacture ammunition pursuant to a contract with the Department of Defense or the manufacture of ammunition for export pursuant to a License for Permanent Export of Unclassified Military Articles issued by the Department of State.

SEC. 8091. Notwithstanding any other provision of law, the Chief of the National Guard Bureau, or his designee, may waive payment of all or part of the consideration that otherwise would be required under 10 U.S.C. 2667, in the case of a lease of personal property for a period not in excess of 1 year to any organization specified in 32 U.S.C. 508(d), or any other youth, social, or fraternal non-profit organization as may be approved by the Chief of the National Guard Bureau, or his designee, on a case-by-case basis.

SEC. 8092. None of the funds appropriated by this Act shall be used for the support of any nonappropriated funds activity of the Department of Defense that procures malt beverages and wine with nonappropriated funds for resale (including such alcoholic beverages sold by the drink) on a military installation located in the United States unless such malt beverages and wine are procured within that State, or in the case of the District of Columbia, within the District of Columbia, in which the military installation is located: Provided, That in a case in which the military installation is located in more than one State, purchases may be made in any State in which the installation is located: Provided further, That such local procurement requirements for malt beverages and wine shall apply to all alcoholic beverages only for military installations in States which are not contiguous with another State: Provided further, That alcoholic beverages other than wine and malt beverages, in contiguous States and the District of Columbia shall be procured from the most competitive source, price and other factors considered.

SEC. 8093. During the current fiscal year, under regulations prescribed by the Secretary of Defense, the Center of Excellence for Disaster Management and Humanitarian Assistance may also pay, or authorize payment for, the expenses of providing or facilitating education and training for appropriate military and civilian personnel of foreign countries in disaster management, peace operations, and humanitarian assistance.

SEC. 8094. (a) The Department of Defense is authorized to enter into agreements with the Veterans Administration and federally-funded health agencies providing services to Native Hawaiians for the purpose of establishing a partnership similar to the Alaska Federal Health Care Partnership, in order to maximize Federal resources in the provision of health care services by federally-funded health agencies, applying telemedicine technologies. For the purpose of this partnership, Native Hawaiians shall have the same status as other Native Americans who are eligible for the health care services provided by the Indian Health Service.

(b) The Department of Defense is authorized to develop a consultation policy, consistent with Executive Order No. 13084 (issued May 14, 1998), with Native Hawaiians for the purpose of assuring maximum Native Hawaiian participation in the direction and administration of governmental services so as to render those services more responsive to the needs of the Native Hawaiian community.

(c) For purposes of this section, the term "Native Hawaiian" means any individual who is a descendant of the aboriginal people who, prior to 1778, occupied and exercised sovereignty in the area that now comprises the State of Hawaii.

SEC. 8095. Of the amounts appropriated in this Act for the Arrow missile defense program under the heading "Research, Development, Test and Evaluation, Defense-Wide", $131,700,000 shall be made available for the purpose of continuing the Arrow System Improvement Program (ASIP), continuing ballistic missile defense interoperability with Israel, and continuing development of an Arrow production capability in the United States.

SEC. 8096. Funds available to the Department of Defense for the Global Positioning System during the current fiscal year may be used to fund civil requirements associated with the satellite and ground control segments of such system's modernization program.

(INCLUDING TRANSFER OF FUNDS)

SEC. 8097. Of the amounts appropriated in this Act under the heading, "Operation and Maintenance, Defense-Wide", $68,000,000 shall remain available until expended: Provided, That notwithstanding any other provision of law, the Secretary of Defense is authorized to transfer such funds to other activities of the Federal Government.

SEC. 8098. Section 8106 of the Department of Defense Appropriations Act, 1997 (titles I through VIII of the matter under subsection 101(b) of Public Law 104-208; 110 Stat. 3009-111; 10 U.S.C. 113 note) shall continue in effect to apply to disbursements that are made by the Department of Defense in fiscal year 2003.

SEC. 8099. In addition to amounts provided in this Act, $2,000,000 is hereby appropriated for "Defense Health Program", to remain available for obligation until expended: Provided, That notwithstanding any other provision of law, these funds shall be available only for a grant to the Fisher House Foundation, Inc., only for the construction and furnishing of additional Fisher Houses to meet the needs of military family members when confronted with the illness or hospitalization of an eligible military beneficiary.

SEC. 8100. The total amount appropriated in Title II of this Act is hereby reduced by $51,000,000, to reflect savings attributable to improvements in the management of advisory and assistance services contracted by the military departments, to be derived as follows:

"Operation and Maintenance, Army", $11,000,000;
 "Operation and Maintenance, Navy", $10,000,000; and
 "Operation and Maintenance, Air Force", $30,000,000.

(INCLUDING TRANSFER OF FUNDS)

SEC. 8101. Of the amounts appropriated in this Act under the heading "Shipbuilding and Conversion, Navy," $644,899,000 shall be available until September 30, 2003, to fund prior year shipbuilding cost increases: Provided, That upon enactment of this Act, the Secretary of Defense shall transfer such funds to the following appropriations in the amount specified: Provided further, That the amounts transferred shall be merged with and shall be available for the same purposes as the appropriations to which transferred:

To:
 Under the heading, "Shipbuilding and Conversion, Navy, 1996/2003":

LPD-17 Amphibious Transport Dock Ship Program, $232,681,000;

Under the heading, "Shipbuilding and Conversion, Navy, 1998/2003":

DDG-51 Destroyer Program, $47,400,000;
 New SSN, $156,682,000;
 Under the heading, "Shipbuilding and Conversion, Navy, 1999/2003":
 LPD-17 Amphibious Transport Dock Ship Program, $10,000,000;
 DDG-51 Destroyer Program, $56,736,000;
 New SSN, $120,000,000;
 Under the heading, "Shipbuilding and Conversion, Navy, 2000/2003":
 DDG-51 Destroyer Program, $21,200,000;
 Under the heading, "Shipbuilding and Conversion, Navy, 2001/2008":
 DDG-51 Destroyer Program, $200,000.

SEC. 8102. The Secretary of the Navy may settle, or compromise, and pay any and all admiralty claims under 10 U.S.C. 7622 arising out of the collision involving the U.S.S. GREENEVILLE and the EHIME MARU, in any amount and without regard to the monetary limitations in subsections (a) and (b) of that section: Provided, That such payments shall be made from funds available to the Department of the Navy for operation and maintenance.

SEC. 8103. The total amount appropriated in Title II of this Act is hereby reduced by $97,000,000, to reflect savings attributable to improved supervision in determining appropriate purchases to be made using the Government purchase card, to be derived as follows:

"Operation and Maintenance, Army", $24,000,000;
 "Operation and Maintenance, Navy", $29,000,000;
 "Operation and Maintenance, Marine Corps", $3,000,000;
 "Operation and Maintenance, Air Force", $27,000,000; and
 "Operation and Maintenance, Defense-Wide", $14,000,000.

SEC. 8104. Funds provided for the current fiscal year or hereafter for Operation and Maintenance for the Armed Forces may be used, notwithstanding any other provision of law, for the purchase of ultralightweight camouflage net systems as unit spares.

(INCLUDING TRANSFER OF FUNDS)

SEC. 8105. During the current fiscal year and hereafter, notwithstanding any other provision of law, the Secretary of Defense may transfer not more than $20,000,000 of unobligated balances remaining in a Research, Development, Test and Evaluation, Army appropriation account during the last fiscal year before the account closes under section 1552 of title 31 United States Code, to a current Research, Development, Test and Evaluation, Army appropriation account to be used only for the continuation of the Venture Capital Fund demonstration, as originally approved in Section 8150 of Public Law 107-117, to pursue high payoff technology and innovations in science and technology: Provided, That any such transfer shall be made not later than July 31 of each year: Provided further, That funds so transferred shall be merged with and shall be available for the same purposes and for the same time period as the appropriation to which transferred: Provided further, That the transfer authority provided in this section is in addition to any other transfer authority available to the Department of Defense: Provided further, That, no funds for programs, projects, or activities designated as special congressional interest items in DD Form 1414 shall be eligible for transfer under the authority of this section: Provided further, That any unobligated balances transferred under this authority may be restored to the original appropriation if required to cover unexpected upward adjustments: Provided further, That the Secretary of the Army shall provide an annual report to the House and Senate Appropriations Committees no later than 15 days prior to the annual transfer of funds under authority of this section describing the sources and amounts of funds proposed to be transferred, summarizing the projects funded under this demonstration program (including the name and location of project sponsors) to date, a description of the major program accomplishments to date, and an overall assessment of the benefits of this demonstration program compared to the goals expressed in the legislative history accompanying Section 8150 of Public Law 107-117.

SEC. 8106. Notwithstanding any other provision of law or regulation, the Secretary of Defense may exercise the provisions of 38 U.S.C. 7403(g) for occupations listed in 38 U.S.C. 7403(a)(2) as well as the following:

Pharmacists, Audiologists, and Dental Hygienists.

(A) The requirements of 38 U.S.C. 7403(g)(1)(A) shall apply.

(B) The limitations of 38 U.S.C. 7403(g)(1)(B) shall not apply.

SEC. 8107. Funds appropriated by this Act, or made available by the transfer of funds in this Act, for intelligence activities are deemed to be specifically authorized by the Congress for purposes of section 504 of the National Security Act of 1947 (50 U.S.C. 414) during fiscal year 2003 until the enactment of the Intelligence Authorization Act for fiscal year 2003.

SEC. 8108. Section 1111(c) of title 10 is amended in the first sentence by striking "may" after the Secretary of Defense and inserting "shall" after the Secretary of Defense.

(INCLUDING TRANSFER OF FUNDS)

SEC. 8109. During the current fiscal year, amounts in or credited to the Defense Co-operation Account under 10 U.S.C. 2608(b) are hereby appropriated and shall be available for obligation and expenditure consistent with the purposes for which such amounts were contributed and accepted for transfer by the Secretary of Defense to such appropriations or funds of the Department of Defense as the Secretary shall determine, to be merged with and to be available for the same purposes and for the same time period as the appropriation or fund to which transferred: Provided, That the Secretary shall provide written notification to the congressional defense committees 30 days prior to such transfer: Provided further, That the Secretary of Defense shall report to the Congress quarterly all transfers made pursuant to this authority: Provided further, That this transfer authority is in addition to any other transfer authority available to the Department of Defense.

SEC. 8110. Notwithstanding section 1116(c) of title 10, United States Code, payments into the Department of Defense Medicare-Eligible Retiree Health Care Fund for fiscal year 2003 under section 1116(a) of such title shall be made from funds available in this Act for the pay of military personnel.

SEC. 8111. None of the funds in this Act may be used to initiate a new start program without prior notification to the Office of Secretary of Defense and the congressional defense committees.

SEC. 8112. The amount appropriated in title II of this Act is hereby reduced by $470,000,000 to reflect Working Capital Fund cash balance and rate stabilization adjustments, to be derived as follows:

"Operation and Maintenance, Navy", $440,000,000; and

"Operation and Maintenance, Air Force", $30,000,000.

SEC. 8113. Notwithstanding any other provision in this Act, the total amount appropriated in this Act is hereby reduced by $475,000,000, to reduce excess funded carry-over, to be derived as follows:

"Operation and Maintenance, Army", $48,000,000;

"Operation and Maintenance, Navy", $285,000,000;

"Operation and Maintenance, Marine Corps", $8,000,000; and

"Operation and Maintenance, Air Force", $134,000,000.

SEC. 8114. Notwithstanding any other provision of law, none of the funds appropriated or otherwise made available by this or any other appropriations Acts may be obligated for the purpose of transferring the Medical Free Electron Laser (MFEL) Program from the Department of Defense to any other Government agency.

SEC. 8115. (a) In addition to the amounts provided elsewhere in this Act, the amount of $4,000,000 is hereby appropriated to the Department of Defense for "Operation and Maintenance, Army National Guard". Such amount shall be made available to the Secretary of the Army only to make a grant in the amount of $4,000,000 to the entity specified in subsection (b) to facilitate access by veterans to opportunities for skilled employment in the construction industry.

(b) The entity referred to in subsection (a) is the Center for Military Recruitment, Assessment and Veterans Employment, a non-profit labor-management co-operation committee provided for by section 302(c)(9) of the Labor-Management Relations Act, 1947 (29 U.S.C. 186(c)(9)), for the purposes set forth in section 6(b) of the Labor Management Co-operation Act of 1978 (29 U.S.C. 175a note).

SEC. 8116. (a) During the current fiscal year, funds available to the Secretary of a military department for Operation and Maintenance may be used for the purposes stated in subsection (b) to support chaplain-led programs to assist members of the Armed Forces and their immediate family members in building and maintaining a strong family structure.

(b) The purposes referred to in subsection (a) are costs of transportation, food, lodging, supplies, fees, and training materials for members of the Armed Forces and their family members while participating in such programs, including participation at retreats and conferences.

SEC. 8117. (a) COMMISSION ON ADEQUACY OF ARMED FORCES TRAINING FACILITIES.—The Secretary of Defense shall establish an advisory committee under section 173 of title 10, United States Code, to assess the availability of adequate training facilities for the Armed Forces in the United States and overseas and the adverse impact of residential and industrial encroachment, requirements of environmental laws, and other factors on military training and the coordination of military training among the United States and its allies.

(b) MEMBERS.—The advisory committee shall be composed of persons who are not active-duty members of the Armed Forces or officers or employees of the Department of Defense.

(c) REPORT.—Not later than July 31, 2003, the advisory committee shall submit to the Secretary of Defense and the congressional defense committees a report containing the results of the assessment and such recommendations as the committee considers necessary.

(d) FUNDING.—Funds for the activities of the advisory committee shall be provided from amounts appropriated for operation and maintenance for Defense-Wide activities for fiscal year 2003.

SEC. 8118. (a) LIMITATION ON ADDITIONAL NMCI CONTRACT WORK STATIONS.—Notwithstanding section 814 of the Floyd D. Spence National Defense Authorization Act for Fiscal Year 2001 (as enacted into law by Public Law 106-398; 114 Stat. 1654A-215) or any other provision of law, the total number of work stations provided under the Navy-Marine Corps Intranet contract (as defined in subsection (i) of such section 814) may not exceed 160,000 work stations until the Under Secretary of Defense for Acquisition, Technology, and Logistics and the Chief Information Officer of the Department of Defense certify to the congressional defense committees that all of the conditions specified in subsection (b) have been satisfied.

(b) CONDITIONS.—The conditions referred to in subsection (a) are the following:

(1) There is a full transition of not less than 20,000 work stations to the Navy-Marine Corps Intranet.

(2) Those work stations undergo operational test and evaluation—

(A) to evaluate and demonstrate the ability of the infrastructure and services of the Navy-Marine Corps Intranet to support Department of the Navy operational, office, and business functionality and processes; and

(B) to evaluate the effectiveness and suitability of the Navy-Marine Corps Intranet to support accomplishment of Navy and Marine Corps missions.

(3) The Director of Operational Test and Evaluation of the Department of Defense completes an assessment of the operational test and evaluation and provides the results of the assessment and recommendations to the Under Secretary of Defense for Acquisition, Technology, and Logistics and the Chief Information Officer of the Department of Defense.

(4) The Under Secretary of Defense for Acquisition, Technology, and Logistics and the Chief Information Officer of the Department of Defense determine that the results of the test and evaluation are acceptable.

SEC. 8119. None of the funds in this Act, excluding funds provided for advance procurement of fiscal year 2004 aircraft, may be obligated for acquisition of more than 16 F-22 aircraft until the Under Secretary of Defense for Acquisition, Technology, and Logistics has provided to the congressional defense committees:

(a) A formal risk assessment which identifies and characterizes the potential cost, technical, schedule or other significant risks resulting from increasing the F-22 procurement quantities prior to the conclusion of Dedicated Initial Operational Test and Evaluation (DIOT&E) of the aircraft: Provided, That such risk assessment shall evaluate based on the best available current information (1) the range of potential additional program costs (compared to the program costs assumed in the President's fiscal year 2003 budget) that could result from retrofit modifications to F-22 production aircraft that are placed under contract or delivered to the government prior to the conclusion of DIOT&E and (2) a cost-benefit analysis comparing, in terms of unit cost and total program cost, the cost advantages of increasing aircraft production at this time to the potential cost of retrofitting production aircraft once DIOT&E has been completed;

(b) Certification that any future retrofit costs to F-22 production aircraft, ordered or delivered prior to the conclusion of DIOT&E, that result from changes required from developmental or operational test and evaluation will not increase the total F-22 program cost as estimated in the President's fiscal year 2003 budget; and

(c) Certification that increasing the F-22 production quantity for fiscal year 2003 beyond 16 airplanes involves lower risk and lower total program cost than staying at that quantity, or he submits a revised production plan, funding plan and test schedule.

(INCLUDING TRANSFER OF FUNDS)

SEC. 8120. Section 305(a) of the Emergency Supplemental Act, 2002 (division B of Public Law 107-117; 115 Stat. 2300), is amended by adding at the end the following new sentences: "From amounts transferred to the Pentagon Reservation Maintenance Revolving Fund pursuant to the preceding sentence, not to exceed $305,000,000 may be transferred to the Defense Emergency Response Fund, but only in amounts necessary to reimburse that fund (and the category of that fund designated as 'Pentagon Repair/Upgrade') for expenses charged to that fund (and that category) between September 11, 2001, and January 10, 2002, for reconstruction costs of the Pentagon Reservation. Funds transferred to the Defense Emergency Response Fund pursuant to this section shall be available only for reconstruction, recovery, force protection, or security enhancements for the Pentagon Reservation."

SEC. 8121. (a) TERMINATION OF CRUSADER ARTILLERY SYSTEM.—Consistent with the budget amendment to the fiscal year 2003 President's Budget submitted to Congress on May 29, 2002, for termination of the Crusader Artillery System, the Department of Defense is authorized to terminate the Crusader program. Such termination shall be carried out in a prudent and deliberate manner in order to provide for the orderly termination of the program.

(b) ACCELERATION OF OTHER INDIRECT FIRE SYSTEMS.—Of the funds appropriated or otherwise made available in this Act, under the heading "Research, Development, Test, and Evaluation, Army", $305,109,000 shall be available only to accelerate the development, demonstration, and fielding of indirect fire platforms, precision munitions, and related technology.

(c) ACCELERATION OF OBJECTIVE FORCE ARTILLERY AND RESUPPLY SYSTEMS.—(1) Immediately upon termination of the Crusader Artillery System program, the Department of the Army shall enter into a contract to leverage technologies developed with funds invested in fiscal year 2002 and prior years under the Crusader Artillery System program, the Future Scout and Cavalry System program, the Composite Armored Vehicle program, and other Army development programs in order to develop and field, by 2008, a Non-Line of Sight (NLOS) Objective Force artillery system and Resupply Vehicle variants of the Future Combat System.

(2) Of the funds appropriated or otherwise made available in this Act under the heading "Research, Development, Test, and Evaluation, Army", $368,500,000 is available only for the Objective Force Indirect Fire Systems for the Army to implement this subsection: Provided, That none of the funds in this or any other Act shall be available for research, development, test, or evaluation of any Objective Force or Future Combat System indirect fire system until the Secretary of the Army has submitted a written certification to the congressional defense committees that a contract has been awarded pursuant to subsection (c)(1) containing a program plan and schedule for production and fielding a Future Combat System Non-Line of Sight Objective Force artillery system and Resupply Vehicle variants by 2008.

SEC. 8122. None of the funds made available in this Act may be transferred to any department, agency, or instrumentality of the United States Government, except pursuant to a transfer made by, or transfer authority provided in, this Act or any other appropriations Act.

AMENDMENT OFFERED BY MR. TIERNEY

Mr. TIERNEY. Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. TIERNEY:

In the item relating to "RESEARCH, DEVELOPMENT, TEST AND EVALUATION, DEFENSE-WIDE", after the dollar amount, insert the following: "(reduced by $44,393,000)".

Mr. LEWIS of California. Mr. Chairman, I reserve a point of order on the amendment. We have not seen it.

The CHAIRMAN. The point of order is reserved.

Mr. TIERNEY. Mr. Chairman, this defense appropriations bill allocates some $44.4 million for space-based boost interceptors, the so-called kinetic interceptors. According to Philip Coyle, who was the Pentagon's chief testing evaluator last year in testimony before our Committee on Government Reform, he indicated that this particular test program has been pushed back indefinitely and that it is nowhere near ready to be moved forward in terms of construction. It has not been tested adequately.

Mr. LEWIS of California. Point of order, Mr. Chairman. Could the gentleman provide me a copy of the amendment, please? I have not seen it.

Mr. TIERNEY. We can. If we had more time of when this was going to happen, we would have been happy to do it ahead of time. Somebody is going to have to help you out on the floor with that.

The CHAIRMAN. The gentleman may proceed.

Mr. TIERNEY. Again, I go to the point of Philip Coyle, who was the director of the operations and testing evaluation program for the Pentagon, who came out clearly and has testified before committees in this House and has made it quite known publicly on the record both while he was in office and since his retirement from the last administration that the testing regime for this national missile defense is nowhere near adequate for us to have any level of confidence that it will be workable, particularly within the time frame that this administration has now set forth, which they claim they are going to have a system workable by 2004. Certainly moving forward and looking at their proposed space-based matters, they are nowhere near that date, or any date within a decade or more beyond that, for deployment.

However, within this budget they have some $44.4 million for space-based boost interceptors or the so-called kinetic interceptors and it makes no common sense at all to move forward on this until there has been a formalized plan that lays out specifically how the system can demonstrate its effectiveness and establish some reasonable time frame for accomplishing the goals that the administration has in mind.

I simply put forth for this body's deliberation and consideration the fact that we are spending money here well before it is appropriate to do so, that the general practice had been in this House and should be in this House that first we test and evaluate matters for their ability to work so that we can have some confidence in their reliability before we move forward.

It has been the experience of programs in the past that when we fail to test first before we deploy and construct, we get burned. We end up spending a considerable amount of money and losing a lot of time going back to the beginning to start construction over again in accordance with the tests and the evaluation. We have done that time after time. In fact, that is why this House passed a law setting up the Department of Operational Testing and Evaluation. Now we seem intent on ignoring the advice of that body and the comments of its director and moving forward and funding things well before their time, well before they have been adequately tested and well before, certainly, they have met the kind of evaluation that would give us any reasonable confidence that this would be a reliable system.

We have many other things, Mr. Chairman, that we could be spending money on within the defense budget. Homeland security is only one of those that certainly has a higher priority than space-based laser systems that so far have proved well beyond our grasp and have not been adequately tested.

I ask that we have some consideration for that, that we strike this $44.4 million from the budget, find a better use for it next time around, and move forward with reasonable testing and reasonable assumptions that we are not going to build something with this Congress' assent until it has been shown to have been adequately tested and shown to be able to work.

Mr. KUCINICH. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the last word.

Mr. Chairman, I rise in support of the Tierney amendment. The bill before us today provides $121.8 million for the initial construction of an inadequately tested mid-course missile defense system based in Fort Greely, Alaska. The Tierney amendment would cut these funds from Fort Greely construction.

To start Fort Greely construction is premature, it is technologically infeasible, and it is unrealistic. Fort Greely construction is the first step in what would become a larger system whose final price tag would be $238 billion by the year 2025. And no one knows if it even can work. Do the taxpayers not deserve some amount of confidence? Do the taxpayers not deserve to know that a $238 billion initiative is being started with the knowledge that it is at least possible? Because right now no one knows if it is possible or not. No problem here. Just go right ahead and spend the money, and we will figure out later on if it is possible.

According to the Pentagon's former chief investigator, Philip Coyle, testing on a national missile defense program is unrealistic and it is behind schedule. At a recent congressional briefing, Philip Coyle and missile defense expert Dr. Lisbeth Gronlund of the Union of Concerned Scientists testified that 15 of 17 critical components needed for interceptor deployment at Fort Greely will not be completed by the year 2004. Why? The technology simply is not at the required level. No problem here. Just spend the money, regardless.

Up to the present time, missile tests have failed to distinguish the target from a decoy except when the decoy has been made unrealistically easy to detect and smash, kind of like putting up a "hit me" sign electronically. There is even reason to question the success of the decoy hits. A General Accounting Office investigation found that defense contractors who conducted decoy tests found serious flaws in a 1997 test that the contractors had claimed was successful. I think America is learning about corruption involving corporations.

The administration has promised to have this site at least partially operational by 2004. However, the Defense Department has moved to put these accelerated plans under greater secrecy from Congress and the public by exempting missile defense projects from planning and reporting requirements, ending reports to Congress with detailed cost estimates and timetables and pulling the plug on disclosing the results of missile defense tests to the public. Can there be any greater example of why there is an urgent need to get a handle on this program?

The taxpayers are being asked to give this program a blank check, and no one even knows that it works. As a matter of fact, we have got plenty of evidence that it does not work, and it is all going to be hush-hush, a secret. With evidence of testing flaws in the past, it is a little bit too much to go along with the military contractors who are saying, Just trust us. How is Congress or the public expected to take military contractors' word or the Pentagon's word on the success of missile defense tests? And think of what it means to the American people if we rely on this to protect us and the results of tests have been phonied up. Yet all this money is being spent, instead of putting money where it really ought to be, developing technologies for peaceful resolution of our conflicts.

The missile defense system is being built when the Defense Department does not have the tools to make it work. Construction is being rushed ahead on false premises and false promises. The Department of Defense has failed to successfully test the main components of the missile defense program. Now, as more money is being sought for this boondoggle, the Department of Defense refuses to show where the money is going or how it is being used. The American taxpayers have a right to demand how their hard-earned tax dollars are being spent on programs in every place in government. And here it becomes even more important when the defense of our country is on the line.

□ 1200

If Congress appropriates these funds, it will be impossible to hold the Department of Defense accountable. Congress should not continue to throw good money after bad. Vote "yes" on the Tierney amendment.

The CHAIRMAN. Does the gentleman from California (Mr. LEWIS) still reserve his point of order?

Mr. LEWIS of California. Mr. Chairman, I do not believe a point of order applies to this amendment. So let me say, I was going to rise and suggest that we oppose the amendment.

The gentleman who is speaking to the amendment, however, talked about a program that was going to spend X number of tens of millions of dollars, and claiming we do not know if it will work or not. But the amendment he is speaking to essentially, Mr. Chairman, would eliminate research on that very program to determine its feasibility, and whether it will work.

The CHAIRMAN. So the gentleman withdraws his point of order.

Is there anyone else who wishes to be heard on the amendment?

Mr. DOGGETT. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the requisite number of words.

Mr. Chairman, this month, like thousands of proud parents from around the country, I attended the graduation ceremonies for my two daughters, one an educator, one a physician. As I watched my oldest prepare to return to our hometown with her physician husband, both of them to care for people there, I was mindful of the guidance given to doctors from as far back as we can remember: "First, do no harm."

I think that the Administration and supporters of this bill would do well to heed this cornerstone of medicine as they continue to pursue an insular defense policy—without the agreement of many of our allies, and without truly the consent of this Congress. This misguided policy emphasizes nuclear missile defense from space and abandons the Antiballistic Missile Treaty, which has played such an important role in keeping nuclear Armageddon at bay.

The Administration has also abandoned the wisdom, extensive writing, and testimony of Dr. Steven Weinberg, a Nobel-Prize-winning physicist at the University of Texas at Austin, who concludes that this system will "harm our security," not strengthen it.

There is no shortage of reasons why a space-based "Star Wars" sequel is undesirable. It targets too many of our resources toward the least likely threat. We all know and are reminded each evening on the nightly news that terrorists have many other ways to deliver destruction to our country and threaten the security of our families. Perhaps the least likely way is some type of missile that would be clearly identified as to its source and which could be the target of a space-based missile defense system.

The Star Wars plan diverts billions of dollars that we need to meet the obligation to our children, to our seniors, to our families, and to address other more immediate homeland security needs. Of course, NMD also requires the technology to hit a bullet with a bullet, to distinguish the bullet from the decoys, and to target bullets that come in a wobbly fashion and a nonwobbly fashion. Doing all of this requires what I suggest is truly a "faith-based initiative," because it takes immense faith to believe that such a space-based system will even work.

But chief among the reasons to oppose this plan and to support the Tierney amendment is that admonition to our physicians: "First, do no harm."

In working to build a world worthy of our children, the false security of space-based missile defense is far outweighed by the warning of former defense Secretary William Perry, that "even a relatively small deployment of defensive weapons could trigger a considerable nuclear arms race." With all of the recent loose talk in Washington about first strikes, about increased reliance on nuclear weapons and new ways with new weapons, this is not talk and this is not a system that adds to the security of our families; it jeopardizes that security.

Intercontinental ballistic missiles are hardly America's greatest threat. The most serious nuclear threat we have is that there are so many weapons here and abroad that remain on hair-trigger alert and the risk that some nuclear device will be smuggled into our country on a truck, in a boat, or by some other means that could expose us to danger.

Now, the Administration and this bill seek over $44 million for space-based boost interceptors. The sky is the limit. This is part of a broader package where we spent billions of dollars already and billions more are being requested over time. I think we need to draw a line at the heavens.

If wisdom's price is suffering, we cannot afford to belatedly learn that proceeding unilaterally with Star Wars is going to get the job done. It is not enough to learn by and by if the system works. It is not enough to let "by and by" be the words to spend more and more taxpayer resources on a system that does not work.

The modern version of the Hippocratic oath states, "A prevention is preferable to a cure." Instead of spending billions to try to build a shield to blunt the sword, our focus should be on the resources, on the diplomacy, to keep that sword from ever being forged or drawn in the first place.

Mr. Chairman, I urge support of the Tierney amendment. I believe it will add to the security of American families.

The CHAIRMAN. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. TIERNEY).

The question was taken; and the Chairman announced that the noes appeared to have it.

Mr. TIERNEY. Mr. Chairman, I demand a recorded vote.

The CHAIRMAN. Pursuant to clause 6 of rule XVIII, further proceedings on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. TIERNEY) will be postponed.

The CHAIRMAN. Are there further amendments?

Mr. LINDER. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the last word.

Mr. Chairman, I rise in strong support of this legislation.

Mr. Chairman, I rise in support of both this rule and the underlying legislation, H.R. 5010, the Fiscal Year 2003 Defense Appropriations bill. This is an open and fair rule that will allow the House to work its will on the Defense Appropriations bill.

Over the past decade, the Armed Forces of this country have excelled beyond our expectations. Since 1991, the U.S. military has been involved in over 40 different conflicts around the globe—nearly four times the number of engagements than the previous four and a half decades! Yet this government, more specifically the previous Administration, has asked our men and women to perform more of these duties with increasingly less support. I believe that time has come to put an end to this policy, and to provide the support our men and women in uniform deserve.

That is why I rise in support of H.R. 5010. This legislation represents the largest increase in defense spending in two decades, and provides a 4.1 percent increase in pay for our military personnel, adequate funding to maintain our current defense systems, and provides support for new, innovative systems, including full funding for the F-22. The F-22, built primarily by the dedicated men and women of Lockheed Martin in my home state of Georgia, will revolutionize our nation's Air Force, save the lives of American pilots, and ensure that the United States retains its dominance over the skies.

In addition to the best possible equipment, this legislation also ensures our support for the best possible training for our increasingly called-upon military reservists, such as funding for flight training devices for the 94th Airlift Wing at Dobbins Air Reserve Base in Marietta, Georgia.

As an individual who has served in U.S. Air Force myself, I am pleased to see this Administration and this Congress realize the significance of our military to freedom and democracy. I have worked closely with my good friend, Subcommittee Chairman JERRY LEWIS, to provide the best for our nation's military, and I thank him not only for his leadership on this legislation, but also for his commitment to defending the citizens of this country.

This past January, President Bush stood before this House and announced his intention to rebuild our military, to lead this nation against the scourge of international terrorism, and to root out those who seek to harm the citizens of this country. He has delivered on his promise, Mr. Chairman, and it is now time for us to deliver on ours. That is why I urge my colleagues to vote for this rule, vote for the underlying legislation, and give our men and women in uniform the support, dedication, and commitment that they have given to us.

Mr. DICKS. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the last word.

Mr. Chairman, I rise in strong support of this bill.

Mr. Chairman, I rise in strong support of the FY03 Defense Appropriations Act, and I want to thank Chairman LEWIS and Ranking Member MURTHA for putting together a great defense bill. This bill will substantially improve the lives of the soldiers, sailors, and airmen of the U.S. armed services as they carry on the nation's defense. I particularly want to make note of the Committee's work to fully fund the conversion of the Trident submarine into an SSGN conventional strike platform. Last year, Chairman LEWIS, Mr. MURTHA and our entire subcommittee added over $300 million to the FY02 Defense bill to get this program started. Today's bill includes $907 million to refuel and convert two Tridents into SSGNs. This bill also takes the first step in realizing the Air Force's vision for a common Widebody Aircraft to use for Intelligence Surveillance and Reconnaissance. It includes $596 million to purchase and outfit one 767 aircraft as the first Air Force Multimission Command and Control Aircraft (MC2A). I also want to commend the Committee for including $10 million to fund a new medical technology, Remote Acoustic Hemostatis, which can be used by field medics to stop traumatic bleeding on the battlefield. In my home district, we lost a fine soldier, Sgt. 1st Class Nathan Chapman of Ft. Lewis, in Afghanistan due to catastrophic bleeding. I believe this technology will let us prevent this kind of death in a few years.

As good as this bill is, Mr. Chairman, it does include one glaring weakness. The committee struck the best balance for meeting our defense obligations that it could given the top line constraints imposed by the Budget Committee and the Republican leadership. However, it barely begins to address what I call the Crisis in Procurement. The committee's recommendation of $70,285,272,000 for defense procurement is an increase of $9,420,324,000 over the amount approved for fiscal year 2002, and it is an increase of $3,065,238,000 over the President's budget request. However, despite the committee's best efforts, it has not changed the fundamental fact that the Defense Department procurement budget is in crisis.

Numerous reputable studies performed in the last several years have affirmed this growing crisis. Even the most conservative analysis conducted by the Congressional Budget Office has found that the procurement budget needs to be increased to at least $94 billion in order to sustain the military force structure that has now been ratified in the Quadrennial Defense Review. Other credible outside studies have reached estimates of over $120 billion. DOD's own studies on procurement needs, performed by the individual Services and the Joint Chiefs of Staff, show a requirement for $100–110 billion. The Navy has testified to Congress that it faces a procurement shortfall of $10 billion a year, and CBO estimates that including the Marine Corps this shortfall is $12 billion. The Air Force has told Congress of a shortfall of $14 billion, and the Army has a shortfall estimated by CBO at $5 billion a year.

The effects of this crisis are all too visible in the procurement programs and in the condition of military equipment and service maintenance budget. The cost and length of individual procurement programs have reached absurdity as buy quantities are reduced to minimum levels driving up unit costs. Drawn out procurement programs mean that average equipment ages are increasing rapidly. The average age of Air Force aircraft has increased by 24 percent in the last decade. Navy aircraft average age has increased 21 percent since 1990. The average age of Army helicopters has increased 12 percent since 1990. These increases have occurred even as force structure is reduced and the oldest equipment is retired. Furthermore, the current rate of procurement of Navy ships will lead to a fleet of only 230 ships by 2030.

The impact on operation and maintenance budgets is severe. The number of maintenance hours required for each aircraft flying hour is skyrocketing. For example, the Air Force had a 293 percent increase in the number of maintenance hours per flying hour on the F-15E from 1992 to 1999. The Navy experienced a 227 percent increase in the number of maintenance hours per flying hour on the F-14 in the same period. The direct effect is a dramatic increase in the Air Force budget for flying hours, more than 45 percent above inflation in the last five years. And the Navy's cost of Aviation Depot Level Repairables increased 68 percent between 1996 and 1999.

The President's proposed $48 billion increase for defense spending contained only a $7.6 billion increase for procurement. That means that despite the crisis in procurement spending, if the committee had accepted the President's budget recommendation, growth in procurement funds for fiscal year 2003 would have been slower than the growth in the overall defense budget. The fiscal year 2003 budget request follows the first Bush defense budget in which procurement was actually lower than the last defense budget of the Clinton Administration. More important, the size of the shortfall in procurement funding is more than 4 times the increase proposed for procurement in the President's FY03 budget.

The credibility of studies by the Joint Chiefs of Staff, CBO and the other higher estimates are strongly reinforced by a consideration of the historical patterns of defense spending. The current budget for procurement is less than half what it was at the peak of the Reagan years in 1985 when considered in constant dollars. Operations and maintenance spending, on the other hand, now exceeds the peak of the Reagan years even though our military force structure is about one third smaller. As a result, procurement, which was 25 percent of the defense budget in 1980 under President Carter, and 34 percent in 1985, is now only 19 percent of the budget. This historically low level is inadequate for sustaining our current force structure, let alone for transforming the military into a 21st Century fighting force.

There remains one more chance this year to begin addressing the crisis in procurement when the Department of Defense requests and the committee considers the $10 billion contingency fund for FY03. This fund must begin the process of modernizing our oldest military equipment. The longer we delay in facing up to this problem, the greater the cost of the solution and the more severe the crisis in both condition and quantity of the systems that we ask our military to use in our nation's defense. We owe it to our men and women in uniform and to the entire nation to step up to this crisis in procurement and commit ourselves to provide the sustained level of resources that will solve it.

AMENDMENT OFFERED BY MR. KUCINICH

Mr. KUCINICH. Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment.

The CHAIRMAN. Will the gentleman transmit the amendment to the Chair.

Mr. LEWIS of California. Mr. Chairman, we have not seen the amendment.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. KUCINICH:

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following new section:

SEC. . Of the total amount appropriated pursuant to this Act for any component of the Department of Defense that the Director of the Office of Management and Budget has identified (as of the date of the enactment of this Act) under subsection (c) of section 3515 of title 31, United States Code, as being required to have audited financial statements meeting the requirements of subsection (b) of that section, not more than 99 percent may be obligated until the Inspector General of the Department of Defense expresses an opinion on the audited financial statements of that component pursuant to section 3521(e) of title 31, United States Code.

Mr. LEWIS of California. Mr. Chairman, I reserve a point of order on the amendment.

Mr. KUCINICH. Mr. Chairman, today I am offering an amendment to the Defense Appropriations bill that will withhold 1 percent of the budget of any component of the Department of Defense from being obligated if that component has not passed the test of the Department of Defense Inspector General audit.

This extraordinary measure is required to protect the taxpayer, since no major part of the Pentagon has ever passed the test of an independent audit since audits were mandated by the CFO Act in 1990.

The GAO found in its 2001 High-Risk Series Report that, of 22 high-risk operations listed in the GAO report, six are Department of Defense programs, more than any other agency.

According to the report, DOD could not match $22 billion worth of expenditures to the items they purchased. The Navy wrote off as lost over $3 billion worth of in-transit inventory. The Department of Defense also purchases material it does not need. Based on current requirements, over $1.6 billion of inventory should not have been ordered. Nor are these problems recent phenomena.

In March, 2000, the Pentagon Inspector General found that, of $7.6 trillion in accounting entries, $2.3 trillion were not supported, and this is a quote, "were not supported by adequate audit trails or is sufficient evidence to determine their validity."

At a March, 2001, hearing of the Committee on Government Reform Subcommittee on National Security, Veterans' Affairs, and International Relations, of which I am the ranking member, United States Comptroller General David Walker gave the Department of Defense an F on financial management. When asked, he admitted that it is probably the worst of any Federal agency in this respect.

Bad accounting practices have left troops vulnerable to biological and chemical weapon attacks, and I want every Member of the House to follow this. At a hearing last week of the same Committee on Government Reform subcommittee, the GAO reported on the results of their effort to track a single procurement item through the maze of different accounting, inventory and financial management systems at the Department of Defense.

The GAO chose one item, a suit worn by service members to protect themselves in the event of a chemical or biological weapon attack. Obviously, in light of the anthrax attacks and our military's deployment and prospective deployment to various parts of the world, these suits are extremely sought after. The Department is spending over a billion dollars to buy these suits at $200 apiece. The Pentagon has plans to buy 4.4 million of these suits, but to date they have issued only a quarter of these.

According to the official in charge of this program, service members have been clamoring for these suits to protect them from biological and chemical weapon attacks. Despite the intense demand within the military, the GAO found that the Pentagon is simultaneously selling the same suits at a deep discount on the Internet for $3 apiece. That is a 99 percent discount from what it cost the U.S. taxpayers. The Pentagon's accounting systems are so bad that several military units actually thought they had an excess of the protective suits. As a result, they went ahead and resold their suits to the public through actions and on the Internet. Our troops have been left unprotected from biological and chemical attacks by bad accounting practices in the Department of Defense, and the taxpayer continues to have their money mistreated.

Mr. Chairman, we even had testimony in committee this week that says that of 1.6 million protective suits that have been requisitioned, the Pentagon cannot even locate 1.2 million. I want to say that again. Of 1.6 million protective suits that have been requisitioned, the Pentagon cannot locate 1.2 million suits that would be used to put on our troops so they would be able to be protected against any chemical or biological weapons attack.

We have an obligation to the men and women who serve to say that the Department of Defense has to be accountable. My amendment withholds only 1 percent of defense funding to encourage the Department of Defense to follow the law to ensure taxpayer money is accounted for, to ensure that the men and women who serve will get the equipment that they need, to make sure that our national defense will be the highest priority; and we cannot do that if we do not have any ability to control the spending and if we do not have any ability to monitor where all of these materials are.

They cannot locate 1.2 million protective suits. Can the Members imagine that on the eve of the difficulties we have with Iraq?

The CHAIRMAN. The time of the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. KUCINICH) has expired.

(On request of Mr. DOGGETT, and by unanimous consent, Mr. KUCINICH was allowed to proceed for 1 additional minute.)

Mr. DOGGETT. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. KUCINICH. I yield to the gentleman from Texas.

Mr. DOGGETT. Mr. Chairman, is the gentleman aware that the President's budget, a new feature of it, was to give a performance grade on all the different agencies in government and that on the very issues that the gentleman from Ohio is talking about, the Office of Management and Budget itself gave an F, a failing grade, to the Department of Defense? If the gentleman could answer on that and if you could tell us how the security of our men and women in arms, in harm's way, is advanced by the kind of accounting failures that would test even the talents of Arthur Andersen to justify.

Mr. KUCINICH. Mr. Chairman, obviously, the gentleman from Texas's (Mr. DOGGETT) question is well taken because the Pentagon cannot pass a test of an audit. Not only that, but they do not know where their equipment is. Here is a case where 1.2 million protective suits cannot be located. That is incomprehensible. That ought to cause people at the high levels in the Army to shake in their boots.

Mr. DOGGETT. Mr. Chairman, does the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. KUCINICH) think it would be better if we gave them more money to manage?

Mr. KUCINICH. Mr. Chairman, think about that. Of course they should not have more money. The point of this amendment is that we take away 1 percent until they could pass an independent audit.

□ 1215

POINT OF ORDER

Mr. LEWIS of California. Mr. Chairman, because this is legislation on an appropriations bill, and just as importantly, because we did not have the courtesy of seeing it before the case, I must object to the amendment.

The CHAIRMAN. The gentleman insists on his point of order?

Mr. LEWIS of California. I insist on my point of order, Mr. Chairman.

Mr. KUCINICH. Mr. Chairman, would the gentleman please restate his point of order?

Mr. LEWIS of California. I object on the ground that this is legislation on an appropriations bill; and because of that, it is subject to a point of order, I believe, and I place that point of order and I object.

The CHAIRMAN. Does the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. KUCINICH) wish to be heard on the point of order?

Mr. KUCINICH. I certainly do.

The CHAIRMAN. The gentleman from Ohio is recognized.

Mr. KUCINICH. Mr. Chairman, I want to state that as a matter of law, this amendment complies with the rules of the House. The Department of Defense Inspector General is required by the Chief Financial Officers Act of 1990 to perform audits. There can be no dispute about that.

This law requires the Inspector General to report its findings to Congress. It cannot be disputed. The Comptroller General of the United States sets accounting standards for the United States Government, absolutely true. These standards are required to be followed by the Inspector General in the Chief Financial Officers Act of 1990.

Mr. Chairman, I have just stated chapter and verse why this amendment is in order. It is not legislating on an appropriation bill. Anyone familiar with these laws, with the Inspector General act, with the Chief Financial Officers Act, with the comptroller general's responsibilities for setting accounting standards, and with the standards required to be followed by the IG and the chief financial officer knows that we certainly are in a position of being able to offer this amendment and to call on a vote on it.

The CHAIRMAN. Does the gentleman from California (Mr. LEWIS) wish to be heard further on this point of order?

Mr. LEWIS of California. Mr. Chairman, I have made a point of order because this is legislation on an appropriations bill, and it violates clause 2, rule XXI. I understand the rule is that an amendment to a general appropriation bill shall not be in order if it changes existing law.

Further, Mr. Chairman, it is my understanding that expressing an opinion is not required under the CFO act.

I ask for a ruling of the Chair.

The CHAIRMAN. The Chair is prepared to rule on the point of order.

The gentleman from California (Mr. LEWIS) makes a point of order that the amendment changes existing law in violation of clause 2 of rule XXI. The gentleman from Ohio (Mr. KUCINICH) has the burden to show that the amendment does not change existing law.

In the opinion of the Chair, the gentleman has failed to meet his burden as to showing that, under law, the Inspector General is required to express an opinion on the financial statements, beyond the general auditing requirement in 31 U.S.C. 3521(e).

The point of order is sustained.

Are there any further amendments?

AMENDMENT OFFERED BY MR. SPRATT

Mr. SPRATT. Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. SPRATT:

Page 34, line 2, after the dollar amount, insert "(reduced by $30,000,000)(increased by $30,000,000)".

Mr. SPRATT. Mr. Chairman, this amendment would take $30 million out of the space-based kinetic intercept program, leaving $14 or $15 million for concept definition, which is the status of it anyway, and instead, shift that $30 million to another program, a vitally important program as part of missile defense which has been debited by this bill, the airborne laser bill.

So it would not decrease by any means the total amount appropriated by this bill for ballistic missile defense. It would simply reallocate within those accounts $30 million, shifting it, as I said, from the space-based boost phase interceptor over to the airborne laser system to make up for 50 percent of a cut which the committee has made in that particular program.

Mr. Chairman, some 15 years ago when the SDI program, Strategic Defense Initiative, was first begun, it was to be a layered defense. There were to be ground-based layers and space-based layers.

One of the space-based layers was a space-based intercept system. It would have been a satellite which would have housed many different smaller satellites, each of which would have housed many different interceptors, each of which could be fired at missiles as they were launched, or even in the midcourse, as they came towards the United States.

The problem with this system, in addition to the fact of being an enormous system, was that in a fixed orbit in space a target this large with that many interceptors on it was a very valuable target and a very vulnerable target; and any country able to fire at us an ICBM that really put us at risk would also be able to build what is called a DANASAT, a direct ascent ASAT, to take out that defensive system.

So to avoid the inherent vulnerability of having predeployed satellites in space, the idea of Brilliant Pebbles was conceived. This system, the SBI system, was abandoned and Brilliant Pebbles was taken up.

The idea of Brilliant Pebbles was to make this target not so valuable and not so vulnerable by making each satellite a single interceptor. Each would have been self-sufficient and able to sense what was coming on and able to propel itself towards that oncoming missile and take it out.

Members can imagine how daunting this technology is. Because the technology was so daunting and the cost of lift and other things was so enormously expensive, the Brilliant Pebbles program was abandoned, as well.

We have spent substantial sums of money, therefore, on space-based interceptors and boost phase interceptors in space. We have abandoned both. We should learn from our mistakes. We should learn from our mistakes and concentrate on what has worked and put our assets where they are likely to pay off in the near term. That is exactly what we are trying to do today.

I am not opposed to boost-phase intercept. In fact, what I am trying to do is shift some money from a system not likely to work any time soon into a system that shows the promise of being an effective space-based or boost-phase interceptor, the ABL, the airborne laser.

Why do I do this? One reason for doing it is that if we look at what the Missile Defense Agency, the BMD agency is doing today, we will see they have a full plate, a fuller plate than they have had since SDI began. They are developing a ground-based midcourse interceptor; they are developing two or three variations on a ship-based midcourse interceptor and a ship-based boost-phase interceptor; they are developing theater systems like the PAC-3, the THAAD, the MEADs. They are developing laser systems, airborne laser systems, and space-based laser systems.

They need to winnow down some of these systems and focus on what works and try to bring those things that are most feasible to fruition, as opposed to going off in pursuit of a million different ideas. So that is what we would try to do here, refine the focus of the program on a system that is likely to work, taking out of a system that has been proven not to work in at least two iterations over the last 15 years.

Let me say that this system right now, this so-called space-based boost-phase intercept system, is relatively, relative to the defense budget, a small system. It is $23 million, or $23.8 million is the funding level for this year. The President requested $54.4 million. We would leave in the budget $14 million for this program; but as I said, we would shift the program.

Now, it does not seem like it is really crowding anything out at that level of funding. What we have to do is look at what the MDA, the Missile Defense Agency, has provided us in a backup and justification charts for the cost growth they expect in this particular program, the boost-phase intercept program. They expect the cost to go up to $510 million.

The CHAIRMAN. The time of the gentleman from South Carolina (Mr. SPRATT) has expired.

(By unanimous consent, Mr. SPRATT was allowed to proceed for 2 additional minutes.)

Mr. SPRATT. Mr. Chairman, this program will go from today's modest level to $510 million in just 10 years. When it gets to that level, it is going to crowd out and preclude something else.

The ABL, on the other hand, the airborne laser, needs money to buy, number one, a second airframe, a Boeing 747; and, number two, and even more critically, it needs some money to buy long lead time items that will make this airframe a suitable platform for a laser that will weigh 200,000 to 250,000 pounds and has to have absolute stability if it is going to work and be functional at all.

What we would put back in this budget, we would take the money out of one program and put it back in the ABL so we could buy those critical long lead items. If we do not buy those critical items, if we let the $30 million deletion stand in this budget, we are going to find that this program is going to be stretched out and out and out, and it is not going to be ready to be tested to determine whether or not the power system, the laser system, will have the power necessary to be an effective system by the year 2005 or 2007.

Mr. Chairman, this is a very constructive amendment, and it does not take a dime out of the overall program. It will enhance the prospects for boost-phase intercept. It will ensure that the money we are spending on ballistic missile defense is being spent more effectively and is being spent towards accomplishing the purposes that we have set out for the program.

I urge support for this amendment.

Mr. LEWIS of California. Mr. Chairman, I rise in opposition to the amendment.

Mr. Chairman, I was going to rise to try and strike this item on a point of order, but the gentleman from South Carolina is such a quality gentleman, he had done the homework on this amendment in a fashion so that it is not subject to a point of order.

But in the meantime, let me say that the thrust of his amendment, really an intent, has essentially the same purpose as the amendment that I did object to, regard space-based missile defense. He does speak to the question of putting funding back into airborne laser.

I might mention to the gentleman that this bill increases funding for that program, increases it enough so that the Department will have a decision to make whether they want to put the money into a more robust program or to go to the second aircraft. So I think we have really met that challenge within the work of the bill.

On the other hand, the question relative to space-based kinetic energy I think is a matter that was fully discussed in the authorizing committee and on that bill as it moved through the House.

The CHAIRMAN. Does any other Member wish to be heard on the amendment?

Mr. DICKS. Mr. Chairman, I rise in support of the amendment.

Mr. Chairman, I believe the gentleman has made a very important case here. The Airborne Laser program is one I have followed closely. I think it is on the verge of being tested, and I just want to commend the gentleman from South Carolina (Mr. SPRATT), who I think is the most knowledgeable person in the Congress on these issues, for the good work that he has done over the years in following these issues.

We do not want to do anything to slow down this first test on the airborne laser so we can find out that it will work. In fact, last year I urged the committee to put money in so we would not let the test be delayed. So I urge the committee to adopt the Spratt amendment.

The CHAIRMAN. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from South Carolina (Mr. SPRATT).

The question was taken; and the Chairman announced that the ayes appeared to have it.

Mr. LEWIS of California. Mr. Chairman, I demand a recorded vote.

The CHAIRMAN. Pursuant to clause 6 of rule XVIII, further proceedings on the amendment offered by the gentleman from South Carolina (Mr. SPRATT) will be postponed.

Mr. BLUMENAUER. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the last word.

Mr. Chairman, one of the areas that I am most deeply concerned about in the course of our dealing with the Department of Defense deals with the consequences of military activity over the course of the last 2 centuries. Unfortunately, we have left a legacy of unexploded ordnance, toxic waste that is involved from border to border, from coast to coast. It is in every State and virtually every congressional district.

Unexploded ordnance, UXO, as we talk about it, is left over from military training exercises at some 2,000 formerly used defense sites and closed bases in every State; and in fact, we really do not have an inventory of actually how many millions of acres; it may be 10 million, it may be 50 million.

□ 1230

These sites include bombing ranges, testing facilities that were once located in underpopulated areas. However, we find that, today, distance is no longer a protective factor; and sites are now often bordered by housing developments or schools or contained within parks and other public lands.

Recently, there was a gentleman rototilling in his yard in a subdivision in Arlington, Texas.

Mr. MURTHA. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. BLUMENAUER. I yield to the gentleman from Pennsylvania.

Mr. MURTHA. Mr. Chairman, we think this amendment is a very important area. We will take a look at it and see if we cannot add money to this field. There is no question in mind that the gentleman has hit an area that a lot of Members are interested in. We will take care of the problem.

Mr. BLUMENAUER. Reclaiming my time, I appreciate the gentleman's comments and interest; and I guess I do not need to get up and thump the tub any further. But I would be interested if the chairman of the committee has any observations about the work that we may be able to do to deal with the research and development and the cleanup of unexploded ordnance.

Mr. LEWIS of California. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. BLUMENAUER. I yield to the gentleman from California.

Mr. LEWIS of California. Mr. Chairman, I appreciate the gentleman bringing up this important subject. I could not respond any better than my colleagues from Pennsylvania did, and we look forward to working with the gentleman.

Mr. BLUMENAUER. Mr. Chairman, I deeply appreciate the gentleman's interest and activities; and, too, I look forward to working with the gentleman.

I would note that there appears to be a growing awareness on the part of Members across the country. I will save my stump speech, but I would just mention that there is one site we had a hearing on yesterday that is still, the campus of the American University, that 84 years after World War II we are still cleaning up chemical weapons.

I think there is lot we can do. I appreciate the assurance and look forward to working with the gentleman.

Mr. KENNEDY of Rhode Island. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the last word.

Mr. Chairman, I just want to rise to commend the chairman, the gentleman from California (Mr. LEWIS), and the ranking member, the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. MURTHA), for their excellent work on this bill. I look forward to working with them on the training of our National Guard. I know that the Guard is about to deploy in Pennsylvania. General Centraccio in my home State of Rhode Island has been very active in making sure our Guard is prepared and trained.

We are relying on the Guard more than ever, and they are part of our total force, especially in this war on terrorism. I think they need to get the needed training and equipment that they need to do their job successfully.

I know this bill goes a long way to doing that. I look forward to working with the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. MURTHA) to ensure that they continue to get the best training available.

I rise today to commend Chairman LEWIS and Congressman MURTHA for their work on this legislation. Their task hasn't been an enviable one, given the limited budget allocations that they were forced to work with.

In the end, they made it work. Looking at the bill that they produced, everyone can see that Chairman LEWIS and Congressman MURTHA are dedicated to our military and the security of our Nation at home and abroad. The safety and security of our Nation and the training and readiness of our military came first—just as it should.

I'd also like to associate myself with the comments of Mr. MURTHA made when the Appropriations Committee was discussing this legislation.

He expressed his belief in the importance of ensuring that our soldiers receive the best training in the world to fight in our war on terrorism. He reminded us that the National Guard and the Reserves are a vital component in winning this war. He mentioned that the Pennsylvania Guard is about to deploy to Bosnia to initiate operations. In Rhode Island, General Centraccio is leading the Rhode Island Guard on a similar course. These Guard personnel are dedicated men and women, average American citizens, who are putting their lives on the line for their country.

As Mr. MURTHA mentioned, we owe it to them to ensure that they have the absolute best training and equipment available to do their job right in areas like marksmanship which I know is important to both Mr. MURTHA and Mr. LEWIS.

I deeply appreciate the opportunity to work with the Committee on these and other issues. I look forward to continuing the good work we have begun to ensure that our men and women in uniform have access to the best training available.

AMENDMENT OFFERED BY MR. KUCINICH

Mr. KUCINICH. Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. KUCINICH:

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following new section:

SEC. . Of the total amount appropriated pursuant to this Act for any component of the Department of Defense that the Director of the Office of Management and Budget has identified (as of the date of the enactment of this Act) under subsection (c) of section 3515 of title 31, United States Code, as being required to have audited financial statements meeting the requirements of subsection (b) of that section, not more than 99 percent may be obligated until the Inspector General of the Department of Defense submits an audit of that component pursuant to section 3521(e) of title 31, United States Code.

Mr. LEWIS of California. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. KUCINICH. I yield to the gentleman from California.

Mr. LEWIS of California. Mr. Chairman, I want the gentleman to know I am inclined to accept his amendment if we do not have to spend a lot of time discussing it, since we have discussed the matter already.

Mr. KUCINICH. Mr. Chairman, I want to thank the gentleman and certainly would yield to his higher wisdom.

Mr. LEWIS of California. Mr. Chairman, with that, we will accept the amendment if we can move forward.

The CHAIRMAN. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. KUCINICH).

The amendment was agreed to.

AMENDMENT OFFERED BY MR. TIERNEY

Mr. TIERNEY. Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. TIERNEY:

In the item relating to "RESEARCH, DEVELOPMENT, TEST AND EVALUATION, DEFENSE-WIDE", after the dollar amount, insert the following: "(reduced by $121,800,000)".

Mr. TIERNEY. Mr. Chairman, this particular matter, an amendment, goes to reducing the budget by $121.8 million that is now earmarked for the construction of five silos at Fort Greely. This does not deal with research but rather the construction.

You will remember that earlier in our remarks we talked about the fact that the Department of Operational Testing and Evaluation had come before committees in this Congress to indicate that the national missile defense system, particularly this mid-range system, is nowhere near a point where it had been tested adequately to sufficiently give anybody confidence in its reliability; and, in fact, the experts and director of that department had indicated we should not move forward with construction until we adequately test it.

The fact of matter is that is why Congress passed the act setting up the Office of Operational Testing and Evaluation, because we had in the past allowed services to go forward and build weapons systems that were not adequately tested, resulting in enormous losses of money and great losses of time in trying to build the defense of this country. So the fact of the matter here is we concentrate on the premature construction and not the research of this.

You will remember that when Mr. Coyle, who was the former director of that agency, came before Congress and testified that the testing regime was inadequate, the answer we got from the Department of Defense was to pull it in and say they will now do an entirely different system of testing. This one would lump all the research and development and construction together, and it would be more difficult to separate one out from the other. They would also do what they call the capabilities-based system, as opposed to a system where we set out goals and tried to meet those goals as we went forward and we could measure and identify the progress in developing a system and whether or not it was working.

When asked about the real capabilities of these Fort Greely interceptors, General Ronald Kadish, the head of the Missile Defense Agency, seems to be of two minds. On one hand, he calls it a limited capability, a residual protection, not perfect by any means, but then he testified before the Committee on Armed Services in February and said he had high confidence that this would be capable to be put in place by 2004.

The fact of the matter is that that is not the case, and because it is not the case we should not be spending money to construct something that has not been adequately tested.

Now the problem that we have here is that usually we would have a Test and Evaluation Master Plan, or what we call a TEMP, by which we could judge where this is going, but the administration has not given us one. We would devise specific tests and goals and time lines. That was originally due in June. It has yet to be completed. It has now been pushed off to the fall, maybe later.

Normally, as an alternative, Congress would have certain minimum requirements established by military planners in so-called operational requirements documents, but the administration has canceled those as of January.

Pentagon officials have also failed to deliver many other technical documents, including the program implementation plan. So, essentially, they are leaving us all out there without any guide or direction as to whether or not we can measure the progress on this. They are ignoring the technology. They are rushing ahead on construction without any thoughtful testing regimen and forcing us to get a situation where we will have to retroactively correct mistakes and errors, costing billions of dollars and a great deal of time.

So we had a hearing and a briefing. We called in Mr. Coyle, and we called in people of the Union of Concerned Scientists, experts on this matter, for specific questioning about whether or not these programs and aspects of it, separate components of it, were really going to be operational and capable by 2004. We learned that that will not be the case.

We first asked about the X-Band Radar System. The Pentagon thought this system is essential to any ground-based system. We were told that it will not be in place by 2004.

Then we asked about the space-based infrared satellite system, the so-called SBIRS. We were told that those would not be in place near operational and capable by 2004. In fact, we are looking a decade or more out on that.

We then talked about whether or not we would have a Cobra Dane Radar as a substitute for the X-Band Radar, even though it would not come anywhere remotely close to doing all of the things that the X-Band Radar was called upon doing; and we were told at best that would be extremely limited and would not serve the purposes of testing or having it be operational at that point in time.

We talked about whether or not flight tests would be conducted with significant information being provided by the interceptor before the launch, because essentially that is what we have been doing. We have been telling the interceptor ahead of time where the target is. You can bet no enemy is going to do that.

By 2004, Mr. Coyle and the Union of Concerned Scientists told us that we would not have had a single test conducted without advanced information on trajectory for the incoming missile given to the interceptor. Nor would we have an opportunity to have any tests done without first telling the interceptor where the launch location was. So it is noes all the way down the line to there.

The CHAIRMAN. The time of the gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. TIERNEY) has expired.

(By unanimous consent, Mr. TIERNEY was allowed to proceed for 2 additional minutes.)

Mr. TIERNEY. Mr. Chairman, we then asked whether or not the flight intercept tests by 2004 would be able to tell us whether or not countermeasures would be effectively taken into account in the test; and we were told that, no, that would not be done.

We then asked whether or not it was important to test the system for different kinds of weather, and we were told it was, but those types of tests would not be done by 2004.

We asked whether or not there would be a simple target sweep or a complex target sweep and whether or not there would be tests done on complex target sweeps, and we were told that that would not be done.

We talked about the fact that, so far, any target has had a beacon on it so that the enemy setting it up would have to have a red light telling it where it was to be hit, and they said there would be no test without the beacon being on target ahead of time.

So right on down the line we have had a system of boosters that have been plagued with problems, and we were told that any booster productivity by 2004 would be extremely unlikely. More likely that is a decade out. So we are using a booster system that will not even be the final one when this becomes operational.

Mr. Chairman, the bottom line on all of there is there is no way we should start building this, no way we should start building it until it is fully tested. We cannot under any conditions, by the former operations and technical person at the Pentagon, have this in place and operational and capable by 2004.

Why are we spending taxpayers' hard-earned money when we have so many other needs in defense? Primary among those are homeland security issues, pay for our troops, housing for our troops, right on down the line. Instead, just because someone treats this program like religion, we are out here allowing them to get away with starting to build something that we have not tested. We are throwing good money after bad.

The worst part of it is, Mr. Chairman, that now the Pentagon tells us, because they were found out about how bad their testing regime is, now they will classify everything so nobody will get the information.

You can bet every time they have a test they will tell you it is a success. What they will not tell you is that they are testing it knowing where the launch point was, knowing what the trajectory was, knowing there is a beacon on the target, knowing there are no countermeasures, knowing everyone will know the answer before it starts, and that does not serve the American taxpayer well in the defense of this country.

Mr. LEWIS of California. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the last word.

Mr. Chairman, I will not take the 5 minutes, but the gentleman is a member of the authorizing committee and he knows full well this has to do with authorizing policy. The fact is, we have begun spending money and we have already provided a considerable amount of money to build those silos in Alaska, that are designed to do the testing he says we are not interested in doing.

The reality is that this amendment takes the heart out of our ability to even consider ground-based missile defense, which is pretty fundamental when we consider possibilities for protecting our country in the future.

Because of that, I very, very strongly object to this amendment. I would do so even if I did not object to the fact that the gentleman did not discuss it with us before we came to the floor.

Mr. KUCINICH. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the requisite number of words.

Mr. Chairman, I want to thank the gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. TIERNEY) for the work he has done on this and ask the gentleman if he would answer a question.

In looking at this presentation here, am I to understand that what the people in charge of this program have done is that they have basically failed to prove in any way that this system can work?

Mr. TIERNEY. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. KUCINICH. I yield to the gentleman from Massachusetts.

Mr. TIERNEY. Mr. Chairman, that is absolutely accurate, and when they failed to do that they then tried to change the nature in which they proceed with the system to make it harder to measure, and now they are trying to classify it.

If I could add one word and make note of what the chairman said, this is strictly a matter of money in this case. It identifies only construction issues and not research issues and in no other way impedes the Department of Defense moving forward research on this. In fact, the very point is, let us research and know what it is we are building before we start throwing bad money after good.

Mr. KUCINICH. Reclaiming my time, I appreciate what the gentleman says. Let us just conduct our own simulation here.

Here is an incoming missile. Is there going to be a beacon on an incoming missile?

□ 1245

Mr. TIERNEY. Mr. Chairman, the way they have structured it so far, there will not be any tests before 2004 where the beacon will not be present.

Mr. KUCINICH. So there is an incoming missile for this test that has a beacon on it?

Mr. TIERNEY. Mr. Chairman, it or some of the target suite will have a missile beacon on it.

Mr. KUCINICH. Have they had tests where they had a beacon on it and they failed that test?

Mr. TIERNEY. It is possible, though some of the earlier tests had that scenario.

Mr. KUCINICH. Mr. Chairman, so they had earlier tests when even when they put a sign on it that said hit me, they were still unsuccessful?

Mr. TIERNEY. That is right.

Mr. KUCINICH. Mr. Chairman, so from my colleague's recitation here, what my colleague is saying basically and what has been testified to is that the tests have been basically tricked up to make it appear that this system works?

Mr. TIERNEY. I am saying that the testimony was from the Pentagon's own person, the person who was in charge of doing operational testing and evaluation, Mr. Coyle. It was his job on behalf of the Pentagon, as directed by this Congress, to evaluate whether or not the testing regime was adequate, and it was not. It was basically found that all of these things would not be ready by 2004 and that the whole testing program fell short of giving us any reasonable amount of confidence that the system would be reliable.

Mr. KUCINICH. Mr. Chairman, reclaiming my time, let us just go over this now. My colleague is saying that in these tests they are giving advance information, this missile coming in, they have advance information on what the trajectory is going to be and what the speed is going to be and what time it is going to be launched and where it is going to be launched from and what the countermeasures might be; and even though they have advance information, they still cannot make this work?

Mr. TIERNEY. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. KUCINICH. I yield to the gentleman from Massachusetts.

Mr. TIERNEY. Mr. Chairman, they have a history of having failures. They have had some successes, but none of the successes without those additional components.

Mr. KUCINICH. Reclaiming my time, where they have had success, they have been given advance information. Now in a real life scenario are they likely to have advance information on trajectory and speed and launch time? Is that likely?

Mr. TIERNEY. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. KUCINICH. I yield to the gentleman from Massachusetts.

Mr. TIERNEY. Mr. Chairman, no, it is not likely; and Mr. Coyle made that point, that they do not have the realistic testing scenarios in place and planned for execution before 2004. That is what they should be doing. They should be having realistic scenarios in place and done and completed and be evaluated before we get to the point of building. We have a very bad history in this country, prior to the legislation we passed to set up Mr. Coyle's Department, of having built things before they were adequately tested.

Mr. KUCINICH. So basically we have a system here where they are testing technology, but they are not accepting the results?

Mr. TIERNEY. Mr. Chairman, we have a system here where they are testing, and they have not tested adequately to get to the point to where they should be constructing.

Mr. KUCINICH. If we were to adopt the gentleman's amendment, how would this effect a beneficial purpose for the American taxpayers?

Mr. TIERNEY. Mr. Chairman, if the gentleman would yield, it would at least stop them from starting to build something that they have not adequately tested. They could continue to research. They could continue to move in the direction of trying to find a way to make a system like this work; but we would not be spending money on building something only to run the extreme risk of having to change it later on at a higher cost and much delay in the program, and that money could then be used more fruitfully on some of the higher priorities of our defense, including homeland security.

Mr. KUCINICH. Mr. Chairman, I want to thank the gentleman for his work on this, and I am supporting his amendment.

Mr. TIAHRT. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the requisite number of words.

Mr. Chairman, what I really appreciate about this country is that we can have an open forum and allow two lawyers to talk about rocket science. What the gentleman just brought up here is 12 parameters on a rocket test. I would like to talk just a little bit about speaking on only 12 parameters on a rocket test. The facts of the matter is that there will probably be close to 12,000 parameters addressed in the series of tests that we are going to be doing out of Fort Greely, Alaska. I think before I go on, I want to talk a little bit about why we are going to have these tests.

There is a need to have protection from incoming intercontinental ballistic missiles. Today we know that Russia has those capabilities as do some of the former Soviet countries that were part of the former Soviet Union, USSR. We know China has that capability. India is working on that capability. North Korea is working on that capability and has launched a three-stage rocket. Fortunately, the third stage did not fire, but it is just a matter of time.

Iran, Iraq is also pursuing this technology; but we are not doing it for today. Listening to the previous discussion, it sounded like we were expecting something to be ready either by this December or we should not do it at all. This is a very complex system, but this is a complex system that has had successful tests; and even the gentleman admitted, yes, there have been some successes.

The success was that we fired a rocket off out of the Pacific, a second intercepting rocket was launched from a land-based location, and in essence, a bullet hit a bullet thousands of miles from the location from where either of these rockets were launched, thousands of miles, a bullet hitting a bullet, tremendous success, wonderful success.

I do not think we can get two lawyers, one on each end of the Capitol, have them shoot at each other, ever get a hit on a bullet; but these scientists were able to do this at thousands of miles, a tremendous technical achievement.

We are expecting it to happen immediately, or we should do not it at all? Well, it is going to take time to continue this technology so that we can be successful in protecting, not ourselves necessarily, but our posterity, our children. North Korea does not have an intercontinental ballistic missile yet, but they will have. Countries that are rogue nations, with rogue leaders will have that capability in the future. We do have a constitutional requirement to provide for the common defense of our citizens. We cannot do it without a system like this. It does not happen overnight. We have to work on it over time. We have to invest time; we have to invest money. We have to expect some failures. But it is an incredible technology.

For us to shut the water off on this is very shortsighted. It ignores the future. It ignores the safety of our citizens, my children, our children. We cannot turn our backs on this. It is a reality. It is an achievable technology. It is a necessity, and for us to stop this is very shortsighted and I think, hopefully, improbable. I think that is the general feeling here in the House is that we should provide for the common defense of our children, and that is a viable means of doing that.

One of the other things I wanted to say about the location is that Fort Greely, Alaska, is probably the best location to run this battery of tests, to measure these parameters. The location has been studied. Construction has already started. It is very important that we continue with this program; and I think that the Pentagon, the administration, the rocket scientists have a very good plan. It is a well-thought-out plan. It measures every facet. It starts with a design concept. It develops documents as to what test requirements are going to be required, what the statement of work, the total environment of this test activity, every little stress point on these rockets that is going to be measured. It is going to be able to hit a bullet with a bullet, thousands of miles over the Pacific or over areas remote from our country; and that is something that we need to think about as a priority for our children, because the reality is, it is going to occur.

My colleagues cannot convince me that Mu'ammar Qadhafi or Saddam Hussein or some future despot is not going to want to use that leverage on America. How do we protect ourselves from that? We have to have a system, an umbrella around our citizens, around our children. So, Mr. Chairman, I ask that this amendment be opposed and that we continue on with the business of the day.

Mr. HINCHEY. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the requisite number of words.

I, first of all, want to congratulate the chairman of the subcommittee as well as the ranking member for constructing a very good bill. There is no question that this is a very good piece of legislative work. Nevertheless, I rise here this afternoon to support this amendment because I think it makes a very constructive improvement to the legislation that we are currently considering.

A week ago today, the Bush administration unilaterally withdrew the United States of America from the antiballistic missile treaty which had been in effect since 1972. This is a treaty which has stood the American people and the people of the world in good stead for 30 years. It has had the effect of reducing tensions, reducing the likelihood of a nuclear attack by any country; and it is a treaty that I think ought to continue to be in existence, but the administration withdrew us from that treaty so that they could begin the construction of these facilities in Alaska and elsewhere.

In doing so, the allegation is, and we have just heard an exposition of that from the gentleman from Kansas just a moment ago, that all of this is designed to improve our security; but in fact, I think what we are seeing is the opposite is happening. As a result of our withdrawal from the ABM treaty, the Russian military is already talking and pressuring the leadership in Russia to put their missiles on higher alert. They are already discussing multiple, independently targeted reentry vehicles, in other words, MIRVing the system, putting more warheads on their missiles. In other words, the effect of the withdrawal from the treaty has already begun to increase tensions on both sides and putting the Russian nuclear missile system on a higher position of alert.

What this amendment does is prevent the expenditure of $181-plus million for the construction of these silos. It is a very thoughtful and very prudent initiative, and it is one that we ought to follow. We ought to follow it because the expenditure of that money is premature; and if we do expend it and this construction goes forward, it is going to increase tensions additionally even further.

We have also heard it expressed very, very clearly that the physics of this system has not been proved, not in any sense. The success that we heard about just a moment ago is a false success. It is a success that has demonstrated over and over again that in spite of the fact that we know where the launch is coming from, what time the launch is occurring, the trajectory of that launch, where the missile will be at a precise moment in time, in spite of that, the tests have failed over and over and over again. There has been some minimal success, but the preponderance has been failure.

Such that, as we heard from the gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. TIERNEY) a moment ago, Phillip Coyle, who is the former Pentagon chief investigator, said earlier this year in February that some aspects of this tall order are virtually impossible; and the overwhelming evidence from the scientific community agrees with that. Scientists over and over and over again studying the physics tell us that we have not tested this system enough to demonstrate that it is going to work; the physics of it are impossible.

So what we are offered here today is an opportunity to improve this bill, reduce the expenditures by $181 million, and instead of increasing tensions and reducing national security, to improve national security by the adoption of this amendment.

I support the amendment, and I hope that the House will do so as well.

Mr. DEFAZIO. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the requisite number of words.

I had not intended to speak on this amendment, but heard the gentleman before me when I just came back from the energy conference to my office. I believe there is a credible nuclear threat against the United States of America. There is a possibility that a rogue nation or terrorist group will deliver a nuclear device to the United States of America, but it will not be on the tip of a missile.

This misbegotten technology, if it ever worked, would not defend against a depressed launched trajectory missile from a submarine, against stealth missiles, against bombers, against all those other threats. But not even those are the real threats, and that is not the real failing of this. It will not defend against the container, one of the 500 million that come to the United States every year. That is the most likely vehicle for a nuclear bomb in the United States of America. A simple bomb attached to a GPS device gets to a certain point in the United States and it blows up.

□ 1300

And guess what? While we are spending $100 billion or more of our hard-earned tax dollars to try and take this totally failed and continually failing system, one that has to be notified in advance, has to have a GPS device tracking the incoming missile, one that cannot take on any sort of devices that would cloak or hide the missile or in any way make it more difficult to hit, they are going to be attacking us in another way.

It is a real shame. The one thing we have that really works are our satellites and our detection capability. The second that one of those rogue nations launches a missile against the United States, we will know it, and in 20 minutes that nation would no longer exist.

They are not going to launch missiles against the United States. They might buy a junk freighter, they might sneak it into a container, or they might put it in a van and drive it across the border from Mexico or Canada. There is a whole bunch of ways they might deliver a nuclear weapon to the United States. And while we are wasting money on this program to enrich the defense contractors with failing technology, they will be making their plans.

It is just extraordinary to me after 9-11, when they commandeered our civilian aircraft and used them as weapons of mass destruction, that we are still obsessed with trying to build technology to fight a threat that does not exist.

Yes, the North Koreans. The North Koreans once launched a missile that, if it had worked, might have reached the United States; and someday they might have two or three of them. Well, the leader of North Korea might be nuts, but he is not nuts enough that he wants to turn his country into nuclear glass.

Our assurance of deterrence, mutually assured destruction, in this case, is not mutually assured. They might hit some tiny corner of the United States, which would be very tragic, and I doubt very much they will even try to do that, but we would totally devastate them. That is not the way they will deliver these threats.

There are credible threats. Let us invest some of this money in a technology to screen the 500 million containers coming into the United States, to screen the Mexican semis that are about to start streaming across the border to all points in the United States with no inspection.

How do my colleagues think they are going to deliver it? They are not going to try to build a missile and then shoot it at us and let us detect it. They will put it in a truck, they will put it in a container, maybe a suitcase or maybe a van. And while we are wasting all this money for technology that probably will not work anyway, they are going to be planning a credible attack.

Mr. DOGGETT. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the requisite number of words.

Mr. Chairman, in the aftermath of September 11, there is even more interest than usual in rushing legislation through the House. Certainly all of us respect the time, effort, and expertise of this subcommittee in trying to develop the best bill. There is not a Member of this House that does not want to provide every dollar that is essential to securing the future of America and of every American family. But I believe it is appropriate, as is happening here on the floor of the House today, that we at least devote as much time to this expenditure of $354 billion of taxpayer money as we normally allot to a bill naming a post office.

I commend the gentleman from Massachusetts for his courage in advancing these amendments, because the most recent sequel of the Administration's Star Wars plans is considerably similar to the most recent sequel of the Star Wars movie. It depends in the main on gimmicks and special effects.

One of our colleagues has told us today about the success of one of a number of tests that was done with a bullet hitting a bullet. If my colleagues believe that our adversaries will choose a clear night, will announce the launch time to us, will ensure there is good weather along the full route of the missile, and, in addition, they will place a homing beacon in the missile they are firing at American cities, then, perhaps, with those disclaimers, this is a system worth considering, with one major exception. Because even under those circumstances, even under the best-case scenario, I have yet to hear a single official or a single advocate who has any knowledge about this system who is willing to say that it will be 100 percent successful.

Indeed, most people who have explored this realize that the whole Fort Greely plan is based on the premise: "Build it and it will work". And when it works, it will not work 100 percent of the time.

Well, consider with me again the tremendous horror that we all feel as we reflect on September 11, the damage, the destruction, that gouge in the earth that one can see at Ground Zero in New York City; and think for a moment how much worse it would have been if it had been a nuclear device and how many more tens of thousands of families would have suffered, as so many have already suffered from September 11.

Are we to accept as a security system for American families a system that can permit just one New York City or one Chicago or one Austin, Texas that was 85 or 95 percent effective in stopping most of the missiles from coming in? I suggest that is like going out in the rain with an umbrella full of holes. It is better to consider whether there is not a better way to stay dry than to use that kind of leaky umbrella.

It builds a sense of false security. It encourages adventurism. It encourages a foreign policy that promises the American people 100 percent security when, in fact, experts agree we are going to expose some Americans to a nuclear catastrophe to an extent that we have never seen in the history of the world. It would make a Hiroshima or a Nagasaki look like a small disaster in comparison.

I would suggest that, there is not an expert around that does not think if we build at Fort Greely and begin this kind of effort that we will not have more missiles designed to be targeted to the United States by our potential adversaries.

If the Chinese build more missiles, and there has been a suggestion that they would as a result of this kind of construction at Fort Greely, what impact might that have on the Indians who are a little closer than San Francisco to China? If the Indians begin building more missiles because the Chinese are building more missiles, what impact might that have on the Pakistanis right across the border? And if the Pakistanis build more missiles, what impact might that have on the Iranians, with whom they have had some competition in Afghanistan? And if the Iranians build more missiles, what impact might that have on Israel? And if Israel builds more, what impact might that have on Egypt?

What we are looking at in Fort Greely is the beginning of a system that will lead to destabilization and to an arms race, the ultimate effect of which will be jeopardizing the security of American families.

It is because we share a commitment as deep as the advocates for this bill in the desire to defend our country that we speak out today against Star Wars and in favor of the amendment of the gentleman from Massachusetts, because we believe the true security of our Nation rests on stopping the false security of this phony Star Wars system.

Mr. FRELINGHUYSEN. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the requisite number of words.

Mr. Chairman, I rise to support the bill and to oppose this amendment and particularly to thank the chairman, the gentleman from California (Mr. LEWIS), and the ranking member, the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. MURTHA), for their work with me, as well as the gentleman from Minnesota (Mr. SABO), on finding a proper replacement for the Crusader.

I want to thank the gentlemen and staff for all their work in protecting those technologies and the brain trust that goes with those jobs.

Mr. Chairman, I rise today in strong support of the Fiscal Year 2003 Defense Appropriations bill. I thank Chairman LEWIS and Congressman MURTHA, the ranking member, as well as their staff, for their work.

We are still a nation at war, and our first and foremost priority at this time must be to the men and women we have called upon to fight. Rightfully, this is the first of the regular FY03 Appropriations bills that this body will consider, and that it should be the first of the FY03 appropriations bills to be sent to the President's desk for his signature.

Since the tragic events of September 11, we have asked a great deal of our military. And Congress has acted to provide them with additional funds to purchase ammunition and equipment, to pay them better wages, and to make sure their families have a decent place to live, access to health care, while their loved ones are fighting for our freedom in Afghanistan, the Balkans, South Korea, the Middle East and around the globe.

But while it is important that we continue to meet the immediate needs of our armed forces, we must begin to look ahead at their future needs, and focus on what investments are truly worthy.

When it comes to war, we want overwhelming superiority in every way. We want our soldiers, sailors, airmen and marines, along with their guard and reserve components, to have the most advanced, most revolutionary, most lethal systems possible.

I am pleased that this bill contains $57.7 billion for research and development on the next generation of fighter jets, ammunition rounds, communications equipment, unmanned aerial vehicles and other critical weapons. This is $4 billion over the President's request and $8 billion over last year's level.

However, this bill does not contain funding for one critical R&D project—the Crusader Self-propelled Howitzer, which Secretary of Defense Donald Rumsfeld proposed terminating. This system would have brought revolutionary technologies to the battlefield and provided a true "leap ahead" from the currently fielded Paladin.

While this bill on the floor today meets the administration's objective of terminating the Crusader program, this committee has recognized the need for ground-based indirect fire support capabilities, and it supports a large leap ahead toward developing the Army's next generation of these systems. I want to take this opportunity to thank Chairman LEWIS and Mr. MURTHA and his staff for working closely with me and Mr. SABO to shape the direction of the Army's replacement for the Crusader. They have put in long hours, and I believe they have crafted a compromise which keeps the Crusader's "brain trust" intact while moving ahead with the development of a lighter, more mobile, more lethal system.

Air superiority alone cannot win all our nation's future wars. We must maintain robust ground warfare capabilities, including a range of direct and indirect fire support systems. Our soldiers on the ground need direct and indirect fire support systems that can hit their targets, day or night, rain or shine.

One system that will fill that need to provide ground-based fire support is the Lightweight 155mm Towed Howitzer, which the committee has fully funded. This joint Marine Corps and Army program will provide a means for our soldiers to fire the Excalibur precision munition round. The importance of getting this system in the hands of our soldiers and Marines, sooner rather than later, is more critical given the cancellation of Crusader.

Further, to address future indirect fire support needs, the Committee has provided $368.5 million to begin development of a future Army objective force vehicle. These funds include $195.5 million for the maturation and transfer of indirect fire support capabilities from the Crusader, as was requested in the President's recent FY03 Budget Amendment. Additionally, the Committee provided $173 million for the integration of revolutionary cannon technologies onto a new, lighter platform.

As a result of the language so carefully crafted by the chairman and his staff this will allow us to harness the "brain trust" behind the development of Crusader's revolutionary technologies—the liquid-cooled cannon, automated loading mechanism, crew compartment and software—and imbed them in a lighter, more mobile, more lethal replacement system.

Many of the scientists and engineers responsible for developing these revolutionary Crusader technologies work for the Program Manager for Crusader at Picatinny Arsenal in my district.

I am confident that Picatinny's "brain trust" is up to the challenge of developing a system that possesses the capabilities and advances that Crusader would bring to the battlefield in a package that is half the weight, and can become part of the Army's arsenal within the next six years.

Also contained in this bill is funding for a broad range of projects at Picatinny in areas as diverse as homeland defense, smart munitions, nanotechnology and environmental remediation, which I support because they provide our soldiers in the field with the tools they need to win.

I urge my colleagues to stand in support of the men and women who are fighting on behalf of our nation, and to vote for this bill.

The CHAIRMAN. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. TIERNEY).

The question was taken; and the Chairman announced that the noes appeared to have it.

Mr. TIERNEY. Mr. Chairman, I demand a recorded vote.

The CHAIRMAN. Pursuant to clause 6 of rule XVIII, further proceedings on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. TIERNEY) will be postponed.

AMENDMENT OFFERED BY MR. COLLINS

Mr. COLLINS. Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. COLLINS:

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following new section:

SEC. ____ . None of the funds provided in this Act may be used to relocate the headquarters of the United States Army, South, from Fort Buchanan, Puerto Rico, to a location in the continental United States.

Mr. COLLINS (during the reading). Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent that the amendment be considered as read and printed in the RECORD.

The CHAIRMAN. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Georgia?

There was no objection.

Mr. COLLINS. Mr. Chairman, I rise to offer this amendment to the defense appropriations bill as a technical correction to a situation dealing with the Army South Headquarters. I have discussed this with Chairman LEWIS, Chairman HOBSON, and Chairman YOUNG; and I do believe that the Chair also discussed it with the ranking member.

Mr. MURTHA. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. COLLINS. I yield to the gentleman from Pennsylvania.

Mr. MURTHA. Mr. Chairman, we have no problem with the amendment.

Mr. LEWIS of California. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. COLLINS. I yield to the gentleman from California.

Mr. LEWIS of California. Mr. Chairman, we have no objection to the amendment.

Mr. COLLINS. Mr. Chairman, I thank the chairman and the ranking member for their support of the amendment.

The CHAIRMAN. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Georgia (Mr. COLLINS).

The amendment was agreed to.

SEQUENTIAL VOTES POSTPONED IN COMMITTEE OF THE WHOLE

The CHAIRMAN. Pursuant to clause 6 of rule XVIII, proceedings will now resume on those amendments on which further proceedings were postponed in the following order: The first amendment offered by the gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. TIERNEY), the amendment offered by the gentleman from South Carolina (Mr. SPRATT), and the second amendment offered by the gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. TIERNEY).

The Chair will reduce to 5 minutes the time for any electronic vote after the first vote in this series.

AMENDMENT OFFERED BY MR. TIERNEY

The CHAIRMAN. The pending business is the demand for a recorded vote on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. TIERNEY) on which further proceedings were postponed and on which the noes prevailed by voice vote.

The Clerk will designate the amendment.

The Clerk designated the amendment.

The CHAIRMAN. A recorded vote has been demanded.

A recorded vote was refused.

The CHAIRMAN. The noes prevailed by voice vote, so the amendment is rejected.

AMENDMENT OFFERED BY MR. SPRATT

The CHAIRMAN. The pending business is the demand for a recorded vote on the amendment offered by the gentleman from South Carolina (Mr. SPRATT) on which further proceedings were postponed and on which the ayes prevailed by voice vote.

The Clerk will designate the amendment.

The Clerk designated the amendment.

The CHAIRMAN. A recorded vote has been demanded.

A recorded vote was refused.

The CHAIRMAN. The ayes prevailed by voice vote, so the amendment is agreed to.

AMENDMENT OFFERED BY MR. TIERNEY

The CHAIRMAN. The pending business is the demand for a recorded vote on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. TIERNEY) on which further proceedings were postponed and on which the noes prevailed by voice vote.

The Clerk will designate the amendment.

The Clerk designated the amendment.

RECORDED VOTE

The CHAIRMAN. A recorded vote has been demanded.

A recorded vote was ordered.

The vote was taken by electronic device, and there were—ayes 112, noes 314, not voting 8, as follows:

[Roll No. 269]

AYES—112

Abercrombie	Hoeffel	Oberstar
Ackerman	Holt	Obey
Baird	Honda	Olver
Baldwin	Hooley	Owens
Barrett	Inslee	Paul
Becerra	Jackson (IL)	Payne
Berkley	Jackson-Lee	Pelosi
Blumenauer	(TX)	Price (NC)
Bonior	Jefferson	Rahall
Brown (FL)	Jones (OH)	Rangel
Brown (OH)	Kind (WI)	Rivers
Capps	Klecza	Roybal-Allard
Cardin	Kucinich	Rush
Carson (IN)	LaFalce	Sanders
Clay	Larsen (WA)	Sawyer
Clayton	Leach	Schakowsky
Clyburn	Lee	Serrano
Conyers	Levin	Sherman
Coyne	Lewis (GA)	Smith (WA)
Crowley	Lofgren	Solis
Davis (IL)	Lowe	Stark
DeFazio	Luther	Strickland
DeGette	Lynch	Stupak
Delahunt	Maloney (NY)	Thompson (CA)
Doggett	Markey	Tierney
Duncan	McCarthy (MO)	Towns
Ehlers	McCollum	Udall (CO)
Engel	McDermott	Udall (NM)
Eshoo	McGovern	Velazquez
Evans	McKinney	Waters
Farr	McNulty	Watson (CA)
Fattah	Meehan	Watt (NC)
Filner	Meek (FL)	Waxman
Frank	Meeks (NY)	Weiner
Gephardt	Miller, George	Woolsey
Hastings (FL)	Morella	Wu
Hilliard	Nadler	Wynn
Hinchey	Neal

NOES—314

Aderholt	Capuano	Ferguson
Akin	Carson (OK)	Flake
Andrews	Castle	Fletcher
Armey	Chabot	Foley
Baca	Chambliss	Forbes
Bachus	Clement	Ford
Baker	Coble	Fossella
Baldacci	Collins	Frelinghuysen
Ballenger	Combest	Frost
Barcia	Condit	Gallegly
Barr	Cooksey	Ganske
Bartlett	Costello	Gekas
Barton	Cox	Gibbons
Bass	Cramer	Gilchrest
Bentsen	Crane	Gillmor
Bereuter	Crenshaw	Gilman
Berman	Cubin	Gonzalez
Berry	Culberson	Goode
Biggert	Cummings	Goodlatte
Bilirakis	Cunningham	Gordon
Bishop	Davis (CA)	Goss
Blagojevich	Davis (FL)	Graham
Blunt	Davis, Jo Ann	Granger
Boehert	Davis, Tom	Graves
Bonilla	Deal	Green (TX)
Bono	DeLauro	Green (WI)
Boozman	DeLay	Greenwood
Borski	DeMint	Grucci
Boswell	Deutsch	Gutierrez
Boucher	Diaz-Balart	Gutknecht
Boyd	Dicks	Hall (OH)
Brady (PA)	Dingell	Hall (TX)
Brady (TX)	Dooley	Hansen
Brown (SC)	Doolittle	Harman
Bryant	Doyle	Hart
Burton	Dreier	Hastings (WA)
Buyer	Dunn	Hayes
Callahan	Edwards	Hayworth
Calvert	Ehrlich	Hefley
Camp	Emerson	Herger
Cannon	English	Hill
Cantor	Etheridge	Hilleary
Capito	Everett	Hinojosa

Hobson	Miller, Dan	Sessions
Hoekstra	Miller, Gary	Shadegg
Holden	Miller, Jeff	Shaw
Horn	Mink	Shays
Hostettler	Mollohan	Sherwood
Houghton	Moore	Shimkus
Hoyer	Moran (KS)	Shows
Hulshof	Moran (VA)	Shuster
Hunter	Murtha	Simmons
Hyde	Myrick	Simpson
Isakson	Napolitano	Skeen
Israel	Nethercutt	Skelton
Issa	Ney	Slaughter
Istook	Norwood	Smith (MI)
Jenkins	Nussle	Smith (NJ)
John	Ortiz	Smith (TX)
Johnson (CT)	Osborne	Snyder
Johnson (IL)	Ose	Souder
Johnson, E. B.	Otter	Spratt
Johnson, Sam	Oxley	Stearns
Jones (NC)	Pallone	Stenholm
Kanjorski	Pasciella	Stump
Kaptur	Pastor	Sullivan
Keller	Pence	Sununu
Kelly	Peterson (MN)	Sweeney
Kennedy (MN)	Peterson (PA)	Tancredo
Kennedy (RI)	Petri	Tanner
Kerns	Phelps	Tauscher
Kildee	Pickering	Tauzin
Kilpatrick	Pitts	Taylor (MS)
King (NY)	Platts	Taylor (NC)
Kingston	Pombo	Terry
Kirk	Pomeroy	Thomas
Knollenberg	Portman	Thompson (MS)
Kolbe	Pryce (OH)	Thornberry
LaHood	Putnam	Thune
Lampson	Quinn	Thurman
Langevin	Radanovich	Tiahrt
Lantos	Ramstad	Tiberi
Larson (CT)	Regula	Toomey
Latham	Rehberg	Turner
LaTourette	Reyes	Upton
Lewis (CA)	Reynolds	Visclosky
Lewis (KY)	Riley	Vitter
Linder	Rodriguez	Walden
Lipinski	Roemer	Walsh
LoBiondo	Rogers (KY)	Wamp
Lucas (KY)	Rogers (MI)	Watkins (OK)
Lucas (OK)	Rohrabacher	Weldon (FL)
Maloney (CT)	Ros-Lehtinen	Weldon (PA)
Manzullo	Ross	Weller
Mascara	Rothman	Wexler
Matheson	Royce	Whitfield
Matsui	Ryan (WI)	Wicker
McCrery	Ryun (KS)	Wilson (NM)
McHugh	Sanchez	Wilson (SC)
McInnis	Sandlin	Wolf
McIntyre	Saxton	Young (AK)
McKeon	Schaffer	Young (FL)
Menendez	Schiff
Mica	Schrock
Millender-	Scott
McDonald	Sensenbrenner

NOT VOTING—8

Allen	McCarthy (NY)	Sabo
Boehner	Northup	Traficant
Burr	Roukema

□ 1336

Mrs. TAUSCHER and Messrs. OTTER, GEKAS, LANGEVIN, CANTOR, PICKERING, KENNEDY of Rhode Island, HINOJOSA and TOM DAVIS of Virginia changed their vote from “aye” to “no.”

Messrs. INSLEE, WYNN and SAWYER changed their vote from “no” to “aye.”

So the amendment was rejected.

The result of the vote was announced as above recorded.

The CHAIRMAN. The Clerk will read the last two lines of the bill.

The Clerk read as follows:

This Act may be cited as the “Department of Defense Appropriations Act, 2003”.

The CHAIRMAN. There being no further amendments to the bill, under the rule the Committee rises.

Accordingly, the Committee rose; and the Speaker pro tempore (Mr. SHIMKUS) having assumed the chair, Mr. CAMP, Chairman of the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union, reported that that Committee, having had under consideration the bill (H.R. 5010) making appropriations for the Department of Defense for the fiscal year ending September 30, 2003, and for other purposes, pursuant to House Resolution 461, he reported the bill back to the House with sundry amendments adopted by the Committee of the Whole.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under the rule, the previous question is ordered.

Is a separate vote demanded on any amendment? If not, the Chair will put them en gros.

The amendments were agreed to.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The question is on the engrossment and third reading of the bill.

The bill was ordered to be engrossed and read a third time, and was read the third time.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The question is on the passage of the bill.

Under clause 10 of rule XX, the yeas and nays are ordered.

Pursuant to clause 8 of rule XX, this vote will be followed by two 5-minute votes on motions to suspend the rules on the following measures:

House Concurrent Resolution 424;
H.R. 3034.

The vote was taken by electronic device, and there were—yeas 413, nays 18, not voting 3, as follows:

[Roll No. 270]

YEAS—413

Abercrombie	Boyd	Culberson
Ackerman	Brady (PA)	Cummings
Aderholt	Brady (TX)	Cunningham
Akin	Brown (FL)	Davis (CA)
Allen	Brown (SC)	Davis (FL)
Andrews	Bryant	Davis (IL)
Armey	Burr	Davis, Jo Ann
Baca	Burton	Davis, Tom
Bachus	Buyer	Deal
Baird	Callahan	DeGette
Baker	Calvert	Delahunt
Baldracci	Camp	DeLauro
Ballenger	Cannon	DeLay
Barcia	Cantor	DeMint
Barr	Capito	Deutsch
Barrett	Capps	Diaz-Balart
Bartlett	Capuano	Dicks
Barton	Cardin	Dingell
Bass	Carson (IN)	Doggett
Becerra	Carson (OK)	Dooley
Bentsen	Castle	Doolittle
Bereuter	Chabot	Doyle
Berkley	Chambliss	Dreier
Berman	Clay	Duncan
Berry	Clayton	Dunn
Biggart	Clement	Edwards
Bilirakis	Clyburn	Ehlers
Bishop	Coble	Ehrlich
Blagojevich	Collins	Emerson
Blumenauer	Combest	Engel
Blunt	Condit	English
Boehlert	Cooksey	Eshoo
Boehner	Costello	Etheridge
Bonilla	Cox	Evans
Bonior	Coyne	Everett
Bono	Cramer	Farr
Boozman	Crane	Fattah
Borski	Crenshaw	Ferguson
Boswell	Crowley	Flake
Boucher	Cubin	Fletcher
Foley
Forbes
Ford
Fossella
Frelinghuysen
Frost
Gallegly
Ganske
Gekas
Gephardt
Gibbons
Gilchrest
Gillmor
Gilman
Gonzalez
Goode
Goodlatte
Gordon
Goss
Graham
Granger
Graves
Green (TX)
Green (WI)
Greenwood
Grucci
Gutierrez
Gutknecht
Hall (OH)
Hall (TX)
Hansen
Harman
Hart
Hastings (FL)
Hastings (WA)
Hayes
Hayworth
Hefley
Herger
Hill
Hilleary
Hilliard
Hinchey
Hinojosa
Hobson
Hoefel
Hoekstra
Holden
Holt
Honda
Hooley
Horn
Hostettler
Houghton
Hoyer
Hulshof
Hunter
Hyde
Inlee
Isakson
Israel
Issa
Istook
Jackson-Lee
(TX)
Jefferson
Jenkins
John
Johnson (CT)
Johnson (IL)
Johnson, E. B.
Johnson, Sam
Jones (NC)
Jones (OH)
Kanjorski
Kaptur
Keller
Kelly
Kennedy (MN)
Kennedy (RI)
Kerns
Kildee
Kilpatrick
Kind (WI)
King (NY)
Kingston
Kirk
Klecza
Rahall
Kolbe
LaFalce
LaHood
Lampson
Langevin
Lantos
Larsen (WA)
Larson (CT)
Latham
LaTourette
Leach
Levin
Lewis (CA)
Lewis (GA)
Lewis (KY)
Linder
Lipinski
LoBiondo
Lofgren
Lowey
Lucas (KY)
Lucas (OK)
Luther
Lynch
Maloney (CT)
Maloney (NY)
Manzullo
Markey
Mascara
Matheson
Matsui
McCarthy (MO)
McCarthy (NY)
McCollum
McCrery
McGovern
McHugh
McInnis
McIntyre
McKeon
McNulty
Meehan
Meek (FL)
Meeks (NY)
Menendez
Mica
Millender-
McDonald
Miller, Dan
Miller, Gary
Miller, Jeff
Mink
Mollohan
Moore
Moran (KS)
Moran (VA)
Morella
Murtha
Myrick
Nadler
Napolitano
Neal
Nethercutt
Ney
Norwood
Nussle
Oberstar
Obey
Oliver
Ortiz
Osborne
Ose
Otter
Owens
Oxley
Pallone
Pasciella
Pastor
Pelosi
Pence
Peterson (MN)
Peterson (PA)
Petri
Phelps
Pickering
Pitts
Platts
Pombo
Pomeroy
Portman
Price (NC)
Pryce (OH)
Putnam
Quinn
Radanovich
Rahall
Ramstad
Rangel
Regula
Rehberg
Reyes
Reynolds
Riley
Rivers
Rodriguez
Roemer
Rogers (KY)
Rogers (MI)
Rohrabacher
Ros-Lehtinen
Ross
Rothman
Roybal-Allard
Royce
Rush
Ryan (WI)
Ryun (KS)
Sabo
Sanchez
Sandlin
Sawyer
Saxton
Schaffer
Schiff
Schrock
Scott
Sensenbrenner
Sessions
Shadegg
Shaw
Shays
Sherwood
Shimkus
Shows
Shuster
Simmons
Simpson
Skeen
Skelton
Slaughter
Smith (MI)
Smith (NJ)
Smith (TX)
Smith (WA)
Snyder
Solis
Souder
Spratt
Stearns
Stenholm
Strickland
Stump
Stupak
Sullivan
Sununu
Sweeney
Tancredo
Tanner
Tauscher
Tauzin
Taylor (MS)
Taylor (NC)
Terry
Thomas
Thompson (CA)
Thompson (MS)
Thornberry
Thune
Thurman
Tiahrt
Tiberi
Tierney
Toomey
Towns
Turner
Udall (CO)
Udall (NM)
Upton
Velazquez
Visclosky
Vitter
Walden
Walsh
Wamp
Waters
Watkins (OK)
Watson (CA)
Watt (NC)
Watts (OK)
Waxman
Weiner
Weldon (FL)
Weldon (PA)
Weller
Wexler
Whitfield
Wicker

Wilson (NM) Wu Young (FL)
Wilson (SC) Wynn
Wolf Young (AK)

NAYS—18

Baldwin Jackson (IL) Paul
Brown (OH) Kucinich Payne
Conyers Lee Sanders
DeFazio McDermott Schakowsky
Filner McKinney Stark
Frank Miller, George Woolsey

NOT VOTING—3

Northup Roukema Traficant

□ 1359

Messrs. BROWN of Ohio, JACKSON of Illinois, and PAYNE and Ms. BALDWIN changed their vote from “yea” to “nay.”

So the bill was passed.

The result of the vote was announced as above recorded.

A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

ANNOUNCEMENT BY THE SPEAKER
PRO TEMPORE

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. SHIMKUS). Pursuant to clause 8 of rule XX, the Chair will now resume proceedings on motions to suspend the rules on which the Chair postponed further proceedings in the following order:

House Concurrent Resolution 424, by the yeas and nays.

H.R. 3034, by the yeas and nays.

The Chair will reduce to 5 minutes the time for each electronic vote in this series.

COMMENDING CONTRIBUTIONS OF
ROOFING PROFESSIONALS INVOLVED IN REBUILDING OF PEN-TAGON

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The unfinished business is the question of suspending the rules and agreeing to the concurrent resolution, H. Con. Res. 424.

The Clerk read the title of the concurrent resolution.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The question is on the motion offered by the gentleman from Oklahoma (Mr. SULLIVAN) that the House suspend the rules and agree to concurrent resolution, H. Con. Res. 424, on which the yeas and nays are ordered.

This will be a 5-minute vote.

The vote was taken by electronic device, and there were—yeas 428, nays 0, not voting 6, as follows:

[Roll No. 271]

YEAS—428

Abercrombie Ballenger Bilirakis
Ackerman Barcia Bishop
Aderholt Barr Blagojevich
Akin Barrett Blumenauer
Allen Bartlett Blunt
Andrews Barton Boehlert
Armey Bass Boehner
Baca Becerra Bonior
Bachus Bereuter Bono
Baird Berkley Boozman
Baker Bertran Boswell
Baldacci Berry
Baldwin Biggert

Boucher
Boyd
Brady (PA)
Brady (TX)
Brown (FL)
Brown (SC)
Bryant
Burr
Burton
Buyer
Callahan
Calvert
Camp
Cannon
Cantor
Capito
Capps
Capuano
Cardin
Carson (IN)
Carson (OK)
Castle
Chabot
Chambliss
Clay
Clayton
Clement
Clyburn
Coble
Collins
Combest
Condit
Conyers
Cooksey
Costello
Cox
Coyne
Cramer
Crane
Crenshaw
Crowley
Cubin
Culberson
Cummings
Cunningham
Davis (CA)
Davis (FL)
Davis (IL)
Davis, Jo Ann
Davis, Tom
Deal
DeFazio
DeGette
Delahunt
DeLauro
DeLay
DeMint
Deutsch
Diaz-Balart
Dicks
Dingell
Doggett
Dooley
Doolittle
Doyle
Dreier
Duncan
Dunn
Edwards
Ehlers
Ehrlich
Emerson
Engel
English
Eshoo
Etheridge
Evans
Everett
Farr
Fattah
Ferguson
Filner
Flake
Fletcher
Foley
Forbes
Ford
Fossella
Frank
Frelinghuysen
Frost
Gallegly
Ganske
Gekas
Gephardt
Gibbons

Gilchrest
Gillmor
Gilman
Gonzalez
Goode
Goodlatte
Gordon
Goss
Graham
Granger
Graves
Green (TX)
Green (WI)
Greenwood
Grucci
Gutierrez
Gutknecht
Hall (OH)
Hall (TX)
Hansen
Harman
Hart
Hastings (FL)
Hastings (WA)
Hayes
Hayworth
Hefley
Herger
Hill
Hilleary
Hilliard
Hinchey
Hinojosa
Hobson
Hoeffel
Hoekstra
Holden
Holt
Honda
Hooley
Horn
Hostettler
Houghton
Hoyer
Hulshof
Hunter
Hyde
Inslee
Isakson
Israel
Issa
Istook
Jackson (IL)
Jackson-Lee
(TX)
Jefferson
Jenkins
John
Johnson (CT)
Johnson (IL)
Johnson, E. B.
Johnson, Sam
Jones (NC)
Jones (OH)
Kanjorski
Kaptur
Keller
Kelly
Kennedy (MN)
Kennedy (RI)
Kerns
Kildee
Kilpatrick
Kind (WI)
King (NY)
Kingston
Kirk
Kleccka
Knollenberg
Kolbe
Kucinich
LaFalce
LaHood
Lampson
Langevin
Lantos
Larsen (WA)
Larson (CT)
Latham
LaTourette
Leach
Lee
Levin
Lewis (CA)
Lewis (GA)
Lewis (KY)

Linder
Lipinski
LoBiondo
Lofgren
Lowey
Lucas (KY)
Lucas (OK)
Luther
Lynch
Maloney (CT)
Maloney (NY)
Manzullo
Markey
Mascara
Matheson
Matsui
McCarthy (MO)
McCarthy (NY)
McCollum
McCrery
McDermott
McGovern
McHugh
McInnis
McIntyre
McKeon
McKinney
McNulty
Meehan
Meek (FL)
Meeks (NY)
Menendez
Mica
Millender-McDonald
Miller, Dan
Miller, Gary
Miller, George
Miller, Jeff
Mink
Mollohan
Moore
Moran (KS)
Moran (VA)
Morella
Murtha
Myrick
Nadler
Napolitano
Neal
Nethercutt
Ney
Norwood
Nussle
Oberstar
Obey
Oliver
Ortiz
Osborne
Ose
Otter
Owens
Oxley
Pallone
Pascarell
Pastor
Paul
Payne
Pelosi
Pence
Peterson (MN)
Peterson (PA)
Petri
Phelps
Pickering
Pitts
Platts
Pombo
Pomeroy
Portman
Price (NC)
Pryce (OH)
Putnam
Quinn
Radanovich
Rahall
Ramstad
Rangel
Regula
Rehberg
Reyes
Reynolds
Riley
Rivers
Rodriguez
Roemer

Rogers (KY)
Rogers (MI)
Rohrabacher
Ros-Lehtinen
Ross
Rothman
Roybal-Allard
Royce
Rush
Ryan (WI)
Ryun (KS)
Sabo
Sanchez
Sanders
Sandlin
Sawyer
Saxton
Schaffer
Schakowsky
Schiff
Schrock
Scott
Sensenbrenner
Serrano
Sessions
Shadegg
Shaw
Shays
Sherman
Sherwood
Shimkus
Shows
Shuster
Simmons
Simpson

NOT VOTING—6

Bentsen Northup Slaughter
Brown (OH) Roukema Traficant

□ 1410

So (two-thirds having voted in favor thereof) the rules were suspended and the concurrent resolution was agreed to.

The result of the vote was announced as above recorded.

A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

FRANK SINATRA POST OFFICE BUILDING

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. SHIMKUS). The unfinished business is the question of suspending the rules and passing the bill, H.R. 3034.

The Clerk read the title of the bill.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The question is on the motion offered by the gentleman from Oklahoma (Mr. SULLIVAN) that the House suspend the rules and pass the bill, H.R. 3034, on which the yeas and nays are ordered.

This is a 5-minute vote.

The vote was taken by electronic device, and there were—yeas 427, nays 0, not voting 7, as follows:

[Roll No. 272]

YEAS—427

Abercrombie Barrett Boehlert
Ackerman Bartlett Boehner
Aderholt Barton Bonilla
Akin Bass Bonior
Allen Becerra Bono
Andrews Bentsen Boozman
Armey Bereuter Borski
Baca Berkley Boswell
Bachus Berman Boucher
Baird Berry Boyd
Baker Biggert Brady (PA)
Baldacci Bilirakis Brady (TX)
Baldwin Bishop Brown (FL)
Ballenger Blagojevich Brown (OH)
Barcia Blumenauer Brown (SC)
Barr Blunt Bryant

Burr	Granger	Maloney (NY)	Ryun (KS)	Smith (WA)	Towns
Burton	Graves	Manzullo	Sabo	Snyder	Turner
Callahan	Green (TX)	Markley	Sanchez	Solis	Udall (CO)
Calvert	Green (WI)	Mascara	Sanders	Souder	Udall (NM)
Camp	Greenwood	Matheson	Sandlin	Spratt	Upton
Cannon	Grucci	Matsui	Sawyer	Stark	Velazquez
Cantor	Gutierrez	McCarthy (MO)	Saxton	Stearns	Visclosky
Capito	Gutknecht	McCarthy (NY)	Schaffer	Stenholm	Vitter
Capps	Hall (OH)	McCollum	Schakowsky	Strickland	Walden
Capuano	Hall (TX)	McCrery	Schiff	Stump	Walsh
Cardin	Hansen	McDermott	Schrock	Stupak	Wamp
Carson (IN)	Hart	McGovern	Scott	Sullivan	Waters
Carson (OK)	Hastings (FL)	McHugh	Sensenbrenner	Sununu	Watkins (OK)
Castle	Hastings (WA)	McInnis	Serrano	Sweeney	Watson (CA)
Chabot	Hayes	McIntyre	Sessions	Tancredo	Watt (NC)
Chambliss	Hayworth	McKeon	Shadegg	Tanner	Watts (OK)
Clay	Hefley	McKinney	Shaw	Tauscher	Waxman
Clayton	Herger	McNulty	Shays	Tauzin	Weiner
Clement	Hill	Meehan	Sherman	Taylor (MS)	Weldon (FL)
Clyburn	Hilleary	Meek (FL)	Sherwood	Taylor (NC)	Weldon (PA)
Coble	Hilliard	Meeks (NY)	Shimkus	Terry	Weller
Collins	Hinchee	Menendez	Shoemaker	Thomas	Wexler
Combest	Hinojosa	Mica	Shuster	Thompson (CA)	Whitfield
Condit	Hobson	Millender-	Simmons	Thompson (MS)	Wilson (NM)
Conyers	Hoefel	McDonald	Simpson	Thornberry	Wilson (SC)
Cooksey	Hoekstra	Miller, Dan	Skeen	Thune	Wolf
Costello	Holden	Miller, Gary	Skelton	Thurman	Woolsey
Cox	Holt	Miller, George	Slaughter	Tiahrt	Wu
Coyne	Honda	Miller, Jeff	Smith (MI)	Tiberi	Wynn
Cramer	Hooley	Mink	Smith (NJ)	Tierney	Young (AK)
Crane	Horn	Mollohan	Smith (TX)	Toomey	Young (FL)
Crenshaw	Hostettler	Moore
Crowley	Houghton	Moran (KS)
Cubin	Hoyer	Moran (VA)
Cummings	Hulshof	Morella
Cunningham	Hunter	Murtha
Davis (CA)	Hyde	Myrick
Davis (FL)	Inslee	Nadler
Davis (IL)	Isakson	Napolitano
Davis, Jo Ann	Israel	Neal
Davis, Tom	Issa	Nethercutt
Deal	Istook	Ney
DeFazio	Jackson (IL)	Norwood
DeGette	Jackson-Lee	Nussle
DeLauro	(TX)	Oberstar
DeLay	Jefferson	Obey
DeMint	Jenkins	Olver
Deutsch	John	Ortiz
Diaz-Balart	Johnson (CT)	Osborne
Dicks	Johnson (IL)	Ose
Dingell	Johnson, E. B.	Otter
Doggett	Johnson, Sam	Owens
Dooley	Jones (NC)	Oxley
Doornick	Jones (OH)	Pallone
Doyle	Kanjorski	Pascarell
Dreier	Kaptur	Pastor
Duncan	Keller	Paul
Dunn	Kelly	Payne
Edwards	Kennedy (MN)	Pelosi
Ehlers	Kennedy (RI)	Pence
Ehrlich	Kerns	Peterson (MN)
Emerson	Kildee	Peterson (PA)
Engel	Kilpatrick	Petri
English	Kind (WI)	Phelps
Eshoo	King (NY)	Pickering
Etheridge	Kingston	Pitts
Evans	Kirk	Platts
Everett	Kleczka	Pombo
Farr	Knollenberg	Pomeroy
Fattah	Kolbe	Portman
Ferguson	Kucinich	Price (NC)
Filner	LaFalce	Pryce (OH)
Flake	LaHood	Putnam
Fletcher	Lampson	Quinn
Foley	Langevin	Radanovich
Forbes	Lantos	Rahall
Ford	Larsen (WA)	Ramstad
Fossella	Larson (CT)	Rangel
Frank	Latham	Regula
Frelinghuysen	LaTourette	Rehberg
Frost	Leach	Reyes
Gallegly	Lee	Reynolds
Ganske	Levin	Riley
Gekas	Lewis (CA)	Rivers
Gephardt	Lewis (GA)	Rodriguez
Gibbons	Lewis (KY)	Roemer
Gilchrest	Linder	Rogers (KY)
Gillmor	Lipinski	Rogers (MI)
Gilman	LoBiondo	Rohrabacher
Gonzalez	Lofgren	Ros-Lehtinen
Goode	Lowey	Ross
Goodlatte	Lucas (KY)	Rothman
Gordon	Lucas (OK)	Roybal-Allard
Goss	Luther	Royce
Graham	Lynch	Rush
	Maloney (CT)	Ryan (WI)

NOT VOTING—7

Buyer Northrup Wicker
Culberson Roukema
Harman Traficant

□ 1419

Mr. FRANK changed his vote from “nay” to “yea.”

So (two-thirds having voted in favor thereof) the rules were suspended and the bill was passed.

The result of the vote was announced as above recorded.

A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

GENERAL LEAVE

Mr. LEWIS of California. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that all Members may have 5 legislative days within which to revise and extend their remarks on the bill, H.R. 5010, just passed, and that I may include tabular and extraneous material at the appropriate place in the RECORD.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. SHIMKUS). Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from California?

There was no objection.

COMMENDING MEMBERS AND STAFF OF COMMITTEE ON APPROPRIATIONS

(Mr. LEWIS of California asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. LEWIS of California. Mr. Speaker, I would like to clarify the Committee's intent regarding the “SPY-1 Solid State Radar.” the Committee intends that the entire amount contained in the President's budget under the Sea Based Midcourse for Sea Based Solid State Radar development be used for the development of the S-Band SPY-1E radar.

Mr. Speaker, I did not take the time earlier for we were about to pass the first appropriations bill of the year in record time. There was a small little train wreck that got in the way of that record time; and, thus, I will take a moment that I would have taken earlier to express my appreciation for those who made this success possible.

Both the gentleman from Florida (Mr. YOUNG) and the gentleman from Wisconsin (Mr. OBEY) have been very, very helpful in the work of Committee on Appropriations this year as it deals with national defense. I want to take a moment to especially express my appreciation to the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. MURTHA), my partner in this business, for we never would have been able to accomplish the level of bipartisan support we had in the House as demonstrated by the vote without his assistance.

Beyond that, we were both blessed with very, very fine staff on both sides of the aisle who do a fine job. Kevin Roper on my side and Greg Dahlberg on the other side help lead a team of staff people who worked endless hours, weekends, night and day to make sure this bill is not just successful but that it is done in a highly professional manner, and for that we very much appreciate their work.

PROVIDING FOR CONSIDERATION OF MOTIONS TO SUSPEND THE RULES

Mr. LINDER. Mr. Speaker, by direction of the Committee on Rules, I call up House Resolution 463 and ask for its immediate consideration.

The Clerk read the resolution, as follows:

H. RES. 463

Resolved, That it shall be in order at any time on the legislative day of Thursday, June 27, 2002, for the Speaker to entertain motions that the House suspend the rules relating to the resolution (H. Res. 459) expressing the sense of the House of Representatives that Newdow v. U.S. Congress was erroneously decided, and for other purposes.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman from Georgia (Mr. LINDER) is recognized for 1 hour.

Mr. LINDER. Mr. Speaker, for the purpose of debate only, I yield the customary 30 minutes to the gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. MCGOVERN), pending which I yield myself such time as I consume.

H. Res. 463 provides that it shall be in order at any time on the legislative day of Thursday, June 27, 2002, for the Speaker to entertain motions that the House suspend the rules relating to the resolution, H. Res. 459, expressing the sense of the House of Representatives that Newdow versus U.S. Congress was erroneously decided.

Yesterday was a sad day for the millions and millions of Americans who understand and appreciate the significance of the Pledge of Allegiance.

Incredibly, the Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals decided to overturn a 1954 act of Congress, which added the phrase "under God" to the Pledge of Allegiance, ruling that these two words violated the Constitution's Establishment Clause which requires the separation of church and state.

This fatally-flawed ruling, taken to its logical endpoint, would indicate that our currency, which contains the phrase "In God We Trust," is unconstitutional. Clearly, that is not true, but, in the meantime, the Ninth Circuit has issued this inexplicable ruling.

This decision, if not overturned by the U.S. Supreme Court, will force a number of Western States to remove this important phrase from the Pledge of Allegiance.

I am proud to stand with my colleagues today on both sides of the aisle as we fight to protect our American heritage. In bringing the underlying legislation, H. Res. 459, to the floor, we are reaffirming our commitment to bedrock values and beliefs that have made the United States of America the greatest country on Earth. I firmly believe that the Pledge of Allegiance should continue to include the entire phrase "One Nation Under God."

I want to thank the chairman of the House Committee on the Judiciary, the gentleman from Wisconsin (Mr. SEN-SENRENNER), for his leadership in bringing this important legislation to the House floor so quickly, given that the Ninth Circuit's ruling was handed down only yesterday afternoon.

I urge my colleagues and fellow Americans getting ready to celebrate the birth of our country next week to remember the spirit that made us a great Nation.

The phrase "One Nation Under God" reflects a spiritual belief that was so important to our forefathers, a belief in God that was instrumental to the founding of our country. I believe we, as members of Congress, we have a duty and an obligation to express our vigorous disagreement with this ruling, rather than simply allow it to stand unchallenged.

On a personal note, Mr. Speaker, in 1976, in the Georgia legislature, my friend, Tommy Tolbert, and I provided an amendment to the education bill that required every class in Georgia to make available at some point during every day the Pledge of Allegiance for the students in those classes throughout Georgia; and now some clown from the Ninth Circuit, as it has been called, decides that the Congress did not know what it was doing in 1954.

I urge my colleagues to join me in supporting this rule and then supporting the underlying legislation which will allow the House to go on record in regard to this out-of-touch ruling.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. MCGOVERN. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, I thank my colleague, the gentleman from Georgia (Mr. LINDER), for yielding me the customary time.

Mr. Speaker, this rule provides for the consideration of H. Res. 459 under suspension of the rules. The underlying resolution expresses the sense of this House that Newdow versus U.S. Congress was erroneously decided.

Mr. Speaker, I urge my colleagues to support this rule and to support the underlying resolution.

Yesterday, a three-judge panel of the Ninth Circuit Courts of Appeals ruled that the Pledge of Allegiance is unconstitutional. It is difficult to describe that decision as anything but just plain dumb.

I strongly support the separation of church and State, and I strongly support the provision in the first amendment that prohibits government from establishing State-sponsored religion. The first amendment protects American citizens from government interference in their spiritual lives. It allows people to worship as they wish, and it allows them to refuse to worship at all.

The Pledge of Allegiance hardly rises to the level of a mandated national religion. The phrase "One Nation Under God" is similar to "In God We Trust" on our currency or "God Bless America" sung at high school graduations or even sung on the floor of this House. These invocations of God have more to do with tradition and heritage than with the government forcing people to believe or practice a certain type of faith.

Every day in the well of this House a Member leads us in the Pledge of Allegiance. I had the honor of leading the Pledge of Allegiance just last week. The Pledge is a way for all of us come together, regardless of party or ideology, and express our love for this Nation and our commitment to our democracy. But we also have the right not to say the Pledge at all.

As the Supreme Court ruled in 1963, it is unconstitutional to force people to say the Pledge. And the resolution before us states that the United States Congress recognizes the right of those who do not share the beliefs expressed in the Pledge to refrain from its recitation.

But here come a panel of the often-overturned Ninth Circuit, interestingly enough led by an appointee of the Nixon administration, charging into a nonexistent breach, issuing a divisive and unnecessary ruling. There are so many important issues facing our Nation, and I can say honestly that I have never had a constituent rush up to me in Worcester or Attleboro or Fall River to demand that we remove "under God" from the Pledge of Allegiance.

Indeed, yesterday's ruling only serves to trivialize the very real issues of church/state separation that deserve a full and fair hearing before all the branches of government. But the Constitution also protects the right of American citizens to have their day in court. That is what the plaintiff in this case has done; and because of the structure of our government, Congress cannot overturn that decision. We can only express our disapproval, which this resolution does in very clear and appropriate terms.

It will be up to the full Ninth Circuit and possibly the Supreme Court itself to toss this ruling into the dustbin of history where it belongs. In the meantime, Congress has the right to call yesterday's decision what it was, a big fat mistake. I urge my colleagues to support the rule and to support the resolution.

Mr. Speaker, I enter into the RECORD today's editorials from the New York Times, the Washington Post and the Los Angeles Times on this issue, as follows:

[From the New York Times, June 27, 2002]

"ONE NATION UNDER GOD"

Half a century ago, at the height of anti-Communist fervor, Congress added the words, "under God" to the Pledge of Allegiance. It was a petty attempt to link patriotism with religious piety, to distinguish us from the godless Soviets. But after millions of repetitions over the years, the phrase has become part of the backdrop of American life, just like the words "In God We Trust" on our coins and "God bless America" uttered by presidents at the end of important speeches.

Yesterday, the United States Court of Appeals for the Ninth Circuit in California ruled 2 to 1 that those words in the pledge violate the First Amendment, which says that "Congress shall make no law respecting an establishment of religion." The majority sided with Michael Newdow, who had complained that his daughter is injured when forced to listen to public school teachers lead students daily in a pledge that includes the assertion that there is a God.

This is a well-meaning ruling, but it lacks common sense. A generic two-word reference to God tucked inside a rote civic exercise is not a prayer. Mr. Newdow's daughter is not required to say either the words "under God" or even the pledge itself, as the Supreme Court made clear in a 1943 case involving Jehovah's Witnesses. In the pantheon of real First Amendment concerns, this one is off the radar screen.

The practical impact of the ruling is inviting a political backlash for a matter that does not rise to a constitutional violation. We wish the words had not been added back in 1954. But just the way removing a well-lodged foreign body from an organism may sometimes be more damaging than letting it stay put, removing those words would cause more harm than leaving them in. By late afternoon yesterday, virtually every politician in Washington was rallying loudly behind the pledge in its current form.

Most important, the ruling trivializes the critical constitutional issue of separation of church and state. There are important battles to be fought virtually every year over issues of prayer in school and use of government funds to support religious activities. Yesterday's decision is almost certain to be overturned on appeal. But the sort of rigid overreaction that characterized it will not make genuine defense of the First Amendment any easier.

[From the Washington Post, June 27, 2002]

ONE NATION UNDER BLANK

In the many battles over how high the church-state wall should be, there has always been a certain category of official invocations of God that has gone untouched. Legislative prayer has been upheld by the Supreme Court, for example. Court sessions begin by asking that "God save this honorable court." America's national motto says "In God We Trust." And the Pledge of Allegiance, since 1954, has described this country as "One nation under God, indivisible." At least it did until yesterday—when a panel of the 9th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals struck down the words "under God" as an establishment of religion in violation of the First Amendment.

If the court were writing a parody, rather than deciding an actual case, it could hardly have produced a more provocative holding than striking down the Pledge of Allegiance while this country is at war. We believe in strict separation between church and state, but the pledge is hardly a particular danger spot crying out for judicial policing. And having a court strike it down can only serve to generate unnecessary political battles and create a fundraising bonanza for the many groups who will rush to its defense. Oh, yes, it can also invite a reversal, and that could mean establishing a precedent that sanctions a broader range of official religious expression than the pledge itself.

All of this might be justified if there were any real question as to the constitutionality of the 1954 law that added God to the pledge. But while the Supreme Court has never specifically considered the question, the justices have left little doubt how they would do so. Even former justice William Brennan—a fierce high-waller—once wrote "I would suggest that such practices as the designation of 'In God We Trust' as our national motto, or the references to God contained in the Pledge of Allegiance to the flag can best be understood . . . as a form of 'ceremonial deism' protected from Establishment Clause scrutiny chiefly because they have lost through rote repetition any significant religious content." Other justices have likewise presumed the answer to the question, and no court of appeals should blithely generate a political firestorm—one that was already beginning yesterday—just to find out whether they meant what they said.

As Judge Ferdinand Fernandez pointed out in dissent, the establishment clause tolerates quite a few instances of "ceremonial deism": Is it okay to sing "God Bless America" or "America the Beautiful" at official events? Is American currency unconstitutional? The answer must be, as Judge Fernandez argues, that in certain expressions "it is obvious that [the] tendency to establish religion in this country or to interfere with the free exercise (or non-exercise) of religion is de minimis." Amen.

[From the Los Angeles Times, June 27, 2002]

A GODFORSAKEN RULING

A panel of the U.S. 9th Circuit Court of Appeals has ruled 2 to 1 that the Pledge of Allegiance—you know, "I pledge allegiance to the flag of the United States of America . . ."—is unconstitutional. And the reason? Because of that phrase "under God" inserted by Congress 48 years ago.

The court said an atheist or holder of non-Judeo-Christian beliefs could see these words as an endorsement of monotheism, even though students can opt out.

"A profession that we are a nation 'under God' is identical, for establishment clause purposes, to a profession that we are a nation 'under Jesus,' a nation 'under Vishnu,' a nation 'under Zeus' or a nation 'under no god' because none of these professions can be neutral with respect to religion," wrote Judge Alfred Goodwin.

It's a fundamentally silly ruling, which deserves to be tossed out, as was the initial suit by a Sacramento atheist. For now, erasing the pledge applies only to 9th Circuit states—California, Alaska, Arizona, Hawaii, Idaho, Montana, Nevada, Oregon and Washington. Implementation of the ruling is suspended pending appeals.

The original 1892 pledge didn't contain the phrase "under God," which was added after a vigorous debate during a period of loyalty oaths and Red-baiting. The Cold War insertion of the phrase in 1954 clearly was driven as much by ideology as religion. That said, for all the overheated and dire predictions voiced then, the "under God" phrase has in no way led to establishment of an official state religion. Further, the U.S. Supreme Court ruled in 1943 that it was unconstitutional to force pledge recitations. Thus the 9th Circuit decision is a cure without an ailment.

In fact, references to the Almighty have long been an integral part of everyday American life—honest to God. That's not too surprising for a nation initially organized by Europeans fleeing persecution for practicing their beliefs in God. The pledge ("one nation under God, indivisible, with liberty and justice for all") is recited daily by millions, with few, if any, enforcement problems over which words someone mumbles or skips.

When taking office, many government officials, including judges, take an oath invoking God. Court witnesses swear to tell the truth "so help me God." In fact, the Supreme Court, where this case should go with Godspeed, opens sessions with a reference to God.

And what about that oppressive song "God Bless America" that the entire Congress sang on government property after Sept. 11? Then there's the problem of U.S. currency, which may now be unconstitutional because it says, "In God We Trust." The appeal should come swiftly. God willing, it will.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. LINDER. Mr. Speaker, I yield 3 minutes to the gentleman from California (Mr. ROHRABACHER).

Mr. ROHRABACHER. Mr. Speaker, today I rise in strong support of this rule and the underlying resolution. Also, I rise today in outrage and indignation over yet the latest manifestation of an ongoing assault on the rights of Americans who cherish their beliefs and their commitment to God.

This is not just about the Pledge of Allegiance, although forcing people to excise God from this voluntary oath is bad enough. A liberal left coalition has been trying to do their best for decades to neuter American traditions that is based on God, beliefs and traditions that Americans have held dear for two centuries.

We see it in the attack on the rights of the Boy Scouts to have God in their scout oaths and have a high moral standard. We see it in our schools when they preempt Christmas programs and instead make them holiday programs. We see it at city halls when all of a sudden a manger scene or some recognition of Hanukkah are left out during those holy months. We see it when the courthouse takes down the Ten Commandments; and we see it when the National Endowment for the Arts subsidizes art works, supposed, so-called art work that attacks Christianity but then passes when it comes to religious works.

□ 1430

Yes, getting God out of the Pledge of Allegiance is bad; but it is part of an attempt, an overall attempt to use the judicial system to attack our fundamental liberties, especially the liberties of those of us who believe in God.

This is one reason why many of us are so concerned about who controls the United States Senate, because it will be the United States Senate who controls who is on the Supreme Court. No one has ever been forced to pray or to acknowledge God, but the liberal coalition that is involved in taking this Pledge and eliminating God from the Pledge are using our courts to attack the freedom of those who do believe in God and attack our rights to our expression.

Today, those of us who believe in God, those of us who cherish liberty need to unite to make sure that those who would use our court system, especially on to the Supreme Court, are defeated in their attempts to neuter America of its traditional recognition of God. I for one stand for liberty, and together we will keep God in our Pledge of Allegiance; and we will defeat this war to sever America and Americans from our religious traditions, and we will protect our people's precious rights to have their faith in God and to express it; and at the same time, we will protect those who do not believe in God.

This is, as I say, a fundamental attack by atheists as part of a liberal left coalition to attack the rights of us who do believe in God to express that, and we need to unite with believers and nonbelievers together for human liberty, which is what America is all about.

Mr. MCGOVERN. Mr. Speaker, I yield 1 minute to the distinguished gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. HOLDEN).

Mr. HOLDEN. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman for yielding me the time.

Mr. Speaker, I rise in strong support of the rule and of the underlying resolution. I, like all of my colleagues and the entire American people, are outraged at the Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals, who have declared the Pledge of Allegiance unconstitutional because of the words "under God."

Mr. Speaker, patriotism is at an all-time high in rise since September 11 as we stand united behind our Commander in Chief and as we stand behind those brave men and women who wear the uniform daily and are fighting the war on terrorism in Afghanistan and across the world.

This decision could not have come at a worse time. This decision was ill advised. It was ridiculous, and we need to send a clear message that we are going to stand as a Congress to see that the words "under God" stay in the Pledge of Allegiance, or what will be next?

Mr. Speaker, above the Chair's head, "In God We Trust." Will that be the next thing to be attacked? Our currency, "In God We Trust." Will that be the next to be attacked? We need to stand united and send a clear message that we are not going to adhere to this ridiculous decision, and I hope it will be overturned as quickly as possible.

Mr. LINDER. Mr. Speaker, I am pleased to yield 3 minutes to the gentleman from Mississippi (Mr. PICKERING).

Mr. PICKERING. Mr. Speaker, I rise to proudly support the rule and this resolution. One Nation under God, indivisible. If we look in this great Chamber, behind the Speaker, "In God We Trust." My colleagues may not be able to see, but right in front of me, lining this Chamber, there are historical figures. The most central historical figure is Moses, the 10 Commandants. If we look to the symbol of our Nation, the eagle, under the eagle are the words "e pluribus unum," "for many there is one."

This Pledge has united school children across our country for generation after generation. It is a uniting force, indivisible. It is not a force of division in our country. It recognizes that our country under God, our liberty under God, our unity under God.

We need to make sure that this out-of-control court is put back in place and that our traditions and our expressions are maintained, whatever it takes.

The dissenting judge in this case says, In God we trust or under God have no tendency to establish a religion in this country or to suppress anyone's exercise or nonexercise of religion except in the fevered eye of persons who most fervently would like to drive all tincture of religion out of the public life. The dissenting judge goes on to say that by this logic "America the Beautiful," "God Bless America," "The Star Spangled Banner," our currency would be wiped away.

We must stop it now. We must stop it today, and we must reestablish that our country is one Nation under God, indivisible, with liberty and justice for all.

Mr. MCGOVERN. Mr. Speaker, I yield 1 minute to the gentlewoman from California (Mrs. CAPPS).

Mrs. CAPPS. Mr. Speaker, I thank my colleague for yielding me the time.

Mr. Speaker, I rise in strong support of this rule, this resolution, and the Pledge of Allegiance. Yesterday, a Federal court ruled that the recitation of the Pledge is unconstitutional and all because it contains the words "under God." Mr. Speaker, I strongly oppose this ruling, and I know that I speak for my constituents when I say that the court should reverse itself or the Supreme Court should overrule it. If they do not, then this Congress should act to protect the Pledge of Allegiance.

For decades, Americans have said the Pledge of Allegiance as a way to show their respect and love for this country. We say it every day we are in session here on the floor of the people's House. The pledge is a statement reaffirming our belief in our country and the values for which it stands. Now more than ever those values, liberty, justice, equality, are so needed.

I urge my colleagues to support this resolution and to support the Pledge.

Mr. LINDER. Mr. Speaker, I am pleased to yield such time as he may consume to the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. HYDE), my friend.

Mr. HYDE. Mr. Speaker, we ought to thank the court. It brought us together, Democrats and Republicans, in unanimity, something that is seldom seen around here.

Actually, though, the court's decision embarrasses us. We have been living in a dream world. Back in the Mayflower Compact in 1620, first sentence, "in the name of God, amen."

If we go on through that to the Declaration of Independence, "We hold these truths to be self-evident, that all men are created equal and are endowed by their creator, with certain inalienable rights, among which are life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness." Our human rights are the endowment from the Creator. That is a fundamental premise of America, and it is in our birth certificate, the Declaration of Independence.

The Treaty of Paris, which resolved the Revolutionary War, mentions God.

Abraham Lincoln on November 19, 1863, in a cold, windy little cemetery in Pennsylvania asked a very haunting question, whether this Nation, conceived in liberty and dedicated to the proposition that all men are created equal, can long endure, and the end of that greatest speech in American literature, he says that we here highly resolve but that these dead shall not have died in vain and that this Nation, under God, shall have a new birth of freedom and that government of the people, by the people and for the people shall not perish from the Earth.

So we are embarrassed by the decision. We have been barking up the wrong tree. We thought it was a good thing to acknowledge the fatherhood of God, to acknowledge our debt to Providence and to do so in a public way. The Supreme Court in 1892, in a case called Church of the Holy Trinity versus the U.S. said, "This is a religious Nation." That same court in 1951, in a case called Zorach said, We are a religious people whose institutions presuppose a supreme being.

So this decision by these three judges, two of the three judges in the Ninth Circuit, is based on a total lack of respect, if not knowledge, of American history, of American culture, of American tradition. It is an embarrassment; and we as a coequal branch of government ought to rise up and say no, no, it is wrong, and acknowledge, continue to acknowledge the primacy of the supreme being who has blessed this country for more than 225 years.

Mr. MCGOVERN. Mr. Speaker, I yield 3 minutes to the gentlewoman from Ohio (Mrs. JONES).

Mrs. JONES of Ohio. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman for yielding me the time.

I rise here in support of this resolution. I am a graduate of Cleveland public schools, and I can remember as a little girl at Miles Standish Elementary School learning the Pledge of Allegiance to the flag and it being so important to me. In third grade, we learned French, and we even learned how to say the Pledge of Allegiance in French in that third grade class; and here I stand 53 years old, and I am still able to remember that I said: Je jure fidelite au drapeau des Etats-Unis d'Amerique et a la Republique qu'il represente, une Nation sous Dieu, and so forth. We learned it in French and it was very important to me as I thought about it.

I too am embarrassed by the Ninth Circuit Court. I am embarrassed that this court would take a pledge, when we make allegiance to our country, and try and take it out of context and move on; but I am even more disappointed today in the United States Supreme Court, because I come from the great city of Cleveland.

Today this United States Supreme Court made the decision that vouchers were not unconstitutional, that vouchers in the establishment clause could be used to pay for religious education with public dollars. I was very interested in the decision. It said that parents have a choice to where they send their children, that the dollars go to the parents, and so, therefore, it is not a violation of the establishment clause.

The dissenting justices, who I agree with, said but it is clear based on the facts in this case that 96.6 percent of the students of the Cleveland public schools go to religious institutions and there are very few other options other than religious institutions for these children to go to.

Many of my colleagues know that before I came to this body I served as a judge, and I was very proud to be a judge, and I am very proud of the profession of judges that I sat with and that I served with. But I have to say that these two decisions yesterday, decision in regard to the Pledge of Allegiance to the United States of America and today's decision by the U.S. Supreme Court with regard to vouchers has disappointed me.

The last thing I would say, Mr. Speaker, is as we talk about the importance of this Pledge of Allegiance to the United States, lest we not remember that portion which says with liberty and justice for all, let us make sure that all get liberty and justice.

Mr. LINDER. Mr. Speaker, I am pleased to yield such time as he might consume to the gentleman from California (Mr. CUNNINGHAM).

Mr. CUNNINGHAM. Mr. Speaker, George Washington was quoted as saying, "An atheist is a person with no invisible means of support," and I think that that person that brought this lawsuit forward, I do not think, I know, he has got the right to feel like he does; but it is also our right to detest that particular point of view.

We stand here today, I do not care if someone is a Christian, Muslim, Jew, I think to denounce that decision that was made in Ninth Circuit Court, and I would tell my colleagues, there was a time in my own life, I was raised in a Christian family, had to go to church every Sunday. When I got out on my own, I could not say that I actually knew that there was a God at one time.

On May 10, 1972, over the skies of Vietnam, my aircraft was hit with a surface-to-air missile and the airplane started going out of control, and it actually rolled upside down; and like many people, the only time I would ever ask for God's help was when I was in trouble. I remember thinking, God, get me out of this, I do not want to be a prisoner of war or die. The airplane righted itself as I took the stick and put it to the left side, and I remember thinking, God did not have anything to do with this, it was just my superior flying skills that righted this airplane; but about that time, the airplane went back upside down, and I remember thinking, God, I did not mean it, get me out of here.

I will tell the people that are atheist or do not support this resolution, all they have to do is get on their knees and say a prayer and I do not care what religion they are, somebody is going to listen.

□ 1445

Mr. MCGOVERN. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentlewoman from Texas (Ms. JACKSON-LEE).

Ms. JACKSON-LEE of Texas. Mr. Speaker, I thank the distinguished gentleman of the Committee on Rules for yielding me this time and also for the very fine presentation that he made today. I think he clarified the debate that will be framed even more as we move into general debate.

I would like to just briefly, though there is much that I can say from the patriotic perspective and my love for this country, but more importantly the great honor I take in saying the Pledge to the United States of America every day, and would encourage the young people of America to take as much pride in pledging loyalty to their Nation. But I do want to speak to the appropriateness of the resolution as it is constructed, and that is a disagreement with the context and the decision of the particular court.

I am very much respectful of the independence of the three branches of government, the executive, the judiciary and the legislative; and so it is appropriate that the context is such that we express disagreement, but I will expand more in terms of debate and discussion on the language that is in this court opinion that suggests that our children will be put in untenable positions of choosing between participation in an exercise with religious context or protesting. That is not accurate.

In fact, what actually occurs is the right of freedom of religion and speech. The speaker has freedom of speech under the first amendment, and the individual who chooses not to say the Pledge of Allegiance has the freedom of religion. Therefore, I am unsure of the line of analysis that the court has made to suggest that one is protesting and that it is untenable. That individual is expressing their freedom of religion by their decision as to not express themselves through the Pledge of Allegiance to the United States of America.

I would hope that as this decision makes its way through to the Supreme Court we will once and for all understand the context of the first amendment, that is the freedom of expression, the freedom of religion, and the choice to do so.

Mr. MCGOVERN. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume, and I would close by urging my colleagues to support this rule and support the underlying resolution.

Mr. Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. LINDER. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume, and I urge my colleagues to support this resolution and to support the underlying bill.

Mr. Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time, and I move the previous question on the resolution.

The previous question was ordered.

The resolution was agreed to.

A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

SENSE OF HOUSE THAT NEWDOW V. U.S. CONGRESS WAS ERRONEOUSLY DECIDED

Mr. SENSENBRENNER. Mr. Speaker, I move to suspend the rules and agree to the resolution (H. Res. 459) expressing the sense of the House of Representatives that Newdow v. U.S. Congress was erroneously decided, and for other purposes.

The Clerk read as follows:

H. RES 459

Whereas on June 26, 2002, the Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals held that the Pledge of Allegiance is an unconstitutional endorsement of religion, stating that it "impermissibly takes a position with respect to the purely religious question of the existence and identity of God," and places children in the "untenable position of choosing between participating in an exercise with religious content or protesting."

Whereas the Pledge of Allegiance is not a prayer or a religious practice, the recitation of the pledge is not a religious exercise.

Whereas the Pledge of Allegiance is the verbal expression of support for the United States of America, and its effect is to instill support for the United States of America.

Whereas the United States Congress recognizes the right of those who do not share the beliefs expressed in the Pledge to refrain from its recitation.

Whereas this ruling is contrary to the vast weight of Supreme Court authority recognizing that the mere mention of God in a public setting is not contrary to any reasonable reading of the First Amendment. The Pledge of Allegiance is a recognition of the fact that many people believe in God and the value that our culture has traditionally placed on the role of religion in our founding and our culture. The Supreme Court has recognized that governmental entities may, consistent with the First Amendment, recognize the religious heritage of America.

Whereas the notion that a belief in God permeated the Founding of our Nation was well recognized by Justice Brennan, who wrote in School District of Abington Township v. Schempp, 374 U.S. 203, 304 (1963) (Brennan, J., concurring), that "[t]he reference to divinity in the revised pledge of allegiance . . . may merely recognize the historical fact that our nation was believed to have been founded 'under God.' Thus reciting the pledge may be no more of a religious exercise than the reading aloud of Lincoln's Gettysburg Address, which contains an allusion to the same historical fact."

Whereas this ruling treats any religious reference as inherently evil and is an attempt to remove such references from the public arena.

Now, therefore, be it resolved by the House of Representatives, That it is the sense of the House of Representatives that—

(1) the Pledge of Allegiance, including the phrase "One Nation, under God," reflects the historical fact that a belief in God permeated the Founding and development of our Nation; and

(2) The Ninth Circuit's ruling is inconsistent with the U.S. Supreme Court's First Amendment jurisprudence that the Pledge of Allegiance and similar expressions are not unconstitutional expressions of religious belief; and

(3) The phrase "One Nation, under God," should remain in the Pledge of Allegiance and

(4) the Ninth Circuit Court of appeals should agree to rehear this ruling en banc in order to reverse this constitutionally infirm and historically incorrect ruling.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. SHIMKUS). Pursuant to the rule, the gentleman from Wisconsin (Mr. SENSENBRENNER) and the gentleman from Virginia (Mr. SCOTT) each will control 20 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Wisconsin (Mr. SENSENBRENNER).

GENERAL LEAVE

Mr. SENSENBRENNER. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that all Members may have 5 legislative days within which to revise and extend their remarks and to include extraneous material on House Resolution 459, the resolution under consideration.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Wisconsin?

There was no objection.

Mr. SENSENBRENNER. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself 5 minutes.

Mr. Speaker, yesterday, the Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals in San Francisco topped itself, not an easy accomplishment for the court of appeals with the dubious record of being most likely to be reversed by the U.S. Supreme Court. It did so by ruling in Newdow v. U.S. Congress that the voluntary recitation of the Pledge of Allegiance by public school students is an unconstitutional endorsement of religion and, thus, a violation of the first amendment's establishment clause.

Immediately following this decision, I introduced House Resolution 459, expressing the sense of the House that the Newdow case was erroneously decided by the Ninth Circuit and the court should agree to rehear this ruling en banc.

The Ninth Circuit ruling treated the word God as a poison pill. Rarely has any court, even the notoriously liberal Ninth Circuit, shown such disdain for the will of the people, an act of Congress and our American traditions. What is next, a court ruling taking "In God We Trust" off the money, which the dissenting judge expressed his concern about? Or how about banning the performance of God Bless America from 4th of July celebrations at local courthouses and in parks next week?

Any fourth grader knows that the Pledge of Allegiance is not a prayer or a religious practice. Therefore, its recitation is not a religious exercise. Rather, as my resolution states, it is a verbal expression of support for the United States of America, and its effect is to instill support for the United States of America.

In truth, yesterday's ruling is the latest in a string of rulings by misguided courts misinterpreting the Constitution's establishment clause. Under West Virginia Board of Education v. Barnette, cited by the Supreme Court in 1943 and which is still good law, individuals cannot be compelled to recite the Pledge of Allegiance, and in this case children were not compelled to say the Pledge.

We recognize the right of those who do not share the beliefs expressed in the Pledge not to participate, but this ruling treats the mere reference to religion as inherently evil and coercive. It is simply a barefaced attempt to remove all religious references from the public arena by those who disagree. In effect, it is a heckler's veto.

Our Nation's founders based their claim of independence upon the laws of nature and nature's God. The Founders of our Nation declared all men to be endowed with inalienable rights by their creator and urged their revolution relying upon the protection of divine providence. Thus, God is referred to or alluded to four times in the Declaration of Independence and countless times in other documents.

In the years since the ratification of the Constitution, beginning with President George Washington's administration, religious services have been conducted in government buildings, including the halls of Congress. The Supreme Court begins each session with "God Save the United States and this Honorable Court." The Supreme Court has upheld the offering of a prayer by a publicly-funded chaplain to open legislative sessions. Lower Federal courts continue to uphold the constitutionality of the Federal Government's Christmas holiday as well as the placement of In God We Trust on our currency. If the Pledge of Allegiance is unconstitutional, then certainly these traditions and even the Declaration of Independence are as well.

The fact of the matter is that these statements of patriotism reflect the love Americans feel for their country and recognizes the fact that our Nation was founded by brave men who stood on the principle that all men possess inalienable rights endowed not by man but by God. This view continues to be shared by most Americans today.

In this time of profound challenges facing our Nation, the last thing our citizens need is two irresponsible judges using the Pledge of Allegiance to promote what can only be characterized as an effort to purge the public arena of all religious references.

Yesterday's ruling is dumb. It is an insult to the brave men that founded our Nation and preserved it for over 200 years, and we in Congress should do whatever it takes to void this laughable ruling.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. SCOTT. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, I believe the reasoning in the majority opinion in this case is sound. It outlines how the phrase "under God" is in violation of all of the differing standards developed by the Supreme Court over the last 50 years to evaluate challenges under the establishment clause of the first amendment to our Constitution.

Nevertheless, Mr. Speaker, I tend to agree with the dissent in this case; and the operative language that persuaded me is language on page 9132, which says, "But, legal world abstractions and ruminations aside, when all is said and done, the danger that 'under God' in our Pledge of Allegiance will tend to bring about a theocracy or suppress somebody's beliefs is so minuscule as to be de minimis. The danger that phrase presents to our first amendment's freedoms is picayune at most. Judges, including Supreme Court Justices, have recognized the lack of danger in that and similar expressions for decades, if not for centuries."

But whatever we think of the decision, Mr. Speaker, the only thing worse than the decision is the spectacle of the Members of the United States House of Representatives putting aside discussions of prescription drug benefits under Medicare to take up and pass this resolution. When we were sworn in, we promised to uphold the Constitution, and it is important to acknowledge that any court ruling based on constitutional rights will be unpopular. If the issue were popular, the litigant would vindicate his rights using the normal democratic process. Obviously, the fact that the litigant had to rely on constitutional rights means that he was in the minority.

This is the way it always is with constitutional rights. An individual does not need a constitutional right of freedom of speech to say something popular. They only need it when the majority has the legislative and police power to stop them from expressing their views, and the decision will obviously not be politically popular.

In that light, Mr. Speaker, what Members of Congress think of the decision is irrelevant. If the judicial branch finds the Pledge to be unconstitutional, which I do not believe it will ultimately do, no bill we can pass will change that.

Mr. Speaker, because the decision is based on constitutional rights, it will always be unpopular, and what we think about the decision is irrelevant, and because we have important business to address, I would hope that this resolution will be defeated.

Mr. SENSENBRENNER. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the distinguished gentleman from Texas (Mr. DELAY), the majority whip.

Mr. DELAY. Mr. Speaker, I appreciate the gentleman yielding me this time.

I just want to answer the last speaker. That kind of attitude that thinks that when a judge speaks that that is the law of the land, well, it does not work that way by the Constitution. There are checks and balances in our Constitution, and what Congress does is relevant to what the judiciary does.

Congress is going to stand up in this particular case and fight the judiciary of this country and stop them from running amuck. There is accountability built into the Constitution, as long as this Congress understands that they have a responsibility to defend the Constitution against a runaway judiciary.

It appears that this Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals has experienced another short-circuit. This court went way too far, and we know that. This Congress is committed to righting that court's wrongs, starting right here, right now, today.

Now, according to this absurd logic, the following could be in danger of being outlawed:

The four mentions of God in the Declaration of Independence that made our country free; the oath that each President takes to uphold the Constitution, which holds our Nation together; the words etched right here above the Speaker in this august institution that helps govern our Nation; the phrase that begins with each U.S. Supreme Court session, "God Save the United States;" the oath of witnesses to tell the truth in courts that protect us; our own currency that keeps our Nation prosperous; and the singing of God bless America on the steps of this Capitol that signaled yesterday our resolve.

So as my colleagues can see, this absurd decision was made by a court run amuck; and I urge all our Members, of all political stripes, to send a very clear message and put the stars and stripes, along with the words "God Bless America" as the banner for their .gov websites.

As upset as we all are, once again we must summon the best in us to defend this one Nation, under God, indivisible, with liberty and justice for all. This Congress is not going to let anyone strip our Nation of our proud heritage; not now, not ever.

□ 1500

Mr. SCOTT. Mr. Speaker, I yield 30 seconds to myself.

Mr. Speaker, on constitutional issues, the judicial branch and the Supreme Court is the law of the land, even if those decisions are unpopular.

If we had to wait for school integration to be popular in America, people in many States would still be going to segregated schools. It is important that we note that the Supreme Court is the law of the land on constitutional issues.

Mr. Speaker, I yield 4 minutes to the gentlewoman from Texas (Ms. JACKSON-LEE).

Ms. JACKSON-LEE of Texas. Mr. Speaker, I indicated earlier today that I adhere to the loyalty Pledge that is taken by all of us to pledge allegiance to the United States of America and find comfort in the fact that since 1954, we have been able to say "one nation under God, indivisible." I say it without hesitation, and I support this resolution.

Allow me, however, to track an understanding for the American people. I think that is important. It is likewise important to acknowledge the status and the position as it relates to the laws of the land that the courts have. My colleague from Virginia is absolutely correct. When we look to the courts, we look to them to establish a body of law; and, of course, the Congress has a responsibility as an equal in the lineage of hierarchy in this Nation, judicial, legislative and executive, to speak its will and its mind.

What I consider the resolution today is a Congress speaking its will and its mind. It is speaking to the American people. It is saying all is well. It is suggesting to them its interruption of the utilization of the Pledge of Allegiance, something that is done most mornings in our schools around the Nation, most times at ceremonial activities, and certainly after September 11, recognizing the privilege we have in this country to pledge allegiance to the flag of the United States of America.

But allow me to take the first amendment again and refer us to it as I read from the Constitution of the United States which says "Congress shall make no law respecting an establishment of religion or prohibiting the free exercise thereof, or abridging the freedom of speech or of the press or the right of the people peaceably to assemble and to petition the government for a redress of grievances."

Mr. Speaker, I believe the first amendment is the first amendment because the Founding Fathers thought this had to be one of the highest tenets of our democracy. Why? Because our country was founded on those who were fleeing from persecution.

I would take issue, and I have the right now as I am debating on this floor, I have a right to take issue, I have a right to make a statement of what I believe in, is that in pledging allegiance to the flag or not pledging allegiance to the flag, Americans are exercising their freedom of religion. It is not classified or should not be classified as forcing someone to protest. An individual is absolutely within their right to exercise their freedom of religion.

I disagree with the decision of this particular court, but I do believe it has the right to move forward through the judicial process to express its view as well.

Let me share the dissent of the court that I think is accurate. Judge Ferdinand Fernandez pointed out in dissent: "The establishment clause tolerates quite a few instances of ceremonial deism. Is it okay to sing 'God Bless America' or 'America The Beautiful' at official events? Is American currency unconstitutional?"

The answer must be, as Judge Ferdinand Fernandez argues, that in certain expressions it is obvious that the tendency to establish religion in this country ought to interfere with the free exercise or nonexercise of religion is de minimus.

My point is to take that a step further and suggest that the first amendment allows one to exercise their religious faith. In not saying the Pledge of Allegiance, it is exercised. It is not a protest. I say it. I willingly say it. I believe it should be said. I do not believe it is unconstitutional. I believe this resolution is intact and appropriate because it allows an equal, independent branch of government to express its viewpoint on a decision that is made. We all have to adhere to the procedures of this lands, the democracy as it works; and that is a republic, three branches of government. We will watch this case as it goes forward. I proudly rise to support this resolution because I believe the interpretation is accurate.

Mr. SENSENBRENNER. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself 30 seconds.

Mr. Speaker, I am a little bit disturbed that what the gentleman from Virginia (Mr. SCOTT) seemed to have said was that Congress should never question a court decision that is based on constitutional grounds. Had he and I been in Congress before the Civil War when the Supreme Court decided the Dred Scott case, I am sure both of us would be asking the House of Representatives to go on record opposing that decision as being misguided. We are doing something similar to that today.

Mr. Speaker, I yield 1 minute to the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. CHABOT).

Mr. Speaker, as chairman of the Subcommittee on the Constitution, I rise in strong support of this resolution and against the court's decision. The Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals' ruling that the Pledge of Allegiance is an unconstitutional endorsement of religion is a complete misinterpretation of constitutional law. I would hope that this outrageous decision by this three-judge panel will be quickly overturned by the full Ninth Circuit Court or, if necessary, by the United States Supreme Court.

Incredibly, while Americans are pulling together following the horrific events of September 11, a panel of liberal Federal judges has chosen to challenge the time-honored Pledge of Allegiance. Like most Americans, I reject the court's unconscionable decision and stand resolutely with my colleagues today as we vote overwhelmingly to oppose this attack on an American symbol that we all hold dear.

Mr. Speaker, for all of the veterans who risked their lives for our country, for all the servicemen and servicewomen who serve today, and for all of our children who recite the Pledge every morning with respect and admiration, I urge my colleagues to support this resolution and condemn the court's decision.

Mr. SCOTT. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentlewoman from Texas (Ms. JACKSON-LEE).

Ms. JACKSON-LEE of Texas. Mr. Speaker, I indicated my support for this resolution because I believe this is an appropriate comment time by the House. Let me also suggest to Members, however, that what happens with this kind of approach, and I am at this moment thinking of this because it is of such concern to me, my colleague from Ohio mentioned this, and the distinguished chairman mentioned the Dred Scott case, and none of us would claim to be in the House at that time in the 1800s. Maybe we are looking quite young at this point, but I would join him in asking for a commentary on that case.

Likewise, some of us are going to be asking for a comment on the question dealing with the constitutionality of vouchers. We happen to believe that that fosters segregation, as opposed to opening the doors of opportunity. What this does, in fact, is I hope out of the spirit of bipartisanship, and I certainly hope the distinguished majority whip was not suggesting that this issue is liberal or conservative, we are all over the lot on this particular legislative initiative. I support it, but I am going to be looking for bipartisan support when it comes to discussing what I think is an untimely decision on the voucher issue, and certainly an untimely issue as I review it, dealing with the question of drug testing. What we are trying to do here is improve the constitutional rights and freedoms of Americans, not diminish them.

Mr. SENSENBRENNER. Mr. Speaker, I yield 1 minute to the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. HYDE), the former chairman of the Committee on the Judiciary.

Mr. HYDE. Mr. Speaker, I just want to comment on what has been said by the gentleman from Virginia (Mr. SCOTT) and the gentlewoman from Texas (Ms. JACKSON-LEE).

I could not disagree more. What they are saying is because this is de minimis, because that was in the dissenting view, therefore, it is okay to let it go. That is a way of standing on two stools. That is a way of having it both ways because it is not important.

Well, I do not think that it is unimportant. I do not think that it is trivial. I think acknowledging the primacy of almighty God is of transcendent importance, and I guess de minimis is in the minds of the analysts; but I could not disagree more. In addition to the Dred Scott case, Plessy v. Ferguson, there is a whole line of cases that I am sure the gentleman from Virginia (Mr. SCOTT), my distinguished learned friend, would disagree with and not invest them with a dignity because they come from the Court.

And, lastly, I point out to my dear friend, the gentlewoman from Houston, Texas (Ms. JACKSON-LEE), that the first amendment has two parts: the establishment and the free exercise.

Mr. SCOTT. Mr. Speaker, I yield 1 minute to the gentlewoman from Texas (Ms. JACKSON-LEE).

Ms. JACKSON-LEE of Texas. Mr. Speaker, if the distinguished gentleman from Illinois (Mr. HYDE) would listen, the chairman, he has misinterpreted my entire remarks. I quoted from the dissent, and what I said was out of the dissent of Judge Fernandez, I believe, that any commentary about God is de minimis in terms of saying that someone is practicing religion. I support the fact that saying "under God" is not violating religious freedom.

Mr. HYDE. Mr. Speaker, will the gentlewoman yield?

Ms. JACKSON-LEE of Texas. I yield to the gentleman from Illinois.

Mr. HYDE. Mr. Speaker, it is "de minimis" that offends me.

Ms. JACKSON-LEE of Texas. It is in the court's ruling.

Mr. HYDE. Mr. Speaker, I understand the court's ruling, and it was in the editorial in the Washington Post; but I disagree.

Ms. JACKSON-LEE of Texas. It is in the dissent.

Mr. HYDE. I disagree.

Ms. JACKSON-LEE of Texas. Mr. Speaker, in reclaiming my time, if the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. HYDE) disagrees, would he please indicate that he is disagreeing because he does not like the term "de minimis" used by the judge who is supporting his position, because I am supporting the position that we have a right to comment on it and am supporting the resolution. Please make sure that is clarified.

Mr. HYDE. Mr. Speaker, will the gentlewoman yield?

Ms. JACKSON-LEE of Texas. I yield to the gentleman from Illinois.

Mr. HYDE. I object to "de minimis" from whatever source.

Ms. JACKSON-LEE of Texas. I will cite that to the Washington Post.

Mr. SCOTT. Mr. Speaker, how much time remains on both sides?

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. SHIMKUS). Both sides have exactly 10½ minutes remaining.

Mr. SENSENBRENNER. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. GEKAS).

Mr. GEKAS. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman for yielding me this time.

The game is just beginning. We are in the first inning of what may turn out to be a long game in trying to overturn this decision by the Ninth Circuit. We must remember that this was only a three-judge panel, not representing necessarily the total views of all the Ninth Circuit. In that regard, we have directed that a letter be sent to the presiding judge of the Ninth Circuit to ask that they reconsider the decision rendered by the three-judge panel, which is within our right to ask and which is within the right of the Ninth Circuit to reconsider. So now we stretch out the possibilities that we have to overturn this decision. If they do the right thing and overturn their own panel, the game has ended. If not, then the game stretches on to the Supreme Court, which will undoubtedly undertake this case.

We will be guided when we see it go to the Supreme Court with the fact that another circuit has found just the opposite of what the Ninth Circuit may be leading to draw, and so we are strengthened by the resolve that when it goes to the Supreme Court we will have precedent on the other side of the issue and we will have in front of the Supreme Court in the final innings of this game the undoubted wholesome fulsome support of the American people.

The Supreme Court of the United States cannot, cannot, discount the popular will of the people of the United States in this regard. So my ultimate position in all of this is that this will not stand even if we have to then undertake a constitutional amendment if the Supreme Court should disappoint us in this particular issue; and if that happens, all the more reason why we can say this will not stand because Americans stand together.

Mr. SCOTT. Mr. Speaker, prior to yielding to the gentleman from Maryland (Mr. HOYER), the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. HYDE), chairman of the committee, indicated what would happen if we had taken a position on Plessy v. Ferguson or Dred Scott. The litigants in those cases, Mr. Speaker, lost and I suspect that the Congress might have even approved of that.

Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Maryland (Mr. HOYER).

□ 1515

Mr. HOYER. I thank the gentleman for yielding me this time.

Mr. Speaker, our Nation's greatness derives not only from our commitment to tolerance and a profound belief in the separation of church and state but also from the fact that we have always been, and hopefully will always be, a Nation of faith.

Our Declaration of Independence which we celebrate 1 week from today avowed, and I quote, "firm reliance on the protection of divine providence." Every one of our 43 Presidents has said a prayer or invoked God during their inaugural address. And our Pledge of Allegiance has included the phrase "one Nation under God" since 1954, harkening back to, 100 years prior to that, the remarks of President Lincoln in his Gettysburg address.

Yesterday, the Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals held that the acknowledgment of a power greater than ourselves or the state was somehow unconstitutional, notwithstanding the language of Thomas Jefferson in the Declaration of Independence that we hold these truths to be self-evident that all men are created equal and endowed, not by the state, not by the majority, but by their creator with certain unalienable rights, and among these are life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness. That is what we acknowledge when we say "in God we trust." That is what we acknowledge when we say "one Nation under God, indivisible with liberty and justice for all."

I adamantly disagree with this misguided decision which runs counter to our cultural and historical traditions. I have high hopes that upon reflection that either the Ninth Circuit itself or the Supreme Court will reverse this erroneous and harmful decision.

Mr. SENSENBRENNER. Mr. Speaker, I yield 1 minute to the gentleman from Indiana (Mr. PENCE), a member of the Committee on the Judiciary.

Mr. PENCE. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman for yielding me this time.

Like most Americans, Mr. Speaker, I believe in this country, I believe in God, and I believe in the power and importance of allegiance to our flag. So I rise today in strong support of the resolution. Like millions of Americans, I was shocked and appalled by the Ninth Circuit's ruling that references to God in the Pledge of Allegiance are unconstitutional.

Mr. Speaker, we opened this House in prayer to God today. The walls of this temple of democracy bear His name. But we are told that it is unconstitutional for our children to name God as they acknowledge their fealty to that very same Nation.

Sadly, this decision is part of a 35-year history by radical secularists who would twist the freedom of religion into freedom from religion. We must reject this course of judiciary decisions. We must pass the resolution and reaffirm a right understanding.

I pledge myself to fight every decision by the judiciary, including this one, that seeks to drive expressions of faith, the Ten Commandments, and voluntary prayer out of schools and out of every corner of American life, so help me God.

Mr. SENSENBRENNER. Mr. Speaker, I yield 1 minute to the gentleman from Florida (Mr. WELDON).

Mr. WELDON of Florida. Mr. Speaker, I rise to support this resolution. I want to particularly commend the gentleman from Wisconsin (Mr. SENSENBRENNER), the chairman, for bringing this resolution to the floor in a speedy fashion.

The American people are crying out for action. Here we are in the midst of a war. Our homeland has been attacked. The faith that many Americans have had has been rekindled. And now we are faced with this overreaching, inappropriate act of a court that is misinterpreting our Constitution.

There will be a lot of talk about the power of the judiciary versus the power of the legislative branch. But I would just like to remind all of our colleagues that the Constitution begins with "we the people" and that it has really vested in the American people the authority to make decisions, and they ultimately decide what will happen.

I believe that today the American people are clearly crying out, "Overturn this decision."

Mr. SENSENBRENNER. Mr. Speaker, I yield 1 minute to the gentleman from New Jersey (Mr. FRELINGHUYSEN).

Mr. FRELINGHUYSEN. Mr. Speaker, I rise in opposition to this ruling which found our Pledge of Allegiance unconstitutional. The Pledge of Allegiance is a sacred oath all Americans take to uphold the values of freedom and independence for which so many veterans have fought and died. It is an outrage that today as our brave men and women are overseas defending our great country against the threat of terrorism, these words that represent the very core of the American values come under attack.

I ask my colleagues and the American people again to show our independence and protest the Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals decision by joining together as "one Nation under God" to recite the Pledge of Allegiance on that day we celebrate soon, 226 years of independence, on July 4. I ask all Americans to stop what they are doing on that day this July 4 and with hand over heart recite the Pledge that has reminded millions of schoolchildren each and every day of why America is the greatest Nation on the face of the Earth.

Mr. SCOTT. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2½ minutes to the gentleman from North Carolina (Mr. WATT).

Mr. WATT of North Carolina. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman for yielding me this time.

Let me say at the outset that when the vote is put on this resolution, I intend to vote "present." I have had a discussion with the gentleman from Virginia (Mr. SCOTT) earlier today about whether I agree or disagree with the court's opinion, the majority opinion, a 2-1 opinion, a part of the court; and I told him I thought I agreed more with the dissent in the case than I do with the majority.

But that is almost a side issue here. The real issue is what the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. GEKAS) started to say, I think, was that the process is still continuing. Three people have entered a decision, a 2-1 decision. That decision no doubt will be reviewed by the entire circuit court and no doubt ultimately be reviewed by the United States Supreme Court. And while I recognize that this body has a prerogative to express an opinion about anything it wants to express an opinion about, I just do not think that I want to be a party to joining in the collective expression of an opinion of the legislative side of government to the judicial side of government on this issue, particularly when the case is still pending before the court and we do not know its ultimate disposition.

I have strong opinions about this issue. I think the Bill of Rights' first amendment and other amendments in the Bill of Rights was intended to protect those who are in the minority. Obviously, people who do not believe in some God are in the minority; but they are entitled to have their rights protected, too, and not to be in a coercive setting, so I can certainly understand the decision, although I do not necessarily agree with it. I just think at this juncture this body should not be expressing itself on this issue.

Mr. SENSENBRENNER. Mr. Speaker, I yield 1 minute to the gentleman from New York (Mr. GILMAN).

Mr. GILMAN. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman for yielding time, and I commend Chairman SENSENBRENNER for bringing this measure to the floor at this time.

Mr. Speaker, I rise in strong support of H. Res. 459, expressing the sense of Congress that Newdow v. U.S. Congress was erroneously decided by the Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals. The Federal court's decision is truly an insult to our Nation, a disgrace and an absurdity of justice. Moreover, it defies the basic principles of reason and good judgment. It is particularly outrageous that such a ruling was made at a time when our Nation's dedicated men and women are fighting an ongoing war against global terrorism, the very epitome of evil. What kind of message does this court's ruling send to our enemies? What message does it send to our patriotic military personnel out there on the front lines?

Accordingly, I urge the court to rehear the ruling with all due speed and overturn this egregious injustice perpetrated against the very principles upon which our great Nation was founded.

Mr. SENSENBRENNER. Mr. Speaker, I yield 30 seconds to the gentleman from Georgia (Mr. KINGSTON).

Mr. KINGSTON. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman for yielding me this time.

I just want to, I guess, me-too-it as much as possible on this. I think it is incredible that at a time when our Nation is at war, when we have suffered one of the greatest domestic tragedies in our history, that a court would be so out of touch with America that they would say this is what we need at this point in time, reversing all the other court decisions.

I certainly stand in strong support of this resolution. I just want to say when I was in Afghanistan back in January, one of the proudest things I saw were all the young men and women on the USS Theodore Roosevelt saluting the flag which Rudy Giuliani had flown over the rubble of the World Trade Center. I am glad that they also said the Pledge and that they know that we are one Nation under God.

Mr. SENSENBRENNER. Mr. Speaker, I yield 1 minute to the gentleman from Mississippi (Mr. PICKERING), the cosponsor with me of this resolution.

Mr. PICKERING. Mr. Speaker, I rise proudly as a cosponsor of this resolution. For over a generation now, our courts have taken the wrong path, eliminating prayer from schools, eliminating Christmas from our court-houses. They are saying today in our courts that access to child pornography is a constitutionally guaranteed right, and today they are saying that saying the Pledge of Allegiance is unconstitutional.

Something is wrong. They are trying to drive God from the public square, and this is their fallacy. We believe that our creator endows all men with the right to life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness. History shows that every godless state every time trampled on the rights of life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness. Under God and through our creator, we have our rights. We must never forget that. We must protect it so those who disagree with us will have their rights protected as well.

I urge my colleagues to continue standing for the expression of our freedom under God.

Mr. SCOTT. Mr. Speaker, I yield the balance of my time to the gentleman from Michigan (Mr. CONYERS), the ranking member of the Committee on the Judiciary.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. SHIMKUS). The gentleman from Michigan is recognized for 5½ minutes.

Mr. CONYERS. Mr. Speaker, I would like to begin by commending the chairman, the gentleman from Wisconsin (Mr. SENSENBRENNER), and the manager of this measure, the gentleman from Virginia (Mr. SCOTT), for the excellent way that they have conducted it. It has been a fair and, I think, revealing discussion that is so important. I cannot help but also note that the former chairman of the Committee on the Judiciary, the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. HYDE), has considered this an issue of great importance, as has our colleague, the gentleman from North Carolina (Mr. WATT), and the gentleman from Texas (Ms. JACKSON-LEE). This is important.

This radical secularist decision was rendered by Judge Alfred T. Goodwin, appointed by past President, Richard Milhouse Nixon. And so for all of you who are leading the attack on the left, I do not know this judge and I do not know what his position was, but he passed muster in the Senate, he was reviewed and favorably considered by a sitting Republican President, and I think that it is very important that no one question the right of the Members of the House of Representatives to express their opinion on this decision or any other decision.

What I fear is that it may be intended by some for political gain. But that is not a new feature in the course of our discourse in the House of Representatives. Or some who may be trying to discredit the judiciary in general for the work of two people on the Ninth Circuit.

□ 1530

Certainly, the three-judge panel of the Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals appears to have presented a ruling that runs counter to the existing precedent regarding the establishment clause, and as someone with great respect for our Pledge of Allegiance, I do not believe its recitation substantively infringes on freedom of religion.

Now, interestingly enough, just hours ago the United States Supreme Court ruled in a 5-4 decision that taxpayer funds can be used in voucher programs to support parochial schools. This ruling has been regarded generally as the worst church-state ruling in the last 50 years. Do we have any resolution on that one?

The Supreme Court today upheld the random drug testing of high school children, even those not suspected of wrongdoing. It is hard to imagine an opinion more objectionable from a privacy standpoint, but do we have anyone calling for a resolution of a program on that?

And then I have colleagues who come to the floor claiming that this is a shocking sign of some fundamental defect in the judiciary. Now, unlike Bush v. Gore, this decision can be appealed, and where there is a strong probability that it will be overturned. This has been observed as just the first step in a judicial process that usually and ultimately gets it right. From Plessy v. Ferguson to Brown v. the Board of Education, to the issue of executing mentally impaired prisoners, the courts who may have originally lost their way ultimately find it again.

But lost in today's debate and in the resolution before us is the value of our judicial system, the crown jewel of our democracy.

Our Founders, in their wisdom, created a system of checks and balances. Independent judges with lifetime tenure were given the tremendous responsibility of interpreting the Constitution. So it is no surprise over the years that the judiciary has ultimately been the greatest protector of our rights and our liberties. The fact that one panel of the Ninth Circuit that has rendered this opinion should do nothing, I hope, to diminish from Members our general, overarching respect for the judiciary.

All of this might be justified if there was any real question as to the constitutionality of the 1954 law that added God to the pledge. But while the Supreme Court has never specifically considered the question, the justices have left little doubt how they would do so. Even former Justice William Brennan—a fierce high-waller—once wrote “I would suggest that such practices as the designation of ‘In God We Trust’ as our national motto, or the references to God contained in the Pledge of Allegiance to the flag can best be understood . . . as a form a ‘ceremonial deism’ protected from Establishment Clause scrutiny chiefly because they have lost through rote repetition any significant religious content.” Other justices have likewise presumed the answer to the question and no court of appeals should blithely generate a political firestorm—one that was already beginning yesterday—just to find out whether they meant what they said.

Half a century ago, at the height of anti-Communist fervor, Congress added the words “under God” to the Pledge of Allegiance. It was a petty attempt to link patriotism with religious piety, to distinguish us from the godless Soviets. But after millions of repetitions over the years, the phrase has become part of the backdrop of American life, just like the words “In God We Trust” on our coins and “God Bless America” uttered by Presidents at the end of important speeches.

Mr. SENSENBRENNER. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself the balance of the time.

Mr. Speaker, I agree with my distinguished ranking member, the gentleman from Michigan (Mr. CONYERS), that the Congress should not pass resolutions like this every time some of us disagree with a court decision. However, this court decision was so out of bounds in terms of basic American values as well as judicial precedent that I think that we would be remiss in our responsibilities as representatives in an equal branch of government not to express the fact that we strongly disagree with what the two judges that struck down the Pledge of Allegiance decided yesterday. So that is why this resolution is here before us.

If we look at the consequences of this decision becoming law, they are just mind-boggling. We have heard about the currency being placed at risk. Maybe we ought to pay those two in rubles or euros or something that does not have the offensive motto “In God We Trust” on it.

The Declaration of Independence refers to God either directly or indirectly in four separate places, and the signers of the Declaration of Independence called upon divine providence to support the revolution against the English crown. What if that is unconstitutional? Would Queen Elizabeth come back here to reclaim her sovereignty? I do not think so.

But I think that it is important that while the Court has a chance to change its mind rather than writing something in that can only be overturned by a constitutional amendment, that we express ourselves, and that is exactly what we are doing in this resolution.

Mr. Speaker, I could not believe the contorted logic that the two judges that were in the majority in the Newdow case used yesterday. They said that because all of the other kids except Mr. Newdow's daughter got up and recited the Pledge of Allegiance, they were coercing her to do the same. Now, that is ridiculous.

The Court, since 1943, has said, you cannot compel everybody to say the Pledge of Allegiance, and those who voluntarily do not wish to participate are perfectly and legally able to sit down and not do so. But to use the logical extension of the Court's contorted thinking, it gives every heckler and every dissident a veto over what the majority would like to do and to do it in a way that does not coerce somebody who is not in the majority from doing something against their own principles or their own beliefs. This resolution tells the court that they were wrong, that they should review and reverse.

Mr. BARR of Georgia. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to support passage of H. Res. 459, "Expressing the Sense of the House of Representatives that Newdow v. U.S. Congress was Erroneously Decided."

The Pledge of Allegiance is as much of a child's school day, as English, Math, or even recess. Yesterday, two activists jurists sitting on the 9th Circuit Court of Appeals in California robbed children in its nine states and two territories of the privilege of following the tradition in which their parents and grandparents proudly took part.

I am fully aware of the significance of the 1st Amendment's Establishment Clause, and I wholeheartedly believe in its purpose—to prevent establishment of a state-sponsored religion—which was at the heart of our fight for independence against the English crown. However, jurists who interpret this vital clause of the Bill of Rights to prohibit even references to God, as in the Pledge of Allegiance, are way off base. If this decision is allowed to stand, can we next assume the 9th Circuit will require the San Francisco mint to cease producing U.S. currency with the motto, "In God We Trust?" Or perhaps, we can look forward to these distinguished jurists prohibiting the singing of our National Anthem at government sponsored events?

The Supreme Court has already established that a person cannot be compelled to recite the Pledge of Allegiance. However, this opinion cites dicta from concurring Supreme Court opinion, which has absolutely no controlling authority, stating that the Pledge of Allegiance, "constitutes a government endorsement of religion because it sends a message to unbelievers, 'that they are outsiders of the political community, and an accompanying message to adherents that they are insider, favored by the political community.'"

Nothing could be further from the truth, which is why the Supreme Court has rejected this argument. These ceremonial references to "God" neither endorse religion, nor coerce anyone into adhering to a specific religion. The inclusion of phrases like "Under God" or "In God We Trust" is solely a reference to America's long-standing reverence for our creator, and to the freedom and liberties that have been bestowed upon us.

Thankfully, not all the judges of the 9th Circuit are as irrational as the authors of this opinion. Judge Fernandez, writing in his dissent, stated that, "what religion clause of the 1st Amendment require is neutrality; that those clauses are, in effect, an early kind of equal protection provision and assure that government will neither discriminate for nor against a religion or religions." This rationale is precisely what was intended when the Bill of Rights was adopted and I am confident the full 9th Circuit, or if necessary the Supreme Court, will recognize this on appeal.

This point also underscores the necessity of pushing politics aside and confirming federal judges who understand the Constitution and will use common sense and rationality in reaching decisions.

Mr. Speaker, this is a nation "under God." It always has been. If the Republic is to endure, it must always remain so. I believe that Francis Scott Key stated it best, when he penned our national anthem in 1814, while observing the valiant defense of Fort McHenry:

"Oh! thus be it ever, when freemen shall stand

Between their loved homes and the war's desolation!

Blest with victory and peace, may the heaven-rescued land

Praise the Power that hath made and preserved us a nation.

Then conquer we must, for our cause it is just,

And this be our motto: "In God is our trust."

A handful of judges in ivory towers may not understand this; but our Founding Fathers did, and the overwhelming majority of Americans do. I urge you to vote "aye" on H. Res. 459.

Mr. TRAFICANT. Mr. Speaker, today, I am deeply saddened to hear that a court in California has ruled that the Pledge of Allegiance is unconstitutional.

After September 11, America turned to prayer. Churches, community groups, colleges, all of America prayed for the victims, their families, and our great Nation. On the sides of buildings and in car windows and even on the roofs of houses the words "God Bless America" could be seen in every city and every town across the country. People everywhere donned red white and blue ribbons in support of our military forces and preachers everywhere called our great Nation to prayer. Every morning a moment of silent prayer was offered up for the victims of this great tragedy, wayward souls who had not set foot in a church in years found themselves on their knees praying for America.

And now, now after that great outpouring of faith, a court in San Francisco has decided that the Pledge of Allegiance is unconstitutional because it mentions God. "One Nation, under God with Liberty and Justice for all." Beam me up! I ask, what is next? Will we remove "In God we Trust" from our currency and from the House chamber? Will we deny members of Congress the right to recite the Pledge of Allegiance every morning? The courts started their assault on God by banning school prayer. The courts then banned the public display of the Christmas nativity scene. The courts banned students from writing papers about Jesus. Even in my home state of Ohio, the courts have ruled that our state motto "With God All Things Are Possible" is unconstitutional! Unbelievable. I am continually amazed at the utter stupidity of the American political system that continues to rationalize, debate, and deny the importance of God and why our founders placed in it our Constitution. The founders never intended to separate God from our schools; the founders simply intended to ensure that there would not be one State-sponsored religion, period. My colleagues know it, I know it, and the American people know it. I think that these judges should be tied to a chain link fence and flogged with a copy of the Constitution! They are so concerned with pleasing the FBI, the CIA, and the IRS so they won't lose their lifetime appointments, that God has become background music in a doctor's office!

I would like to commend my colleagues in both the House and the Senate for supporting God and supporting the Pledge of Allegiance. I also commend our President for taking a strong stand on religion and for fighting for our country's religious freedoms. Freedoms that are taken for granted every single day, but all it takes is one voice. One atheist who does not believe that God has a place in our schools, and those simple freedoms are taken away. I urge this Congress to take whatever steps and means are necessary to invite and allow God back into our schoolrooms.

Mr. GREEN to Texas. Mr. Speaker, today I introduce a constitutional amendment that would protect the rest of the nation from the erroneous and ill-timed decision by the 9th Circuit Court of Appeals that the Pledge of Allegiance violates the First Amendment's stricture against the establishment of a state religion.

The 9th Circuit, while arguing that this ruling is a logical extension of previous United States Supreme Court decisions, is seeking to protect citizens from the advance of a non-existent theocracy. Religion and government have existed side-by-side in our nation for over 200 years, and we still have yet to establish an official religion for America.

Writing for the majority, Judge Alfred Goodwin asserts that the "profession that we are a nation 'under God' is identical * * * to a profession that we are a nation 'under Jesus,' a nation 'under Vishnu,' a nation 'under Zeus,' or a nation 'under no god,' because none of these professions can be neutral with respect to religion."

I disagree, and echo the thoughts of Judge Ferdinand Fernandez, who contended that there is only a "minuscule" risk that the use of the phrase "under God" would "bring about a theocracy or suppress someone's beliefs." According to his colleagues, he wrote, "'God Bless America' and 'America the Beautiful' will be gone [from public places] for sure, and . . . currency beware!"

Newspapers across the country were quick to respond, with the Los Angeles Times, the San Francisco Chronicle, The Sun Jose Mercury-News, and The San Diego Union-Journal all attacking the decision of the California-based court. They were not alone, though, as nationally prominent papers known for their dedication to the First Amendment like The New York Times and The Washington Post also weighed in with their criticism of the court.

As for the timing of the issuance of this decision, the 9th Circuit chose a time when our nation is still actively engaged in the war against terror, with our troops still present in Afghanistan, searching for al-Qaeda and Taliban operatives, providing logistical assistance and training to Philippine troops in their pursuit of the al-Qaeda ally organization Abu Sayyaf, and with the wounds of September 11 still fresh in the memory of all Americans.

I ask my colleagues to join me as cosponsors of this important legislation, and I hope that it will receive speedy consideration by this House.

Mr. CRANE. Mr. Speaker, I rise in strong support of this Resolution, which recognizes that the outrageous decision rendered by a three-judge panel in San Francisco yesterday has no basis in law. I am referring, of course, to the Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals decision yesterday to declare the Pledge of Allegiance unconstitutional.

Mr. Speaker, I have read the Court's opinion, which argues that the inclusion of the words "under God" in the Pledge of Allegiance violates the religious clauses of the Constitution of the United States. Specifically, we are told it violates the Establishment Clause, which reads as follows: "Congress shall make no law respecting an establishment of religion, or prohibiting the free exercise thereof."

Putting the pieces together, this means that the Ninth Circuit has determined that phrases such as "under God," or "In God We Trust" tend to establish a religion, or to suppress anyone's exercise of religion." This conclusion is absurd on its face.

The phrase "under God" when read in the Pledge of Allegiance, acknowledges that our rights are derived from our Creator. That is principle upon which our country was founded. How this qualifies as an attempt to suppress anyone's exercise of religion, or how it tends to establish a religion, I'll never know. And while I will not force anybody to believe what I believe, neither will I sit still while the ability of my fellow citizens to practice religion is trampled upon by a court that failed U.S. history 101.

I am saddened by this ruling, but what is most unfortunate is that I am not surprised by it. I saw this coming from a mile away, Mr. Speaker. It is the logical conclusion to a judicial philosophy promulgated over the past 30 years by the politically correct.

Mr. Speaker, I pray this travesty of justice will wake the Daschle-led Senate up so that they might fulfill their Constitutional obligation and confirm President Bush's nominees.

Mr. CUNNINGHAM. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to join my colleagues in condemning the Ninth Circuit Court's ruling striking down the Pledge of Allegiance as unconstitutional. This decision is unpatriotic—particularly at this time when our nation is at war. We should be embracing symbols of national unity like our pledge of allegiance, but instead the Ninth Circuit Court is attacking them.

The argument against the pledge is above all, unreasonable. By declaring the inclusion of the phrase "under God" as unconstitutional, the ruling implies that any mention of "God" is equally inappropriate. Remember—the Declaration of Independence and the Constitution refer to "the Lord" and "Creator", our currency reads "In God We Trust", and even the oaths we take as Congressional members speak of "God". These references are embedded in the very foundation of our country and national identity—if we stand by and allow this change to the pledge, what will be next? Where do we draw the line?

Mr. Speaker, this court decision will only lessen the already declining respect for our national symbols and for the liberties for which they stand. Yet devaluing an American symbol is unfortunately something that America has been seen before. As you know, in 1989 the US Supreme Court ruled that desecration of an American flag was a permissible and constitutional right. Nevertheless, public disrespect for such a well-known symbol only weakens the sense of a united people. When we do not protect our flag and the god-granted liberties it represents, decisions such as the one declared yesterday will certainly continue.

It is just as essential for Congress to pass House Resolution 459 today as it is to pass the flag burning amendment. We must send a strong message to the courts of America: we value our liberties. We take pride in symbols of national unity. We will fight to protect the pledge and the flag to which we profess our allegiance.

Mr. OXLEY. Mr. Speaker, I stand in strong support of H. Res. 459, which I am proud to cosponsor. I am deeply troubled, but sadly not surprised, that the action of this San Francisco-based court compels us to consider this resolution today.

Mr. Speaker, the Pledge of Allegiance is one of the first things that children learn to recite in school. Adults still place their hands over their hearts when they say it. This simple thirty-one-word affirmation of our great country encompasses the affection and devotion of Americans young and old toward their flag and their nation.

Two years ago, in a court decision equally as absurd as this Newdow decision, a three-judge panel of the Sixth U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals struck down Ohio's official state motto, "With God All Things Are Possible." The Court sided with the American Civil Liberties Union in declaring that the motto expresses a "particular affinity toward Christianity," in violation of the Establishment clause.

Mr. Speaker the Ohio motto decision was ultimately overturned, just as this outrageous decision will be overturned. Our Pledge of Allegiance, along with our Biblically based national motto "In God We Trust," stands as a testament to the undeniable religious foundation of our country. "In God We Trust" has been upheld in the courts time and again as a proper reflection of our nation's enduring faith.

It's too often overlooked that the First Amendment's Establishment clause—"Congress shall make no law respecting an establishment of religion"—is followed by the phrase "or prohibiting the free exercise thereof." My constituents are tired of having their free religious exercise attacked by fringe groups in the name of separation of church and state. The Ninth Circuit Court's action is nothing more than political correctness run rampant.

When President Eisenhower approved the addition of the words "under God" to the Pledge of Allegiance in 1954, he said, "In this way we are reaffirming the transcendence of religious faith in America's heritage and future; in this way we shall constantly strengthen those spiritual weapons which forever will be our country's most powerful resource in peace and war." During this time of war, when people across the nation gather in their homes and places of worship to pray for the safety of our men and women in uniform, the Ninth Circuit's assault on our nation's faith-based foundation cannot stand. It flies in the face of common sense, and blatantly ignores a plethora of court precedents.

When we pledge allegiance to our flag, we are not saluting a mere piece of cloth. Our flag is the most visible symbol of our nation—a unifying force in our nation of nearly 300 million. Since the Supreme Court invalidated state flag protection laws in 1989, the legislatures in each of the 50 states have passed resolutions petitioning Congress to propose a flag protection amendment to the Constitution. People across the nation—and across the political spectrum—support the right of everyone to affirm the religious foundation of our country through our Pledge.

My hometown of Findlay, Ohio, is known as Flag City USA. Major downtown thoroughfares are lined with flags in a patriotic salute to the greatness of America. Nearby Arlington, Ohio, which I am also privileged to represent enjoys the designation Flag Village USA. The messages I am receiving from Findlay, Arlington and throughout my district are clear: we are one nation under God, despite this ludicrous court action. I know that my constituents and all Americans are saying the Pledge of Allegiance a little louder and with even more pride.

Mr. KLECZKA. Mr. Speaker, I strongly oppose yesterday's 9th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals decision holding that the use of "under God" in the Pledge of Allegiance is unconstitutional.

The case in question originated from a lawsuit filed by a parent who felt that the use of the phrase "under God" impinged on his daughter's First Amendment rights since he believed that it constituted a sanction of religion in the public school she attends.

This decision was clearly erroneous and I find it abhorrent, as do the vast majority of Americans. It was based upon a total lack of respect if not knowledge of the traditions, the values, and the history of our nation. From the very beginning, as the Declaration of Independence points out, our founding fathers established this land based on the idea that individuals were endowed not by man, but by "their Creator with certain unalienable Rights."

The Pledge of Allegiance is a revered expression of patriotism recited by millions of citizens every day. When it is spoken, it instills support for the United States and reflects the love that Americans feel for their country. The Pledge does not violate the separation between church and state since it is not a religious statement, but a verbal expression of Americans' affection for our country.

As the dissenting judge pointed out, similar brief references such as the "In God We Trust" that appears on our currency and the opening call of the Supreme Court, "God save the United States and this honorable court" have always been accepted. I am hopeful that the 9th Circuit Court as a whole reverses the decision of this three judge panel or that the Supreme Court takes up the case and overturns this badly mistaken ruling.

This morning we were proud to recite the Pledge of Allegiance on the House floor as we do each day. I am a co-author of the resolution before us, H. Res. 459, that expresses the opinion of Congress that the court's judgment was in error. The measure calls for "under God" to remain in the Pledge, and for the decision to be reversed. I urge my colleagues to support this measure.

Mr. SHAYS. Mr. Speaker, I rise in strong support of H. Res. 459, Expressing the Sense of the House of Representatives that Newdow v. U.S. Congress was Erroneously Decided.

"One Nation, under God," reflects the fact that a belief in God permeated the founding and development of our Nation.

The Pledge of Allegiance is not a prayer of part of a religious service. It is a statement of our commitment as citizens to our great Nation and the role God played in it.

Yesterday, the Ninth U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals confused the issue of separation of church and state with the foundation on which our nation was built. "We hold these truths to be self-evident, that all men are created equal, that they are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable Rights, that among these are Life, Liberty, and the Pursuit of Happiness." So reads our Declaration of Independence.

As a new nation we claimed our freedom from any monarch in the Declaration of Independence and inherently in the U.S. Constitution because of "certain unalienable rights" guaranteed to us by our Creator.

President Abraham Lincoln, in his second inaugural address, spoke of God 13 times, not in an effort to unite church and state but to unite our Nation at the conclusion of one of the most devastating periods in U.S. history, the War Between the States.

Speaking of the Northern blue and Southern grey, this is what Abraham Lincoln said: "Both read the same Bible, and pray to the same God; and each invokes his aid against the other. It may seem strange that any men should dare to ask a just God's assistance in wringing their bread from the sweat of other men's faces; but let us judge not, that we be not judged. The prayers of both could not be answered—that of neither has been answered fully."

Abraham Lincoln continued, "With malice toward none; with charity for all; with firmness in the right as God gives us to see the right."

Today, we as Americans need to seek the right as God gives us to see this right, and continue to ask God's blessing on our great Nation, whose 226th year of freedom we celebrate next week.

Mr. CHAMBLISS. Mr. Speaker, I rise today in support of House Resolution 459, Expressing the Sense of the House of Representatives that Newdow v. U.S. Congress was Erroneously Decided.

I do this on behalf of all Georgians who share my outrage with the Ninth Circuit ruling that our "Pledge of Allegiance" is unconstitutional.

For many years, liberals have been unsuccessful in achieving their objectives through the consent of the governed and have turned to activist judges who are willing to distort the Constitution and erase from all public forums any mention of religion and our country's rich religious heritage. Mr. Speaker, the First Amendment guarantees us freedom of religion.

Is it any wonder that this year alone, the Ninth Circuit Court has been overruled 12 times by the Supreme Court. But in a larger sense, this ruling is further evidence that our nation is facing a judicial crisis. Liberal special interests are working tirelessly to prohibit the confirmation of President Bush's judicial nominees in order to further pack the courts with liberal judges who will promote their liberal agenda thus guaranteeing that ruling such as this will become the norm.

Mr. Speaker, I urge my colleagues to pass this resolution, I urge the Department of Justice to immediately appeal this decision and work to have it overturned. I urge confirmation of the President's judicial nominees. To date, only 28% of the President's circuit court nominees have been confirmed. The ruling yesterday in San Francisco demonstrates that the time has run out for holding up the President's nominees. We need the President's judges. We need them now.

Mr. UDALL of Colorado. Mr. Speaker, I support this resolution—not because I necessarily agree that the recent decisions it addresses is "inconsistent with the U.S. Supreme Court's First Amendment jurisprudence" as the resolution says, but because I do agree that "the Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals should agree to rehear" the matter.

I am not a lawyer, and have not had a chance to carefully review the decision. So, I am not prepared to conclude that its author—a long-serving judge originally appointed by President Nixon—was clearly wrong as a matter of law. However, it is my understanding that another appeals court, in a similar case, has ruled differently. So, I definitely think the issue needs to be resolved, either through reconsideration or by the Supreme Court.

I also strongly agree with the part of the resolution which states that "the United States Congress recognizes the right of those who do not share the beliefs expressed in the Pledge to refrain from its recitation."

I am proud to recite the Pledge of Allegiance because I personally agree that, as the resolution states, "the Pledge of Allegiance is not a prayer or a religious practice" and its recitation "is not a religious exercise" but instead "the verbal expression of support for the United States of America." However, I think it is not a good idea for the Congress to attempt to define what constitutes a religious practice or a prayer. So, I am uncomfortable with the parts of the resolution dealing with those points. The resolution is only an expression of opinion, of course, but still I would have preferred if those clauses had been omitted.

Similarly, I am not sure it is correct to say, as the resolution does, that the court's decision "treats any religious reference as inherently evil and is an attempt to remove such references from the public arena." That seems to me to be a bit of a stretch, especially since under our legal system the courts rule only on cases brought to them, and—unlike the political branches of the government—do not have complete control over their agenda.

On balance, however, and for the reasons I have outlined, I am generally in agreement with the resolution, and so I will vote for it.

Mr. CRENSHAW. Mr. Speaker, yesterday, the Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals held that the Pledge of Allegiance is an unconstitutional endorsement of religion. The Court stated that the Pledge "impermissibly takes a position with respect to the purely religious question of the existence and identity of God." Furthermore, the Court concluded that the Pledge places children in the "untenable position of choosing between participating in an exercise with religious content or protesting."

I vehemently disagree with the Court and rise in strong support of H. Res. 459, a resolution expressing the sense of the House of Representatives that this case was erroneously decided. The Court's ruling is contrary to the vast weight of Supreme Court authority recognizing that the mere mention of God in a public setting is not contrary to any reasonable reading of the First Amendment.

The Pledge of Allegiance is not a religious service or a prayer, but it is a statement of historical beliefs. The Pledge represents everything that unites us. It is a reminder of the ideals that we all share—patriotism, loyalty, and love of country. While I firmly believe in the separation of church and state, I also believe that the Constitution was not designed to drive religious expression out of public sight.

Our people are part of a culture where many believe in God and value the fact that religion played an important role in the founding of this great nation. The United States Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals is firmly out of touch with what is good and right in America and with the vast majority of this country's people and I trust that this fundamentally flawed decision will be quickly overturned.

Mr. Speaker, it is with great pride that I added my name as a cosponsor to this resolution and I urge my colleagues to join me and send a strong message to all Americans that they should be proud of the religious heritage of America by supporting H. Res. 459.

Mr. TERRY. Mr. Speaker, I rise in support of H. Res. 459 to firmly denounce yesterday's outrageous court ruling that the Pledge of Allegiance "is an unconstitutional endorsement of religion and cannot be recited in schools."

The Pledge of Allegiance is an American tradition that instills patriotism, gratitude, and respect in our children. Many of us grew up pledging allegiance to the flag each morning in our school rooms—an honor I want my children to experience. Many of us also have family and friends who fought in foreign wars under the red, white, and blue of Old Glory. The Pledge of Allegiance affirms the strength, unity, sacrifice, and a commitment symbolized by the flag under which they fought and bled.

The late Red Skelton ended his now-famous patriotic commentary on the Pledge of Allegiance by saying "since I was a small boy, two states have been added to our country, and two words have been added to the Pledge of Allegiance: Under God. Wouldn't it be a pity if someone said that is a prayer, and that would be eliminated from schools, too?" If allowed to stand, the Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals' ruling would make this fear a reality.

Generations of school children would be denied their right as Americans to publicly express gratitude to those who aided to secure the blessings of freedom.

We were all inspired by the firemen who risked their lives to stand atop the smoking, 70-story debris of the World Trade Towers to unfurl the American flag and recite the Pledge of Allegiance in its honor. In the face of such selfless bravery, it is more evident than ever that we are indeed a nation "under God."

The First Amendment to the United States Constitution affirms that "Congress shall make no law respecting an establishment of religion, or prohibiting the free exercise thereof . . ." Our nation's founding fathers sought to ensure freedom of religion, not freedom from religion, as the two Ninth Circuit Federal judges have erroneously and dangerously concluded. I agree with the dissenting Judge Fernandez, who wrote that "such phrases as 'in God we trust,' or 'under God,' have no tendency to establish a religion in this country or to suppress anyone's exercise, or non-exercise, of religion," except in the eyes of those who "most fervently would like to drive all tincture of religion out of the public life."

I urge my colleagues to join me in supporting H. Res. 459 to ensure that generations of children can pledge allegiance to our flag and understand the sacrifices, values, and patriotism that have made our country great.

Mr. CASTLE. Mr. Speaker, I rise today in strong support of H. Res 459 expressing the Sense of the House of Representatives that the 9th Circuit court of Appeals exercised poor judgment in deciding 2 to 1 that the phrase "under God" in the Pledge of Allegiance violated the Establishment Clause of the First Amendment. Today, the House of Representatives joins the Senator, which voted unanimously, to object publicly to this decision.

Because our Constitution only grants the Supreme Court the power to make a final interpretation of the Constitution, Congress cannot overturn this decision. However, it is entirely appropriate for Congress to express its collective opinion about this 9th Circuit decision. I hope the Supreme Court is listening as it will likely hear the appeal on this case.

The Pledge of Allegiance is not a prayer. It is an expression of support for our nation just as "In God We Trust" is on our currency or singing the song "God Bless America." These phrases are a form of ceremonial deism, not an establishment of religion. Anyone who thinks the Pledge of Allegiance will lead us to abandon democracy and establish a theocracy is wrong. I hope they will come to realize that attempt to extinguish the phrase "God" from the public forum is really an attempt to extinguish an important element of our nation history.

Finally, it is worthwhile to note that the important principle of separation of church and state is already preserved. Under current law, student are not required to recite the Pledge of Allegiance. It is part of their freedom of speech to refrain from reciting it. Let's not forget that it is also the freedom of speech of other students to recite the Pledge of Allegiance. I respect that the Supreme Court will ultimately make its own independent judgment. However, I sincerely hope that it will reverse the 9th Circuit decision.

Mr. CARDIN. Mr. Speaker, I rise today in strong support of H. Res. 459, expressing the sense of the House of Representatives that the decision of the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Ninth Circuit in the case of Newdow v. U.S. Congress was wrongly decided. I believe that students should be able to continue to recite the full Pledge of Allegiance, including the phrase "under God," if they so chose, as the Pledge is a central part of the heritage of the United States.

Mr. Speaker, the day after the terrorist attacks of September 11, 2001, I took the floor of the House to remind members about the history and importance of our flag to the United States. On September 12, 2001, I stated:

Mr. Speaker, it was 187 years ago this very evening that in Baltimore, Maryland, at Fort McHenry, this Nation, this young Nation, won its second war of independence. It was the beginning of the end of the War of 1812. Francis Scott Key on this very evening 187 years ago wrote his inspirational poem that became our National Anthem.

In that third verse, he wrote some words that are helpful for us this evening:

From the terror of flight or the gloom of the grave,
And the Star-Spangled Banner in triumph doth wave.

We survived the attack by a hostile power and became the strongest Nation in the world, and we will survive this attack on our democratic principles, and we will grow even stronger.

Mr. Speaker, the Pledge of Allegiance is a simple, eloquent statement of American values. For more than four decades, school children have recited it in classrooms across the country. Students pledge allegiance not only to the flag, but to the nation and our values and principles.

I was heartened to see Americans all across our great nation pause for the Pledge on June 14, Flag Day. The Supreme Court, Mr. Speaker, regularly opens its proceedings with the injunction "God save the United States and this Honorable Court." Congress opens its business for the day with a prayer and the Pledge of Allegiance, as do many of our state legislatures. We should continue this fine tradition in our public institutions of government, as well as our schools.

At this most trying time for our nation, when American values and our democracy are under attack from terrorist both at home and abroad. Congress should send a clear message to the nation that we believe the Pledge of Allegiance continues to unite us.

Mr. Speaker, I urge passage of this resolution.

Mrs. ROUKEMA. Mr. Speaker, I am shocked and appalled by the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Ninth Circuit's ruling of the Pledge of Allegiance as unconstitutional. This outrageous decision allows a tiny minority to impose its atheistic views on the vast majority of Americans of all faiths. At the same time, it has no legal foundation.

The Pledge of Allegiance is based on the same fundamental legal principles that established our Nation under the Constitution.

This nation has experienced a tremendous rise in patriotism and we continue to take every opportunity to express our pride in this country. Yet we have now been told that the Pledge of Allegiance is a biased statement and an injury to hear that we are "one Nation, under God." How ridiculous!

I am strongly opposed to this court decision and urge all Americans to join me in expressing contempt for this ruling.

This case must be appealed to the U.S. Supreme Court in an expedited fashion.

Mr. OTTER. Mr. Speaker, today I rise in support of the resolution introduced by my colleague, representative BOB RILEY opposing the ruling of the 9th circuit court that the Pledge of Allegiance is unconstitutional. This is just the kind of ridiculous decision we in the West have come to expect from the 9th Circuit. In an attempt to impose political correctness on society at the expense of freedom, these judges have ignored the real intent of the framers of the Constitution. The First Amendment says nothing about separating church and state. What it does is prohibit the government from establishing a state religion or laws prohibiting free exercise of religion. What's next? Are they going to declare U.S. currency unconstitutional because it bears the words "In God We Trust?" Religious freedom is the one common unifying quality that makes us a peace loving, God-fearing nation. We are all Americans, and the Pledge of Allegiance stands as a testament to the citizens of this Nation, and their commitment to each other as Americans.

Mr. SMITH of Texas. Mr. Speaker, the Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals ruling yesterday treats the reference of God as one would treat profanity. Religious references in public discourse are wrongly under attack.

The Constitution guarantees us that government will not 'establish' a religion, but it also provides every American—even students—the right to freely express their views. We are 'one nation under God' and we have the right to say it.

I urge my colleagues to support this resolution.

Mr. HORN. Mr. Speaker, yesterday, the Ninth U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals ruled in a 2-1 decision that the words "under God" as recited in the Pledge of Allegiance were unconstitutional. The case was brought before the panel of three judges by Michael A. Newdow, a self-described atheist who protested the requirement of the pledge at his second-grader's school in the Elk Grove Unified School District in Sacramento, California. His case had previously been dismissed by the U.S. District Court.

Writing for the majority, Judge Alfred T. Goodwin found that Newdow had standing as a parent to "challenge a practice that interferes with his right to direct the religious education of his daughter." Following the precedent established by the Supreme Court in related school prayer cases, the Court ultimately decided that the 1954 Act, which placed the words "under God" in the Pledge was unconstitutional because it violated the Establishment Clause of the First Amendment. The ruling will affect nine states in the western United States: Alaska, Arizona, California, Hawaii, Idaho, Montana, Nevada, Oregon, and Washington.

This decision will not be implemented for several months, and an appeal to the Supreme Court will likely be the next step. I urge

Attorney General Ashcroft to take steps to begin these proceedings as soon as possible.

Congress already is protesting this decision as well. The day the decision was announced, members of the House of Representatives gathered on the steps of the Capitol building and proudly recited that Pledge of Allegiance. In addition, on Thursday, June 27, H. Res. 459 was introduced on the House floor. This legislation expresses the view of Congress that Newdow v. U.S. Congress was erroneously decided. If necessary, I would support a constitutional amendment protecting the right to recite the pledge in schools and other public settings.

As cited in H. Res. 459, the Pledge of Alliance, including the phrase "One Nation, under God," reflects the historical fact that a belief in God permeated the founding and development of our Nation. This is evident in many other cultural elements, including our currency and many patriotic songs, such as "God Bless America." In this time of uncertainty, it is important to remember and uphold the symbols of our Nation, which honor our heritage and draw us together as one people.

Mr. GILMAN. Mr. Speaker, I rise in response to the U.S. 9th Circuit Court of Appeals' declaration that the Pledge of Allegiance is unconstitutional because it contains the words "under God" which were added by Congress in 1954.

The Federal Court's decision is an insult to our Nation and a disgrace and an absurdity of justice. It is an obvious misinterpretation of the Constitution, one which violates the basic principles of reason and good judgment.

The ruling, if allowed to stand, means schoolchildren in the nine western states covered by the Court (Alaska, Arizona, California, Hawaii, Idaho, Montana, Nevada, Oregon and Washington) can no longer recite the Pledge.

Accordingly, I urge the Attorney General to expeditiously appeal this decision to the Supreme Court. Each day that this unbelievable finding stands is another day that the Federal judiciary should hide its head in embarrassment.

Mr. SIMPSON. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to condemn the absurd logic of the Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals in its decision regarding the Pledge of Allegiance and renew my call for much needed reform to stop the unchecked abuses of this court.

We in the West have long known the Ninth Circuit is a court out of touch with reality. Yesterday's ruling, however, marks a new low for this court and is an affront to the principles on which our nation was founded.

The Ninth Circuit, without question, is the most overturned appeals court in the nation. The 1996–1997 session alone saw 95 percent of its cases reviewed by the Supreme Court overturned—and the wholesale rejection of this court's decision continues to this day.

I call upon my colleagues in the House to support legislation I put forward last year that would split the Ninth Circuit into two courts and put an end to this cycle of wasteful and irresponsible rulings. My constituents deserve better, the people of the nation deserve better, and the constitution deserves better.

Mr. Speaker, yesterday the 9th Circuit Court of Appeals ruled that the Pledge of Allegiance is unconstitutional. This is an outrage to me, to Congress, to the man on the street, and to the children who will be told they can no longer say the pledge in school! I am livid over the court's brainless decision. I pledge to support every effort to overturn this horrible decision.

The court's decision stating that the words "under God" amounts to a government endorsement of religion shows just how out of step these liberal judges are with the American people. They state that saying God is akin to saying Jesus, Vishnu, or Zeus. This is blatantly nearsighted because the term God refers to God in the concept that is personal to every single person and does not refer to any certain idea of deity. Furthermore, the Pledge of Allegiance is not a prayer or a religious practice and thus the recitation of the pledge is not a religious exercise but rather it is an expression of support and loyalty for the United States. In Justice Brennan's concurring opinion in School District of Abington Township v. Schempp, 374 U.S. 203, 304 (1963) he stated, "the reference to divinity in the revised pledge of allegiance . . . may merely recognize the historical fact that our Nation was believed to have been founded 'under God.' Thus reciting the pledge may be no more of a religious exercise than the reading aloud of Lincoln's Gettysburg Address, which contains an allusion to the same historical fact." And Justice Blackmun writing for the Court in County of Allegheny v. American Civil Liberties Union Greater Pittsburgh Chapter, 109 S. Ct. 3086, 3106 (1989) stated. "Our previous opinions have considered in dicta the motto and the Pledge characterizing them as consistent with the proposition that government may not communicate an endorsement of religious belief."

Even before Congress added "under God" in 1954 to the pledge, the Supreme Court had ruled no one could be forced to recite the pledge. The court's decision yesterday said simply having to hear it every day violates the First Amendment ban on the establishment of religion. However, as Judge Fernandez points out in his dissenting opinion, "in West Virginia Board of Education v. Barnette the Supreme Court did not say that the Pledge could not be recited in the presence of Jehovah's Witness children; it merely said that they did not have to recite it. That fully protected their constitutional rights by precluding the government from trenching upon 'the sphere of intellect and spirit. As the Court pointed out, their religiously based refusal' to participate in the ceremony would not interfere with or deny rights of others to do so."

Essentially this court has with this opinion developed the idea of a coercive environment. However, the law doesn't normally condition ones behavior on how it will affect others around them. Instead, we are told to avert our eyes and turn our heads away from something we find objectionable. In Cohen v. California, the Court found that epithets on the back of a war protestor's jacket, worn in public places, was constitutionally protected speech—the rights of unwilling viewers do not outweigh the speaker's. With this decision, the court gives any statement which may appear to be religious, no matter how innocuous, less protection than any other speech. Religion should be a more highly protected value, not a less protected value. At the very least it deserves equal protection.

If this case is allowed to stand what will be next? Our national motto "In God We Trust" which is emblazoned on our money and above the Speaker of the House's chair? Or the singing of songs such as "God Bless America" or "America the Beautiful" in public? Or how about congressional prayers or the president's periodic invocation of the deity? Or maybe even the crosses at Arlington National Cemetery and our national military cemeteries across the country?

The Pledge, like the National Anthem, is one of few remaining vestiges of the old idea of civic inculcation. It reminds us that despite the fact that we are all from diverse ethnic, religious, and racial backgrounds we remain a part of the same republic. The key to our unity is a shared commitment to the republican ideas of liberty and justice. The sanctioning of our oath under God is not merely an assertion of religious belief, but an appeal for divine blessing of this rather strange and mysterious grand experiment. Out Pledge, National Anthem, national motto and civic prayers help remind our citizens that there are more spiritual ties that bind us than natural affinities that divide us.

Mr. NETHERCUTT. Mr. Speaker, I rise in support of House Resolution 459, to express the sense of Congress that the decision made in Newdow v. U.S. Congress was erroneous.

Yesterday, the Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals, the Federal Court that has jurisdiction over my constituents in Eastern Washington, ruled that our nation's Pledge of Allegiance is unconstitutional. The Ninth Circuit has a long history of bad rulings, and has had more decisions overturned by the Supreme Court than any other circuit. This decision once again proves that the Ninth Circuit needs a common-sense judge from the Eastern District of Washington to bring a voice of reason to the federal appellate bench.

The Pledge of Allegiance, recited by Americans of every age, is an affirmation of our principles of democracy, justice and individual liberty. The declaration of our being "one nation under God" is at the heart and soul of America and her distinguished history.

This case and decision should serve as a strong reminder to the U.S. Senate that it should fulfill its responsibilities to confirm President Bush's judicial nominees.

Mr. Speaker, the ruling in Newdow v. U.S. Congress eliminates a constitutionally protected "genuine choice" by disallowing students across the Nation from proclaiming their love for these United States through the Pledge of Allegiance. To do so is wrong. We must encourage our Nation's youth to believe in whatever religion they choose, for those beliefs set guiding principles that turn our youth into the outstanding leaders of tomorrow.

Mr. UNDERWOOD. Mr. Speaker, I rise today in support of House Resolution 459 expressing the sense of the House of Representatives that the court ruling in Newdow v. U.S. Congress as erroneously decided. By supporting this resolution we recognize the meaning of the Pledge of Allegiance and embrace the significance of its recitation by our nation's schoolchildren.

Since arriving in Congress in 1993, I have had the privilege of leading this House in the

Honda Scott Stark

ANSWERED "PRESENT"—11

Ackerman	Gutierrez	Oberstar
Blumenauer	Hastings (FL)	Velazquez
Capuano	McDermott	Watt (NC)
Frank	Nadler

NOT VOTING—5

Berman	LaFalce	Traficant
Greenwood	Roukema

□ 1616

Mr. GUTIERREZ changed his vote from "yea" to "present."

Mr. NADLER and Mr. McDERMOTT changed their vote from "nay" to "present."

So (two-thirds having voted in favor thereof) the rules were suspended and the resolution was agreed to.

The result of the vote was announced as above recorded.

A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

Stated for:

Mr. GREENWOOD. Mr. Speaker, on rollcall No. 273 I was unavoidably detained by duties related to my investigation of Worldcom in a interview room without audible vote notification bells. Had I been present, I would have voted "yea."

PROVIDING FOR CONSIDERATION OF H.R. 5011, MILITARY CONSTRUCTION APPROPRIATIONS ACT, 2003

Mrs. MYRICK. Mr. Speaker, by direction of the Committee on Rules, I call up House Resolution 462 and ask for its immediate consideration.

The Clerk read the resolution, as follows:

H. RES. 462

Resolved, That at any time after the adoption of this resolution the Speaker may, pursuant to clause 2(b) of rule XVIII, declare the House resolved into the Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union for consideration of the bill (H.R. 5011) making appropriations for military construction, family housing, and base realignment and closure for the Department of Defense for the fiscal year ending September 30, 2003, and for other purposes. The first reading of the bill shall be dispensed with. All points of order against consideration of the bill are waived. General debate shall be confined to the bill and shall not exceed one hour equally divided and controlled by the chairman and ranking minority member of the Committee on Appropriations. After general debate the bill shall be considered for amendment under the five-minute rule. Points of order against provisions of the bill for failure to comply with clause 2 of rule XXI are waived. During consideration of the bill for amendment, the Chairman of the Committee of the Whole may accord priority in recognition on the basis of whether the Member offering an amendment has caused it to be printed in the portion of the Congressional Record designated for that purpose in clause 8 of rule XVIII. Amendments so printed shall be considered as read. At the conclusion of consideration of the bill for amendment the Committee shall rise and report the bill to the House with such amendments as may have been adopted. The previous question shall be considered as ordered on the bill and amendments thereto to final passage without intervening motion except one motion to recommit with or without instructions.

SEC. 2. House Resolution 421 is laid on the table.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. ISAKSON). The gentlewoman from North Carolina (Mrs. MYRICK) is recognized for 1 hour.

Mrs. MYRICK. Mr. Speaker, for the purpose of debate only, I yield the customary 30 minutes to the gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. McGOVERN), and I believe this is the first time we have done a rule together, welcome, pending which I yield myself such time as I may consume. During consideration of this resolution, all time yielded is for the purpose of debate only.

On Wednesday, the Committee on Rules met and granted an open rule for the Military Construction Appropriations Act for the fiscal year 2003. H.R. 5011 recognizes the dedication and commitment of our troops by providing for their most basic needs, improved military facilities, including housing and medical.

Mr. Speaker, we must honor the most basic commitments we have made to the men and women of our Armed Forces. We must ensure reasonable quality of life to recruit and retain the best and the brightest to America's fighting forces. Most importantly, we must do all in our power to ensure a strong, able, dedicated American military, so that this Nation will be ever vigilant and ever prepared.

H.R. 5011 provides nearly $1.2 billion for barracks and $151 million for hospital and medical facilities for troops and their families. It also provides $2.9 billion to operate and maintain existing housing units and $1.3 billion for new housing units.

Military families also have a tremendous need for quality child care, especially single parents and families in which one or both parents may face lengthy deployments. To help meet this need, the bill provides $18 million for child development centers.

Mr. Speaker, this is a fair and an open rule for consideration of the fiscal year 2003 military construction appropriations bill. I urge my colleagues to support the rule and the underlying bill.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. McGOVERN. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume, and I thank the gentlewoman from North Carolina (Mrs. MYRICK) for yielding me the customary 30 minutes.

Mr. Speaker, we have before us a fair and open rule for H.R. 5011, the military construction appropriations for fiscal year 2003. The rule provides for 1 hour of general debate, waives all points of order against consideration of the bill, allows for all germane amendments to be offered with priority accorded to those preprinted in the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD, and provides for one motion to recommit with or without instructions.

This is a fair rule, and I urge my colleagues to vote for it.

I would like to express my appreciation for the work of the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. HOBSON), the chairman, and the gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. OLVER), the ranking member of the Subcommittee on Military Construction, along with the gentleman from Florida (Mr. YOUNG), the Committee on Appropriations chairman, and the gentleman from Wisconsin (Mr. OBEY), the ranking member, for continuing the tradition of strong bipartisan support in the drafting of the military construction appropriations bill.

This is a very difficult year for the Committee on Appropriations, and I commend the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. HOBSON) and the gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. OLVER) for bringing to this House a very fine bill, given the limited amount of funds allocated for military construction needs.

Mr. Speaker, the President's fiscal year 2003 request for military construction was $1.6 billion, or 15 percent below the fiscal year 2002 enacted levels. However, included in the defense emergency response fund as part of the defense appropriations bill was approximately $594 million worth of military construction projects. These projects were subsequently transferred over to the jurisdiction of the military construction request, resulting in the bill before us today. This combined request for military construction, therefore, now contains $542 million more than the President requested but still remains $522 million below last year's enacted levels.

Mr. Speaker, I believe it is incumbent upon all of us, the administration and Congress alike, to ensure that our forces have appropriate operational and training facilities, maintenance and production facilities, and research and development facilities. Yet each of these categories face significant reductions in funding in this bill.

According to the Pentagon, 68 percent of the Department's facilities have serious deficiencies that might impede mission readiness or they are so deteriorated that they cannot support mission requirements. The current reductions in funding for construction in these facility categories mean that the rates at which buildings are renovated or replaced has just increased from 83 years to 150 years.

Mr. Speaker, I keep hearing that we are engaged in a long-term struggle against a global enemy. So I find it difficult to believe that while we can find the funds to increase the defense budget by $48 billion, we cannot find the funds to bring our operational facilities up to standard.

Mr. Speaker, I firmly believe that our uniformed men and women and their families deserve decent housing and accommodations, both here at home and abroad. We need to ensure that all personnel in all branches of service have a quality place to live and work, both at home and abroad; and I commend the committee for continuing to provide increased funding for dormitories in overseas construction; but again, through no fault of the committee, the funding provided does not come near to meeting the need. According to the Department of Defense, 180,000 of the 300,000 units of military housing are substandard. Mr. Speaker, this is a national scandal.

We also need to ensure that security is improved around all our military bases, installations and other sites both in the United States, its territories and abroad. I know that this is a matter of deep concern for both the chairman and the ranking member. In last year's emergency supplemental in response to September 11 and in this bill, we have made progress in this area; but again, much more needs to be done and done quickly.

This is not the first time that this committee has lamented the shortfalls in funding for basic military construction priorities, but we now live in a changed world, Mr. Speaker. Poor facility conditions are not only unsafe, they hamper readiness and decrease troop retention. The events of September 11 require both the administration and the Congress to provide significantly greater funds for these purposes.

Clearly, the President's request for fiscal year 2003 was inadequate. Clearly, the committee has done as fine a job as anyone could in bringing forward a bill worthy of bipartisan support; but clearly, this Congress, in a bipartisan manner, must bring this urgent matter to the attention of the White House so that the next budget does not continue to ignore these significant national security needs. I know I speak for all my colleagues when I pledge that I will be happy to work with the chairman and the ranking member on any such initiative.

Mr. Speaker, I urge adoption of this rule and this bill.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mrs. MYRICK. Mr. Speaker, I am pleased to yield as much time as he may consume to the gentleman from California (Mr. DREIER), the distinguished chairman of the Committee on Rules.

Mr. DREIER. Mr. Speaker, I thank my friend for yielding me the time, and I would like to first congratulate her on her very strong commitment to our Nation's military and also for her ascension to the chairmanship of the very important Republican Study Committee, which is an entity within the Republican Conference that spends a great deal of time focused on the national security of the United States of America, and I believe she will provide stellar leadership there.

Mr. Speaker, this is a very important measure. I had a lengthy conversation this morning with the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. MURTHA), the ranking minority member of the Subcommittee on Defense, Committee on Appropriations; and we were talking about our Nation's military forces, and we were reminded of the fact that we have an all-volunteer Army, all-volunteer military. And in light of that, it is very important for the United States Congress to provide the resources that will ensure that we attract the most capable individuals to serve in the military. It seems to me that one of the most important things for us to do is to make sure that in the area of military construction that we do just that.

I would like to join in congratulating my good friends, the gentleman from Florida (Mr. YOUNG), the gentleman from Wisconsin (Mr. OBEY), and the leadership of this subcommittee, the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. HOBSON) and the gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. OLVER), for their strong leadership and dedication to this shared goal.

I appreciate the gentleman from Massachusetts' (Mr. MCGOVERN) comment about the fact that we continue to pursue this in a bipartisan way, and it is good to see this bipartisan sense here in this institution as we look at this important issue.

The numbers were outlined very well by our colleague from North Carolina. One issue that was not mentioned was the fact that there are resources in here to deal specifically with counterterrorism, and I saw that there is roughly $582 million to deal specifically with that question, to ensure that as we proceed with military construction, that the safety and security of the men and women in uniform, as well as those families of theirs, are addressed.

So I believe that we have got a good measure here that is going to be brought forth under an open amendment process that will allow for the consideration of different ideas; but the fact that we have come together with strong agreement from both Democrats and Republicans is I think a great testimony to the success of the work of the Committee on Appropriations.

Mr. MCGOVERN. Mr. Speaker, I yield 1 minute to the gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. OLVER), who is the ranking Democrat on the Subcommittee on Military Construction of the Committee on Appropriations.

Mr. OLVER. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman from Massachusetts for yielding me time.

Mr. Speaker, I rise this afternoon to support this open rule for the consideration of the military construction appropriations bill. Because of the leadership of the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. HOBSON), the chairman of this subcommittee, the underlying bill is a good bill developed in a bipartisan way, as he has always done in the years that he and I have served together in the positions of Chair and ranking member, respectively, of the committee; and I urge the Members to support this rule.

□ 1630

Mrs. MYRICK. Mr. Speaker, I yield 4 minutes to my friend and neighbor, the gentleman from North Carolina (Mr. HAYES).

Mr. HAYES. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentlewoman for yielding me this time.

Mr. Speaker, today I rise in support of the rule, but first let me pay particular tribute to the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. HOBSON) and the gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. OLVER), chairman and ranking member, who have a keen awareness of the need for the best of military housing and also an aggressive posture towards pursuing and solving the problems that we have faced in the past, and I appreciate their support for that.

I rise in strong support of the rule that will allow for consideration of H.R. 5011, the Military Construction Appropriations bill for 2003. This bill provides over $10 billion for military construction projects. Providing adequate housing and facilities for our men and women in uniform enables them to better do their job. Having safe and secure housing allows servicemen and women to know that their families are out of harm's way while they are deployed or serving our country overseas. This assurance is a key component of our Nation's military readiness, and today we take steps to further improve and also to modernize the housing and facilities for our military families.

Mr. Speaker, I would like to highlight a significant component of the MILCON Appropriations bill which will help all soldiers at Fort Bragg, North Carolina. Since I came to Congress, I have been working to secure funds for the Soldier Support Center at Fort Bragg. This center, to be named in honor of General Hugh Shelton, currently recovering from a spinal cord injury, will provide a one-stop in-and-out-processing facility for soldiers at Fort Bragg. Today we take the first step in providing the first half of the funding for this important resource for the epicenter of the universe, Fort Bragg, North Carolina.

Mr. Speaker, in addition to providing funds for MILCON, I would also like to take this opportunity to highlight some of the innovative projects to leverage private capital that individual services are currently pursuing. At Fort Bragg in my district in North Carolina, the Army is getting under way with a project called Residential Community Initiative, or RCI. Through RCI, the Army has decided upon a private contractor to build several thousand homes on post and to renovate many, many others. This contractor was awarded a 50-year, multi-million dollar contract and will be responsible for the homes for the next 50 years. I am hopeful that this will create both improved housing for our soldiers and their families but also generate many economic opportunities for the greater Fayetteville community. This innovative way to use private capital to fix some of our most serious family housing problems will provide the best housing for our soldier, the best value for the taxpayer, and maximum benefit for our community.

The tragic events of September 11, 2001, have thrust our Nation's military into the spotlight and called to duty the brave men and women of the U.S. Armed Forces. Once again, U.S. citizens are rallying behind them in strong support of the harrowing mission that they have been called upon to perform. Our U.S. Congress has the duty and the opportunity to pass the Military Construction Appropriations bill for 2003. Please join me in supporting this rule that enables us to provide the necessary facilities and security for these brave men and women who are protecting us and our country and our freedom. We are ever grateful.

Mr. MCGOVERN. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Maryland (Mr. CARDIN).

Mr. CARDIN. Mr. Speaker, let me thank the gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. MCGOVERN) for yielding me this time, and I want to urge my colleagues to support the rule and the underlying bill.

Mr. Speaker, I take this time to congratulate the gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. OLVER) and the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. HOBSON) on a very fine Military Construction bill. I particularly want to thank the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. HOBSON) for his help in regards to a facility at the Naval Academy, that he has been very helpful in the new ethics center that will be constructed at the United States Naval Academy.

Eight years ago a private fund-raising group began working with the Naval Academy and the Academy's Foundation to build a new ethics center and Jewish Chapel in Annapolis. While the Jewish Chapel facility will be entirely funded and endowed privately, the subcommittee's action reflects the fact that a significant portion of this new center will be used for an ethics center and a general Academy classroom, office, and common space.

Mr. Speaker, this will be a tremendous addition to the Naval Academy in Annapolis. It would not have been possible without the help of the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. HOBSON). I really want to take this time to thank him for his efforts on this behalf.

Mrs. MYRICK. Mr. Speaker, may I inquire how much time we have remaining on this side, please?

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. ISAKSON). The gentlewoman from North Carolina has 21½ minutes, and the gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. MCGOVERN) has 23 minutes.

Mrs. MYRICK. Mr. Speaker, I yield such time as he may consume to the gentleman from Florida (Mr. YOUNG), the distinguished chairman of the Committee on Appropriations.

Mr. YOUNG of Florida. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentlewoman from North Carolina (Mrs. MYRICK) for yielding me this time on this very important rule on this very important bill. As she has pointed out, this is an open rule; and I would say to my colleagues, Mr. Speaker, that since I became chairman of this committee, I have never, ever asked for anything other than an open rule so that Members would have an opportunity to be part of the appropriations process. So this is an open rule as we always ask for on all bills.

I had asked the gentleman from California (Mr. LEWIS), I wanted to make a few comments not only on the rule but on the bill, the defense bill that we moved earlier today under the gentleman from California (Mr. LEWIS) and the bill we moved this afternoon under the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. HOBSON), chairman, and the gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. OLVER), ranking minority member, both very good bills. We had made a commitment to move the defense bill first. We have now done that. We now will be moving the Military Construction bill.

We are keeping our commitment on schedule, and so I wanted to take just a few minutes, besides mentioning the open rule, to mention the fact that this bill goes directly to the quality of life for America's men and women who serve in uniform. A lot of the money in this bill goes for housing for those who serve in the military.

I would suggest to my colleagues, Mr. Speaker, that if they ever have an extra couple of hours, they might want to visit some military bases and look firsthand at some of the housing and where our troops are quartered; and I think they would come back here demanding even more money than this bill provides to provide decent housing for the military in those cases where the housing really is not all that good.

I think if one of us took our kids to a college or a university and we saw housing like some of our military live in, we would put them back in the car and take them back home. We would not let them live like we are requiring some of our military to live. So this bill goes a long way towards solving that problem.

But I must point out that there is a much longer way to go. There is still a lot of work that needs to be done.

I want to compliment again the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. HOBSON) for the good work in producing this bill in a bipartisan fashion, along with the gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. OLVER). They have done a really good job. I do not think there is any controversy to this bill whatsoever, and it should move quickly.

I just want to point out also that, on the defense bill that I did not speak on earlier today, trying to save time, that the staff and the chairman and the ranking member and the members of that subcommittee worked long, hard hours, days, nights. Oftentimes we hear that about the staff. But in the case of the chairman, the gentleman from California (Mr. LEWIS), he was here on weekends, late at night; and he was here every step of the way. That is why the bill he produced, along with the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. MURTHA), was such a good bill. It was really well-thought-out, and it does a good job for our Nation's defense.

So, Mr. Speaker, I am proud to be supportive of this rule; and I am very proud to be supportive of this good bill that adds considerably to the quality of life for our men and women who serve in our uniform.

Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentlewoman for yielding me this time. She has done an outstanding job on this good rule; and she has an interesting closing comment, I think, which I support enthusiastically when she makes it.

Mr. MCGOVERN. Mr. Speaker, I yield 4 minutes to the gentleman from Oregon (Mr. BLUMENAUER).

Mr. BLUMENAUER. Mr. Speaker, I appreciate the gentleman's courtesy in yielding me this time to speak on this bill.

I, too, would like to express my appreciation to the chairman, the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. HOBSON), the gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. OLVER), and to our good friend, the gentleman from California (Mr. FARR), who have been focusing on one aspect of the military construction budget which deals with the problem of unexploded ordnance, the bombs and shells and military toxins, that have been left over and littered across the landscape, really, of these 206 facilities across the country.

The subcommittee, for the first time as near as I can tell in history, focused on this issue. They brought people together from the various services, looked at the context of the problem, talked to the experts; and, for the first time, we are having an inventory of this problem. We are at a time when there are a number of bases around the country, it is no secret, that probably should be closed. There are a lot of reasons why we are not going ahead with that process.

One of the reasons, candidly, is that people are concerned about what they get stuck with when they are over. I think of what has happened with Fort Ord. Despite hundreds of millions of dollars and 11 years of work, we have not yet been able to quite put all those pieces together and finish the job.

What this subcommittee has done here today is the culmination of work that is going to make a difference not just cleaning up these sites, long overdue, it is going to help reorder the process within the Department of Defense so that, at a time when we are giving unprecedented sums of money to the Department of Defense, we will be able to take a little bit of it to be able to make sure that we are not leaving hazards for communities to deal with for years to come.

Mr. Speaker, one of the more important things is that not only are we going to be focusing the attention within the Department of Defense, but the technology that will be developed as we learn to do a better job cleaning up after ourselves is going to make a difference for the other over 2,000 sites across the country, in every State, in most of the congressional districts, that are represented here in this body. We are going to learn to do a better job.

Last but not least, it is going to have international implications. Because, sadly, Mr. Speaker, every single day we have children around the world who are killed from unexploded ordnance, the legacy of what has happened in Africa, in the Balkans, and in Southeast Asia. With the help of the subcommittee in focusing on doing a better job, we are going to learn how to clean up that toxic legacy. It is going to make a difference not just with the men and women we have on our military bases, not just for the communities that are going to inherit lands that they can put in more productive uses, but I think it will make a difference for the quality of life for millions of people around the world.

My only concern is that it looks like there is a little less money than we had last year. At the rate we are going, it is going to take us in the neighborhood of 100 years or more to clean up after ourselves. I am hopeful in the course of the process, as we go through the conferencing, there may be a possibility of putting the money behind it that is necessary.

It is not going to get any cheaper to clean up after ourselves. The liability and the problems are only going to grow over time. And, ironically, the more money we spend to do it right, it will drive down the unit cost, it is going to return the land to productive uses, and it will make the ultimate cleanup cheaper.

I appreciate deeply what the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. HOBSON) and the gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. OLVER) have done and the committee has done, as well as the work of the gentleman from California (Mr. FARR). I am hopeful this body will get behind it to give the rest of the push that is needed to make sure we do the job right on the part of our military service and people around the world.

Mrs. MYRICK. Mr. Speaker, I yield 4 minutes to the gentleman from Florida (Mr. DAN MILLER).

Mr. DAN MILLER of Florida. Mr. Speaker, I rise in support of the rule and for the basic bill behind it, the military construction bill.

I happen to serve on the Subcommittee on Military Construction, and it is a pleasure to serve with the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. HOBSON), chairing that committee for the past 4 years, and the gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. OLVER), also. It is a bipartisan committee and a bipartisan bill.

My congressional district in Florida, beautiful area in southwest Florida, does not have any military facilities and does not really have any major military contractors, so I approach this bill not from my particular district but what is right for this country and right for our soldiers and what will keep the military strong and prepared, as it was for the events that developed after September 11.

I know that Chairman HOBSON in the past 4 years has been working hard to improve the quality of life. The key to being prepared, as we needed to be starting in September of last year, is to have a strong military but also a military that is committed and prepared to go into action at any time; and key to that is the quality of life. That is something that we have been working on now for a number of years.

In my congressional district, we have lots of retired military people, a lot of veterans. A lot of them are World War II generation, or the Korean War generation, even World War I generation. But it is a different military today with the volunteer military. People do not live in the barracks with a hundred other soldiers. Nowadays, we need to have facilities for people to volunteer to be in the military and to be willing to stay and to serve, whether it is at Fort Bragg in North Carolina or in Naples or in Korea, or wherever we have our soldiers stationed around the world.

Quality of life is really critical in this job. As a businessman, before I came to the Congress, one of the things I learned is you need to keep your employees happy. You want to avoid a turnover in your employees. You want to have employees stay and not move on because of the cost of training people. If you can keep an employee for a number of years and keep that employee happy and contented, they will do a good job. And that is exactly what we need to do in the military, is to attract the good people and to provide an environment so that they feel proud and they are satisfied in their job.

□ 1645

So in the past few years, we have had success. Several years ago I went with the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. HOBSON) to Naples. We saw where 10,000 sailors are based in Naples, Italy, and the Sixth Fleet works out of there.

The facilities were in a volcano. We had to move our facilities to take our sailors out of this area. The facilities were almost World War II era. The fact is, they were not very good accommodations. It was cramped quarters. When sailors came ashore, they had to go back to the ship at night.

Over the past few years, we have been able to create the basic enlisted man's quarters. So instead of the sailors coming ashore and having to go to the ship at night and sleep in bunks, they were able to stay overnight in facilities with two people to a room.

We spent a lot of money on child development centers. We have them throughout the country at military facilities because we want to allow the families to be able to stay there with their children.

In Sicily, I saw facilities where instead of a barracks with 50 people in it, we had semi-private rooms like college dormitories. When I was in college, we had bathrooms down the hallway, but it is a different world today.

We have to provide facilities that will allow the military to be happy and their families satisfied in accommodations that are safe. Their children can go to a day care program, elementary and middle and secondary schools. That is what this bill is about, is providing the facilities for the quality of life.

It is also things like runways, the command and control centers. We do not see them because they are top secret, but we need to have places where our admirals and generals can control things that are going on in Afghanistan. I commend the chairman for putting together a very good bipartisan bill. I hope Members will support the bill.

Mr. MCGOVERN. Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mrs. MYRICK. Mr. Speaker, I yield 4 minutes to the gentleman from New Jersey (Mr. FREYLINGHUYSEN).

Mr. FREYLINGHUYSEN. Mr. Speaker, I rise today in strong support of this rule and the 2003 MILCON appropriations bill. I thank the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. HOBSON) and the ranking member and their staff for their hard work. We know the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. HOBSON) to be a driven man on this issue. And working with the ranking member, one thing we do know on the Committee on Appropriations is that both of those gentlemen, their staff and members of that subcommittee, have personally flown around this world and Nation visiting these Naval, Air and Army bases to see the working and living conditions of the people who put their lives on the line, of whom we are most appreciative.

They know, as all Members of Congress should know, that nearly 70 percent of the young people in the military today are in uniform or married, and their needs are great. This committee and the Chair and ranking member have been true advocates for decent and affordable housing for those in the military who cannot often afford decent housing. They have been in the forefront of supporting them.

They have also been in the forefront of promoting the expansion of day care centers so that those who are in the military, the men and women, can be on the front lines and make sure that their children are provided for in a very safe and clean environment with professionals looking after their youngsters.

In addition, this is a committee that has worked hard to consolidate military operations around the world here domestically, as well as in foreign installations. Through that, they have lowered the maintenance and operating costs of military bases and saved the taxpayers an incredible amount of money.

Mr. Speaker, part of the job of this subcommittee, and while I do not serve on it, is their recognition that we need in this day and age after September to recognize the absolute safety and security of our military personnel, and in many cases they are living in housing arrangements in precarious situations, and this committee has worked very hard to address that need.

I would also like to thank the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. HOBSON) and the ranking member for including funding in this and previous bills to complete the construction of the high-energy propellant facility at Picatinny Arsenal in my congressional district in New Jersey. This facility is needed to support the development of future weapons systems, include propellants, propellant charges and igniters, as well as support the development of new manufacturing technologies in a timely and cost-effective manner.

It is through this committee that this armament center known as Picatinny Arsenal, which provides 90 percent of the Army's lethality, has been able to put together a unified software engineering center bringing all of these talented men and women under one roof as well as upgrade something as basic as the electrical system of the base which had not been updated since World War II.

This committee's mission is important. It looks after the needs of our soldiers. This rule and this bill need our full support.

Mr. MCGOVERN. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Washington (Mr. DICKS).

Mr. DICKS. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman for yielding me this time.

Mr. Speaker, I, too, congratulate the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. HOBSON) and the gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. OLVER), the ranking member, for the outstanding job they have done in crafting this bill.

I have enjoyed serving on the Subcommittee on Military Construction and the Subcommittee on Defense; and I feel very proud of the fact that today these two bills are going to pass the House overwhelmingly, and it is because of the good work of not only these two subcommittees, but the good work of the gentleman from California (Mr. LEWIS) and the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. MURTHA) and the staff. We have outstanding staff on the Committee on Appropriations, particularly on military construction and defense. They should be commended for their good work. They work very effectively with the Members.

Mr. Speaker, I want to echo what has been said here. This is a bill that directly affects quality of life. In my area in the State of Washington, we have Fort Lewis where Army transformation is occurring. In this bill, there is a new barracks facility replaced at Fort Lewis. Also a new barracks facility at the Puget Sound Naval Shipyard, and many other items of great importance.

Over the years, I have always believed if we keep these bases modern and updated and give the sailors and the civilian workers a quality place to work, it will certainly help us with retention of both our military personnel and our good civilian workers.

I wanted to rise and strongly urge passage of the rule and passage of this bill. This is a good bill which has been worked out on a purely bipartisan basis. I too commend the chairman and the ranking member for their diligence in going all over the world to look at these facilities and to be able to give the members of the committee their best advice on what needs to be done at these facilities.

We have to remember, we still have kids in Korea. I have been there many times. We have worked hard to fix those facilities; but there is still work to be done at these bases around the world, and we need to continue to do it.

Mrs. MYRICK. Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. MCGOVERN. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from California (Mr. FARR).

Mr. FARR of California. Mr. Speaker, I rise as a member of this committee to speak in favor of the rule. But in doing so, I think it is necessary to point out for the record that the leadership of this committee, it is exceptional. It is truly bipartisan. It is led by the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. HOBSON) and the ranking member, the gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. OLVER). The committee is not just a numbers committee. This committee is changing the definition of what is often said about men and women in uniform about their quality of life.

We have dumped the old military style of designing and deciding what should be the appropriate size for a military living room or a military kitchen. We have turned this process into what all other communities do, and that is building to community standards.

The housing that we are building for the military now could win architectural awards, and the people who live in them are absolutely delighted that they can live in some of the prettiest homes in America, which are really built for community standards, where there is child care, where they can walk to work, if possible, and all of the other concepts that cities around this Nation are looking towards. We are letting the military lead the way, and it is being done by the leadership of this committee.

I stand here today in support of the rule and in support of the bill, but also in support of the attitude or the direction which this committee is taking to make sure that the quality of life for the military is an exemplary life for how all Americans can live, and that we do not in the future drive by military housing and military bases and say, oh, look at the way government builds its stuff. This is the kind of building and architecture that we are going to be proud of, and they are going to be proud to live in it. And if the welfare and morale of the men and women who are fighting for our country is upheld, I think their soldiering will be a lot better.

Mr. MCGOVERN. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, all morning we have been extolling our patriotic values; but as our uniformed men and women know so well, there is a significant gap between our rhetoric and our actions. This House can no longer ignore the long-standing needs to repair, renovate, replace and build the operational facilities and housing needs necessary for a modern military charged with protecting the United States from the scourge of global terrorism.

I urge my colleagues to support this rule and support H.R. 5011, and I call upon the administration to provide sufficient funding in the future to address these significant national security priorities.

As I said in the beginning, I want to commend all those involved in coming up with the bill. My only regret is the necessary funding that I think our uniformed men and women deserve, and what the American people expect us to provide to them, is not here; and hopefully we can work on that in the coming budget cycle.

Mr. Speaker, I yield 7 minutes to the gentleman from Texas (Mr. STENHOLM).

Mr. STENHOLM. Mr. Speaker, I take this time for the purpose of inquiring of the gentlewoman if she might explain the parliamentary procedure, this mystery motion, that the gentlewoman is about to offer as an addition to the rule that we are now talking about, military construction, which we are all in favor of. But I keep hearing rumors that we might suddenly be faced with a parliamentary situation where we are talking about increasing the debt ceiling. I yield to the gentlewoman for the purpose of explaining thoroughly to the body since there might not be any time to debate this.

Mrs. MYRICK. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. STENHOLM. I yield to the gentlewoman from North Carolina.

Mrs. MYRICK. Mr. Speaker, this is Senate 2578 to amend title 31 of the United States Code, and this is at the end of the resolution without an intervention of any point of order we would consider this; and this title 31 of the United States Code is to increase the public debt limit, and it would be considered as a bill as read for amendment. The previous question shall be considered as ordered on the bill to final passage without intervening motion except for 1 hour of debate on the bill equally divided and controlled by the chairman and the ranking minority member of the Committee on Ways and Means, and one motion to commit, and this has been shared with the minority.

□ 1700

Mr. STENHOLM. If I understood, this would be another one of the rules that provides for no debate and no discussion, no amendments. Debate for 1 hour, but no amendments.

Mrs. MYRICK. No, it provides for 1 hour of debate equally divided and controlled by the chairman and ranking minority member of the Committee on Ways and Means.

Mr. STENHOLM. I misspoke. But if Members on this side would have an amendment of which we believe would be a better way to proceed regarding increasing the debt limit, which many of us are prepared to give the President what he has asked for as a clean debt ceiling increase, but we have a little different idea about how that ought to be done. But I understand the gentlewoman's rule that will be coming will again preclude Members on the minority side from having an opportunity to amend; is that correct?

Mrs. MYRICK. This is providing a straight up and down vote.

Mr. DREIER. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. STENHOLM. I yield to the gentleman from California.

Mr. DREIER. I thank my friend for yielding. I would just like to clarify this. Over the last several weeks, we have had many of my friends on the other side of the aisle join with us in saying it is very important for us to as quickly as possible take action to increase the debt ceiling. The procedure which has just been outlined by my friend from Charlotte would in fact allow for the full hour of consideration and the Members of the minority will have an opportunity to offer a motion to recommit.

Mr. STENHOLM. But no amendment.

Mr. DREIER. No, there would not be an amendment. This would be a standard procedure as would have come forth from the Committee on Ways and Means. So I think it is a very appropriate one. And I think that we should try and move just as expeditiously as possible on this.

Mr. STENHOLM. Looking at the rule, it says that there will be 1 hour of debate and one motion to commit. Commit to what?

Mrs. MYRICK. It is to commit it back to committee.

Mr. STENHOLM. So it is not a motion to recommit?

Mrs. MYRICK. It is to commit it back to the Senate, because the House would be acting on the Senate bill.

Mr. STENHOLM. Then just about the time I think that I have seen every most unusual political circumstance on this floor, we get another one that is real interesting in this regard. But if I understand the gentleman from California correctly, this provides for a clean increase of $450 billion in the debt ceiling, so all who vote for this are voting to borrow an additional $450 billion clean. It is not going to be added to the military construction. It is a simple take-up of the Senate bill; and if 218 Members vote to borrow that money, it is clean.

Mr. DREIER. If the gentleman will yield, I think that my friend is among those who has advocated an increase in the debt ceiling. I may be wrong on that.

Mr. STENHOLM. No, the gentleman is correct; but not in the manner in which the gentleman is proposing.

Mr. DREIER. Let me say, if the gentleman would continue to yield, that this is the second manner in which we have proposed this. We have already passed language out of here that would allow for conferees in the supplemental appropriations bill to consider increasing the debt ceiling, and now we have come up with a second procedure. People have said that they want to have this done just as quickly as possible. I do not know if it would be possible for us to put into place a procedure that would satisfy my friend, but we share the same goal.

Mr. STENHOLM. Reclaiming my time, I think you are getting very close to satisfying me.

Mr. DREIER. Great. That is reassuring.

Mr. STENHOLM. But I would say to the gentleman that I would feel a whole lot better about the procedure if you allowed the Moore-Spratt bill as a substitute amendment so that we might have a true expression; and then after we have had that true expression, then I certainly would intend to join with the majority in seeing that we do not bring our country to the edge of default. My problem is with the procedure, but it sounds to me like you are getting there.

Mr. DREIER. If my friend will yield further, I just want to express my appreciation for his understanding of our desire to find a procedure around which we can just as quickly as possible do something that we both want to do and that is ensure that we do not see a default and go ahead and have us pay our bills.

Mr. STENHOLM. With all due respect, I understand why you are doing what you are doing. I continue to be extremely disappointed in the lack of consideration for minority views in this body. The last time I got into this exchange, I was reminded that at one time I was in the majority. And I would remind my friends on that side when we were in the majority I often sided with you on fairness. This again is not a fair rule, but I understand the rule of majority; and I appreciate the time and clarification because, as I understand it, we were about to vote on this with no debate, no discussion, there was going to be a lot of confusion regarding this; but now I think more people will have a little better understanding of the confusion.

Mr. DREIER. I appreciate my friend's kind words.

Mr. MCGOVERN. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself the balance of my time.

I would urge that Members who are trying to follow what is going on right here on the floor right now to vote "no" on the previous question on the amendment and resolution so that we have an opportunity to be able to amend the rule and be able to bring up the Spratt-Moore-Stenholm alternative on the debt limit so we could actually have a debate and we can do this right.

Mr. Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time.

AMENDMENT OFFERED BY MRS. MYRICK

Mrs. MYRICK. Mr. Speaker, I offer an amendment.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment offered by Mrs. MYRICK:

At the end of the resolution add the following:

SEC. 3. That upon the adoption of this resolution it shall be in order without intervention of any point of order to consider in the House the bill (S. 2578) to amend title 31 of the United States Code to increase the public debt limit. The bill shall be considered as read for amendment. The previous question shall be considered as ordered on the bill to final passage without intervening motion except: (1) one hour of debate on the bill equally divided and controlled by the chairman and ranking minority member of the Committee on Ways and Means; and (2) one motion to commit.

Mrs. MYRICK. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

In conclusion, this is a good rule and it is a very good bill.

Mr. Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time, and I move the previous question on the amendment and on the resolution.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. ISAKSON). The question is on ordering the previous question.

The question was taken; and the Speaker pro tempore announced that the ayes appeared to have it.

Mr. MCGOVERN. Mr. Speaker, I object to the vote on the ground that a quorum is not present and make the point of order that a quorum is not present.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Evidently a quorum is not present.

The Sergeant at Arms will notify absent Members.

There will be 5-minute votes on the amendment and on the resolution after this vote.

The vote was taken by electronic device, and there were—yeas 221, nays 210, not voting 3, as follows:

[Roll No. 274]

YEAS—221

Aderholt	Ehrlich	Kerns
Akin	Emerson	King (NY)
Armey	English	Kingston
Bachus	Everett	Kirk
Baker	Ferguson	Knollenberg
Ballenger	Flake	Kolbe
Barr	Fletcher	LaHood
Bartlett	Foley	Latham
Barton	Forbes	LaTourette
Bass	Fossella	Leach
Bereuter	Frelinghuysen	Lewis (CA)
Biggert	Gallegly	Lewis (KY)
Bilirakis	Ganske	Linder
Blunt	Gekas	LoBiondo
Boehlert	Gibbons	Lucas (OK)
Boehner	Gilchrest	Manzullo
Bonilla	Gillmor	McCrery
Bono	Gilman	McHugh
Boozman	Goode	McInnis
Brady (TX)	Goodlatte	McKeon
Brown (SC)	Goss	Mica
Bryant	Graham	Miller, Dan
Burr	Granger	Miller, Gary
Burton	Graves	Miller, Jeff
Buyer	Green (WI)	Moran (KS)
Callahan	Greenwood	Morella
Calvert	Grucci	Myrick
Camp	Gutknecht	Nethercutt
Cannon	Hansen	Ney
Cantor	Hart	Northup
Capito	Hastings (WA)	Norwood
Castle	Hayes	Nussle
Chabot	Hayworth	Osborne
Chambliss	Hefley	Ose
Coble	Herger	Otter
Collins	Hilleary	Oxley
Combest	Hobson	Paul
Cooksey	Hoekstra	Pence
Cox	Horn	Peterson (PA)
Crane	Hostettler	Petri
Crenshaw	Houghton	Pickering
Cubin	Hulshof	Pitts
Culberson	Hunter	Platts
Cunningham	Hyde	Pombo
Davis, Jo Ann	Isakson	Portman
Davis, Tom	Issa	Pryce (OH)
Deal	Istook	Putnam
DeLay	Jenkins	Quinn
DeMint	Johnson (CT)	Radanovich
Diaz-Balart	Johnson (IL)	Ramstad
Doolittle	Johnson, Sam	Regula
Dreier	Jones (NC)	Rehberg
Duncan	Keller	Reynolds
Dunn	Kelly	Riley
Ehlers	Kennedy (MN)	Rogers (KY)

Rogers (MI)
Rohrabacher
Ros-Lehtinen
Royce
Ryan (WI)
Ryun (KS)
Saxton
Schaffer
Schrock
Sensenbrenner
Sessions
Shadegg
Shaw
Shays
Sherwood
Shimkus
Shuster
Simmons
Simpson

Skeen
Smith (MI)
Smith (NJ)
Smith (TX)
Souder
Stearns
Stump
Sullivan
Sununu
Sweeney
Tancredo
Tauzin
Taylor (NC)
Terry
Thomas
Thornberry
Thune
Tiahrt
Tiberi

Toomey
Upton
Vitter
Walden
Walsh
Wamp
Watkins (OK)
Watts (OK)
Weldon (FL)
Weldon (PA)
Weller
Whitfield
Wicker
Wilson (NM)
Wilson (SC)
Wolf
Young (AK)
Young (FL)

NAYS—210

Abercrombie
Ackerman
Allen
Andrews
Baca
Baird
Baldacci
Baldwin
Barcia
Barrett
Becerra
Bentsen
Berkley
Berman
Berry
Bishop
Blagojevich
Blumenauer
Bonior
Borski
Boswell
Boucher
Boyd
Brady (PA)
Brown (FL)
Brown (OH)
Capps
Capuano
Cardin
Carson (IN)
Carson (OK)
Clay
Clayton
Clement
Clyburn
Condit
Coveters
Costello
Coyne
Cramer
Crowley
Cummings
Davis (CA)
Davis (FL)
Davis (IL)
DeFazio
DeGette
Delahunt
DeLauro
Deutsch
Dicks
Dingell
Doggett
Dooley
Doyle
Edwards
Eshoo
Etheridge
Evans
Farr
Fattah
Filner
Ford
Frank
Frost
Gephardt
Gonzalez
Gordon
Green (TX)
Gutierrez
Hall (OH)

Hall (TX)
Harman
Hastings (FL)
Hill
Hilliard
Hinchey
Hinojosa
Hoeffel
Holden
Holt
Honda
Hooley
Hoyer
Inslee
Israel
Jackson (IL)
Jackson-Lee
(TX)
Jefferson
John
Johnson, E. B.
Jones (OH)
Kanjorski
Kaptur
Kennedy (RI)
Kildee
Kilpatrick
Kind (WI)
Klecza
Kucinich
LaFalce
Lampson
Langevin
Lantos
Larsen (WA)
Larson (CT)
Lee
Levin
Lewis (GA)
Lipinski
Lofgren
Lowey
Lucas (KY)
Luther
Lynch
Maloney (CT)
Maloney (NY)
Markey
Mascara
Matheson
Matsui
McCarthy (MO)
McCarthy (NY)
McCollum
McDermott
McGovern
McIntyre
McKinney
McNulty
Meehan
Meek (FL)
Meeks (NY)
Menendez
Millender-
McDonald
Miller, George
Mink
Mollohan
Moore
Moran (VA)
Murtha

Nadler
Napolitano
Neal
Oberstar
Obey
Oliver
Ortiz
Owens
Pallone
Pascarell
Pastor
Payne
Pelosi
Peterson (MN)
Phelps
Pomeroy
Price (NC)
Rahall
Rangel
Reyes
Rivers
Rodriguez
Roemer
Ross
Rothman
Roybal-Allard
Rush
Sabo
Sanchez
Sanders
Sandlin
Sawyer
Schakowsky
Schiff
Scott
Serrano
Sherman
Shows
Skelton
Slaughter
Smith (WA)
Snyder
Solis
Spratt
Stark
Stenholm
Strickland
Stupak
Tanner
Tauscher
Taylor (MS)
Thompson (CA)
Thompson (MS)
Thurman
Tierney
Towns
Turner
Udall (CO)
Udall (NM)
Velazquez
Visclosky
Waters
Watson (CA)
Watt (NC)
Waxman
Weiner
Wexler
Woolsey
Wu
Wynn

□ 1732

Mr. HONDA, Ms. BROWN of Florida, Mr. GEORGE MILLER of California, and Mr. OBERSTAR changed their vote from “yea” to “nay.”

Mr. AKIN changed his vote from “nay” to “yea.”

So the previous question was ordered.

The result of the vote was announced as above recorded.

PARLIAMENTARY INQUIRY

Mr. MCGOVERN. Parliamentary inquiry, Mr. Speaker.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. ISAKSON). The gentleman will state it.

Mr. MCGOVERN. Mr. Speaker, are Members to understand that voting “yes” on this amendment is a vote to bring up the $450 billion debt limit increase passed by the Senate, but under a rule that does not allow for a House Democratic alternative or any amendments and that does not allow the House to debate the return to fiscal responsibility?

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair will not interpret the amendment. The interpretation of the amendment is for each and every Member of this body to decide.

The question is on the amendment offered by the gentlewoman from North Carolina (Mrs. MYRICK).

The question was taken; and the Speaker pro tempore announced that the ayes appeared to have it.

RECORDED VOTE

Mr. MCGOVERN. Mr. Speaker, I demand a recorded vote.

A recorded vote was ordered.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. This is a 5-minute vote.

The vote was taken by electronic device, and there were—ayes 219, noes 211, not voting 4, as follows:

[Roll No. 275]

AYES—219

Aderholt	Chambliss	Ganske
Akin	Coble	Gekas
Armey	Collins	Gibbons
Bachus	Combest	Gilchrest
Baker	Cooksey	Gillmor
Ballenger	Cox	Gilman
Barr	Crane	Goode
Bartlett	Crenshaw	Goodlatte
Barton	Cubin	Goss
Bass	Culberson	Graham
Bereuter	Cunningham	Granger
Biggert	Davis, Jo Ann	Graves
Bilirakis	Davis, Tom	Green (WI)
Blunt	Deal	Greenwood
Boehlert	DeLay	Grucci
Boehner	DeMint	Gutknecht
Bonilla	Diaz-Balart	Hansen
Bono	Doolittle	Hart
Boozman	Dreier	Hastings (WA)
Brady (TX)	Duncan	Hayes
Brown (SC)	Dunn	Hayworth
Bryant	Ehlers	Hefley
Burr	Ehrlich	Herger
Burton	Emerson	Hilleary
Buyer	English	Hobson
Callahan	Everett	Hoekstra
Calvert	Ferguson	Horn
Camp	Flake	Hostettler
Cannon	Fletcher	Houghton
Cantor	Foley	Hulshof
Capito	Forbes	Hunter
Castle	Frelinghuysen	Hyde
Chabot	Gallegly	Isakson

NOT VOTING—3

Engel Roukema Traficant

Issa
Istook
Jenkins
Johnson (CT)
Johnson (IL)
Johnson, Sam
Jones (NC)
Keller
Kelly
Kennedy (MN)
Kerns
King (NY)
Kingston
Kirk
Knollenberg
Kolbe
LaHood
Latham
LaTourette
Leach
Lewis (CA)
Lewis (KY)
Linder
LoBiondo
Lucas (OK)
Manzullo
McCrery
McHugh
McInnis
McKeon
Mica
Miller, Dan
Miller, Gary
Moran (KS)
Morella
Myrick
Nethercutt
Ney
Northup
Norwood

Nussle
Osborne
Ose
Otter
Oxley
Paul
Pence
Peterson (PA)
Petri
Pickering
Pitts
Platts
Pombo
Portman
Pryce (OH)
Putnam
Quinn
Radanovich
Ramstad
Regula
Rehberg
Reynolds
Riley
Rogers (KY)
Rogers (MI)
Rohrabacher
Ros-Lehtinen
Royce
Ryan (WI)
Ryun (KS)
Saxton
Schaffer
Schrock
Sensenbrenner
Sessions
Shadegg
Shaw
Shays
Sherwood
Shimkus

Shuster
Simmons
Simpson
Skeen
Smith (MI)
Smith (NJ)
Smith (TX)
Souder
Stearns
Stump
Sullivan
Sununu
Sweeney
Tancredo
Thune
Tiahrt
Tiberi
Toomey
Upton
Vitter
Waldeen
Walsh
Wamp
Watkins (OK)
Watts (OK)
Weldon (FL)
Weldon (PA)
Weller
Whitfield
Wicker
Wilson (NM)
Wilson (SC)
Wolf
Young (AK)
Young (FL)

NOES—211

Abercrombie
Ackerman
Allen
Andrews
Baca
Baird
Baldacci
Baldwin
Barcia
Barrett
Becerra
Bentsen
Berkley
Berman
Berry
Bishop
Blagojevich
Blumenauer
Bonior
Borski
Boswell
Boucher
Boyd
Brady (PA)
Brown (FL)
Brown (OH)
Capps
Capuano
Cardin
Carson (IN)
Carson (OK)
Clay
Clayton
Clement
Clyburn
Condit
Conyers
Costello
Coyne
Cramer
Crowley
Cummings
Davis (CA)
Davis (FL)
Davis (IL)
DeFazio
DeGette
Delahunt
DeLauro
Deutsch
Dicks
Dingell
Doggett

Dooley
Doyle
Edwards
Eshoo
Etheridge
Evans
Farr
Fattah
Filner
Ford
Frank
Frost
Gephardt
Gonzalez
Gordon
Green (TX)
Gutierrez
Hall (OH)
Hall (TX)
Harman
Hastings (FL)
Hill
Hilliard
Hinchey
Hinojosa
Hoeffel
Holden
Holt
Honda
Hooley
Hoyer
Inslee
Israel
Jackson (IL)
Jackson-Lee
Kaptur
Kennedy (RI)
Kildee
Kilpatrick
Kind (WI)
Kleczka
Kucinich
LaFalce
Lampson
Langevin
Lantos
Larsen (WA)

Larson (CT)
Lee
Levin
Lewis (GA)
Lipinski
Lofgren
Lowey
Lucas (KY)
Luther
Lynch
Maloney (CT)
Maloney (NY)
Markey
Mascara
Matheson
Matsui
McCarthy (MO)
McCarthy (NY)
McCollum
McDermott
McGovern
McIntyre
McKinney
McNulty
Meehan
Meek (FL)
Meeks (NY)
Menendez
Millender-
McDonald
Miller, George
Miller, Jeff
Mink
Mollohan
Moore
Moran (VA)
Murtha
Nadler
Napolitano
Neal
Oberstar
Obey
Olver
Ortiz
Owens
Pallone
Pascarell
Pastor
Payne
Pelosi
Peterson (MN)
Phelps
Pomeroy

Price (NC)
Rahall
Rangel
Reyes
Rivers
Rodriguez
Roemer
Ross
Rothman
Roybal-Allard
Rush
Sabo
Sanchez
Sanders
Sandlin
Sawyer
Schakowsky
Schiff

Scott
Serrano
Sherman
Shows
Skelton
Slaughter
Smith (WA)
Snyder
Solis
Spratt
Stark
Stenholm
Strickland
Stupak
Tanner
Tauscher
Taylor (MS)
Thompson (CA)

NOT VOTING—4

□ 1743

So the amendment was agreed to.
The result of the vote was announced as above recorded.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The question is on the resolution, as amended.

The question was taken; and the Speaker pro tempore announced that the ayes appeared to have it.

Mr. McGOVERN. Mr. Speaker, on that I demand the yeas and nays.

The yeas and nays were ordered.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. This is a
5-minute vote.

The vote was taken by electronic device, and there were—yeas 269, nays
160, not voting 5, as follows:

[Roll No. 276]

YEAS—269

Aderholt
Akin
Army
Bachus
Baker
Ballenger
Barr
Bartlett
Barton
Bass
Bereuter
Berkley
Biggers
Bilirakis
Bishop
Blunt
Boehert
Boehner
Bonilla
Bono
Boozman
Brady (TX)
Brown (SC)
Bryant
Burr
Burton
Buyer
Callahan
Calvert
Camp
Cannon
Cantor
Capito
Capps
Cardin
Castle
Chabot
Chambliss
Clement
Coble
Collins
Combest
Cooksey
Cox
Crane
Crenshaw

Cubin
Culberson
Cummings
Cunningham
Davis (CA)
Davis, Jo Ann
Davis, Tom
Deal
DeLay
DeMint
Deutsch
Diaz-Balart
Dicks
Doolittle
Dreier
Duncan
Dunn
Ehlers
Ehrlich
Emerson
English
Etheridge
Everett
Ferguson
Flake
Fletcher
Foley
Forbes
Fossella
Frelinghuysen
Frost
Gallegly
Ganske
Gekas
Gibbons
Gilchrest
Gillmor
Gillman
Goode
Goodlatte
Gordon
Goss
Graham
Granger
Graves
Green (WI)

Greenwood
Grucci
Gutknecht
Hall (TX)
Hansen
Hart
Hastings (FL)
Hastings (WA)
Hayes
Hayworth
Hefley
Herger
Hilleary
Hobson
Hoekstra
Horn
Hostettler
Houghton
Hoyer
Hulshof
Hunter
Hyde
Isakson
Issa
Istook
Jenkins
Johnson (CT)
Johnson (IL)
Johnson, E. B.
Johnson, Sam
Jones (NC)
Keller
Kelly
Kennedy (MN)
Kerns
Kilpatrick
King (NY)
Kingston
Kirk
Knollenberg
Kolbe
LaHood
Lantos
Larson (CT)
Latham
LaTourette

Leach
Lewis (CA)
Lewis (KY)
Linder
LoBiondo
Lofgren
Lucas (KY)
Lucas (OK)
Maloney (CT)
Maloney (NY)
Manzullo
McCarthy (MO)
McCrery
McHugh
McInnis
McKeon
McKinney
Mica
Miller, Dan
Miller, Gary
Miller, Jeff
Mollohan
Moran (KS)
Morella
Murtha
Myrick
Nadler
Nethercutt
Ney
Northup
Norwood
Ortiz
Osborne
Ose
Otter
Oxley
Pastor
Paul
Pelosi
Pence
Peterson (PA)
Petri
Pickering

Pitts
Platts
Pombo
Pomeroy
Portman
Price (NC)
Pryce (OH)
Putnam
Quinn
Radanovich
Ramstad
Regula
Rehberg
Reyes
Reynolds
Riley
Rodriguez
Rogers (KY)
Rogers (MI)
Rohrabacher
Ros-Lehtinen
Royce
Ryan (WI)
Ryun (KS)
Sabo
Saxton
Schaffer
Schiff
Schrock
Scott
Sensenbrenner
Sessions
Shadegg
Shaw
Shays
Sherwood
Shimkus
Shuster
Simmons
Simpson
Skeen
Slaughter
Smith (MI)

Smith (NJ)
Smith (TX)
Snyder
Souder
Spratt
Stearns
Stenholm
Stump
Sullivan
Sununu
Sweeney
Tancredo
Tanner
Tauszin
Taylor (NC)
Terry
Thomas
Thornberry
Thune
Tiahrt
Tiberi
Toomey
Udall (CO)
Udall (NM)
Upton
Vitter
Walden
Walsh
Wamp
Watkins (OK)
Watts (OK)
Weiner
Weldon (FL)
Weldon (PA)
Weller
Whitfield
Wicker
Wilson (NM)
Wilson (SC)
Wolf
Wynn
Young (AK)
Young (FL)

NAYS—160

Abercrombie
Ackerman
Allen
Andrews
Baird
Baldacci
Baldwin
Barcia
Barrett
Becerra
Bentsen
Berman
Berry
Blagojevich
Blumenauer
Bonior
Borski
Boswell
Boucher
Boyd
Brady (PA)
Brown (FL)
Brown (OH)
Capuano
Carson (IN)
Carson (OK)
Clay
Clayton
Clyburn
Condit
Conyers
Costello
Coyne
Cramer
Crowley
Davis (FL)
Davis (IL)
DeFazio
DeGette
Delahunt
DeLauro
Doggett
Dooley
Doyle
Edwards
Eshoo
Evans
Farr

Filner
Ford
Frank
Gephardt
Gonzalez
Green (TX)
Gutierrez
Hall (OH)
Harman
Hill
Hilliard
Hinchey
Hinojosa
Hoeffel
Holden
Holt
Honda
Hooley
Inslee
Israel
Jackson (IL)
Jackson-Lee
(TX)
Jefferson
John
Jones (OH)
Kanjorski
Kaptur
Kennedy (RI)
Kildee
Kind (WI)
Kleczka
Kucinich
LaFalce
Lampson
Langevin
Larsen (WA)
Lee
Levin
Lewis (GA)
Lipinski
Skelton
Luther
Lynch
Markey
Mascara
Matheson
Matsui
McCarthy (NY)

McCollum
McDermott
McGovern
McIntyre
McNulty
Meehan
Meek (FL)
Meeks (NY)
Menendez
Millender-
McDonald
Miller, George
Mink
Moore
Moran (VA)
Napolitano
Neal
Oberstar
Obey
Olver
Owens
Pallone
Pascarell
Payne
Peterson (MN)
Phelps
Rahall
Rangel
Rivers
Roemer
Ross
Rothman
Roybal-Allard
Rush
Sanchez
Sanders
Sawyer
Schakowsky
Serrano
Sherman
Shows
Skelton
Smith (WA)
Solis
Stark
Strickland
Stupak
Tauscher
Taylor (MS)

Thompson (CA)	Turner	Watt (NC)
Thompson (MS)	Velazquez	Waxman
Thurman	Visclosky	Wexler
Tierney	Waters	Woolsey
Towns	Watson (CA)	Wu

NOT VOTING—5

Baca	Fattah	Traficant
Engel	Roukema

□ 1756

Messrs. ISRAEL, LUTHER and MENENDEZ and Ms. SANCHEZ changed their vote from “yea” to “nay.”

Mr. PASTOR changed his vote from “nay” to “yea.”

So the resolution, as amended, was agreed to.

The result of the vote was announced as above recorded.

A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

GENERAL LEAVE

Mr. HOBSON. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that all Members may have 5 legislative days within which to revise and extend their remarks on H.R. 5011 and that I may include tabular and extraneous material.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. ISAKSON). Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Ohio?

There was no objection.

MILITARY CONSTRUCTION
APPROPRIATIONS ACT, 2003

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to House Resolution 462 and rule XVIII, the Chair declares the House in the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union for the consideration of the bill, H.R. 5011.

□ 1757

IN THE COMMITTEE OF THE WHOLE

Accordingly, the House resolved itself into the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union for the consideration of the bill (H.R. 5011) making appropriations for military construction, family housing, and base realignment and closure for the Department of Defense for the fiscal year ending September 30, 2003, and for other purposes, with Mr. GILLMOR in the chair.

The Clerk read the title of the bill.

The CHAIRMAN. Pursuant to the rule, the bill is considered as having been read the first time.

Under the rule, the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. HOBSON) and the gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. OLVER) each will control 30 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. HOBSON).

Mr. HOBSON. Mr. Chairman, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Chairman, it is my pleasure to present the House recommendation for the military construction appropriations bill for fiscal year 2003. This legislation provides funds for many types of construction projects on military installations here in the United States and abroad. Projects range from barracks and housing to urban assault training ranges and runways.

I want to particularly thank my ranking member, the gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. OLVER), for his help in producing this bipartisan bill. I also want to thank the committee on both sides of the aisle and the staff on both sides of the aisle. We have worked together in unison to produce a bipartisan bill.

In my opinion, the projects included in this bill are vital to the security of the United States, especially at this time. Equally important, the project contributes to the health and safety of the troops and their families and the quality of life and their training.

COMPARATIVE STATEMENT OF NEW BUDGET (OBLIGATIONAL) AUTHORITY FOR 2002
AND BUDGET REQUESTS AND AMOUNTS RECOMMENDED IN THE BILL FOR 2003
(Amounts in Thousands)

	FY 2002 Enacted	FY 2003 Request	Bill	Bill vs. Enacted	Bill vs. Request
Military construction, Army.....	1,778,256	1,450,438	1,414,557	-363,699	-35,881
Defense emergency response fund (DERF).....	---	100,000	100,000	+100,000	---
Rescission.....	-36,400	---	-18,676	+17,724	-18,676
Emergency appropriations (P.L. 107-117).....	20,700	---	---	-20,700	---
Total.....	1,762,556	1,550,438	1,495,881	-266,675	-54,557
Military construction, Navy.....	1,144,221	884,661	1,036,335	-107,886	+151,674
Defense emergency response fund (DERF).....	---	220,730	209,430	+209,430	-11,300
Rescission.....	-19,588	---	-1,340	+18,248	-1,340
Emergency appropriations (P.L. 107-117).....	2,000	---	---	-2,000	---
Total.....	1,126,633	1,105,391	1,244,425	+117,792	+139,034
Military construction, Air Force.....	1,194,880	644,090	783,705	-411,175	+139,615
Defense emergency response fund (DERF).....	---	190,597	180,597	+180,597	-10,000
Rescission.....	-4,000	---	-10,281	-6,281	-10,281
Emergency appropriations (P.L. 107-117).....	46,700	---	---	-46,700	---
Total.....	1,237,580	834,687	954,021	-283,559	+119,334
Military construction, Defense-wide.....	840,558	740,535	876,366	+35,808	+135,831
Defense emergency response fund (DERF).....	---	31,300	24,700	+24,700	-6,600
Rescissions.....	-69,280	---	-2,976	+66,304	-2,976
Emergency appropriations (P.L. 107-117).....	35,000	---	---	-35,000	---
Total.....	806,278	771,835	898,090	+91,812	+126,255
Total, Active components.....	4,933,047	4,262,351	4,592,417	-340,630	+330,066
Military construction, Army National Guard.....	405,565	101,595	159,672	-245,893	+58,077
Military construction, Air National Guard.....	253,386	53,473	110,680	-142,706	+57,207
Defense emergency response fund (DERF).....	---	8,933	8,933	+8,933	---
Total.....	253,386	62,406	119,613	-133,773	+57,207
Military construction, Army Reserve.....	167,019	58,779	99,059	-67,960	+40,280

COMPARATIVE STATEMENT OF NEW BUDGET (OBLIGATIONAL) AUTHORITY FOR 2002
AND BUDGET REQUESTS AND AMOUNTS RECOMMENDED IN THE BILL FOR 2003
(Amounts in Thousands)

	FY 2002 Enacted	FY 2003 Request	Bill	Bill vs. Enacted	Bill vs. Request
Military construction, Naval Reserve.....	53,201	51,554	68,704	+15,503	+17,150
Defense emergency response fund (DERF).....	---	7,117	7,117	+7,117	---
Rescission.....	-925	---	---	+925	---
Total.....	52,276	58,671	75,821	+23,545	+17,150
Military construction, Air Force Reserve.....	74,857	31,900	69,200	-5,657	+37,300
Defense emergency response fund (DERF).....	---	6,076	6,076	+6,076	---
Total.....	74,857	37,976	75,276	+419	+37,300
Total, Reserve components.....	953,103	319,427	529,441	-423,662	+210,014
Total, Military construction.....	5,886,150	4,581,778	5,121,858	-764,292	+540,080
Appropriations.....	(5,911,943)	(4,017,025)	(4,618,278)	(-1,293,665)	(+601,253)
Defense emergency response fund.....	---	(584,753)	(536,853)	(+536,853)	(-27,900)
Emergency appropriations.....	(104,400)	---	---	(-104,400)	---
Rescissions.....	(-130,193)	---	(-33,273)	(+96,920)	(-33,273)
North Atlantic Treaty Organization Security Investment Program.....	162,600	168,200	168,200	+5,600	---
Family housing, Army:
Construction.....	312,742	283,346	283,346	-29,396	---
Rescission.....	---	---	-4,920	-4,920	-4,920
Operation and maintenance.....	1,089,573	1,119,007	1,119,007	+29,434	---
Total, Family housing, Army.....	1,402,315	1,402,353	1,397,433	-4,882	-4,920
Family housing, Navy and Marine Corps:
Construction.....	331,780	375,700	380,268	+48,488	+4,568
Rescission.....	---	---	-2,652	-2,652	-2,652
Operation and maintenance.....	910,095	867,788	867,788	-42,307	---
Total, Family housing, Navy and Marine Corps.....	1,241,875	1,243,488	1,245,404	+3,529	+1,916

COMPARATIVE STATEMENT OF NEW BUDGET (OBLIGATIONAL) AUTHORITY FOR 2002
AND BUDGET REQUESTS AND AMOUNTS RECOMMENDED IN THE BILL FOR 2003
(Amounts in Thousands)

	FY 2002 Enacted	FY 2003 Request	Bill	Bill vs. Enacted	Bill vs. Request
Family housing, Air Force:
Construction.....	550,703	676,694	689,824	+139,121	+13,130
Rescission.....	---	---	-8,782	-8,782	-8,782
Operation and maintenance.....	844,715	844,419	844,419	-296	---
Defense emergency response fund (DERF).....	---	29,631	29,631	+29,631	---
Total, Family housing, Air Force.....	1,395,418	1,550,744	1,555,092	+159,674	+4,348
Family housing, Defense-wide:
Construction.....	250	5,480	5,480	+5,230	---
Operation and maintenance.....	43,762	42,395	42,395	-1,367	---
Total, Family housing, Defense-wide.....	44,012	47,875	47,875	+3,863	---
Department of Defense Family Housing Improvement Fund.....	2,000	2,000	2,000	---	---
Homeowners assistance fund, Defense.....	10,119	---	---	-10,119	---
(By transfer).....	(7,730)	---	---	(-7,730)	---
Total, Family housing.....	4,095,739	4,246,460	4,247,804	+152,065	+1,344
Base realignment and closure account.....	632,713	545,138	545,138	-87,575	---
(Transfer out).....	(-7,730)	---	---	(+7,730)	---
Total.....	632,713	545,138	545,138	-87,575	---

COMPARATIVE STATEMENT OF NEW BUDGET (OBLIGATIONAL) AUTHORITY FOR 2002
AND BUDGET REQUESTS AND AMOUNTS RECOMMENDED IN THE BILL FOR 2003
(Amounts in Thousands)

	FY 2002 Enacted	FY 2003 Request	Bill	Bill vs. Enacted	Bill vs. Request
GENERAL PROVISIONS
General provision (sec. 130).....	-60,000	---	---	+60,000	---
General provision (sec. 132).....	-112,802	---	---	+112,802	---
Total, General provisions.....	-172,802	---	---	+172,802	---
Grand total:
New budget (obligational) authority.....	10,604,400	9,541,576	10,083,000	-521,400	+541,424
Appropriations.....	(10,630,193)	(8,947,192)	(9,566,143)	(-1,064,050)	(+618,951)
Defense emergency response fund.....	---	(594,384)	(566,484)	(+566,484)	(-27,900)
Emergency appropriations.....	(104,400)	---	---	(-104,400)	---
Rescissions.....	(-130,193)	---	(-49,627)	(+80,566)	(-49,627)
(Transfer out).....	(-7,730)	---	---	(+7,730)	---
(By transfer).....	(7,730)	---	---	(-7,730)	---

Mr. Chairman, I reserve the balance of my time.

□ 1800

Mr. OLVER. Mr. Chairman, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Chairman, this is a fair and bipartisan bill that deserves the full support of all the Members of this Congress. The chairman has done an excellent job with the resources that he has been given; however, we are looking at a bill that is $522 million, which is 5 percent below last year's enacted bill which of course was signed by the President, and last year's level was determined before 9-11. I think most of us would agree that in the wake of 9-11 there is much more that we should be doing, including funding critical force protection projects like perimeter fencing and better inspection stations to secure access to our bases, including building safer barracks for our troops in locations so they are not sleeping right next to the public highways, including providing security and protection for stockpiles of old chemical weapons while we get about the destruction of those stockpiles, and including making certain that we have the capacity in our labs and in our pharmaceutical supplies to meet multiple acts of biological warfare.

Mr. Chairman, in the years that I have had the privilege to serve as ranking member of this Subcommittee on Military Construction under the excellent leadership of the gentleman from Ohio (Chairman HOBSON), we have made real progress in a bipartisan way in improving housing for singles and for families, in improving the workplaces for the men and women who serve America both at home and overseas. And this bill continues our progress. But because of the cut from last year's funding, it continues our progress more slowly in addressing the backlog of needs. Yet it does make an important contribution to our efforts to address the shortfall of military housing and making decent, safe workplaces available to our servicemen and women. We cannot continue, however, that progress if we face additional cutting in the coming years.

Mr. Chairman, finally, I want to thank the staff from both sides of the aisle who have worked so hard to put this bill together: Valerie Baldwin, Brian Potts, Mary Arnold, and Luis James for the majority and of course Tom Forhan for the minority. And I especially want to thank Suzy DuMont of my personal staff after years of dedicated service to the First Congressional District of Massachusetts. This will be Suzy's last MILCON bill. Suzy has served my district and this subcommittee well. She has been a valuable member of my staff, and I wish her all the best as the gentleman from Massachusetts' (Mr. MEEHAN) legislative director.

I urge the Members of the body to support this bill.

Mr. Chairman, I yield 3 minutes to the gentleman from California (Mr. FARR), a member of the subcommittee.

Mr. FARR of California. Mr. Chairman, I want to thank the gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. OLVER), the ranking member, for yielding me this time.

I rise to engage the distinguished chairman of the Subcommittee on Military Construction in a colloquy.

I appreciate this opportunity to have this colloquy with the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. HOBSON) to clarify and explain certain language in the bill relating to Fort Ord in my district. The bill in section 130 prohibits the Army from expending any money to prepare legal documents relating to the title transfer of lands at Fort Ord that are intended for the purposes of housing development.

If I may ask the chairman, is my characterization of section 130 correct to his understanding?

Mr. HOBSON. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. FARR of California. I yield to the gentleman from Ohio.

Mr. HOBSON. Mr. Chairman, that is correct. Section 130 limits the ability of the Army to prepare documents having to do with the transfer of land at Fort Ord that is planned for housing development.

Mr. FARR of California. Mr. Chairman, if the Chairman will indulge me, I would like to explain to him and my other colleagues that this language was inserted into the bill not because of any action or misaction by the Army, but as a signal to the Fort Ord community that the thousands of acres of Federal land being given to the reuse authority for free should be used to mitigate the housing crunch on the central coast of California.

Despite local governments acknowledging the need for upwards of 23,000 new units to meet the housing demand, the plans for housing development at Fort Ord contain insufficient, if not meager, units available to the local workforce. Instead, that free Federal land will be used to build megamansions out of financial reach for our local workers.

With the language in this bill, title transfers are put on hold until the plans for housing development at Fort Ord reflect a better mix of affordable housing. The local reuse authority is aware of the urgent nature of this language and today's debate and has agreed to re-examine the housing development plans at Fort Ord. I feel confident that eventually this limitation on the Army can be lifted and land transfers for housing development at Fort Ord can proceed again.

I appreciate the Chairman's support and assistance in the matter. He has been a tremendous help in signaling to the Fort Ord community its need to concentrate on affordable housing, given the valuable land that is being given to them.

Mr. HOBSON. Mr. Chairman, I am pleased to be able to assist the gentleman on this matter. Affordable housing is a critical issue, not just at Fort Ord but around the country. Where valuable assets are being given outright to communities as they are under base closure circumstances, those assets ought to be used in a manner that best benefits that community and are not simply sold to the highest bidder.

These are never easy issues because it means discord between Federal and local governments, but I commend the gentleman for confronting this difficult matter. I too am confident that it will be resolved in such a way that more affordable homes will soon be made available at Fort Ord.

Mr. FARR of California. Mr. Chairman, I thank the gentleman for his remarks.

Mr. HOBSON. Mr. Chairman, I yield such time as he may consume to the gentleman from Georgia (Mr. KINGSTON).

Mr. KINGSTON. Mr. Chairman, I thank the distinguished chairman and the ranking member for yielding some time to me, and I just wanted to discuss something with the chairman and enter into a colloquy about the aviation support facility at Fort Stewart/Hunter in Savannah, Georgia.

Mr. HOBSON. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. KINGSTON. I yield to the gentleman from Ohio.

Mr. HOBSON. Mr. Chairman, clearly the Military Construction, Army National Guard account is a project that plans and designs an aviation support facility at the Fort Stewart/Hunter Army airfield in Georgia, which I might add I have landed at. The amount listed in the report is $1,158,000; however, the amount actually required for the project is $1,580,000. Unfortunately, an error was made in the report that we plan to rectify as this legislation moves forward.

The gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. OLVER), the ranking member of the subcommittee, agrees this correction is necessary.

Mr. KINGSTON. Mr. Chairman, I certainly thank the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. HOBSON), and I thank the gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. OLVER) as well; and I also appreciate the visit that the gentleman made to that very facility a little over a year ago. As my colleague knows from the visit, the facility is very dilapidated and soldiers need a little more elbow room, and they do not certainly need to be operating out of a building that is falling apart.

Just recently, in fact, they have moved into a temporary tent facility; but unfortunately, that even leaks when it rains and in Savannah, Georgia, we get some heavy rains from time to time. Recently, one of my staffers was down there to visit with them, and they actually had to leave the tent because the leak was so bad.

I know that the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. HOBSON) and the ranking member, and certainly the distinguished chairman who has also visited some of the facilities in Georgia, know the importance of providing our troops with the best facility possible and that these funds will go a long way to helping our servicemen and women. So I thank the gentleman again for everything that he has done in support of Fort Stewart/Hunter and all the other bases and posts in Georgia.

Mr. HOBSON. Mr. Chairman, I am pleased to make these changes, especially for such a worthwhile project.

Mr. OLVER. Mr. Chairman, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Texas (Mr. EDWARDS), also a member of the subcommittee.

Mr. EDWARDS. Mr. Chairman, I thank the gentleman for yielding me the time.

Mr. Chairman, I am going to be brief, but I would like to make several comments. First, I want to, as a member of the committee, commend the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. HOBSON), the chairman, and the gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. OLVER), the ranking Democratic member, for working together on a bipartisan basis once again to do the work of our country and to provide the best services, giving a certain amount of dollars for our servicemen and women. They have done an outstanding job of leading this committee, and I thank them for that.

I especially want to applaud them for their continued efforts to fight for better housing for overseas servicemen and women, people who do not have a constituency back here with a Member of Congress fighting for better housing for them, people who have been forgotten in decades past but now have two leaders in this House fighting for them.

I want to commend their leadership on the new innovative RCI program, the Residential Community Initiative program, that is going to combine private expertise and resources with public resources to get a better bang for the buck out of the taxpayers' money we spend and improve housing for our military men and women.

The one concern I do want to say, Mr. Chairman, is at the end of the day, this appropriation bill is a half a billion dollars below what we spent last year. That was not the responsibility of the subcommittee chairman or the ranking member. That decision was made above our pay grade; but as we go into next year, I hope we can send a message to the leadership of this House and to the administration that America's battles and wars cannot just be won with technology. They have to be won with the best and brightest of our young men and women willing to put on their uniform, risk their lives and serve our country; and I think it does send as a bad message to many of them that we are spending half a billion dollars less this year on military construction programs.

I would remind all of us, Mr. Chairman, that it is estimated that 60 percent of the servicemen and women living in government-provided housing are living in housing that does not even meet minimum DOD standards. We can do better; but today, given the money that this subcommittee was afforded, the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. HOBSON) and the gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. OLVER) did an outstanding job, and I thank them and commend them for their great efforts.

Mr. NUSSLE. Mr. Chairman, I rise today in support of H.R. 5011, the Military Construction Appropriations Act for Fiscal Year 2003. It is the second bill we are considering pursuant to the 302(b) allocations filed by the Appropriations Committee on June 24th. I am pleased to report that it is consistent with the levels established in H. Con. Res. 353, the House concurrent resolution on the budget for fiscal year 2003, which we subsequently deemed as having the effect of a conference report on the resolution. The budget resolution provided $393.8 billion in budget authority for national defense, including $10 billion for a war reserve fund. This bill funds the military construction and family housing portion of that commitment to our men and women in uniform.

H.R. 5011 provides $10.1 billion in new budget authority and $10.1 billion in outlays for fiscal year 2003. It is therefore equal in budget authority and outlays to the 302(b) allocation to the House Subcommittee on Military Construction Appropriations. It does not contain emergency-designated new BA. It does include $50 million worth of rescissions of previously enacted BA and $3 million in related outlays.

Accordingly, the bill complies with section 302(f) of the Budget Act, which prohibits consideration of bills in excess of an appropriations subcommittee's 302(b) allocation of budget authority and outlays established in the budget resolution.

H.R. 5011 represents this House's solemn commitment to the quality of life of those who put their lives on the line every day for our freedom. It not only addresses the long-term infrastructure problems at military bases, it sustains barracks, family housing, medical facilities, and child support centers across the country and at bases overseas. It also provides infrastructure funding for National Guard and Reserve troops who now find themselves on the front lines of the war against terrorism.

In conclusion, I express my support for H.R. 5011.

Mr. UNDERWOOD. Mr. Chairman, I rise in support of H.R. 5011, the bill making appropriations for our nation's military construction needs for Fiscal Year 2003. This bill is important legislation that will strengthen our nation's defense capability in addition to directly benefiting our nation's military community by improving the quality of life for our dedicated military personnel and their families.

The bill ensures that the infrastructure and facilities at our military installations get needed attention. Towards this end, I am especially pleased that this bill includes $75 million in military construction projects for Guam, protecting its strategic role to our national security in the Western Pacific.

I am most pleased that this bill includes funding for Phase III of the Guam Army National Guard Readiness Center. The funding will complete the remaining designs for this Armory and provide for necessary training, assembly, and physical fitness space that will allow for demanded readiness and mission capability levels to be fulfilled. Moreover, the bill includes $15 million for a new on-base water supply system for Andersen Air Force Base, a project that will provide a reliable and safe water supply system essential for mission, fire protection, living conditions, and quality of life. Additionally, I am pleased that the bill includes roughly $17 million to continue the replacement of Andersen's hydrant fuel system, funding that will equip the base with the largest fuel capability in the entire Pacific.

The people of Guam welcome this significant continuation in military construction activity and appreciate the recognition this funding provides for our people in uniform, particularly the Guam Army National Guard. I urge passage of H.R. 5011 as it bolsters our national defense, advances our readiness and supports our men and women in uniform. I commend the Chairman, Mr. HOBSON, and the Ranking Member, Mr. OLVER, for their work in bringing this legislation to the floor today. As always, their leadership has been integral in the annual appropriations process and I thank them for their efforts on behalf of our nation's military and the people of Guam.

Ms. LEE. Mr. Chairman, the House GOP Leadership has gagged Democrats, seniors, and our disabled community by not allowing the chance to first offer and debate a real prescription drug plan. This undermines our democracy, and the true meaning of representative government.

The growing elderly community, most of whom live on a fixed income, consistently pay ridiculously high costs for prescription drugs. Many in the disabled community, who are often ignored in this debate, are also forced to pay an enormous amount. The high price of prescription drugs must not concern the Republican member in this House, because they are only willing to cover less than 25% of the Medicare beneficiaries. This is opposite of the Democratic substitute that would have guaranteed a benefit to everyone.

Democrats know that we must provide government guaranteed comprehensive drug coverage. Under the Democratic plan we would have ensured that seniors, and people with disabilities have affordable, comprehensive, and guaranteed access to prescription drug coverage. But nothing Democratic really matters here today. The Republican plan allows privatization. They continue to protect their big business donors and corporate bedfellows.

In my own district, Oakland, CA, elderly and disabled are paying up to $2,000 more a year for basic drugs than those in Canada, Europe, and Japan. This another example of dramatic price discrimination. Democrats understand that this is unfair and we implore seniors across the country to stand up to the bully-tactics that the Republicans continue to use.

Women need prescription drugs too! More than half of the nearly 40 million Medicare beneficiaries are women. Let me remind the Republicans that although insurance plans routinely cover prescription drugs, they fail to cover prescription contraceptives and related medical visits and exams. Women on Medicare spend 20% more than men on prescription drugs, especially since prescription drugs are important for treating chronic illnesses which increase in age.

Maybe Republicans need to be reminded that the average woman on Medicare spends 22% of her income on out-of-pocket health care expenses, including prescription drugs. And this is worse for poor women without insurance. For poor women this figure rises to 53%.

I'm sure that seniors, the disabled community, and women would like to know what they could received under the Democratic plan: a $25 monthly premium; a $100 yearly deductible; 80/20 cost sharing between Medicare beneficiaries, a $2,000 maximum for medicare beneficiaries, and a sliding scale for low income individuals for up to 150% of median income. But we have been muzzled. We cannot even debate a real prescription drug plan. What a shame! What a sham.

Mr. STRICKLAND. Mr. Chairman, for much of the twentieth century, our great steel companies churned and poured out the material used to build our nation creating the skeletons of our battleships, military equipment and installations. Today, during floor consideration of the Military Construction Appropriations Act of 2003 (H.R. 5011), I intended to offer an amendment to ensure that only domestic steel could be used for military construction. However, due to restrictions under the rule for funding limitations, my amendment was subject to a point of order and was not offered. For the record, I would like to fully explain the intent of this amendment.

Mr. Speaker, my amendment to Section 108 of H.R. 5011 was designed to help American industry ailing from the effects of globalization. Section 108 currently states that no funds appropriated in H.R. 5011 may be used for procurement of steel for construction projects or activities for which American Steel producers have been denied the opportunity to compete for such steel procurement. While I support this provision, the goal of my amendment was to strengthen that Section and require that the funds made available in H.R. 5011 would be spent on purchasing equipment, products or systems which contain steel manufactured in the United States. In other words, competition is good, but I wanted to go one step further and guarantee our military construction contracts involve U.S. steel. Our national defense depends on a healthy U.S. steel industry and it makes sense to offer some federal guarantees to this struggling industry at this critical time. I will continue to work with my colleagues in the House and the Senate to ensure the dollars we spend will protect the security of America, protect American jobs and the livelihood of the American Steel worker.

Mr. OLVER. Mr. Chairman, I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. HOBSON. Mr. Chairman, I yield back the balance of my time.

The CHAIRMAN. All time for general debate has expired.

Pursuant to the rule, the bill shall be considered for amendment under the 5-minute rule. During consideration of the bill for amendment, the Chair may accord priority in recognition to a Member offering an amendment that has been printed in the designated place in the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD, and those amendments will be considered read.

The Clerk will read.

The Clerk read as follows:

H.R. 5011

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That the following sums are appropriated, out of any money in the Treasury not otherwise appropriated for military construction, family housing, and base realignment and closure functions administered by the Department of Defense, for the fiscal year ending September 30, 2003, and for other purposes, namely:

MILITARY CONSTRUCTION, ARMY

Mr. HOBSON. Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent that the remainder of the bill through page 22, line 7, be considered as read, printed in the RECORD, and open to amendment at any point.

The CHAIRMAN. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Ohio?

There was no objection.

The text of the bill from page 2, line 5, through page 22, line 7, is as follows:

(INCLUDING RESCISSIONS)

For acquisition, construction, installation, and equipment of temporary or permanent public works, military installations, facilities, and real property for the Army as currently authorized by law, including personnel in the Army Corps of Engineers and other personal services necessary for the purposes of this appropriation, and for construction and operation of facilities in support of the functions of the Commander in Chief, $1,514,557,000, to remain available until September 30, 2007: Provided, That of this amount, not to exceed $158,664,000 shall be available for study, planning, design, architect and engineer services, and host nation support, as authorized by law, unless the Secretary of Defense determines that additional obligations are necessary for such purposes and notifies the Committees on Appropriations of both Houses of Congress of his determination and the reasons therefor: Provided further, That of the funds appropriated for "Military Construction, Army" under Public Law 107-64, $5,000,000 are rescinded.

MILITARY CONSTRUCTION, NAVY

(INCLUDING RESCISSION)

For acquisition, construction, installation, and equipment of temporary or permanent public works, naval installations, facilities, and real property for the Navy as currently authorized by law, including personnel in the Naval Facilities Engineering Command and other personal services necessary for the purposes of this appropriation, $1,245,765,000, to remain available until September 30, 2007: Provided, That of this amount, not to exceed $94,825,000 shall be available for study, planning, design, architect and engineer services, as authorized by law, unless the Secretary of Defense determines that additional obligations are necessary for such purposes and notifies the Committees on Appropriations of both Houses of Congress of his determination and the reasons therefor.

MILITARY CONSTRUCTION, AIR FORCE

(INCLUDING RESCISSION)

For acquisition, construction, installation, and equipment of temporary or permanent public works, military installations, facilities, and real property for the Air Force as currently authorized by law, $964,302,000, to remain available until September 30, 2007: Provided, That of this amount, not to exceed $78,951,000 shall be available for study, planning, design, architect and engineer services, as authorized by law, unless the Secretary of Defense determines that additional obligations are necessary for such purposes and notifies the Committees on Appropriations of both Houses of Congress of his determination and the reasons therefor.

MILITARY CONSTRUCTION, DEFENSE-WIDE

(INCLUDING RESCISSION AND TRANSFER OF FUNDS)

For acquisition, construction, installation, and equipment of temporary or permanent public works, installations, facilities, and real property for activities and agencies of the Department of Defense (other than the military departments), as currently authorized by law, $901,066,000, to remain available until September 30, 2007: Provided, That such amounts of this appropriation as may be determined by the Secretary of Defense may be transferred to such appropriations of the Department of Defense available for military construction or family housing as he may designate, to be merged with and to be available for the same purposes, and for the same time period, as the appropriation or fund to which transferred: Provided further, That of the amount appropriated, not to exceed $45,432,000 shall be available for study, planning, design, architect and engineer services, as authorized by law, unless the Secretary of Defense determines that additional obligations are necessary for such purposes and notifies the Committees on Appropriations of both Houses of Congress of his determination and the reasons therefor: Provided further, That of this amount, $84,400,000 shall not be available until five days after the Army notifies the Senate and House appropriations committees that it is able to meet milestones for construction of chemical weapons destruction facilities agreed upon by the Office of the Secretary of Defense and the Office of Management and Budget.

MILITARY CONSTRUCTION, ARMY NATIONAL GUARD

For construction, acquisition, expansion, rehabilitation, and conversion of facilities for the training and administration of the Army National Guard, and contributions therefor, as authorized by chapter 1803 of title 10, United States Code, and Military Construction Authorization Acts, $159,672,000, to remain available until September 30, 2007.

MILITARY CONSTRUCTION, AIR NATIONAL GUARD

For construction, acquisition, expansion, rehabilitation, and conversion of facilities for the training and administration of the Air National Guard, and contributions therefor, as authorized by chapter 1803 of title 10, United States Code, and Military Construction Authorization Acts, $119,613,000, to remain available until September 30, 2007.

MILITARY CONSTRUCTION, ARMY RESERVE

For construction, acquisition, expansion, rehabilitation, and conversion of facilities for the training and administration of the Army Reserve as authorized by chapter 1803 of title 10, United States Code, and Military Construction Authorization Acts, $99,059,000, to remain available until September 30, 2007.

MILITARY CONSTRUCTION, NAVAL RESERVE

For construction, acquisition, expansion, rehabilitation, and conversion of facilities for the training and administration of the reserve components of the Navy and Marine Corps as authorized by chapter 1803 of title 10, United States Code, and Military Construction Authorization Acts, $75,821,000, to remain available until September 30, 2007.

MILITARY CONSTRUCTION, AIR FORCE RESERVE

For construction, acquisition, expansion, rehabilitation, and conversion of facilities for the training and administration of the Air Force Reserve as authorized by chapter 1803 of title 10, United States Code, and Military Construction Authorization Acts, $75,276,000, to remain available until September 30, 2007.

NORTH ATLANTIC TREATY ORGANIZATION SECURITY INVESTMENT PROGRAM

For the United States share of the cost of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization Security Investment Program for the acquisition and construction of military facilities and installations (including international military headquarters) and for related expenses for the collective defense of the North Atlantic Treaty Area as authorized in Military Construction Authorization Acts and section 2806 of title 10, United States Code, $168,200,000, to remain available until expended.

FAMILY HOUSING CONSTRUCTION, ARMY
(INCLUDING RESCISSION)

For expenses of family housing for the Army for construction, including acquisition, replacement, addition, expansion, extension and alteration, as authorized by law, $283,346,000, to remain available until September 30, 2007.

FAMILY HOUSING OPERATION AND MAINTENANCE, ARMY

For expenses of family housing for the Army for operation and maintenance, including debt payment, leasing, minor construction, principal and interest charges, and insurance premiums, as authorized by law, $1,119,007,000.

FAMILY HOUSING CONSTRUCTION, NAVY AND MARINE CORPS
(INCLUDING RESCISSION)

For expenses of family housing for the Navy and Marine Corps for construction, including acquisition, replacement, addition, expansion, extension and alteration, as authorized by law, $380,268,000, to remain available until September 30, 2007.

FAMILY HOUSING OPERATION AND MAINTENANCE, NAVY AND MARINE CORPS

For expenses of family housing for the Navy and Marine Corps for operation and maintenance, including debt payment, leasing, minor construction, principal and interest charges, and insurance premiums, as authorized by law, $867,788,000.

FAMILY HOUSING CONSTRUCTION, AIR FORCE
(INCLUDING RESCISSION)

For expenses of family housing for the Air Force for construction, including acquisition, replacement, addition, expansion, extension and alteration, as authorized by law, $689,824,000, to remain available until September 30, 2007.

FAMILY HOUSING OPERATION AND MAINTENANCE, AIR FORCE

For expenses of family housing for the Air Force for operation and maintenance, including debt payment, leasing, minor construction, principal and interest charges, and insurance premiums, as authorized by law, $874,050,000.

FAMILY HOUSING CONSTRUCTION, DEFENSE-WIDE

For expenses of family housing for the activities and agencies of the Department of Defense (other than the military departments) for construction, including acquisition, replacement, addition, expansion, extension and alteration, as authorized by law, $5,480,000, to remain available until September 30, 2007.

FAMILY HOUSING OPERATION AND MAINTENANCE, DEFENSE-WIDE

For expenses of family housing for the activities and agencies of the Department of Defense (other than the military departments) for operation and maintenance, leasing, and minor construction, as authorized by law, $42,395,000.

DEPARTMENT OF DEFENSE FAMILY HOUSING IMPROVEMENT FUND

For the Department of Defense Family Housing Improvement Fund, $2,000,000, to remain available until expended, for family housing initiatives undertaken pursuant to section 2883 of title 10, United States Code, providing alternative means of acquiring and improving military family housing, and supporting facilities.

BASE REALIGNMENT AND CLOSURE ACCOUNT

For deposit into the Department of Defense Base Closure Account 1990 established by section 2906(a)(1) of the Department of Defense Authorization Act, 1991 (Public Law 101-510), $545,138,000, to remain available until expended.

GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. 101. None of the funds appropriated in Military Construction Appropriations Acts shall be expended for payments under a cost-plus-a-fixed-fee contract for construction, where cost estimates exceed $25,000, to be performed within the United States, except Alaska, without the specific approval in writing of the Secretary of Defense setting forth the reasons therefor.

SEC. 102. Funds appropriated to the Department of Defense for construction shall be available for hire of passenger motor vehicles.

SEC. 103. Funds appropriated to the Department of Defense for construction may be used for advances to the Federal Highway Administration, Department of Transportation, for the construction of access roads as authorized by section 210 of title 23, United States Code, when projects authorized therein are certified as important to the national defense by the Secretary of Defense.

SEC. 104. None of the funds appropriated in this Act may be used to begin construction of new bases inside the continental United States for which specific appropriations have not been made.

SEC. 105. No part of the funds provided in Military Construction Appropriations Acts shall be used for purchase of land or land easements in excess of 100 percent of the value as determined by the Army Corps of Engineers or the Naval Facilities Engineering Command, except: (1) where there is a determination of value by a Federal court; (2) purchases negotiated by the Attorney General or his designee; (3) where the estimated value is less than $25,000; or (4) as otherwise determined by the Secretary of Defense to be in the public interest.

SEC. 106. None of the funds appropriated in Military Construction Appropriations Acts shall be used to: (1) acquire land; (2) provide for site preparation; or (3) install utilities for any family housing, except housing for which funds have been made available in annual Military Construction Appropriations Acts.

SEC. 107. None of the funds appropriated in Military Construction Appropriations Acts for minor construction may be used to transfer or relocate any activity from one base or installation to another, without prior notification to the Committees on Appropriations.

SEC. 108. No part of the funds appropriated in Military Construction Appropriations Acts may be used for the procurement of steel for any construction project or activity for which American steel producers, fabricators, and manufacturers have been denied the opportunity to compete for such steel procurement.

SEC. 109. None of the funds available to the Department of Defense for military construction or family housing during the current fiscal year may be used to pay real property taxes in any foreign nation.

SEC. 110. None of the funds appropriated in Military Construction Appropriations Acts may be used to initiate a new installation overseas without prior notification to the Committees on Appropriations.

SEC. 111. None of the funds appropriated in Military Construction Appropriations Acts may be obligated for architect and engineer contracts estimated by the Government to exceed $500,000 for projects to be accomplished in Japan, in any NATO member country, or in countries bordering the Arabian Sea, unless such contracts are awarded to United States firms or United States firms in joint venture with host nation firms.

SEC. 112. None of the funds appropriated in Military Construction Appropriations Acts for military construction in the United States territories and possessions in the Pacific and on Kwajalein Atoll, or in countries bordering the Arabian Sea, may be used to award any contract estimated by the Government to exceed $1,000,000 to a foreign contractor: Provided, That this section shall not be applicable to contract awards for which the lowest responsive and responsible bid of a United States contractor exceeds the lowest responsive and responsible bid of a foreign contractor by greater than 20 percent: Provided further, That this section shall not apply to contract awards for military construction on Kwajalein Atoll for which the lowest responsive and responsible bid is submitted by a Marshallese contractor.

SEC. 113. The Secretary of Defense is to inform the appropriate committees of Congress, including the Committees on Appropriations, of the plans and scope of any proposed military exercise involving United States personnel 30 days prior to its occurring, if amounts expended for construction, either temporary or permanent, are anticipated to exceed $100,000.

SEC. 114. Not more than 20 percent of the appropriations in Military Construction Appropriations Acts which are limited for obligation during the current fiscal year shall be obligated during the last 2 months of the fiscal year.

SEC. 115. Funds appropriated to the Department of Defense for construction in prior years shall be available for construction authorized for each such military department by the authorizations enacted into law during the current session of Congress.

SEC. 116. For military construction or family housing projects that are being completed with funds otherwise expired or lapsed for obligation, expired or lapsed funds may be used to pay the cost of associated supervision, inspection, overhead, engineering and design on those projects and on subsequent claims, if any.

SEC. 117. Notwithstanding any other provision of law, any funds appropriated to a military department or defense agency for the construction of military projects may be obligated for a military construction project or contract, or for any portion of such a project or contract, at any time before the end of the fourth fiscal year after the fiscal year for which funds for such project were appropriated if the funds obligated for such project: (1) are obligated from funds available for military construction projects; and (2) do not exceed the amount appropriated for such project, plus any amount by which the cost of such project is increased pursuant to law.

SEC. 118. During the 5-year period after appropriations available to the Department of Defense for military construction and family housing operation and maintenance and construction have expired for obligation, upon a determination that such appropriations will not be necessary for the liquidation of obligations or for making authorized adjustments to such appropriations for obligations incurred during the period of availability of such appropriations, unobligated balances of such appropriations may be transferred into the appropriation "Foreign Currency Fluctuations, Construction, Defense" to be merged with and to be available for the same time period and for the same purposes as the appropriation to which transferred.

SEC. 119. The Secretary of Defense is to provide the Committees on Appropriations of the Senate and the House of Representatives with an annual report by February 15, containing details of the specific actions proposed to be taken by the Department of Defense during the current fiscal year to encourage other member nations of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, Japan, Korea, and United States allies bordering the Arabian Sea to assume a greater share of the common defense burden of such nations and the United States.

SEC. 120. During the current fiscal year, in addition to any other transfer authority available to the Department of Defense, proceeds deposited to the Department of Defense Base Closure Account established by section 207(a)(1) of the Defense Authorization Amendments and Base Closure and Realignment Act (Public Law 100-526) pursuant to section 207(a)(2)(C) of such Act, may be transferred to the account established by section 2906(a)(1) of the Department of Defense Authorization Act, 1991, to be merged with, and to be available for the same purposes and the same time period as that account.

SEC. 121. (a) No funds appropriated pursuant to this Act may be expended by an entity unless the entity agrees that in expending the assistance the entity will comply with sections 2 through 4 of the Act of March 3, 1933 (41 U.S.C. 10a-10c, popularly known as the "Buy American Act").

(b) No funds made available under this Act shall be made available to any person or entity who has been convicted of violating the Act of March 3, 1933 (41 U.S.C. 10a-10c, popularly known as the "Buy American Act").

SEC. 122. (a) In the case of any equipment or products that may be authorized to be purchased with financial assistance provided under this Act, it is the sense of the Congress that entities receiving such assistance should, in expending the assistance, purchase only American-made equipment and products.

(b) In providing financial assistance under this Act, the Secretary of the Treasury shall provide to each recipient of the assistance a notice describing the statement made in subsection (a) by the Congress.

SEC. 123. Subject to 30 days prior notification to the Committees on Appropriations, such additional amounts as may be determined by the Secretary of Defense may be transferred to the Department of Defense Family Housing Improvement Fund from amounts appropriated for construction in "Family Housing" accounts or construction of military unaccompanied housing projects in "Military Construction" accounts, to be merged with and to be available for the same purposes and for the same period of time as amounts appropriated directly to the Fund: Provided, That appropriations made available to the Fund shall be available to cover the costs, as defined in section 502(5) of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974, of direct loans or loan guarantees issued by the Department of Defense pursuant to the provisions of subchapter IV of chapter 169, title 10, United States Code, pertaining to alternative means of acquiring and improving military family housing and supporting facilities.

SEC. 124. (a) Not later than 60 days before issuing any solicitation for a contract with the private sector for military family housing the Secretary of the military department concerned shall submit to the congressional defense committees the notice described in subsection (b).

(b)(1) A notice referred to in subsection (a) is a notice of any guarantee (including the making of mortgage or rental payments) proposed to be made by the Secretary to the private party under the contract involved in the event of—

(A) the closure or realignment of the installation for which housing is provided under the contract;

(B) a reduction in force of units stationed at such installation; or

(C) the extended deployment overseas of units stationed at such installation.

(2) Each notice under this subsection shall specify the nature of the guarantee involved and assess the extent and likelihood, if any, of the liability of the Federal Government with respect to the guarantee.

(c) In this section, the term "congressional defense committees" means the following:

(1) The Committee on Armed Services and the Military Construction Subcommittee, Committee on Appropriations of the Senate.

(2) The Committee on Armed Services and the Military Construction Subcommittee, Committee on Appropriations of the House of Representatives.

SEC. 125. During the current fiscal year, in addition to any other transfer authority available to the Department of Defense, amounts may be transferred from the account established by section 2906(a)(1) of the Department of Defense Authorization Act, 1991 and from funds appropriated for the operation and maintenance of the military departments contained in Title II of the Department of Defense Appropriations Act, 2003, to the fund established by section 1013(d) of the Demonstration Cities and Metropolitan Development Act of 1966 (42 U.S.C. 3374) to pay for expenses associated with the Homeowners Assistance Program. Any amounts transferred shall be merged with and be available for the same purposes and for the same time period as the fund to which transferred.

SEC. 126. Notwithstanding this or any other provision of law, funds appropriated in Military Construction Appropriations Acts for operations and maintenance of family housing shall be the exclusive source of funds for repair and maintenance of all family housing units, including general or flag officer quarters: Provided, That not more than $35,000 per unit may be spent annually for the maintenance and repair of any general or flag officer quarters without 30 days advance prior notification to the appropriate committees of Congress: Provided further, That the Under Secretary of Defense (Comptroller) is to report annually to the Committees on Appropriations all operations and maintenance expenditures for each individual general or flag officer quarters for the prior fiscal year.

SEC. 127. Notwithstanding any other provision of law, the Secretary of the Navy is authorized to use funds received pursuant to section 2601 of title 10, United States Code, for the construction, improvement, repair, and maintenance of the historic residences located at Marine Corps Barracks, 8th and I Streets, Washington, D.C.: Provided, That the Secretary notifies the appropriate committees of Congress 30 days in advance of the intended use of such funds: Provided further, That this section remains effective until September 30, 2006.

SEC. 128. Of the funds provided in previous Military Construction Appropriations Acts, a total of $44,627,000 is hereby rescinded, as of the date of enactment of this Act, from the following accounts in the specified amounts to reflect savings from favorable foreign currency fluctuations:

"Military Construction, Army", $13,676,000.

"Military Construction, Navy", $1,340,000.

"Military Construction, Air Force", $10,281,000.

"Military Construction, Defense-wide", $2,976,000.

"Family Housing Construction, Army", $4,920,000.

"Family Housing Construction, Navy", $2,652,000.

"Family Housing Construction, Air Force", $3,782,000.

SEC. 129. None of the funds made available in this Act may be transferred to any department, agency, or instrumentality of the United States Government, except pursuant to a transfer made by, or transfer authority provided in, this Act or any other appropriation Act.

SEC. 130. None of the funds made available in this Act may be used to prepare any documents relating to the conveyance out of United States ownership of real property at former Fort Ord, California, intended for use for housing development, as defined in the redevelopment plan for Fort Ord.

SEC. 131. Amounts appropriated for a military construction project at Camp Kyle, Korea, relating to construction of a physical fitness center, as authorized by section 8160 of the Department of Defense Appropriations Act, 2000 (Public Law 106-79; 113 Stat. 1274), shall be available instead for a similar project at Camp Bonifas, Korea.

AMENDMENT OFFERED BY MR. COLLINS

Mr. COLLINS. Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. COLLINS:

At the end of the bill (before the short title), insert the following new section:

SEC. _____. None of the funds provided in this Act may be used to relocate the headquarters of the United States Army, South, from Fort Buchanan, Puerto Rico, to a location in the continental United States.

Mr. COLLINS (during the reading). Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent that the amendment be considered as read and printed in the RECORD.

The CHAIRMAN. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Georgia?

There was no objection.

Mr. HOBSON. Mr. Chairman, if the gentleman will yield, we are prepared to accept the amendment.

Mr. OLVER. Mr. Chairman, if the gentleman will yield, we also are prepared to accept the amendment.

Mr. COLLINS. Mr. Chairman, I would like to say thanks to the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. HOBSON), the chairman, and to the gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. OLVER), the ranking member, and also to the full committee chairman for funding a chapel at Fort Benning, Georgia, one that burned previously this year; and it was the most desired MILCON project at Fort Benning by the chief of the infantry, Major General Paul Eaton. I thank them very much on behalf of the families that are there.

The CHAIRMAN. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Georgia (Mr. COLLINS).

The amendment was agreed to.

The CHAIRMAN. Are there any further amendments?

If not, the Clerk will read.

The Clerk read as follows:

This Act may be cited as the "Military Construction Appropriations Act, 2003".

Mr. OBEY. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the last word.

I wonder, Mr. Chairman, if the Chair could inform us how much time this bill has taken today in comparison to how much time the defense appropriation bill took earlier in the day. I know the gentleman from Pennsylvania was interested.

Mr. HOBSON. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. OBEY. I yield to the gentleman from Ohio.

Mr. HOBSON. Mr. Chairman, we hope we have completed within our time allotment to preserve our win of previous years, and that is only due to the cooperation of all the Members. So I am not going to talk anymore because I may overstay my time.

□ 1815

The CHAIRMAN (Mr. GILLMOR). Under the rule, the Committee rises.

Accordingly, the Committee rose; and the Speaker pro tempore (Mr. NUSSLE) having assumed the chair, Mr. GILLMOR, Chairman of the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union, reported that that Committee, having had under consideration the bill (H.R. 5011) making appropriations for military construction, family housing, and base realignment and closure for the Department of Defense for the fiscal year ending September 30, 2003, and for other purposes, pursuant to House Resolution 462, he reported the bill back to the House with an amendment adopted by the Committee of the Whole.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under the rule, the previous question is ordered.

The question is on the amendment.

The amendment was agreed to.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The question is on the engrossment and third reading of the bill.

The bill was ordered to be engrossed and read a third time, and was read the third time.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The question is on the passage of the bill.

Pursuant to clause 10 of rule XX, the yeas and nays are ordered.

The vote was taken by electronic device, and there were—yeas 426, nays 1, not voting 7, as follows:

[Roll No. 277]

YEAS—426

Abercrombie
Ackerman
Aderholt
Akin
Allen
Andrews
Armey
Baca
Bachus
Baird
Baker
Baldacci
Baldwin
Ballenger
Barcia
Barr
Barrett
Bartlett
Barton
Bass
Becerra
Bentsen
Bereuter
Berkley
Berman
Berry
Biggert
Bilirakis
Bishop
Blagojevich
Blumenauer
Blunt
Boehert
Boehner
Bonilla
Bonior
Bono
Boozman
Borski
Boswell
Boucher
Boyd
Brady (PA)
Brady (TX)
Brown (FL)
Brown (OH)
Bryant
Burr
Burton
Buyer
Callahan
Calvert
Camp
Cannon
Cantor
Capito
Capps
Capuano
Cardin

Carson (IN)
Carson (OK)
Castle
Chabot
Chambliss
Clay
Clayton
Clement
Clyburn
Coble
Collins
Combest
Condit
Conyers
Cooksey
Costello
Cox
Coyne
Cramer
Crane
Crenshaw
Crowley
Cubin
Culberson
Cummings
Cunningham
Davis (CA)
Davis (FL)
Davis (IL)
Davis, Jo Ann
Davis, Tom
Deal
DeFazio
DeGette
DeLaHunt
DeLauro
DeLay
DeMint
Deutsch
Diaz-Balart
Dicks
Dingell
Doggett
Dooley
Doolittle
Doyle
Dreier
Duncan
Dunn
Edwards
Ehlers
Ehrlich
Emerson
English
Eshoo
Etheridge
Evans
Everett
Farr

Fattah
Ferguson
Filner
Flake
LaHood
Lampson
Langevin
Lantos
Larsen (WA)
Larson (CT)
Latham
LaTourette
Leach
Lee
Levin
Lewis (CA)
Lewis (GA)
Lewis (KY)
Linder
Lipinski
LoBiondo
Lofgren
Lowey
Lucas (KY)
Lucas (OK)
Luther
Lynch
Maloney (CT)
Maloney (NY)
Manzullo
Markey
Mascara
Matheson
Matsui
McCarthy (MO)
McCarthy (NY)
McCollum
McCrery
McDermott
McGovern
McHugh
McInnis
McIntyre
McKeon
McKinney
McNulty
Meehan
Meek (FL)
Meeks (NY)

Hoyer
Hulshof
Hunter
Hyde
Inslee
Isakson
Israel
Issa
Istook
Jackson (IL)
Jackson-Lee
(TX)
Jefferson
Jenkins
John
Johnson (CT)
Johnson (IL)
Johnson, E. B.
Johnson, Sam
Jones (NC)
Jones (OH)
Kanjorski
Kaptur
Keller
Kelly
Kennedy (MN)
Kennedy (RI)
Kerns
Kildee
Kilpatrick
Kind (WI)
King (NY)
Kingston
Kirk
Klecza
Knollenberg
Kolbe
Kucinich
LaFalce
LaHood
Lampson
Langevin
Lantos
Larsen (WA)
Larson (CT)
Latham
LaTourette
Leach
Lee
Levin
Lewis (CA)
Lewis (GA)
Lewis (KY)
Linder
Lipinski
LoBiondo
Lofgren
Lowey
Lucas (KY)
Lucas (OK)
Luther
Lynch
Maloney (CT)
Maloney (NY)
Manzullo
Markey
Mascara
Matheson
Matsui
McCarthy (MO)
McCarthy (NY)
McCollum
McCrery
McDermott
McGovern
McHugh
McInnis
McIntyre
McKeon
McKinney
McNulty
Meehan
Meek (FL)
Meeks (NY)

Menendez
Mica
Millender-McDonald
Miller, Dan
Miller, Gary
Miller, Jeff
Mink
Mollohan
Moore
Moran (KS)
Moran (VA)
Morella
Murtha
Myrick
Nadler
Napolitano
Neal
Nethercutt
Ney
Northup
Norwood
Nussle
Oberstar
Obey
Olver
Ortiz
Osborne
Ose
Otter
Owens
Oxley
Pallone
Pascarell
Pastor
Payne
Pelosi
Pence
Peterson (MN)
Peterson (PA)
Phelps
Pickering
Pitts
Platts
Pombo
Pomeroy
Portman
Price (NC)
Pryce (OH)
Putnam
Quinn
Radanovich
Rahall
Ramstad
Rangel
Regula
Rehberg
Reyes
Reynolds
Riley
Rivers
Rodriguez
Roemer
Rogers (KY)
Rogers (MI)
Rohrabacher
Ros-Lehtinen
Ross
Rothman
Roybal-Allard
Royce
Rush
Ryan (WI)
Ryun (KS)
Sabu
Sanchez
Sanders
Sandlin
Sawyer
Saxton
Schaffer
Schakowsky
Schiff

Schrock
Scott
Sensenbrenner
Serrano
Sessions
Shadegg
Shaw
Shays
Sherman
Sherwood
Shimkus
Shows
Shuster
Simmons
Simpson
Skeen
Skelton
Slaughter
Smith (MI)
Smith (NJ)
Smith (TX)
Smith (WA)
Snyder
Solis
Souder
Spratt
Stark
Stearns
Stenholm
Strickland
Stump
Stupak
Sullivan
Sununu
Sweeney
Tancredo
Tanner
Tauscher
Tauzin
Taylor (MS)
Taylor (NC)
Terry
Thomas
Thompson (CA)
Thompson (MS)
Thornberry
Thune
Thurman
Tiahrt
Tiberi
Toomey
Towns
Turner
Udall (CO)
Udall (NM)
Upton
Velazquez
Visclosky
Vitter
Walden
Walsh
Wamp
Waters
Watkins (OK)
Watson (CA)
Watt (NC)
Watts (OK)
Waxman
Weiner
Weldon (FL)
Weldon (PA)
Weller
Wexler
Whitfield
Wicker
Wilson (NM)
Wilson (SC)
Wolf
Woolsey
Wu
Wynn
Young (AK)
Young (FL)

NAYS—1

Paul

NOT VOTING—7

Brown (SC)
Engel
Gordon
Miller, George
Roukema
Tierney
Traficant

□ 1839

Ms. SANCHEZ changed her vote from "nay" to "yea."

So the bill was passed.

The result of the vote was announced as above recorded.

A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

Stated for:

Mr. BROWN of South Carolina. Mr. Speaker, on rollcall No. 277 I was unavoidably detained. Had I been present, I would have voted "yea."

FURTHER MESSAGE FROM THE SENATE

A further message from the Senate by Mr. Monahan, one of its clerks, announced that the Senate has passed a bill and concurrent resolution of the following titles in which the concurrence of the House is requested:

S. 2690. An act to reaffirm the reference to one Nation under God in the Pledge of Allegiance.

S. Con. Res. 125. Concurrent resolution providing for a conditional adjournment or recess of the Senate and a conditional adjournment of the House of Representatives.

INCREASING PUBLIC DEBT LIMIT

Mr. THOMAS. Mr. Speaker, pursuant to House Resolution 462, I call up Senate bill (S. 2578) to amend title 31 of the United States Code to increase the public debt limit, and ask for its immediate consideration in the House.

The Clerk read the title of the Senate bill.

The text of S. 2578 is as follows:

S. 2578

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

SECTION 1. INCREASE IN PUBLIC DEBT LIMIT.

Subsection (b) of section 3101 of title 31, United States Code, is amended by striking "$5,950,000,000,000" and inserting "$6,400,000,000,000".

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. SIMPSON). Pursuant to House Resolution 462, the gentleman from California (Mr. THOMAS) and the gentleman from New York (Mr. RANGEL) each will control 30 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from California (Mr. THOMAS).

Mr. THOMAS. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, more than a month ago, this House passed H.R. 4775 by a vote of 280-138, a clear bipartisan majority. That bill created the ability to address the debt limit. For over a month, the Senate has not responded to addressing the debt limit.

However, recently the Senate sent to the House S. 2578, a bill to raise the debt limit. Debt-limit bills usually originate in the House. In fact, the last time this situation faced the House was in 1946. In 1946, the Senate sent the House a debt ceiling bill. On the floor of the House then-majority leader John McCormick referred that bill to the Committee on the Judiciary. The House did not consider the attempt by the Senate to initiate debt-limit legislation.

So today, in the act of considering a Senate-initiated debt-limit bill, we are in a situation which, based upon the data provided to me by the Parliamentarians, could be considered to be an unprecedented situation. But given the circumstances surrounding the way in which we are required to take this bill up, it should not be considered a precedent because for over a month we could have been engaging in the historical usual pattern of addressing debt limit.

It is quite true that that measure that was presented to the House in 1946 was a Senate bill to lower the debt limit, not to raise it. That is why the House, in attempting to preserve its prerogative, felt comfortable in referring the bill to the Committee on the Judiciary from which it never surfaced. But a bill to lower the debt limit, as Members appreciate, does not contain within it the need to act, as does a bill that increases the debt limit.

The failure of the Senate to act on the invitation to address the debt limit by the House means that the Senate has successfully run down the clock by which we could utilize the House initiation of addressing the debt limit. So as far as the chairman of the Committee on Ways and Means is concerned, the measure before us should not be considered a change in the historic relationship between the House and the Senate over the origination of debt-limit legislation; but, rather the action taken today is a one-time acknowledgment of the exigencies of the circumstances facing the House. We are dealing with this purely to facilitate the movement of this bill to the President's desk, and it should not be interpreted as a precedent-changing situation.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

□ 1845

Mr. RANGEL. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

A lot of strange things are happening on the Republican watch as the Committee on Ways and Means loses all of its jurisdiction. I was just about to blame the Republican leadership; and, lo and behold, it is the Senate that is responsible. Every time I get ready to be critical of the Republican leadership for bypassing the House rules, by creating rules to pass legislation, I hear my distinguished and talented and intellectual chairman say, "This is not unprecedented. This is just the first time it is happening because what is unprecedented is what the other body is doing. Shame on the other body."

Let me tell you this. We are the keepers of the tradition of the House, and these rules are being violated each and every day. Who would think at a time of war when our Nation is still in recession, where we are trying to bring our wounds together, where we recognize that, sure, we lost 5 or $6 trillion in the surplus, it was not the Republicans' fault, it was because the economy let us down. But now that we are asked to increase the debt ceiling, we are no longer Republicans and Democrats, we are Americans, and we are going to say, yes, let's do it.

Why? Because Republicans are trustworthy? Of course we cannot say that. Because we come together when the full faith and credit of the United States is at stake. When that flag goes up, then we have no choice except to increase the debt ceiling. It is just the same as finding out at home that when you find out that your credit has run out, you can start pointing fingers, but if you need an extension or the mortgage is going to be foreclosed, then you have to get the extension.

All we want to know is, what did you do with the money? How are you going to spend the additional money that you are going to borrow? And if the Senate is so irresponsible, why did the House not act sooner? Why did the Committee on Ways and Means not come together in a bipartisan way and bring something to the floor?

Mr. Speaker, the Senate may have a lot of things that they are doing in an unprecedented way, and they should be subject perhaps to a lot of criticism. But the inadequacy of the House leadership and the fact that my historically prestigious committee is losing jurisdiction each and every day under Republican leadership, let us not blame that on the Senate.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. THOMAS. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

I am trying to understand how the Committee on Ways and Means is losing jurisdiction when the chairman of the committee and the ranking member are debating a bill brought to us by a rule which allows no amendments, exactly the way in which legislation coming from the Committee on Ways and Means is always dealt with.

I think if you have really followed this debate over time, you will understand the dynamics of the debate. If we do not do it, we get criticized. If we do it, we get criticized. If in fact the measure before us, which originated in the Senate and is the work product of the Senate leadership and the gentleman from New York finds the Senate's language and structure unacceptable, then his problem is with the leadership of the Senate, not of the leadership of this House.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. RANGEL. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Washington (Mr. McDERMOTT), a senior member of the Committee on Ways and Means.

Mr. McDERMOTT. Mr. Speaker, I always am impressed by the chairman of the committee's use of words. He said that we are out here because of the exigencies of circumstances. What he means is, we made a mess and we got to fix it. It is a mess that did not have to happen.

Mr. Speaker, I refer to an op-ed of Sunday, February 11, 2001, by Robert Rubin that is called A Prosperity Easy to Destroy. It says in short:

The proposed tax cut of roughly $2 trillion—$1.6 trillion of tax cuts plus $400 billion of interest on debt that would otherwise have been retired—would substantially diminish the fiscal position of the Federal Government, and would create a serious threat of deficits on the nonentitlement side of the Federal budget.

This was all predicted in February of last year. We came out here, and we have been told, "You can spend all you want, you can give it all away, you can do all these things."

He actually even predicted that there would not be any money for a prescription drug benefit. Ha. Mr. Rubin knew very well. He is the guy that brought us out of the mess that you created between 1980 and 1992. Two Republicans, Mr. Reagan, Mr. Bush, they dug the hole, we dug us out of it, and now you are back into it and you call it the exigencies of circumstances. Why do you not admit you have made a mess? You cannot get the votes for your prescription drug benefit because it is inadequate and everybody knows it. You are privatizing Medicare and you are trying to hide this debt raising right underneath the prescription drug benefit.

If you are lucky and you can squeeze the votes out of your people, the press tomorrow will talk about Republicans pass inadequate drug benefit. They will never mention this business about the mess you created fiscally in this country. You ought to be ashamed of yourself bringing it out here like this.

The article referred to is as follows: [From the New York Times, Feb. 11, 2001]

A PROSPERITY EASY TO DESTROY

(By Robert E. Rubin)

I had not intended to get involved in the public debate on fiscal policy at this point, but I feel so strongly that a tax cut of the magnitude proposed is a serious error in economic policy that I felt a need to speak.

The proposed tax cut of roughly $2 trillion—$1.6 trillion of tax cuts plus $400 billion of interest on debt that would otherwise have been retired—would substantially diminish the fiscal position of the federal government, and would create a serious threat of deficits on the non-entitlement side of the federal budget. That, in turn, could increase interest rates and recreate the loss of consumer and business confidence associated with the deficits of the late 80's and early 90's.

Over the last 20 years, our nation has seen the benefits of fiscal discipline, and also the adverse consequences of a lack of fiscal discipline. Big tax cuts are a fast way back to deficits and economic stress. From these experiences, there are lessons that should guide policymakers. First, we gain greatly when our nation is clearly committed to budgetary discipline and lose greatly when it is not. Second, it is wise to be prudent—we should avoid committing ourselves to dramatic courses of action that are hard to reverse in the face of the inherent uncertainties of any projections. Third, we have a duty not to pass on burdens to the next generation when we can act today. The size of the proposed tax cut fails all these tests.

Instead, the fiscal discipline that was so central to the remarkable economic conditions of the past eight years is the best path for both our short-term and long-term economic well-being. A brief look back can provide very useful guidance for going forward.

In 1992, the unemployment rate was over 7 percent, the fiscal deficit was $290 billion and projected by the Congressional Budget Office to grow to over $500 billion in 2001 from there, the federal debt had quadrupled over the preceding 12 years and was projected to double again by 2001, and the prevailing view was that economic conditions would remain mediocre well into the future.

The economic transformation that followed included massive job creation, rising incomes, low inflation, unemployment now at 4.2 percent, and today's large current and projected surpluses. Many factors contributed to this transformation, including globalization, new technologies, vast corporate restructuring and our flexible labor and capital markets. But I think there is no doubt that key and indispensable to this was the restoration of fiscal discipline, beginning with the deficit reduction program of 1993.

Just how dramatic a change in economic policy this was is evidenced by the vituperativeness of opposition, with strident prediction of vast increases in unemployment and recession.

Instead, fiscal discipline contributed greatly to lower interest rates and, very, very importantly, restoration of confidence by consumers and business after deficits had come to symbolize a much broader set of concerns about our ability to manage our affairs. The result was increased demand; increased investment, especially in the new technologies; increased productivity; and sustained growth in gross domestic product, jobs and incomes.

We are now in the process of unwinding the excesses that, in my view, inevitably develop after an extended period of good times. To minimize the difficulty and duration of that unwinding and to best realize our very favorable longer-term prospects, we should continue with our hard-won fiscal discipline and not adopt a greatly outsized tax cut that seriously threatens the federal government's fiscal soundness.

There is broad agreement amongst virtually all mainstream economists that a tax cut this year is unlikely to provide meaningful economic stimulus to deal with whatever adverse circumstances may occur this year. Moreover, if a tax cut is desired for short-term stimulative purposes, the vast preponderance of the one proposed—which affects later years—is largely irrelevant. Instead, a front-end-loaded, moderate tax cut, or even a special rebate aimed at working people with the highest propensity to spend, would maximize current economic impact. The point would be to achieve increased short-term demand without causing a level of fiscal deterioration that would, on balance, damage confidence.

The serious threat of the proposed tax cut to fiscal soundness becomes apparent when you look at the numbers a little more closely. The surplus of $5.6 trillion as projected by the C.B.O. is roughly $2.1 trillion after deducting Social Security and Medicare surpluses—as many members of Congress in both parties have advocated—and making realistic adjustments to better represent future spending on current discretionary programs and tax revenues. Since the proposed tax cut would cost $2 trillion, or $2.2 trillion if an alternative minimum tax adjustment is included, it would entirely use up the remaining surplus, with no additional debt reduction. And that leaves nothing for special programs that already have broad support, like a prescription drug benefit or a greater increase in defense spending for a missile defense system, or other purposes or additional tax cuts, all of which are almost sure to happen this year or over the next few years. These spending increases and the additional tax cuts could well cost between $500 billion and $1 trillion, leading to a deficit under this analysis of the C.B.O. projections.

Moreover, five-year budget forecasts, to say nothing of 10-year forecasts, are highly unreliable—just look at the forecasts that were made five or 10 years ago. Thus, even if you favored a very large tax cut as the preferred use for available surplus—which I emphatically do not—even a moderate degree of prudence would suggest waiting a few years to see whether or not the projected surpluses are actually occurring, meanwhile paying down debt. That would also be in plenty of time to deal with any concerns about the uses that might be made of the surplus after the debt is retired. The suggestion that tax cuts could be rescinded if projected surpluses don't materialize seems unlikely politically.

The political impetus in Washington is toward tax cuts and spending. Real progress has been made over the past decade toward a political mindset of discipline, but that is always highly vulnerable, and a very large tax cut is a significant step back to the political mindset that produced the deficits and quadrupling of the debt from 1980 to 1992.

The imperative for maintaining our fiscal discipline and not taking a risk of losing the current opportunity to retire the publicly held debt of the federal government is increased by the importance of putting the federal government in the best possible position to meet the Social Security and Medicare requirements of future generations, when the federal budget is projected to be in deficit again.

All of this is independent of the question of how best to use the surplus available on a fiscally sound basis. My own preference would be to divide this between debt reduction, a more moderate tax cut predominantly favoring middle-income and lower-income people, and special initiatives in important areas like education and health care. Others have different views. But we should all agree that it would be profoundly unwise to seriously risk the hard-won fiscal discipline that has brought so many benefits to our nation.

We have had a remarkable eight years after a far more difficult period, including a recession in 1990. We should learn from experience and stay with a landmark change in strategy that worked, not take the path that experience suggests poses a real threat to our economic well-being.

Mr. RANGEL. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Texas (Mr. STENHOLM), one of the outstanding Members of the House.

Mr. STENHOLM. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman for yielding me this time. I want to make it very clear that this side of the aisle has been in favor of raising the debt ceiling clean since at least March. We have made repeated offers. What we are not in favor of doing is increasing the debt ceiling with a blank check to continue to borrow money without changing our economic game plan.

I join with Chairman THOMAS in his opening remarks because it is in the same spirit that he referenced back to 1946 that we attempted to have an offer of an amendment today to lower the amount of debt ceiling from $450 billion to a $150 billion increase. That is exactly the same spirit in which it was done in 1946. We asked for that to be made in order, but the rule once again denied the minority an opportunity to have a clean up and down vote on an alternative.

I do not understand why we continue to have the inability to have debate on issues as important as the debt ceiling is. I hope no one makes the argument that we are here as obstructionists. We are here today positively saying we will offer in the motion to commit—recommit, commit, whatever the new terminology is—this bill back to the Committee on Ways and Means with an instant recall at $150 billion so that we might have another look at the budget prior to the end of this fiscal year when CBO re-estimates.

It is fiscally irresponsible for this group, this House, to stand on this floor and increase by $450 billion without revisiting the economic game plan that we are under. Take a look at State after State after State in which governors are having to make tough decisions. Here we are no longer tax and spend, we are borrow and spend. That is exactly what this resolution will do. Those who vote for it today will be voting to borrow and spend another $450 billion with the exact same economic game plan that has gotten us into the problem that we are in today.

I do not understand this. I do not understand why, once again, the chairman comes on, and no one comes over and debates.

Where is the debate?

Mr. RANGEL. Where is the debate? Well, I guess it is all on the outside. I can understand the problem.

Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Michigan (Mr. LEVIN), a senior member of the Committee on Ways and Means.

Mr. LEVIN. Mr. Speaker, Democrats will vote to raise the debt ceiling when there is a plan to reverse fiscal irresponsibility. There is no plan. The fiscal irresponsibility began right here in this U.S. House of Representatives under your majority, and now you try to shift the blame to the Senate, trying to obscure the fact that the irresponsibility commenced right here.

We told you that the sheer size of the tax cut made all of your plan a risky gamble. We warned you the projections of future budget surpluses were not written in stone. As it turned out, they were written in sand, in substantial part because of your policies.

We have gone from surpluses as far as the eye could see to deficits as far as the eye can see. You are diverting Social Security and Medicare to pay for your tax cuts and other irresponsible programs. The majority has compounded its irresponsibility, as I have said, by tonight saying raise the debt ceiling without any plan to stem the red ink in this budget. It is another $450 billion that will come where? From Social Security and Medicare payroll taxes. You have no plan. All you are trying to do is to shift the blame.

This Congress is obliged to raise the debt ceiling, we are obliged to pay our debts, but we should not just write a blank check, which is what you want. We need a plan to stop this raid on Social Security and Medicare.

I urge my colleagues to vote "no" on this resolution, to vote "no" until you become fiscally responsible with the funds of our fellow and sister citizens.

Mr. THOMAS. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

They wanted to know where is the debate? I am trying to figure out what it is that I am supposed to debate. The gentleman from Michigan comes on the floor and says Democrats will vote to increase the debt limit. The measure in front of us is to increase the debt limit. But the gentleman then said he asked his colleagues to vote "no" on the resolution.

Which position are you supposed to debate? Yes or no? I find it interesting that if they knew last year prior to September 11 that we were going to have all of those problems associated with the tragedy around the 11th and the consequent commitment by this President to carry the war to the terrorists and they were prescient enough to know that the country was going to face that situation, gee, I wish they would have let us know that was going to happen. We could have taken some procedures and some steps that would have certainly been far more humane than what occurred.

I find that people who are more than willing to use hindsight as the reason for taking a position rather interesting when shortly they will also urge their colleagues to vote "no" on the Medicare package. Only this time their argument is going to be that we do not spend enough. We are only going to spend $350 billion.

The beauty of the Democrats' ability to debate is they are masters at compartmentalizing. Right now it is, "You spendthrifts, we have to raise the debt limit." Several hours from now it will be, "You cheapskates, you are not willing to spend enough to help the seniors."

And they say, why are you not willing to debate? I am trying to figure out which Democrat I am supposed to debate. The one that is complaining the Republicans are spendthrifts and we have to raise the debt limit? Or the one who is saying, you are cheapskates, you are not willing to spend enough, $800 billion, to help seniors.

I guess the problem I have is that the gentleman from Florida (Mr. HASTINGS) in characterizing a Member several days ago puts me in exactly that dilemma.

Mr. Speaker, I yield the balance of my time and yield the control of the time to the gentleman from Texas (Mr. ARMEY), the majority leader.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. SIMPSON). Without objection, the gentleman from Texas will control the time for the majority.

There was no objection.

Mr. RANGEL. Mr. Speaker, I yield to the distinguished leader. We were calling for debate. We did not know you were going to bring out the leader. We want to hear what he has to say about this since the chairman of Committee on Ways and Means is confused.

Mr. ARMEY. Mr. Speaker, I am happy to yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Michigan (Mr. SMITH).

Mr. SMITH of Michigan. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman for yielding time.

I am a farmer. I think, just for the sake of being honest and not hoodwinking the American people, maybe we should get this, if you will, discussion out of the hay mound and down on the barn floor where we can chew it up seriously.

□ 1900

The fact is, maybe I would make an analogy that my family that I love went out and spent more money than they should and now the question is, do we pay that credit card bill? So, reluctantly, probably as one of the most fiscal Members of this Congress, I say, look, we have to pay our bills.

The problem has been on that spending. Let me give my colleagues an example. If we held the line on spending since President Clinton came into office in 1994 we would not have this problem today. That is not just Democrat control; it is the Republican control. There is an overzealousness to spend, and that is what we have been doing.

Let me give my colleagues this example. In 1998, we passed and executed a plan designed to balance the budget by 2002. That is what we promised in 1998. That budget projected fiscal 2002, this year's revenues, at just under $1.89 trillion. Actual revenues, even after the tax cut, were way in excess of that, according to CBO, and now are expected to come in over $2 trillion, or more than 5 percent above the projection. However, it was spending. Our projection in 1998 for outlays were under $1.89 trillion and are now expected to be $110 billion higher than we projected. It should be clear that it is spending.

Now, this tough question: I do not want to vote to increase the debt ceiling without some kind of a plan like every family has, like every business has, to say, look, we are going to borrow a little more, but we are going to have to pay it back sometime. How are we going to eventually pay it back so that we do not leave this mortgage to our kids?

Mr. Speaker, we have a situation where the $35 billion in increased defense expenditures and $6 billion expanded homeland are part of the problem. We have to deal with that national security problem. Let us pass this debt ceiling, but, likewise, let us move ahead and have a plan of how we are going to repay this debt so that we do not leave it to our kids.

Mr. RANGEL. Mr. Speaker, I agree with the gentleman. All we need is a plan.

Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. NEAL), a member of the Committee on Ways and Means.

Mr. NEAL of Massachusetts. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman for yielding me this time.

The gentleman from Michigan (Mr. SMITH) is precisely on target with his comments. During the 1990s, we understood the need to balance the budget. What was the result? It created the greatest period of economic growth in the history of the Nation. The chairman of the Committee on Ways and Means says, hindsight, it is easy. It is foresight that we undertook in the 1990s. We prepared for the rainy day; that was the whole notion: a national disaster, international conflict, a downturn in the economy.

That is why we do not understand a reckless $2 trillion tax cut. We should have been focused on the items that we might not have been able to control in the near or far future.

Unemployment has gone from 4 percent to 6 percent, the budget deficit is at $250 billion, and a Wall Street analyst said yesterday, the economy and the markets right now are in the midst of a full-blown corporate governance shock. Stock market numbers are down, the value of the dollar has dropped considerably, retail sales have dropped along with consumer confidence, and we continue right down this road.

Now here is the point that I find most focused tonight and the one that I think troubles me perhaps far more than anything else. There were Members on the other side of this body who were going to impeach Secretary Rubin, going to impeach him. Actually, the Committee on Financial Services in this House held hearings on impeaching Bob Rubin because of the debt ceiling question. They would not vote to raise that debt ceiling under any circumstances.

Tonight, the argument is, well, if we had better hindsight, it would be much easier for us to undertake these sorts of initiatives.

The point that we have reached is because of the tax cut, and we have to focus on that issue, and we have to understand it and keep it in perspective. At the same time that we discuss this, American companies are allowed to sneak out of this Nation in a time of war in the dark of night to Bermuda to escape what they contend to be corporate taxes.

Mr. Speaker, $48 billion more, $38 billion more for homeland security. The chairman was mistaken. The problem is not hindsight; the problem is vision and foresight.

Mr. ARMEY. Mr. Speaker, I am happy to yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. TOOMEY).

Mr. TOOMEY. Mr. Speaker, I am amazed that I am hearing talk over here about where is the Republican plan to get out of the predicament that we are in. The obvious question is, where is the Democrat plan? Where has it been? Where is the budget?

I sit on the Committee on the Budget. The Democrats did not have a budget in committee, they did not have a budget on this House Floor, and they have the nerve to come down here and say, where is our plan?

We put a budget together. We put a budget on this floor. We passed it on this floor. We have a plan. They may disagree with it, but they did not have the courage to put a budget on the floor and have an honest debate about it and have an honest vote about it.

Let me tell my colleagues what the plan would look like if we had one. It would be all about more spending, and they know that. I know they do not like tax cuts, but what they wanted to do with that money is they wanted to spend it. I have not been here all that long, this is only my fourth year, but each and every single time that we have had an appropriation bill on this floor, if we did not all agree, and on many we do, but when we did not agree, what was the objection on their side? It was always that it does not spend enough.

Well, let me tell my colleagues, we cannot spend our way into a deficit unless we are spending too much. And the Democrat plan, that I must infer, since they will not put one on the table, can only be that they want to spend even more money.

The Democrats also know for a fact that the big problem that we face is the result of an economic slowdown and a war that we are engaged in. The fact is, if it had not been for the tax cut that we passed last year, I do not know what kind of condition this economy would be in, but it would clearly be in much worse shape than it is in now.

Mr. Speaker, I urge my colleagues to adopt this measure.

Mr. RANGEL. Mr. Speaker, I did not want to embarrass them by saying we told you so, but since he asked for it, I yield 3 minutes to the gentleman from South Carolina (Mr. SPRATT), the distinguished ranking member of the Committee on the Budget, to tell them what our plan was.

Mr. SPRATT. Mr. Speaker, just 18 short months ago, OMB and Treasury both told us that there would be no need to raise the debt ceiling for at least 7 years, not until 2008. OMB told us that they foresaw surpluses coming that would total $5.6 trillion over the next 10 years.

A year later, when OMB sent up its budget, the budget that we are now working upon, it contained a simple pie chart. Look at page S-415. According to OMB's own pie chart, 40 percent of the surplus was a massive miscalculation. It did not take sufficient account of the economy; it technically was deficient. Seventeen percent of the surplus was wiped out by spending increases, much of it for defense, and 43 percent, 43 percent of the projected $5.6 billion surplus, according to OMB's calculation, had been wiped out by the tax cuts, or would be wiped out by the tax cuts enacted last June.

Mr. Speaker, this is the chart, this is the line on this chart right here, this blue line at the bottom, that we would have followed had we followed the budget resolution that we proposed, had we not taken the proposal that the Republicans made and that the President made. This, instead, is the chart that, the line that we are on, the red chart, that is additional debt. That is the bottom line.

This is a bar chart that shows us where we might have been with the publicly-held debt. We could have retired all of the publicly-held debt if we had husbanded our resources and earnestly tried to do it. We had that opportunity. We would have actually paid off most of the publicly-held debt; and, instead, we are going to accumulate $2.8 trillion in additional debt because of the budget that we adopted 2 years ago and still now are implementing.

That is why we find ourselves tonight in June, 2002, not June, 2008, but June, 2002, raising the debt ceiling by $450 billion. Many of us Democrats will not support this bill before us because last year in 2001 we proposed a budget.

Speaking of compartmentalizing, we had a budget. We proposed a framework for the budget, and we proposed to set aside in our resolution one-third of the surplus to be used for debt retirement until we had finally reached some agreement for making Social Security/Medicare solvent far into the future. We wanted to commit that extra third of the surplus for that purpose, and our Republican colleagues roundly rejected the idea. They passed a massive tax cut that left no room for error, and that is why we are here tonight slipping through in the space of 1 hour a $450 billion increase in the debt.

We believe that the Government has to meet its obligation, but we do not want to make the Treasury play games with our trust funds. Many of us on this side will vote for a debt increase of $150 billion. This allows us to meet our obligations to our creditors and at the same time meet our obligations to our children, passing a budget that gets us back in balance.

Mr. ARMEY. Mr. Speaker, it is with great pleasure I yield 4 minutes to the gentleman from Iowa (Mr. NUSSLE), the distinguished chairman of the Committee on the Budget.

Mr. NUSSLE. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman for yielding.

First of all, there is nobody in the House of Representatives with more integrity when it comes to numbers on the budget than the gentleman from South Carolina (Mr. SPRATT), and I commend him for what he just said. Except there are a couple of things that he may have forgotten to mention and a couple of rest of the stories.

First of all, it is true that the Democrats last year introduced a budget plan. Of course, they did not have a majority. They could not even get a majority of their own caucus to support the plan, but, yes, some of them did have a plan. If that plan would have been adopted, not only would we be into Social Security this year but we would also be standing here on the floor today knocking up against the debt ceiling.

So you can say you had a plan and you can say that maybe your surplus projections may have been a little bit better, but do not tell us that you were not into Social Security and do not tell us that you were not knocking up against the debt ceiling.

That is last year. Now let us talk about this year. There is no minority plan. There were a couple of members of the Blue Dog Caucus that came forward with our budget with a trigger. So they took our plan, and there is a plan called the House Budget, which we passed in the House and which we have now deemed and which the President has accepted and which we are operating under and which we passed two appropriation bills today and which we will also pass a prescription drug bill later, that is operating in the House of Representatives and is operating for this Federal Government.

We have a plan. There is a challenge with regard to the plan, and I wish you would direct your attention to the other body which has nothing, no bud-et, no plan, no ideas on what to do. Yes, they rushed through a debt ceiling increase and put it over here and we will deal with it today, but when we talk about plans, you do have to at least smile a little bit, and I do see a few of you smiling, that you do not have a plan, and that is when we are talking about plans, the plan that is not there.

But there are a few Members with integrity who are coming to the floor today and putting forward ideas, their ideas for increased spending. There is going to be a prescription drug benefit that is going to come forward from the Democrats a little bit later. It will be, and I think my colleague from the Committee on Ways and Means said earlier it was going to be somewhere in the $600 billion range. Folks, we are getting it scored; and my guess is it could be over a trillion dollars of new mandatory spending.

Oh, but do not worry about that. Let us compartmentalize that. Because we are going to deal with the Republicans and the debt ceiling today, even though we do not have a plan.

And the other thing that many Members with integrity come forward with, they say, you know what, that tax cut that we passed last year was too much, it was way too much, and so let us not do anything about that either except maybe roll it back. That is called a tax increase.

So the plan is foggy, but we are starting to see what the minority side is starting to come up with. It is called higher taxes and more spending, higher taxes and more spending. Now tell me how that plan does not knock up against the debt ceiling?

So I understand you can come to the floor today, and part of not governing means that you do not have to make a choice and you do not have to make a plan and that is fine. You get to have that luxury. But let us just recall history. For 40 years, this trillions of dollars that have been added to the debt were added to the debt by a Democratic-controlled Congress.

□ 1915

It was only over the last 5 years that that debt has started to be reduced. By almost half a trillion dollars that debt was reduced. I think that is a pretty good track record.

One other thing I would just mention, for those who predicted back in February that all this would happen. They have forgotten September 11. September 11 is why we are here. That is why we have to do this today.

Let us vote to increase the debt limit and be responsible about the plan to get us back into fiscal responsibility.

Mr. RANGEL. Mr. Speaker, I yield 15 seconds to the gentleman from South Carolina (Mr. SPRATT).

Mr. SPRATT. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to have made in order an amendment to this bill in the form of H.R. 4758, which is a plan to raise the debt and at the same time commit this Congress to balancing the budget again by the year 2007.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. SIMPSON). Under the Speaker's announced guidelines, the Chair will not recognize request to offer an amendment that would not be germane to the bill.

Mr. SPRATT. I can ask unanimous consent.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair will not recognize for such unanimous consent requests.

PARLIAMENTARY INQUIRIES

Mr. STENHOLM. Parliamentary inquiry, Mr. Speaker.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman may inquire.

Mr. STENHOLM. Mr. Speaker, it is my understanding that by unanimous consent this body may do almost anything if we all agree, all 435.

The debate has been that we have no plan. The gentleman from South Carolina (Mr. SPRATT) offers a plan by unanimous consent. This seems to be or would be in order, unless there is objection from the other side.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. There are certain unanimous consent requests that require clearance from both sides of the aisle. Among those are a request for consideration of non-germane amendments to bills, which this would be.

Mr. STENHOLM. Further parliamentary inquiry, Mr. Speaker.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman may inquire.

Mr. STENHOLM. Again, from the rules that the Chair is reading, this is what I thought I was interpreting, that by unanimous consent we may adjust a rule, if there is no objection from the other side. I hear no objection.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. These are the Speaker's announced and published guidelines for recognition of unanimous consent requests. The Chair will not recognize those unanimous consent requests that have not been cleared by both sides.

Mr. STENHOLM. Mr. Speaker, further parliamentary inquiry.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman may inquire.

Mr. STENHOLM. Mr. Speaker, I now inquire of the chairman of the Committee on the Budget if he would, by unanimous consent, agree, so that we might clear up the problems that the Speaker is having with this, what I consider to be, very fair request.

I have heard objection.

Mr. RANGEL. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, I was smiling, as the gentleman recorded, because I had not seen the chairman of the Committee on the Budget since we lost the $4 trillion. Welcome back.

Mr. Speaker, I yield 1 minute to the gentleman from Texas (Mr. TURNER).

Mr. TURNER. Mr. Speaker, we are debating tonight this bill because our fiscal house is in total disarray. After 8 years of shrinking deficits, and finally reaching one true surplus in fiscal year 2000, we have seen over the last months a deteriorating fiscal condition that has allowed us to be bumping up against the $5.95 trillion statutory debt ceiling, when we were told by Secretary O'Neill just a year ago we would not reach it until 2008.

The truth of the matter is that we need to return to fiscal responsibility. We need to stop raiding the Social Security trust fund. If any corporate executive in America raided the employees' retirement trust funds, they would be thrown into jail. Yet we are doing it tonight.

The truth is, the Democrats have laid out a plan. That plan has been introduced in the form of legislation. That plan says we will agree to a $150 billion increase in the debt ceiling immediately and no further increase until we have a plan to return us to a balanced budget by 2007, until we establish spending caps to control our spending, and until we strengthen and extend the pay-go rules.

That is the Democratic plan. That is what this House should be approving tonight.

Mr. ARMEY. Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

PARLIAMENTARY INQUIRY

Mr. RANGEL. Parliamentary inquiry, Mr. Speaker.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman may inquire.

Mr. RANGEL. If the majority has no further speakers, is it possible they could give us their time, because we have a lot of speakers?

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman from Texas may yield his time if he wishes.

Mr. ARMEY. With all due respect, Mr. Speaker, I was advised by my daddy not to waste time.

Mr. RANGEL. Mr. Speaker, I did not hear what he said. If they do not have any speakers, we have a lot of speakers.

Mr. Speaker, I yield 1 minute to the gentleman from New Jersey (Mr. ANDREWS).

Mr. ANDREWS. Mr. Speaker, I thank my friend, the gentleman from New York, for yielding time to me.

Mr. Speaker, I rise in opposition to this bill. For every $100 the Federal Government is spending, we are now bringing in about $90 worth of revenue. The way we are making up the other $10 is to borrow it. Some of it comes from the Social Security trust fund, and the rest of it comes from the private capital markets. We have reached our limit, or we are about to reach our limit as to what we can borrow.

Logic tells us that what we ought to do is sit down and figure out how we got here. I think it is true that the terrorist attack had something to do with that, indisputably. I think it is true that the recession had a lot to do with it, indisputably. But the other side has to admit that the $2 trillion tax cut that they recklessly put through this House last year also has got something to do with it.

The two parties ought to come together, discuss the alternatives, extend the debt ceiling tonight by an amount necessary to cover us during that period of time, and put our house back in order. That is a reasonable, sensible approach, which is why the other side will not let it get to the floor.

Mr. RANGEL. Mr. Speaker, I yield 1 minute to the gentleman from Utah (Mr. MATHESON).

(Mr. MATHESON asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. MATHESON. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman from New York for yielding time to me.

There is no question that circumstances have changed from where we were a year ago. We acknowledge that we have this war on terrorism. We have homeland security concerns, so the situation has changed.

We ought to change the way we are figuring out what we are doing about the budget. If we have to go borrow more money from a bank to buy a car or a house, we have to tell the bank a story about how we are going to pay them back. That is just common sense. But we do not have that story here. We are not telling people that story. We are telling the American people we want to borrow more money that is going to be on their backs and the next generation and the next generation, with no story about how we are going to pay it back.

So let us all agree that the situation has changed. Let us all agree that we have a tough job ahead of us. Let us roll up our sleeves and work together and come up with some kind of plan on a going-forward basis to put us back in a position of fiscal responsibility.

Mr. RANGEL. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Texas (Mr. DOGGETT), a distinguished member of the Committee on Ways and Means.

Mr. DOGGETT. Mr. Speaker, it was only a few months ago that Republicans were telling us we would not need to touch this debt ceiling until 2008, and feigned concern that we would probably pay down so much debt that we would hurt the economy.

Well, we know that in the meantime much has happened, but one of these developments is the impact of one tax break after another for their wealthy Republican friends and another is that corporate tax abuse has been totally ignored to the extent that some corporations in this country actually have the arrogance, at a time of national security need, to renounce their citizenship, move their mailbox to Bermuda or some other foreign island, and evade their United States taxes at the same time our deficits continue to mount.

It is not just a spending issue, though there have been plenty of spending bills in this House that I have voted against. A loss of tax revenues also contributes to the deficit and a total disinterest and disregard for this aspect of the problem by the Republican leadership.

I do not believe there is a carpet big enough to sweep underneath all the mess that Republicans have made of our budget. After a few years of paying down the deficit, when Americans enjoyed the benefits of lower interest rates to purchase homes and cars, we now face a return to years of one deficit after another. How incredible that at the offer of a unanimous consent resolution to at least say, can we not agree in a bipartisan fashion that by the year 2007 we will be off this deficit financing and we will have a balanced budget, their answer is no; to object, to refuse to consider a commitment to having a balanced budget by at least the year 2007.

We do have a default issue tonight, not about the debt. Rather it is a default in leadership; it is a default in responsibility. We have heard so much talk lately about intelligence failures, but one of the most obvious is the inability to grasp that when the elite do not pay their fair share, like these corporations that are heading offshore, the rest of us have to pick up the tab.

Then Republicans come, as they are tonight, and ask to use our Social Security cards as their credit card for more spending and more tax breaks.

Mr. RANGEL. Mr. Speaker, I yield 1 minute to my friend, the gentleman from Arkansas (Mr. BERRY).

Mr. BERRY. Mr. Speaker, I want to thank the gentleman from New York (Mr. RANGEL) for yielding time to me, and also for his great friendship and leadership.

Mr. Speaker, we have heard the other side come to this floor this evening and talk about this debt as if we did not have good sense over here.

Now, if we are doing so good, Mr. Speaker, how come we are broke? I just do not quite understand that. It is like we did not have enough sense to tell the difference between turnip greens and butter beans.

If we are doing so good, if this plan that the gentleman from Iowa kept referring to a while ago is working so well, how come we are broke? How come we need to borrow another $450 billion, not from ourselves, but from our children and grandchildren, for crying out loud?

Who in their right mind would want to do something like that? Why would we want to come to this floor and borrow another $450 billion from our children and grandchildren and have no idea how we are going to pay it back?

Mr. ARMEY. Mr. Speaker, for a refreshing change in pace, I am more than pleased to yield 4 minutes to the distinguished gentleman from Connecticut (Mr. SHAYS).

Mr. SHAYS. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman for yielding time to me.

Mr. Speaker, when I was elected in 1987, I had one big desire: to get our country's financial house in order and to balance the Federal budget. That was my desire. I did not feel I really had an opportunity to really have an impact on that until John Kasich came and started offering amendments to cut spending in 1989, and more and more of us started to join with him.

Then in 1994 a major change happened: Republicans had an opportunity to lead this House and to try to get our country's financial house in order. We did that by 1997, and in 1998 we ended deficit spending. In 1999 we ended using Social Security reserves. That happened. That is a fact. It was a bipartisan effort.

There are times I voted to increase the national debt, and there are times I voted not to. But when I hear a colleague who has pushed the farm bill so hard talk to us about not increasing the deficit, I think, did that not contribute to increasing the national debt? Is that not a part of spending? When I see some of my colleagues who voted for the defense budget, did that not help increase the national debt?

Now, I also voted for the tax cut. So did a number of Democrats. When the Senate had a chance to repeal the tax cut, only three of them wanted to repeal it. Now, I was uncomfortable when we had a debate to increase the national debt, and it was kind of put into something else. I heard my colleagues say, let us have it clean. So I asked my leadership, and others did, as well, let us have it clean.

There were some who said the $750 billion increase, as the President proposed, is simply so high because it might push us beyond even the election of the President. So when there was an effort by Senator DASCHLE and Republicans jointly to come in with $450 billion and to have it clean, I pleaded with my House leadership to just take it right off this desk and send it to the President. That is what we have an opportunity of doing.

I really think, and I know why my colleagues on this side of the aisle are tempted to do it, there are things they do not like, and this is a way for them to illustrate their contempt, their anger, all the things that are pent up.

□ 1930

I just cannot imagine you would do it on this issue, not on this issue. I cannot imagine that we would tomorrow risk the fact that this may not pass. And, you know what? It may not pass. Maybe you will succeed in getting some Republicans, a few, to vote against it, and maybe my Democratic colleagues will convince the rest of their conference to make a political game of this. In the end, we are simply pushing another debate on this until February, 2003, the next Congress. Maybe the Democrats will be in charge. Maybe the Republicans. But we will have to wrestle with this issue.

But for me there is no question. I voted for the tax cut. I did not vote for the farm bill. I thought the farm bill was an outrage. I think it kind of sent a message that is unfortunate. I voted for the defense bill. I voted for the 9-11 costs. So in the end when you see the votes go up and if my Democratic colleagues are successful in convincing most of their colleagues to vote against this and this goes down, I think tomorrow people will know where the problem is.

This is Senator DASCHLE's bill. It is a Democratic bill in the Senate that we have an opportunity to take off this desk and pass it, and any alteration to this sends it right back to the Senate.

I sincerely hope my colleagues remember, if they voted for the farm bill, that they have some obligations. If they voted for the defense bill, they have some obligations. And the tax cuts which my colleagues are concerned about really have not taken effect. They have come in years in the future. But the one thing that did take effect was the $300 or the $500 or the $600 payment. The Democratic proposal. Thank God. Because as we went into this recession more spending and tax cuts have made this recession less. So I salute my colleagues for making this recession less by spending more and making the debt ceiling increase necessary.

Mr. RANGEL. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Tennessee (Mr. TANNER), a member of the Committee on Ways and Means.

Mr. TANNER. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman from New York (Mr. RANGEL) for yielding me time.

I personally do not care whether it is a Democrat or Republican bill. What we have got in this country is a $6 trillion debt. We are paying a billion dollars a day interest, and all we have asked for is a plan of some kind to get us out of this hole before we pass another $450 billion authority to borrow money. If anybody thinks that is unreasonable, I would like to debate that point. There is not a business or a family listening tonight anywhere in this country that would run their own business like we are running the Nation's business, borrowing another $450 billion with absolutely no plan.

The plan we are operating under does not balance for the next decade without using Social Security trust funds. Now, if anybody can convince the American people that that is a reasonable approach to this Nation's financial problems, I would like to talk to them because it is absolutely, I tell you what you can do. You can bamboozle people a little while, but the American public is not stupid by any stretch of the imagination, and they know that year after year of red ink is sooner or later going to catch up with us and with our children.

I will tell you something else. The most insidious tax raise, tax hike in the world is borrowing money because you pay interest year after year after year, today a billion dollars a day in interest because our predecessors and us did not have the fortitude to either cut the programs we do not like and do not need or to raise the revenue for the ones that we do. That is where we are. This is shifting responsibility, and it is a generational mugging.

Mr. ARMEY. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the distinguished gentleman from California (Mr. CUNNINGHAM).

Mr. CUNNINGHAM. Mr. Speaker, I have got right here in front of me, it took me 5 months to compile this, I have got the votes of every one of the Democratic leadership, every single time, from the gentleman from Missouri (Mr. GEPHARDT), the gentleman from California (Ms. PELOSI), the gentleman from New York (Mr. RANGEL), the gentleman from Maryland (Mr. HOYER), right on down the list, every single time that you voted to take 100 percent of the money out of the Social Security trust fund.

For 40 years your budgets used money out of the Social Security trust fund. When I came here, we had $5 trillion of debt. The gentleman just said, and he is right, not quite a billion dollars a day but almost a billion dollars a day we pay on the interest when we came here.

Now, if you pay down $500 billion it does not take a mathematician to figure if you are paying a billion dollars a day and there is 365 days in a year, you will end up with a lot more billions of dollars. And it keeps going up, and it keeps going up because you cannot pay it down.

I heard the gentleman from Missouri (Mr. GEPHARDT) every single day when I was on the floor in the minority come in and talk, oh, the lady in the red dress. I am sorry. We need a middle-class tax cut. But in 1993, when you had the House, the White House and the Senate, you could not help yourselves. You increased the tax on the middle class. You increased the tax on Social Security. You took every dime out of the Social Security trust fund. You cut veterans COLAs. You cut military COLAs. You called it a deficit reduction plan.

But yet when Republicans came we eliminated that Social Security tax. We gave a middle-class tax cut. And our policies, not one single Democrat bill or budget, not one Democrat budget from the President ever passed. As a matter of fact, Republicans brought up your budgets to show how bad they were.

And for you to get up here and day after day talk about tax breaks for the rich, I talked to some of my colleagues. I said, what are you talking about? You know that is not true. And they said, it is gamesmanship. You lowered the bar too low in this House.

Mr. RANGEL. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from North Dakota (Mr. POMEROY), a member of Committee on Ways and Means.

Mr. POMEROY. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman for yielding me time.

There is a lot of partisan finger pointing, name calling, creative history interpretation. That is not going to get us anywhere. We have a problem on our hands. If we were a family running in the red we would sit at the kitchen table and figure this out. And the answer is not going to be, I got it, let us go to the bank and get the biggest line of credit we possibly can and let everything go the same.

That is what the majority is proposing tonight. They are proposing simply to increase the line of credit and keep on borrowing. Let the wagons roll.

We have to do different than that. We have asked, as we consider this motion, for an alternative to be considered one that would allow the debt to increase through the period of August, avoid any default on obligations of the government before then but require a plan, a plan to come before us to get us to a balanced budget in 7 years.

Let us not talk about partisan antics in the past, Republican or Democrat. Let us together agree. We need a plan. We need it now. And that is what we asked for with the substitute.

I could not be more dismayed that there was an objection and it will not even be allowed to be considered. Because this plan, this strategy of going up with the kind of debt increase they are looking at is the height of irresponsibility. In the next decade, 78 million Americans will turn 65; and the tap each will bring on Social Security and Medicare will strain the Nation's resources in a way it was never strained before.

What we need to do this decade is pay down the debt, not add to the debt. We are leaving for our children a crushing financial burden, if we, now that it is our time in control, and the baby boomers are in the workforce in full force, do not pay our way but merely run up the debt. So we ask the majority for a plan, a plan to be resolved in August of this year before the election, not swept under the rug, not kicked into next year, but now. How are we going to pay our own way?

We were not paying our own way now. That is why you have sought the debt increase. This is ultimately taking money coming in from Social Security and spending it on other government programs. Our children will pick up the tab. It is wrong. Vote this down.

Mr. ARMEY. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Indiana (Mr. PENCE).

Mr. PENCE. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman from Texas (Mr. ARMEY), the distinguished majority leader for yielding me time.

I rise today as a conservative Member of this institution, Mr. Speaker. I did not come here to increase the government's debt. I came here believing, as so many people I represent believe, that if you owe debts, pay debts.

I spoke to an elderly woman on a radio program in Richmond, Indiana, today in the heart of the heartland district that I represent. Mr. Speaker, she said with fear in her voice that she was worried that a conservative like me would not support raising the debt ceiling and would put at risk her Social Security check. She assumed that my loathing of red ink would cause me to vote in such a way or fail to act in such a way that it would jeopardize her benefits and the benefits of people that she loves.

Well, I assured her then and I rise today to assure all of those that are listening, Mr. Speaker, that I will not do that. I truly believe if you owe debts, pay debts. I am a member of a majority in this institution that has repaid the national debt nearly a half of a trillion dollars. We have balanced the budget last year, adopted a plan to actually redeem all of the public debt over the next decade. We were on track, Mr. Speaker, to meet that goal, even after the President's tax cut was adopted.

And then, though it is convenient tonight to forget it on the other side of the aisle, that a recession struck America; and then, of course, as we all experienced here, the devastation in New York City and at the Pentagon. 9-11 struck and hundreds of billions of dollars that the CBO and the OMB and every independent organization in America predicted would be there was no longer there.

The result is that our government now needs to keep its promise to the American people, to all of various entitlement programs, but maybe most especially the program that that elderly woman asked about this morning.

We must raise the statutory debt limit. The truth is they have no budget. They have no credibility on debt reduction. They have no plan to guarantee the full faith and credit. They have no plan for that little old lady in Richmond, Indiana.

Mr. RANGEL. Mr. Speaker, I yield 1 minute to my friend from Kansas (Mr. MOORE).

Mr. MOORE. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman from New York (Mr. RANGEL) for yielding me time.

Mr. Speaker, I speak in opposition to the bill on the floor at the present time. Kansas families live by three simple rules. Number one, do not spend more money than you make. Number two, pay off your debts. Number three, invest in basics in the future.

The basics for our country are national defense, Social Security and Medicare, a highway system, things we all would agree on. The basics for a family are food, shelter and education, health care, things, again, we all would agree on. And yet in this Congress, in this Congress, after we got our budget back in balance, we started down the wrong road again.

Now I do not blame anybody in this Congress for a recession. I do not blame anybody in this Congress for what happened on 9-11 and certainly not the President. And I voted for tax cut, so I do not blame anybody for that as causing the problem we are in. But I think we need to move back to fiscal responsibility.

Initially, Secretary O'Neill asked for a $750 billion increase in the debt limit. I think that is an outrageous blank check to give to this Congress. Now they are asking for $450 billion dollars. I think the appropriate amount is $150 billion and move to a plan to get us back to balance. Just to work together, Republicans and Democrats, to get us back to balance.

Mr. ARMEY. Mr. Speaker, how much time is remaining?

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. SIMPSON). The gentleman from Texas (Mr. ARMEY) has 7½ minutes remaining. The gentleman from New York (Mr. RANGEL) has 5 minutes remaining.

Mr. ARMEY. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the distinguished gentleman from Arizona (Mr. FLAKE).

Mr. FLAKE. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman for yielding me time.

I did not plan to speak on this at all. I was up in my office and could not help but, watching some of the proceedings, I could not help understanding that there is something amiss here to have people, individuals on the Democrat side of the aisle who have voted for nearly every spending program that has been put up, who vote for the airline bail out, who vote for the farm bill, who vote for the education bill, spending bill after spending bill, none of which I voted for and yet I am over here saying to vote for this bill.

Now, how can somebody spend like a drunken sailor and then all of a sudden find religion when it comes to raising the debt limit? This is just like eating a big meal and walking out on the bill. There are only a few people in this House who could in good conscience vote against this bill, and they have spoken. And to see this display of people standing up and saying, we cannot raise the debt limit, that is not responsible, after voting to spend and spend and spend, it is just more than I could take. So I had to come here and talk about it.

□ 1945

Mr. RANGEL. Mr. Speaker, I yield 1 minute to the gentleman from Florida (Mr. DAVIS).

Mr. DAVIS of Florida. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman for yielding me the time.

We have heard the debate tonight. There is one question that lingers. Where are the fiscally responsible members of the Republican House of Representatives? So many of my colleagues campaigned, as many Democrats did, on the virtues of the balanced budget and paying down the debt.

The plan that has been outlined here tonight that was offered as an amendment in the Committee on the Budget by me and others addresses all the concerns that have been expressed. It gives discretion for us to spend some money on security. It allows time to get back to a balanced budget and paying down the debt.

On September 11, thank God we had economic security. We had a balanced budget. We were on our way to paying down the debt. It kept us strong. It keeps us strong. We could not ignore that. We need to get back to it.

The arguments my colleagues make about tax cuts would be better arguments if we did not have the debt in the trillions of dollars, over $4 trillion. The interest payment 2 years ago on that debt exceeded more than we spent on Medicare every year. Now a number of us are worried about the health of the economy.

If we continue down this path without adopting the plan that has been advocated tonight, we will start to drive interest rates up again and we will really be in trouble. I urge rejection of this bill. Let us adopt the plan.

Mr. ARMEY. Mr. Speaker, I have one speaker left. I reserve my time.

Mr. RANGEL. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

At the appropriate time the minority would hope that common sense and fairness would allow us to send this bill to the Committee on Ways and Means and have it reported out the right way with the right amount of increase in the debt.

Mr. Speaker, it is my great honor to yield the remaining time that is left to our distinguished leader from Missouri (Mr. GEPHARDT) in order to close this argument on behalf of the minority.

Mr. GEPHARDT. Mr. Speaker, I rise to urge Members to vote for the motion to commit, which will be presented in a few moments, and if that motion to commit is not passed, I urge Members to vote against the bill.

The power to budget and to pass economic plans carries with it the responsibility to, if it is necessary, raise debt ceilings to accommodate the budget, the economic plan that we are operating under. The economic plan we are operating under is one propounded by the President and the Republican majority in the House. That is their prerogative and that is their right. There was not real collaboration on that plan. There was no need for that collaboration. That also is their right.

If that is the plan that is in place and that plan now leads to deficits and spending Social Security dollars against everything that we said together that we did not want to do because we passed the lockbox at least five times, then it seems to me it is incumbent upon the people who propose that plan to vote to increase the debt ceiling to accommodate the results that that plan has caused.

I have said many times that I would vote tonight or anytime to raise the debt ceiling by $150 billion. I use that amount because I think it is sufficient to buy us a couple of more months' time to try to work out a bipartisan budget that will begin to move us back in the right direction, because I think that is what we ought to do.

I have said to the President that we should have a negotiation, we should have a summit, we should have a meeting, a bipartisan meeting, to try to work out a new budget for our country. I know we cannot get everything we want, and I know that the other side cannot get everything they want; but we had a tragedy in this country on 9-11 that no one anticipated. My colleagues can bet that every family who lost somebody on 9-11 has had a budget conference around their dining room table to come up with a new budget, given the fact that many of them lost their breadwinner or winners on 9-11.

Just as those families suffered tragedy on 9-11, the American families suffered a tragedy on 9-11; and as many of us argued when the budget was on the floor, we should take care of those contingencies if they happen. Well, if 9-11 is not a contingency that happened, I do not know what is. We are faced with a hole in security responsibilities. We are faced with fighting a war in many countries abroad. If that is not a new contingency, I do not know what is.

As an American family, Democrats, Republican, Independents, whatever, we are all Americans tonight; and we ought to be sitting around a table in these next 2 months working out a new budget for America that does not lead us back into all these deficits and spending Social Security dollars that all of us together said we did not want to do.

So in the name of common sense, I ask that we come together tonight. We could get 435 votes to pass $150 billion increase in the debt ceiling and move this country back into a budget that will be good for all Americans at war, fighting for our country, fighting against terrorism, and fighting for American values.

I urge my friends on the other side of the aisle to vote for the motion to commit and let us get back to an American budget that is good for all the American people.

Mr. ARMEY. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself the remaining time.

I have here a letter from the Concord Coalition, a nonpartisan group of distinguished American citizens who concern themselves daily with such matters as balanced budgets; and according to the Concord Coalition, it says that "it is clear that the debt limit must be increased. The Senate has acted and now it is up to the House. Republicans and Democrats alike should put the Nation's creditworthiness ahead of political considerations."

The Concord Coalition goes on to say that "the House must be prepared to act on a stand alone debt limit increase in time to avoid a crisis." It also calls upon us to be nonpartisan or bipartisan.

Mr. Speaker, what in the world could possibly be more bipartisan than to have the Republican majority leader of the House of Representatives schedule for debate and a vote a Senate-passed bill that is authored by the Senate Democrat majority leader? The head of the Democrat Party, the highest-ranking Democrat in America wrote this bill. What could possibly be more bipartisan than the tribute we Republicans are standing here paying to the distinguished leadership of the gentleman from South Dakota, the head of the Democrat Party?

Mr. Speaker, irony of ironies, the gentleman from South Dakota's own party's leadership in this House stands here in militant opposition to the head of their own party's plan to raise the debt ceiling. What are we to make of this partisanship? A party turning upon itself in defiance of the Concord Coalition. What are we to do?

Mr. Speaker, we have before us Senate bill 2578 authored, as I have said, by the highest-ranking elected Democrat in America today, the Senate majority leader, Senator DASCHLE from South Dakota, a bill which when brought to the floor in the other body was passed with a vote of 37 loyal Senate Democrats and 31 thoughtful Senate Republicans. What a bipartisan effort that was. Was it not applauded by even The Washington Post for the spirit of bipartisanship?

Every author of bipartisanship in America stood in reverence at the action in the other body, for the collegiality around the Senate Democrat leader's plan, and yet we bring it to this floor and it is mocked, mocked by members of his own party. Oh, be still my heart. What am I to do with this? What can we say?

Are there 37 brave Democrat souls in this body, loyal to their own party's leadership, afflicted with affection for the gentleman from South Dakota who will stand up and say to the Concord Coalition count me in, I am with my leader, I will vote for Senator DASCHLE's plan? Are there 37 brave souls in this body? Oh, I pray, Mr. Speaker, I pray that they will present themselves.

Let me say, Mr. Speaker, how disappointing it is to see the rejection of that leadership by a bill offered as a motion to commit, in the form of a bill offered by a small band of Members of the Senator's own party who do not even claim to be in the mainstream of their party. These Blue Dogs are treacherous. They are treacherous, Mr. Speaker.

I prevail upon my friends from the other side of the aisle. Look at the example that came before you from the other side of the building. Check the record of how your own, very own Democrat Senator voted. Please vote with him. Save yourselves the embarrassment of having to go home and answer this question at your local party gathering. Do not put yourself in a position where some wonderful lady who has labored in your party for years looks at you with horrified disappointment in her eyes and says why did you vote with that small band of renegades in our party and against the plan offered by our distinguished party leader, the majority leader of the United States Senate, the distinguished Senator DASCHLE?

I cannot believe it. There are times when every party must call upon their own rank and file, men and women of the cloth on the Democrat side of the aisle. Stand by your man. This is your opportunity. Do what is good for America; and oh, yes, those of you in the press, please report my gallant effort to stand here in this well today and defend, yea, defend the good-faith offering of the highest-elected Democrat in America from this unconscionable assault perpetrated against him by, yes, members of his own party. It saddens me to no end.

ANNOUNCEMENT BY THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. SIMPSON). The Chair would remind Members that it is not in order to cast reflections on Senators.

Ms. SLAUGHTER. Mr. Speaker, I rise in strong opposition to S. 2578, legislation to raise the debt ceiling by $450 billion without engaging in a real debate on how to get our nation's fiscal house back in order.

Mr. Speaker, before the House signs off on permanently raising the debt ceiling to $6.4 trillion, I think it would be helpful to take a step back and look at how we got here. It was not September 11th or the war on terrorism or even last year's recession that caused this predicament. Months before the impact of September 11th was realized in the budget, U.S. Treasury Secretary Paul O'Neill asked Congress to raise the debt limit by $750 million in response to deepening deficits that resulted primarily from the President's tax cut. By the Administration's own estimates, last year's tax cut—the one that I cautioned “left no room for error”—is responsible for 43 percent of the total deterioration in our fiscal picture.

So, here we are today, being told by the majority that if we vote against S. 2578, we are being irresponsible. Well, isn't that the pot calling the kettle black? Under their watch, our budget experienced the most dramatic reversal in history, losing $4 trillion in projected surpluses in one year. To my mind, permanently raising the debt ceiling in the absence of a plan to get us back to surpluses is the epitome of fiscal irresponsibility.

Mr. Speaker, last year, the majority's budget asserted that there would be no need to increase the debt limit until 2009. But here we are, poised to consider legislation raising the debt ceiling to $6.4 trillion without being given a chance to offer a plan. Mr. Speaker, it is disgraceful that the majority has decided to block debate on a credible plan to address the short-term crisis and undo our present fiscal mess. My Democratic colleagues, Representatives SPRATT and MOORE, sought to offer a measure that would immediately increase debt limit by $150 billion with the requirement that the President submit a revised budget that is in balance by 2007 without borrowing from Social Security. Regrettably, Mr. Speaker, this reasonable alternative never saw the light of day.

Mr. Speaker, I am simply unwilling to write the federal government a virtual blank check that may or may not keep us in the black until the midterm elections in November. Mr. Speaker, every day, Americans pay $1 billion in interest on our national debt. That's about 16 cents of every dollar they pay in taxes—just to make the interest payment, not even to pay down the debt itself. Moreover, the indirect costs of raising the debt limit and the return to deficits prevent long-term interest rates high for Americans struggling to make mortgage, car, or credit card payments, even as the Federal Reserve has dramatically reduced short term rates.

Mr. Speaker, I urge my colleagues to join me in rejecting this measure and forcing the Republican Leadership to work with the minority to develop a real plan to deal with the deficits that now stretch as far as the eye can see. Until we have a realistic budget that eliminates those deficits, increasing the statutory debt ceiling is pure folly.

Mr. BLUMENAUER. Mr. Speaker, the Treasury Secretary made it clear weeks ago that Congress would have to increase the Federal Government's debt ceiling. Since that time, many of us have been requesting an open debate on a bill to increase the debt ceiling.

How can the Republican leadership explain the debt ceiling increase added to the debate of the military construction appropriations bill by way of a procedural hijacking? This legislative ambush blocks any amendments from being offered, including the Democrats' intent to limit the increase to $150 billion as opposed to the Republican's increase of $450 billion.

I am ready to assure the debt limit is sufficient to meet our obligations, however, I vote against this measure because this chamber and the American people deserve that we conduct business of this manner with a full debate and consideration of reasoned amendments that will clarify a blueprint for fiscal responsibility.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. All time for debate has expired.

Pursuant to House Resolution 462, the Senate bill is considered as having been read for amendment and the previous question is ordered.

The question is on the third reading of the Senate bill.

The Senate bill was ordered to be read a third time, and was read the third time.

MOTION TO COMMIT OFFERED BY MR. MOORE

Mr. MOORE. Mr. Speaker, I offer a motion to commit.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is the gentleman opposed to the bill?

Mr. MOORE. In its current form, yes, Mr. Speaker.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Clerk will report the motion to commit.

The Clerk read as follows:

Mr. MOORE moves that the bill S. 2578 be committed to the Committee on Ways and Means with instructions to report the same back to the House forthwith with the following amendment:

Strike all after the enacting clause and insert the following:

SECTION 1. INCREASE IN PUBLIC DEBT LIMIT.

Subsection (b) of section 3101 of title 31, United States Code, is amended by striking “$5,950,000,000,000” and inserting “$6,100,000,000,000”.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to the rule, the gentleman from Kansas (Mr. MOORE) is recognized for 5 minutes in support of his motion to commit.

Mr. MOORE. Mr. Speaker, the majority leader is leaving this Congress at the end of this term, and he might have a career as a comedian, but this is a very, very serious matter.

Tonight, we are talking, Mr. Speaker, about raising the debt limit of this country. We are, at present, approximately $5.9 trillion in debt. Certainly nobody in this body wants to see the United States of America default on its financial obligations. That will not happen. That is not an option.

But the majority leader has not provided all the information from the Concord Coalition, because I want to quote from their letter. “An increase of roughly $250 billion would be sufficient for now without providing a blank check.” And yet they are asking, the majority leader is asking for $450 billion. We are offering $150 billion, and I think that is sufficient.

If we spend further, we are into Social Security and Medicare, and the people of America need to understand that, Mr. Speaker. That is wrong. We can come together and come up with a plan to meet the obligations of this country without invading Social Security and Medicare.

Mr. Speaker, I yield to the gentleman from South Carolina (Mr. SPRATT), the ranking member of the Committee on the Budget.

Mr. SPRATT. Mr. Speaker, we are not trying to stop an increase in the debt ceiling. Here is what we are trying to stop.

This year, in the most dramatic fiscal reversal we have seen in the time many of us have served in this House, our budget will be in deficit to the tune of $320 billion. Next year, according to our best calculation, our budget will be in deficit by $373 billion. Over the next 10 years, by $2.785 trillion. That is what we seek to stop.

If my colleagues vote for the bill instead of the motion to commit, what they will be voting for is fiscal denial instead of fiscal discipline. They will be voting for a little absolution, a ticket past the next election, a ticket past the next budget resolution, but we will simply put off dealing with this problem, this serious problem, this dramatic reversal.

We wanted to present a plan that would have allowed the budget to be increased by $150 billion and then another $100 billion without any obstacle. But, after that, we could only increase it if we had in place a budget that would be back in balance by 2007. That is what we really seek.

In the absence of being able to offer that plan, what we offer instead is the closest thing to it, an increase in the debt ceiling of $150 billion which will bring us back to this problem which we will have to address but will allow us to keep to our obligation to our creditors and, at the same time, allow us to keep our obligation to our children and not leave them burdened with overwhelming debt.

Mr. MOORE. Mr. Speaker, I yield to the gentleman from Texas Mr. STENHOLM.

Mr. STENHOLM. Mr. Speaker, I want to begin by congratulating my Republican colleagues for tonight voting to borrow the money to pay for their policies. I am disappointed, though, that they did not come to the floor with the same enthusiasm defending the vote to borrow the money that they did when they passed the policies that put us into debt. With the exception of the majority leader; his enthusiasm for borrowing $450 billion is unprecedented.

The need to increase the debt limit is not the result of September 11. In fact, the Secretary of the Treasury came to us last August predicting that we were going to have to borrow money when we were looking at the economic game plan that we were under. We agree on this side unanimously, well, almost unanimously, that we need to increase the debt limit by $150 billion tonight, and we will get over 400 votes to do it. What we object to is providing a blank check to borrow $450 billion to stay on the same economic game plan.

Now, my friend from Arizona made the comments about the spending. I would point out that every single spending vote this year that has occurred has come under the Republican-passed budget that we supported in the Blue Dogs but that my colleagues would never allow us to have the trigger on. So do not blame us for the spending when it is the Republican budget that we are spending to. In fact, we agree that we should not increase spending more than the President has asked us to spend.

That is not the issue tonight. The issue tonight is whether or not we are going to have a new economic game plan or whether we should borrow $450 billion with a blank check to continue spending.

Now, I am perfectly willing to roll up my sleeves in a bipartisan way and work with the majority if they would just let us. But we will have a pharmaceutical bill on the floor later tonight in which we will be denied an opportunity to vote on. My Republican colleagues denied us an opportunity to have the Hill bill, the Moore bill on the floor today, and yet the chairman said a moment ago, where is the debate?

I have been begging my colleagues to debate me on whether we should borrow $450 billion or $150 billion. When we vote for the bill, we are borrowing $450. We could do it at $150 and be fiscally responsible. That is the issue. Vote for the motion to commit.

Mr. NUSSLE. Mr. Speaker, I rise in opposition to the motion to commit.

Mr. Speaker, I cannot help but recall the minority leader's comments when he said there was no collaboration, that there was no discussion, that there was no working together.

I seem to remember a lot of working together, a lot of collaboration that got us to this point. I seem to remember a number of late-night meetings in September, when, in a bipartisan way, we decided to reach into that surplus, and there was not much left, but to reach into that surplus and take money and deal with the emergency. I seem to remember a bill that we voted on nearly unanimously to pay for a war against terrorism. Bipartisan. We reached in another time and did the same thing. I seem to remember a bill that came to the floor in a bipartisan way that said, you know what, that pre-attack recession has gotten worse and we need an economic stimulus.

So let us reach in there again and let us make sure that we deal with the economy the way we did with the war and the way we did with the emergency.

Now, all of a sudden, the minority leader rushes to the floor and says, gosh, there was no collaboration, no one talked to us, no one consulted us. Now we need a plan all of a sudden. We have had a plan: It is called deal with the circumstances that were dealt last September. That was our plan. And we did it together. We did it together.

So tonight we have to do together what the other body did with the Senate Daschle bill, and that is to increase the debt limit to deal with the cards that we were dealt.

Now, if my colleagues want a plan, present one, but do not come down here and blame the tax cuts without having the courage or the guts to give us a plan to raise those taxes back up again.

And, no, I will not yield, because I am tired of my colleagues coming down here and demagoguing tax cuts and not having one ounce of guts to tell us their plan to increase those taxes back up. No, I will not yield, and I will not yield to Members who come in here and say, oh, gosh, but you are doing all the spending, when tonight my colleagues' bill on prescription drugs will be three times the bill that we offer on prescription drugs.

The applause is there, but where is the guts to vote for the increase in the debt ceiling to pay for it? That is called tax and spend, and we have seen it before. We are not going to allow it again.

Mr. Speaker, I yield to the gentleman from Texas (Mr. ARMEY), the distinguished majority leader.

Mr. ARMEY. Mr. Speaker, when we come down to the final analysis, we have before us a bill authored by Senator DASCHLE, the highest-ranking elected Democrat in America; and in the judgment of the Senator, $450 billion was the right compromise between what was asked by the Secretary of the Treasury and what others might have proposed to him.

Thirty-seven Democrat colleagues agreed with the Senator as they passed this bill to the House.

POINT OF ORDER

Mr. SPRATT. Mr. Speaker, I object to the references to the other body, when the Chair has previously advised the other side that it is improper to refer to action in the other body in support of the motion and which they are supposed to argue otherwise independently against.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair will remind all Members not to characterize the position of a Senator on a legislation issue.

Mr. ARMEY. Mr. Speaker, if we were to amend this substitute, something else for what the other body has sent us, it would go back to the other body and then we would be up in the air again. There is so much that would be left to uncertainty: the difficult financial gymnastics of the Secretary of the Treasury, already beleaguered by our delay.

It turns out that the $450 billion increase in the debt limit is exactly the same increase that we passed in 1997 at the request of the then Democrat administration, President Clinton; and, having done so, we found ourselves free to not revisit this issue for 5 years. Five years.

POINT OF ORDER

Mr. RANGEL. Mr. Speaker, I object to the gentleman characterizing the ex-President of the United States of America, President Clinton, who actually brought about the surplus that we used to enjoy.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman's objection is not well taken.

Mr. ARMEY. Mr. Speaker, as I said, in 1997, we passed a debt limit increase of $450 billion at the request of the President that was in office at that time. It lasted for 5 years that we did not have to revisit this issue. That was a good thing. Because for several years prior to this majority taking over the House, we did not revisit it in the House because we had something called the Gephardt rule. That rule said the House never had to deal with these issues; they would just be done automatically. That was comfortable, but it did not in fact give us this wonderful opportunity to rejoice in this.

Well, what was my point? In 1997, we passed a debt limit increase of $450 billion, exactly the request that has been sent to this body by the other body, authored by the majority leader in the other body, voted for by 37 Members of the other body, and that will take us perhaps for a while.

This substitute that my colleagues are being asked to vote for guarantees us the right to come back and deal with this issue in September or October. We will be guaranteed the right to do this again.

Now, I just do not believe we have got that many more entertaining speeches left in us.

I say vote against the substitute, the motion to commit, and vote for the Senate majority leader's bill.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Without objection, the previous question is ordered on the motion to commit.

There was no objection.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The question is on the motion to commit.

The question was taken; and the Speaker pro tempore announced that the noes appeared to have it.

Mr. MOORE. Mr. Speaker, I object to the vote on the ground that a quorum is not present and make the point of order that a quorum is not present.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Evidently, a quorum is not present.

The Sergeant at Arms will notify absent Members.

Pursuant to clause 9 of rule XX, the Chair will reduce to a minimum of 5 minutes the time for any electronic vote on the question of passage of the Senate bill.

The vote was taken by electronic device, and there were—yeas 207, nays 222, not voting 6, as follows:

[Roll No. 278]

YEAS—207

Abercrombie	Baldacci	Berkley
Ackerman	Baldwin	Berman
Allen	Barcia	Berry
Andrews	Barrett	Calvert
Baca	Becerra	Blagojevich
Baird	Bentsen	Blumenauer

Bonior	Hoyer	Oliver
Borski	Inslee	Ortiz
Boswell	Israel	Owens
Boucher	Jackson (IL)	Pallone
Boyd	Jackson-Lee	Pascarell
Brady (PA)	(TX)	Pastor
Brown (FL)	Jefferson	Payne
Brown (OH)	John	Pelosi
Capps	Johnson, E. B.	Peterson (MN)
Capuano	Jones (OH)	Phelps
Cardin	Kanjorski	Pomeroy
Carson (IN)	Kaptur	Price (NC)
Carson (OK)	Kennedy (RI)	Rahall
Clay	Kildee	Rangel
Clayton	Kilpatrick	Reyes
Clement	Kind (WI)	Rivers
Clyburn	Kleczka	Rodriguez
Conyers	Kucinich	Roemer
Costello	LaFalce	Ross
Coyne	Lampson	Rothman
Cramer	Langevin	Roybal-Allard
Crowley	Lantos	Rush
Cummings	Larsen (WA)	Sabo
Davis (CA)	Larson (CT)	Sanchez
Davis (FL)	Lee	Sanders
Davis (IL)	Levin	Sandlin
DeFazio	Lewis (GA)	Sawyer
DeGette	Lipinski	Schakowsky
DeLaHunt	Lofgren	Schiff
DeLauro	Lowey	Scott
Deutsch	Lucas (KY)	Serrano
Dicks	Luther	Sherman
Dingell	Lynch	Shows
Doggett	Maloney (CT)	Skelton
Dooley	Maloney (NY)	Slaughter
Doyle	Markey	Smith (WA)
Edwards	Mascara	Snyder
Eshoo	Matheson	Solis
Etheridge	Matsui	Spratt
Evans	McCarthy (MO)	Stark
Farr	McCarthy (NY)	Stenholm
Fattah	McCollum	Strickland
Filner	McDermott	Stupak
Ford	McGovern	Tanner
Frank	McIntyre	Tauscher
Frost	McKinney	Thompson (CA)
Gephardt	McNulty	Thompson (MS)
Gonzalez	Meehan	Thurman
Gordon	Meek (FL)	Tierney
Green (TX)	Meeks (NY)	Towns
Gutierrez	Menendez	Turner
Hall (OH)	Millender	Udall (CO)
Hall (TX)	McDonald	Udall (NM)
Harman	Miller, George	Velazquez
Hastings (FL)	Mink	Visclosky
Hill	Mollohan	Waters
Hilliard	Moore	Watson (CA)
Hinchev	Moran (VA)	Watt (NC)
Hinojosa	Murtha	Waxman
Hoefel	Nadler	Weiner
Holden	Napolitano	Wexler
Holt	Neal	Woolsey
Honda	Oberstar	Wynn
Hooley	Obey

NAYS—222

Aderholt	Cantor	English
Akin	Capito	Everett
Armey	Castle	Ferguson
Bachus	Chabot	Flake
Baker	Chambliss	Fletcher
Ballenger	Coble	Foley
Barr	Collins	Forbes
Bartlett	Combest	Fossella
Barton	Condit	Frelinghuysen
Bass	Cooksey	Galleghy
Bereuter	Cox	Ganske
Biggert	Crane	Gekas
Bilirakis	Crenshaw	Gibbons
Blunt	Cubin	Gilchrest
Boehlert	Culberson	Gillmor
Boehner	Cunningham	Gilman
Bonilla	Davis, Jo Ann	Goode
Bono	Davis, Tom	Goodlatte
Boozman	Deal	Goss
Brady (TX)	DeLay	Graham
Brown (SC)	DeMint	Granger
Bryant	Diaz-Balart	Graves
Burr	Doolittle	Green (WI)
Burton	Dreier	Greenwood
Buyer	Duncan	Grucci
Callahan	Dunn	Gutknecht
Calvert	Ehlers	Hansen
Camp	Ehrlich	Hart
Cannon	Emerson	Hastert

Hastings (WA)	Mica	Shadegg
Hayes	Miller, Dan	Shaw
Hayworth	Miller, Gary	Shays
Hefley	Miller, Jeff	Sherwood
Herger	Moran (KS)	Shimkus
Hilleary	Morella	Shuster
Hobson	Myrick	Simmons
Hoekstra	Nethercutt	Simpson
Horn	Ney	Skeen
Hostettler	Northup	Smith (MI)
Houghton	Norwood	Smith (NJ)
Hulshof	Nussle	Smith (TX)
Hunter	Osborne	Souder
Hyde	Ose	Stearns
Isakson	Otter	Stump
Issa	Paul	Sullivan
Istook	Pence	Sununu
Jenkins	Peterson (PA)	Sweeney
Johnson (CT)	Petri	Tancred
Johnson (IL)	Pickering	Tauzin
Johnson, Sam	Pitts	Taylor (MS)
Jones (NC)	Platts	Taylor (NC)
Keller	Pombo	Terry
Kelly	Portman	Thomas
Kennedy (MN)	Pryce (OH)	Thornberry
Kerns	Putnam	Thune
King (NY)	Quinn	Tiahrt
Kingston	Radanovich	Tiberi
Kirk	Ramstad	Toomey
Knollenberg	Regula	Upton
Kolbe	Rehberg	Vitter
LaHood	Reynolds	Walden
Latham	Riley	Walsh
LaTourette	Rogers (KY)	Wamp
Leach	Rogers (MI)	Watkins (OK)
Lewis (CA)	Rohrabacher	Watts (OK)
Lewis (KY)	Ros-Lehtinen	Weldon (FL)
Linder	Royce	Weller
LoBiondo	Ryan (WI)	Whitfield
Lucas (OK)	Ryun (KS)	Wicker
Manzullo	Saxton	Wilson (NM)
McCrery	Schaffer	Wolf
McHugh	Schrock	Wu
McInnis	Sensenbrenner	Young (AK)
McKeon	Sessions	Young (FL)

NOT VOTING—6

Engel	Roukema	Weldon (PA)
Oxley	Trafigant	Wilson (SC)

□ 2034

Messrs. SOUDER, SHADEGG, BURR of North Carolina, and WU changed their vote from “yea” to “nay.”

Mr. ROTHMAN and Mr. DELAHUNT changed their vote from “nay” to “yea.”

So the motion to commit was rejected.

The result of the vote was announced as above recorded.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The question is on the passage of the Senate bill.

The question was taken; and the Speaker pro tempore announced that the ayes appeared to have it.

RECORDED VOTE

Mr. RANGEL. Mr. Speaker, I demand a recorded vote.

A recorded vote was ordered.

The vote was taken by electronic device, and there were—ayes 215, noes 214, answered “present” 1, not voting 5, as follows:

[Roll No. 279]

AYES—215

Aderholt	Bilirakis	Burr
Akin	Blunt	Burton
Armey	Boehlert	Buyer
Bachus	Boehner	Callahan
Baker	Bonilla	Calvert
Ballenger	Bono	Camp
Barton	Boozman	Cannon
Bass	Brady (TX)	Cantor
Bereuter	Brown (SC)	Capito
Biggert	Bryant	Castle

Chabot
Chambliss
Coble
Collins
Combest
Cooksey
Cox
Crane
Crenshaw
Cubin
Culberson
Cunningham
Davis, Jo Ann
Davis, Tom
Deal
DeLay
DeMint
Diaz-Balart
Doolittle
Dreier
Dunn
Ehlers
Ehrlich
Emerson
English
Everett
Ferguson
Flake
Fletcher
Foley
Forbes
Fossella
Frelinghuysen
Gallegly
Ganske
Gekas
Gibbons
Gilchrest
Gillmor
Gilman
Goodlatte
Goss
Graham
Granger
Graves
Green (WI)
Greenwood
Grucci
Gutknecht
Hall (TX)
Hansen
Hart
Hastert
Hastings (WA)
Hayworth
Hefley
Herger
Hilleary
Hobson
Hoekstra
Horn
Hostettler

Houghton
Hulshof
Hunter
Hyde
Isakson
Issa
Istook
Jenkins
Johnson (CT)
Johnson (IL)
Johnson, Sam
Keller
Kelly
Kennedy (MN)
Kerns
King (NY)
Kingston
Kirk
Knollenberg
Kolbe
Kucinich
LaHood
Latham
LaTourette
Leach
Lewis (CA)
Lewis (KY)
Linder
LoBiondo
Lucas (OK)
Manzullo
McCrery
McHugh
McInnis
McKeon
Mica
Miller, Dan
Miller, Gary
Miller, Jeff
Morella
Myrick
Nethercutt
Ney
Northup
Norwood
Nussle
Osborne
Ose
Otter
Pence
Peterson (PA)
Petri
Pickering
Pitts
Platts
Pombo
Portman
Pryce (OH)
Putnam
Quinn
Radanovich
Ramstad

Regula
Rehberg
Reynolds
Riley
Rogers (KY)
Rogers (MI)
Rohrabacher
Ros-Lehtinen
Royce
Ryan (WI)
Ryun (KS)
Saxton
Schaffer
Schrock
Sensenbrenner
Sessions
Shadegg
Shaw
Shays
Sherwood
Shimkus
Shuster
Simmons
Simpson
Skeen
Smith (MI)
Smith (NJ)
Smith (TX)
Smith (WA)
Souder
Stearns
Stump
Sullivan
Sununu
Sweeney
Tancredo
Tauzin
Taylor (NC)
Terry
Thomas
Thornberry
Thune
Tiahrt
Tiberi
Toomey
Upton
Vitter
Walden
Walsh
Watkins (OK)
Watts (OK)
Weldon (FL)
Weldon (PA)
Weller
Whitfield
Wicker
Wilson (NM)
Wilson (SC)
Wolf
Young (AK)
Young (FL)

NOES—214

Abercrombie
Ackerman
Allen
Andrews
Baca
Baird
Baldacci
Baldwin
Barcia
Barr
Barrett
Becerra
Bentsen
Berkley
Berman
Berry
Bishop
Blagojevich
Blumenauer
Bonior
Borski
Boswell
Boucher
Boyd
Brady (PA)
Brown (FL)
Brown (OH)
Capps
Capuano
Cardin
Carson (IN)

Carson (OK)
Clay
Clayton
Clement
Clyburn
Condit
Conyers
Costello
Coyne
Cramer
Crowley
Cummings
Davis (CA)
Davis (FL)
Davis (IL)
DeFazio
DeGette
Delahunt
DeLauro
Deutsch
Dicks
Dingell
Doggett
Dooley
Doyle
Duncan
Edwards
Eshoo
Etheridge
Evans
Farr

Fattah
Filner
Ford
Frank
Frost
Gephardt
Gonzalez
Goode
Gordon
Green (TX)
Gutierrez
Hall (OH)
Harman
Hastings (FL)
Hill
Hilliard
Hinchey
Hinojosa
Hoeffel
Holden
Holt
Honda
Hooey
Hoyer
Inslee
Israel
Jackson (IL)
Jackson-Lee
(TX)
Jefferson
John

Johnson, E. B.
Jones (NC)
Jones (OH)
Kanjorski
Kaptur
Kennedy (RI)
Kildee
Kilpatrick
Kind (WI)
Moran (KS)
Moran (VA)
Murtha
Nadler
Napolitano
Neal
Oberstar
Obey
Oliver
Ortiz
Owens
Pallone
Pascarell
Pastor
Paul
Payne
Pelosi
Peterson (MN)
Phelps
Pomeroy
Price (NC)
Rahall
Rangel
Reyes
Rivers
Rodriguez
Roemer
Ross
Rothman
Roybal-Allard
Rush
Sabo
Sanchez

Meeks (NY)
Menendez
Millender-
McDonald
Miller, George
Mink
Mollohan
Moore
Moran (KS)
Moran (VA)
Murtha
Nadler
Napolitano
Neal
Oberstar
Obey
Oliver
Ortiz
Owens
Pallone
Pascarell
Pastor
Paul
Payne
Pelosi
Peterson (MN)
Phelps
Pomeroy
Price (NC)
Rahall
Rangel
Reyes
Rivers
Rodriguez
Roemer
Ross
Rothman
Roybal-Allard
Rush
Sabo
Sanchez

Sanders
Sandlin
Sawyer
Schakowsky
Schiff
Scott
Serrano
Sherman
Shows
Skelton
Slaughter
Snyder
Solis
Spratt
Stark
Stenholm
Strickland
Stupak
Tanner
Tauscher
Taylor (MS)
Thompson (CA)
Thompson (MS)
Thurman
Tierney
Towns
Turner
Udall (CO)
Udall (NM)
Velazquez
Visclosky
Wamp
Waters
Watson (CA)
Watt (NC)
Waxman
Weiner
Wexler
Woolsey
Wu
Wynn

ANSWERED "PRESENT"—1

Bartlett

NOT VOTING—5

Engel
Hayes

Oxley
Roukema

Traficant

□ 2047

Mrs. TAUSCHER changed her vote from "present" to "no."

So the Senate bill was passed.

The result of the vote was announced as above recorded.

A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

Mr. HAYES. Mr. Speaker, on rollcall No. 279 I was detained on the floor by legislative business. Had I voted, I would have voted "present."

MEDICARE MODERNIZATION AND PRESCRIPTION DRUG ACT OF 2002

Mr. LINDER. Mr. Speaker, by direction of the Committee on Rules, I call up House Resolution 465 and ask for its immediate consideration.

The Clerk read the resolution, as follows:

H. RES. 465

Resolved, That upon the adoption of this resolution it shall be in order without intervention of any point of order (except those arising under section 302(f) of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974) to consider in the House the bill (H.R. 4954) to amend title XVIII of the Social Security Act to provide for a voluntary program for prescription drug coverage under the Medicare Program, to modernize and reform payments and the regulatory structure of the Medicare Program, and for other purposes. The bill shall be considered as read for amendment. In lieu of the amendment recommended by the Committee on Ways and Means, the amendment in the nature of a substitute printed in the report of the Committee on Rules accompanying this resolution shall be considered as adopted. All points of order against the bill, as amended, are waived. The previous question shall be considered as ordered on the bill, as amended, to final passage without intervening motion except: (1) two hours of debate on the bill, as amended, with one hour equally divided and controlled by the chairman and ranking minority member of the Committee on Ways and Means and one hour equally divided and controlled by the chairman and ranking minority member of the Committee on Energy and Commerce; and (2) one motion to recommit with or without instructions.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. SIMPSON). The gentleman from Georgia (Mr. LINDER) is recognized for 1 hour.

Mr. LINDER. Mr. Speaker, for the purpose of debate only, I yield the customary 30 minutes to the gentlewoman from New York (Mrs. SLAUGHTER), pending which I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, H. Res. 465 is a closed rule that provides 2 hours of debate in the House, with 1 hour equally divide and controlled by the chairman and ranking minority member of the Committee on Ways and Means and 1 hour equally divided and controlled by the chairman and ranking minority member of the Committee on Energy and Commerce.

H. Res. 465 waives all points of order against consideration of the bill, except those arising under section 302(f) of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974. H. Res. 465 provides that in lieu of the amendment recommended by the Committee on Ways and Means, the amendment in the nature of a substitute printed in the report of the Committee on Rules accompanying this resolution shall be considered as adopted.

The rule waives all points of order against the bill as amended and provides one motion to recommit, with or without instructions.

Mr. Speaker, I urge my colleagues to join me in approving this rule so that the full House can proceed to consider this important Medicare reform legislation. The underlying bill is critically important legislation that is designed to provide much-needed financial assistance to seniors to ease the burden of the rising costs of prescription drugs.

H.R. 4954 seeks to improve the Medicare program by introducing free market forces in order to bring down drug prices and medical costs overall by introducing competition to a program that currently has none.

In addition to unleashing market forces on prescription drug prices, the bill seeks to move the Medicare+Choice program into a more competitive structure, the durable medical equipment and off-the-shelf orthotics are subject to competitive bidding and, finally, Medicare contractors will bid competitively for business. All of these reform elements will help move Medicare in the right direction, and our seniors will surely reap the benefits of a more consumer-friendly and patient-sensitive Medicare.

The House voted on similar legislation in the 106th Congress but was unable to reach agreement with the other body and the Clinton White House in order to enact a law to help our seniors. Well, with our new administration under President Bush now in office, I believe the House of Representatives needs to seize the historic opportunity to move a Medicare prescription drug benefit proposal through the 107th Congress in order to give our President a chance to sign such important legislation into law.

I applaud the hard work and leadership of my friends and colleagues, the gentleman from California (Mr. THOMAS), the chairman of the Committee on Ways and Means, and the gentleman from Louisiana (Mr. TAUZIN), the chairman of the Committee on Energy and Commerce, and their respective ranking members in bringing this legislation to the House floor today.

I urge my colleagues on both sides of the aisle to support H. Res. 465, a rule that will allow the House to consider and pass legislation that will improve the lives of millions of seniors across the country by providing them affordable prescription drugs.

Mr. Speaker, I neglected to say earlier that all time yielded in the pursuit of passage of the rule is yielded for the purpose of debate only.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Ms. SLAUGHTER. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman from Georgia for yielding me the customary 30 minutes, and I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, with the rule before us today, this body is being asked to hand over one of the most popular government programs in history to private insurance companies. Medicare is a critical program, a program that benefits a wide spectrum of our constituents and one that American families have come to depend on for their loved ones in need. But today, in a cynical nod to the pharmaceutical industry, the leadership has shut out any meaningful debate. No Democrat substitute will be allowed, no amendments to guarantee affordable prescription drugs for our seniors will be permitted, and anyone voicing dissent has been silenced.

□ 2100

Indeed, in the wee hours of this morning in the Committee on Rules, one of my colleagues made it clear that he wanted the free market to determine drug prices, and declared that Medicare was, attention, a Soviet-style program, echoing the sentiment made by his former leader, Newt Gingrich, that Medicare should be allowed "to wither on the vine."

Make no mistake: the contempt for Medicare runs deep within this leadership, as it does for other vital social programs. By calling Medicare Soviet-style, we can be certain that this is not a mandate to ensure the future of the program, but rather, the opposite.

Mr. LINDER. Mr. Speaker, will the gentlewoman yield? She is misquoting something I said, and I would like to respond to it.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. LATOURETTE). The gentleman has not been yielded to.

Mr. LINDER. Will the gentlewoman yield?

Ms. SLAUGHTER. No, I want to finish my statement.

Mr. LINDER. She referred directly.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The time is controlled by the gentlewoman from New York.

Ms. SLAUGHTER. But rather the opposite, a call to leave seniors to the mercies of the private sector and the free market, rather than guarantee them livable, affordable health care.

My constituents and others around the Nation are reeling from public programs that have been turned over to the so-called free market. Utility rates, cable rates, you name it, the free market has ensured exorbitant prices with diminished service. Pensions and retirement security have taken a similar beating.

Moreover, the timing of this proposal could not be worse. The proposal places the program in the private sector at a time when private insurers have dropped Medicare+Choice beneficiaries by the thousands.

Private insurers will inevitably alter plans and move in and out of markets, leading to unpredictability for our seniors. A given drug might be covered one month, but not the next. Premiums could double from year to year without warning.

The rule before us is one of the most heavy-handed procedures to come out of the Committee on Rules, and given the last few weeks, that is saying something. Amendment after amendment was blocked from floor consideration.

My colleague, the gentlewoman from Florida (Mrs. THURMAN), and the gentleman from Maine (Mr. ALLEN) had a remarkably sensible idea of requiring that prescription drug plans negotiate with pharmaceuticals for lower prescription drug prices, a necessity before we put a Federal program on top of them. Canada does it, and France does it, Germany, Italy, Japan, Britain.

Virtually every developed country in the world has committed itself to negotiating lower drug prices for its citizens. Even the United States demonstrated remarkable success when negotiating Cipro prices during the anthrax attacks last fall.

But under this rule, this very sensible amendment will not be permitted.

This is even more remarkable when we consider that the underlying bill prohibits the Federal Government from pushing for lower prescription prices.

My colleagues, the gentleman from New Jersey (Mr. PALLONE) and the gentlewoman from California (Mrs. CAPPS), attempted to ensure that all seniors have the option of prescription drug coverage, especially in those geographic areas where insurance companies choose not to offer a plan. Under the current bill, there is no guarantee that seniors will have access to coverage at all if insurers should decide not to cover their area.

The amendment will never see the light of day, however, under this rule. Instead, we are left with a fundamentally flawed document that fails our constituents on every level. The proposed plan would be administered through either HMOs or drug-only insurance plans.

The fact that drug-only insurance plans do not exist in the private market does not deter proponents from their privatization agenda. In fact, they are so bent on privatizing the drug benefit that they are prepared to bribe private plans with a subsidy as large as 99.99 percent in order to get them to offer drug coverage to seniors, regardless of the quality of the service or extent of the benefit.

Mr. Speaker, a little more history may be in order. The Medicare program was originally created because the private sector did not offer affordable and reliable health insurance to the elderly and the disabled. Health care has certainly changed in the past 30 years, but what has not changed is the fact that the private market does not want to ensure people who are old, disabled, and likely to need care.

Mr. Speaker, the inadequacies in this bill continue, and I will highlight them briefly. The measure penalizes seniors who receive aid with prescription drug costs from charitable, church, or State programs by not counting the costs paid by those parties toward the individual's Medicare deductible.

Seniors may actually have to drop out of programs like New York's Elderly Prescription Insurance Coverage, the EPIC program, in an attempt to obtain their Medicare benefits.

The proposal has numerous gaps that leave seniors without coverage while requiring them to pay premiums. For example, earlier this month I received a letter from a 71-year-old constituent who must take medication to prevent a recurrence of a potentially dangerous, deadly fungal lung infection. The drug costs her nearly $1,000 a month. Under the majority plan, this woman would still pay well over $3,000 a year for this medication, and in addition, she would have to drop out of New York's program, which is currently helping her with these expenses.

The proposal includes copayments, premiums, and deductibles that will be unaffordable for many low- and middle-income seniors. The $35-per-month premium is a suggested amount and certainly not a guarantee. Insurers could choose to charge double or triple that amount if they chose to.

The bill is opposed by numerous respected organizations, including the National Council on Aging, AARP, Families U.S.A., and the National Committee to Preserve Social Security and Medicare.

Mr. Speaker, the majority has taken the proverbial sow's ear and is trying to convince America it is a silk purse. My constituents are not fooled, and I hope my colleagues will not be, either.

Mr. Speaker, I yield such time as she may consume to the gentlewoman from California (Ms. WOOLSEY).

Ms. WOOLSEY. Mr. Speaker, I express my opposition to this sham bill that is harmful to senior women.

Mr. Speaker, studies show that older women live an average of six years longer than men. Often widowed and living alone, the average woman age 65 and older struggles to survive on an annual income of $15,615.

During her lifetime she probably spent 17 years out of the workforce caring for children, and perhaps 18 years caring for elderly parents. Her retirement income is also smaller because she probably did not receive a pension, and was paid less than most men.

As a result, she receives lower Social Security benefits. She spends a larger percentage of her income on housing costs—leaving less money for necessary expenses like utilities, food, and health care. This is a particularly difficult problem because the average older woman spends 20 percent of her income each year on out-of-pocket health care costs.

Even though Medicare is not typically thought of as a woman's program, it's central to a woman's well-being. Because women live longer than their male counterparts, they also rely on Medicare and its benefits longer.

While Medicare provides women with critical access to health care, gaps in the program leave women vulnerable to unaffordable out-of-pocket costs. According to the Kaiser Family Foundation, women account for nearly 7 in 10 Medicare beneficiaries with incomes below the poverty level.

Similarly, access to affordable prescription drugs is a woman's issue. Why? Because women make up a large portion of consumers purchasing prescription drugs.

Women have a greater rate of health problems since they live longer. They have lower incomes, which make access to affordable prescription drugs more difficult. In addition, because of age, women report more chronic conditions that require ongoing treatment, accompanied by a regimen of costly drugs.

As the costs of prescription drugs continue to rise these out-of-pocket expenses will continue to take a higher percentage of older women's limited monthly income. Where do we draw the line? When will we enact a drug benefit that will allow all seniors to live out their lives without being forced to choose between food or medicine?

It's time we start considering women's needs when we debate prescription drug proposals.

Sadly, the GOP's Medicare modernization plan will only perpetuate persistent health care disparities among women because it creates new gaps in coverage.

If the GOP plan prevails, seniors won't feel any more certain about their benefits—in fact, the GOP proposal allows plans to vary their benefits and premiums from one region to another; from one plan to another and, the GOP plan provides no guarantees. Their plan would privatize prescription drug plans like an HMO . . . not put the plan under Medicare. Our seniors need more stability and certainty than that—especially older women who are counting on Congress to provide a real solution to the high cost of prescription drugs.

Women are major stakeholders in the debate over Medicare's future and a prescription drug benefit. Policies that expand access to outpatient prescription drugs and long-term care would help fill coverage gaps that drive up out-of-pocket spending for women.

Conversely, policies that erode coverage or that shift costs to beneficiaries could affect women, especially those with low incomes.

Older women are one of the nation's most at-risk groups, and a prescription drug benefit must meet their needs. Understanding the full implications of proposed reforms for aging women must be an essential component of efforts to preserve and protect Medicare for generations to come.

Under the GOP plan, there will be no real winners—only struggling survivors, seniors who manage to make ends meet.

For my constituents and the older women in this country, merely getting by is not good enough, so instead, let's make everyone a winner by enacting a prescription drug benefit that guarantees seniors and women real assistance.

After a lifetime of taking care of their families, older women deserve better than what the Republican leadership is proposing. That's why I strongly urge my colleagues to stop further debate on this sham of a proposal and get serious about providing genuine relief to Medicare recipients.

Ms. SLAUGHTER. Mr. Speaker, I yield such time as she may consume to the gentlewoman from Ohio (Mrs. JONES).

Mrs. JONES of Ohio. Mr. Speaker, I express my opposition to this bill that is particularly harmful to senior women, like my mother.

Ms. SLAUGHTER. Mr. Speaker, I yield such time as she may consume to the gentlewoman from California (Ms. LEE).

Ms. LEE. Mr. Speaker, I express my opposition to this sham bill that is particularly harmful to senior women. This is a shame.

Ms. SLAUGHTER. Mr. Speaker, I yield such time as she may consume to the gentlewoman from Indiana (Ms. CARSON).

Ms. CARSON of Indiana. Mr. Speaker, I express my opposition to this bill that does not allow senior women to be able to afford to live, particularly those senior women who suffer from cardiovascular disease.

Mr. Speaker, I rise in support of the American people. The same American people who have been paying too much for prescription drugs and have been waiting for years for Congress to pass a fair Medicare prescription drug benefit. This plan that the Republican leadership has brought to the floor is a sham.

Where is the benefit for our seniors who are living on a fixed income and cannot afford such a high co-payment? Where is the benefit for the women who, because they were stay at home mothers and did not earn a pension, cannot afford the prescription drugs that are needed for a better quality of life.

The costs of prescription drugs for seniors are rising at a rate greater than that of inflation.

Senior women must be accounted for and given a platform regarding prescription drug benefits because they make up almost 60% of the Medicare population. Without affordable benefits, women will be forced to pay extremely high costs for prescription drugs that they already struggle to afford.

We need a plan that makes prescription drugs more affordable for the people who cannot live without these products. What the Republicans are proposing is not help for seniors, but more heartache.

The "plan" the Republicans have drawn up would not be a benefit to anyone except the insurance companies.

Forcing Medicare recipients into private plans which cover less than half of the costs of prescription drugs is not a benefit?

A plan that forces Medicare recipients to pay for a gap in coverage of at least $1,800 a year is not a benefit!

A plan that does not guarantee the same coverage for the entire country, that seniors in Indiana could pay a higher premium than those in a different part of the country, is not a benefit!

There are over 844,835 people on Medicare in my state of Indiana. That is 14% of the population. 44% of these people are under 200% of the federal poverty level. I will not go home and tell them that I gave away their security to a private company trying to make money off of their health.

Prescription drug benefits are particularly crucial for women because they tend to live an average of 6 years longer than men and are more likely to suffer from prolonged chronic illness. Senior women have a longer period of time to incur out of pocket cost to pay for prescription drugs and deserve to be provided with considerable benefits.

Not only do women tend to live longer than men, but they are also at an unfair disadvantage where their income is concerned. The average annual income for women age 65 and older is $15,615, which is only half of the annual income of men. Recent surveys indicate that eight out of ten women on Medicare, approximately 17 million women, use prescription drugs regularly and most pay for these medications themselves. Senior women have a limited income and must receive affordable prescription drug benefits that they can rely on.

How dare the Republicans try to give to the seniors of this country a plan that is not equal to what they receive as Members of Congress! They have stated over and over that seniors deserve the same coverage as Members of Congress.

When the non-partisan Congressional Research Service did a comparison of the drug benefit under the Blue Cross-Blue Shield Standard option available to Federal Employees to the Democrat and Republican prescription drug plans, they found that the Republican plan would give about 40% of the coverage Members of Congress receive, but the Democratic plan would give comparable coverage.

In addition, when given the opportunity to rectify this gap in coverage, the Republicans on the Committee voted against giving this same coverage.

Whay type of thinking is this?

Give the minority a voice! Let there be a vote on the Democratic Medicare Prescription Drug benefit, a plan that actually helps seniors and does not hurt them!

Ms. SLAUGHTER. Mr. Speaker, I yield such time as she may consume to the gentlewoman from California (Mrs. NAPOLITANO).

Mrs. NAPOLITANO. Mr. Speaker, I express my opposition to this shameful bill that is particularly harmful to our senior women who live longer and have the largest consumption of purchases of drugs.

PARLIAMENTARY INQUIRY

Mr. LINDER. Parliamentary inquiry, Mr. Speaker.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman from Georgia will state his parliamentary inquiry.

Mr. LINDER. Mr. Speaker, at what point does this series of speeches become credited against their time?

The SPEAKER pro tempore. After their request for unanimous consent to revise and extend their remarks in opposition, the Chair will count against the minority's time any speeches that are given. To this point, the Chair has not heard any.

Ms. SLAUGHTER. Mr. Speaker, I yield such time as she may consume to the gentlewoman from Hawaii (Mrs. MINK).

Mrs. MINK of Hawaii. Mr. Speaker, I rise on behalf of my constituents to oppose the rule and the passage of this bill as a fatal step towards privatization of Social Security.

Mr. Speaker, I rise today to urge my colleagues to oppose the Republican's prescription drug benefit plan because it does not provide a meaningful prescription drug benefit.

There are 40 million elderly and disabled people enrolled in Medicare. They need Medicare to obtain basic health care coverage. Unfortunately, the program has a very limited prescription drug benefit. Since Congress created Medicare in 1965, it has struggled to find a way to create an adequate prescription drug benefit.

Prescription drug expenditures have grown at a double-digit rate almost every year since 1980. Congress needs to act now to help those currently in the system and the estimated 77 million Americans who will be in Medicare by 2030. These Americans expect to obtain affordable prescription drugs through Medicare. Congress cannot wait any longer. It must create a prescription drug benefit.

Even though creating a prescription drug benefit is one of the most important bills of this Congress, the Republican leadership has prohibited members of the House from offering amendments or even voting on the Democrat's substitute. Since the Republicans began their rule, they have imposed "gag" rules to prevent a full debate on many important issues. In a chamber dedicated to the principles of democracy and a free and open debate, it is unacceptable for the Republican leadership to prevent members from even considering other prescription drug plans or amending the Republican plan. The House should have an opportunity to amend the bill created by the Republican leadership because it is flawed. It is not a guaranteed Medicare benefit. It relies on HMOs and other private insurance companies, who may restrict benefits at any time.

The Republican's bill (H.R. 4954) does not create a defined prescription drug benefit under Medicare. It subsidizes private insurance companies, who will offer prescription drug coverage to Medicare beneficiaries. This plan leaves the elderly alone in a fight with private insurance companies to obtain the prescription drug coverage they need.

H.R. 4954 does not specifically define the type of benefit that insurance companies must provide. The insurance companies can create strict rules that limit access to certain expensive drugs that could hurt a company's bottom line. Doctors will prescribe medicine without any assurance that seniors will be able to obtain them through their private insurer.

Additionally, insurance companies can limit which pharmacies participate in their network. Seniors in rural areas may be forced to travel many miles to find a pharmacy that is "acceptable" to their private insurance provider.

By relying on private insurers, the elderly will not even know how much their monthly premium will cost. The Republicans think it will be $35 per month. It might be higher. It might be lower. Premiums could vary from county to county and year to year. The monthly premiums in the Republican's prescription drug benefit plan could rise beyond the resources of the disabled and the elderly. In Nevada, the only state where a similar plan is offered, premiums exceed $80 per month.

The Republican plan does not provide sufficient coverage. It covers less than a quarter of Medicare beneficiaries' estimated drug costs over the next 10 years, and the complicated coverage formula has a large hole. After providing partial coverage on the first $2,000 seniors spend on prescription drugs, the Republican plan does not provide any additional help until they pay $3,800. It does not cover expenses between $2,000 and $3,800. The elderly must find a way to pay for these expenses by themselves.

America needs a prescription drug plan that truly helps the elderly obtain the drugs they desperately need. We do not need a plan that exposes Medicare beneficiaries to the whims of private insurance companies who are more interested in profits than providing comprehensive benefits.

Under the Democratic proposal, which the Republicans refused to debate: the monthly premium is locked in at $25, the annual deductible is only $100, Medicare pays 80% of seniors' drug costs up to $2,000, and there is a $2,000 out-of-pocket limit per beneficiary per year.

The Democratic proposal fully integrates prescription drug benefits into the Medicare program. It allows the elderly to rely on their governmental prescription drug benefit, rather than depending on the generosity of profit driven insurance companies.

This House has an opportunity to pass legislation to help disabled and elderly women obtain affordable prescription drugs. I urge my colleagues to support the Democratic plan to create a simple prescription drug plan that helps all seniors pay for the skyrocketing cost of prescription drugs. I urge my colleagues to vote against the Republican bill because it fails to do this.

ANNOUNCEMENT BY THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair would advise the gentlewoman from New York that one came close to debate.

Ms. SLAUGHTER. Mr. Speaker, we will watch it.

Mr. Speaker, I yield such time as she may consume to the gentlewoman from California (Ms. ROYBAL-ALLARD).

Ms. ROYBAL-ALLARD. Mr. Speaker, I rise to express my strong opposition to this irresponsible bill that is particularly harmful to women.

Ms. SLAUGHTER. Mr. Speaker, I yield such time as she may consume to the gentlewoman from Florida (Mrs. THURMAN).

Mrs. THURMAN. Mr. Speaker, I express my opposition to this rule and to this sham bill that is particularly harmful to senior women.

Ms. SLAUGHTER. Mr. Speaker, I yield such time as she may consume to the gentlewoman from New York (Mrs. MCCARTHY).

Mrs. MCCARTHY of New York. Mr. Speaker, I express my opposition to this sham bill that is particularly harmful to senior women.

I have seen much in my lifetime, but nothing like the blatant disregard for America's seniors by House Republican Leadership. Prescription Drugs is a life and death issue affecting millions of seniors.

This body should not be forced to debate a bill severely lacking in substance and without even the opportunity for a discussion on an alternative.

Unfortunately, there is no room for discussion.

There is no room for options.

There is no chance for an open, constructive and spirited debate on what America's seniors need most—a Prescription Drug Benefit under Medicare.

The bill before us today is nothing but a sham proposal, which does nothing to provide a real, guaranteed prescription drug benefit to our nation's seniors.

I was a nurse before I came to Congress. Let me tell you what this bill does not do for America's seniors.

This bill does not bring down the cost of prescription drugs.

This bill does not guarantee a prescription drug benefit for seniors; and This bill does not guarantee coverage for any drug prescribed by their doctor.

What the bill does do, however, is to provide benefits to insurance companies.

As a nurse, the worst aspect of this bill to me is that the higher your drug bills get, the less help you get with paying those bills.

Our seniors deserve a plan that is guaranteed and affordable. They should not have to worry about coverage gaps, or which pharmacy they can go to for their prescription drugs.

And they certainly shouldn't be limited to which drugs their doctor can prescribe.

We owe our seniors more than vague promises. We owe them a prescription drug benefit that will be there whenever they need it, and for whatever drug their doctor prescribes.

We owe it to the American people not to support this sham Prescription Drug Bill.

Ms. SLAUGHTER. Mr. Speaker, I yield such time as she may consume to the gentlewoman from California (Mrs. TAUSCHER).

Mrs. TAUSCHER. Mr. Speaker, I express my opposition to this sham bill that is particularly harmful to senior women, my sisters, and my mother.

Ms. SLAUGHTER. Mr. Speaker, I yield such time as she may consume to the gentlewoman from Michigan (Ms. KILPATRICK).

Ms. KILPATRICK. Mr. Speaker, I express my opposition to this sham Republican bill that is harmful to women all over America.

Mr. Speaker, I rise today to stress the importance of providing a meaningful prescription drug benefit for seniors in our nation. We have paid lip service for too long and now is the time for Members of Congress to deliver good on our word.

However, while we need to enact a prescription drug coverage under Medicare, we cannot afford to enact a benefit that is anything less than what seniors deserve—a meaningful benefit that is voluntary and universal and will provide seniors with affordable prescription drugs. The plan that Republicans plan to offer does not meet these important goals.

Most importantly, the proposed Republican plan does not provide seniors with the promise of guaranteed universal coverage. What does this mean? The Republican plan relies on private insurance plans or Medicare HMOs to offer prescription drug coverage to seniors and offers no concrete or strict guidelines for benefits. Simply put, Republicans have put the industry's interests above those of seniors. Seniors will be given no guarantee of meaningful drug coverage and will be at the mercy of the private industry. Seniors have worked too hard and contributed too much to this nation for us to give them anything but the best we can. And, Mr. Speaker, the Republican plan is definitely not the best we can do—it is far from it.

Democrats are committed to providing a universal, comprehensive drug benefit through Medicare for all seniors. We also are committed to addressing the high cost of prescription drugs that have skyrocketed out of control. It is time for Congress to deliver on our promise and provide seniors with a true prescription drug benefit. Anything less is unsatisfactory.

Ms. SLAUGHTER. Mr. Speaker, I yield such time as she may consume to the gentlewoman from Minnesota (Ms. MCCOLLUM).

Ms. MCCOLLUM. Mr. Speaker, I express my opposition to this sham bill that is particularly harmful to senior women.

Ms. SLAUGHTER. Mr. Speaker, I yield such time as she may consume to the gentlewoman from Florida (Ms. BROWN).

Ms. BROWN of Florida. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to revise and extend my remarks, and I rise against this shameful GOP prescription drug so-called benefit that is very much against my grandmother and all of the grandmothers in this country.

Mr. CUNNINGHAM. Mr. Speaker, I object. I object to the last one.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. There was objection to the statement of the gentlewoman from Florida.

Ms. SLAUGHTER. Mr. Speaker, I yield such time as she may consume to the gentlewoman from Florida (Mrs. MEEK).

Mrs. MEEK of Florida. Mr. Speaker, this is a sham bill. I represent senior women very seriously.

Mr. Speaker, I rise in strong opposition to both the "sham" prescription drug bill that the Republican leadership has brought to the floor today, and to the unconscionable Rule that the Republican Leadership has proposed, a Rule that denies the Democrats an opportunity to offer a Substitute bill providing real prescription drug coverage through Medicare.

Mr. Speaker, no one in America should have to choose between buying medicine or food, between paying their utility bills or their drug store account, between taking their medicine or living in pain and discomfort. Yet this is the problem that many of our people face every day and we all know it. "Miracle drugs," no matter how innovative or effective, are worthless to those who cannot afford them. Yet today there are huge numbers of seniors who are unable to follow their doctor's orders because they cannot afford the medications their doctors prescribe.

The problem is obvious and so is the solution. Unfortunately, it involves the one thing that our people want and that the Republican Leadership steadfastly refuses to provide: a real prescription drug benefit through Medicare.

The Republican Leadership knows that American people want a real prescription drug benefit through Medicare. The Republican Leadership's efforts to pass this bill are attempt to create an illusion for the voters this fall. They want to give their candidates a talking point with the voters so they can say that they support prescription drug coverage without actually having to provide it. This is a sham. Our seniors deserve much better.

Mr. Speaker, America's seniors, particularly older women, need comprehensive prescription drug coverage through Medicare and fair drug pricing. The Republican bill on the floor provides neither. The Republican bill is unworkable, unreliable and grossly inadequate.

Mr. Speaker, America's seniors do not want to be left to their own devices and sent on a wild goose chase shopping for private drug plans with no guaranteed benefits, plans that private health insurers do not even want to offer. They should not have to join an HMO that tells them where they are able to fill their prescriptions in order to get drug coverage. They deserve the reductions in drug prices that can only be obtained if we pass a real prescription drug bill that takes advantage of the purchasing power of Medicare's 40 million beneficiaries.

While I am outraged by the Republican Leadership's refusal to allow the Democrats an opportunity to offer a Substitute, I certainly understand the reason for it and so do the American people. The Republican Leadership will not allow the Democrats to offer a Substitute because they know their bill cannot withstand a "side by side" comparison with the Democratic Substitute.

The Democratic Substitute that the Republican Leadership will not allow to be debated and voted on has a yearly out of pocket limit on drug costs of $2000. Why would the Republican Leadership want to highlight the fact that under their bill, seniors will have to pay 100% of their drug costs between $2000 and $3700 when nearly one-half of all seniors have drug costs over $2000 and would be subject to this gap in coverage?

Why would the Republican Leadership want a comparison between a Republican bill that will force seniors into private HMO's and restrict patients' choice of drugs and pharmacies and a Democratic Substitute that guarantees affordable, dependable, comprehensive drug coverage at a uniform price while preserving freedom of choice for seniors?

Why should seniors in different states pay different premiums for the exact same benefits as the Republican bill will permit?

Now some will in this body will contend that a real comprehensive prescription drug benefit through Medicare is simply not affordable. I say that anybody that can find the funds to grant the bloated tax relief for the rich that this House has provided, including $1.2 trillion in estate tax relief for the millionaires in this country, surely can find a way to pay for a real prescription drug benefit. It's simply a matter of our priorities.

Mr. Speaker, the affordability of providing a real prescription drug benefit is a fair subject for debate and should be debated. But this surely is a reason why the Democratic Substitute needs to be debated and voted upon. It is not a reason to keep the Democratic Substitute from the floor. If a Member of this body believes that we cannot afford the real prescription drug benefit that the Democratic Substitute provides, then I say: vote against it.

So the reasons for the Republican Leadership's approach to this issue are clear as they are deplorable. They want a press release for the fall elections, not a real drug benefit and they don't want to take the heat that would come from a side by side comparison of the Republican "pretend" bill and the Democratic Substitute.

I urge all my Colleagues. Reject this unfair, one-sided process. Let's have a full and fair debate and produce a real prescription drug benefit. Defeat the proposed rule; pass a fair rule that allows a Democratic Substitute; Vote for the Democratic Substitute and reject the Republican Leadership's bill.

Ms. SLAUGHTER. Mr. Speaker, I yield such time as she may consume to the gentlewoman from Texas (Ms. EDDIE BERNICE JOHNSON).

Ms. EDDIE BERNICE JOHNSON of Texas. Mr. Speaker, I express my opposition to this bill because it does hurt senior women, in particular, and is another big windfall for the corporate industry.

Ms. SLAUGHTER. Mr. Speaker, I yield such time as she may consume to the gentlewoman from California (Ms. LOFGREN).

Ms. LOFGREN. Mr. Speaker, I rise to express my opposition to this bogus bill that will hurt older women.

Mr. Speaker, today, prescription drugs play a larger role in modern medicine than ever before. Prescription drugs are used as complements to surgical procedures, as substitutes for surgery, and to help reduce future health risks and treat many chronic health conditions. Yet those who need them the most, older adults, and we know that the majority of seniors are women, often find themselves without either affordable prescription drugs coverage or the means to pay for their prescription drugs needs.

Women on average live longer and are more likely to suffer from prolonged chronic illness. In fact, women on Medicare spend nearly 20% more for prescription drugs than men. And—with women's poverty rates twice that of men, prescription drug costs take a bigger bite out of women's limited income.

It is a shame that we are not considering a real prescription drug benefit today, one that would benefit all seniors. Under the Republican bill, the more a senior woman spends for prescription drugs, the less coverage she gets. For some reason, the Republican bill forces seniors, your mother, your grandmother, to pay a higher percentage of costs as their needs increase. Mr. Speaker, does this makes any sense?

Ms. SLAUGHTER. Mr. Speaker, I yield such time as she may consume to the gentlewoman from California (Ms. MILLENDER-MCDONALD).

Ms. MILLENDER-MCDONALD. Mr. Speaker, I express my opposition to this bill that is particularly harmful to senior women.

Ms. SLAUGHTER. Mr. Speaker, I yield such time as she may consume to the gentlewoman from Nevada (Ms. BERKLEY).

Ms. BERKLEY. Mr. Speaker, I express my opposition to this shameful bill that is particularly harmful to the senior women in my district.

Ms. SLAUGHTER. Mr. Speaker, I yield such time as she may consume to the gentlewoman from California (Ms. SOLIS).

Ms. SOLIS. Mr. Speaker, I express my opposition to this bill.

(The following sentence was delivered in Spanish.)

Mr. Speaker, for all of the old women who can hear me loud and clear, this is another tactic for the Republicans to take away your medication.

Ms. SLAUGHTER. Mr. Speaker, I yield such time as she may consume to the gentlewoman from Ohio (Ms. KAPTUR).

Ms. KAPTUR. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to revise and extend my remarks.

Mr. Speaker, I express my strong opposition to this pitiful bill that denies senior women across America access to affordable prescription drugs because the Republicans gave all the money away to companies like Enron in tax cuts, and they were not deserved.

Mr. CUNNINGHAM. Mr. Speaker, I object.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. An objection is heard to the last request to revise and extend.

Ms. SLAUGHTER. Mr. Speaker, I yield such time as she may consume to the gentlewoman from Oregon (Ms. HOOLEY).

Ms. HOOLEY of Oregon. Mr. Speaker, I rise against the Republican no-benefit prescription drug proposal that is harmful to seniors in my State.

Ms. SLAUGHTER. Mr. Speaker, I yield such time as she may consume to the gentlewoman from California (Mrs. DAVIS).

Mrs. DAVIS of California. Mr. Speaker, I express my opposition to this unacceptable bill that is particularly harmful to senior women in my district.

Mr. Speaker, I rise today to talk about H.R. 4954, the Medicare Modernization and Prescription Drug Act and its implications for our seniors. In particular, I would like to discuss how women fare under this proposal before us.

Women are literally the face of Medicare. They comprise 58 percent of the Medicare population at age 65 and represent 71 percent of beneficiaries at age 85. Any potential prescription drug plan must be evaluated with regard to its impact on women—if it works for women, it works for everyone.

When Medicare was established in the 1960s, the biggest need was insurance coverage for hospital stays and doctor visits, not prescription drugs. The focus then was on providing relief for acute conditions, not chronic.

Today more than 88 percent of Medicare's 42 million beneficiaries use prescription drugs. The average senior takes four prescriptions daily and fills an average of 18 prescriptions a year.

The use of prescription drugs is more pronounced among women. Beginning at midlife, women have a higher incidence of chronic illness than men. The average woman age 65 and over lives nearly seven years longer than the average man and relies on Medicare for her health insurance coverage for more years.

While most women on Medicare use prescription drugs regularly, over 1/4 of these beneficiaries—nearly six million women—lack any prescription drug coverage.

Out-of-pocket spending for prescription drugs place a disproportionate burden on older women who have retirement incomes that are roughly half than those of men. In 2000, the average income for women over 65 was $15,638, compared to $29,329 for men.

Even though women have significantly smaller incomes than men, they spend a larger proportion of their income on out-of-pocket health costs. Women over 65 spend 20 percent in comparison to the 17 percent spent by men. These expenses increase to 27 percent for women 85 and older.

Older women are one of our nation's most vulnerable groups and providing affordable prescription drug coverage is critical to improving their quality of life.

Unfortunately, the proposal before us today does not achieve this objective. This legislation does not guarantee any specific benefit. Instead, the bill provides subsidies to insurance companies to provide private insurance to seniors. The coverage and $33 premium mentioned today would only be available to beneficiaries who can find a private plan that offers it. All these figures depend on what HMOs and private drug insurance plans want to charge.

H.R. 4954 provides less than one-quarter of the amount seniors are estimated to pay for prescription drugs over 10 years. In fact, it leaves seniors wholly responsible for costs between $2000 and $3700. Nearly half of all seniors' annual drug costs are above $2000. I cannot support a plan that subjects seniors to a gap in coverage. These seniors will not receive any help with their drug bills for at least part of the year, even though they continue to pay premiums.

I am committed to passing a fair prescription drug plan under Medicare that does not stifle innovation or eliminate choice in coverage. Seniors need assistance in order to obtain prescription drugs to treat or prevent illness.

In addition, I am disappointed that today's activities will not include a discussion of an alternative bill. As our senior population continues to grow, we must take a comprehensive look at all of our options in order to provide seniors with real benefits.

Instead of H.R. 4954, I support a meaningful prescription drug benefit that does not handicap our seniors at a time when they most need assistance. The plan I support builds on the existing Medicare system and provides seniors with guaranteed benefits, premiums, and cost sharing for all beneficiaries. Not estimates. The federal government would use the collective bargaining clout of all Medicare beneficiaries to negotiate fair drug prices and these savings would be passed on to our seniors.

American seniors want, need, and deserve real prescription drug coverage. The Medicare Modernization and Prescription Drug Act establishes a complex program that offers modest benefits at most.

Ms. SLAUGHTER. Mr. Speaker, I yield such time as she may consume to the gentlewoman from New York (Ms. VELÁZQUEZ).

Ms. VELÁZQUEZ. Mr. Speaker, I express my opposition to this sham bill that is a giveaway to the pharmaceutical industry at the expense of seniors and especially women in our country.

Mr. Speaker, I rise today in opposition to this legislation. While we all agree that today's elderly need and deserve a prescription drug benefit, I am afraid this proposal is not the answer.

If we are lucky enough, our parents are still with us. And we know how they can live longer and more active lives with the new medical treatments that exist today. Some of our parents already face—and some of us in the not so distant future may face—the issue of drug affordability—drugs that help us to live life to the fullest.

We are in the middle of a health care crisis in this Nation. Drug prices rose 17 percent last year alone—after five years of double-digit spikes. The prices of popular and heavily-marketed drugs increased even more—an incredible 34 percent.

No one doubts that something must be done—and fast. But passing legislation that makes two wrongs does not make a right. As Ranking member of the Small Business Committee, I want to point out how this plan fails in two critical ways.

First, it fails our seniors. It does nothing to provide a comprehensive, affordable drug benefit with Medicare. Second, it fails small community pharmacists. These pharmacists serve a vital purpose in our communities. The corner drug stores anchor our neighborhoods and the local pharmacist counsels our seniors about their medications.

Once again, through the lens of this proposal, we see who the Republicans care about most—big business—the pharmaceuticals, the health care companies. Not the little people—seniors citizens that give so much back to our communities and the corner drug stores they visit and depend on each and every day.

Mr. Speaker, this is a bad plan. It enriches a handful of corporations at the expense of seniors and the small businesses across the country that serve them—without even delivering on the promise of comprehensive, affordable prescription drug coverage.

Ms. SLAUGHTER. Mr. Speaker, I yield such time as she may consume to the gentlewoman from Michigan (Ms. RIVERS).

Ms. RIVERS. Mr. Speaker, I express my opposition to this terrible bill that is particularly harmful to senior women.

Ms. SLAUGHTER. Mr. Speaker, I yield such time as she may consume to the gentlewoman from California (Ms. WATSON).

Ms. WATSON of California. Mr. Speaker, I rise to express my opposition to this most deceptive bill that is particularly harmful to my 92-year-old mother and other senior women.

Ms. SLAUGHTER. Mr. Speaker, I yield such time as she may consume to the gentlewoman from North Carolina (Mrs. CLAYTON).

Mrs. CLAYTON. Mr. Speaker, I express my opposition to this sham bill that is particularly harmful to older women who live longer, have more diseases, have less money, and need prescription drugs that they can afford.

Women live longer, suffer from more diseases, have less money when they retire and must pay more for their prescriptions. 65 percent of Social Security recipients are women—75 percent of the low income retired persons are women. The majority of those need real prescription help, not this bill which does nothing to help sick older women.

Ms. SLAUGHTER. Mr. Speaker, I yield such time as she may consume to the gentlewoman from Wisconsin (Ms. BALDWIN).

Ms. BALDWIN. Mr. Speaker, I rise to express my opposition to this bill, which I deem to be a betrayal of the women of the Greatest Generation.

Mr. Speaker, I urge my colleagues to vote against this sham of a bill. It lays the groundwork to privatize Medicare and does not provide a real, guaranteed, defined benefit that our seniors desperately need.

The Republican bill that is on the floor today forces seniors to shop around for prescription drug coverage through Medicare HMOs and private insurance plans. The prices and benefits under this private coverage would vary from region to region, so that a senior in Wisconsin would have to pay a different premium than a senior in Florida for the exact same benefit. These geographic disparities are simply unacceptable.

There are no assurances in this bill that prescription drugs will be affordable. In fact, this bill would cover less than one-fifth of the estimated drug costs of Medicare beneficiaries over the next ten years. In addition, there is a huge gap in coverage. Seniors who need more than 2,000 worth of drugs a year must pay 100% out-of-pocket, and keep paying premiums, until they reach the $3,700 out-of-pocket cap. Millions of seniors will fall into this gaping hole. I believe all seniors deserve affordable prescription drug coverage, and we should not help some seniors cover their drug costs while leaving others out in the cold.

Seniors will not be guaranteed access to the drugs they need or to their local pharmacies. The bill would allow private insurance plans to limit access to covered drugs, even if the drugs are on an approved list. Seniors would be restricted to certain pharmacy providers or would be forced to pay higher costs to use the pharmacy of their choice, even a pharmacy they have been using for years. I know many seniors in my district who have developed relationships with their pharmacists over the years and would hate to have to go to another provider or pay extra to keep going to their same trusted pharmacist.

I hear from seniors in my district who cannot afford their prescriptions. They send me receipts for their drug bills and ask me how they are supposed to afford their rising drug costs on a fixed budget. They take less than the required dosage to save money, which puts their health at even greater risk.

I support the Democratic proposal that adds a new Part D in Medicare to provide voluntary prescription drug coverage for all Medicare beneficiaries. This proposal would provide the same benefits, premiums and cost sharing for all beneficiaries no matter where they live. It guarantees fair drug prices by giving the Secretary of the Department of Health and Human Services the authority to use the collective bargaining clout of all 40 million Medicare beneficiaries to negotiate drug prices. Savings will then be passed on to seniors. Unlike the Republican bill, there are no gaps in coverage in the Democratic proposal. Coverage is provided for any drug a senior's doctor prescribes. Seniors will be able to choose where to fill their prescriptions and will not have to join an HMO or a private insurance plan to get drug coverage. This is the proposal seniors have been waiting for. Unfortunately, it is not the proposal that was brought to the floor today.

Today we are voting on a bill that is a sad mockery of what the seniors in our country deserve. Instead of providing a comprehensive Medicare prescription drug benefit for America's seniors, the Republicans have decided to make sure this bill suits big drug companies. Close ties to the pharmaceutical industry have influenced this bill at the expense of our seniors. That is just plain wrong for the retirees of the greatest generation who worked hard, lived through the depression won a war, and raised their families.

Seniors need a comprehensive prescription drug benefit that is affordable and dependable for all—with no gaps or gimmicks in coverage. The Republican proposal fails on all these counts. I urge my colleagues to vote against H.R. 4954.

□ 2115

Ms. SLAUGHTER. Mr. Speaker, I yield such time as she may consume to the gentlewoman from Illinois (Ms. SCHAKOWSKY).

Ms. SCHAKOWSKY. Mr. Speaker, I rise in opposition to this pathetic excuse for a bill that is particularly harmful to senior women and to persons with disabilities.

Ms. SLAUGHTER. Mr. Speaker, I yield such time as she may consume to the gentlewoman from California (Ms. SANCHEZ).

Ms. SANCHEZ. Mr. Speaker, I rise in opposition to this sham bill that is particularly harmful to senior women, the heart and the soul of our families.

Mr. Speaker, I rise today to express my strong opposition to the Republican prescription drug bill, H.R. 4954. This bill, while unfair to millions of seniors, is particularly harmful to women.

Women make up a large portion of consumers purchasing prescription drugs. For this reason alone, women's health care needs must be considered as we debate prescription drug proposals. And unfortunately, I am hard-pressed to find many of my women colleagues who were consulted as this bill was drafted. It is no surprise, therefore, that this GOP bill ignores health problems unique to women.

At least one-third of Medicare beneficiaries, many of them women, do not have coverage for drugs—and others are forced to create a patchwork of coverage that simply doesn't get the job done. Too often, women and seniors are left choosing between food and medicine.

Thanks to Medicare, millions of women have dignity and security in their retirement years. Millions of women have avoided poverty and lived better lives. But today, with all of the incredible medical advances coupled with the rising cost of prescription drugs, it's vital that the country pull together to pass a meaningful Medicare prescription drug plan for all women—and all senior citizens.

Ms. SLAUGHTER. Mr. Speaker, I yield such time as she may consume to the gentlewoman from Texas (Ms. JACKSON-LEE).

Ms. JACKSON-LEE of Texas. Mr. Speaker, I rise in opposition to this destructive insurance protection act that hurts the grandmothers, mothers, aunts and sisters and all of seniors and those disabled and provides zero benefits to Americans.

Ms. SLAUGHTER. Mr. Speaker, I yield such time as she may consume to the gentlewoman from New York (Mrs. MALONEY).

Mrs. MALONEY of New York. Mr. Speaker, I rise in opposition to this rule that would not allow a Democratic substitute and to the underlying bill.

I rise against the rule and the Republican bill. I regret for America's seniors that a Democratic alternative was not allowed. Medicare provides health care coverage to forty million retired and disabled Americans.

For decades, Medicare has worked to provide needed, lifesaving health care to millions, but it is missing a fundamental component: a prescription drug benefit.

If we have courage, this Congress can make history and give our nation's seniors what they desperately need: a real, and meaningful prescription drug plan.

I am proud to join my Democratic colleagues, led by Mr. DINGELL, Mr. RANGEL, Mr. STARK, and Mr. BROWN, as an original cosponsor of H.R. 5019, the "Medicare Prescription Drug Benefit and Discount Act."

I come to the floor to discuss two points:

Number 1: unlike the Republican drug plan, the Democratic plan is simple because it builds upon a proven model—Medicare.

Just like seniors pay a Part B premium today for doctor visits, under our plan, seniors would pay a voluntary Part D premium of $25 per month for drug coverage. For that, Medicare or the government will pay 80 percent of drug costs after a $100 deductible. And no senior will have to pay more than $2,000 in costs per year.

There is an urgent need for this plan. The most recent data indicates that almost 40 percent of seniors—an estimated 11 million—have no drug coverage. Problems are particularly acute for low income seniors and seniors over the age of 85 (the majority whom are women). Additionally, those older Americans who do have coverage find that their coverage is often inadequate for their needs.

The Democratic plan is a real plan with real numbers, not estimates.

Point 2: the Republican plan does nothing to bring down the cost of prescription drugs. The Democratic plan is the only plan that provides real Medicare prescription drug coverage for our seniors by stopping soaring drug costs.

Under the buying power of Medicare, through competition and bargaining we can rein in drug costs. Prescription drug costs are too high for our older Americans. They need help now!

For instance, let's look at the cost of Prevacid. Prevacid is an ulcer medication, and the second most widely used drug by American seniors. The cost for this prescription is on average $137.54 per month in New York City—but only $45.02 in the United Kingdom, a price differential of 206 percent.

Or look at Celebrex, a popular arthritis medication and a drug needed by many older women, especially, since older women are stricken more often than men by arthritis. According to a Government Reform Committee report released by Mr. WEINER and myself, a monthly supply of this drug costs $86.26 in New York City. In France, a monthly supply of Celebrex costs only $30.60. This is a price differential of 182 percent. Seniors in New York City without drug coverage must pay almost three times as much as purchasers in France.

Prices for prescriptions have risen 10 percent per year for the last several years, leading to over $37 billion in profits last year for the giant drug companies. While these corporations wallow in their spoils, seniors suffer without coverage.

Mr. Speaker, we must pass the Democratic prescription drug plan without delay. It is built on a proven model, Medicare. The Republican plan only offers gap-ridden coverage. The Republican bill is about privatization. The Republican plan is all about election year politics.

For the sake of our seniors, we must pass the Democratic plan, and we must pass it now.

Ms. SLAUGHTER. Mr. Speaker, I yield such time as she may consume to the gentlewoman from California (Ms. HARMAN).

Ms. HARMAN. Mr. Speaker, on behalf of seniors in my district, particularly women, and in particular veterans, I express my strong opposition to this bill.

Ms. SLAUGHTER. Mr. Speaker, I yield such time as she may consume to the gentlewoman from Colorado (Ms. DEGETTE).

Ms. DEGETTE. Mr. Speaker, I rise in opposition to this rule on behalf of the senior women in my district and around this country who live longer than men and pay far more money for prescription drugs.

Ms. SLAUGHTER. Mr. Speaker, I yield such time as she may consume to the gentlewoman from California (Ms. WATERS).

Ms. WATERS. Mr. Speaker, I enter my objection and opposition to this irresponsible bill that will do nothing to help the senior women of this country.

Every day, millions of American seniors are forced to choose between buying prescription drugs and buying food. The Republican leadership in Congress has responded to this crisis with H.R. 4954, a prescription drug bill that does nothing to help them.

The Republican bill would force seniors who want prescription drug coverage to get it from private insurance companies, but the bill provides no guarantee that insurance companies will offer prescription drug policies. Even the Health Insurance Association of America has admitted that insurance companies will not offer drug-only policies. So the Republican plan is guaranteed to fail.

Furthermore, even if prescription drug policies do become available, the premiums, deductibles and co-payments will vary widely. Low-income seniors could be denied the drugs they need if they cannot afford the co-payments. For many middle-income seniors, the benefits would be so limited that it would not be worthwhile for them to enroll. H.R. 4954 is a poor excuse for a prescription drug plan for our nation's senior citizens.

The Democrats have proposed a prescription drug plan that would provide a guaranteed prescription drug benefit under Medicare to all seniors who want one.

This bill would ensure that all seniors who choose to participate would pay the same low premiums and receive the same benefits.

Beneficiaries could choose to obtain their prescriptions from any willing pharmacy and would be guaranteed coverage for any drug their doctor prescribes.

Premiums and co-payments would be waived for seniors who are living under 150% of the poverty level.

The bill would use the collective bargaining clout of all 40 million Medicare beneficiaries to negotiate fair and reasonable drug prices.

Finally, no senior would have to pay more than $2 thousand per year in out-of-pocket expenses for the prescriptions they need.

It is time that Congress make prescription drugs available to all seniors who need them. I urge my colleagues to oppose H.R. 4954 and support the Democratic plan to provide guaranteed prescription drug coverage to all seniors who desire it.

Ms. SLAUGHTER. Mr. Speaker, I yield such time as she may consume to the gentlewoman from Georgia (Ms. MCKINNEY).

Ms. MCKINNEY. Mr. Speaker, I rise in opposition to this bill which is a sham and does nothing for seniors in my district, in my State and in my country.

Ms. SLAUGHTER. Mr. Speaker, I yield such time as she may consume to the gentlewoman from California (Ms. ESHOO).

Ms. ESHOO. Mr. Speaker, I rise to express my opposition to the bill that will be considered this evening on behalf of my constituents, especially the senior women that I represent. They deserve a great deal more and much better and all the women of the country do.

Ms. SLAUGHTER. Mr. Speaker, I yield such time as she may consume to the gentlewoman from California (Ms. PELOSI).

Ms. PELOSI. Mr. Speaker, I rise in opposition to this sham bill which is a cruel hoax on the American people, especially cruel to America's senior women who raised our families and deserve better.

Ms. SLAUGHTER. Mr. Speaker, I yield such time as she may consume to the gentlewoman from Connecticut (Ms. DELAURO).

Ms. DELAURO. Mr. Speaker, I rise in opposition to this insurance industry, pharmaceutical written bill that does not drive down the cost of prescription drugs or cover most of America's seniors and is very harmful to women in this country, those tomorrow, and those who are in older generations.

Mr. LINDER. Mr. Speaker, I, too, enjoyed that parade; and I particularly enjoyed the fact that they had not a particular thing to say about the bill.

To say something about impact the bill and how it impacts women, I yield such time as she may consume to the gentlewoman from Connecticut (Mrs. JOHNSON), who wrote the bill.

Mrs. JOHNSON of Connecticut. Mr. Speaker, we have had a parade of my colleagues from the other side claim that this legislation is harmful to senior women. I wonder how they could have so lost touch with the lives of women in America and women in their districts. This bill represents the greatest leap forward in women's health since the passage of Medicare.

I was polite to you, and I ask that you be polite to me.

For the very first time, women, particularly low-income women, will have their prescriptions covered. Perhaps you did not read the bill. You know and I know that women live longer than men. The great majority of seniors are women. Perhaps you did not know that retired women are living on half the income of retired men, that the average income of retired men in America is $30,000 and the average income of retired women is $15,000 and of retired women over 85 is $10,000.

Under this bill those low-income women will receive 100 percent of the costs of their drugs, of their premiums, of the deductible, and of the co-insurance up to maybe 2 to $5. They will have a right to charge that much co-insurance. That is an incredible boon to these women. They will have the security of knowing that every dollar of their prescription costs up to $2,000 will be covered if your income is under 175 percent of poverty, and that is 44 percent of all seniors.

Yes, this is a wonderful thing for women in America. Yes, this bill is a giant step forward for seniors in America. Yes, this is the greatest leap forward for women in health care since the founding of Medicare. And once you have read the bill, I will be happy to talk with you about details. But there can be no arguing with the fact that the first $2,000 of drug expense for people under 175 percent of poverty is completely covered and, by saving the State $40 billion, they will be able to go up that ladder of income.

So let us try to talk about the facts tonight, let us have a little less theater, let us have a little more discussion about the details of the legislation, and let us try to do America proud as we talk about the need for prescription drugs in Medicare.

Mr. THOMAS. Mr. Speaker, will the gentlewoman yield?

Mrs. JOHNSON of Connecticut. I yield to the gentleman from California.

Mr. THOMAS. As women enter their senior years, in terms of the problems they have with osteoporosis, do we include in this bill additional money to assist in mammography?

Mrs. JOHNSON of Connecticut. We certainly do. We fix all the problems with reimbursements for mammography so they will be more accessible to the women of America. Furthermore, we provide access for something that is extremely important to women, more important to women than men, and that is access to disease management plans to manage chronic illness. It is women who are plagued with four, five, and six chronic illnesses.

Mr. THOMAS. Mr. Speaker, will the gentlewoman yield?

Mrs. JOHNSON of Connecticut. I yield to the gentleman from California.

Mr. THOMAS. Is it not true that during their working lives men very often have physicals? In fact, it is oftentimes part of their professional occupation to get a physical periodically, and many times women who are not working do not get that physical?

Mrs. JOHNSON of Connecticut. Absolutely.

Mr. THOMAS. Is it not true in this bill that, for the first time, every senior who becomes Medicare eligible, that means every woman, gets a free physical?

Mrs. JOHNSON of Connecticut. Every woman gets a free physical under this bill, and for the first time they have an option for a plan that provides entirely free preventative benefits across the board to men and women.

So this is an enormous advancement for women because women are the ones who get the poorest health care throughout their lives, and they will have an option to a plan that has free preventive benefits across the board and, if they choose it, and they will all get a free baseline physical when they enter Medicare. Yes, a great advancement for senior women.

Ms. SLAUGHTER. Mr. Speaker, I yield 1 minute to the gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. MCGOVERN).

Mr. MCGOVERN. Mr. Speaker, I rise in strong opposition to this sham bill and to this woefully inadequate bill offered by the majority.

Every Member of this House knows that the number one issue facing senior citizens is the soaring cost of prescription drugs. Our seniors need relief and real relief now.

My Republican colleagues go on about how they support giving our seniors relief, and then they send this poor excuse for a benefit bill to the House floor. This guarantees seniors nothing, nothing. It is a bad bill. And to make matters worse, the gentlewoman from Connecticut (Mrs. JOHNSON) gets up and tells us how wonderful and strong her bill is. Yet she and the Republican leadership make it unamendable. No substitute. No amendments. No bipartisanship. Two hours total debate. That is it.

How sad. How outrageous. If there ever should have been an open and fair process, it should have been today. There were even good Republican amendments that were offered before the Committee on Rules that were ruled out of order. But, no, you are afraid you might lose because deep in your hearts you know that your bill is nothing more than a political soundbite and you deserve to lose.

Vote "no" on this rule and vote "no" on this bad bill.

Mr. LINDER. Mr. Speaker, I yield 3 minutes to the gentlewoman from West Virginia (Mrs. CAPITO).

Mrs. CAPITO. Mr. Speaker, I stand before you today to offer my remarks on the prescription drug plan.

On May 1, 2002, four of my constituents boarded a bus, traveled from Martinsburg, West Virginia, to Washington, D.C., to offer their voice and their story on how the prescription drug dilemma has reshaped their lives. That day I heard each of their voices; and, unfortunately, it is a voice I hear and we all hear all too often.

At each of the town meetings I have had the majority of the questions deal with the high cost of prescription drugs. After one particular town meeting a young lady approached me. She showed me a list of prescription drugs that her mother was taking and the cost of each drug listed besides it. Looking at the list my heart sank. These figures were staggering. Additionally, because of the high cost of her mother's medication, lack of Medicare coverage for her mother, this young woman who had a family of her own was paying for her mother's medication.

Is this right, Mr. Speaker? No, it is not.

Our seniors deserve the peace of mind of knowing that they can and will be able to afford their prescriptions. Anxiety over the affordability of prescribed medications should not spoil one's golden years. That is why I am standing here tonight.

I am choosing to stand here and tell you that Medicare needs to offer prescription drug benefit. To be blunt, we need to offer it. We needed to offer it yesterday or the day before or the day before. This situation should be resolved.

It is our duty as representatives to represent the people's voice, and their voice says now is the time. I urge all of my colleagues to stand up, pass this rule, pass the Medicare prescription drug legislation which is extremely beneficial to the senior women of America.

Ms. SLAUGHTER. Mr. Speaker, I yield 3 minutes to the gentleman from New York (Mr. RANGEL).

Mr. RANGEL. Mr. Speaker, this rule does not allow Democrats an opportunity to say that we think we have a better idea. The majority found it very difficult to get enough votes to support the pharmaceutical industry, but it would just seem to me that it is not a rule against Democrats. It is not a rule even against the integrity of the House. It is a rule against the senior citizens who really deserve better treatment than they are getting.

Mr. Speaker, I yield to the gentleman from Maryland (Mr. HOYER).

Mr. HOYER. Mr. Speaker, I thank the distinguished ranking member of the Committee on Ways and Means.

There may be no more serious issue that we consider on the floor of this House this year. The gentlewoman from West Virginia (Mrs. CAPITO) that just spoke said why it was so important. She is right. This issue is critically important to the women that she mentioned, critically important to the individuals that the gentlewoman from Connecticut (Mrs. JOHNSON) mentioned, and I would say critically important to the citizens that every one of the women on this side of the aisle represent and came and said they were concerned about and, therefore, are not supporting this rule.

The gentlewoman from Connecticut said she was polite to those people, and she was. But I suggest to the gentlewoman that this rule is not polite. This rule denigrates the importance and seriousness of this issue.

When your side took over in 1995, Gerald Solomon, the then-chairman of the Committee on Rules, said this, "The guiding principals will be openness and fairness. The Rules Committee will no longer rig the procedure to contrive a pre-determined outcome. From now on the Rules Committee will clear the stage for debate and let the House work its will."

You have, of course, retreated from that statement. You have not honored the seriousness of this issue.

□ 2130

The gentlewoman from Connecticut who the gentleman from California (Mr. THOMAS) says wrote this bill will not have the opportunity to defend this bill against an alternative that can be fully debated as to whether or not the seniors to whom she refers will, in fact, be protected.

The gentlewoman served with Bill Gradison. Bill Gradison for those who are relatively new to the House was a member of the Committee on Ways and Means and one of the senior members of the Committee on Ways and Means, and then Bill Gradison left here, and he went to head up the Insurance Industries Association in this country.

Ms. SLAUGHTER. Mr. Speaker, I yield 1 minute to the gentleman from Maryland (Mr. HOYER).

Mr. HOYER. Mr. Speaker, he went to the insurance industry and what does Bill Gradison say, a Republican, not a Democrat, a member of the Committee on Ways and Means, retired, what does he say? A member representing the insurance agency, he says this bill will not work. That is what Bill Gradison says, and the shame on this democratic body is that an issue that all of us agree is so critically important will not be fully debated consistent with the principle that Mr. Solomon enunciated in 1995 when the reformers took over this House.

How sad it is, how sad it is that we come here at this hour to debate one of America's most important issues, affecting millions and millions and millions of people. All of us, all of us have heard the lament of those individuals, be they female or male, who cannot pay their prescription drugs. It is our duty to reject this rule and to have a full and fair debate, consistent with the Solomon principles.

Mr. LINDER. Mr. Speaker, I am pleased to yield 2 minutes to the gentlewoman from Virginia (Mrs. JO ANN DAVIS).

Mrs. JO ANN DAVIS of Virginia. Mr. Speaker, I rise to speak in support of the rule. For years I have been an avid supporter of prescription drug coverage for senior citizens. Why? Because I have a mom whose prescription drugs amount to over 50 percent of her Social Security check.

Today, I rise to speak for all of those who have moms and dads on Medicare. The minority does not have a serious bill. They have a $1 trillion election year gimmick that will bankrupt Medicare.

This is a good and fair rule because it allows a vote on the only credible plan that has been carefully and thoughtfully designed to help seniors by lowering drug costs, guaranteeing coverage and providing choices.

Under the Republican plan, every senior will be eligible for coverage. We guarantee this coverage. It cannot be taken away. The Democrat plan, however, phases out coverage. It is essentially an experiment. Mr. Speaker, seniors cannot afford an experiment. They need real, credible coverage that they can rely on.

This bill will help our seniors. This is a good rule for a long-awaited and much-needed legislation and we must pass it. I urge my colleagues to join me in voting "yes" on the rule and "yes" on final passage of the bill for my mom and everyone's mom and dad that is on Medicare.

Ms. SLAUGHTER. Mr. Speaker, I yield 1 minute to the gentleman from New Jersey (Mr. MENENDEZ).

Mr. MENENDEZ. Mr. Speaker, I rise on behalf of my 83-year-old mother and millions like her across this country who work for decades, in her case, in the factories of New Jersey, now has Alzheimer's and spends over half of her Social Security check on prescription drugs and but for my sister and my assistance would not live with the dignity that she deserves. There is a difference between Republicans and Democrats on prescription drugs, and that is why Republicans will not even let us debate our proposal here on the floor of the House of Representatives.

The denial of a vote on the Democratic proposal for a universal, affordable, guaranteed benefit under Medicare is a corruption of this institution by the Republican majority, by the way, for an industry that has given them millions in campaign contributions.

There is a difference in who benefits. Democrats cover all seniors. My colleagues subsidize big insurance companies and cover less than a quarter of seniors' costs. There is a difference in what seniors will pay. Democrats guarantee a $25 monthly premium with low out-of-pocket expenses. My colleagues leave those decisions to the whims of corporations. Plenty of opportunity for more corporate greed.

No senior in America should have to choose between paying their rent, putting food on the table, and having access to life-enhancing drugs.

ANNOUNCEMENT BY THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. LATOURETTE). The Chair would ask the courtesy of all Members in not exceeding the time that has been yielded to them.

Mr. LINDER. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Iowa (Mr. LATHAM).

Mr. LATHAM. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman from Georgia for yielding me the time, and I thank the Speaker for this time.

This is a long time coming. This is so important for people like my mother who is 85 years old, living in a town of 168 people in Alexander, Iowa. This is not only a bill that is going to help her to be able to afford her prescription drugs and to enhance her length of life and quality of life; but just as importantly, in rural America, this bill is going to make sure that there is access to quality health care in rural America.

There is a lot of work that has gone into this bill, and I would like to see any other proposal out there that has brought together so many people when we look at the American Hospital Association, the AMA, the physical therapists, the National Association of Home Care, the National Rural Health Care Association, all coming together in support of this very, very important legislation.

Mr. Speaker, I have been very proud to serve on the Speaker's Prescription Drug Action Team, and I want to thank the Speaker and all the chairmen of the committees that have worked so hard on this bill and to the successful end which is really going to address the problems that we have.

I also want to congratulate my three Republican colleagues from Iowa (Mr. LEACH), (Mr. NUSSLE), and (Mr. GANSKE) for working as a team to try and make sure that we did get relief in Iowa. We have the lowest reimbursement for our hospitals in the country by a wide margin. This bill is going to take a giant step toward keeping those rural hospitals open, to keep the kind of high-quality health care providers on the job and serving in Iowa. It is absolutely critical that we continue to have the physicians, the nurses, the home health care folks available for my mother.

Mr. Speaker, this is a great evening, and I support the rule and the bill.

Ms. SLAUGHTER. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from New Jersey (Mr. PALLONE).

Mr. PALLONE. Mr. Speaker, some of the comments that are being made by my colleagues on the other side, both on the floor and in the Committee on Rules, have been very upsetting to me.

I rise in opposition to the rule, but I heard the gentlewoman from Virginia just say that the rule was fair because it allows an up-or-down vote on what is the only good bill dealing with prescription drugs. That is not what fairness is about. That is not what democracy is about.

I asked this morning in the Committee on Rules that the Democratic substitute and three other amendments that would lead to price reductions and another amendment that would provide a guaranteed Medicare benefit be placed in order. All were denied. My colleague may not agree with me, but the gentlewoman from Virginia should not suggest that the only thing that should be considered is what they think is the right thing. That is not the way a democracy operates.

The other thing that upset me was that I heard the gentlewoman from Connecticut say that we should just read the bill. Let me tell my colleague, I read the bill. We have not had a lot of time to read the Republican bill, but I read it. There is nothing in it. It is not a Medicare benefit. It does not guarantee any benefit. It does not tell us what the premium is going to be. It does not tell us what the deductible is going to be. It does not tell us anything about whether it is going to be available anywhere, and there is no price reduction.

The gentlewoman from Connecticut mentioned the passage of Medicare, but she was very proud of the fact this morning in the Committee on Rules that this was not a Medicare bill and that it operated through private insurance and through market competition and was not part of Medicare because she said that Medicare oftentimes does not work now and we need to change it.

Then the gentleman from Georgia actually said in response to the gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. MCGOVERN) when I spoke about how we wanted a Medicare guarantee and we wanted this to be under Medicare, the gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. MCGOVERN) said it is unfortunate that the gentleman from Georgia (Mr. LINDER) made a reference to the Medicare prescription drug program as a Sovietstyle model program, and the gentleman from Georgia (Mr. LINDER) said, well, it is; and he said it several times.

The problem is that the Republicans do not like Medicare. They do not want this to be a Medicare program because they never liked Medicare, and they want it to wither on the vine, and they do not want to provide any benefit for senior citizens in this country.

Mr. LINDER. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume. That was some of the gentleman's more interesting prose. I am sure there is a kernel of thought in there, but I did not detect it.

Mr. Speaker, I yield 1 minute to the gentleman from California (Mr. THOMAS), the chairman of the Committee on Ways and Means.

Mr. THOMAS. Mr. Speaker, the parade on the other side of the aisle which repeated the mantra that it was a sham bill, cruel hoax, harmful to women and the disabled, in case anybody really thinks that is true, I am wondering why then when we look at the more than 90 organizations that support this bill, have names such as the Visiting Nurses Association, the Pennsylvania Women's Health Alliance, the National Spinal Cord Injury Association, the National Coalition for Women With Heart Disease, the National Alliance for the Mentally Ill of Pennsylvania, American Parkinson's Association of Vermont, the Epilepsy Foundation of Mississippi, having someone parade to the microphone and repeat some mantra, as though it was some kind of a fixed statement that meant anything really does embarrass me, when if we look at the organizations and more that I just repeated who every day help the people that my colleagues say are not helped are for this bill. Someone is wrong, and it is not them.

Ms. SLAUGHTER. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

The Democrats are standing with AARP, the National Committee to Preserve Social Security and Medicare, the Alliance for Retired Americans, National Council on the Aging, National Senior Citizens Law Center, Families USA, the National Partnership for Women and Families, the AFL and countless others who represent America's 40 million Medicare beneficiaries.

Mr. Speaker, I yield 3 minutes to the gentleman from Michigan (Mr. DINGELL).

Mr. DINGELL. Mr. Speaker, I thank the distinguished gentlewoman for yielding me the time.

We have got a remarkable thing here before us, a closed rule. We have got a bill on which there were never any hearings, a bill that just drips defects, a bill that is opposed by almost everybody that knows anything about pharmaceuticals and about the needs of the senior citizens and a bill that is opposed by every single responsible major organization of senior citizens.

We cannot offer amendments to it. They cannot be cut-and-bite amendments. There is no possibility of us offering a substitute to it. This is what my colleagues call democracy on that side of the aisle? This is the way we treat the concerns and the rights and the interests of our senior citizens? I wonder how many of them like what they are seeing tonight on television as they watch this body engage in debate which is at best fraudulent and which is at worst just plain outrageous.

The hard fact of the matter is we cannot offer amendments on this side at all, but we can bring to attention the fact that this is going to significantly damage, if not in fact destroy, most of the plans that on behalf of industry and labor offer to retirees the right to have prescription pharmaceuticals as a part of the medical care program of the company which offers that particular benefit.

That is an outrage. There is no way that we can address here what the amount is that is going to be charged for the program. In other words, in this legislation, there is nothing anywhere which tells how much the senior citizen is going to pay to whom for what. That is all left up to some kind of nebulous understanding between the Secretary and an insurance company. There is no correction for that particular problem.

Is that bad? Of course. But there is worse. There is not a nickel's worth of subsidy for the health care of a senior citizen in this legislation. Do my colleagues know where the money goes in the legislation that is before us? To an insurance company. The insurance company can offer whatever benefits it wants or no benefits, but it is going to get a big fat subsidy.

With companies like Arthur Andersen I am sure that we will have an accounting system which will make that look good, but the simple fact of the matter is the benefits that are going to come under this legislation are not going to come to citizens. They are going to go to a bunch of cold-hearted, steely-eyed insurance companies that are going to be interested in maximizing benefits. In fact, there is not one plan which will be offered by insurance companies that is not going to be heavily subsidized.

Mr. Speaker, I rise in strong opposition to this abominable closed rule. On the most important issue to face this Congress, the Republican leadership has decided to prevent a single amendment to be offered, and in particular, a Democratic substitute.

There is no secret why we Democrats are not being allowed to offer a substitute, even a substitute that requires no waivers of the rules. It is not because our substitute has no merit. It is because it has so much merit, it would pass.

Let me explain why the rule needs to be defeated so that we can offer the Democratic substitute.

Unlike the bill introduced by our Republican colleagues, our substitute can be simply explained, because it is built on a simple, known, and effective model—Medicare itself.

Just like seniors pay a voluntary premium for Part B medical costs such as doctor visits, our bill provides for a voluntary Part D drug premium of $25 per month. For that, the Government will pay 80% of drug costs after a $100 deductible. And no senior will have to pay more than $2,000 in costs per year.

These are real numbers, not estimates. The benefits and the $25 monthly premium are specified on the first page of the substitute. Unfortunately, there are no such guarantees in the Republican bill.

On top of that, we will be arming seniors with the most potent protection from soaring drug costs. Forty million seniors banded together under the buying power of Medicare, we can begin to use the necessary bargaining power to rein in high drug prices.

This is not price controls; it is competition and bargaining. We saw that the Government was effective in negotiating a competitive price for the prescription drug Cipro during the anthrax outbreak. Why shouldn't we do the same for other life saving drugs for seniors?

In contrast to our simple and effective prescription drug benefit, the Republican bill is a complex scheme that would make Rube Goldberg blush. In fact, it is not a drug benefit at all. It is a host of subsidies to private insurers in the hope that they will offer a drug-only benefit to seniors. Will they? Time and again they have told us "no."

Why would the Republicans put forward such a model? Well, quite simply they have a larger agenda—they want to privatize all of Medicare, and this is just another step. That is the only reason why seniors are not even given a choice of getting the benefit through their traditional Medicare provider.

Any why don't they endorse our plan? Our plan is simple; it is comprehensive; it is what seniors want. The Republicans have raised just one issue: they say it costs too much. Well, I can tell you that we can afford it. It is just a matter of priorities.

Should that priority be making the estate tax repeal on the wealthiest people permanent, which will cost $750 billion in the decade that the permanent repeal is effective, or should it be enacting a critical health program that will help all of our seniors?

Our prescription drug benefit has the strong support of organizations representing millions of seniors, such as the National Committee to Preserve Social Security and Medicare, the alliance for Retired Americans, the National Council on Aging, and AARP. They recognize our benefit is a good value for seniors.

The substitute also includes provisions to shore up the Medicare fee-for-service system such as increased payments to hospitals, doctors, and nursing homes. Senior citizens and individuals with disabilities depend on Medicare fee-for-service an ensuring its continued viability has always been a priority for Democrats.

It is a good substitute, and I hope my colleagues will vote against the rule, so that it can be offered.

□ 2145

Mr. LINDER. Mr. Speaker, I yield 1 minute to the gentleman from Mississippi (Mr. PICKERING).

Mr. PICKERING. Mr. Speaker, I rise in proud support of the rule and the effort of this body. It is an historic opportunity for us.

If we put the politics and the extreme language aside, these are the facts: $350 billion will go to our seniors for prescription drugs, to our rural hospitals, to our health community centers, to those who need it most.

In my home State of Mississippi, 55 percent of all seniors live at the rate that will get the fixed income assistance, which means no deductible, no premium, only a copayment of $2 to $5 per prescription drug, an enormous benefit for the seniors who need it most. Fifty-five percent of seniors in Mississippi.

If we look at those who have catastrophic occurrences in their life, when drug costs exceed $3,700, they will see no cost over that. Those most in need will be helped. It is responsible, it is reasonable, it is right. I urge the Members to follow and support the rule.

Ms. SLAUGHTER. Mr. Speaker, I yield such time as he may consume to the gentleman from California (Mr. HONDA).

Mr. HONDA. Mr. Speaker, I rise to express my opposition of this prescription drug proposal.

Mr. Speaker, the elderly and disabled have waited long enough for a prescription drug benefit in Medicare and for relief from the high cost of prescription drug prices. While the Republicans have been busy voting on permanent tax cuts and attending lavish fundraisers by the pharmaceutical industry, seniors throughout the country have been waiting for Congress to take action. All seniors need relief from prescription drug prices, and they need it now.

However, the Republican prescription drug bill completely fails the test of a real Medicare drug benefit. The Republican bill has no guaranteed minimum benefit, no guaranteed, affordable monthly premium, and no guarantee of fair drug prices. To add insult to injury, their bill leaves a huge coverage gap. Seniors who need more than $2,000 worth of drugs must pay one hundred percent out-of-pocket, and keep paying premiums, until they reach the $3,700 out-of-pocket cap.

Mr. Speaker, the Democrats have an alternative we had hoped to offer. Under the Democratic plan, seniors and individuals with disabilities will be able to keep making the choices that matter. Seniors will not be forced to join an HMO. They will not be forced to join a private insurance plan that will restrict their access to needed drugs, deny coverage for the medicine their doctors prescribe, or force them to change pharmacies. And unlike the Republican plan, our plan has no gap—beneficiaries will always have coverage.

But the Republican Leadership is denying Democrats the opportunity to offer our alternative. They are denying our right to participate in a fair, democratic debate about prescription drugs. The time is now for a real, meaningful, and affordable Medicare prescription drug benefit. Unfortunately, it looks like this Republican-led House won't be providing one anytime soon.

Ms. SLAUGHTER. Mr. Speaker, I yield 1 minute to the gentlewoman from California (Mrs. CAPPS).

Mrs. CAPPS. Mr. Speaker, I thank my colleague for yielding me this time.

Mr. Speaker, I acknowledge my sisters in Congress as we rise in opposition to this terrible rule.

One of the proudest days of my life was when I was sworn into this body, the symbol of our democracy. But today I am sad for the House and for this country. The process the majority has used to produce their Medicare bill is completely contrary to the principles of our Constitution. A bill was rammed through committee that will not give seniors an affordable, reliable, comprehensive benefit; seniors, most of whom are women.

Now the majority is refusing to allow a free and fair debate on the issue. Why? They know their bill will not work. They know seniors will not get affordable drug coverage from insurance companies, and they know so many seniors will get no help with their medications, and they are afraid they would lose.

I can accept losing in a fair fight, but I cannot accept this anti-democratic attempt to muzzle fair debate. We should reject this rule, have a full debate on the needs of our seniors, and pass a real prescription drug benefit.

Mr. LINDER. Mr. Speaker, I am pleased to yield 1 minute to the gentleman from Minnesota (Mr. KENNEDY).

Mr. KENNEDY of Minnesota. Mr. Speaker, this bill is important and overdue for our Nation's 13 million seniors. Our seniors deserve prescription drug coverage now. They do not deserve the Democrat's election-year gimmick.

The average senior saves 44 percent on current drug costs under our plan. Mr. Speaker, our plan gives seniors immediate relief from the rising cost of prescription drugs by providing a discount of up to 25 percent off the top of the overall drug cost.

Just last week, Health and Human Services Secretary Tommy Thompson released a study showing our plan would save seniors more money than our friends on the other side of the aisle. In addition to the immediate discount and cost sharing, our plan includes catastrophic protection, 100 percent prescription drug coverage for low-income seniors, and more Medicare choices and savings.

I support the passage of this bill and this rule, and I urge my colleagues to do the same.

Ms. SLAUGHTER. Mr. Speaker, I yield 1 minute to the gentleman from Michigan (Mr. BONIOR).

Mr. BONIOR. Mr. Speaker, about 2 weeks ago, I got on a bus with some seniors from my State of Michigan, and we went over to Ontario, Canada, to buy some prescription drugs. They got these drugs at 60, 70, 80, 90, 110 percent less than what they would have to pay in the United States, drugs like Lipitor and Celebrex.

They deserve a secure retirement. A secure retirement means not having to choose between medication and rent, medication and food, medication and transportation. It also means not having to go to another country to buy medicines that they need. That is an outrage.

We have the power in this institution to change that. We have had the power to change that for the last 8 years, and we have not done a damn thing about it, if my colleagues will pardon my language.

The Republicans have turned a blind eye to the plight of our mothers and our fathers and our grandparents. They have been blinded by the money and the power of the pharmaceutical lobby, and the Republicans are putting up roadblocks to prescription drugs time after time after time.

It is time for real reform, not a sham proposal. I ask my colleagues to open their eyes to the reality of what is happening in the country and give us some decent options to vote on.

Mr. LINDER. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume to remind my friend from Michigan that, about 10 years ago, they had the power to change it with overwhelming majorities in both bodies and the Presidency, and they chose not to do it then, too.

Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Texas (Mr. BARTON).

Mr. BARTON of Texas. Mr. Speaker, I rise in support of the rule, even though I had an amendment that I would have liked to have offered that was not made in order on prescription drug savings accounts.

This is not the fairest rule. We could have made in order a Democratic alternative. But for a first start, I think it is a fair enough rule.

This is a good plan that will be on the floor. It spends $350 billion over 10 years to provide a prescription drug benefit and some Medicare reforms for the providers. The drug benefit comes to a population where we have about 30 million senior citizens on Medicare, and 70 percent of those seniors have some prescription drug coverage under private medigap policies. Of those that do not have any prescription drug benefits, 50 percent of them have drug costs that are less than $1,000 a year, and only about 700,000 have drug costs that are over $5,000 a year.

Now, if you are one of those 700,000 or it is your mother or your father, your grandmother, your grandfather, your aunt or your uncle, that is a big problem. But to say that a prescription drug benefit that is going to provide $31 billion a year to provide coverage for prescription drugs is not at least a good start, I think is just flat hypocritical.

Now, I think we can do more. I would like for us to do more. I would like to, at some point in time, make in order an option for those that want to use a prescription drug savings account to have that option; and, hopefully, later this year, we will get that.

I would point out that if the plan that is before us were to become law and it is a bad plan, it is optional. There is nothing mandatory about this plan that is going to be on the floor.

I would also point out that the provider benefits in the bill, which are over $4 billion a year, there is almost universal support for in the provider community.

So this is a good start. I would hope we would vote for the rule and have the debate.

Ms. SLAUGHTER. Mr. Speaker, may I inquire as to the time remaining on both sides?

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. LATOURETTE). The gentlewoman from New York (Ms. SLAUGHTER) has 10 minutes remaining, and the gentleman from Georgia (Mr. LINDER) has 11 minutes remaining.

Ms. SLAUGHTER. Mr. Speaker, I yield 1 minute to the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. BROWN).

Mr. BROWN of Ohio. Mr. Speaker, I thank my friend from New York for yielding me this time.

Last week, the Committee on Energy and Commerce was marking up the prescription drug bill. Last Wednesday, we stopped at 5 p.m. in the afternoon when we should have been working into the evening. Why? Because my friends on that side of the aisle went to a Republican fund-raiser underwritten by the prescription drug companies.

The Chair of that dinner was the CEO of a British drug company who donated $250,000 to the Republican Party. There were hundreds of thousands of other dollars donated by drug companies that night.

The next day, Mr. Speaker, when we went back for the markup, every amendment that Democrats offered that the drug companies did not like, surprise, was voted down. An amendment that said seniors should get the same drug benefits that Members of Congress get was voted down on a party line vote because the drug company sat in the back of the room and said no.

Every amendment we voted on that the drug companies did not like, to close the gap in all the out-of-pocket expenses that seniors had to pay, if the drug companies did not like it, they sat back in the back of the room and said no.

Vote for the Democratic plan written for seniors.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman's time has expired.

Mr. BROWN of Ohio. Vote "no" on the Republican plan written by the drug companies for the drug companies.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman's time has expired.

Ms. SLAUGHTER. I was going to yield that gentleman another 30 seconds.

ANNOUNCEMENT BY THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Members need to heed the gavel, and the Chair would respectfully ask that, when the gavel is pounding, the Members cease speaking so that the gentlewoman from New York (Ms. SLAUGHTER) could yield additional time, which is her desire.

Mr. LINDER. Mr. Speaker, I am pleased to yield 2 minutes to my friend, the gentleman from Florida (Mr. WELDON).

Mr. WELDON of Florida. Mr. Speaker, as many of my colleagues in this body know, I practiced internal medicine for many years before coming to the House. Indeed, I still see patients about once a month at the veterans' clinic in my congressional district. I lived this problem on a daily basis. I practiced internal medicine. Mainly what I did was I wrote prescriptions mainly for senior citizens, and I dealt personally with the struggles that many of them face in paying for their drugs.

My primary concern is getting a bill, and frankly I was very disappointed we did not get a bill 2 years ago, and I think the reason we did not get a bill is because some people thought they could capitalize on it in the campaign, and I have to honestly say this is deja vu all over again. We are starting out very, very poorly.

I have heard that they have not had a chance. We had two committees mark up this bill. The Committee on Ways and Means spent 13 hours on it. They were in until 2 a.m. The Committee on Energy and Commerce went all night. We hear these claims that the pharmaceutical company is giving us all this money. Do I assume the Democratic party has never taken any pharmaceutical money?

I will tell the Members what we need. We need a plan. We need some kind of plan, and this is step one. We have to go to conference with the Senate. Then we have to negotiate in conference, and many of you people who are over there demagoguing this issue are going to be in that conference committee. We are going to have plenty of opportunities to get a very, very good bill to help our seniors.

But if we keep on with this attitude, I am going to tell my folks back home, forget it. It is going to be kicked off into the campaign again. People are going to hope they are going to get an advantage, and I do not think anybody is going to get an advantage, and the people who are going to suffer are the senior citizens.

I want to say one other thing. We do not want a plan that stifles innovation. If you stifle innovation, I can tell you I used to write prescriptions for people and give them to them, new pills that kept them alive, and without those pills, they would have died.

Ms. SLAUGHTER. Mr. Speaker, I yield 1 minute to the gentlewoman from Florida (Mrs. THURMAN).

Mrs. THURMAN. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentlewoman for yielding me this time.

Mr. Speaker, I want the people of the fifth district's voices to be heard tonight, too. First of all, I want to say that this debate tonight is not about the provider givebacks in this bill. This debate is about the most important issue facing the American people and the issue that every Member of this Congress and including the President ran on in the last election.

And let us make it clear, today I went to the Committee on Rules because the people in the fifth district said to me, we want the cost of drugs down, we are tired of seeing on the TV people going to Canada to buy their medicines cheaper, or why is it that industrialized nations, our competitors, are buying their drugs at a lesser cost?

Just to give you some examples, how about Zocor? In industrialized nations their average pricing is about $65. In the fifth district, it is $104. We need to bring these costs down.

Mr. LINDER. Mr. Speaker, I am pleased to yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. SHIMKUS).

Mr. SHIMKUS. Mr. Speaker, I wish my friend, the gentleman from Maryland (Mr. HOYER), was here because he played the Solomon card, and I have great respect for Jerry Solomon, and I say semper fi to Jerry, who is probably watching these proceedings and chuckling.

Mr. Speaker, I support this rule. We labored hard for over 25 hours in the Committee on Energy and Commerce, and I know my friends on the Committee on Ways and Means worked deeply as hard. It is not a perfect bill. In fact, the bill coming to the floor stripped out my language on orphan drugs, help for Lou Gehrig's disease, Crohn's disease and Tourette's disease.

But this bill has some positive aspects. First, it fits within the budget. This is critical because any amendment either on the floor would add to the bill which would strip it on a budget point of order or it would shortchange the prescription drug benefit or shortchange the hospital benefits.

Illinois offers a pharmaceutical assistance program for dual eligibles. This bill will assume Federal responsibility for dual eligibles, saving Illinois $2 billion over 8 years.

□ 2200

Individuals who make 175 percent of poverty level will receive full cost-sharing assistance. This covers 34 percent of Illinois' Medicare population, 549,000 people. It increases payments to all hospitals in 2003. It increases payments to community hospitals. It increases DSH payments, adds a 10 percent increase to rural home health care agencies, increases by 10 percent hospice payments.

Mr. Speaker, it is a finely crafted bill that went through the committee process. It is not a perfect bill. It is a bill that we can pass on the floor tonight. I commend my colleagues and look forward to passing this bill.

Ms. SLAUGHTER. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentlewoman from California (Ms. PELOSI), the Democratic whip.

Ms. PELOSI. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentlewoman for yielding me this time.

Mr. Speaker, 37 years ago when Medicare first came into existence, there was a big fight over it. The Democrats wholeheartedly supported it. The Republicans opposed it. They still oppose Medicare.

Over the years, they have made statements to that effect. Newt Gingrich when he was Speaker said that he would like to see Medicare, in his words, wither on the vine. And the Republican leader of the House, the gentleman from Texas (Mr. ARMEY) said that Medicare should be no part of a free world. In the debate in the Committee on Rules last night, the gentleman from Georgia (Mr. LINDER) referred to it as a Soviet-style model, what the Democrats were proposing. A Soviet-style model.

They did not support it then. They do not support it now. It is no wonder they have proposed this cruel hoax on America's seniors. To pretend they have a prescription drug benefit that is a guarantee is simply not true. They offer no guarantee, merely a suggestion.

The Republican bill does not contain any defined premium or assurances that prescription drugs will be affordable. In the one State where such a program exists, the monthly premium is $85 per month. That is in Nevada.

Less than one-fifth of the estimated cost of Medicare beneficiaries over the next 10 years will be covered in this bill. The Republican bill does not provide guaranteed access to the drugs seniors need or access to their local pharmacy.

If we had been allowed to present a substitute tonight, which this rule prevents, the Democratic substitute would have provided a guaranteed, affordable prescription drug benefit for all seniors that will amount to an entitlement under Medicare. The gentleman from Texas (Mr. BARTON) said before this is optional; it is not mandatory. He said that himself on the floor here.

Mr. Speaker, imagine a situation where we could have prescription drug benefits for all of our seniors, the quality of life that it would produce, and the cost savings to our budget.

Mr. LINDER. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself 30 seconds to point out a couple of things in the previous statement.

Mr. Speaker, Mr. Gingrich did not ever say Medicare would wither on the vine. This was played out on CNN very clearly when they played the whole statement, not the botched statement the Democrats have been running. He said if we bring competition into the system, the Health Care Financing Administration would wither on the vine.

Secondly, I will point out that the Democrats had a majority here for 40 years. When I first came here, they had a huge majority in both bodies, and the President was a Democratic; and they did not even offer one. I think it is fair to say that the Republicans are making the effort.

Mr. Speaker, I yield 1 minute to the gentlewoman from Pennsylvania (Ms. HART).

Ms. HART. Mr. Speaker, I rise in support of the rule and urge Members to also support the bill.

The Centers for Medicaid and Medicare Services did a poll checking out this bill. They estimated that virtually all of the Medicare beneficiaries, that is at least 95 percent of them, would opt for this drug coverage. I doubt that 95 percent of Medicare recipients would be interested in their proposal, but this proposal provides seniors with coverage for prescription drugs that they cannot get today. That means the choice they currently make of leaving that prescription drug bag on the counter because they cannot afford it or paying for it and taking it home is no longer a choice they have to make. They pay for it because they have coverage, they take it home, and their health improves.

All of the senior citizens that I have met with in my district have been asking me to please help them get the coverage for the prescription drugs they need to stay healthy and out of the hospital. That is all they ask. The women and the men. That is what we give them in our bill. I urge support.

Ms. SLAUGHTER. Mr. Speaker, I yield 1 minute to the gentleman from New York (Mr. NADLER).

Mr. NADLER. Mr. Speaker, what we have on the floor today is a pitiful, pathetic, puny, pretend plan; a pretend plan that pretends to offer seniors prescription drug care, prescription drugs; but what it really does is gives a lot of money to the insurance companies and says please, we hope you will do something for our seniors, maybe. That is all it is.

They are too something, I will not say what because my words might be taken down, but they will not permit the Democratic plan, which is a straight plan for Medicare to pay for 80 percent of the cost of prescription drugs, to be offered on this floor because they do not have confidence that they could win the debate. They will not permit the two plans to be offered on this floor to be debated because they are afraid in the light of day if the American people see it, they would say, We want a plan. We want what they call the Soviet-style plan, which is what they characterize Medicare as for the last 40 years.

They did not want it then. They still do not want it. And they certainly do not want Medicare coverage for prescription drugs. They want to give more money to the insurance companies and say we hope they will provide it. Fat chance.

Mr. LINDER. Mr. Speaker, I yield 1 minute to the gentleman from Kentucky (Mr. FLETCHER).

Mr. FLETCHER. Mr. Speaker, this evening we are addressing one of the most pressing health care issues in America. I am very disappointed that my colleagues on the other side of the aisle, when we marked up the budget, they absolutely set aside no amount of money, zip. They did nothing to set aside any money for prescription drugs for seniors. There was no plan in order to provide the funding for the plan that they offered in the committee; and it was a $973 billion plan offered in the committee. There was no way of paying for it. This burden was going to be on our children and grandchildren, and the other side of the aisle offered no single way of paying for it.

Mr. Speaker, they talked about taxes, but they did not offer the tax increase that would have been required. Are they taking it from Social Security? That is where it would have had to come from. Now they talk about controlling cost.

We eliminated the best prices which eliminated the floor. Congressional Budget Office estimates this has the most cost-controlling policy of any plan offered. That means we are going to provide the most competitive prices for drugs. I encourage Members to support the rule and the bill.

Ms. SLAUGHTER. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Arkansas (Mr. BERRY).

Mr. BERRY. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentlewoman for yielding me this time.

Mr. Speaker, this rule is a fraud. This bill is a fraud. They have come to the floor and said that they are going to do something about prescription drugs for our seniors. Not a dime of this money goes to buy any medicine. It goes to the insurance companies.

I wondered, as I listened to this debate this evening, if my colleagues on the other side of the aisle have bought into the philosophy of that old philosopher and spiritual leader, Brother Dave Gardner, who said, "When you get a man down, kick him because it gives him incentive to rise above himself."

They have got our senior citizens down, and now they want to kick them. The Greatest Generation that lived through the Depression, fought World War II and built this Nation, and now we are going to just kick them one more time. And if we cannot kick them, we are going to trick them and try to make them think that we are going to buy them some prescription medicine. This bill does not buy them anything.

Mr. Speaker, this rule should not pass and this bill should not pass because everyone who votes for it is going to have to live forever with the fact that they mistreated our senior citizens, the Greatest Generation one more time.

Mr. LINDER. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from California (Mr. CUNNINGHAM).

Mr. CUNNINGHAM. Mr. Speaker, I would like to speak to my colleagues on the other side of the aisle. The gentlewoman from New York (Ms. SLAUGHTER) and I have been friends for a long time. I have a mom. I have a grandmother that is 93 years old. I have a mother-in-law and two daughters. They just left topside.

What we resent on this side, and they know the gamesmanship when they had the majority, but the inferences that Republicans do not care about our families is wrong. We do. I would give my life for my family. And I would not give a dime to drug companies if I thought it was going to hurt.

Let me give an example. I had pneumonia a couple of years ago; and when I went to the doctor, the price of Augmentin was $110. My wife had prescription drug insurance through the school system where she is a teacher. That drug instead of $110 was $17. That is the free market private system, and we want more and more people to be included in that.

Now, I understand if the other side of the aisle wants a government-controlled health care plan like the former First Lady tried to do with health care. That is their prerogative, but we think that is wrong. We do care about our people. No child should have to apologize because they go to get a drug, and like the President sat right up here, President Clinton, and we take care of that. But to give the inference that Republicans do not care about our families is wrong because we do. We care very much.

I would also say that the gentlewoman from California (Ms. PELOSI), who spoke previously, since 1988, every single year she voted to take 100 percent of the money out of the Social Security trust fund, and here is the documentation.

Ms. SLAUGHTER. Mr. Speaker, I yield 1 minute to the gentlewoman from Texas (Ms. JACKSON-LEE).

Ms. JACKSON-LEE of Texas. Mr. Speaker, I am told that our physicians take a Hippocratic oath, and that oath says when someone is in need and trusts the physician, do no harm.

I am sad to say that the insurance companies and the Republicans have gotten together, and they are doing great harm. The Republican insurance protection act: value, zero. Zero benefits. Zero to Mom, zero to Dad, zero benefits to the disabled. It is a shame. Realize that our sick seniors are on a roller coaster. Their premiums are not guaranteed, deductibles are high. She is not assured that she will be able to buy the drugs at the pharmacy she trusts, and she gets nothing for a big part of the year, even though she keeps paying premiums.

Mr. Speaker, the Member from Florida said everybody takes money, the Democrats took money. But the Democrats did not take $31 million 5 days before we were supposed to come to the floor of the House and deny us a substitute in order for us to be able to debate this bill on behalf of the American people.

Mr. LINDER. Mr. Speaker, I yield 1 minute to the gentleman from Georgia (Mr. KINGSTON).

Mr. KINGSTON. Mr. Speaker, after looking at this issue from many different angles and for many different weeks, I am going to support this rule. There is a lot more left to do that I am going to be a part of, and I am proud to see that a number of our Members of our leadership have agreed to in terms of addressing and lowering the cost of prescription drugs. But as I listen to this rhetoric tonight, and so much of it is totally uncalled for, one has to believe the statement made in the New Republic in June that the Democrats want this issue on the table because it is an election year, they do not want the bill, they want the issue. I am listening to this, and I know there are a lot of Democrats who want the policy, but I cannot help but think tonight that the Democrats want the politics.

□ 2215

You have to ask yourself, where is your plan? Where is your plan? We know that Mr. DASCHLE and some of the folks across the hall have one, but it is a trillion-dollar plan which will bankrupt Medicare. As you say, you do not like our plan. Well, our plan does not bankrupt Medicare. If you want to protect Medicare, why do you want to bankrupt it?

ANNOUNCEMENT BY THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. LATOURETTE). The Chair would again ask all Members to yield to the gavel.

Ms. SLAUGHTER. Mr. Speaker, we had a plan. We had a fine plan. We just could not bring it out here before the American people.

Mr. Speaker, I yield 1½ minutes to the gentlewoman from California (Ms. ESHOO).

Ms. ESHOO. I thank the gentlewoman for yielding me this time.

Mr. Speaker, I rise this evening in opposition to this rule. There is something very, very, very wrong in this House; and my Republican colleagues know it. You know it because you always speak of choice. You always speak about competition. You are always talking about new ideas. But you will not allow them to come to the floor of the House of Representatives.

I represent 650,000 people. The gentleman that just came to the podium said, "Where is your plan?" It is right here. But you are afraid to debate it. Why do you not stand up, be men and women, and debate it? Do not be afraid of ideas. So we will protest.

You know that the Democrats since the 1960s and before that have had a love affair with Medicare. You will never drive a wedge between us and Medicare. That is what we wanted to offer. We wanted to bring our plan to the floor of the House. Perhaps you have the votes to beat that, but the disgrace is that you waved the flag and then you waived the democratic rules.

Shame on you. Shame on you for doing that. Go home and explain that to good Republicans, to good independents and to the Democrats in your district. They would never, ever accept that. That is why there is frustration and anger on this side. We can debate these things, but you are afraid to. You do not want to hear an idea, you do not want to hear about choice, and you do not want to hear about competition.

Ms. SLAUGHTER. Mr. Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. LINDER. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself the balance of my time.

We have had an interesting debate here. We had a parade of female Democrats march down citing the mantra that this bill does nothing for senior women. In fact, not one of them spoke with any particularity to the bill. We had the gentlewoman from Connecticut (Mrs. JOHNSON) step up right after that and list time after time after time where this was of benefit for women across the country and most particularly low-income women.

Women have been abused by our social service programs from Social Security through Medicare. This is the first time that any party or any Congress has made an effort to fix that. This is a genuine improvement on this current circumstance.

Facts do not cease to exist just because they are ignored.

It was a fact that, some time ago, the Democrats controlled this body for 40 years and controlled the White House from time to time in the midst of that and never once put forth this important program.

It was a fact that when I came here in 1993 they had overwhelming majorities and a President who was enthusiastic about taking over the health care system. But they did not ever put on the floor for a discussion or debate any prescription drug program for either side to consider.

It is a fact that the Democrats had an opportunity to put forth a program that fit within the budget agreement that was passed by this House, a discipline that this body and this side of the House took seriously. We put forth a bill that fit within the discipline. They did not. This is our proposal. This is our rule. We urge support for it.

Mr. Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time, and I move the previous question on the resolution.

The previous question was ordered. The SPEAKER pro tempore. The question is on the resolution.

The question was taken; and the Speaker pro tempore announced that the ayes appeared to have it.

Ms. SLAUGHTER. Mr. Speaker, I object to the vote on the ground that a quorum is not present and make the point of order that a quorum is not present.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Evidently, a quorum is not present.

The Sergeant at Arms will notify absent Members.

The vote was taken by electronic device, and there were—yeas 218, nays 213, not voting 4, as follows:

[Roll No. 280]

YEAS—218

Aderholt	Dreier	Johnson (CT)
Akin	Duncan	Johnson (IL)
Armey	Dunn	Johnson, Sam
Bachus	Ehlers	Keller
Baker	Ehrlich	Kelly
Ballenger	Emerson	Kennedy (MN)
Barr	English	Kerns
Bartlett	Everett	King (NY)
Barton	Ferguson	Kingston
Bass	Flake	Kirk
Bereuter	Fletcher	Knollenberg
Biggert	Foley	Kolbe
Bilirakis	Forbes	LaHood
Blunt	Fossella	Latham
Boehlert	Frelinghuysen	LaTourette
Boehner	Galleghy	Leach
Bonilla	Ganske	Lewis (CA)
Bono	Gekas	Lewis (KY)
Boozman	Gibbons	Linder
Brady (TX)	Gilchrest	LoBiondo
Brown (SC)	Gillmor	Lucas (OK)
Bryant	Gilman	Manzullo
Burr	Goode	McCrery
Burton	Goodlatte	McHugh
Buyer	Goss	McInnis
Callahan	Graham	McKeon
Calvert	Granger	Mica
Camp	Graves	Miller, Dan
Cannon	Green (WI)	Miller, Gary
Cantor	Greenwood	Miller, Jeff
Capito	Grucci	Moran (KS)
Castle	Hansen	Myrick
Chabot	Hart	Nethercutt
Chambliss	Hastert	Ney
Coble	Hastings (WA)	Northup
Collins	Hayes	Norwood
Combest	Hayworth	Nussle
Cooksey	Hefley	Osborne
Cox	Herger	Ose
Crane	Hilleary	Otter
Crenshaw	Hobson	Oxley
Cubin	Hoekstra	Paul
Culberson	Horn	Pence
Cunningham	Hostettler	Peterson (PA)
Davis, Jo Ann	Houghton	Petri
Davis, Tom	Hulshof	Pickering
Deal	Hunter	Pitts
DeLay	Hyde	Platts
DeMint	Isakson	Pombo
Diaz-Balart	Issa	Portman
Doolittle	Jenkins	Pryce (OH)

Putnam
Quinn
Radanovich
Ramstad
Regula
Rehberg
Reynolds
Riley
Rogers (KY)
Rogers (MI)
Rohrabacher
Ros-Lehtinen
Royce
Ryan (WI)
Ryun (KS)
Saxton
Schaffer
Schrock
Sensenbrenner
Sessions
Shadegg
Shaw

Shays
Sherwood
Shimkus
Shuster
Simmons
Simpson
Skeen
Smith (MI)
Smith (NJ)
Smith (TX)
Souder
Stearns
Stump
Sullivan
Sununu
Sweeney
Tancredo
Tauzin
Taylor (NC)
Terry
Thomas
Thornberry

Thune
Tiahrt
Tiberi
Toomey
Upton
Vitter
Walden
Walsh
Wamp
Watkins (OK)
Watts (OK)
Weldon (FL)
Weldon (PA)
Weller
Whitfield
Wicker
Wilson (NM)
Wilson (SC)
Wolf
Young (AK)
Young (FL)

NAYS—213

Abercrombie	Hall (OH)	Mollohan
Ackerman	Hall (TX)	Moore
Allen	Harman	Moran (VA)
Andrews	Hastings (FL)	Morella
Baca	Hill	Murtha
Baird	Hilliard	Nadler
Baldacci	Hinchey	Napolitano
Baldwin	Hinojosa	Neal
Barcia	Hoeffel	Oberstar
Barrett	Holden	Obey
Becerra	Holt	Oliver
Bentsen	Honda	Ortiz
Berkley	Hooley	Owens
Berman	Hoyer	Pallone
Berry	Inslee	Pascarell
Bishop	Israel	Pastor
Blagojevich	Istook	Payne
Blumenauer	Jackson (IL)	Pelosi
Bonior	Jackson-Lee	Peterson (MN)
Borski	(TX)	Phelps
Boswell	Jefferson	Pomeroy
Boucher	John	Price (NC)
Boyd	Johnson, E. B.	Rahall
Brady (PA)	Jones (NC)	Rangel
Brown (FL)	Jones (OH)	Reyes
Brown (OH)	Kanjorski	Rivers
Capps	Kaptur	Rodriguez
Capuano	Kennedy (RI)	Roemer
Cardin	Kildee	Ross
Carson (IN)	Kilpatrick	Rothman
Carson (OK)	Kind (WI)	Roybal-Allard
Clayton	Kleczka	Rush
Clement	Kucinich	Sabo
Clyburn	LaFalce	Sanchez
Condit	Lampson	Sanders
Conyers	Langevin	Sandlin
Costello	Lantos	Sawyer
Coyne	Larsen (WA)	Schakowsky
Cramer	Larson (CT)	Schiff
Crowley	Lee	Scott
Cummings	Levin	Serrano
Davis (CA)	Lewis (GA)	Sherman
Davis (FL)	Lipinski	Shows
Davis (IL)	Lofgren	Skelton
DeFazio	Lowe	Slaughter
DeGette	Lucas (KY)	Smith (WA)
Delahunt	Luther	Snyder
DeLauro	Lynch	Solis
Deutsch	Maloney (CT)	Spratt
Dicks	Maloney (NY)	Stark
Dingell	Markey	Stenholm
Doggett	Mascara	Strickland
Dooley	Matheson	Stupak
Doyle	Matsui	Tanner
Edwards	McCarthy (MO)	Tauscher
Eshoo	McCarthy (NY)	Taylor (MS)
Etheridge	McCollum	Thompson (CA)
Evans	McDermott	Thompson (MS)
Farr	McGovern	Thurman
Fattah	McIntyre	Tierney
Filner	McKinney	Towns
Ford	McNulty	Turner
Frank	Meehan	Udall (CO)
Frost	Meek (FL)	Udall (NM)
Gephardt	Meeks (NY)	Velázquez
Gonzalez	Menendez	Viscosky
Gordon	Millender-	Waters
Green (TX)	McDonald	Watson (CA)
Gutierrez	Miller, George	Watt (NC)
Gutknecht	Mink

Waxman
Weiner

Wexler
Woolsey

Wu
Wynn

NOT VOTING—4

Clay
Engel

Roukema
Traficant

□ 2243

Mr. WEINER, Ms. KAPTUR, and Mr. BECERRA changed their vote from “yea” to “nay.”

So the resolution was agreed to.

The result of the vote was announced as above recorded.

A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

□ 2245

Mrs. JOHNSON of Connecticut. Mr. Speaker, pursuant to House Resolution 465, I call up the bill (H.R. 4954) to amend title XVIII of the Social Security Act to provide for a voluntary program for prescription drug coverage under the Medicare Program, to modernize and reform payments and the regulatory structure of the Medicare Program, and for other purposes, and ask for its immediate consideration.

The Clerk read the title of the bill.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. THORNBERRY). Pursuant to House Resolution 465, the bill is considered as read for amendment.

The text of H.R. 4954 is as follows:

H.R. 4954

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

SECTION 1. SHORT TITLE; AMENDMENTS TO SOCIAL SECURITY ACT; REFERENCES TO BIPA AND SECRETARY; TABLE OF CONTENTS.

(a) SHORT TITLE.—This Act may be cited as the “Medicare Modernization and Prescription Drug Act of 2002”.

(b) AMENDMENTS TO SOCIAL SECURITY ACT.—Except as otherwise specifically provided, whenever in this Act an amendment is expressed in terms of an amendment to or repeal of a section or other provision, the reference shall be considered to be made to that section or other provision of the Social Security Act.

(c) BIPA; SECRETARY.—In this Act:

(1) BIPA.—The term “BIPA” means the Medicare, Medicaid, and SCHIP Benefits Improvement and Protection Act of 2000, as enacted into law by section 1(a)(6) of Public Law 106-554.

(2) SECRETARY.—The term “Secretary” means the Secretary of Health and Human Services.

(d) TABLE OF CONTENTS.—The table of contents of this Act is as follows:

Sec. 1. Short title; amendments to Social Security Act; references to BIPA and Secretary; table of contents.

TITLE I—MEDICARE PRESCRIPTION DRUG BENEFIT

Sec. 101. Establishment of a medicare prescription drug benefit.

“PART D—VOLUNTARY PRESCRIPTION DRUG BENEFIT PROGRAM

“Sec. 1860A. Benefits; eligibility; enrollment; and coverage period.

“Sec. 1860B. Requirements for qualified prescription drug coverage.

“Sec. 1860C. Beneficiary protections for qualified prescription drug coverage.

“Sec. 1860D. Requirements for prescription drug plan (PDP) sponsors; contracts; establishment of standards.

“Sec. 1860E. Process for beneficiaries to select qualified prescription drug coverage.

“Sec. 1860F. Submission of bids.

“Sec. 1860G. Premium and cost-sharing subsidies for low-income individuals.

“Sec. 1860H. Subsidies for all medicare beneficiaries for qualified prescription drug coverage.

“Sec. 1860I. Medicare Prescription Drug Trust Fund.

“Sec. 1860J. Definitions; treatment of references to provisions in part C.

Sec. 102. Offering of qualified prescription drug coverage under the Medicare+Choice program.

Sec. 103. Medicaid amendments.

Sec. 104. Medigap transition.

Sec. 105. Medicare prescription drug discount card endorsement program.

TITLE II—MEDICARE+CHOICE REVITALIZATION AND MEDICARE+CHOICE COMPETITION PROGRAM

Subtitle A—Medicare+Choice Revitalization

Sec. 201. Medicare+Choice improvements.

Sec. 202. Making permanent change in Medicare+Choice reporting deadlines and annual, coordinated election period.

Sec. 203. Avoiding duplicative State regulation.

Sec. 204. Specialized Medicare+Choice plans for special needs beneficiaries.

Sec. 205. Medicare MSAs.

Sec. 206. Extension of reasonable cost and SHMO contracts.

Subtitle B—Medicare+Choice Competition Program

Sec. 211. Medicare+Choice competition program.

Sec. 212. Demonstration program for competitive-demonstration areas.

Sec. 213. Conforming amendments.

TITLE III—RURAL HEALTH CARE IMPROVEMENTS

Sec. 301. Reference to full market basket increase for sole community hospitals.

Sec. 302. Enhanced disproportionate share hospital (DSH) treatment for rural hospitals and urban hospitals with fewer than 100 beds.

Sec. 303. 2-year phased-in increase in the standardized amount in rural and small urban areas to achieve a single, uniform standardized amount.

Sec. 304. More frequent update in weights used in hospital market basket.

Sec. 305. Improvements to critical access hospital program.

Sec. 306. Extension of temporary increase for home health services furnished in a rural area.

Sec. 307. Reference to 10 percent increase in payment for hospice care furnished in a frontier area and rural hospice demonstration project.

Sec. 308. Reference to priority for hospitals located in rural or small urban areas in redistribution of unused graduate medical education residencies.

Sec. 309. GAO study of geographic differences in payments for physicians' services.

Sec. 310. Providing safe harbor for certain collaborative efforts that benefit medically underserved populations.

TITLE IV—PROVISIONS RELATING TO PART A

Subtitle A—Inpatient Hospital Services

Sec. 401. Revision of acute care hospital payment updates.

Sec. 402. 2-year increase in level of adjustment for indirect costs of medical education (IME).

Sec. 403. Recognition of new medical technologies under inpatient hospital PPS.

Sec. 404. Phase-in of Federal rate for hospitals in Puerto Rico.

Sec. 405. Reference to provision relating to enhanced disproportionate share hospital (DSH) payments for rural hospitals and urban hospitals with fewer than 100 beds.

Sec. 406. Reference to provision relating to 2-year phased-in increase in the standardized amount in rural and small urban areas to achieve a single, uniform standardized amount.

Sec. 407. Reference to provision for more frequent updates in the weights used in hospital market basket.

Sec. 408. Reference to provision making improvements to critical access hospital program for more frequent updates in the weights used in hospital market basket.

Subtitle B—Skilled Nursing Facility Services

Sec. 411. Payment for covered skilled nursing facility services.

Subtitle C—Hospice

Sec. 421. Coverage of hospice consultation services.

Sec. 422. 10 percent increase in payment for hospice care furnished in a frontier area.

Sec. 423. Rural hospice demonstration project.

Subtitle D—Other Provisions

Sec. 431. Demonstration project for use of recovery audit contractors for part A services.

TITLE V—PROVISIONS RELATING TO PART B

Subtitle A—Physicians' Services

Sec. 501. Revision of updates for physicians' services.

Sec. 502. Studies on access to physicians' services.

Sec. 503. MedPAC report on payment for physicians' services.

Subtitle B—Other Services

Sec. 511. Competitive acquisition of certain items and services.

Sec. 512. Payment for ambulance services.

Sec. 513. 1-year extension of moratorium on therapy caps; provisions relating to reports.

Sec. 514. Accelerated implementation of 20 percent coinsurance for hospital outpatient department (OPD) services; other OPD provisions.

Sec. 515. Coverage of an initial preventive physical examination.

Sec. 516. Renal dialysis services.

TITLE VI—PROVISIONS RELATING TO PARTS A AND B

Subtitle A—Home Health Services

Sec. 601. Elimination of 15 percent reduction in payment rates under the prospective payment system.

Sec. 602. Establishment of reduced copayment for a home health service episode of care for certain beneficiaries.

Sec. 603. Update in home health services.

Sec. 604. OASIS Task Force; suspension of certain OASIS data collection requirements pending Task Force submittal of report.

Sec. 605. MedPAC study on medicare margins of home health agencies.

Subtitle B—Direct Graduate Medical Education

Sec. 611. Extension of update limitation on high cost programs.

Sec. 612. Redistribution of unused resident positions.

Subtitle C—Other Provisions

Sec. 621. Modifications to Medicare Payment Advisory Commission (MedPAC).

Sec. 622. Demonstration project for disease management for certain medicare beneficiaries with diabetes.

Sec. 623. Demonstration project for medical adult day care services.

TITLE VII—MEDICARE BENEFITS ADMINISTRATION

Sec. 701. Establishment of Medicare Benefits Administration.

TITLE VIII—REGULATORY REDUCTION AND CONTRACTING REFORM

Subtitle A—Regulatory Reform

Sec. 801. Construction; definition of supplier.

Sec. 802. Issuance of regulations.

Sec. 803. Compliance with changes in regulations and policies.

Sec. 804. Reports and studies relating to regulatory reform.

Subtitle B—Contracting Reform

Sec. 811. Increased flexibility in medicare administration.

Sec. 812. Requirements for information security for medicare administrative contractors.

Subtitle C—Education and Outreach

Sec. 821. Provider education and technical assistance.

Sec. 822. Small provider technical assistance demonstration program.

Sec. 823. Medicare provider ombudsman; medicare beneficiary ombudsman.

Sec. 824. Beneficiary outreach demonstration program.

Subtitle D—Appeals and Recovery

Sec. 831. Transfer of responsibility for medicare appeals.

Sec. 832. Process for expedited access to review.

Sec. 833. Revisions to medicare appeals process.

Sec. 834. Prepayment review.

Sec. 835. Recovery of overpayments.

Sec. 836. Provider enrollment process; right of appeal.

Sec. 837. Process for correction of minor errors and omissions on claims without pursuing appeals process.

Sec. 838. Prior determination process for certain items and services; advance beneficiary notices.

Subtitle E—Miscellaneous Provisions

Sec. 841. Policy development regarding evaluation and management (E & M) documentation guidelines.

Sec. 842. Improvement in oversight of technology and coverage.

Sec. 843. Treatment of hospitals for certain services under medicare secondary payor (MSP) provisions.

Sec. 844. EMTALA improvements.

Sec. 845. Emergency Medical Treatment and Active Labor Act (EMTALA) Technical Advisory Group.

Sec. 846. Authorizing use of arrangements with other hospice programs to provide core hospice services in certain circumstances.

Sec. 847. Application of OSHA bloodborne pathogens standard to certain hospitals.

Sec. 848. BIPA-related technical amendments and corrections.

Sec. 849. Conforming authority to waive a program exclusion.

Sec. 850. Treatment of certain dental claims.

Sec. 851. Annual publication of list of national coverage determinations.

TITLE IX—MEDICAID, PUBLIC HEALTH, AND OTHER HEALTH PROVISIONS

Subtitle A—Medicaid Provisions

Sec. 901. National Bipartisan Commission on the Future of Medicaid.

Sec. 902. GAO study on medicaid drug payment system.

Subtitle B—Internet Pharmacies

Sec. 911. Findings.

Sec. 912. Amendment to Federal Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act.

Sec. 913. Public education.

Sec. 914. Study regarding coordination of regulatory activities.

Sec. 915. Effective date.

Subtitle C—Promotion of Electronic Prescription

Sec. 921. Program of grants to health care providers to implement electronic prescription drug programs.

Subtitle D—Treatment of Rare Diseases

Sec. 931. NIH Office of Rare Diseases at National Institutes of Health.

Sec. 932. Rare disease regional centers of excellence.

Subtitle E—Other Provisions Relating to Drugs

Sec. 941. GAO study regarding direct-to-consumer advertising of prescription drugs.

Sec. 942. Certain health professions programs regarding practice of pharmacy.

"SUBPART 3—PHARMACIST WORKFORCE PROGRAMS

"Sec. 771. Public service announcements.

"Sec. 772. Demonstration project.

"Sec. 773. Information technology.

"Sec. 774. Authorization of appropriations.

TITLE X—HEALTH-CARE RELATED TAX PROVISIONS

Sec. 1001. Eligibility for Archer MSA's extended to account holders of Medicare+Choice MSA's.

Sec. 1002. Adjustment of employer contributions to Combined Benefit Fund to reflect medicare prescription drug subsidy payments.

Sec. 1003. Expansion of human clinical trials qualifying for orphan drug credit.

TITLE I—MEDICARE PRESCRIPTION DRUG BENEFIT

SEC. 101. ESTABLISHMENT OF A MEDICARE PRESCRIPTION DRUG BENEFIT.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Title XVIII is amended—

(1) by redesignating part D as part E; and

(2) by inserting after part C the following new part:

"PART D—VOLUNTARY PRESCRIPTION DRUG BENEFIT PROGRAM

"SEC. 1860A. BENEFITS; ELIGIBILITY; ENROLLMENT; AND COVERAGE PERIOD.

"(a) PROVISION OF QUALIFIED PRESCRIPTION DRUG COVERAGE THROUGH ENROLLMENT IN PLANS.—Subject to the succeeding provisions of this part, each individual who is entitled to benefits under part A or is enrolled under part B is entitled to obtain qualified prescription drug coverage (described in section 1860B(a)) as follows:

"(1) MEDICARE+CHOICE PLAN.—If the individual is eligible to enroll in a Medicare+Choice plan that provides qualified prescription drug coverage under section 1851(j), the individual may enroll in the plan and obtain coverage through such plan.

"(2) PRESCRIPTION DRUG PLAN.—If the individual is not enrolled in a Medicare+Choice plan that provides qualified prescription drug coverage, the individual may enroll under this part in a prescription drug plan (as defined in section 1860J(a)(5)).

Such individuals shall have a choice of such plans under section 1860E(d).

"(b) GENERAL ELECTION PROCEDURES.—

"(1) IN GENERAL.—An individual eligible to make an election under subsection (a) may elect to enroll in a prescription drug plan under this part, or elect the option of qualified prescription drug coverage under a Medicare+Choice plan under part C, and to change such election only in such manner and form as may be prescribed by regulations of the Administrator of the Medicare Benefits Administration (appointed under section 1808(b)) (in this part referred to as the 'Medicare Benefits Administrator') and only during an election period prescribed in or under this subsection.

"(2) ELECTION PERIODS.—

"(A) IN GENERAL.—Except as provided in this paragraph, the election periods under this subsection shall be the same as the coverage election periods under the Medicare+Choice program under section 1851(e), including—

"(i) annual coordinated election periods; and

"(ii) special election periods.

In applying the last sentence of section 1851(e)(4) (relating to discontinuance of a Medicare+Choice election during the first year of eligibility) under this subparagraph, in the case of an election described in such section in which the individual had elected or is provided qualified prescription drug coverage at the time of such first enrollment, the individual shall be permitted to enroll in a prescription drug plan under this part at the time of the election of coverage under the original fee-for-service plan.

"(B) INITIAL ELECTION PERIODS.—

"(i) INDIVIDUALS CURRENTLY COVERED.—In the case of an individual who is entitled to benefits under part A or enrolled under part B as of November 1, 2004, there shall be an initial election period of 6 months beginning on that date.

"(ii) INDIVIDUAL COVERED IN FUTURE.—In the case of an individual who is first entitled to benefits under part A or enrolled under part B after such date, there shall be an initial election period which is the same as the initial enrollment period under section 1837(d).

"(C) ADDITIONAL SPECIAL ELECTION PERIODS.—The Administrator shall establish special election periods—

“(i) in cases of individuals who have and involuntarily lose prescription drug coverage described in subsection (c)(2)(C);

“(ii) in cases described in section 1837(h) (relating to errors in enrollment), in the same manner as such section applies to part B;

“(iii) in the case of an individual who meets such exceptional conditions (including conditions provided under section 1851(e)(4)(D)) as the Administrator may provide; and

“(iv) in cases of individuals (as determined by the Administrator) who become eligible for prescription drug assistance under title XIX under section 1935(d).

“(c) GUARANTEED ISSUE; COMMUNITY RATING; AND NONDISCRIMINATION.—

“(1) GUARANTEED ISSUE.—

“(A) IN GENERAL.—An eligible individual who is eligible to elect qualified prescription drug coverage under a prescription drug plan or Medicare+Choice plan at a time during which elections are accepted under this part with respect to the plan shall not be denied enrollment based on any health status-related factor (described in section 2702(a)(1) of the Public Health Service Act) or any other factor.

“(B) MEDICARE+CHOICE LIMITATIONS PERMITTED.—The provisions of paragraphs (2) and (3) (other than subparagraph (C)(i), relating to default enrollment) of section 1851(g) (relating to priority and limitation on termination of election) shall apply to PDP sponsors under this subsection.

“(2) COMMUNITY-RATED PREMIUM.—

“(A) IN GENERAL.—In the case of an individual who maintains (as determined under subparagraph (C)) continuous prescription drug coverage since the date the individual first qualifies to elect prescription drug coverage under this part, a PDP sponsor or Medicare+Choice organization offering a prescription drug plan or Medicare+Choice plan that provides qualified prescription drug coverage and in which the individual is enrolled may not deny, limit, or condition the coverage or provision of covered prescription drug benefits or increase the premium under the plan based on any health status-related factor described in section 2702(a)(1) of the Public Health Service Act or any other factor.

“(B) LATE ENROLLMENT PENALTY.—In the case of an individual who does not maintain such continuous prescription drug coverage (as described in subparagraph (C)), a PDP sponsor or Medicare+Choice organization may (notwithstanding any provision in this title) adjust the premium otherwise applicable or impose a pre-existing condition exclusion with respect to qualified prescription drug coverage in a manner that reflects additional actuarial risk involved. Such a risk shall be established through an appropriate actuarial opinion of the type described in subparagraphs (A) through (C) of section 2103(c)(4).

“(C) CONTINUOUS PRESCRIPTION DRUG COVERAGE.—An individual is considered for purposes of this part to be maintaining continuous prescription drug coverage on and after the date the individual first qualifies to elect prescription drug coverage under this part if the individual establishes that as of such date the individual is covered under any of the following prescription drug coverage and before the date that is the last day of the 63-day period that begins on the date of termination of the particular prescription drug coverage involved (regardless of whether the individual subsequently obtains any of the following prescription drug coverage):

“(i) COVERAGE UNDER PRESCRIPTION DRUG PLAN OR MEDICARE+CHOICE PLAN.—Qualified prescription drug coverage under a prescription drug plan or under a Medicare+Choice plan.

“(ii) MEDICAID PRESCRIPTION DRUG COVERAGE.—Prescription drug coverage under a medicaid plan under title XIX, including through the Program of All-inclusive Care for the Elderly (PACE) under section 1934, through a social health maintenance organization (referred to in section 4104(c) of the Balanced Budget Act of 1997), or through a Medicare+Choice project that demonstrates the application of capitation payment rates for frail elderly medicare beneficiaries through the use of an interdisciplinary team and through the provision of primary care services to such beneficiaries by means of such a team at the nursing facility involved.

“(iii) PRESCRIPTION DRUG COVERAGE UNDER GROUP HEALTH PLAN.—Any outpatient prescription drug coverage under a group health plan, including a health benefits plan under the Federal Employees Health Benefit Plan under chapter 89 of title 5, United States Code, and a qualified retiree prescription drug plan as defined in section 1860H(f)(1), but only if (subject to subparagraph (E)(ii)) the coverage provides benefits at least equivalent to the benefits under a qualified prescription drug plan.

“(iv) PRESCRIPTION DRUG COVERAGE UNDER CERTAIN MEDIGAP POLICIES.—Coverage under a medicare supplemental policy under section 1882 that provides benefits for prescription drugs (whether or not such coverage conforms to the standards for packages of benefits under section 1882(p)(1)), but only if the policy was in effect on January 1, 2005, and if (subject to subparagraph (E)(ii)) the coverage provides benefits at least equivalent to the benefits under a qualified prescription drug plan.

“(v) STATE PHARMACEUTICAL ASSISTANCE PROGRAM.—Coverage of prescription drugs under a State pharmaceutical assistance program, but only if (subject to subparagraph (E)(ii)) the coverage provides benefits at least equivalent to the benefits under a qualified prescription drug plan.

“(vi) VETERANS' COVERAGE OF PRESCRIPTION DRUGS.—Coverage of prescription drugs for veterans under chapter 17 of title 38, United States Code, but only if (subject to subparagraph (E)(ii)) the coverage provides benefits at least equivalent to the benefits under a qualified prescription drug plan.

“(D) CERTIFICATION.—For purposes of carrying out this paragraph, the certifications of the type described in sections 2701(e) of the Public Health Service Act and in section 9801(e) of the Internal Revenue Code shall also include a statement for the period of coverage of whether the individual involved had prescription drug coverage described in subparagraph (C).

“(E) DISCLOSURE.—

“(i) IN GENERAL.—Each entity that offers coverage of the type described in clause (ii), (iv), (v), or (vi) of subparagraph (C) shall provide for disclosure, consistent with standards established by the Administrator, of whether such coverage provides benefits at least equivalent to the benefits under a qualified prescription drug plan.

“(ii) WAIVER OF LIMITATIONS.—An individual may apply to the Administrator to waive the requirement that coverage of such type provide benefits at least equivalent to the benefits under a qualified prescription drug plan, if the individual establishes that the individual was not adequately informed that such coverage did not provide such level of benefits.

“(F) CONSTRUCTION.—Nothing in this section shall be construed as preventing the disenrollment of an individual from a prescription drug plan or a Medicare+Choice plan based on the termination of an election described in section 1851(g)(3), including for non-payment of premiums or for other reasons specified in subsection (d)(3), which takes into account a grace period described in section 1851(g)(3)(B)(i).

“(3) NONDISCRIMINATION.—A PDP sponsor offering a prescription drug plan shall not establish a service area in a manner that would discriminate based on health or economic status of potential enrollees.

“(d) EFFECTIVE DATE OF ELECTIONS.—

“(1) IN GENERAL.—Except as provided in this section, the Administrator shall provide that elections under subsection (b) take effect at the same time as the Administrator provides that similar elections under section 1851(e) take effect under section 1851(f).

“(2) NO ELECTION EFFECTIVE BEFORE 2005.—In no case shall any election take effect before January 1, 2005.

“(3) TERMINATION.—The Administrator shall provide for the termination of an election in the case of—

“(A) termination of coverage under both part A and part B; and “(B) termination of elections described in section 1851(g)(3) (including failure to pay required premiums).

“SEC. 1860B. REQUIREMENTS FOR QUALIFIED PRESCRIPTION DRUG COVERAGE.

“(a) REQUIREMENTS.—

“(1) IN GENERAL.—For purposes of this part and part C, the term ‘qualified prescription drug coverage’ means either of the following:

“(A) STANDARD COVERAGE WITH ACCESS TO NEGOTIATED PRICES.—Standard coverage (as defined in subsection (b)) and access to negotiated prices under subsection (d).

“(B) ACTUARIALLY EQUIVALENT COVERAGE WITH ACCESS TO NEGOTIATED PRICES.—Coverage of covered outpatient drugs which meets the alternative coverage requirements of subsection (c) and access to negotiated prices under subsection (d), but only if it is approved by the Administrator, as provided under subsection (c).

“(2) PERMITTING ADDITIONAL OUTPATIENT PRESCRIPTION DRUG COVERAGE.—

“(A) IN GENERAL.—Subject to subparagraph (B), nothing in this part shall be construed as preventing qualified prescription drug coverage from including coverage of covered outpatient drugs that exceeds the coverage required under paragraph (1), but any such additional coverage shall be limited to coverage of covered outpatient drugs.

“(B) DISAPPROVAL AUTHORITY.—The Administrator shall review the offering of qualified prescription drug coverage under this part or part C. If the Administrator finds that, in the case of a qualified prescription drug coverage under a prescription drug plan or a Medicare+Choice plan, that the organization or sponsor offering the coverage is engaged in activities intended to discourage enrollment of classes of eligible medicare beneficiaries obtaining coverage through the plan on the basis of their higher likelihood of utilizing prescription drug coverage, the Administrator may terminate the contract with the sponsor or organization under this part or part C.

“(3) APPLICATION OF SECONDARY PAYOR PROVISIONS.—The provisions of section 1852(a)(4) shall apply under this part in the same manner as they apply under part C.

“(b) STANDARD COVERAGE.—For purposes of this part, the ‘standard coverage’ is coverage of covered outpatient drugs (as defined in subsection (f) that meets the following requirements:

“(1) DEDUCTIBLE.—The coverage has an annual deductible—

“(A) for 2005, that is equal to $250; or

“(B) for a subsequent year, that is equal to the amount specified under this paragraph for the previous year increased by the percentage specified in paragraph (5) for the year involved.

Any amount determined under subparagraph (B) that is not a multiple of $10 shall be rounded to the nearest multiple of $10.

“(2) LIMITS ON COST-SHARING.—

“(A) IN GENERAL.—The coverage has cost-sharing (for costs above the annual deductible specified in paragraph (1) and up to the initial coverage limit under paragraph (3)) as follows:

“(i) FIRST COPAYMENT RANGE.—For costs above the annual deductible specified in paragraph (1) and up to amount specified in subparagraph (C), the cost-sharing—

“(I) is equal to 20 percent; or

“(II) is actuarially equivalent (using processes established under subsection (e)) to an average expected payment of 20 percent of such costs.

“(ii) SECONDARY COPAYMENT RANGE.—For costs above the amount specified in subparagraph (C) and up to the initial coverage limit, the cost-sharing—

“(I) is equal to 50 percent; or

“(II) is actuarially consistent (using processes established under subsection (e)) with an average expected payment of 50 percent of such costs.

“(B) USE OF TIERED COPAYMENTS.—Nothing in this part shall be construed as preventing a PDP sponsor from applying tiered copayments, so long as such tiered copayments are consistent with subparagraph (A).

“(C) INITIAL COPAYMENT THRESHOLD.—The amount specified in this subparagraph—

“(i) for 2005, is equal to $1,000; or

“(ii) for a subsequent year, is equal to the amount specified in this subparagraph for the previous year, increased by the annual percentage increase described in paragraph (5) for the year involved.

Any amount determined under clause (ii) that is not a multiple of $10 shall be rounded to the nearest multiple of $10.

“(3) INITIAL COVERAGE LIMIT.—Subject to paragraph (4), the coverage has an initial coverage limit on the maximum costs that may be recognized for payment purposes (above the annual deductible)—

“(A) for 2005, that is equal to $2,000; or

“(B) for a subsequent year, that is equal to the amount specified in this paragraph for the previous year, increased by the annual percentage increase described in paragraph (5) for the year involved.

Any amount determined under subparagraph (B) that is not a multiple of $25 shall be rounded to the nearest multiple of $25.

“(4) CATASTROPHIC PROTECTION.—

“(A) IN GENERAL.—Notwithstanding paragraph (3), the coverage provides benefits with no cost-sharing after the individual has incurred costs (as described in subparagraph (C)) for covered outpatient drugs in a year equal to the annual out-of-pocket threshold specified in subparagraph (B).

“(B) ANNUAL OUT-OF-POCKET THRESHOLD.—For purposes of this part, the ‘annual out-of-pocket threshold’ specified in this subparagraph—

“(i) for 2005, is equal to $4,500; or

“(ii) for a subsequent year, is equal to the amount specified in this subparagraph for the previous year, increased by the annual percentage increase described in paragraph (5) for the year involved.

Any amount determined under clause (ii) that is not a multiple of $100 shall be rounded to the nearest multiple of $100.

“(C) APPLICATION.—In applying subparagraph (A)—

“(i) incurred costs shall only include costs incurred for the annual deductible (described in paragraph (1)), cost-sharing (described in paragraph (2)), and amounts for which benefits are not provided because of the application of the initial coverage limit described in paragraph (3); and

“(ii) such costs shall be treated as incurred only if they are paid by the individual, under section 1860G, or under title XIX and the individual is not reimbursed (through insurance or otherwise) by another person for such costs.

“(5) ANNUAL PERCENTAGE INCREASE.—For purposes of this part, the annual percentage increase specified in this paragraph for a year is equal to the annual percentage increase in average per capita aggregate expenditures for covered outpatient drugs in the United States for medicare beneficiaries, as determined by the Administrator for the 12-month period ending in July of the previous year.

“(c) ALTERNATIVE COVERAGE REQUIREMENTS.—A prescription drug plan or Medicare+Choice plan may provide a different prescription drug benefit design from the standard coverage described in subsection (b) so long as the following requirements are met and the plan applies for, and receives, the approval of the Administrator for such benefit design:

“(1) ASSURING AT LEAST ACTUARIALLY EQUIVALENT COVERAGE.—

“(A) ASSURING EQUIVALENT VALUE OF TOTAL COVERAGE.—The actuarial value of the total coverage (as determined under subsection (e)) is at least equal to the actuarial value (as so determined) of standard coverage.

“(B) ASSURING EQUIVALENT UNSUBSIDIZED VALUE OF COVERAGE.—The unsubsidized value of the coverage is at least equal to the unsubsidized value of standard coverage. For purposes of this subparagraph, the unsubsidized value of coverage is the amount by which the actuarial value of the coverage (as determined under subsection (e)) exceeds the actuarial value of the subsidy payments under section 1860H with respect to such coverage.

“(C) ASSURING STANDARD PAYMENT FOR COSTS AT INITIAL COVERAGE LIMIT.—The coverage is designed, based upon an actuarially representative pattern of utilization (as determined under subsection (e)), to provide for the payment, with respect to costs incurred that are equal to the initial coverage limit under subsection (b)(3), of an amount equal to at least the sum of the following products:

“(i) FIRST COPAYMENT RANGE.—The product of—

“(I) the amount by which the initial copayment threshold described in subsection (b)(2)(C) exceeds the deductible described in subsection (b)(1); and “(II) 100 percent minus the cost-sharing percentage specified in subsection (b)(2)(A)(i)(I).

“(ii) SECONDARY COPAYMENT RANGE.—The product of—

“(I) the amount by which the initial coverage limit described in subsection (b)(3) exceeds the initial copayment threshold described in subsection (b)(2)(C); and “(II) 100 percent minus the cost-sharing percentage specified in subsection (b)(2)(A)(ii)(I).

“(2) CATASTROPHIC PROTECTION.—The coverage provides for beneficiaries the catastrophic protection described in subsection (b)(4).

“(d) ACCESS TO NEGOTIATED PRICES.—

“(1) IN GENERAL.—Under qualified prescription drug coverage offered by a PDP sponsor or a Medicare+Choice organization, the sponsor or organization shall provide beneficiaries with access to negotiated prices (including applicable discounts) used for payment for covered outpatient drugs, regardless of the fact that no benefits may be payable under the coverage with respect to such drugs because of the application of cost-sharing or an initial coverage limit (described in subsection (b)(3)). Insofar as a State elects to provide medical assistance under title XIX for a drug based on the prices negotiated by a prescription drug plan under this part, the requirements of section 1927 shall not apply to such drugs.

“(2) DISCLOSURE.—The PDP sponsor or Medicare+Choice organization shall disclose to the Administrator (in a manner specified by the Administrator) the extent to which discounts or rebates made available to the sponsor or organization by a manufacturer are passed through to enrollees through pharmacies and other dispensers or otherwise. The provisions of section 1927(b)(3)(D) shall apply to information disclosed to the Administrator under this paragraph in the same manner as such provisions apply to information disclosed under such section.

“(e) ACTUARIAL VALUATION; DETERMINATION OF ANNUAL PERCENTAGE INCREASES.—

“(1) PROCESSES.—For purposes of this section, the Administrator shall establish processes and methods—

“(A) for determining the actuarial valuation of prescription drug coverage, including—

“(i) an actuarial valuation of standard coverage and of the reinsurance subsidy payments under section 1860H;

“(ii) the use of generally accepted actuarial principles and methodologies; and

“(iii) applying the same methodology for determinations of alternative coverage under subsection (c) as is used with respect to determinations of standard coverage under subsection (b); and

“(B) for determining annual percentage increases described in subsection (b)(5).

“(2) USE OF OUTSIDE ACTUARIES.—Under the processes under paragraph (1)(A), PDP sponsors and Medicare+Choice organizations may use actuarial opinions certified by independent, qualified actuaries to establish actuarial values.

“(f) COVERED OUTPATIENT DRUGS DEFINED.—

“(1) IN GENERAL.—Except as provided in this subsection, for purposes of this part, the term ‘covered outpatient drug’ means—

“(A) a drug that may be dispensed only upon a prescription and that is described in subparagraph (A)(i) or (A)(ii) of section 1927(k)(2); or

“(B) a biological product described in clauses (i) through (iii) of subparagraph (B) of such section or insulin described in subparagraph (C) of such section, and such term includes a vaccine licensed under section 351 of the Public Health Service Act and any use of a covered outpatient drug for a medically accepted indication (as defined in section 1927(k)(6)).

“(2) EXCLUSIONS.—

“(A) IN GENERAL.—Such term does not include drugs or classes of drugs, or their medical uses, which may be excluded from coverage or otherwise restricted under section 1927(d)(2), other than subparagraph (E) thereof (relating to smoking cessation agents), or under section 1927(d)(3).

“(B) AVOIDANCE OF DUPLICATE COVERAGE.—A drug prescribed for an individual that would otherwise be a covered outpatient drug under this part shall not be so considered if payment for such drug is available under part A or B for an individual entitled to benefits under part A and enrolled under part B.

“(3) APPLICATION OF FORMULARY RESTRICTIONS.—A drug prescribed for an individual that would otherwise be a covered outpatient drug under this part shall not be so considered under a plan if the plan excludes the drug under a formulary and such exclusion is not successfully appealed under section 1860C(f)(2).

“(4) APPLICATION OF GENERAL EXCLUSION PROVISIONS.—A prescription drug plan or Medicare+Choice plan may exclude from qualified prescription drug coverage any covered outpatient drug—

“(A) for which payment would not be made if section 1862(a) applied to part D; or “(B) which are not prescribed in accordance with the plan or this part.

Such exclusions are determinations subject to reconsideration and appeal pursuant to section 1860C(f).

“SEC. 1860C. BENEFICIARY PROTECTIONS FOR QUALIFIED PRESCRIPTION DRUG COVERAGE.

“(a) GUARANTEED ISSUE, COMMUNITY-RELATED PREMIUMS, ACCESS TO NEGOTIATED PRICES, AND NONDISCRIMINATION.—For provisions requiring guaranteed issue, community-rated premiums, access to negotiated prices, and nondiscrimination, see sections 1860A(c)(1), 1860A(c)(2), 1860B(d), and 1860F(b), respectively.

“(b) DISSEMINATION OF INFORMATION.—

“(1) GENERAL INFORMATION.—A PDP sponsor shall disclose, in a clear, accurate, and standardized form to each enrollee with a prescription drug plan offered by the sponsor under this part at the time of enrollment and at least annually thereafter, the information described in section 1852(c)(1) relating to such plan. Such information includes the following:

“(A) Access to covered outpatient drugs, including access through pharmacy networks.

“(B) How any formulary used by the sponsor functions.

“(C) Co-payments and deductible requirements, including the identification of the tiered or other co-payment level applicable to each drug (or class of drugs).

“(D) Grievance and appeals procedures.

“(2) DISCLOSURE UPON REQUEST OF GENERAL COVERAGE, UTILIZATION, AND GRIEVANCE INFORMATION.—Upon request of an individual eligible to enroll under a prescription drug plan, the PDP sponsor shall provide the information described in section 1852(c)(2) (other than subparagraph (D)) to such individual.

“(3) RESPONSE TO BENEFICIARY QUESTIONS.—Each PDP sponsor offering a prescription drug plan shall have a mechanism for providing specific information to enrollees upon request. The sponsor shall make available on a timely basis, through an Internet website and in writing upon request, information on specific changes in its formulary.

“(4) CLAIMS INFORMATION.—Each PDP sponsor offering a prescription drug plan must furnish to enrolled individuals in a form easily understandable to such individuals an explanation of benefits (in accordance with section 1806(a) or in a comparable manner) and a notice of the benefits in relation to initial coverage limit and annual out-of-pocket threshold for the current year, whenever prescription drug benefits are provided under this part (except that such notice need not be provided more often than monthly).

“(c) ACCESS TO COVERED BENEFITS.—

“(1) ASSURING PHARMACY ACCESS.—

“(A) IN GENERAL.—The PDP sponsor of the prescription drug plan shall secure the participation in its network of a sufficient number of pharmacies that dispense (other than by mail order) drugs directly to patients to ensure convenient access (as determined by the Administrator and including adequate emergency access) for enrolled beneficiaries, in accordance with standards established under section 1860D(e) that ensure such convenient access.

“(B) USE OF POINT-OF-SERVICE SYSTEM.—A PDP sponsor shall establish an optional point-of-service method of operation under which—

“(i) the plan provides access to any or all pharmacies that are not participating pharmacies in its network; and

“(ii) the plan may charge beneficiaries through adjustments in premiums and copayments any additional costs associated with the point-of-service option.

The additional copayments so charged shall not count toward the application of section 1860B(b).

“(2) USE OF STANDARDIZED TECHNOLOGY.—

“(A) IN GENERAL.—The PDP sponsor of a prescription drug plan shall issue (and re-issue, as appropriate) such a card (or other technology) that may be used by an enrolled beneficiary to assure access to negotiated prices under section 1860B(d) for the purchase of prescription drugs for which coverage is not otherwise provided under the prescription drug plan.

“(B) STANDARDS.—

“(i) DEVELOPMENT.—The Administrator shall provide for the development of national standards relating to a standardized format for the card or other technology referred to in subparagraph (A). Such standards shall be compatible with standards established under part C of title XI.

“(ii) APPLICATION OF ADVISORY TASK FORCE.—The advisory task force established under subsection (d)(3)(B)(ii) shall provide recommendations to the Administrator under such subsection regarding the standards developed under clause (i).

“(3) REQUIREMENTS ON DEVELOPMENT AND APPLICATION OF FORMULARIES.—If a PDP sponsor of a prescription drug plan uses a formulary, the following requirements must be met:

“(A) PHARMACY AND THERAPEUTIC (P&T) COMMITTEE.—The sponsor must establish a pharmacy and therapeutic committee that develops and reviews the formulary. Such committee shall include at least one physician and at least one pharmacist both with expertise in the care of elderly or disabled persons and a majority of its members shall consist of individuals who are a physician or a pharmacist (or both).

“(B) FORMULARY DEVELOPMENT.—In developing and reviewing the formulary, the committee shall base clinical decisions on the strength of scientific evidence and standards of practice, including assessing peer-reviewed medical literature, such as randomized clinical trials, pharmacoeconomic studies, outcomes research data, and such other information as the committee determines to be appropriate.

“(C) INCLUSION OF DRUGS IN ALL THERAPEUTIC CATEGORIES.—The formulary must include drugs within each therapeutic category and class of covered outpatient drugs (although not necessarily for all drugs within such categories and classes).

“(D) PROVIDER EDUCATION.—The committee shall establish policies and procedures to educate and inform health care providers concerning the formulary.

“(E) NOTICE BEFORE REMOVING DRUGS FROM FORMULARY.—Any removal of a drug from a formulary shall take effect only after appropriate notice is made available to beneficiaries and physicians.

“(F) GRIEVANCES AND APPEALS RELATING TO APPLICATION OF FORMULARIES.—For provisions relating to grievances and appeals of coverage, see subsections (e) and (f).

“(d) COST AND UTILIZATION MANAGEMENT; QUALITY ASSURANCE; MEDICATION THERAPY MANAGEMENT PROGRAM.—

“(1) IN GENERAL.—The PDP sponsor shall have in place with respect to covered outpatient drugs—

“(A) an effective cost and drug utilization management program, including medically appropriate incentives to use generic drugs and therapeutic interchange, when appropriate;

“(B) quality assurance measures and systems to reduce medical errors and adverse drug interactions, including a medication therapy management program described in paragraph (2) and for years beginning with 2006, an electronic prescription program described in paragraph (3); and

“(C) a program to control fraud, abuse, and waste.

Nothing in this section shall be construed as impairing a PDP sponsor from applying cost management tools (including differential payments) under all methods of operation.

“(2) MEDICATION THERAPY MANAGEMENT PROGRAM.—

“(A) IN GENERAL.—A medication therapy management program described in this paragraph is a program of drug therapy management and medication administration that is designed to assure, with respect to beneficiaries with chronic diseases (such as diabetes, asthma, hypertension, and congestive heart failure) or multiple prescriptions, that covered outpatient drugs under the prescription drug plan are appropriately used to achieve therapeutic goals and reduce the risk of adverse events, including adverse drug interactions.

“(B) ELEMENTS.—Such program may include—

“(i) enhanced beneficiary understanding of such appropriate use through beneficiary education, counseling, and other appropriate means;

“(ii) increased beneficiary adherence with prescription medication regimens through medication refill reminders, special packaging, and other appropriate means; and

“(iii) detection of patterns of overuse and underuse of prescription drugs.

“(C) DEVELOPMENT OF PROGRAM IN COOPERATION WITH LICENSED PHARMACISTS.—The program shall be developed in cooperation with licensed pharmacists and physicians.

“(D) CONSIDERATIONS IN PHARMACY FEES.—The PDP sponsor of a prescription drug program shall take into account, in establishing fees for pharmacists and others providing services under the medication therapy management program, the resources and time used in implementing the program.

“(3) ELECTRONIC PRESCRIPTION PROGRAM.—

“(A) IN GENERAL.—An electronic prescription drug program described in this paragraph is a program that includes at least the following components, consistent with national standards established under subparagraph (B):

“(i) ELECTRONIC TRANSMITTAL OF PRESCRIPTIONS.—Prescriptions are only received electronically, except in emergency cases and other exceptional circumstances recognized by the Administrator.

“(ii) PROVISION OF INFORMATION TO PRESCRIBING HEALTH CARE PROFESSIONAL.—The program provides, upon transmittal of a prescription by a prescribing health care professional, for transmittal by the pharmacist to the professional of information that includes—

“(I) information (to the extent available and feasible) on the drugs being prescribed for that patient and other information relating to the medical history or condition of the patient that may be relevant to the appropriate prescription for that patient;

“(II) cost-effective alternatives (if any) for the use of the drug prescribed; and

“(III) information on the drugs included in the applicable formulary.

To the extent feasible, such program shall permit the prescribing health care professional to provide (and be provided) related information on an interactive, real-time basis.

“(B) STANDARDS.—

“(i) DEVELOPMENT.—The Administrator shall provide for the development of national standards relating to the electronic prescription drug program described in subparagraph (A). Such standards shall be compatible with standards established under part C of title XI.

“(ii) ADVISORY TASK FORCE.—In developing such standards and the standards described in subsection (c)(2)(B)(i) the Administrator shall establish a task force that includes representatives of physicians, hospitals, pharmacists, and technology experts and representatives of the Departments of Veterans Affairs and Defense and other appropriate Federal agencies to provide recommendations to the Administrator on such standards, including recommendations relating to the following:

“(I) The range of available computerized prescribing software and hardware and their costs to develop and implement.

“(II) The extent to which such systems reduce medication errors and can be readily implemented by physicians and hospitals.

“(III) Efforts to develop a common software platform for computerized prescribing.

“(IV) The cost of implementing such systems in the range of hospital and physician office settings, including hardware, software, and training costs.

“(V) Implementation issues as they relate to part C of title XI, and current Federal and State prescribing laws and regulations and their impact on implementation of computerized prescribing.

“(iii) DEADLINES.—

“(I) The Administrator shall constitute the task force under clause (ii) by not later than April 1, 2003.

“(II) Such task force shall submit recommendations to Administrator by not later than January 1, 2004.

“(III) The Administrator shall develop and promulgate the national standards referred to in clause (ii) by not later than July 1, 2004.

“(C) REFERENCE TO AVAILABILITY OF GRANT FUNDS.—Grant funds are authorized under section 3990 of the Public Health Service Act to provide assistance to health care providers in implementing electronic prescription drug programs.

“(4) TREATMENT OF ACCREDITATION.—Section 1852(e)(4) (relating to treatment of accreditation) shall apply to prescription drug plans under this part with respect to the following requirements, in the same manner as they apply to Medicare+Choice plans under part C with respect to the requirements described in a clause of section 1852(e)(4)(B):

“(A) Paragraph (1) (including quality assurance), including medication therapy management program under paragraph (2).

“(B) Subsection (c)(1) (relating to access to covered benefits).

“(C) Subsection (g) (relating to confidentiality and accuracy of enrollee records).

“(5) PUBLIC DISCLOSURE OF PHARMACEUTICAL PRICES FOR EQUIVALENT DRUGS.—Each PDP sponsor shall provide that each pharmacy or other dispenser that arranges for the dispensing of a covered outpatient drug shall inform the beneficiary at the time of purchase of the drug of any differential between the price of the prescribed drug to the enrollee and the price of the lowest cost generic drug covered under the plan that is therapeutically equivalent and bioequivalent.

“(e) GRIEVANCE MECHANISM, COVERAGE DETERMINATIONS, AND RECONSIDERATIONS.—

“(1) IN GENERAL.—Each PDP sponsor shall provide meaningful procedures for hearing and resolving grievances between the organization (including any entity or individual through which the sponsor provides covered benefits) and enrollees with prescription drug plans of the sponsor under this part in accordance with section 1852(f).

“(2) APPLICATION OF COVERAGE DETERMINATION AND RECONSIDERATION PROVISIONS.—A PDP sponsor shall meet the requirements of paragraphs (1) through (3) of section 1852(g) with respect to covered benefits under the prescription drug plan it offers under this part in the same manner as such requirements apply to a Medicare+Choice organization with respect to benefits it offers under a Medicare+Choice plan under part C.

“(3) REQUEST FOR REVIEW OF TIERED FORMULARY DETERMINATIONS.—In the case of a prescription drug plan offered by a PDP sponsor that provides for tiered cost-sharing for drugs included within a formulary and provides lower cost-sharing for preferred drugs included within the formulary, an individual who is enrolled in the plan may request coverage of a nonpreferred drug under the terms applicable for preferred drugs if the prescribing physician determines that the preferred drug for treatment of the same condition is not as effective for the individual or has adverse effects for the individual.

“(f) APPEALS.—

“(1) IN GENERAL.—Subject to paragraph (2), a PDP sponsor shall meet the requirements of paragraphs (4) and (5) of section 1852(g) with respect to drugs not included on any formulary in the same manner as such requirements apply to a Medicare+Choice organization with respect to benefits it offers under a Medicare+Choice plan under part C.

“(2) FORMULARY DETERMINATIONS.—An individual who is enrolled in a prescription drug plan offered by a PDP sponsor may appeal to obtain coverage for a covered outpatient drug that is not on a formulary of the sponsor if the prescribing physician determines that the formulary drug for treatment of the same condition is not as effective for the individual or has adverse effects for the individual.

“(g) CONFIDENTIALITY AND ACCURACY OF ENROLLEE RECORDS.—A PDP sponsor shall meet the requirements of section 1852(h) with respect to enrollees under this part in the same manner as such requirements apply to a Medicare+Choice organization with respect to enrollees under part C.

“SEC. 1860D. REQUIREMENTS FOR PRESCRIPTION DRUG PLAN (PDP) SPONSORS; CONTRACTS; ESTABLISHMENT OF STANDARDS.

“(a) GENERAL REQUIREMENTS.—Each PDP sponsor of a prescription drug plan shall meet the following requirements:

“(1) LICENSURE.—Subject to subsection (c), the sponsor is organized and licensed under State law as a risk-bearing entity eligible to offer health insurance or health benefits coverage in each State in which it offers a prescription drug plan.

“(2) ASSUMPTION OF FINANCIAL RISK.—

“(A) IN GENERAL.—Subject to subparagraph (B) and section 1860E(d)(2), the entity assumes full financial risk on a prospective basis for qualified prescription drug coverage that it offers under a prescription drug plan and that is not covered under section 1860H.

“(B) REINSURANCE PERMITTED.—The entity may obtain insurance or make other arrangements for the cost of coverage provided to any enrolled member under this part.

“(3) SOLVENCY FOR UNLICENSED SPONSORS.—In the case of a sponsor that is not described in paragraph (1), the sponsor shall meet solvency standards established by the Administrator under subsection (d).

“(b) CONTRACT REQUIREMENTS.—

“(1) IN GENERAL.—The Administrator shall not permit the election under section 1860A of a prescription drug plan offered by a PDP sponsor under this part, and the sponsor shall not be eligible for payments under section 1860G or 1860H, unless the Administrator has entered into a contract under this subsection with the sponsor with respect to the offering of such plan. Such a contract with a sponsor may cover more than one prescription drug plan. Such contract shall provide that the sponsor agrees to comply with the applicable requirements and standards of this part and the terms and conditions of payment as provided for in this part.

“(2) NEGOTIATION REGARDING TERMS AND CONDITIONS.—The Administrator shall have the same authority to negotiate the terms and conditions of prescription drug plans under this part as the Director of the Office of Personnel Management has with respect to health benefits plans under chapter 89 of title 5, United States Code. In negotiating the terms and conditions regarding premiums for which information is submitted under section 1860F(a)(2), the Administrator shall take into account the subsidy payments under section 1860H and the adjusted community rate (as defined in section 1854(f)(3)) for the benefits covered.

“(3) INCORPORATION OF CERTAIN MEDICARE+CHOICE CONTRACT REQUIREMENTS.—The following provisions of section 1857 shall apply, subject to subsection (c)(5), to contracts under this section in the same manner as they apply to contracts under section 1857(a):

“(A) MINIMUM ENROLLMENT.—Paragraphs (1) and (3) of section 1857(b).

“(B) CONTRACT PERIOD AND EFFECTIVENESS.—Paragraphs (1) through (3) and (5) of section 1857(c).

“(C) PROTECTIONS AGAINST FRAUD AND BENEFICIARY PROTECTIONS.—Section 1857(d).

“(D) ADDITIONAL CONTRACT TERMS.—Section 1857(e); except that in applying section 1857(e)(2) under this part—

“(i) such section shall be applied separately to costs relating to this part (from costs under part C);

“(ii) in no case shall the amount of the fee established under this subparagraph for a plan exceed 20 percent of the maximum amount of the fee that may be established under subparagraph (B) of such section; and

“(iii) no fees shall be applied under this subparagraph with respect to Medicare+Choice plans.

“(E) INTERMEDIATE SANCTIONS.—Section 1857(g).

“(F) PROCEDURES FOR TERMINATION.—Section 1857(h).

“(4) RULES OF APPLICATION FOR INTERMEDIATE SANCTIONS.—In applying paragraph (3)(E)—

“(A) the reference in section 1857(g)(1)(B) to section 1854 is deemed a reference to this part; and

“(B) the reference in section 1857(g)(1)(F) to section 1852(k)(2)(A)(ii) shall not be applied.

“(c) WAIVER OF CERTAIN REQUIREMENTS TO EXPAND CHOICE.—

“(1) IN GENERAL.—In the case of an entity that seeks to offer a prescription drug plan in a State, the Administrator shall waive the requirement of subsection (a)(1) that the entity be licensed in that State if the Administrator determines, based on the application and other evidence presented to the Administrator, that any of the grounds for approval of the application described in paragraph (2) has been met.

“(2) GROUNDS FOR APPROVAL.—The grounds for approval under this paragraph are the grounds for approval described in subparagraph (B), (C), and (D) of section 1855(a)(2), and also include the application by a State of any grounds other than those required under Federal law.

“(3) APPLICATION OF WAIVER PROCEDURES.—With respect to an application for a waiver (or a waiver granted) under this subsection, the provisions of subparagraphs (E), (F), and (G) of section 1855(a)(2) shall apply.

“(4) LICENSURE DOES NOT SUBSTITUTE FOR OR CONSTITUTE CERTIFICATION.—The fact that an entity is licensed in accordance with subsection (a)(1) does not deem the entity to meet other requirements imposed under this part for a PDP sponsor.

“(5) REFERENCES TO CERTAIN PROVISIONS.—For purposes of this subsection, in applying provisions of section 1855(a)(2) under this subsection to prescription drug plans and PDP sponsors—

“(A) any reference to a waiver application under section 1855 shall be treated as a reference to a waiver application under paragraph (1); and

“(B) any reference to solvency standards shall be treated as a reference to solvency standards established under subsection (d).

“(d) SOLVENCY STANDARDS FOR NON-LICENSED SPONSORS.—

“(1) ESTABLISHMENT.—The Administrator shall establish, by not later than October 1, 2003, financial solvency and capital adequacy standards that an entity that does not meet the requirements of subsection (a)(1) must meet to qualify as a PDP sponsor under this part.

“(2) COMPLIANCE WITH STANDARDS.—Each PDP sponsor that is not licensed by a State under subsection (a)(1) and for which a waiver application has been approved under subsection (c) shall meet solvency and capital adequacy standards established under paragraph (1). The Administrator shall establish certification procedures for such PDP sponsors with respect to such solvency standards in the manner described in section 1855(c)(2).

“(e) OTHER STANDARDS.—The Administrator shall establish by regulation other standards (not described in subsection (d)) for PDP sponsors and plans consistent with, and to carry out, this part. The Administrator shall publish such regulations by October 1, 2003.

“(f) RELATION TO STATE LAWS.—

“(1) IN GENERAL.—The standards established under this part shall supersede any State law or regulation (other than State licensing laws or State laws relating to plan solvency, except as provided in subsection (d)) with respect to prescription drug plans which are offered by PDP sponsors under this part.

“(2) PROHIBITION OF STATE IMPOSITION OF PREMIUM TAXES.—No State may impose a premium tax or similar tax with respect to premiums paid to PDP sponsors for prescription drug plans under this part, or with respect to any payments made to such a sponsor by the Administrator under this part.

“SEC. 1860E. PROCESS FOR BENEFICIARIES TO SELECT QUALIFIED PRESCRIPTION DRUG COVERAGE.

“(a) IN GENERAL.—The Administrator shall establish a process for the selection of the prescription drug plan or Medicare+Choice plan which offer qualified prescription drug coverage through which eligible individuals elect qualified prescription drug coverage under this part.

“(b) ELEMENTS.—Such process shall include the following:

“(1) Annual, coordinated election periods, in which such individuals can change the qualifying plans through which they obtain coverage, in accordance with section 1860A(b)(2).

“(2) Active dissemination of information to promote an informed selection among qualifying plans based upon price, quality, and other features, in the manner described in (and in coordination with) section 1851(d), including the provision of annual comparative information, maintenance of a toll-free hotline, and the use of non-Federal entities.

“(3) Coordination of elections through filing with a Medicare+Choice organization or a PDP sponsor, in the manner described in (and in coordination with) section 1851(c)(2).

“(c) MEDICARE+CHOICE ENROLLEE IN PLAN OFFERING PRESCRIPTION DRUG COVERAGE MAY ONLY OBTAIN BENEFITS THROUGH THE PLAN.—An individual who is enrolled under a Medicare+Choice plan that offers qualified prescription drug coverage may only elect to receive qualified prescription drug coverage under this part through such plan.

“(d) ASSURING ACCESS TO A CHOICE OF QUALIFIED PRESCRIPTION DRUG COVERAGE.—

“(1) CHOICE OF AT LEAST TWO PLANS IN EACH AREA.—

“(A) IN GENERAL.—The Administrator shall assure that each individual who is entitled to benefits under part A or enrolled under part B and who is residing in an area in the United States has available, consistent with subparagraph (B), a choice of enrollment in at least two qualifying plans (as defined in paragraph (5)) in the area in which the individual resides, at least one of which is a prescription drug plan.

“(B) REQUIREMENT FOR DIFFERENT PLAN SPONSORS.—The requirement in subparagraph (A) is not satisfied with respect to an area if only one PDP sponsor or Medicare+Choice organization offers all the qualifying plans in the area.

“(2) GUARANTEEING ACCESS TO COVERAGE.—In order to assure access under paragraph (1) and consistent with paragraph (3), the Administrator may provide financial incentives (including partial underwriting of risk) for a PDP sponsor to expand the service area under an existing prescription drug plan to adjoining or additional areas or to establish such a plan (including offering such a plan on a regional or nationwide basis), but only so long as (and to the extent) necessary to assure the access guaranteed under paragraph (1).

“(3) LIMITATION ON AUTHORITY.—In exercising authority under this subsection, the Administrator—

“(A) shall not provide for the full underwriting of financial risk for any PDP sponsor;

“(B) shall not provide for any underwriting of financial risk for a public PDP sponsor with respect to the offering of a nationwide prescription drug plan; and

“(C) shall seek to maximize the assumption of financial risk by PDP sponsors or Medicare+Choice organizations.

“(4) REPORTS.—The Administrator shall, in each annual report to Congress under section 1808(f), include information on the exercise of authority under this subsection. The Administrator also shall include such recommendations as may be appropriate to minimize the exercise of such authority, including minimizing the assumption of financial risk.

“(5) QUALIFYING PLAN DEFINED.—For purposes of this subsection, the term ‘qualifying plan’ means a prescription drug plan or a Medicare+Choice plan that includes qualified prescription drug coverage.

“SEC. 1860F. SUBMISSION OF BIDS.

“(a) SUBMISSION OF BIDS AND RELATED INFORMATION.—

“(1) IN GENERAL.—Each PDP sponsor shall submit to the Administrator information of the type described in paragraph (2) in the same manner as information is submitted by a Medicare+Choice organization under section 1854(a)(1).

“(2) TYPE OF INFORMATION.—The information described in this paragraph is the following:

“(A) Information on the qualified prescription drug coverage to be provided.

“(B) Information on the actuarial value of the coverage.

“(C) Information on the bid for the coverage, including an actuarial certification of—

“(i) the actuarial basis for such bid;

“(ii) the portion of such bid attributable to benefits in excess of standard coverage; and

“(iii) the reduction in such bid resulting from the subsidy payments provided under section 1860H.

“(D) Such other information as the Administrator may require to carry out this part.

“(3) REVIEW.—The Administrator shall review the information filed under paragraph (2) for the purpose of conducting negotiations under section 1860D(b)(2).

“(b) UNIFORM BID.—

“(1) IN GENERAL.—The bid for a prescription drug plan under this section may not vary among individuals enrolled in the plan in the same service area.

“(2) CONSTRUCTION.—Nothing in paragraph (1) shall be construed as preventing the imposition of a late enrollment penalty under section 1860A(c)(2)(B).

“(c) COLLECTION.—

“(1) USE OF ELECTRONIC FUNDS TRANSFER MECHANISM OR, AT BENEFICIARY'S OPTION, WITHHOLDING FROM SOCIAL SECURITY PAYMENT.—In accordance with regulations, a PDP sponsor may encourage that enrollees under a plan make payment of the premium established by the plan under this part through an electronic funds transfer mechanism, such as automatic charges of an account at a financial institution or a credit or debit card account, or, at the option of an enrollee, through withholding from benefit payments in the manner provided under section 1840 with respect to monthly premiums under section 1839. All such amounts shall be credited to the Medicare Prescription Drug Trust Fund.

“(2) OFFSETTING.—Reductions in premiums for coverage under parts A and B as a result of a selection of a Medicare+Choice plan may be used to reduce the premium otherwise imposed under paragraph (1).

“(3) PAYMENT OF PLANS.—PDP plans shall receive payment based on bid amounts in the same manner as Medicare+Choice organizations receive payment based on bid amounts under section 1853(a)(1)(A)(ii) except that such payment shall be made from the Medicare Prescription Drug Trust Fund.

“(d) ACCEPTANCE OF BENCHMARK AMOUNT AS FULL PREMIUM FOR SUBSIDIZED LOW-INCOME INDIVIDUALS IF NO STANDARD (OR EQUIVALENT) COVERAGE IN AN AREA.—

“(1) IN GENERAL.—If there is no standard prescription drug coverage (as defined in paragraph (2)) offered in an area, in the case of an individual who is eligible for a premium subsidy under section 1860G and resides in the area, the PDP sponsor of any prescription drug plan offered in the area (and any Medicare+Choice organization that offers qualified prescription drug coverage in the area) shall accept the benchmark bid amount (under section 1860G(b)(2)) as payment in full for the premium charge for qualified prescription drug coverage.

“(2) STANDARD PRESCRIPTION DRUG COVERAGE DEFINED.—For purposes of this subsection, the term ‘standard prescription drug coverage’ means qualified prescription drug coverage that is standard coverage or that has an actuarial value equivalent to the actuarial value for standard coverage.

“SEC. 1860G. PREMIUM AND COST-SHARING SUBSIDIES FOR LOW-INCOME INDIVIDUALS.

“(a) INCOME-RELATED SUBSIDIES FOR INDIVIDUALS WITH INCOME BELOW 150 PERCENT OF FEDERAL POVERTY LEVEL.—

“(1) FULL PREMIUM SUBSIDY AND REDUCTION OF COST-SHARING FOR INDIVIDUALS WITH INCOME BELOW 150 PERCENT OF FEDERAL POVERTY LEVEL.—In the case of a subsidy eligible individual (as defined in paragraph (4)) who is determined to have income that does not exceed 150 percent of the Federal poverty level, the individual is entitled under this section—

“(A) to an income-related premium subsidy equal to 100 percent of the amount described in subsection (b)(1); and

“(B) subject to subsection (c), to the substitution for the beneficiary cost-sharing described in paragraphs (1) and (2) of section 1860B(b) (up to the initial coverage limit specified in paragraph (3) of such section) of amounts that do not exceed $2 for a multiple source or generic drug (as described in section 1927(k)(7)(A)) and $5 for a non-preferred drug.

“(2) SLIDING SCALE PREMIUM SUBSIDY AND REDUCTION OF COST-SHARING FOR INDIVIDUALS WITH INCOME ABOVE 150, BUT BELOW 175 PERCENT, OF FEDERAL POVERTY LEVEL.—In the case of a subsidy eligible individual who is determined to have income that exceeds 150 percent, but does not exceed 175 percent, of the Federal poverty level, the individual is entitled under this section to—

“(A) an income-related premium subsidy determined on a linear sliding scale ranging from 100 percent of the amount described in subsection (b)(1) for individuals with incomes at 150 percent of such level to 0 percent of such amount for individuals with incomes at 175 percent of such level; and

“(B) subject to subsection (c), to the substitution for the beneficiary cost-sharing described in paragraphs (1) and (2) of section 1860B(b) (up to the initial coverage limit specified in paragraph (3) of such section) of amounts that do not exceed $2 for a multiple source or generic drug (as described in section 1927(k)(7)(A)) and $5 for a non-preferred drug.

“(3) CONSTRUCTION.—Nothing in this section shall be construed as preventing a PDP sponsor from reducing to 0 the cost-sharing otherwise applicable to generic drugs.

“(4) DETERMINATION OF ELIGIBILITY.—

“(A) SUBSIDY ELIGIBLE INDIVIDUAL DEFINED.—For purposes of this section, subject to subparagraph (D), the term ‘subsidy eligible individual’ means an individual who—

“(i) is eligible to elect, and has elected, to obtain qualified prescription drug coverage under this part;

“(ii) has income below 175 percent of the Federal poverty line; and “(iii) meets the resources requirement described in section 1905(p)(1)(C).

“(B) DETERMINATIONS.—The determination of whether an individual residing in a State is a subsidy eligible individual and the amount of such individual’s income shall be determined under the State medicaid plan for the State under section 1935(a). In the case of a State that does not operate such a medicaid plan (either under title XIX or under a statewide waiver granted under section 1115), such determination shall be made under arrangements made by the Administrator.

“(C) INCOME DETERMINATIONS.—For purposes of applying this section—

“(i) income shall be determined in the manner described in section 1905(p)(1)(B); and

“(ii) the term ‘Federal poverty line’ means the official poverty line (as defined by the Office of Management and Budget, and revised annually in accordance with section 673(2) of the Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act of 1981) applicable to a family of the size involved.

“(D) TREATMENT OF TERRITORIAL RESIDENTS.—In the case of an individual who is not a resident of the 50 States or the District of Columbia, the individual is not eligible to be a subsidy eligible individual but may be eligible for financial assistance with prescription drug expenses under section 1935(e).

“(E) TREATMENT OF CONFORMING MEDIGAP POLICIES.—For purposes of this section, the term ‘qualified prescription drug coverage’ includes a medicare supplemental policy described in section 1860H(b)(4).

“(5) INDEXING DOLLAR AMOUNTS.—

“(A) FOR 2006.—The dollar amounts applied under paragraphs (1)(B) and (2)(B) for 2006 shall be the dollar amounts specified in such paragraph increased by the annual percentage increase described in section 1860B(b)(5) for 2006.

“(B) FOR SUBSEQUENT YEARS.—The dollar amounts applied under paragraphs (1)(B) and (2)(B) for a year after 2006 shall be the amounts (under this paragraph) applied under paragraph (1)(B) or (2)(B) for the preceding year increased by the annual percentage increase described in section 1860B(b)(5) (relating to growth in medicare prescription drug costs per beneficiary) for the year involved.

“(b) PREMIUM SUBSIDY AMOUNT.—

“(1) IN GENERAL.—The premium subsidy amount described in this subsection for an individual residing in an area is the benchmark bid amount (as defined in paragraph

(2)) for qualified prescription drug coverage offered by the prescription drug plan or the Medicare+Choice plan in which the individual is enrolled.

“(2) BENCHMARK BID AMOUNT DEFINED.—For purposes of this subsection, the term ‘benchmark bid amount’ means, with respect to qualified prescription drug coverage offered under—

“(A) a prescription drug plan that—

“(i) provides standard coverage (or alternative prescription drug coverage the actuarial value is equivalent to that of standard coverage), the bid amount for enrollment under the plan under this part (determined without regard to any subsidy under this section or any late enrollment penalty under section 1860A(c)(2)(B)); or

“(ii) provides alternative prescription drug coverage the actuarial value of which is greater than that of standard coverage, the bid amount described in clause (i) multiplied by the ratio of (I) the actuarial value of standard coverage, to (II) the actuarial value of the alternative coverage; or

“(B) a Medicare+Choice plan, the portion of the bid amount that is attributable to statutory drug benefits (described in section 1853(a)(1)(A)(ii)(II)).

“(c) RULES IN APPLYING COST-SHARING SUBSIDIES.—

“(1) IN GENERAL.—In applying subsections (a)(1)(B) and (a)(2)(B), nothing in this part shall be construed as preventing a plan or provider from waiving or reducing the amount of cost-sharing otherwise applicable.

“(2) LIMITATION ON CHARGES.—In the case of an individual receiving cost-sharing subsidies under subsection (a)(1)(B) or (a)(2)(B), the PDP sponsor may not charge more than $5 per prescription.

“(3) APPLICATION OF INDEXING RULES.—The provisions of subsection (a)(4) shall apply to the dollar amount specified in paragraph (2) in the same manner as they apply to the dollar amounts specified in subsections (a)(1)(B) and (a)(2)(B).

“(d) ADMINISTRATION OF SUBSIDY PROGRAM.—The Administrator shall provide a process whereby, in the case of an individual who is determined to be a subsidy eligible individual and who is enrolled in prescription drug plan or is enrolled in a Medicare+Choice plan under which qualified prescription drug coverage is provided—

“(1) the Administrator provides for a notification of the PDP sponsor or Medicare+Choice organization involved that the individual is eligible for a subsidy and the amount of the subsidy under subsection (a);

“(2) the sponsor or organization involved reduces the premiums or cost-sharing otherwise imposed by the amount of the applicable subsidy and submits to the Administrator information on the amount of such reduction; and

“(3) the Administrator periodically and on a timely basis reimburses the sponsor or organization for the amount of such reductions.

The reimbursement under paragraph (3) with respect to cost-sharing subsidies may be computed on a capitated basis, taking into account the actuarial value of the subsidies and with appropriate adjustments to reflect differences in the risks actually involved.

“(e) RELATION TO MEDICAID PROGRAM.—

“(1) IN GENERAL.—For provisions providing for eligibility determinations, and additional financing, under the medicaid program, see section 1935.

“(2) MEDICAID PROVIDING WRAP AROUND BENEFITS.—The coverage provided under this part is primary payor to benefits for prescribed drugs provided under the medicaid program under title XIX.

“(3) COORDINATION.—The Administrator shall develop and implement a plan for the coordination of prescription drug benefits under this part with the benefits provided under the medicaid program under title XIX, with particular attention to insuring coordination of payments and prevention of fraud and abuse. In developing and implementing such plan, the Administrator shall involve the Secretary, the States, the data processing industry, pharmacists, and pharmaceutical manufacturers, and other experts.

“SEC. 1860H. SUBSIDIES FOR ALL MEDICARE BENEFICIARIES FOR QUALIFIED PRESCRIPTION DRUG COVERAGE.

“(a) SUBSIDY PAYMENT.—In order to reduce premium levels applicable to qualified prescription drug coverage for all medicare beneficiaries, to reduce adverse selection among prescription drug plans and Medicare+Choice plans that provide qualified prescription drug coverage, and to promote the participation of PDP sponsors under this part, the Administrator shall provide in accordance with this section for payment to a qualifying entity (as defined in subsection (b)) of the following subsidies:

“(1) DIRECT SUBSIDY.—In the case of an individual enrolled in a prescription drug plan, Medicare+Choice plan, or qualified retiree prescription drug plan, a direct subsidy equal to a percentage (specified by the Administrator consistent with subsection (d)(2)) of an amount equal to the actuarial value of the standard drug coverage provided under the respective plan.

“(2) SUBSIDY THROUGH REINSURANCE.—The reinsurance payment amount (as defined in subsection (c)) for excess costs incurred in providing qualified prescription drug coverage—

“(A) for individuals enrolled with a prescription drug plan under this part;

“(B) for individuals enrolled with a Medicare+Choice plan that provides qualified prescription drug coverage under part C; and

“(C) for individuals who are enrolled in a qualified retiree prescription drug plan.

This section constitutes budget authority in advance of appropriations Acts and represents the obligation of the Administrator to provide for the payment of amounts provided under this section.

“(b) QUALIFYING ENTITY DEFINED.—For purposes of this section, the term ‘qualifying entity’ means any of the following that has entered into an agreement with the Administrator to provide the Administrator with such information as may be required to carry out this section:

“(1) A PDP sponsor offering a prescription drug plan under this part.

“(2) A Medicare+Choice organization that provides qualified prescription drug coverage under a Medicare+Choice plan under part C.

“(3) The sponsor of a qualified retiree prescription drug plan (as defined in subsection (f)).

“(c) REINSURANCE PAYMENT AMOUNT.—

“(1) IN GENERAL.—Subject to subsection (d)(2) and paragraph (4), the reinsurance payment amount under this subsection for a qualifying covered individual (as defined in subsection (g)(1)) for a coverage year (as defined in subsection (g)(2)) is equal to the sum of the following:

“(A) For the portion of the individual’s gross covered prescription drug costs (as defined in paragraph (3)) for the year that exceeds the initial copayment threshold specified in section 1860B(b)(2)(C), but does not exceed the initial coverage limit specified in section 1860B(b)(3), an amount equal to 30 percent of the allowable costs (as defined in paragraph (2)) attributable to such gross covered prescription drug costs.

“(B) For the portion of the individual’s gross covered prescription drug costs for the year that exceeds the annual out-of-pocket threshold specified in 1860B(b)(4)(B), an amount equal to 80 percent of the allowable costs attributable to such gross covered prescription drug costs.

“(2) ALLOWABLE COSTS.—For purposes of this section, the term ‘allowable costs’ means, with respect to gross covered prescription drug costs under a plan described in subsection (b) offered by a qualifying entity, the part of such costs that are actually paid (net of average percentage rebates) under the plan, but in no case more than the part of such costs that would have been paid under the plan if the prescription drug coverage under the plan were standard coverage.

“(3) GROSS COVERED PRESCRIPTION DRUG COSTS.—For purposes of this section, the term ‘gross covered prescription drug costs’ means, with respect to an enrollee with a qualifying entity under a plan described in subsection (b) during a coverage year, the costs incurred under the plan (including costs attributable to administrative costs) for covered prescription drugs dispensed during the year, including costs relating to the deductible, whether paid by the enrollee or under the plan, regardless of whether the coverage under the plan exceeds standard coverage and regardless of when the payment for such drugs is made.

“(4) INDEXING DOLLAR AMOUNTS.—

“(A) AMOUNTS FOR 2005.—The dollar amounts applied under paragraph (1) for 2005 shall be the dollar amounts specified in such paragraph.

“(B) FOR 2006.—The dollar amounts applied under paragraph (1) for 2006 shall be the dollar amounts specified in such paragraph increased by the annual percentage increase described in section 1860B(b)(5) for 2006.

“(C) FOR SUBSEQUENT YEARS.—The dollar amounts applied under paragraph (1) for a year after 2006 shall be the amounts (under this paragraph) applied under paragraph (1) for the preceding year increased by the annual percentage increase described in section 1860B(b)(5) (relating to growth in medicare prescription drug costs per beneficiary) for the year involved.

“(D) ROUNDING.—Any amount, determined under the preceding provisions of this paragraph for a year, which is not a multiple of $10 shall be rounded to the nearest multiple of $10.

“(d) ADJUSTMENT OF PAYMENTS.—

“(1) ESTIMATION OF PAYMENTS.—The Administrator shall estimate—

“(A) the total payments to be made (without regard to this subsection) during a year under this section; and

“(B) the total payments to be made by qualifying entities for standard coverage under plans described in subsection (b) during the year.

“(2) ADJUSTMENT.—The Administrator shall proportionally adjust the payments made under this section for a coverage year in such manner so that—

“(A) the total of the payments made for the year under this section is equal to 65 percent of the total payments described in paragraph (1)(B) during the year; and

“(B) the ratio of the total of the payments made for direct subsidies under subsection (a)(1) for the year to the total of the payments made for reinsurance subsidies for the year under subsection (a)(2) is equal to the ratio of 35 to 30.

“(3) RISK ADJUSTMENT.—To the extent the Administrator determines it appropriate to avoid risk selection, the payments made for direct subsidies under subsection (a)(1) are subject to adjustment based upon risk factors specified by the Administrator.

“(e) PAYMENT METHODS.—

